reputation of the person who utters it, or vehicle which conveys it? For instance, Was Jesus the Son of God because the voice from heaven declared it at the scene of his baptism, and ceased to be the Son of God, because the devil's confessed it? Truth is truth, no matter who teaches or demonstrates it. It is truth simply because it is truth. Well, what is Mormonism, i.e., the doctrine of the Book of Mormon?

1. One living and true God. "The Scriptures are laid before thee, yea, and all things denote there is a God, yea, even the earth, and all things that are upon the face of it, yea, and its motion; yea, and also all the planets which move in their regular form, doth witness that there is a supreme Creator."—Book of Alma 16:7. "And Amulek said, Yea, there is a true and living God. Now Zeezrom said, Is there more than one God? And he answereth, No."—Alma 8:10. See 1 Cor. 8:6; John 17:3, &c.

2. Jesus is the Christ, the Only Begotten Son of God. "See that ye are not baptized unworthily; see that ye partake not of the sacrament of Christ unworthily, but see that ye do all things in worthiness, and do it in the name of Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God."—Mormon 4:2. "And the angel spake unto me, saying, These last records, which thou hast seen among the Gentiles, shall establish the truth of the first, which are of the twelve apostles of the Lamb, and shall make known the plain and precious things which have been taken away from them; and shall make known to all kindreds, tongues and people, that the Lamb of God is the Son of the Eternal Father, and the Savior of the world; and that all men must come unto him, or they can not be saved."—1 Nephi 3:43; John 3:16; Rom. 8:3.

3. The atonement through Christ. "Nevertheless, the Son of God suffereth according to the flesh, that he might take on him the sins of his people, that he might blot out their transgressions."—Alma 5:1. "And since man has fallen, he can not merit anything of himself, but the sufferings and death of Christ, atoneth for their sins, through faith and repentance," &c.—Alma 13:9. "And also concerning the resurrection of the dead, and the redemption of his people, which was to be brought to pass through the power, and sufferings, and death of Christ, and his resurrection and ascension into heaven."—Mosiah 9:6, Rom. 5:8, 1 John 1:7.

4. Salvation through Christ alone. "As the Lord God liveth, there is none other name given under heaven, save it be this Jesus Christ, of which I have spoken, whereby man can be saved."—2 Nephi 11:3. "And after they had been received unto baptism, and were wrought upon and cleansed by the power of the Holy Ghost, they were numbered among the people of the Church of Christ, and their names were taken, that they might be remembered and nourished by the good word of God, to keep them in the right way, to keep them continually watchful unto praying, relying alone upon the merits of Christ, who was the author and finisher of their faith."—Moroni 6:1. "And now my sons, remember, remember, that it is upon the rock of our Redeemer, who is Christ, the Son of God, that ye must build your foundation."—Heleman 2:15; Acts 4:12, 1 Cor. 3:12.

5. Repentance from sins and dead works demanded. "Hearken, O ye Gentiles, and hear the words of Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God, which he hath commanded me that I should speak concerning you, for behold he commandeth me that I should write, saying, Turn, all ye Gentiles, from your wicked ways, and repent of your evil doings, of your lyings, and deceivings, and of your whoredoms, and of your secret abominations, and your idolatries, and of your murders, and of your priestcrafts, and your envyings, and your strifes, and from all your wickedness and abominations, and come unto me, and be baptized in my name, that ye may receive remission of your sins, and be filled with the Holy Ghost, that ye may be numbered with my people, who are of the House of Israel."—Nephi 14. "And this thing shall ye teach, repentance and baptism, unto all who are accountable and capable of committing sin; yea, teach parents that they must repent and be baptized, and humble themselves as their little children, and they shall be saved with their little children, and their little children need no repentance, neither baptism."—Moroni 8:2; Luke 24:17; Acts 3:19; Isa. 55:6, 7.

6. Baptism for remission of sins taught. "Behold, baptism is unto repentance to the fulfilling the commandments unto the remission of sins."—Moroni 8:2. "And they were not baptized, save they brought forth fruit meet that they were worthy of it; neither did they receive any unto baptism, save they came forth with a broken heart and contrite spirit, and witnessed unto the church that they truly repented of their sins."—Moroni 6. "Now this is the commandment, repent all ye ends of the earth, and come unto me, and be baptized in my name, that ye may be sanctified by the Holy Ghost; that ye may stand spotless before me at the last day."

—Nephi 12:3; Mark 1:4, 5; Acts 2:38, 22:16.

7. Baptism of the Spirit. "And the remission of sins bringeth meekness and lowliness of heart; and because of meekness and lowliness of heart, cometh the visitation of the Holy Ghost, which Comforter filleth with hope and perfect love, which love endureth by diligence unto prayer, until the end shall come, when all the Saints will dwell with God."—Mormon's Epistle to his Son, Moroni 8:3. "And it came to pass that the disciples whom Jesus had chosen, began from that time forth to baptize and to teach as many as did come unto them; and as many as were baptized in the name of Jesus were filled with the Holy Ghost."—Nephi 12:2. "Now Christ spake these words unto them at the time of his first appearing; and the multitude heard it not, but the disciples heard it, and on as many as they laid their hands fell the Holy Ghost."—Moroni 2; John 7:39, 16:7; Acts 1:5, 2:3, 8:12-19, 19:2-6.

8. Spiritual gifts enjoyed. "But as many as were converted did truly signify unto the people, that they had been visited by the power and Spirit of God, which was in Jesus Christ, in whom they believed. And as many as had devils cast out from them, and were healed of their sicknesses, and their infirmities, did truly manifest unto the people that they had been wrought upon by the Spirit of God, and had been healed; and did show forth signs also, and did do some miracles among the people."—Nephi 3:8. "And again, I exhort you my brethren, that ye deny not the gifts of God, for they are many; and they come from the same God. And there are different ways that these gifts are administered; but it is the same God who worketh all in all; and they are given by the manifestations of the Spirit of God unto men to profit them. For, behold to one is given by the Spirit of God, that he may teach the word of wisdom: and to another that he may teach the word of knowledge by the same spirit; and to another exceeding great faith; and to another the gifts of healing by the same spirit. And again, to another that he may work mighty miracles; and again, to another that he may prophesy concerning all things; and to another, the beholding of angels, and ministering spirits; and again, to another, all kinds of tongues, and again, to another, the interpretation of languages, and of divers kinds of tongues. And all these gifts come by the Spirit of Christ; and they come unto every man severally, according as he will."—Moroni 10:1; Mark 16:17-20; Acts

5:12, 8:6-17, 10:15-17; Rom. 12:6-8; 1 Cor. 12:4-13.

9. A change of heart, Conversion, or the new birth, taught. "And the Lord said unto me, Marvel not that all mankind, yea, men and women, all nations, kindreds, tongues and people, must be born again, yea, born of God; changed from their carnal and fallen state, to a state of righteousness, being redeemed of God, becoming his sons and daughters, and thus they become new creatures; and unless they do this, they can in no wise inherit the kingdom of God."—Mosiah 11:22; compare John 3:3, 5, 7; Matt. 18:3.

10. Christ's second coming taught. "Yea, thus saith the Spirit, repent all ye ends of the earth, for the kingdom of heaven is soon at hand; yea, the Son of God cometh in his glory; in his might, majesty, power, and dominion. Yea, my beloved brethren, I say unto you, that the Spirit saith, behold the glory of the King of all the earth; and also the King of heaven shall very soon shine forth among all the children of men."—Alma 3:7. "But when I shall come in my glory, ye shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye, from mortality to immortality, and then shall ye be blessed in the kingdom of my Father."—Nephi 13:3. "Wherefore, my beloved brethren, pray unto the Father with all energy of heart, that ye may be filled with this love which he hath bestowed on all who are true followers of his Son Jesus Christ, that we may become the sons of God, that when he shall appear we shall be like him."—Moroni 7:4.

11. The literal resurrection of the dead declared. "And there is a death, which is called a temporal death; and the death of Christ shall loose the bands of this temporal death, that all shall be raised from this temporal death; the spirit and the body shall be reunited again in its perfect form, both limb and joint shall be restored to its proper frame, even as we are now at this time; and we shall be brought to stand before God, knowing even as we know now, and have a bright recollection of all our guilt." "I say unto you, that this mortal body, is raised an immortal body, that is, from death, even from the first death unto life, that they can die no more; their spirits uniting with their bodies, never to be divided, thus the whole becoming spiritual and immortal, that they can no more see corruption."—Alma 8:9, 10. "But behold the power of death shall be broken, and the Son reigneth and hath power over the dead; therefore he bringeth to pass the resurrection of the dead."—Mosiah 8:4.

Compare Isaiah 26:19; Matt. 5:25-29; 1 Cor. 15:21-24, 35-54.

12. Future rewards and punishments foretold. "Know ye not that if ye will do these things, that the power of the redemption and the resurrection of Christ, which is in Christ, will bring you to stand with shame and awful guilt before the bar of God. And according to the power of justice, for justice can not be denied, ye must go away into that lake of fire and brimstone, whose flames are unquenchable, and whose smoke ascendeth up forever and ever, which lake of fire and brimstone is endless torment."—Jacob 4:1. "And now I have spoken the words which the Lord God hath commanded me. And thus saith the Lord; They shall stand as a bright testimony against this people, at the judgment day; whereof they shall be judged, every man according to his works, whether they be good, or whether they be evil."—Mosiah 1:16. "And these are they who shall have eternal life, and salvation cometh to none else; therefore the wicked remain as though there had been no redemption made, except it be the loosing of the bands of death; for behold the day cometh that all shall rise from the dead, and stand before God, and be judged according to their works."—Alma 8:10. Compare Matt. 25:46; John 5:29; 2 Thess. 1:7-9; 2 Peter 2:9; Rev. 20:12-15.

13. The Marriage question in true Mormon light. "And now I make an end of speaking unto you concerning this pride. And were it not that I must speak unto you concerning a grosser crime, my heart would rejoice exceedingly because of you. But the word of God burthens me, because of your grosser crimes. For, behold, thus saith the Lord, this people begin to wax in iniquity, they understand not the Scriptures; for they seek to excuse themselves in committing whoredoms, BECAUSE OF THE THINGS WRITTEN CONCERNING DAVID AND SOLOMON HIS SON. Behold David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, WHICH THING WAS ABOMINABLE before me, saith the Lord; wherefore thus saith the Lord, I have led this people forth out of the land of Jerusalem, by the power of mine arm, that I might raise unto me a righteous branch from the fruit of the loins of Joseph. Wherefore, I, the Lord God will not suffer that this people shall do like unto them of old. Wherefore, my brethren, hear me, and hearken unto the word of the Lord. FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE; AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE, for, I, the Lord God, delight in the chastity of women, And whoredoms are an abomination before me, saith the Lord of hosts."

Does the Bible, either Old or New Testament, contain such strong and unmistakable language on the sin of polygamy? Yet the world insists in calling polygamy, "Mormonism," while it is no part of it, never was, nor ever can be. It is equally as just to call idolatry, the religion of Christ, or Atheism the doctrine of Paul, or Paganism, Christianity. The church organized A. D. 1830, by Joseph Smith and others, was called the "Mormon Church" from the start by its enemies. The religion taught by the founders of the church, has from the first been called, Mormonism. Now for twenty-two years, or from 1830, to 1852, polygamy was not taught, or believed by any body of religionists calling themselves Mormons; or that was called so by the world, or those not Mormons. Not a line can be found written in its favor, no sermon was ever preached in its defense, no rule, or law, or covenant, or church article, can be found, which in any sense savored of the dogma, prior to 1852; and yet Mormonism as it is called, existed, and over one hundred thousand people claimed to believe it. The church claimed to receive through Joseph Smith, some one hundred and more "revelations," which were and are embodied in a book called "Doctrine and Covenants." In it are found "commandments of God," and "Church Articles," or statements of principles, and views on various civil matter, among which is found the views of the church on the "marriage question." The belief of the Church from 1830 till now, (1883), or for over fifty years, is expressed in the following "commandments," and the "church article" named.

In 1831, among a code of laws given to the church, for her permanent government, and which if not observed by any member, would disqualify him or her for membership, or in other words, which if not obeyed, would cause the transgressor to be expelled; in it is found this plain declaration, which Orson Pratt, polygamy's ablest defender, admitted (even no longer ago than 1869 and seventeen years after polygamy was publicly taught by the apostate Mormons in Utah) to be "God's holy law." Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else, and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit." Observe, it does not say "love thy wives," but thy wife, and "cleave unto her, and none else." Polygamy under this rule or commandment, is impossible. But the polygamists of Utah claim that God changed his mind, or varied from this law, by giving a commandment or revelation in 1843 or twelve years after he gave the above, commanding polygamy as a duty, essential even to salvation, but this can not be for a moment admitted, for,

14. God is unchangeable. "For I know that God, is not a partial God, neither a changeable being: but he is unchangeable, from all eternity to all eternity."—Moroni 8: 3. "For do we not read that God is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever; and in him there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." "And behold I say unto you, He changeth not; if so, he would cease to be God."—Mormon 4: 6 and 7. Compare Malachi 3: 6; James 1: 17. In the light of the foregoing from the Book of Mormon, against the practice of polygamy, and the word of God to the original church in 1831. And in view of the fact that in May, 1844, or ten months after the pretended revelation on polygamy was received by Joseph Smith, as the Utah Mormons falsely claim; the said Smith declared publicly against "polygamy and other false and corrupt doctrines." And in the face of the fact that the Book of Mormon, as the Bible also, positively asserts that God does not and can not change, how can any person justly charge genuine Mormonism with inculcating, or even permitting the practice of polygamy? Does the Bible anywhere call that evil, "abominable" in the sight of the Lord, and "iniquity," or classes it among the "grosser crimes?" as does the Book of Mormon? But not only is it forbidden in the form described, but genuine and original Mormonism makes it impossible in another sense.

15. Genuine Mormonism teaches obedience to law. "Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land; wherefore be subject to the powers that be, until He reigns whose right it is to reign, and subdues all enemies under his feet."—Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 58: par. 5.

"We believe that the commission of crime should be punished according to the nature of the offense; that murder, treason, robbery, theft, and the breach of the general peace, in all respects, should be punished according to their criminality, and their tendency to evil among men, by the laws of that government in which the offense is committed; and for the public peace and tranquillity, all men should step forward and use their ability in bringing offenders against good laws, to punishment."—Church Article on Governments and laws in general.

True Mormonism is loyal and law-abiding. Spurious, otherwise Utah Mormonism, is treasonable, and law-defiant. God says: "Let no man break the laws of the land." Polygamists say "The Government has no right to interfere with our religion, and its laws should not be regarded." The church says, "Religious opinions do not justify sedition and conspiracy." Utah, Apostate Mormons, have no more right to add polygamy to the faith from which they have departed than they have to add murder, theft, arson, or any other crime forbidden by the Book of Mormon, or the church laws, and claim freedom for their practice under the pretense that it is a part of their religion. That which transgresses the law of the land; that which violates God's laws given to the Church; that which ignores the doctrine of the Book of Mormon, and the teachings of the founder under God, of the original church, viz., Joseph Smith, is in no sense whatever Mormonism. The Reorganized Church, whose head-quarters are at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, and whose president is Joseph Smith, son of the translator of the Book of Mormon; and which for thirty years has steadfastly opposed in every lawful and possible way the "crime of polygamy," and which by decision of Civil Courts, has been declared the successor to, and continuation of the original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, prays the entire world to understand and remember, that it utterly denies the right of the Utah Church of polygamists to the prerogatives, privileges, authority, or the name of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; or that its heresies, and abominations of which polygamy is chief, are in any sense Mormonism, or a part of the "Mormon religion;" nor does it sympathize with traitors to God, and the Government, in their well deserved punishment.

What does a true Mormon teach? Learn what Jesus of Nazareth taught, and you have the answer. What does a genuine Mormon believe? Tell us what Paul, and Peter, James and John believed, and you have our reply. What is Mormonism? What is Christianity? They are but two terms of one meaning. Both mean the gospel of the Son of God, the plan of salvation, the religion of Jesus the Christ. What is Utahism? Ask Lamech, the first polygamist, and a murderer. Ask Jacob, about the treachery and deceit of Laban. Ask David, who put Uriah in the front of the battle, to be killed, that he might get his wife. Ask Solomon, whose wives led him into idolatry. Ask the Nicolaitans, whose doctrine, the Lord said, "I hate." What is treason? what is lying? what is idolatry? what is murder? what is "Satanic delusion," or the "doctrine of devils;" and what a "damnable heresy." What is condemned of God, repudiated by his Church, and detested by all good and true men, and odious to the Government of the United States? UTAHISM alias SPURIOUS MORMONISM.

JOHN'S BAPTISM.

I HAVE just read an article in the columns of the Herald, written by Bro. John Macauley, stating that "John's baptism was not for the remission of sins." As I was meditating of the things of the Everlasting Gospel, this morning, at about two o'clock, my mind was led to reflect upon the things contained in this letter, and upon my labors on this coast as a Priest. Remembering that I had gone forth while I was a Priest preaching the baptism of repentance, and promising the people a remission of their sins if they would believe the things I preached, and repent and be baptized. I labored long, and hard, till I had baptized about fifty persons, as I supposed for the remission of sins, telling them that some one higher in office than I was would soon come and confirm them members of the Church of Christ, by the laying on of hands; and that indeed without another baptism for the remission of sins, teaching them at the same time that they must absolutely receive remission of sins before they could enter in, for we are taught that mankind shall humble themselves and become as little children before they can even enter into the church militant. If I was laboring under a mistake, and if they did not receive a remission of sins, then they were received into the Church without remission of sins, which to my mind would be contrary to the spirit of the gospel.

The Holy Ghost said by the mouth of Zacharias, that John's mission was to "go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways, and to give knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins."—See Luke 1:76, 77.

I always supposed that those whom John baptized received a remission of sins, and a knowledge that through Jesus, salvation should be brought to the human family. In Luke 3:3, we read that John preached the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. I had always understood that those who believed John's preaching, and brought forth fruit to prove their repentance, and were baptized by John, then and there received remission of sins, without waiting three long years to obtain this priceless boon. Was not Christ's blood efficacious to those who obeyed the gospel before it was shed, the same as it was after.

"BAPTISM OF REPENTANCE FOR THE REMISSION."

The brother may say the baptism was unto repentance. Well; if it was, was it not also for the remission of sins? Or was the repentance alone for the remission of sins? Or, did he preach it, but not practice it? And they who embraced the true faith, and repented, and were baptized, receive remission—justification. In Luke 7:29, 30, "The people justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John; but the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, not being baptized of him." What does this mean? Were they not justified for being baptized by John's baptism? If the law of Moses did not take away sins, is that sufficient evidence to prove that baptism when performed by a Priest will not? Of course they held the lesser priesthood, in order to minister the law of Moses; but is that any evidence that they did baptize at all, either for repentance, or for the remission of sins? Was baptism an ordinance belonging to the law of Moses, which was a law of carnal commandments? or is baptism strictly the first ordinance of the gospel? Although they held the Aaronic priesthood, would they have done right to baptize unless sent to do so by the Lord?

I understand it to be the opinion of my brother that baptism for repentance is one ordinance, and that baptism for the remission of sins is another; and that baptism for repentance was an ordinance belonging to the law of Moses, which John administered and which was done away in Christ. I have yet to learn that John came ministering the law of Moses. I have always supposed that the law of Moses was binding till the seed should come to whom the promises were made, which was Christ, and no longer. He says, "Christ's blood took away the sins of the world." To me it would have sounded better if he had said "sin of the world," singular member sin, instead of sins, as men will have to answer for their own individual transgressions, and not for Adam's sin, as his was taken away by the blood of Christ. I do not write this to debate with my brother, for writing is not my gift; but in order that some one capable will give the thing a full sweep.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 21st, 1883.

FAULT-FINDING.

If any one complains that most people are selfish, unsympathetic, absorbed in their own pursuits, their own happiness and their own sorrow, the chances are ten to one that the complainant is conspicuous for the very faults which he condemns. His thoughts are so concentrated on his own concerns that he is impatient because other people think of their concerns, not his. He is unable to enter into their grief or their joy; when he is wretched he is amazed and indignant that any one can be happy; when he is happy he thinks it intolerable that other people should be so oppressed with their own sorrows as not to make merry with him in his gladness. He has so high an estimate of the importance of his own work that he thinks other men ought to spend a large part of their time in watching and admiring it, and he wonders at the selfishness which keeps them at their own occupations when they ought to be showing their sympathy with his. This absorption in everything that relates to himself is the explanation of the universal indifference of which he complains. To secure sympathy we must give as well as take. The country that exports nothing will have no imports; but if it infers that all the rest of the world is in wretched poverty, with no mines and no timber, and no glorious harvests, the inference will be a false one. As soon as a man finds that he is beginning to think that all human hearts are cold, let him suspect himself. When an iceberg floats away from the frozen fields which lie near the pole it cools the waters into which it drifts; the very Gulf stream sinks in temperature as soon as the mountain of ice touches it. In a crowd it is the man that pushes hardest who thinks that everybody is pushing him; it is the man who is resolved to make his way to the front who complains that everybody wants to get in front of him. If people speak to you roughly, take warning, the probability is that you spoke roughly to them.—Good Words.

AN APOSTLE OF PEACE.

SINCE the year of our Lord A. D. 1830, there has been many persons claiming themselves to be "Apostles of Peace," and long before the "War for the Union," Peace Societies had been formed both in America and Europe, and what with the issuing of millions of copies of scriptures, tracts, and religious literature, one would be supposed to confirm the idea that the good times would soon be here, that our forefathers sang so much about. But take a retrospective view since that time and perhaps you will agree with me in saying that the poet, Taber, was right in the following lines:—

"The merest boor that turns a clod,
Can turn a verse if duly taught,
'Tis only he inspired of God,
Can plant within the verse a thought.

Joseph Smith knew the force, expression and truth, of the last two lines, and thrice blessed is he who can believe and know of a surety that God is in the field when He seems to be the most invisible, and afar off. To know God is to know His Son Jesus Christ whom He has sent, and to such there is joy, and peace, and everlasting life. There is no blessing on earth to be compared with the blessings of peace, for the reason that it implies and includes so many other blessings. The nation which enjoys peace, which never fears war, nor is to make continual preparation for war; can and does experience all kinds of prosperity. Trade increases, manufactories flourish; art, sciences and literature are extended, and war, the most dreadful of all other calamities, is averted. This kind of peace is a great national blessing to any nation; and its fruits are precious mercies given by the giver of every good and perfect gift. But there is another kind of peace to which even all other blessings combined are not to be compared, viz:—"Peace with God." This will bring comfort into the household, give joy at the fireside, and bring all those virtues and graces that help to build up a Christian life. It belongs to that "Angelic host that sang on Bethlehem's plains by night." Peace with our Savior is better than worldly joy. Joy is a very uneasy guest, and is always on tiptoe to depart. It tires and wearies us out, and yet keeps us ever on the alert and in suspense fearing every moment it will be gone. "Peace with God," is not so. It comes by obedience, viz: "If ye love me keep my commandments." "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." This peace comes more quietly than joy: it stays more contentedly, and it never exhausts our strength, and is not always on tiptoe to depart, except through disobedience; then we find out "That the way of transgressor is hard." This world with all its glittering palaces offers us no real blessings which would end in eternal glory. If all our actions, words, and deeds, are to be accounted for before God, what must a life of continued rebellion be? Before we can have peace with God, we must be brought to see and believe the light which shineth in darkness, but the unbeliever and the wicked comprehendeth it not, because of their unbelief: and what a dreadful thing it must be to depart from wisdom's narrow way after once tasting of the rich blessings God has promised to all those who are faithful: who love and obey his commandments. "Great peace have they," says the Psalmist, "that love thy law; nothing shall offend them." And Charles Wesley wrote and sang, a long time ago:

"Tongue can not express,
The sweet comfort, and peace:
Of a soul in its earliest love."

And yet how much unhappiness and restlessness there are among professing Christians, because they do not possess what they profess. When the Christian, like Peter on the water, looks from his Lord, who is his strength and shield, and looks around at difficulties, he begins like Peter to go under water. Many are unhappy because they have gone contrary to known duty: others because they have sinned against their own light,—light which has made their hearts burn with joy and gladness. The unregenerated man is destitute of true peace. How can it be otherwise? He is an alien from God. He belongs to the world?

And must I tell you what it is to be worldly? It is to be absent from the Lord. What the world did for Peter, Thomas, Demas and Judas, it will do for you and for me, or any body else that loves it. If you will not be at peace with God, God will not be at peace with you. I will not flatter you; I will deal sincerely with you, that peace is the blessing that follows pardon, and while we are conscious of living lives contrary to the Divine will, there can not dwell within us that peace which passeth all understanding. "For to be spiritually minded is life and peace, and to be carnally minded is death." In the struggle and conflict between right and wrong, and the knowledge we have of what we should be, and what we are not, and what God would have us to be, and in still persisting in our evil course, then it is merciful when the Spirit will not let us alone in such a state of affairs, and our conscience continually troubles us until we repent and forsake our sins. As you live here, so your punishment or comfort must be here and here after. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." While I am writing this article, with a testimony of the latter day work, in another room adjoining this in which I write, my eldest brother lies in the last stages of consumption, brought on by dissipation and abuse. He is without hope, faith, and everything which relates to eternal life; for he has rejected both light, wisdom and knowledge, all the days of his life.

Peace with rebels? Peace with traitors?
Peace with pirates, sword in hand?
Not till right and wrong change natures;
Not till God reigns o'er our land.
Peace there is not for the wicked,
Save upon the bended knees;
When unbelief and sin are crushed,
Then the Saints will reign in peace.

WILLIAM STREET.

I DON'T WANT TO.

EVERYWHERE we hear the expression—"I don't want to."

We commence to use it in childhood. When mamma tells the little boy or girl to put away the toys, and bring in the chips to kindle the fire for supper, the answer comes readily—"I don't want to."

The young man who is requested to keep the Sabbath, and to let the whist-table, and the billiard hall, and the wine-glass alone, says he doesn't want to. He doesn't want to be such a milksop among his companions.

The rich man doesn't give away to charities, because he doesn't want to. He will tell you that it is because he has met with losses, or because times are bad, or because he has to support his wife's aunt's grandmother's brother, but he lies, every time; it is because he doesn't want to!

The politician will tell you that he wishes he could vote for principles instead of men; that he sighs for purity in politics, that he would give half his fortune if men could dare be honest; but he doesn't want things that way. If he did, he would try for it.

The fashionable woman will tell you that she wishes she could give something to buy flannels for the poor, but she has already given so much in charity! and she wishes she could raise the state of society to a higher grade, but she is mistaken; she doesn't want to.

The world is full of people who don't want to.

There is a disposition to get through life as easy as may be, and God knows the easiest way is a hard road to travel.

There are no macadamized roads on the way of life. It is mostly an uphill tug, and the man who travels it with his head up, and his courage good, must be sure-footed, and sound-winded, and he mustn't be balky.

To some people it seems to be a sufficient excuse to say, "I don't want to—to get them clear from the performance of any duty. If they don't want to, why, then they needn't.

Now, because we do not want to do a thing is not the shadow of a reason for leaving it undone. Do you suppose the oxen want to plough the furrows where the corn grows for our bread and Indian pudding? Do you suppose the hard-handed old farmer, sweating through the hot days of torrid summer, wants to kill the bugs on the vines where grow the pumpkins for our Thanksgiving pies? And yet if he did not, where would be the chief charm of our New England festival?

Do any of us want to work for a living? Does the machanic hanker after the pleasure (?) of sawing and planing, and nail-driving on the dizzy heights of seven-story-buildings ten hours a day? Does the coal miner enjoy being down in the bowels of the earth, away from the sunshine and the sweet breezes of the wooded hills, delving for the fuel which is to keep the children of luxury and the starving sons of poverty from freezing this coming winter?

Does the poor widow want to toil over her needle, making shirts for a dime, and wearing out her eyes, and her health, and her courage in the struggle to keep the vital spark alive yet a little longer?

No. It is a fact that nobody likes disagreeable tasks. But they are pretty thick in this life. Most of our tasks are not pleasant. Every woman hates dish washing, and yet nine-tenths of the women of the world have to wash dishes.

Every man dislikes to do chores, but most of them have to bear that cross, and it generally requires a great deal of swearing to enable them to bear it.

And now young people, take this thought home to you, that life requires of you the performance of certain things, and it is your duty to do them whether you like to or not; and it is no excuse for you to stand back and let other people bear your burdens, because you don't want to bear them yourselves.

COUNTERFEIT COINS.

IN RECEIVING so many millions of dollars at the sub-treasury, it might be supposed that an occasional spurious coin or note would find its way across the counter. So great is this danger that every piece and every note has to pass under the scrutiny of an expert. People do not realize the quantity of counterfeit silver dollars that are in circulation. Not a day passes that more or less are not offered at the sub-treasury. The Assistant Treasurer, speaking of this subject, says: "You would be surprised at the ingenuity that is displayed in debasing the different Government coins. One of the neatest methods employed by those who engage in this species of crime is what is known as the splitting process. This is done by splitting the coin edgewise (probably by means of a fine saw), digging out the inside, filling the cavity with metal as nearly as possible the weight of the gold taken out, and soldering the two disks together again in such a manner that it will pass without suspicion among those who are not expert in detecting frauds of this kind. Fortunately this method of tampering with coin is so difficult in its successful accomplishment that it is seldom resorted to, and coins thus debased are not common. An expert at the business can take five dollars worth of gold out of a single twenty-dollar piece. A short time ago a $100 note was presented at the counter. The receiving teller, immediately upon taking it into his hand, stamped the word "counterfeit" on its face and handed it back. The proceeding startled the person who presented it, and he asked the teller, with an air of indignation, why he did it.

"Because the law compels me to do it," the teller replied.

The man insisted that the note was good, "but," said he, "if it is not good I could have it taken back to the person I got it from."

"You can do that still," said the teller, "and if he demonstrates that it is a good note, you have only to come here and get your money." The man did not come back.

Spurious silver coins are detected more by their weight and general appearance than by anything else. Said the Assistant Treasurer, speaking of this: "They have got us on the ring of the metal. They can make their base metals to ring as well as ours." The detection of spurious gold coin is purely mechanical—by ringing, acids, weight, the eye, etc. "Experience is everything," said Mr. Spaulding. "A base coin has never been passed on us, but we have stopped lots of them on the way. To become expert in detecting the base coins men have got to make it a business, a study."

EVILS OF SECTS.

THERE are, at present, in England and Wales, not fewer than 186 different religious communities. Some of these are of comparatively recent origin, and have sprung out of the modern methods of revivalism. There are the Army of the King's Own, the Hosanna Army, the Redeemed Army, the Salvation Navy, and others, which are but imitations of the movement inaugurated by Mr. Booth, and have mostly originated through differences in the Salvation Army. But, apart from these, the number of Sects in this country reaches well up to the figures we have given. Some people, by an adroit use of their imagination, regard these sects as regiments of one great army, fighting under one banner and against one common foe. But never Army yet, so far as we are aware, fought under one banner and against one common foe after the fashion of most of the sects. Regiments are not habitually getting into one another's way after the manner of religious communities in this country; nor does one regiment seek to strengthen itself by drawing off the soldiers from another; neither do the regiments devote rather more hostile attention, every now and again, to each other than to the common foe. Were armies in the field to act as do the sections into which the Christian Church is divided, they would at once court defeat. We only wish that the sects would act as do the regiments of one army, for then, with diversity of uniform and position and movement, there would be the substantial and visible unity desirable, and results such as are now occurring would be avoided.—Primitive Methodist.

MEDITATIONS.

THERE is apparently something that is deeply interesting and highly instructive, in the contemplation and meditation of the whys and wherefores, its uses, etc., of the fall of man; the curse that came by reason of the fall, and the great restitution of all things, redemption of all flesh, and the restoration of the earth; and I have wondered at times why it is, that the most learned and talented writers and speakers do not dwell more than they do on such an extensive subject; because it seems to be the cause, the center and future of their best hopes, the expounding of which is the most necessary to help all to understand correctly, and hence an aid to such faith as we are all striving to attain; to be able to reach that obedience and love, that secure knowledge, and drive away all doubt, despondency and fear. One of the writers in one of the Heralds for February, asserts that infidelity is on the spread, and that the worst form of skepticism now exists. I think if such is a fact, that they who are favored with the gift to know that all infidels and atheists are in error, and are able to refute all their arguments, that such advance against the inspiration of scripture, and the existence of Deity, that they should come to the front, and present the invitation so plausibly, by the exposition of the vast subject of subjects, the fall of man, the atonement and the restoration, in such a manner, that all independent thinkers will take issue on the right side, and so share the rest with the redeemed, when the irrepressible conflict is o'er.

INFERIOR.

A FEW WORDS TO WRITERS.

THE following few lines, as the heading indicates, are addressed to writers, and especially to those who write for the two leading Church periodicals, Herald and Hope. There has been a good deal of fault found (and we think in many cases unjustly) with those who write for our church papers. The world has always been well stocked with critics, so-called. I find by referring to the dictionary that the literal meaning of the word critic is one skilled in criticism; a fault finder. Hence we see that a person who takes it upon himself to criticise another may be one competent to criticise, or he may be a mere fault finder; who, having the disease in its chronic form, is never happy except when finding fault with somebody, or something. It is an indisputable fact that writers often make mistakes, and much that they assert, positively, is open to criticism. But though they do err in many instances, when writing on religious subjects, is it not better for them to keep on writing as best they can, than to stop writing altogether? All persons are not constituted alike, and hence the views of brother A. will be contrary to those of brother B., and each will naturally think that the views of the other are erroneous. But we should not think any the less of a brother because his ways are not as our ways, and his thoughts not as our thoughts. We advise Perla Wild and every other sister, or brother who writes for our periodicals to keep on writing in his or her own way, regardless of what the critics may say or think. We think the sister, whose name we mention, had been and is doing much good by her writings; and we believe that such stories as "Maplewood Manor," if rightly understood and appreciated, will be found to contain much that is instructive and beneficial to the young. We say to the author of "Maplewood Manor," and to every other writer in the Church, whose object is to do good, we sincerely bid you God speed, and that the number of writers may continually increase, and the number of critics and grumblers proportionately decrease, is the prayer of

Miscellaneous.

IN MEMORIAM.
LIZZIE G. WICKES.

"Think of me as if I was gone on a journey a little while before you, and that we shall all meet again by and by."—Her last words to her young brothers.

The victory will come by and by,
And the Saluts will arise from the tomb
To inherit the promise God gave:
The earth in its Edenic bloom.

Oh how sweet as we greet,
When we rise from the long silent sleep,
Bye and bye:

Oh how sweet as we meet,
When as conquerors we rise from the tomb.

We know our redeemer doth live,
And life, endless life, will bestow:
Upon those who have fought the good fight,
And faithfully walked here below.

Write, "Blessed are the dead," saith the word,
"Yea, all those who die in the Lord;
For they rest from their labors and toil,"
And life, endless life, 's their reward.

Though death our bodies destroy,
And we lie down in silence to sleep;
In the flesh we shall see our dear Lord,
And in gladness, again we shall meet.

Thomas was a faithful Elder and has been instrumental in bringing many into the Church in this district, and loved by all who knew him. He was baptized August 26th, 1868, by Bro. Davis H. Bays.

Dear brother, thou art gone to rest,
We will not weep for thee;
For thou art now where oft on earth,
Thy spirit longed to be.
Dear brother, thou art gone to rest,
Thy toils and cares are o'er;
And sorrow, pain, and suffering now,
Shall ne'er distress thee more.

STAWPERT.—At Atchison City, Kansas, March 17th, 1883, Bro. Henry Stawpert, aged 58 years, 8 months, and 17 days. Born in Manchester, England. Tuesday afternoon he came home, remarking that he felt unwell; that evening he had a stroke of paralysis, and from that time on was unable to speak a word. He was a good Saint, an excellent trustworthy man in the capacity he moved in in life, and a faithful officer in the Church. He was baptized September 25th, 1869.

Dear brother, thou art gone to rest,
Thy sins are all forgiven;
And Saints in light have welcomed thee,
To share the joys of heaven.
Dear brother, thou art gone to rest,
And this shall be our prayer:
That when we reach our journey's end,
Thy glory we may share.

HOLMAN.—Sr. Susan T. Holman of Conneautville, Pa., and of long and honorable standing in the Church, died on March 22d, 1883. She was born in Wooster county, Town of Templeton, Mass., May 17th, 1797; was 85 years, 9 months, and 22 days old when she died. Deceased was on a visit to her daughters at Cole Brook, Herkimer Co., New York at the time of her death. She was well up to within a few days of her death, and passed away as if but gone to sleep. She belonged to the Church forty-five years and upwards, and died strong in the faith, with a bright hope of meeting with the pure and the good in the land of the blest. She remarked that death was no terror to her; she only dreaded the change. She had a family of thirteen children, ten of which are living. Her husband, Jonathan Holman, died in 1855; since which time she has remained a widow. Her life was among the pioneers in a new country. Her bodily and mental powers were strong until the last. Funeral services by Elder Wm. H. Kelley in the Universalist Church at Conneautville, Pa. A large circle of friends and relatives were in attendance. It was commonly remarked by her neighbors, "Aunt Susan is a good woman," but (in a whisper) she is a Mormon."

BORN.

MARRIED.

BULLARD—GOREHAM.—By Elder J. W. Chaburn, at the residence of the bride's father, near Persia, Harrison county, Iowa, April 1st, 1883, Bro. James H. Bullard and Sister Edith M. Goreham, both of Leland's Grove.

REBAPTISM.

MY opinion is, that if a brother or sister is cut off for transgression, that it is necessary for him or her to be rebaptized, in order to become a member in the Church of Christ; for if we dirty our garments, it is necessary that we get them washed again. If it is as some of our brethren believe, that the first baptism stands good, and that they can come into the Church again on the strength of it, I would like to ask a question. That is, if a brother be ordained to the office of an Elder, Priest, Teacher, or Deacon, if that ordination stands good if he be cut off, and comes into the Church; because to me it seems that it would.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 21st April, 1883.

GEORGE Q. CANNON in a speech delivered by him in the Assembly Hall, Salt Lake City, Utah, March 18th, 1883, stated the following:

"I was very much struck by a statement made to me by President Taylor since my return, showing that faith when connected with works accomplishes wonderful results. Brother Caine and myself, with some other Utah friends, were in the Senate Chamber on 23d of February last, watching Senator Edmunds' attempt to get through his special legislation, of which you have read. It seemed as though nothing could prevent it. Senators with whom we had conversed said that they saw no possible chance of stopping it; that its passage seemed inevitable. But a Cabinet minister gave a dinner party that evening, and one by one those who were invited stole from the Senate Chamber while the bill was under discussion, to the dinner party; and the first that was known when a vote was called was that a quorum was not present. In the absence of a quorum, you know, a legislative body is powerless to act. For four hours Senator Edmunds did all in his power to get action on his bill; but every attempt was resisted by the Democrats upon the ground that there was no quorum, and they accordingly filibustered until Edmunds, disgusted and tired, called for an adjournment.

President Taylor told me upon my return that, on the 22d of February, feeling exercised in his mind about our political affairs, and that it was a time of peril, he called a few of the brethren together and they met at the Endowment House according to the holy order, and besought God in the name of Jesus to baffle the plans of our enemies and frustrate them in their designs, and put them to confusion and shame. In watching Senator Edmunds that evening, I thought that if ever there was a man confused, chagrined and confounded at the futility of his own attempts, it was he. And there is no doubt in my mind that the prayers of President Taylor and the brethren ascended favorably unto the ears of the God of Sabaoth, and were heard and answered. The dreadful wrong was defeated and failed, and it may be said, it met with its death blow; for every attempt afterwards made to bring it up, was unsuccessful. In this way God has wrought out deliverance for Zion."

The conclusion which Mr. Cannon drew, and doubtless wished his hearers to draw also, was that the filibustering actions of the Democratic portion of the Senate, pending the proceedings of that body on February 23d, 1883, respecting the Edmunds' Bill, were due to the influence of the prayers of Pres. John Taylor and others, by which these Democratic statesmen were affected. Before he reached and uttered this sage conclusion, however, he stated:

"If it had not been for the recreancy of some Democrats the Act of March 22d, 1882, known as the Edmunds' Law, would never have become one of the statutes of the United States. Mr. Edmunds succeeded in cajoling some of the Democrats. An astute man is Senator Edmunds. In their action toward us these Democrats seemed to be blind to the fact that they were apostatizing from their own principles; and that in doing so they were striking a deadly blow at the platform on which the party stood. We had been reasoning against this action; but our voices were unheard; we were considered heterodox upon religious matters, and it was supposed that we were heterodox upon political matters; therefore all that we said upon this subject fell heedlessly upon their ears. But we succeeded in getting an apostle of democracy to aid us, one of the old leaders of democracy—Judge Jeremiah S. Black. He began to preach the true doctrines of democracy to his Democratic brethren; and to their amazement, some found that they had, in voting for this law, been trampling upon their own principles. And he proved it to them so thoroughly, that some of them became ashamed of it; and they said "We have gone far enough." He explained the principles of the Constitution and the rights that men had under that instrument when properly administered. Good doctrine for every politician, and every class, not for Democrats so-called alone, but for Republicans also. There is something in such doctrine that strikes a chord in every freeman's breast. It calls forth a response from every lover of liberty by whatever name he may be called. He says, when he hears the rights of man explained by an authority that is entitled to respect: 'There is something in that which I can not but accept.' Such men hesitate before flying in the face of principles expounded in this way, to commit acts, the effects of which are to deprive people of liberty. The effect of Judge Black's argument upon some of the Democrats was to stiffen their backbone so much that they could not consent this time to have other measures enacted as were proposed."

From this it would seem to a looker on in Zion, (and Congress), that the arguments of the "apostle of democracy," Jeremiah S. Black, had a more serious effect upon the obstructionists in the way of the adoption of the Edmunds' Bill on that 23d February, than did the prayers of the apostle of polygamy, Pres. John Taylor. What the arguments were that were used to get the Democratic apostle to enter the lists in favor of the institution at Salt Lake, Mr. Cannon did not state. Nor did he state that precisely the same tactics of absenteeism had been practiced by either party to defeat the cherished objects of the other, during the entire session on all party issues, each in turn pursuing the same course. A few senators absent at a Cabinet Minister's supper, could not account for the repeated and persistent baffling of the republican majority on every and all occasions where questions that could be tortured into party ones were had under consideration. If such conduct in Congress is the result of Pres. John Taylor's prayers, to whom did he pray, the God of accord and peace, or the devil of discord? The God that governs the whole nation, laboring for the upbuilding and salvation of all men; or the one who cares for and sustains a fractional part of a political nation in setting at naught laws that direct and govern in all other parts of the land? It is an interesting question, and once assumed form in a secular paper in this shape; "The prayers of a righteous man availeth much. The Christian people prayed that Pres. Garfield might live; the Mormons, it is said, prayed that he might die. Pres. Garfield died; prayers of the Mormons were answered in his death; therefore the Mormons are righteous."

That in the arguments of Judge Black the Democrats might see force, and betake themselves to adherence to party control by reason of them seems quite plausible; for partisans of either school of politics, usually follow the lead of the party whips; but that the diplomatic dinner and the party filibustering on the Edmunds' Bill, February 23d, last, was attributable to any prayer offered by Pres. John Taylor, is extremely problematical; especially so as any one as shrewd as George Q. Cannon has the reputation of being, and as he is, could have foreseen just such a result. Utah is strongly democratic, and if the Lord cares for his own, the devil for his, why should not the Democratic party look after its own.

We are not a politician, and not partizan so far as political parties are concerned; but there are those who sincerely believe that should the Democrats be fully placed in power as a political party, Utah will be admitted as a State with a plural marriage clause in the Constitution, and thus legalize what the Reorganized Church, Republicans, Democrats, Greenbackers and Prohibitionists, have opposed so steadfastly for the past forty years. We have heard leading men not of the Church, and one or two in the Church, express this idea. We do not endorse it, as a matter of course; but if Mr. G. Q. Cannon represents the sentiments of the polygamists of Utah, leaders and followers, they look for safety and support to their Democratic allies in the halls of legislation.

Mr. Edmunds possibly has charge of the Bill bearing his name in the Senate, because of his relation to the Committee having charge of that class of legislation relating to territories, in its incipient, and transmission stages. He may or may not express his own sentiments in the presentation of the bill; but he may deem it to be a necessity that such a bill should become a law; and from the attitude assumed for those who obstructed its passage by Mr. Cannon, it is regarded as a Republican measure. Is not that party as susceptible to the influences of prayer that they may be led into wise and right legislation respecting Utah and the people of that territory, to be expressed in positive action; as is the Democratic party to obstruct and negative? One would certainly think so.

In this we state nothing in favor and nothing disparaging of either party; we sound the praise of neither, nor echo condemnation upon either; but were led into writing what is here set down by reading Mr. Cannon's remarks after his return to Utah from Washington.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

WE copy the following account of the General Conference from Cleveland, Ohio, Herald of Sunday, the 8th; and are pleased to see such a fair and impartial statement in public print.

KIRTLAND, April 7.—This town is one vast sea of mud. Go where you will, north, south, east or west, you will find it in quality and quantity to suit the most extravagant. The drive over from Willoughby, which in good weather occupies about fifteen minutes, is now the work of an hour. The Mormons accept the inevitable with commendable Christian fortitude, and come up smiling every time.

To say that the opening was a magnificent success is not putting it too strong. The most sanguine expected scarcely more than a handful at the organization. Instead, there were enough to fill the Temple. Yet there's room. Kirtland increases in size in proportion to its importance. To-morrow is to be the great day. Perhaps the most important feature will be the discourse by President Joseph Smith.

Modern church-goers could learn a lesson that would be at once beneficial to them and gratifying to their pastor from the Latter Day Saints. There are no late comers. Neither is there a bell. When the hour arrives for service the congregation are found in their pews. The latter are none of the easiest. High and straight, with very low uncushioned benches that are suggestive of anything but comfort. Yet look where you may about the church you will find every face turned towards the pulpit and every ear intent on catching every word. There is a certain conscientiousness and earnestness about their devotion that makes one forget the peculiarities of their belief. Nothing can exceed the looks of pleasure that beam in the eyes of the resident Mormons. During yesterday's devotions old Mrs. Stratton, the lady who has lived here since the breaking up of the Church, sat on the steps leading up to the pulpit that she might not lose a word. At the close of the services she in company with her neighbors in the faith, stood at the door grasping the hand of every brother and sister.

This afternoon I was pointed out the home of the original Joseph Smith. It is a large, old-fashioned frame building, standing on the brow of the hill, just north of the Temple. A little south beyond the Temple is the house once occupied by Brigham Young. Between the two is the large frame residence once owned by Rigdon. A quarter of a mile north on the banks of the river and on the side of the road leading to Willoughby, is the site of the old mill built by Smith and Rigdon. Nothing now remains of it except the mill-stones, and they have been hauled farther up the hill. The old red store that was built by Smith and Rignon has also yielded to the ravages of time, and all that remains of it is on paper.

Whatever results from the great reunion and conference now going on within the old Temple, and whether a branch of the Church is established here or not, the fact remains that the great old structure is to be no longer entirely neglected. Every two years hereafter the reunion and conference will be held within its walls. The point is quite a central one, as will be easily noted by consulting the list of delegates.

To-day's exercises were inaugurated by a quiet little session of prayer and praise. William Smith, the only surviving brother of the founder of the Church, was in charge of it and opened the meeting with prayer. Many of the brothers and sisters in the Church participated and told of the prophecies they had received years ago that this conference would be held.

A few moments after the meeting a gentleman introduced me to Mr. Smith. He is a tall, spare gentleman, seventy-two years of age, and is apparently as deeply in love with the Church and cause as was his brother. To the question, "How are you enjoying the reunion," Mr. Smith answered: "Just as well as it is possible for any one to do. I should'nt want to enjoy it if any better for fear I might evaporate."

"This is not your first appearance in the Temple?"

"Oh, no. It was here I received my first inspiration in the Church. I helped carry the stone and mortar that put these walls together. It is a great pleasure for me to again enter the blessed old building."

Mr. Smith will remain during the entire exercises. He has continued a steadfast advocate of the doctrine of the Latter Day Saints ever since the building of the Temple in this place.

The ten o'clock meeting was opened by singing:

"Sweet the time, exceeding sweet,
When the Saints together meet."

The committee on credentials then sent in their report. A question of representation provoked an hour's discussion. A motion by Elder W. H. Kelley, that delegates to this conference be from regularly organized districts, whether the delegates be residents of that district or not, finally prevailed.

The question of admitting those representing branches comprising certain Utah districts gave rise to a motion that they be admitted and accepted as delegates from the district, the rule of representation remaining the same. This was discussed at great length.

The permanent chairman, President Joseph Smith, called the afternoon session to order. The exercises were begun by the singing of Coronation.

"The ushers will close the doors and keep them closed during prayer," said the president. Elder Lake then offered a short, fervid prayer.

President Smith addressed the meeting. Said he: "In taking charge this afternoon I do so with a peculiar feeling of reverence and a sense of responsibility. This occasion carries us back to what we believe was the establishment of the Kingdom of God. We have drifted away somewhat from our fathers. The present presiding officer has been charged with sectarianism. A great many of the present members do not understand the full meaning of the church as it was established fifty years ago. Since arriving here I have been thinking what was to be done. This is the first time the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints ever met in this house as a representative body. It does not follow that the organization of the church contemplated any such gathering as this. We have decided that the Twelve shall assemble in front, the Seventies just behind them, and the High Priests just behind them." This arrangement was carried out. The different missionaries then reported the success of their labors.

President W. W. Blair reported that in Eastern Nevada there were a number of Utah Mormons. In Idaho there are probably 10,000 Utah Mormons. There are also three branches of the Reorganized Church. In the Montana District there are three branches. The financial part of the work has been good and the mission is self-sustaining. [Other missionaries here reported, which we do not copy.]

In the book of Doctrine and Covenants of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in use at the conference, is the revelation to Joseph Smith on June, 1833, directing that a house be built. It was done, and the building was the Kirtland Temple. [Here followed a copy of the revelation.]

The dimensions mentioned in the above revelation are those of the Temple to the fraction of an inch.

"Has this conference and celebration any significance beyond that apparent from the exercises?" I asked of Mr. Joseph Smith, this afternoon.

"No. We shall probably leave some one in charge here to look after the interests of our people here, and in the surrounding country. It is not, however, our purpose to rebuild here or to attempt an exodus from our present headquarters."

"In what essential particular do you differ from the Utah Mormons otherwise than on the question of polygamy?"

"On several points. Outside people are continually classing me as a man of the Utah Mormons when I have done all that was in my power against them. Among the points on which we are widely separated I might mention that whereas their bishops has spiritual control over the people our bishop has financial control. The people under the bishops and the bishops under the president of Salt Lake, must obey their superiors. Our people are told to think for themselves. Then, too, they have marked out the small territory comprised in Salt Lake City as Zion, while we have a much larger area of the United States as our Zion. Then there are those things that are the natural outgrowth of polygamy and that inhere to it that of course are different."

"What, in your opinion, is the outlook for your church?"

"Very promising. We have increased very rapidly within the last few years and the doctrines of the Latter Day Saints are now preached from Maine to New Mexico and from Oregon to the Gulf. The heresies that existed against us have been effectually ostracised. Only a little time ago one of our elders was peremptorily ordered out of a place, but stayed even after he was threatened, and baptized fifteen or twenty into the church. We are gaining numbers and strength rapidly."

"Of course you remember but little about the history of the church here?"

"No. I was born in that old frame house out there on the hill fifty years ago and left the place when I was but five years of age.

"There is another point," continued he, "on which we Latter Day Saints differ from the Utah Mormons, and that is that they allow their church government to supersede their civil government. We place civil law first and believe that the church and state should be separated.

THE following concerning the Conference we clip from the Chicago Tribune of the 7th:

KIRTLAND, Ohio, April 6.—This was opening-day of the first series of reunion and conference of Latter Day Saints. There were many arrivals this morning from all parts of the country.

Preaching was held last night by Elder G. E. Deuel, and this morning a social meeting was held in the village meeting-house.

After the appointment of committees, the Rev. Joseph Smith, Jr., was introduced and made a short address. Among other things he said:

"We are building up the waste places of Zion, and here in Kirtland, where our banners once trailed in dust, the voice of our preachers will again be heard. The meeting here to-day is looked upon by people variously. Now, if they respect the truth we shall preach they will treat us with respect. If they do not believe the truth we will not meet with their approbation. The outlook for the Reorganized Church is a good one. We now have a standing place among men and can preach our faith untrammelled. We are beginning to be respected, and men who would not hear us before are willing to listen to us now. The character of our conference and assembly is different from similar meetings of other religious sects. Whatever is presented by any one shall be in the best interests of the whole body. Questions presented here shall be from the affirmative side only. I trust our meeting will be a peaceful and successful one."

The Rev. W. W. Blair also made a few remarks, after which the Rev. Z. H. Gurley, missionary at Washington, followed with a short address. He is a very pleasant speaker and is probably the most intelligent man in the body. Among other things the speaker said: "The object of this grand old building was a good one. The intention of the builders and promoters, however, has never been carried out. There have been departures from that spirit that moved the erection of these walls. If our intent be in harmony with the intent of the original builders of the church we will be upheld. I stand as a professor of principles. The dissenters from the original faith of the Church—people in Utah, men and women—have practiced the meanest thing that ever disgraced the world. I am very sorry that such a thing exists as polygamy, and that we are ever brought into connection with a curse as black as Egyptian darkness. I do not take any stock in any religion that does not love the Nation. I shall pray for the Administration that separates us from that terrible curse in Utah, and shall support that political party that brings it about. Only recently we presented to Secretary Frelinghuysen an epitome of our faith for our church getting divorced from the black filthy one whose headquarters is in Salt Lake City. If we succeed in this, every infidel and skeptic even will bid us Godspeed in our work. The doctrines of the Utah Mormons are diabolicalisms of the nineteenth century. I would rather my child would die an infant than be a Utah Mormon, whose doctrine drags souls down to hell. God is a god of liberty, truth, and justice, and I hope the people will uphold us in our work. We bid Godspeed to every man and woman who is good and right, without regard to politics or religion. We hope the people and the Government will draw a distinction between us and the Utah Mormons. We have no interests in common with the Utah Church. Those are full blooded apostates, whose practices are viler than the vilest. We are true, and loyalty to our Government is part of our faith. No man or woman is a Saint who violates the law of the land, or the community. When men claiming to be Latter Day Saints go around doing evil things they are not Latter Day Saints but latter day devils. Utah Mormons have engaged the Hon. Jere Black for their attorney, and are ready for the test. We are waiting for them and will go into the fight without gloves."

At the conclusion of the address the meeting adjourned until to-morrow morning, when a permanent organization will be effected.

Elder John Gilbert preached in the Temple to-night.

BRO. WM. ANDERSON of Oakland California gets after Dr. Healy, as follows:

AN OPEN LETTER TO REV. J. W. HEALY, D.D., PASTOR OF SECOND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, OAKLAND.

Dear Sir:—Notwithstanding your statement in the Independent of March 21st, "with my Mormon friends, who are 'saints indeed,' I have no discussion. They may claim as they do, to be the only Church of Jesus Christ on earth, but we make no issue with them in this regard. They may challenge us:—

First, That the Presbyterian Church, to which I belong, is the Church of Jesus Christ or a part thereof, and I affirm and they deny, and Second, That the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to which they belong, is the only true Church of Jesus Christ upon the earth, I deny, (to public discussion of our relative faith),—but we have no time nor ambition to bring into no'o'ociety any of their obscure advocates."

I ask you, Doctor, as a moral teacher, to retract and take back your public assertions concerning the principles of the Church to which I belong, and the Book of Mormon, as publicly as you expressed them in your lecture; or meet me or my substitute, your peer and accredited officer of our Church, in public discussion in Oakland, on or before May 15th, 1883, and discuss the following proposition, to wit:

Resolved, That the Book of Mormon is a Divinely inspired record, brought forth by the gift and power of God in fulfillment of the prophecies of the Bible; to be used in the gathering of Israel.

Now, if you do not feel inclined to stand up as a teacher of good morals, and make good your public statements, concerning the said Book of Mormon, let it be understood from henceforth you dare not.

Having just heard that you intend seeking pastures green elsewhere, and desirous of bestowing good counsel to our friends upon their departure, allow me to say, Dear Friend, obtain and take with you this little messenger, which dared to step upon the threshold of independence and extend to you the olive leaf, and scales of justice with which you could weigh the real merits of your clerical worth as a teacher; and the mirror of truth in which you could behold yourself as others see you.

Now, Dear Doctor, in conclusion, let us enjoin upon you as a friend, to profit by the lessons you have just learned, and may the God of the Latter Day Saints, your "friends," forgive you, as we also do.

WM. ANDERSON.

Correspondence.

KEWANEE, April 9th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—I wish you to state some of my thoughts concerning you and the doctrines that you advocate and teach so plainly. I do enjoy your company, and look for you at the close of each week as that, or a part of that spiritual food which comes to those who ask in faith, and also seek. As our Savior hath said: "Blessed are they who hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." As I understand this hunger to be a spiritual hunger, a longing to see the prosperity of all that leads to good, (another will say, yes, and also to do). We understand that the ones that have this hungering and thirsting for righteousness are always ready and willing to do and live according to what they teach. By their acts ye shall know them. I rejoice in your coming weekly, and shall strive to welcome you; and my prayer is for you, that you may spread far and wide to the convincing of many who know not their God—who are in darkness, and hope that you may become mighty in removing the prejudice of many. I still remain a well-wisher for you.

NOVA SCOTIA, Ont.,

March 26th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Wishing to feel more at home with the Saints, thought I would attempt to write a few lines for the Herald, acknowledging the pleasant satisfaction we take in perusing its pages. I derive encouragement and pleasure in reading the letters from the different brethren and sisters, and feel acquainted with them, although so far distant. I can sympathize with them in their trials and rejoice when they rejoice; the Saints here are few and far between, and our neighbors as a matter of course, since we joined the Mormons, can not disgrace themselves by associating with or countenancing people that would give credence or take stock in what Joe Burton said. Be that as it may, I for one hail his advent into Nova Scotia with joy and thanksgiving, although at first I felt to smile at what I was pleased to call the peculiar notions of those California people. But I do feel thankful that God gave me the desire to hear, and the understanding heart, for I know that there is a reality in religion, and a peaceful feeling of security that the world can not give. I do rejoice that I am a Latter Day Saint, although I am of the poorest specie, and I am happy in the thought that I am worthy to be despised for Christ's sake.

The work here seems to be slowly gaining:

there is much opposition from our learned Academic divines; they are doing all they can to wipe out Mormonism, even stooping to publish lies to the world through their church organ. Bro. Burton is in great demand, just at present there are one or two controversies on the carpet; but we can imagine how it will turn out. Truth will prevail, and it is that in its crude state that he teaches. He has met with very good success in Hants county, he and Sr. Emma are held in very high esteem by the Saints here; and even some of the outsiders recognize the fact that they are estimable people, and worthy the respect and love of all. A remark by one of them was, What a pity such nice people are Mormons.

They like all others who have sacrificed so much for the gospel's sake, meet with many trials. May our Heavenly Father watch over and protect them all, and be ever present to bless and encourage them by his Holy Spirit, that their labors may be blessed to the saving of many precious souls.

Love to all the Saints. From one who is anxious to see the good work prosper.

NORTONVILLE, Contra Costa Co., Cal.,

April 4th, 1883.

Esteemed Herald:—The 10th of this month being the eighth anniversary of my baptismal birth, I feel impressed to write to you again. After three months of your weekly visits, I am prepared to say that I greatly appreciate your increased visits, and also that part which makes every writer responsible for what he writes, and not the Editor. We hail the approach of each visit of yours with delight, as it brings "Glad tidings of good things." Long may you continue to herald forth the glorious things of heaven. In looking back over the past eight years of my connection with the true Church of Jesus Christ, I can see but very little good that I have done; but I can see wherein I have made many errors, unintentional though, which cause me to think O "the weakness of man." I have come far short of accomplishing the amount of good that I desired to; still I hope to do all the good that I can in my weak way. In my confirmation there was a few words of prophecy uttered, which were very forcibly impressed on my mind, and about the only words that I remember; and they were: "Thou shalt turn many souls unto the Lord thy God." I would be so glad to see this fulfilled. The work of the cause in this part appears to be in poor condition.

W. N. DAWSON.

KEWANEE, Ill., April 8th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I wish to state for the benefit of the readers of the Herald, that I am rejoiced to know that I am serving a God that hears and answers his people when they cry unto him. I have been a member of the Reorganized Church for fifteen years, and have been made to rejoice many times. Some five weeks ago I was taken sick while in town trading, which caused me to lose my reasoning and proper senses, and was in that condition most of the time till last Monday, one week ago, when the Saints gathered to my home for prayer on my behalf; after which Brn. Bronson and Jones administered in the sacred ordinance of laying on of hands and anointing with oil, and I received the blessing promised by them. To-day I am as well as ever.

MRS. T. CHARLES.

BOONESBOROUGH, Boone Co., Iowa,
March 24th, 1883.

An appeal to the brothers and sisters in the Church;
Dear Saints:—We had no place of our own to hold meetings in, except a private house, and that was beginning to be too small; so we resolved to buy a lot in town, and build a house thereon. I need not give the dimensions of the building, because Bro. Joseph has given them. He was here and dedicated our little church on August 13th, 1882.

Dear Saints, our lot, house, and furniture, will cost about $700; on which amount we have paid about $350, leaving an indebtedness of $350 as yet on the property. We appeal to every brother and sister in the Church to try and help us a little. The widow's mite will be thankfully received. We will deed the property to the Church as soon as it is paid for.

Two very intelligent young men were brought into the fold, March 12th, 1883; and I believe others are near the door. If an Elder should be passing this way, if he stops at Boonesborough, he will find a resting place at my house. All money sent to me will receive prompt acknowledgement through the Herald.

Ever in the one faith,

SAMUEL MCBIRNIE.

KEWANEE, Illinois,

April 1st, 1883.

Dear Herald:—While on your mission of mercy, will you please spread far and wide the following testimony bestowed upon poor unworthy me, by that God who heareth prayer, here, and there, and everywhere. As is well known to the Saints of the little branch of Kewanee, I have been severely afflicted, from some cause, evidently the transgressing of some law of nature. Suffice it to say I lay in an almost helpless state or condition for some four months, or over, during which time off and on I took considerable medicine from the hand of one our eminent physicians; but always failing to retain the same upon the stomach, to obtain as was so lovingly expected, a relief. I had also been administered to by the Elders of the Church upon several occasions, resulting in apparent ease, but nothing permanent or lasting. Having been raised by goodly parents, who had striven to implant in my mind in early childhood an undeniable faith in the promises of the blessed Redeemer of men, contained in the New Testament. Often weighing these things over in my mind, as I lay upon my couch of sickness, and whispered softly in my weakness a prayer to my God in the name of his dear Son, Jesus, to have mercy, yea, pity upon poor unworthy me, and if consistent with his righteous will, raise me again to health, vigor and usefulness.

One evening my uncle, Thomas F. Charles, who is an Elder in our Church, visited me as upon former occasions. I desired him to anoint me with holy oil, laying his hands upon my head, and praying for me, which he willingly did.

That night I fell asleep and dreamed that I lay upon my bed of sickness, while of a sudden I turned my eyes towards the front door of the house and the room I was lying in, I beheld two men entering, seemingly beautiful in dress. One of them had a belt around his waist, with the letter "D" vividly stamped upon its buckle, while in his hand he held out a small parcel, as if desiring me to take it; and just as I reached forward my hand to accept the treasure, as I supposed, in came two other men in company with my mother, entering through another door; their dress appearing somewhat tattered and torn, but very clean and neat; and what made the scene the more pleasing to me, was the glow of "love" that decorated their manly countenances. One of them also held out a parcel for me, whereupon the first two departed immediately, leaving me alone with mother and the last two that had entered. And after nearing my bedside, the one holding out the parcel addressed me in the following language: "You must not take anything of a medical nature from those men that have just left, but this only must you take [holding out the parcel as if to hand it me] for nine days in succession; also totally abstaining from food during that time, and if you will obey this order you will get well." Obtaining the parcel as I thought, I awoke musing for awhile upon what the dream meant. Soon I was asleep again, and dreamed the same identical scene over again, with this addition, the loving one mentioned showed me the name "Gum arabic," inscribed in large letters upon the parcel. Then I awoke; and after telling my mother of the dream, she secured me some "gum arabic," which I took with a little 'Saints' oil, and that only for nine days in succession. And upon this writing I am well, and am not only able to attend my meetings, but my domestic duties. Loving hearts tried me during my fast to take some food or nourishment, as they often asserted that I must die if I would not; but all to no purpose. I remained true to the order given, and am now well,—and to God be the glory! And, O may I live the remainder of my days true, yea true to the covenant I made with Christ at the waters of baptism.

Yours,

EMMA WHITEHOUS.

GILMORE CITY, Iowa,

April 3d, 1883.

Bro. Joseph, and Readers of the Herald:—As I had been thinking for a long time to write to our most highly esteemed paper, I take this opportunity, feeling and knowing my weakness and unworthiness. Last Sabbath we met at Bro. Carlson's. Bro. Reed opened the meeting with an excellent prayer, and bore his testimony, which edified and strengthened us all in the one faith. We each spoke and prayed as the Spirit gave us utterance. After we had been dismissed, Bro. Reed spoke about organizing a Mite Society, but we gave it the name Tithing Society. Bro. R. Chatfield is treasurer by request of all present.

I feel to praise God that I ever enlisted in this great cause. I know this work is true; for I have had some grand testimonies of this work. I do not want to give it up, for if I continue faithful to the end of the race, I shall be numbered with the just. We have the promise if we ask we shall receive, if we seek we shall find. I want to live that others may see by my good works that I have truly been born of God. I think the good work is gaining ground here. I want to say to those that have entered into this good work, to try and live faithful; for the word of God says: "Faith without works is dead, being alone." How forcibly these words come to my mind. We had sickness in our family that tried our faith; but I always trusted in God. Let us all live faithful to the trust which is Christ the Son of God; I am ever looking for that great day. God has given me wisdom and knowledge, although I have dark days and trials to go through.

"O how sweet is the soul cheering thought.
There is rest for the pure and the good."

O, that I may be one of them, is the desire and prayer of your sister, ANN CHATFIELD.

ELMWOOD, Nebraska,

March 20th, 1883.

Editor Herald:—In your issue of March 17th, I notice an article from the pen of Elder M. T. Short. Without wishing to enter into any controversy or argument, I should like to quote one paragraph of said article; and, if you will allow me, briefly to give views on same just to show the difference in opinion of two people. The paragraph mentioned reads thus: "I will mention another way by which we may 'rob God.' It is by taking the Lord's money and buying these 'pleasant pictures' contrary to the Scriptures of divine truth." etc., etc.

I can not think that Mr. S. has given this subject much thought. Why did God make this world so pleasant a picture if contrary to his law? Look upon nature, a tree, a flower, or a flowing river, what do we see? A picture, the pleasantest it is our lot to witness. We delight in such pictures, but is it contrary to divine Scriptures? Why did the Lord endow so many of his children with the talent of conceiving and placing upon canvas these pleasant and beautiful pictures if it is contrary to his law? In referring to his references I find nothing to substantiate the statement that we are robbing God by buying these pictures. They are simply laws against idolatry in all its forms. They do not command us not to cherish the pictures of relatives and friends. That young Elder, spoken of by Mr. Short, is to be commended by all for his zeal in procuring pictures to fill so many large albums. Not many are so fortunate. When far from home and loved ones what a pleasure to look at and perhaps show to others the pictures of those dear faces; is it "cheap idolatry?" How must that young Elder have felt at being almost reprimanded by an older brother in the church, for simply carrying those pictured faces that gave him so much pleasure. Seas, perhaps, may divide us from a member of our family; what a joyful hour for us when we receive the letter containing the pictured face of that one. How tenderly we gaze upon it, recalling more plainly to mind and distinguishing every loved feature and noting if there is a change since we last saw him. But we do not think of worshiping that picture. The thought of "cheap idolatry" never enters our mind. By this letter Mr. Short has shown himself to be a deep thinker on many subjects; by this perhaps I have shown no thought at all; but I think many of your readers will decide in favor of these pleasant pictures.

Without being a member of your church I can give a few brief facts about the branch here. There is no Elder since the removal of Mr. J. Armstrong to Nebraska City. The branch seems now in a fair way either to go down hill, or prosper according to the encouragement it receives, together with the preaching of some good Elders. R. M. Elvin spoke here about three weeks ago; the only sermon for some time. Why can not some of the travelling Elders stop over once in a while. There is not much pre-justice against the church and they would receive hearty welcome from the members.

Respectfully,

MRS. J. W. HOLENBECK.

Summary of News.

April 5th.—Three little girls, aged five, six and seven years, were drowned by the breaking of the ice at Valetie, N. Y.

Three men were taken from Hasting Jail, Neb., last eve. They were bound with strong ropes, and led to railroad bridge west of town; the ropes of two of the men were secured to the rafters of the bridge. At the word of command, two of the murderers were pushed off and left hanging over the deep chasm; the other turned States evidence and was taken back to jail.

A colored boy while on his way to jail in the hands of the officers, in Arkansas, was seized by a mob and hung to a tree.

A disastrous fire in Greeley, Colo., destroyed two stores and other buildings; loss $150,000. A $20,000 livery stable at Cadis, Ky., burned.

By the passage of the "Labor Bill" in Wisconsin, which forbids the employment of children under fourteen years of age, 2,500 are thrown out of employment in Milwaukee.

Peter Cooper died yesterday morning at the ripe old age of 92. He was born in New York City, and there spent almost his entire life. Born of poor parents, he was compelled at an early age to begin the battle for existence. Energy and endurance enabled him to succeed, and years ago he was reckoned among the then few millionaires of his native city. His gift to the people of the metropolis—the Cooper Institute—will be a lasting monument to his broad and generous philanthropy.

The resistance of the Danes of Schleswig to the demands of Prussia that they should serve in the army is as strong as ever. Thirty of them were just expelled from the country for refusing to inscribe their names for such service.

At a fire in New York City, an unknown man was burned to death and one fatally injured in jumping from a window.

Two colored children were burned to death at Shelbyville, Tennessee, in a dwelling.

A terrific explosion of sewer gas in Baltimore, Md., shook the foundations of houses for squares. Flying stones and dirt filled the air, looking-glasses and pictures were shaken from the walls in dwellings, and the people were nearly crazed with fright. At first everybody thought it was an earthquake. Two boys were killed,—being buried fifteen feet under the rubbish; several people were more or less injured, and eight houses about ruined.

April 6th.—A large mine has been discovered connecting with the Kremlin, where the coronation of the Czar is to take place. The telegram also states that a request has been wired to St. Petersburg for 100 sappers to be sent at once to Moscow for the purpose of destroying the mine.

A man and his wife and two daughters were burned to death in their house near Hartwich, N. Y.

A terrible triple murder of a man and his two little daughters was committed at West Union, W. Va. Three men are under arrest for the crime, and it is expected that the citizens will settle the matter without waiting for a judicial investigation.

The Danish Government has taken prompt and energetic steps to suppress the Socialistic Congress at Copenhagen, and several arrests have been made of prominent leaders. Germany appears to be co-operating in the work, and it begins to look as if Continental Europe would be an unsafe residence for revolutionists for some time to come.

A destructive fire at Squique, a small seaport town of Peru, South America, destroyed ten blocks and part of four others. The railway offices were burned. The workshops were saved. The club escaped, but the churches were destroyed. The fire did not extend west of the churches. About 1,000 houses were destroyed, doing damage estimated at £2,000,000.

A powder depot at Passo Correse, for the use of the engineers conducting the operation there, exploded. Forty persons were killed, and many injured, some fatally.

The city police made a raid upon a suspected locality in Ledsam street, Ladywood, Birmingham, England, and discovered a Fenian nitro-glycerine factory in full operation. The apparatus for preparing and mixing the explosive compound are constructed on scientific principles, and with all the cunning craft which clearly showed its inventor to be not only a thorough scholar in chemistry and machinery, but also an adept for expedients for avoiding notoriety and preventing discovery, among noteworthy features of the place was a shrewdly devised method for carrying the flames up the chimney and consuming the odor. It was learned that the premises were taken two months ago by a man named Whitehead, an Irish American who had a sign hung out in front of the place indicating his business as that of a paper hanger. Whitehead himself was taken into custody, when the police made their descent on the den and is now in close confinement. A considerable quantity of nitro-glycerine was seized by the officers at the same time. Information now in the hands of the detective tends to demonstrate that this place is the central manufactory of explosives and the most important depot of all the infernal contrivances in the kingdom.

Almost the entire business portion of Kentland, Ind., was burned last eve; twenty firms were burned out; loss $100,000. The Clarendon Hotel and seven business houses and one dwelling burned at Newell, Iowa; loss $30,000. St. Paul, Minn., had a $10,000 fire. Forty-four valuable cows and two horses perished by fire near Goshen, Ind.

April 7th.—Disastrous floods have occurred in the Valley of the Vistula, an important river of Poland, and thousands of the people are reported as suffering for the necessities of life. Large numbers of Hungarians who had formed colonies in Eastern Galicia have been compelled to abandon their homes owing to the failure of the crops.

Howard Underwood, a young white man, who brutally murdered a colored woman about a year ago, paid the last penalty of the law yesterday at Charleston, Mo. A crowd of 6,000 people witnessed the execution.

Wild excitement continues to prevail in England over the dynamite discoveries. The three men arrested at Cork on the charge of having explosives in their possession have been remanded for a week, bail being refused.

Seven hundred and fifty Hungarian emigrants from Bukowina arrived from the domains of that State at Panchcoa. Two thousand more men are en route, and the whole Hungarian colony at Bukowina, numbering about 20,000 souls, are determined to leave the place owing to the insufficiency of the crops to feed the population.

By the explosion of a boiler at Newbarn, N. C., two men were killed. A dwelling house was destroyed, and a woman fatally injured.

A flour mill and 1,000 barrels of flour was burned at Peoria, Ills. Nashville, Tenn., had a very extensive fire in the business portion of the town.

April 9th.—Twelve hundred persons have been rendered homeless by the destruction by fire of the Village of Vallorbe, in the Canton of Vand, Switzerland.

Tremendous rains have occurred at New Orleans, a fall of over nine inches within twenty-four hours being recorded. Men are at work strengthening the levees, and it is hoped that disaster may be averted.

The reports as to wheat prospects in the Arkansas and Cottonwood Valleys in Southern Kansas are uniformly good. The last six weeks have been especially favorable for wheat, the early planted grain is in satisfactory condition, and there has been very little winter-killing.

A person residing close to Millbank Prison, London, received a letter threatening to blow up two large gasometers near the prison with dynamite.

Two large jars of nitro-glycerine reached Cork from Glasgow, addressed "O'Herlihy." The police discovered a quantity of explosives freshly buried in a field at Kalnap, near Cork. Two carboys of nitro-glycerine have been lying at the Clyde Shipping Company's stores in London since the 4th inst. They are consigned by a Glasgow firm to O'Herlihy. This is the sixth consignment within six months from the same firm to O'Herlihy. The former consignments were all removed by Deasy. The explosives seized in Whitehead's manufactory at Birmingham were removed to the sewage farm at Salthy with extraordinary caution and destroyed. It is believed seventy or eighty persons were concerned in the dynamite conspiracy, the principal leader being among those recently arrested. The police believe they have secured nearly all the consignments of nitro-glycerine now in London.

The coronation of the Czar of Russia will probably be postponed. The police believe that unless liberal reforms are granted the Nihilists have determined to prevent the ceremony.

The police have searched the house of a Frenchman who fled from Brussels, after the dynamite explosion at Ganshorten, the 23d of February last, and have found cipher letters, some being from Cyvoet, one of the men arrested at the time of the explosion, which contain proofs of a plot against the Czar.

A $45,000 flouring mill, burned at Stockton, Minn.

The Ende Hotel, a three-story brick building at Greenville, Texas, was blown down or fell down about one o'clock yesterday morning, and an appalling loss of life. There were nearly fifty guests in the house, most of whom were asleep when the crash occurred, and of this number thirteen were buried beneath the ruins, and then suffered the terrible tortures of cremation.

April 10th.—The Rev. Charles T. Steck, pastor of the Messiah Evangelical Lutheran Church, in Pittsburg, Pa., will soon exchange the pulpit for the stage. He is an eloquent speaker, has Shakspeare at his finger-ends.

A hotel at Pinckneyville, Ills., destroyed by fire, and a traveling man burned to death.

A strong prairie fire started in Saunders Co., Neb., yesterday, and swept over the farm of M. H. Dayton. The farm house was destroyed and Mrs. Dayton burned to death, in the sight of her husband and father, who were powerless to rescue her.

At Point New Year, Cal., two lighthouse keepers and two visitors were drowned yesterday.

A fearfully destructive cyclone passed over portions of Hot Springs, Garland, and Montgomery counties, Arkansas, on the 5th. The residence of Wm. Brown, a thrifty farmer, was entirely demolished; he was extricated from the debris frightfully crushed. An aged German couple—man and wife—were both killed by the falling timbers of their house. The residence, barn, and outbuildings of John Noonan were as feathers to the furious wind, and not a vestige remains of them. Mrs. Noonan was pinioned under a heavy log for several hours, being almost dead when found. The residence of Theodore Wilson was demolished. The family, with the exception of himself, concealed themselves in the cellar, and were saved. Mr. Wilson was crushed to death; his neck was broken and skull crushed.

Magnet Cove Valley, famed for its beautiful scenery and fine farms, presents a scene that beggars description. No less than ten farms were devastated. The family of each sustained severe injuries, but none were killed. John Newcomb's fruit farm, probably the largest in Arkansas, was damaged almost irreparably.

Those who observed the workings of the storm report that it came from the southwest, and seemed to strike in spots, touching here or there with greater or less force. One observer states that he noticed a huge dark cloud rising in the southwest about dusk, and after it approached until it hung over him. He noticed a part of it separate, as though torn from the main portion with great force, and move rapidly away; then a rumbling noise was heard, the air became yellowish, and a great cloud, funnel shaped, swept everything before it.

A fire which promises to assume extensive proportions has broken out at Berne, near Geneva, Switzerland. Twenty houses have already been destroyed.

After considerable hard work day and night and many failures the crevasse at Gouldsboro, opposite New Orleans, was finally closed last evening. A strict guard is maintained, however, and a labor force held in reserve, as the water may break through again at any moment. The water is running over into the city all along from St. Peters to Ursuline streets, in the French part of the city. The old St. Louis Cathedral is water-washed in front, and the old French market is an island. A levee thrown up to protect this portion of the city has all washed away. All of the rear of the city, up to Miro street is flooded, and travel is possible only by skiffs. This is the situation at dark, and is hourly becoming worse.

The Dublin court-house where the trial of the Phenix Park assassins is to take place was besieged yesterday morning by crowds eager to gain admission. The authorities, however, only admitted the jurors called in the case and fifty reporters. The prisoners—Brady, Kelly, Delaney, Caffrey, Curley, and Fritz-harris—were brought to the court-house at one o'clock, and were escorted by a whole troop of dragoons.

All the steamers arriving in London from Cork are being searched for explosives, but thus far none have been discovered.

The Foot Guards have been ordered to guard Millbank Prison, London.

There were twenty-four arrests yesterday in the outskirts of Cork and Limerick, and many important documents were seized.

April 11th.—A five story brick store fell at Rochester, early yesterday, just as fifteen men had entered to work in remodeling it. Two men were instantly killed and five others badly injured; six men in the basement mixing mortar had narrow escapes.

Yesterday was one of the worst snow storms of the winter at Minneapolis, Minn. Street-car travel is suspended for the first time this winter and railroad trains are behind time. The storm is general throughout the State. A snow storm with strong wind prevailed throughout the northwest all day. Six inches of snow fell at Duluth and three inches at St. Paul, Minn.

A cave-in occurred at the Keel-Ridge mine, Michigan, between Quinnesec and Iron Mountain yesterday, carrying down the engine-house and eight men. Only one man has been rescued, and he is fatally injured, several ribs and a leg being broken. The others are probably dead. These men were on the surface. No men were at work in the mine.

Judge Erastus Lee of Ashtabula, Ohio, committed suicide to-day by taking laudanum.

A large section of country in the southern part of Russia is covered with water owing to the floods in the rivers. Traffic on the railway is suspended temporarily.

Seven thousand dock laborers struck work at Marseilles, France; the strikers have committed no unlawful acts. The authorities have, nevertheless, taken measures for the prompt suppression of disorders, the streets frequented by the men being patrolled by mounted gendarmes.

The rapid rise in the river flooded the lower part of London, Ont., confining many people to their houses. The water is subsiding.

The Coldstream Guards have been placed in buildings adjacent to the Green Street Court-House at Dublin, where the trials of the Phenix Park assassins are to take place. The object is to secure the protection of the officers of the court and the informers who are to testify against the accused men.

The City of Westminster, Md., thirty-eight miles from Baltimore, was the scene of a terrible conflagration on the 9th, which for a time threatened the destruction of all the property in the place. Twenty buildings were burned to the ground, including a Lutheran church, the finest edifice in the city. Two men who were asleep in the hay loft of a barn perished in the flames. Two little children were rescued from one of the burning buildings by a young woman. The roof of the house was on fire and the mother, an invalid, was alone in the house with her little ones. She fainted from fright, and was borne out in safety. The total loss on buildings is estimated at $150,000. Thirty horses and two cows that were in the stable were burned to death. Four negroes have been committed to jail for starting the fire in a livery stable. To-night the jail is guarded by eighty armed men, but up to a late hour no attempts had been made to get at the prisoners.

A $20,000 fire in the business part of Olmsted, Ill. A three story stone grist mill at Sandwich, Ill., burned; loss $15,000. The Congregational Church at Lyndon, Ill., destroyed by fire Sunday night. Nothing but the organ was saved. A cotton mill at North Providence, R. I. was destroyed by fire, and fifty operatives thrown out of work; loss $75,000. The Ansonia Hotel, Ansonia, Conn., burned yesterday morning. Fifty guests in the house escaped, only two being injured. Loss $12,000. A boot and shoe factory at Natick, Mass., was damaged $100,000 by fire.

The steamer Nottingham, from New York, for London, put in Halifax, N. S., after a terrible experience at sea. After sailing a gale begun which raged throughout the night, becoming a cyclone, when the ship was thrown on her beam-ends. For the two days following the hurricane prevailed. The mizzen-boom was torn away and dashed against the skylight of the engine-room, through which the boom and glass fell, seriously injuring three engineers. All the doors of the deck-houses were burst, the rooms gutted, the galley wrecked, and a great part of the ship's provisions carried away. Thirty-three feet of solid steel bulwarks were swept into the sea, and thirty feet more damaged. The stanchions were torn from their fastings as if they were scaffolding. The seas drowned the fires and threatened to overwhelm the ship. For forty-eight hours, the ship was on her beam's ends and the pumps choked, the men kept bailing. Thirty-four bullocks and six sheep were lost, of 134 head of cattle and 199 sheep on board.

April 12th.—Three colored children were burned to death in Grant county, Ark.; their remains were found in a heap under the bed.

A parcel containing seven pounds of gunpowder was found yesterday near the office of the Secretary of State for the Home Department, London.

A sample of the nitro-glycerine seized in London last week at the time of the arrest of Norman, Gallagher, Dalton, and Wilson, was exploded yesterday at Woolwich in order to test its quality. The explosion was terrific, the ground for a distance of several yards from the spot where the explosion occurred being torn up.

THOUGHTS ON CONFERENCE MORNING.

"The golden grain is waving,"
Why need we idly stand!
Why not go forth and labor?
As God doth give command;
To gather out the honest.
Before the night doth come,
And comes the Great Messiah,
To lead his chosen home.

"The golden grain is waving,"
Why from our duty swerve?
Why not go forth with valor,
The God of Heaven to serve.
For in his word 'tis written,
That he who nobly stands,
Shall surely not be smitten,
When judgments sweep the land.

"The golden grain is waving."
Shall Jesus call in vain?
For reapers to the harvest,
To gather in the grain?
Let us thrust in our sickles
And work with all our might,
The grain to safely gather,
'Ere comes the dreary night.

THE ACTION OF BAPTISM.

I PROPOSE to examine the actions of Christ and the Apostles, who were called, ordained and sent forth by Divine command, to "baptize all nations in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."—Matt. 28: 18.

Now if this was a command of God, there can be but one right method of administering this sacred ordinance, and the best means whereby we can judge of this one method, is to carefully examine the actions of those authorized to perform this great work.

We are well aware that the translation of any book from one language to another, leaves room for interpolations, speculations, and also additions and spiritualizations; it leaves room for men to construe the command to suit their particular views. Not so with the actions. They are not subject to so many translations, grammatical errors, and traditions of the Fathers.

What were the elements of baptism? The subject, a person to be handled, element, water to be applied as a means of washing away sins, and the person having authority to handle the subject and apply the water, "In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Here we have a fair statement of the subject; and before entering into the discussion of it, I think it will be well to offer some of the opinions of eminent men, so I copy from the tracts of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which were published by authority of the General Conference: "It is plainly impossible that an ordinance of Divine appointment can be administered correctly in two modes so widely different." (Tract No. 99, p. 11). Again they say of these two modes, "Only one was primitive and apostolic." (Tract No. 153, p. 51). I will now inquire of the M. E. Church, What is that one primitive and apostolic mode or action of baptism? Dr. A. Clark in his commentary on John 3: 23, says: "As the Jewish custom required the persons to stand in the water, and having been instructed and entered into a covenant to renounce all idolatry, and take the God of Israel for their God, then plunge themselves under the water, it is probable that the rite was thus administered at Enon." And in Rom. 6: 4, he says: "It is probable that the Apostle here alludes to the mode of administering baptism by immersion; the whole body being put under the water." Joseph Benson, a celebrated minister in this M. E. Church in his commentary on Rom. 6: 4, says: "Therefore we are buried with him"—alluding to the ancient manner of baptizing by immersion." Once more I inquire of this M. E. Church, What is that one primitive and apostolic action. John Wesley, the father of Methodism, says, in his English version of the New Testament, published by the Methodist Book Concern of New York, in a note upon the phrase, "We are buried with him," Rom. 6: 4, says: "Alluding to the ancient manner of baptizing by immersion." Again I ask, What do Pedobaptists admit this one action of baptism is? Moshem says: "The sacrament baptism was administered in this the second century according to the ancient and primitive manner of celebrating that institution, ever by immersion." Dr. Wall says: "Their (the primitive Christian's) general and ordinary way was to baptize by immersion, or dipping the person." Von Collins says: "Immersion in water was general until the thirteenth century, when among the Latins it was displaced by sprinkling, but was retained by the Greeks."

Hunton, page 192, says: "That it was in cases of sickness only that immersion was superseded by the application of water in some other form." Neander says: "Only with the sick was there an exception in regard to immersion." Dr. Giesder says: "It was often necessary to baptize the sick, and in that case sprinkling was substituted for the usual rite," page 1, Div. 3, c. 4 and 68. John Calvin on John 3: 23, and Acts 8: 28, says: "From these words it is lawful to conclude, that baptism was celebrated by John and Christ by submersion of the whole body. Here we see plainly what the rite of baptism was among the ancients, for they immersed the whole body into water." Bishop Bossuet says: "We are able to make it appear by the act of councils, and the ancient ritual, that for thirteen hundred years baptism was thus (by immersion) administered throughout the whole church." Stackhouse says: "Several authors have shown and proved that this immersion continued to be used for thirteen hundred years after Christ."

Stewart says: "The mode of baptism by immersion, the oriental church has always continued to observe, even down to the present time." He then quotes the following from Fr. Breuer: "Thirteen hundred years was baptism generally and ordinarily performed by the immersion of a man under water, and only in extraordinary cases was sprinkling or effusion permitted. These latter methods of baptism were called in question and even prohibited." Thomas Chalmers (Presbyterian) says: "The original meaning of the word baptizo is immersion." John A. Bengall, D. D., (Lutherian), on John 3: 5, says: "Much water,' so the rite of immersion demanded." John C. Walpins, (Lutherian), says: "Formerly immersion in water furnished a sign of burial in baptism," A. Barns, in his notes on Rom. 6: 4 says: "We are buried.' It is altogether probable that the Apostle in this place had allusion to the custom of baptizing by immersion." Martin Luther says: "The term baptism is Greek; in Latin it may be translated immersio, since we immerse anything into the water, that the whole may be covered with water." Again he says: "They (the persons) ought to be entirely immersed and immediately withdrawn." Again he says: "And the Germans also call baptism taufe from depth, which in their language they call tiefe, because it is fit that those who are baptized should be deeply immersed." Again Luther says: "Taufe is called in Greek, batismos; in Latin, mersio, that is, when they immerse something entirely into the water, which goes altogether over it."

Once more I quote from men—from the Roman Catholics. James Pamelius Canon, of Bruges, Arch-deacon, and nominated Bishop of St. Omer's, in 1587, says: "Whereas the sick, by reason of their illness, could not be immersed, or plunged, which properly speaking is to be baptized." The Roman Catechism, emanating from the Council of Trent, and published in 1566, under Pope Pius V, says: "Baptism may be administered by immersion, impu-sion, or aspersion." I might add much more from Pedobaptists showing that the divinely authorized action of baptism is immersion. But these are enough.

Upon examination the reader will find that the following named lexicons render "bapto" and "baptizo" immerse, or its equivalent: Jones, Donegan, Greenfield, Rost and Hon. Bretschneider, Ross, Stockins and Pickering; and, among the number of thirteen dictionaries, classic, theological and Latin, that render baptizo to immerse, are, Wilson's Church Dictionary, A. D. 1678, Baily's, of 1772, Robertson's, 1778, Ash and Richardson, 1775.

The number of lexicons and dictionaries here quoted might be added to, but these are enough. Who now can doubt for one moment, that the best authorities in all the churches of this age, admit that the one action of baptism which the Lord authorized was, and is, immersion.

I have now noted sufficient of what men have said to prove that the one action of baptism is immersing the whole person in water; and that no other action was accepted for thirteen hundred years of the Christian era. And now I propose to give what God says it is.

I have already said that the action as such, has been in use ever since the fall of man. The Hebrews, Latins, and Greeks, have each had a word to express that action, "to dip," or "immerse." In proof of this I call the attention of the reader to a few examples in the Old Testament scriptures, where we find this Hebrew word (tabal) fifteen times, and in the Septuagint (bapto) fourteen times. For instance see Gen. 37:31: "And he dipped the coat in the blood." Lev. 9:9: "And he dipped his finger in the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar, and poured (cheo) out the blood at the bottom of the altar." Lev. 14:5, 6, 7: "And shall dip them and the living bird, in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water. And he shall sprinkle (raino) upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy, seven times." Again, see Lev. 14:15-17, where God has used these three terms, "And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour (cheo) it into the palm of his own left hand, and the priest shall dip, (Hebrew—tabal, Greek—bapto), his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle (raino) of the oil with his finger seven times before the Lord." Again, see Joshua 3:15: "And the feet of the priests that bore the ark, were dipped in the brim of the water." Also, Ruth 2:14: "And dip thy morsel in the vinegar." Again see 1st Samuel 14:27: "Wherefore he put forth the end of the rod that was in his hand, and dipped it in the honey comb." Also see Deut. 33:24: "And let him dip his foot in oil." Again, see 2d Kings 5:14. In the 10th verse the prophet said, "Go and wash in Jordan seven times." In the 14th verse, "Then went he down and dipped himself seven times in Jordan according to the saying of the man of God." Also see Ps. 68:23: "That thy foot may be dipped in the blood of thine enemies."

We also have a few examples given us in the New Testament, where we find the word dipped in our English version: Matt. 26:23, "He that dippeth (embapto) his hand with me in the dish." Again, see Mark 14:20: "It is one of the twelve that dippeth with me in the dish." Also see Luke 16:24: "That he may dip, (bapto), the tip of his finger in water." Again see John 13:26: "He it is to whom I shall give a sop when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot." Once more see Rev. 19:13: "And he was clothed in a vesture dipped in blood."

In neither of the cases here cited where "dip" or "dipped" is used, can either the word "pour" or "sprinkle" be used as a substitute, and make clear reading and good sense; but in every case "immerse" or "immersed" can be thus used, showing clearly, that that one action was immersion.

All scholars know that "baptizo" is a Greek word, and that King James' translators did not translate it, but simply gave it an English termination, baptize; hence all Christians should prefer our English word immerse, which best conveys the idea of that one action of baptism to the English mind.

We will now come down to the New Testament, and not only see what God has said, but also see what Christ did, and commanded others to do. Whether we can understand the meaning of Christ's words or not, we can know what he meant by seeing what he did, and by what he had others do.

The first account we see of this word baptize in the New Testament is in Matt. 3:6: "And were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins." How did John baptize in Jordan? First let us see where he did this act. First, it was in the wilderness. Mark 1:4: "John did baptize in the wilderness." Secondly, Matt. 3:6 says they "were baptized of him in Jordan." Thirdly, it was in the river of Jordan. Mark 1:5: "And were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins." Fourthly, I notice that John not only "baptized in the wilderness," and "in Jordan," and "in the river of Jordan," but he also baptized Christ in the water in Jordan. Proof: Mark 1:9, 10, "Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of him in Jordan;" tenth verse: "And straightway coming up out of the water." We must here notice that this one action of baptism which John administered required him, first, to go to the wilderness; second, to go to the river of Jordan; third, to go in the river; and fourth, to put the candidate when being baptized, down under the water, and bring him up out of the water. What action of baptism requires any or all of these things? Does sprinkling or pouring? No; but immersion does. When our blessed Savior was baptized what did he do? Matt. 3:13, 17, he, first, came "to Jordan unto John to be baptized of him." He, secondly, desired baptism at his hand. He, thirdly, went down into the water. He, fourthly, was baptized after going into the water, and fifthly, he came up out of the water. But one might say, How do you know that he desired, or asked John to baptize him? Because John would not have "forbade him," (Matt. 3:14), if he had not asked it of him. But how do we know that they went down into the water? Because he could not have come up out of the water, unless he first had gone down into the water. No man can come up out of a well or pit, who does not first go down into the well or pit. And how can any unprejudiced mind draw any other conclusion from the above statement of facts, is more than I can understand. But how know we that he was baptized after he went into the water, and before he came up out of the water? Because "when he was baptized, [he] went up straightway out of the water." Matt. 3:16. And this baptism of Christ is an example for us to follow, in regard to the place where, (in the water), and the action done, (immersion), and this divine action was not only submitted to by the Savior, but it was then and there immediately sanctioned by God, the Father fulfilling the promise "ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Acts 2:38. Proof, Matt. 3:16, 17: "And Jesus when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water; and lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him, and lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased." Who for a moment, that loves God and desires to please him, could call in question, or refuse to submit to any action that the Son of God submitted to, and that the Father and Holy Ghost by voice and presence sanctioned? And in the same manner that John baptized Christ, so did he all that were baptized of him. And that explains why he baptized "in Enon near to Salem, because there was much water there." John 3:23.

The commission of Christ gives us the action of baptism in the word baptize, (baptizo), hence in our Savior's conversation with Nicodemus, he clearly taught this same one action of baptism, which he submitted to in the waters of Jordan at the hands of John. John 3:3, 5, he said to Nicodemus, "Except a man be born [not a baby] of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God." By this expression, "be born of water," Christ has clearly taught the one action of immersion, "immergo," to go in, and "emerge," "to come out of."

The reader will notice that this birth is to be "of water and spirit." No one can be born of less quantity than himself, hence the bowl or pitcher of water out of which a man might be sprinkled or poured, is not sufficient for him to be born of; therefore we must conclude that neither sprinkling nor pouring is the action of this new birth. Again, no man can be born, or come out of that which he never was in; hence, a man can not be born of water (to go in) "immergo," by sprinkling or pouring little or much water on him from a bowl or pitcher; because he can not get into the water that is in the bowl or pitcher; therefore can not "emerge" "to come out of," be born of the water.

But the action of immersion takes them first down into the water; and secondly, immerses, "immergo," "to go in," brings them up out of the water, and in that way only can a person be "born of water;" and this thought agrees with the preposition "eis," the primary meaning of which is "into." In the four Evangelists eis is found seven hundred and ninety-five times, of which, it is translated "into" three hundred and seventy-two times in King James' translation, and "unto" two hundred and seventy-three times, and those should be into, such "unto the house," "unto heaven," and "unto the water." The preposition "en" is found two thousand six hundred and sixty times in the Greek New Testament, and is translated "in" two thousand and forty-five times in our version; and yet we are told by some that it should be "with." We are also told that "into the water" does not mean into, but "at" or "near by." Is that the way Daniel was cast into the lion's den, by simply being placed at or near by it? And is that the reason "the smell of fire was not on the garments" of the three Hebrew children? Because they were not put into that hot furnace, but at or near by? Is that why so many do not fear to be turned into hell, because they are taught that into only means at or near by? And is not that one of the reasons why so few are striving to get into heaven, because they are discouraged for fear they shall at last not get into, but only at or near by? Alas! alas! for any cause or system that is compelled thus to twist the plain word of God in order to sustain "a man-made baptism," which our Savior, neither the Apostles, ever commanded to be practiced, or taught.

But I am told that Christ "went up into the mountain." That is true, he went "up into" but not "into and up." So we often go "up [the stairs] into the hall;" but not into and then up. So Christ went up the mountain and into the cave; and so we can understand as easily the expression, "unto the house," "unto heaven," and "into the water." Nothing but a sinking cause—a man-made system would compel men to deny the truth and force of the expression "into the water," which indicates clearly that the one action of baptism is immersion.

After Christ gave Peter the keys of the church, or kingdom, and after he had risen again from the dead, he gave them the divine commission to "go teach all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." (Matt. 28:19). But he told them to tarry in Jerusalem until they "were endowed with power from on high," (Luke 24:49). Let us therefore go to Jerusalem, and see how Peter and the rest of the Apostles carried out this commission. Acts 2:7, Peter stood up with the eleven and spake Christ and the law of pardon, "as the Spirit gave him utterance," (4th verse). That created faith in their minds, and "cut them to the heart," so they cried out "What must we do?" Answer: "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost," (38th verse.) "Then they that gladly received the word were baptized, and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." But stop right there, say our sprinkling friends, the Apostles could not possibly have baptized 3,000; they could not immerse so many in one day. My friend, haste not to that conclusion, but let us figure a little on this and see, as "Figures wont lie," "you know." Three thousand souls baptized; twelve apostles; two hundred and fifty each per day; Peter began to preach at nine in the morning; (third hour). If he preached three hours (and that would be a long sermon now) they had six hours to baptize in; forty-one and a fraction per hour each; not one for each every minute. But Christ had called Seventy while on earth, and in all there were one hundred and twenty in that room, (see Acts 1:15), so that would make eighty-two preachers to do the baptizing; or thirty-six per day each; six per hour each, and only one each for every ten minutes. Thus we see the sprinkler's mountain, three thousand baptized in six hours, with plenty of time to baptize half as many more. Eighty-two Pedobaptists can not sprinkle three thousand persons to-day in six hours, and adhere to the ritual of their churches. But say the Pedobaptists: "There was not enough water there to immerse so many." Can any candid mind think for a moment, that as large a city as Jerusalem could exist and supply all the people and stock, without water enough to immerse three thousand persons in? I think not. They would use that much water in that city each day. If necessary we could abundantly prove by history that they had plenty of water, and means at hand to use it for that purpose. But let us take a look in the Bible on this thought. "No water there!" Then why did they have "water gates" if there was no water in or near Jerusalem? And why have "fountains" there? See Neh. 12:27. At Jerusalem at the dedication of the wall, what did they have? Neh. 12:37: "And at the fountain gate, which was over against them, they went up by the stairs of the city of David, at the going of the wall above the house of David, even unto the water gate eastward." This is positive proof that there were water and fountains at Jerusalem. But did they have pools of water at Jerusalem, so people could go into them to be baptized? Yes. John 5:2: "Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market, a pool;" verse 3: "In these (porches) lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water;" verse 4: "For an angel went down at a certain season, into the pool, and troubled the water; whosoever then first after the troubling of the water, stepped in, was made whole of whatsoever disease he had." This is not only positive, divine truth, that there was water at Jerusalem, but it is also proof that the water could be and was brought into pools, near porches, so the people could step into it. If they could have one such pool, which they did have, then if necessary, they could have a thousand of them. Thus showing that God has removed all of these man-made excuses and objections out of the way, and shows clearly how the three thousand might easily have been immersed on the day of Pentecost.

I now proceed to the desert, to see how the Spirit of God directed Philip to baptize the eunuch, that we may see what the action of baptism was under the direction of the Holy Ghost. For all of Philip's actions and words were God's commands, as the Spirit gave direction. We can tell what he was told to do, by what he did. See Acts 8:26-40. Let us note first, that this Philip was either an Apostle or an Evangelist. (See Acts 1:13; 21:8). Second, that Philip was under the immediate direction of the Lord; for, "The angel of the Lord spake unto Philip;" verse 26, and said, "Arise and go." After he obeyed the angel, then the "Spirit said unto Philip, go near and join thyself to this chariot;" verse 29. So whatever the preacher did, he did it by the immediate direction of God; hence it was right. Therefore, as God had this man baptized, so will he have all men baptized by the same action, (Pedobaptists to the contrary notwithstanding), for he has but one baptism," Eph. 4:5. I therefore inquire, What did the preacher do? First, he preached Jesus unto him," v. 35; second, What did the eunuch do? Verse 36: "They came unto a certain water, and the eunuch said, 'See, here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized;'" third, What did Philip require? Verse 37: "If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest;" fourth, What did the eunuch say? "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God;" fifth, What was next done? "And he commanded the chariot to stand still;" v. 38. Where were they? "Unto a certain water;" v. 36. Now they are standing still at the water. Sixth, What did they next do? "And they went down both into the water." Whether they went down out of the chariot, or off the bank, makes no difference, for they first came to the water; and secondly, went into it; and now the preacher and subject are both in the water; seventh, What is done next? "And he baptized him;" v. 38. What do they do next? "Came up out of the water;" v. 39. Ninth, What becomes of the preacher? "The Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip;" tenth, What became of the eunuch? "He went on his way rejoicing." Here the action of baptism was performed by Philip and the eunuch so plainly, and I have been so particular in itemizing that the reader might see just the steps God had them take, and just the steps he requires every other preacher, and convert to take, namely,—come unto water, go into the water, be baptized, immersed, while in the water, come up out of the water. No man can be baptized while out of the water. Going into or unto the water is not baptism; but you can not be baptized without first going unto and into the water. But we are told that there "was no water in the desert." God says they came to a certain water, and Paul said, "Let God be true, though all men are liars." And so say I.

And again in Acts 16, we have the account of the baptism of the jailor and his household. We find that they first spake unto him the word of the Lord, and all that were in his house," v. 32; second, Where were they? In house, out of the prison; third, What did the jailor do? "He took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes;" fourth, What was done to him? "And was baptized, he and all his." When? "Straightway," v. 33; fifth, What was next done? He brought them into his house, (again); sixth, What next? "And rejoiced, believing in God with all his house," v. 34. Thus we see he first took them out; second, washed their stripes; third, was baptized; fourth, brought them back into his house. Why do all this? Why not carry water into his house, and be sprinkled? Because they had to go unto and into water, before they could be legally baptized. Hence he took them out, and was immersed, and brought them back into his house. Now let us briefly examine Paul's case. How was he baptized? Acts 22:16: "Arise [why not sprinkle him while sitting or kneeling] and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord!" Let us now find out how Paul was baptized, by his own words. Rom. 6:3-5: "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father." Verse 5: "For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." Paul says, "We are buried." The pronoun "we" includes the speaker, and that was the witness Paul. So Paul says he was baptized by being buried. Do we bury a dead person by sprinkling or pouring a little dirt on him? No; but we bring them unto, and put them into the grave and cover the whole body with dirt. But the reader will note, that it took both the burying and the rising again, to give the action of Paul's baptism. And it took the planting and the resurrection under his next figure. So it takes the putting under the water, and the bringing up out of the water to constitute the one action of baptism.

I will now show that "the meaning of a word will always make good sense when substituted for the word itself." Romans 6: "That so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death." Substitute sprinkled. "So many of us as were sprinkled into Jesus Christ, were sprinkled into his death. Therefore we are buried with him by sprinkling into his death." But again. The definition of sprinkle is to "scatter." Now let us substitute. "So many of us as were scattered into Jesus Christ, were scattered into his death. Therefore we are buried with him by scattering into death." Now let try "pour." "So many of us as were poured into Jesus Christ, were poured into his death. Therefore we are buried with him by pouring into death." The definition of "pour" is to "run out." Now let us substitute. "So many of us as were run out into Jesus Christ, were run out into his death. Therefore we are buried with him by running out into his death." When we apply this rule, which can not be evaded by all the cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive, how ridiculous it looks to the unprejudiced mind!

Let us now substitute "immerse" for baptize. "So many of us as were immersed into Jesus Christ were immersed into his death. Therefore we are buried with him by immersion, into death." This makes clear reading, and good sense, and therefore immersion is the only action of baptism that ever was, or ever will be accepted of God. I now call upon our Pedobaptist friends, to point out a single instance from the sprinkling or pouring of, Novation, in the third century, to the present time, where sprinkling or pouring has been acknowledged of God, as was the baptism of Christ, the baptism of the eunuch, the Samaritans, and also the twelve disciples that Paul baptized. In all these instances they received the gift of the Holy Ghost, and angels communed with them. They spake in tongues, and prophesied, healed the sick, and many other miracles. Why have these blessings utterly failed since sprinkling and pouring have been introduced? If they, or either of them, are the action of baptism, Why are they not acknowledged of God as immersion was, by sending the Holy Ghost according to the promise? "Ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost; for the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off."

I will tell you why the blessings do not follow in our day. Isaiah 24: 5: "The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, [from the one action of baptism by immersion, to sprinkling or pouring, by unauthorized men; therefore, God never has and never will acknowledge their acts], and broken the everlasting covenant," but we are told that this, Rom. 6: 4, is not water, but Holy Spirit baptism. Admit it, then what? Does that change the action? No; for Paul says: "We are buried," and it is a burial, whether it be water or Spirit. And even those who teach that it is a spiritual baptism, tell us that water baptism was administered in the same way that the baptism of the Holy Spirit was; hence baptism of water or Spirit must be a burial or immersion, as on the day of Pentecost, when the hundred and twenty were born of the Spirit, they were buried, immersed on that occasion. Acts 2: 2: "And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it (the Spirit) filled all the house where they were sitting," 4th verse: "And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost." We see that the Spirit filled the whole house, so that all that were in the house were born, buried and immersed, fulfilling all three figures, and the action of baptism.

I will just notice one more stronghold of Pedobaptists. Heb. 10: 22, "Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts, [not heads], sprinkled, [not with water], from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water." By sprinkling? No. By pouring? No. By immersion or dipping? Yes. Proof, 2d Kings 5: 10: "Go wash in Jordan seven times," 14 verse, "Then went he down and [sprinkled or poured himself? No.] dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God." Did he wash right? Yes. "And his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean." He received the blessings that were promised in proof that his washing was according to the command. So will every one that is washed, buried, baptized, as was Paul.

In conclusion, let me ask my readers to give the arguments here advanced a candid, unbiased, biblical investigation. Please lay aside all your sectarian education, take the Bible instead of creed or commentaries of men, as your guide, and read it as you would any other book, without spiritualizing or twisting the word of God. And I think you will conclude as I have done, that the only right action of baptism is immersion.

Yours in the bonds of love. Let me "Entreat you, in Christ's stead, Be ye reconciled unto God." Amen.

THREE IMPORTANT QUESTIONS.

THERE are three questions which have troubled man when left to himself, and by his own reasoning and physical science he can never comprehend or answer them. Where did I come from? What am I here for? And what is my destination when I leave here?

The question whether man was mortal or immortal is still unsettled with some of the brethren. I do not profess to be wise above what has been revealed; but we have not been left in darkness concerning the beginning and the end of man. God said unto Moses, "There is no God beside me, all things are present with me; for I know them all; for this is my work and my glory, to bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man." We have it revealed to us, that man had a pre-existence, was created spiritually before he was naturally upon the face of the earth. And we find that Satan was from the beginning, and that he proposed to redeem all mankind, that not one soul should be lost. "Wherefore, because Satan rebelled against me, and sought to destroy the agency of man, which the Lord God had given him, and also that I should give unto him mine own power. By the power of mine only begotten, I caused that he should be cast down, and he became Satan, yea, even the devil, the father of all lies, to deceive and to blind men, and to lead them captive at his will, even as many as would not hearken unto my voice." Then we find that God placed that perfect spiritual body, which he had created after his own likeness, in union with a body of the elements of this earth, of the dust of the ground, and subject to all the unchangeable laws by which this earth was governed and sustained. "And God breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life, and he became a living soul." The body did not have life in itself; therefore the body was not immortal. But all that was needful to supply the wants of man was provided by him who does all things well. "And out of the ground, I, the Lord God made to grow every tree naturally, that is pleasant to the sight of man, and man could behold it; and it became also a living soul; for it was spiritual in the day that I created it; for it remained in the sphere in which I, God, created it; yea, even all things which I prepared for the use of man; and man saw that it was good for food. And I, the Lord God, planted the tree of life also in the midst of the garden; and also the tree of knowledge of good and evil. And I, the Lord God, commanded the man, saying, of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it; nevertheless, thou mayest choose for thyself; for it is given unto thee; but remember that I forbid it; for in the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die."—Gen. 2: 11, 22. Here was a covenant, an agreement between man and his creator, with the conditions understood and accepted by man. He had the freedom of the tree of life, which would have sustained the body in perfect condition, until immortality and eternal life were given. And he had free intercourse with his God; for "man can not live by bread alone, but by the word of God." "And again, verily I say unto you, that which is governed by law is also preserved by law, and perfected and sanctified by the same. That which breaketh a law, and abideth not by law, but seeketh to become a law unto itself, and willeth to abide in sin, and altogether abideth in sin, can not be sanctified by law, neither by mercy, justice, nor judgment; therefore they must remain filthy still."—Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 85.

Law is the authoritative expression of will, enforced by power. When man of his own will, disobeyed the law of God, he became conscious of sin, and he went and hid himself from God. And he was cast out from the tree of life, and from the presence of God, never to return by his own power. "And the earth brought forth thorns and thistles, and in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, until thou shalt return unto the ground, for thou shalt surely die." Thus was the fearful sentence pronounced upon man, and enforced. When the spirit went out of the body, the forces of nature took hold of the body, and dissolved it back into dust, from whence it was taken, just as it does with the body to-day. And if we stop here, the whole hope of mankind is gone, the state of man is dark indeed. "But as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—Cor. 15: 22. "The first man, Adam, was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit; the first man is of the earth, earthy; the second man is the Lord from heaven."—1 Cor. 15: 45-47. "In the beginning was the gospel preached through the Son. And the gospel was the word, and the word was with the Son, and the Son was with God, and the Son was of God. The same was in the beginning with God. In him was the gospel, and the gospel was the life, and the life was the light of men; for in the beginning was the word, even the Son, who is made flesh, and sent unto us by the will of the Father. And as many as believe on his name, shall receive of his fulness. And of his fulness have all we received, even immortality and eternal life through his grace."—John 1:1-4, 16. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they who hear shall live. For as the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."—John 5:25, 26. "Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father."—John 10:17. "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is the devil."—Heb. 2:14.

First we have seen, that man was created spiritually, in the image of Almighty God, who knows all his works from the beginning. And that this world was created for the use of man, and that it was pronounced good by the Supreme God, who created it; and that the perfect, spiritual body of man was united to a body composed of the elements of this world, and with man's consent and agreement to obey God; having communion with God, and being in his presence, and having access to the tree of life. Had man lived up to the laws of his creation, there would have been a change to immortality. But no separation of the spirit and the body; no pain, no fear of death. But man disobeyed God, and did not abide the law of his creation, and we see "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the first fruits of the spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body."—Rom. 8:22. God knows all his works from the beginning, and the fall of man was provided for. Man may suffer, lose, but the purposes of God can not be defeated. "He is not slack, as some men count slackness." "One day is with God as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." We find another man, the Lord from heaven, born of woman, having to contend with all the adverse conditions which man had brought upon mankind; having life in himself, and laying down that life of his own will, that he might redeem man from the fall. "But the Prince of this world cometh, but hath no power over me. He hath power over you."—John 14:30. "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption."—Ps. 16:10. Then he is gracious unto him and saith, "Deliver him from going down to the pit. I have found a ransom. His flesh shall be fresher than a child's, he shall return to the days of his youth; for he will render unto man his righteousness."—Job. 23:26. Thus did Jesus Christ bring to pass the immortality and eternal life of man. "Through death he destroyed him that had the power of death, even the devil." Christ fulfilled the whole law, but not without suffering; for he said: "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death." He prayed unto the Father: "Take this cup from me, nevertheless, not my will but thine be done." Then when the powers of earth and hell were combined against him at the last moment of the awful struggle he cried out: "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me." We can not comprehend the anguish and suffering he had to pass through, that all who will receive him as their Savior may be brought back to God.

MEDITATIONS.

It seems strange that any should reason against the Bible account and teaching, and prophetic promises concerning the statements therein, about the beginning of man in Eden, his fall and expulsion, the curse placed upon the earth for man's sake, the atonement, and final redemption and restoration, when it is so clear, even to the most simple minds, (and should be more so to the most giant intellects), that to admit such statements to be facts, the excellence of the plan, if harmoniously understood, shows a great superiority to the wisdom of finite man; for every candid and honest thinker, that desires a better life after this, and who gives the subject a fair investigation, must acknowledge that such a plan was surely devised by an infinite being, who is also the creator of all things in the universe, the Redeemer of mankind, the giver of every good gift.

We are evidenced now, that the time is at hand, when the inhabitants of this earth will be divided into two parties, or churches; so that they who are not on the side of truth, for God, will be on the side of falsehood, for the devil. The irrepensible conflict has already commenced, and we are all engaged in it. It is light against darkness, good understanding against error, diligence against idleness, faith in God against doubtful atheism, a reasonable belief in prophetic testimony against infidelity, virtue against vice, knowledge against ignorance, temperance against excess and drunkenness, patience against fault finding and wrath, brotherly kindness against disrespect and inhospitality, godliness against cruelty and revenge, charity against depravity; in short, meekness, humility and love against pride, excess, and crime of every nature. And the peace makers are to be called the children of God, and the children of God are the true believers in Christ, the Saints of the Most High, to whom is promised to be given the whole earth, for an everlasting possession, first in time, and next in eternity, when life on earth will be enjoyed again.

INFERIOR.

Selections.

DISHONESTY BEGINS AT HOME.

THE crying sin of the day is dishonesty. One hears much of it in public life; but there is altogether too much of it in private life. And its cause is to be found in the want of self-control in the indulgence of tastes and appetites. Reckless, extravagant living is at the bottom of it all. If this living had any true foundation in any hearty desires for desirable things, there would be more hope of amendment. But when one comes to see what ill-gotten gains are spent upon, the outlook is a sad one. Dress, display, amusement, costly things bought just because they are "costly;" wealth won evilly, merely that it may be wasted foolishly; these are the signs of a time which it is not pleasant to contemplate. If a man loves any one thing, say rare books, or pictures, or objects of any kind, or music, or science, so well that for the sake of the one thing in which he would be rich he is willing to be poor in everything else, no matter though his choice be an unwise one according to the best standards of choice, he will yet have a motive which will help to keep him upright. But for those who love none of these things, but simply desire them because it is the habit of the time: because like pampered children, they must needs cry for whatever they see just out of their reach; for them is needed the wholesome self-discipline which shall teach them to let alone whatever is not theirs. And the beginning of this self-discipline is in the home. Parents must teach their boys and girls the great lesson of doing without whatever can not be fitly theirs. There need be no niggardly restraint, but in some way the first lesson for childhood should be that of earning its pleasures. To get whatever it craves as soon as it asks for it, is the worst training a child can have.

TRUTH SEEKERS.

How many there are to-day who are longing for some ray of light to clear up the apparently conflicting statements of Scripture, and to harmonize the teachings of nominal Christianity with those of Jesus, the apostles and prophets. The following goes to prove what we here state:

"Life! great mystery, who shall say
What need hath God of this poor clay?
Formed by his hand with potent skill—
Mind, matter, soul and stubborn will;
Born but to die; sure destiny—death.
Then where, oh, where this fleeting breath?
Not one of all the countless throng,
Who have lived and died and suffered long,
Returns to tell the great design—
That future, which is yours and mine.
We plead, oh God! for some new ray
Of light for guidance on our way;
Based not on faith, but clearer sight,
Dispelling these dark clouds of night;
This doubt, this dread, this trembling fear,
This thought that mars our blessings here;
This restless mind, whose bolder sway
Rejects the dogmas of the day
Taught by favoring sects and schools,
To fetter reason with their rules.
We seek to know Thee as Thou art—
Our place with thee—and then the part
We play in this stupendous plan,
Creator Infinite, and man.
Lift up this veil obscuring sight,
Command again: "Let there be light!"
Reveal this secret of Thy throne;
We search in darkness the unknown."

The above lines, written by Mrs. Commodore Inman, of Philadelphia, were clipped from a secular paper. This is but one of a thousand who are crying for more "light." This is the expression of one aching heart, longing to know why God created man; what part or lot the human race has in His plan; where the countless millions are who have passed from the stage of action; and whither we the living are tending; further is there not more light than is taught in "the dogmas of the day;" and is there not more harmony than taught by "jarring sects and schools" who try to "fetter reason with their rules." Yes, we thank God there is; that the scene is brightening, and all of these questions can be scripturally and satisfactorily answered, for the time draws nigh when God "will destroy the face of the covering cast over all people, and the veil [of ignorance] that is spread over all nations."—Isa. 25: 7.

WILL HE SUCCEED?

IN nine cases out of ten, no man's life will be a success if he does not bear burdens in his childhood. If the fondness or the vanity of father or mother kept him from contact with hard work; if another always helped him out at the end of his row; if, instead of taking his turn at pitching off, he mowed away all the time—in short, if what was light always fell to him, and what was heavy about the same work to some one else; if he has been permitted to shirk till shirking has become a habit—unless a miracle is wrought his life will be a failure, and the blame will not be half as much his as that of weak, foolish parents.

On the other hand, if a boy has been brought up to do his part; never allowed to shirk any legitimate responsibility, or permitted to dodge work, whether or not it made his back ache, or soiled his hands, until bearing heavy burdens became a matter of pride, the heavy end of the wood his from choice—parents, as they bid him good-by, may dismiss their fears. His life will not be a business failure. The elements of success are his, and at some time and in some way the world will recognize his capacity.

Take another point. Money is the object of the world's pursuit. It is a legitimate object. It gives bread, and clothing, and homes, and comfort. The world has not judged wholly unwisely when it has made the position a man occupies to hinge more or less on his ability to earn money, and somewhat upon the amount of his possessions. If he is miserably poor, it either argues some defect in his business ability, some recklessness in his expenditures, or a lack of fitness to cope with men in the great battle for gold.

When a country-bred boy leaves home, it is generally to enter upon some business the end of which is to acquire property, and he will succeed just in proportion as he has been made to earn and save in his childhood.

If all the money he has had has come of planting a little patch in the spring, and selling its produce after weary months of watching and toil in the fall, or from killing woodchucks at six cents a head, or from trapping muskrats, and selling their skins for a shilling; setting snares in the Fall for game, and walking miles to see them in the morning before the old folks were up; husking corn for a neighbor, moonlight evenings, at two cents a bushel; working out an occasional day that hard work at home has made possible—he is good to make his pile in the world.

On the contrary, if the boy never earned a dollar; if parents and friends always kept him in spending money—pennies to buy candy and fish-hooks, satisfy his imagined wants—and he has grown to manhood in the expectancy that the world will generally treat him with similar consideration, he will always be a make-shift; and the fault is not so much his as that of those about him, who never made the boy depend upon himself—did not make him wait six months to get money to replace a lost jack-knife.

Everybody has to rough it at one time or another. If the roughing comes in boyhood, it does good; if later, when habits are formed, it is equally tough; but not being educational, is generally useless. And the question as to whether a young man will succeed in making money or not depends not upon where he goes or what he does, but upon his willingness to do "his part," and upon his having earned money, and so gained a knowledge of its worth. Not a little of this valuable experience and knowledge the country boy gets on the farm, under the tutelage of parents shrewd enough to see the end from the beginning, and to make the labor and grief of children contribute to the success of subsequent life.—Sez.

CHURCHLY CHURLISHNESS.

If there is any place under heaven where good manners should be practiced, that place is the church. But, in many instances, it is the very home of churlishness and boorishness. A stranger dropping in finds himself in an atmosphere of such Arctic chilliness and freezing rigidity, that his first thought is that he has suddenly intruded into a spiritual refrigerator. There he stands, uncertain whether to advance or to back out. No one shows him a pew, or speaks a kind word to him, or gives him the slightest look of encouragement or welcome. He feels that he is a stranger, an intruder, that he is not welcome, that to stay is only to be tolerated. What wonder the service has no effect on that man? or, if any, that he retires after the benediction more hardened than softened? He went to gather strength for the grand purpose of a new life; he leaves feeling that there is no strength nor grace to be extracted from this frosty selfishness which has built itself a temple in the name of Christianity.

Now, had some kind-hearted Christian stepped up to this diffident new-comer, and, frank in speech and warm and sympathetic in heart, grasped him by the hand and bade him welcome, and given him to understand that the church wanted him, and had work for him to do, how different the result. Ah! when will the church be as wise as the devil? When at her doors will the stranger meet a welcome as bright and cheery, as hearty and warm, as he finds at those doors which open on death and hell? Fill the church with an atmosphere of radiant kindness, of genial welcome. Let there be exhibited the courtesy, not of outward deportment and etiquette only, but that also of the heart. Be civil. Be cordial. Be pleasant. Keep back your antipathies. But show your good-will. Be hospitable, for there is nothing like church hospitality. Thereby you will entertain angels, who will come again. Then every flower of Christian grace will bloom in richest colors, and every stranger that enters will be conscious of an attractiveness and a warmth that will irresistibly bind him to it as his home.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MINUTES.

Minutes of the General Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, held in the Kirtland Temple, at Kirtland, Lake county, Ohio, April 6th to 15th, 1883. On separate motions, the temporary organization was formed as follows: Elder Zenas H. Gurley of Pleasanton, Iowa, Chairman; Elder E. L. Kelley of Cold Water, Michigan, Secretary; and Robert M. Elvin of Nebraska City Neb., Assistant Secretary; Elder John T. Kinnaman of Stewartsville, Missouri, Chorister.

Conference opened by singing "We hear thy voice, our Father;" throne of grace addressed by Pres. Joseph Smith.

Committee on Credentials on separate motion and vote, were appointed: Heman C. Smith, Hyrum Bronson, Charles Derry, F. G. Pitt, and Ebenezer Robinson. Bishop Geo. A. Blakeslee nominated for ushers Samuel Brown and Wm. M. Rummel; janitor, Emery Vickers. Committee on permanent organization: Alex. H. Smith, Elijah Banta and E. C. Brand.

While the body awaited the reports of the committees on credentials and permanent organization, President Gurley invited the President of the Church and his Counselor to address the meeting.

President Joseph Smith, upon being presented to the audience, said: That it was quite unnecessary for him to say that he took pleasure in the meeting of to-day; the circumstances surrounding the event were such that all who think—and all ought to think—could well discern the fact that events clearly spoken of in the past have their fulfillment in our gathering. Fifty years ago the speaker, he said, began his earth-life in this place, and at a time when those who were working in this place, and with whom he was associated, were warring against difficulties to maintain and advance such principles as to them were of the highest truth. And it is not to be wondered at that under such trials the people who were thus laboring should partake in some manner of the spirit of the scenes. But to-day it is not in fact peculiar that we should be able to worship here; for that which is intended to be permanent pleases God, and so the original builders wrought, and that which is intended to be evanescent does not please him. And one of the great evidences of the truth of the principles which actuated the people then is, that so many are here to-day who inhabited here then and partook of that spirit and still rejoice in the truth. The fact exists that almost everywhere where our work has been taught, the prejudices of the people has given way, and every where the people in the past were driven from place to place who did not abide in the principles established here at the beginning—we are now permitted to enter and occupy without fear or alarm. The work means and is, the building up the waste places, and establishing the truth of the work, and many under the peaceful labor of teaching these principles have succeeded in calling out those who had been scattered, and they rejoice like Simeon of old, and are ready to say it is enough, "Let now thy servant depart in peace." The meeting to-day is looked upon with interest by the world, and if we respect ourselves and our work, they can not fail to respect us; but if we should fail to respect the work of which we have charge, and ourselves, it need not be wondered at if others fail to show us the courtesy we desire. The outlook is good, and to-day we have a standing, and most men are willing to hear; and when we have presented our faith to them, they are at liberty to judge for themselves, and our work is done. The gathering of this body or assembly is somewhat different to those past, in that it is a delegate one; how long it shall so continue, or what changes may take place, it is in the wisdom of the body to determine. But in all our deliberations and work, we should observe strictly the decorum of brethren, and remember he is strongest and wisest who is actuated by the kindest spirit.

Bro. W. W. Blair was the next speaker. He said: This Reorganized Church has a history and a purpose. Its beginnings were with the humble, and somewhat obscure ones, who were waiting for the consolation of Zion's scattered and sorrowing children. The dawn came in 1851-2, when "the enemy came in like a flood" among the different factions in the form of polygamy, priestly arrogance and oppression, "damnable heresies," "lying wonders," and a general departing from the faith as taught in the traditions, and in the standard works of the Church; then "the Spirit of the Lord" lifted up "a standard against him," and from thenceforward its followers have pressed ahead, their numbers increasing, their influence widening, till to-day we are found celebrating the service of God in one of the "waste places of Zion." The purpose of the Church was, and is, and is to be, to re-affirm and re-establish the Christianity of Christ as found in the New Testament and other books on doctrine and discipline endorsed by the Church up to the death of Joseph the Seer. The world needs the religion of Christ in theory, in principle, in form, in ordinance, in ceremony, in promise, and in spiritual power; and our work is to preach it, and live it, and thus bless and save all who will accept it.

Among other things he said: "Our conference has some reference to Joseph Smith, the Seer. We see him a poor, unlettered boy in the wilds of New York, persecuted and opposed on every hand. He organized a church of six members in the backwoods of New York. From that nucleus a great church has arisen, that has attracted the attention of the civilized world. If Joseph Smith was not inspired by God Almighty, he was the most wonderful man in this century. We praise him and the work he performed."

Elder Z. H. Gurley spoke as follows: Remove not the land marks of the Fathers, and regard this Temple to be one of the land marks; and for that reason are we here assembled in the house builded by faithful hands. We believe that the object of those who built this house was for purpose of blessing all men, and more especially such as would keep the laws of God. The Spirit and the experience of the past seem to indicate that those who should, did not carry out the purpose of the work here established. The manifestation and intent of the Spirit were, that here should be found a Temple where the people of God should come to worship with clean hands and pure hearts; but on account of sin and that departure from the old landmarks, this house has stood so long unoccupied. Some will inquire, well what is your purpose. Let me say, that if we fail to sustain and honor the object of the work and the spirit promptings, we can not succeed. But we are here with the bright and blessed assurance that the Spirit of God witnesses a blessing to the race, and if we labor faithfully to remove the foul stain from the work, and wipe out the blackness of apostacy, God will own and accept us. All those who give countenance to the doctrines of Utah, are giving aid to the foulest system that ever cursed the race; so I say, and wish to be understood and go upon the record, for I do not propose to handle that thing any longer with gloves, it must and shall be stamped out, and if we so labor, the people of this State, and these United States, will seal it with a loud Amen. Our work is that of mercy; the Courts must care for the criminals, our best efforts shall be to direct all to return to the primitive faith of the Church. We believe it to be the duty of the Reorganization to arise to a higher standard in favor of ennobling of mankind; we must work for the suppression of the diabolism of the nineteenth century. I would rather my child should die an infidel, than to accept the doctrine of Mormonism as taught in Utah. We bid God speed to all men who are working for good. The seed of truth was here planted in 1830, and inasmuch as the work has been shamefully betrayed, we are here for the purpose to rescue all those who will receive the restoration of the truth. Mr. Cannon stated last Winter before the Judiciary Committee the reason that the people of Utah receive and practice polygamy was upon the accepting of a "purported revelation" thereon. We have asked the Government to make a distinction between us and the people of the west; should the Government condone the crime of polygamy on the basis of religion, we shall still cry against the sin and shame. Judge Jere Black says he is ready for the test case. So are we; and we pray for the test to come speedily.

Adjourned till to-morrow forenoon for business. Closed by singing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." Benedic- by Z. H. Gurley.

Preaching in evening by Elder John Gilbert: A forceful sermon upon the necessity of our doing something to inherit eternal life.

SATURDAY, APRIL 7TH.

The morning prayer meeting, in charge of Brn. Wm. B. Smith and Geo. S. Yerrington; a peaceable and spiritual waiting before the Lord.

At ten in the forenoon business was resumed. Opened by singing "Sweet the time, exceeding sweet." Prayer by Elder Josiah Ells.

On motion, the report of the committee was received and they continued.

Elder W. W. Blair asked for the rule by which certain districts and branches were unfavorably reported upon, and deprived of their rights.

Secretary read from the Articles on Representation.

Bro. Heman C. Smith chairman of the committee, explained the reason why the committee could not report favorable upon those credentials.

Bro W. H. Kelley moved, that delegates present who have proper credentials of appointment, though they be not members of the district which they represent, be entitled to seats in this body.

The above was spoken to by Brn. W. H. Kelley, J. S. Patterson, E. L. Kelley and C. Derry. Motion put upon its passage and prevailed.

Bro. W. W. Blair made enquiry in relation to Utah and other districts. Moved to adopt as amended by the resolution of Bro. W. H. Kelley. Spoken to by W. W. Blair and J. H. Lake. Brn. Joseph Smith and E. Robinson moved the following amendment to the amendment: Resolved, that the several credentials received from the branches composing the Utah District be accepted as the action of the district conference assembled; and that the basis of representation and voting be the same as obtains in other districts. Spoken to by W. H. and E. L. Kelley, W. W. Blair, J. H. Lake, Joseph Smith, E. Robinson, E. Banta, B. V. Springer, Geo. H. Hilliard, D. S. Mills, A. H. Smith, A. Patterson, Jas. Brighthouse, A. MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder W. W. Blair, of the First Presidency, present, reports as follows:

In Eastern Nevada there are numbers of the Utah Mormons, and some who have left that connection. There are also some of the Reorganized Church, including a branch at Elko. In Idaho there are probably ten thousand Utah Mormons. There are also considerable number who have left that connection. There are three branches of the Reorganized Church in that Territory, Malad City, Elkhorn and Soda Springs. There are a number of scattered members; also, notably in Cassia, Owyhee and Nez Perces counties. In Wyoming the number of members are few, but opportunities fair for missionary labor. The Montana District, three branches, two of which are active and spiritual; the other one so scattered that meetings are seldom had. There are in the district many who were connected with the Utah Mormons, the Morrisites, and the Canaanites; some of whom are most excellent people. This district is gaining fairly. The Utah District is the principal theater for missionary effort. Much opposition is offered to our ministry and people by the Utah Mormons; still our missionary efforts for the past three years have been in a degree successful. The fruits of the mission are seen in the fair increase in membership, the erection of a solid, commodious brick chapel in the center of Salt Lake City, now well furnished and free from debt, and having a Sunday School; they are also seen in the position won as a loyal, Christian work; and in the influence for good exerted among all classes, notably among the Utah Mormons, as is seen in the reformation wrought in their teachings and practices in the direction of genuine Christianity and pure Americanism. The financial part of the work has been fairly sustained by the mission, so that for the past year the mission has been, perhaps, more than self-sustaining. The outlook is good; though there are many adversaries, hindrances and obstacles in the way. The mission should be well supplied with a ministry adapted to its peculiarities.

Elder Z. H. Gurley, of the Quorum of Twelve, present, reports:

Last November I parted with family and commenced my journey eastward, calling at Chicago, where I had the pleasure of meeting with the Saints of that great city; and at the instance of our worthy brother, Elder Wm. H. Kelley, had the pleasure of addressing them twice. My next stop was at the residence of our worthy Bishop, George A. Blakeslee, where I found a very pleasant and properly governed family; the best of all was I found the spirit of peace there. Here also at Galien I met a few of the Saints and friends, and from what I saw and felt, was favorably impressed with the friends and work in that region. My next stop was at Chagrin Falls and Kirtland, Ohio; and as soon as I obtained actual view of this last named place,—the Temple,—and its surroundings, so I could speak advisedly in relation to it, I moved onward, stopping two nights at Pittsburgh, Pa., where, fortunately, I met some of the Saints at their business meeting. Here the same cheerful smiling faces met me, as they had done one year before; and as I talked with Bro. Ells, one of the pioneers of the work there, and Bro. George Hulmes, president of the branch, Bro. Joseph Parsons and others, I felt assured that the good cause was firm and properly onward. I met here Bro. Hiram Robinson, then laboring under Bro. Ells, and prior to this in my mission; though young, and laboring under some disadvantages, he has proven faithful, and so far as I could learn has met with fair success. My next stop was Washington City, D. C., where I remained some two weeks or more, during which time I was introduced to the Secretary of State, Hon. F. T. Frelinghuysen, by Senator J. W. McDill and Hon. W. P. Hepburn, who stated properly the object of our mission, and asked for us the relief from the improper effect of the "Circular Letter" of the Hon. Wm. M. Evarts, former Secretary of State, whereby the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints had been and still was very improperly confounded with the Mormons of Utah; who as we know have placed their hopes of heaven and their fears of hell upon the acceptance or rejection of a certain "purported revelation," whereby polygamy, murder, and all manner of blasphemy is tolerated. The Secretary said that the case was somewhat peculiar and delicate, and wished me to appear in writing for my people, as he wished us "upon the record;" to which I readily assented. And making known the result of my visit there to Bro. Joseph Smith, my associate in this special matter, we arranged conjointly the documents we deemed necessary, and formally presented the same, as will appear in our report. For these interviews we are indebted to the Hon. W. P. Hepburn of Iowa, whose kindness and courtesy was all I could ask.

From this city I moved onward to Philadelphia, being met at Baltimore by Bro. Joseph Stewart, where I assisted him in disposing of questions relative to baptisms administered by Elders of the old church, &c., by which several old members there united with us. At Philadelphia I succeeded in establishing a mission at 2244 Ridge Avenue, with Elders John Stone and Absalom Grist in charge, which at last accounts was prospering, with regular services each Sabbath day. I only regret that I could not establish more missions in that great city. The branch there is also in fair condition, holding regular services at Ninth and Callowhill street; Elder Wm. Small, presiding. I baptized two precious souls here, in the waves of the Delaware river, on New Year's Day.

At Hornerstown, N. J., we have a faithful little band of Saints, presided over by Bro. Wm. Brown,—whose Aunt, sister Sallie Moore, now upwards of seventy years of age, united with us upon her original baptism; which sacrament she received at the hands of Bro. Benj. Winchester, many years ago. This to me was an incident of interest and pleasure, to find that after all these long weary years of darkness which has been over the Church, that she still confesses her Lord, and with us acknowledges him. In addition to this, I had the pleasure of baptizing four others at this place, and am pleased to report that the work there is in a prosperous condition. My next stop was at Brooklyn, N. Y., where I found the branch somewhat disorganized; but after laboring a few days, had the pleasure of seeing it reorganized, a hall hired, and regular services resumed. The Saints there have passed through a variety of trials; but are kind, warm-hearted, and spiritual; their prospects in the work are fair. Our worthy brother, Joseph Squires, presiding. I had the pleasure here of forming the acquaintance of Bro. W. O. Owen, whom Brn. Briggs and Derry will remember, and who was a convert in their missionary labor in England, I believe. I trust the work may receive aid from his labors. Journeying still eastward, I called at Bridgeport, Conn., where we have a few members—the result of Bro. Squires' work in part. Pressing on, the next stop was Providence, R. I., where I met a large, healthy branch of Saints, ably presided over by Bro. F. M. Sheehy; here I met Brn. Frank Potter and Yerrington, the latter being one of the veterans. Had the pleasure of speaking twice to these Saints with fair liberty. Met the Saints at Boston several times, speaking as I felt led, and feel that they need help in the way of missionaries. Bro. Webster is faithful, and still at his post as president; but the city is large, and laborers are needed there. Some local Elders reside in the city, and if they only would,

I think could bring to pass some good as missionaries; may the Lord give them and all others courage to do. Here, as at Providence, the Saints have excellent halls to worship in, with good music, both vocal and instrumental, which I consider a blessing. This feature is noteworthy in the Massachusetts District; for at Fall River and Plainville, also, good music greeted the ear, and certainly was very cheering to me. At Fall River I had full houses, and there met Elders John Gilbert, District Missionary; John Smith, Pres. of District; and John Potts, President of Branch. This branch has a pleasant chapel builded with their own money, which will accomodate an audience of two hundred. At Plainville, Bro. Charles Coombs presides; and they too have builded an house unto the Lord, in the dedication of which I had the pleasure of assisting. This work is praiseworthy on the part of this little band of Saints, especially so when we consider the fact that all, or nearly all of these dear friends at Plainville and Fall River are laborers in factories, &c.; and from their daily toil have laid by, until a house to worship in is the result. God will bless such efforts everywhere. Let the good work of building houses go on. Massachusetts District has some eight or nine branches, with a total membership of about 600, and is in good condition. The Philadelphia District has some four branches organized, and with the scattered members will probably approximate to 150 or 200 souls, and is in fair condition. Bro. Joseph A. Stewart, presiding.

On my return from the east, I was met at Philadelphia by Brn. Jos. Smith and G. A. Blakeslee, and with them said good bye to the faithful ones there, and went to Washington, finishing up the work before referred to. Throughout the entire journey, I have been well received and well treated by all whom I have met. Have had more calls to "come and help us," than I possibly could fill. I need help in this mission; it is an excellent field, with millions of people, many, very many of whom are good. Have enjoyed fair to good liberty in speaking the word, and feel to leave the care thereof with Him who "doeth all things" well. Have seen and met some things to annoy and displease; have sought to administer the law in love,—firmly, but calmly. All things considered, I am well pleased with the outlook; but the cause we love needs more missionaries in the east, for it will I think yet prove one of our best fields for proselyting, as the people are very intelligent and industrious.

Elder John H. Lake, of the Quorum of Twelve, present, reports:

Since the last session of your honorable body, held at Lamon, Iowa, September, 1882, I have been laboring in the mission assigned me, in charge, in Canada, in the districts and branches, and have effected some new openings; have enjoyed good liberty of the Spirit in presenting the gospel to the people. Prejudice is fleeing away; many friends have been raised up unto the gospel, and are now defending the same. The Saints of the mission are at peace with each other, so far as I am informed. The only unfavorable report I have to make is, that there is a careless lethargy with the Saints; they seem to fail to see the necessity of keeping their lamps trimmed and burning, and oil within. But I have labored to get them to discharge their duties towards each other and their neighbors and friends; and to worship God in Spirit and in truth.

I have baptized four; blessed seven children, solemnized two marriages, administered to the sick whenever called upon so to do, in some instances with marked effect. The Lord truly confirmed his word with signs following. The brethren associated with me, to labor in the mission, have done very good work in different parts of the mission, in battling for the truth. And I presume they will each report their labors. The local laborers have done some work outside of the branches. I hope they will still continue to do so; and may God bless them with his Spirit, to enable them to stand firm to the truth. I think I am safe to report to you that the mission is in much better condition than when I was placed in charge; and I am satisfied that with proper management, and the blessing of the Lord, that there are many in Canada that will obey the gospel and rejoice in the hope of eternal life.

And in closing this report, dear brethren, I wish to say I don't feel to weary in the battle, although I have been struggling (in my weak way) as an Elder, to preach the gospel of Christ for twenty years, if I live to see this coming June. Yet I am with you for the victory. I hope to see the latter day work made honorable, and the bride (the Church) adorned with pure linen clean and white, the righteousness of the Saints, and be ready to meet the Bridegroom at his coming. And to this end I shall labor and pray, hoping to be sustained by you in righteousness.

Elder Joseph R. Lambert, of the Quorum of the Twelve, present, reports:

Since the middle of last December I have sought in every way known to me, so far as strength and ability would permit, to advance the interests of God's work in the City of Chicago. Whatever may be thought or said of my labors, I am conscious of having acted without partiality or ill feeling to any. For the last two Sundays Bro. M. T. Short has kindly done the preaching, the only help of that kind received. In addition to preaching, I have taken charge of the prayer meetings, business meetings, meetings of Elders' Courts, and have done not a little of that labor which rightfully devolves upon the Teacher. Much more of this kind of work should have been done, but poor health would not permit. The peculiarities and difficulties of the situation were soon made apparent. Things which transpired before my coming, (whether they furnished just cause for complaint or not, I do not say), together with the action of the Northren Illinois District, since last fall, conspired to make the situation more embarrassing. The conclusion was soon reached that, so far as the Saints were concerned, the leading effort would be to preserve the work from total ruin, and bring about reform as fast as the peculiarities of the situation would allow. Soon after I arrived, a number of brethren found supposed cause to justify them in drawing off from us, most of whom have even refused to attend preaching meetings. They have, however, first, without my knowledge, and second, over my public protestation, held prayer meetings of their own, from house to house. Such movements as this are not entirely new to the Church. The manner in which this one is disposed of will affect the work for good or for evil, not only in Chicago, but elsewhere. The foregoing will serve as a weak indication of what we have to contend with in striving to build up the work in that city.

The present outlook, so far as the branch is concerned, is not flattering, though we have made some advancement, and are not discouraged. Among the Chicago Saints, not excepting those who move in harmony with the general order of the work, is found a large and very discordant element. These brethren are not blest with a surplus of wisdom, but are anxious to express their views, as a rule, and each one seeming to be wedded to his opinions. Some of them, too, are very combative. We make these statements, not to reflect upon the Saints, but because we believe they are due the Church and the missionaries who labor there. For the last six weeks, or more, the attendance from without has been gradually but slowly increasing. With but few exceptions, I have had good liberty in preaching, and have felt the power of the gospel of God's dear Son.

Whatever may be thought of the wisdom of continuing this mission, (and there are some strong reasons in its favor), my experience is this; when the dark clouds are lifted, and the light and the blessing of God's Spirit bursts upon us, there comes the strong conviction that the gospel standard should be kept raised in the City of Chicago. Some one of tact, patience, firmness in the right, a fair representative of the word, of irrefragable character, and possessed with physical as well as spiritual nerve, should be placed in charge. Whether my days be few or many, I desire to devote them wholly to the service of God.

Elder Alexander H. Smith, of the Quorum of Twelve, present, reports:

Having been appointed by your honorable body, at last fall session, to preside over the Missouri Mission, I hereby report my labors in that field. I have labored in the following places: Galesburg, Oronogo, Independence, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Stewartville and vicinity, Cameron and Bevier, Missouri; Wyandotte, Columbus and Pleasant View, Kansas; Colchester, Ills; Grundy county, Mo.; Galien and Coldwater, Mich.; and Steuben county Ind. You will see I have labored outside of my field. I have been hindered some as to time, in service in my field, away from home; but my whole time has been devoted to the work. I have done what I could, having had charge as presiding officer at one time of the Independence District, and the Branch at Independence, and the State of Missouri, my Mission. Have had excellent liberty in preaching the word. Have ministered to the sick with marked success in many instances. With one or two exceptions, I believe the mission in good working order. There are far more calls than I have had men to supply. The work is fast assuming proportions which demand more men, more means, and more willing laborers. A better feeling seems pervading the entire membership in my mission since the activity of the Bishopric. A more healthy tone, and brighter prospects are opening before us, and should I be continued in present field, I purpose a more vigorous and extended campaign for the coming year. I pray for the visitation of God's Holy Spirit upon your councils.

Elder T. W. Smith of the Twelve, present, reports:

My labors in the ministry have not been very extensive since last Fall Conference. Shortly after my return home I visited the Delana Branch, Missouri, and held several meetings in connection with Bro. W. T. Bozarth. I have preached several times for the Saints in Stewartsville, and also for the German Saints in their chapel, and a number of times in the chapel of our home branch. I visited Burlington, Iowa, in the beginning of Winter, and preached a number of times there. On my way to Conference I called at Lamoni, Iowa, and spoke twice, and at Lucas, Iowa, and preached twice there, and at Burlington and spoke three times. I have administered to the sick and afflicted frequently, sometimes with others, and sometimes alone, and the blessing of health and cure was given in a number of cases; and in others no immediate help followed. I am ready for the field, wherever duty and the good of the cause may require.

Elder Charles Derry, of the High Priests' Quorum, present, reports:

Since the last conference I have labored in the field appointed to the best of my ability, under the circumstances. I have had good attention in all places where I have preached, both in Iowa and Nebraska. In some places I have been denied a hearing, and in one instance was notified by a Methodist class leader, that I could not have a certain house under his control any more; but the people in the neighborhood opened their houses, and manifested great desire to hear. I believe good will be done there. I have baptized four; but others have been led to accept of the truth where I have labored. My faith in God and his truth remains unshaken. I shall do what I can, but I feel that I could do full as much good if my field was not so large as now.

Elder C. G. Lanphear, of the High Priests' Quorum, present, reports:

My desire is to do all I can in the cause, and feel the Spirit of the work, and the importance of its great light and benefits to be derived thereby, to those that are thirsting for the word of life. I was out in the way of gospel effort and labor, though not under any special appointment of the Church; from July till January, and preached about twenty-five times. Attended two district conferences, one in Kansas and one in Missouri. Was very kindly received by the Saints, and my wants kindly cared for and supplied. I hope to be able to do something in the way of disseminating gospel light to the world in the course of the season.

Elder R. J. Anthony of the Quorum of Seventy, reports from Cold Water, Florida, as follows:

I started for my field of labor as soon after your Fall session as was practicable. Arrived in Kentucky early in December, and until now have been preaching and visiting the mission. I am not prepared to make a full report. I did some preaching at Bardwell, Kentucky, and there seemed to be a very good interest. I visited the Farmington Branch with Bro. G. S. Hyde, and from there we went into Tennessee, and did some labor there; but I am not able to say what the interest is in that part of my field. The weather was so bad during my stay in Kentucky and Tennessee, that it was almost impossible to get to our appointments. I visited the Three Rivers and Bluff Creek Branches in Mississippi. Bro. F. P. Scarcliff met me in Mississippi, and we labored there some little time, trying to encourage the Saints and convince others. We found the work in a languishing condition; but during our stay the interest revived. I feel confident our visit in Mississippi did good; from appearances it is the best field I have seen in the South, there are many good openings for the word there. I have not been able to visit the Alabama District yet, and as I have no report from the local authorities, I am not prepared to say what the condition of the work is. I have received a card from Bro. Franklin Vickery, asking me to visit them, stating that they need preaching. I have not visited all the branches, but where I have been, I find the work languishing; there are many good, true Saints, some have grown cold and careless, and some have suffered the tempter to lead them astray, and have tarnished the fair name of Saint, and brought reproach upon the Church. As yet have seen nothing flattering in Florida. I have advised and tried to encourage the Saints to the best of my ability; have tried to impress upon their minds the necessity of living a pure, upright, and devoted life to God and Christ. I have flattered myself with the thought that in some places the drooping spirits have revived, and pray God it may be so. I have baptized five, preached when and where I could, but so far my labor has been mostly in the branches; and now I am going out into new fields, believing that the cause will move along under the watchcare of local authority. From reports the people are anxious to hear the gospel; but this mission is like all others that I have visited, local Elders do not always have time to open up new fields and remain while the interest demands the labor. I believe this a good field for proselyting; people are anxious everywhere to hear. I recommend that you send at least five or six Elders to this field, if it is at all practicable, and let them come at once,—the Summer season is the best for labor here in the extreme south. We must have some one in Kentucky and Tennessee; the Fall is the time to do missionary labor there. We ought to have one especially to look after the Brighamites in Georgia and Tennessee. My desire is to labor in the service of my Lord, and expect to continue to do so; but I will have to ask you to release me, as I have some business matters to look after at home that will require my personal attention during the Summer. I shall leave the matter with you and abide your decision.

Elder Glaud Rodger, President of the Quorum of Seventy, reports from Lamoni, Iowa:

Having hitherto for many years labored with you for the advancement of the great cause of our Redeemer for the salvation of man, I am not changed in faith nor purpose; but ever trusting in the good Spirit for my guide, I hope to endure to the end. Last conference I was appointed to labor as circumstances might permit; I have done so, though I can not boast of much good being accomplished. Being so long in warmer climates, the past winter has been severe on me, and kept me from doing the good that my heart desired. My present circumstances are such as may hinder my travels in the vineyard yet for some months. But when again at liberty, I hope to be found faithful to a calling I believe to be of God. I would prefer to labor where I believe I can do the most good and where laborers are surely needed,—California and Nevada; but if the Spirit directs otherwise, all well. I shall ever pray for humility to submit to the will and counsel of God, whose loving kindness and tender mercy I have shared in for many years, and in whose power I shall trust for salvation at the end of the race.

Elder John C. Foss, of the Quorum of Seventy, reports from Independence, Mo., as follows:

On the 13th of February I left Stewartsville, Missouri, for this place, I commenced immediately to build a house. Some of the Saints here assisted me.

I assisted the president of this district in organizing the Armstrong Branch, blessed two children, solemnized one marriage. I have been laboring very hard to place myself in a condition so to give my entire time and talent to the cause of Christ, and am now ready to take the field and go at your command, and I will try and do the best good I can.

Elder J. T. Davis, of the Quorum of Seventy, reports from Mound Valley, Kas., as follows:

Since we last met at Lamoni, Iowa, my efforts in preaching have been confined to Crawford, Cherokee, and Labette counties; as a rule we have good hearing and large congregations, and I think we have succeeded in removing a great amount of prejudice and tradition; but I think the work is only in its infancy here as yet. The demand for preaching is great, and the elements to contend with are the various forms of modern orthodoxy, spiritualism, and infidelity. The country is thickly settled by energetic and enterprising families. The field is important and the work should be prosecuted with vigor. As yet I have not been able to go into the Indian Territory, but I think to go there in a few weeks—we have an invitation to enter the Territory where the Verdigris river enters below Coffeyville, to preach to the Indians, and they say the country is thickly settled all along that stream, hence I intend to go and see what can be done for the Lord among the Lamanites. I have been greatly blessed in my labors, and know nothing better then continue, if your judgment will so order.

Elder J. F. Mintun, of the Quorum of the Seventy, reports from Freemont, Nebraska:

After my re-appointment to this mission at the Fall Conference, I returned home, but was there only a few days till I was taken with the fever and ague. Through the mercies of God, by the prayer of faith, I was restored after about two weeks' illness. I then acted as one of a Court of Elders at Galland's Grove, in behalf of our Quorum. I returned home and entered upon my missionary duties on the 20th of November. I have preached ninety-four times, held a discussion of three days of three hours each, which resulted in good to the cause; have baptized two, confirmed and assisted in confirming three, ordained one Elder, one Priest, and one Teacher, blessed six children, and whenever called upon have acted in other positions ac-ording to my calling. I have been exceedingly blessed in all my labors; God bearing witness to my labors by them resulting in good. I desire to continue in the work of the Lord, for it is my only comfort beyond this vale of tears; and as you may order, so I hope to be able to do, God being my helper. Prejudice is fast giving way in Nebraska, and the work of leading souls to Christ is moving slowly but surely onward.

Elder J. S. Patterson of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports:

The following is offered as a brief synopsis of my missionary labors. Since the September Conference my time has been exclusively devoted to the ministry; and my travels have extended as far over Northern Illinois as the severity of the past Winter would admit of. I have held a series of meetings at Cortland, Leland, Amboy, Sandwich, Plano, Mission, and in the neighborhood of Piper City, and have endeavored to make our efforts as interesting and instructive as possible, leaving the results with him who giveth the increase. Some have signified their intention of uniting. Our reception has been cordial at some places, at others cold and formal; we have been made to realize that all are not brethren who bear the name, but knowing the work is of God, none of these things move us. The Northern Illinois District, over which I at present preside, is partly in running order and partly otherwise. I have done my best to infuse life and vigor where it appeared necessary, but with rather indifferent success in some localities. I find quite a general dissatisfaction in the district over the action of last Fall Conference, in the matter of the Chicago Branch being severed from the district without their knowledge or consent; they believe their rights to have been infringed, and a dangerous precedent established; but hope that their request for a re-hearing may meet your favorable consideration. The Herald as a weekly, meets with favor all over my field of labor. So far as advanced years and a consequent bodily weakness will admit of, I am still at the service of the Church, trusting that the conference may result in good for the cause, and knowing that only our righteous acts are approved of God, and feeling that no man can ever rise on the ruins of his fellow men, or brethren, I sincerely pray and trust that all our efforts for the right may be exercised lawfully, with unshaken faith in the ultimate triumph of truth.

Elder Gomer T. Griffiths, of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports as follows:

Since the Semi-Annual Conference of 1882, I have endeavored to promote the cause, in dispensing the word of life and in officiating in all the ordinances that appertain to my office. I have preached at Hyde Park, Plymouth, Nanticoke and Pittsburgh, Pa.; Warnock, Lampsville and Byesville, Ohio; Glen Easton, W. Va. Have baptized 15, confirmed 15, blessed eight children, ordained two Teachers, administered to the sick with some good results. The present prospects for preaching are very good in Ohio and West Virginia; plenty of new openings. Prejudice is rapidly abating in most places where I have been. The Macedonian cry is heard from all parts of the mission. The Saints are beginning to realize that they must be more assiduous and vigilant in the future, before they can be instrumental in the hands of God in bring about the redemption of Zion. The Saints and friends here have been kind to us, for which we feel grateful. The good Master has abundantly blessed my labors, and I am still willing to labor in the field, providing I can get a suitable place for my wife, otherwise I must provide one myself.

Elder Heman C. Smith, of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports:

Have labored in Texas exclusively since last report, preaching in Anderson, Robertson, Burleson, Bell, Blanco, Bandera, Bexar, Bastrop, Stevens and Young counties. I have been blessed in my labor with the Spirit of the Master. Though my trials have been severe, and my burdens sometimes almost more than I could bear, yet I have received much encouragement, and often while under the influence of the Spirit I have felt quite sanguine of success in the South-Western Mission. The work in Texas is improving in some respects, in others it is not. There is more, and a wider spread interest in the work than before, and more respect is paid us by the thinking class. The Saints are not progressing spiritually as I wish they were; yet we have been blessed with some notable cases of healing, for which we praise the Lord. We have not been able as yet to open the work in Louisiana. Bro. Montague has labored some in Arkansas, and reports a good interest. I see by the Herald that Bro. B. V. Springer has labored some in Arkansas, also, which I was very glad to hear. In the Indian Territory the work is about at a stand still. Brn. Montague and Luff, and I have each made some effort there, but our labors were not very successful.

We have a wide expanse of territory in this mission, and so far only three of us to labor. We struggle against contending odds. I think the Church does not fully understand the needs of the work here, or they would make some more effort to aid us than they have done. The District Conference will send in a petition for Brn. D. H. Bays and W. T. Bozarth; and if the circumstances of these brethren would justify it, I would be glad if the petition could be granted; they have both been in the mission, and each have many friends who would welcome them. Bro. Montague is in North Texas, and has been laboring faithfully. He is faithful, reliable and agreeable, and should be continued. Bro. Cato has been hindered much by ill health; but has done considerable labor, he is zealous and faithful, and I would recommend his being continued in the work here. As for myself I am at the disposal of conference after a few months, and am willing to continue in the mission if the needs of the work seem to you to demand it. The most of the serious difficulties are now in a fair way to be adjusted, though there are some things yet to be looked after, which may be the cause of some trouble.

Elder G. S. Hyde, of the Quorum of Seventy, reporting from Clear Water, Neb., says:

I have endeavored to do as best I could, seeking to adapt myself to circumstances, laboring where and when I thought the most good could be done; the results the future will reveal. Since the Fall Conference I have baptized none. I can not say conscientiously that prospects for future ingatherings into the fold from the people of Tennessee and Kentucky is very flattering; yet when we consider the importance of the gospel represented by us, and the moral worth of those whom it is designed to save, we feel that the interest and demand for labor in those States are fully sufficient to justify missionary labor there. We are sometimes led to think that the work of God for the consummation of latter day events is, in some respects, in its infancy. Perhaps not in point of time. The gospel germ has been planted there, and some good fruit has grown upon the tree of righteousness. With regard to future labor, brethren, I am with you. I love gospel because it is my friend. I love to preach it, because in so doing spiritual power and the ability to resist and overcome evil are imparted. I prefer "our gospel" to many others taught in the world for various reasons: First, it is identical the one taught by Paul, Peter, James, John and Jesus the "Mediator of all." Second, it is a better gospel than the diluted and attenuated theories passing among the unwary or unwise, because it contains the essence of power by which its truth is demonstrated, and its adherents are made free from the bondage of sin. Third, it breathes and begets higher moral sentiment, it generates grander aspirations, and secures to man a better conception of the creature and the Creator. In the last six months I have preached fifty-three times and attended to such of the duties as naturally devolve upon the itinerant ministry.

Elder J. F. McDowell, of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports as follows:

I have labored in Des Moines District; have delivered over one hundred sermons and lectures, baptized seven, blessed five children, attended to eight confirmations; have administered to the sick with marked results; God's power having been immediately displayed. On our way eastward, Bro. Etzenhouser and self tarried in Dubuque about two weeks; here we met with opposition in obtaining occupancy of some chapels, which resulted in an exchange of thought in the leading daily papers, from which we think "the truth" and "the way" did not suffer. We found two "old time" folks, whose hearts were retouched by God's spirit, acknowledged the "voice of the Good Shepherd" in the message delivered, and the husband renewed his covenant with God by baptism, after years of wandering in sorrow and uncertainty. We left others on the verge of the liquid grave, whose hearts have received new life, and whose souls shall not rest contented until they have followed Jesus all the way. I have received renewed and increased evidences of the divinity of the work; and I feel assured that its march points only toward eternal conquest, and that it shall be crowned with victory amid acclamations of angelic hosts, and voices of the redeemed shall pronounce it an infinite success, for God shall stand and pronounce the supreme benediction which belongeth to the consummation of dispensations, and the closing of the ages of time!

Elder Columbus Scott, of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports as follows:

I have labored almost continuously since last September in Michigan. Having been under the necessity of laboring alone, I have not been able to meet the great demand for labor, in the localities visited. Some most excellent fields for the ministry of the gospel are opening up in central Michigan, the demands of which I hope will not be overlooked nor forgotten by the present conference. I hope another proclamation will be made for "volunteers," that the great campaign may move on to glorious and certain victory. More laborers are needed: will the Church arouse to the importance of the occasion, and the requirements of the great cause. So far as the spiritual status of the work in the mission is concerned, the Saints are generally active and alive to the work. Have baptized three, and confirmed three; administered to the sick, which in instances, was greatly confirmed with blessing attending. Have otherwise ministered in word and ordinances, with spiritual acceptance and satisfaction. We have encountered some causes of struggling, temptations and trials, in trying to move along in the path of duty; but the hand of the Father has led us, and this has been sufficient. I believe my chief desire in life is to assist in moving the cause of Christ along in the world, according "to the measure of the gift" bestowed, and am still willing to do all I can, as divine wisdom may indicate.

Elder E. C. Brand, of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports:

Since last conference I have been laboring in Northern and Southern Nebraska and Western Iowa: in Nebraska at Bates School House, Plattsmouth, Omaha, Blair, Fairfield, Wilber, DeWitt, Dorchester, Mt. Hope, Pleasant Grove and Fremont; and in Western Iowa at Plum Creek, Fremont and Ross School-house; preached 82 times, baptized four, confirmed one, ordained one Elder by direction of conference, married one couple, blessed eight children, traveled 2,286 miles, opened three new places with good prospects. In Northern and Southern Nebraska the work is taking a more permanent hold. There is a strong feeling of inquiry among the people, and an awakening among the Saints; from whom I have met with great kindness, and my wants have been well supplied. The power of God has been made manifest, not only among the Saints, but also outside of the Church.

Elder B. V. Springer, of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports:

Pursuant to my appointment of the last Annual Conference, I have endeavored to magnify my calling in the field assigned me, to the extent of my ability, and am happy in being able to report some good results. I deem it proper to call your attention especially to that portion of country visited by myself last winter, comprising the counties of Howell and Oregon in Missouri, and Fulton county, Arkansas. I am quite sure that a good work can be done there, if proper labor is had. Bro. Heman C. Smith would be welcome there. I have been greatly blessed in my labors, notwithstanding the trials I have had to undergo, for I realize that God is in this work, and that they that are for us are more than they that are against us. I have been blessed temporally. God bless the Saints of the St. Louis District,—my wants have been amply supplied. As to the future, I can only say that I am willing to go wherever you may decide.

Elder Joseph Luff reports from Salt Lake City, Utah, as follows:

By the Fall conference of 1882, I was appointed to the Rocky Mountain Mission, and in about three weeks from the close of its session, I was in Salt Lake City. Since then I have devoted all my time to the ministry, except when my health was too poor to allow it. I have labored under the direction of Bro. Blair. Have visited Malad and Eikhorn, in Idaho; and Provo, Pleasant Grove, American Fork, Lehi, and Union Fort, in Utah; besides attending to the interests of the work in Salt Lake City, a great portion of the time. After my arrival here, I was rather impressed with the idea that if I hoped to accomplish any good I had better make up my mind to stay from two to three years. Expressing that thought, I was advised to bring out my family, which I did. My health has been poorer than at any time in my life, and my bodily suffering greater. At the present time I am feeling rather better. If it is thought expedient by the Church to sustain me in this mission, I am willing to remain. Everywhere I have been throughout the mission, a feeling of regret has been expressed over the removal of Bro. R. J. Anthony from this mission. His return is anxiously looked and hoped for. No opportunity has been afforded the members of this mission of expressing, in conference, their feeling in the matter, on account of the conference east being held at the same date as ours here; but had such opportunity been afforded, a special appeal would have been made for his return. Polygamy never was more boldly or plainly enjoined upon the people here than now. It is the theme of nearly every discourse delivered, and throughout the territory it is being offered as the only alternative to damnation hereafter, and loss of position in the church here. The mission needs more laborers; but whether it will justify the outlay required in sending them or not, I will not predict.

Elder Hans N. Hansen reports from Ephraim City, Utah:

I submit a report of my labors in this field, to which I was appointed by last General Conference. I left home December 5th, 1882, and went immediately to work. I have preached in Salt Lake and Sanpete counties; have met with much opposition, and much darkness to contend with; but yet have felt blessed in my efforts to some extent. I have been much encouraged by the kindness of the few Saints that it has been my privilege to meet with, for indeed they have received and cared for me as a brother, and no where have I found a more warm-hearted people than the Saints in Utah. I have only baptized and confirmed three; although I have scattered seed in plenty, I have reaped but sparingly; but the work is the Lord's, and he must give the increase—hence I am content. On account of my temporal affairs it will be necessary for me to return home this Summer, but trust that whether in Utah or any where else, I may be found by the grace of God in the discharge of my duties.

Elder F. P. Scarcliff, present, reports:

I have labored in the Florida District, baptized two, preached seventy times. More laborers are needed in this part of the mission; I have not been able to respond to many urgent calls. We are constantly reminded by the papers in the South that the Utah Church is making a special effort in the South, and that they are quite successful in making converts. The South is comparatively speaking a great untried field. In many places openings can only be made in the face of great opposition; but still the doors are open in many parts of the mission. The work in the South ought not to be abandoned, but more laborers sent. I think that labor in New Orleans, Mobile and Atlanta, and other cities would be an advantage to the work; not so much for what might be done by making converts, but for the influence it would have throughout the country. Large cities are not very numerous in the South, and their influence is considerable.

Elder R. M. Elvin, present, reports:

After conference last Fall, sickness caused me to lose part of October and November. I have preached sixty times in Iowa at fourteen places; and forty-one times in Nebraska at eleven places. In addition to the above labor, I accepted of a challenge from the Rev. N. M. Allen of the Missionary Baptist Church. We met in January and discussed for six nights, each session was of two hours' duration; the attendance was very large, much above the capacity of the house to accommodate, and the order was excellent; thus there were hundreds who listened to the gospel, that under no other circumstance could have been prevailed upon to give ear to our testimony. The Father sustained me by the granting of the Holy Spirit, giving life and power to the word spoken. I have travelled in the discharge of my duties as a missionary 1,845 miles, much of this travel was accomplished per wagon during the intense cold and mid storm and deep snow. Baptized and confirmed three, united two couples in the bonds of wedlock, and blessed eight children. I have administered to quite a number of sick, and in most cases with an immediate result for good, and in some cases, with greater and more speedily results than could have been expected. Financially I have been closely pressed, but am willing to endure with the Church during its hours of adversity and poverty, believing that if I endure the cross with the Church militant, in patience, with a cheerful and humble heart, I shall be permitted and entitled to a crown of reward and glory in the Church triumphant, when the Master cometh to make up his Jewels. I find joy and peace of mind while engaged in the calling of a messenger of the gospel of salvation, and my hope is to be found worthy to stand firm and true, to have and retain the confidence of the Church and my Heavenly Father.

Elder J. H. Merriam, present, reports:

Being appointed to the Canada Mission under Bro. J. H. Lake, I reported to him at London Conference, on 4th November, since then have put in my entire time battling for the truth, and can say have been blessed in so doing. Have opened up some new places, where good has been done; baptized four and blessed six children, have been assisted by local brethren both in ministry and by temporal means. The work in Canada demands attention to make it successful. Prejudice is giving way, and the work seems to be getting a good footing. The Saints have great confidence in the President of the Mission, and a general desire expressed to have him return.

Elder H. Robinson, present, reports:

I have labored in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia. I have taken orders for books and papers, and collected moneys for the office. Blessed a number of children, administered to the sick with marked results, attended prayer meetings, and instructed the Saints. I have baptized and confirmed thirteen; opened two or three new places,—one in Monroe county, Ohio,—that bids fair for a good work to be done; left many believers anxious to hear the words of life. I am still willing to labor in the vineyard, if found worthy.

Elder John D. Bennett, reports from Cuba, Republic county, Kansas:

My labors have been confined to Washington, Republic, Cloud, and Clay Counties, Kansas. My regular appointments are at five points. I leave home on Saturday and visit two or more points, and return on Monday, making a trip of about fifty miles, to be repeated on the following Saturday. During the winter I have held several serial meetings; my average regular and serial are very nearly three appointments per week. My mission was voluntary and the field my own choice, conference only confirming the choice. Hence "I went this warfare at my own charges, freely giving one-third of my time through the cropping season, and weeks together during the winter months. My Book of Covenants has gone to pieces, and my Book of Mormon "is not;" these, the side-arms of the Christian warriors, and I miss them sorely but am unable to purchase them; I have not seen a Herald for upwards of three months, which with a hymn book would be useful and comforting could I possess them, but poverty forbids.

Should the Twelve and the conference so concur, I shall be pleased to continue my labors in this field, and if the Bishopric have funds on hands to spare to aid me to some extent, it will be thankfully received; if not I will trust the Master, and do all and the very best I can to advance the interest of the work.

Elder A. J. Cato, reports from Bandera, Texas, as follows:

I left Cook's Point in company with Bro. H. C. Smith, went to the Elmwood Branch to hold a two days' meeting. During our stay (nine days) there were six added to the Church. We went from there to Hearne; held a few meetings with Central Texas Branch, baptized one. Went thence to Elkhart, held meetings with the Elkhart Branch; baptized two. From October 24th to the 10th of December I was not able to do any thing. I attended the conference of the Texas Central District, which was held with the Elmwood Branch. Since that time I have been with Bro. Smith till he started to Bastrop county to attend the quarterly conference of the Central Texas District. At Medina and Bandera I continued the work for awhile longer. We labored in the counties of Bell, Burlison, Robertson, Anderson, Bastrop, Blanco, Bexar and Bandera; baptized seven. We can not boast of a great increase since last Conference. I am willing to continue in this mission for the coming year, or go to any other place you may think best.

Elder Gordon E. Deuel, present, reports:

After the Fall Conference I preached some in Nebraska and baptized one in Glenwood, Iowa. On my arrival in Canada I attended the London District Conference and spoke twice; after which I came to Kent and Elgin District, preached some in Blenheim; after that I went to Tilbury. From there I went up into Romney by invitation, assisted Bro. J. H. Merriam. After that preached once in Chatham, on Christmas day, on the street, then returned to Blenheim and made my way into Howard Township, and preached in town hall, Morpeth; I also preached a number of times in Ridgetown and baptized twelve and blessed quite a number of children. I have administered to the sick a number of times with good effect; one instance I might mention, a case of a disease of forty years' standing, and the brother testifies that he was healed when ministered to. I have preached altogether twenty-three discourses, baptized 13. I am at the disposal of your honorable body.

Elder James A. McIntosh, reports from Picton, Ontario, as follows:

I have preached 57 times, baptized 5, confirmed 4, ordained one Priest; administered to eighteen sick persons, with good in nearly all cases; attended five sacrament meetings, blessed two children, traveled 488 miles (50 of this on foot); made three new openings. I might have done more labor than I have performed. I may have erred in some respects, but in none intentionally. If any action is taken to organize the Fifth Quorum of Elders, I have previously sent in my name at request of Herald; you can call it up if necessary, as I desire to do all I can in the Lord's vineyard.

COMMITTEE REPORT.

Report of committee to wait upon the Secretary of State read. On motion the report, with the memorial, was received and adopted, and ordered to be spread upon the minutes, and the committee discharged.

We your committee appointed at the Fall session for 1882, at Lamoni, Iowa, to present certain matters before Hon. F. T. Frelinghuysen, Secretary of State of the United States, beg leave and report as follows:

Elder Zenas H. Gurley, of the committee, visited Washington, the Capital of the United States, in December last, while prosecuting his mission in the east, and consulted with gentlemen representing the State of Iowa, in Congress, and with Senator McDill and Representative W. P. Hepburn, of the Eighth District of Iowa, called upon the Secretary. From what he then learned, he corresponded with the other member of the committee, and by agreement we met at Philadelphia, on February 24th, 1883, and on the 28th, proceeded to the seat of government. We at once made an effort to secure an interview with the Secretary. By the aid of Hon. W. P. Hepburn, who secured the assistance of Senator W. B. Allison, of Iowa, the effort was successful; for on the 5th of March we were introduced to the Hon. Secretary of State, at his office, by Senator Allison, in company with Hon. W. P. Hepburn, Mr. Allison making the statement of the object of our visit. We laid before the Hon. Secretary the accompanying paper, stating the reason for presenting it to him; at the same time presenting copies of the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants with passages referred to marked. The Secretary received the books, thanking us for them and promised that he would give the subject a consideration. Your Committee take pleasure in acknowledging the courtesy and constant kindness of Messrs Allison and Hepburn of Iowa; and the courtesy of Messrs Burrows and Willetts of Michigan and Senator McDill of Iowa. Hon. W. P. Hepburn was steadfast in his kindness and did all he could to aid us in our efforts to secure the object of our visit to Washington. Bishop George A. Blakeslee, at the request of the committee, accompanied them to Philadelphia and thence to Washington, to be present at the interview with the Secretary of the State, on the 5th of March, which object was defeated by the recall of the Bishop to Lamoni, by telegram from that place, in connection with Herald Office affairs.

Your Committee further report that they have lodged with the Bishop, G. A. Blakeslee, a bill of expenses incurred as your committee, and ask that the same be allowed and ordered to be paid.

JOSEPH SMITH, } Com.

COPY OF DOCUMENT.

TO THE HON. F. T. FRELINGHUYSEN,
SECRETARY OF STATE OF THE UNITED STATES, WASHINGTON, D. C.

As a committee appointed by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to which we belong, we beg leave to present the following to you, on behalf of said Church.

1. The Reorganized Church is the proper representative successor of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, organized by Joseph Smith and others, April 6th, 1830, then numbering about thirty souls, and now numbering in the United States and Territories, Great Britain, the Canadas, Australia and the Society Islands about 20,000 members.

2. The members of the Reorganized Church are loyal to the Governments of which they are citizens; and neither teach, nor practice any religious tenet that is subversive of those Governments, or destructive to good citizenship, as witness the position of said Church in defining her relation to governments and laws, viz: "We believe that governments were instituted of God for the benefit of men, and that he holds men accountable for their acts in relation to them, either in making laws or administering them, for the good and safety of society. We believe that all men are bound to sustain and uphold the respective governments in which they reside, while protected in their inherent and inalienable rights by the laws of such governments, and that sedition and rebellion are unbecoming every citizen thus protected, and should be punished accordingly; and that all governments have a right to enact such laws as in their own judgments are best calculated to secure the public interest at the same time, however, holding sacred the freedom of conscience.

We believe that the commission of crime should be punished according to the nature of the offense; that murder, treason, robbery, theft and the breach of the general peace, in all respects should be punished according to their criminality and their tendency to evil among men, by the laws of that government in which the offense is committed, and for the public peace and tranquility all men should step forward and use their ability in bringing offenders against good laws, to punishment.

"We believe that all religious societies, have a right to deal with their members for disorderly conduct according to the rules and regulations of such societies, provided that such dealings be for fellowship and good standing; but we do not believe that any religious society has authority to try men on the right of property or life, to take from them this world's goods, or put them in jeopardy either of life or limb, neither to inflict any physical punishment upon them—they can only excommunicate them from their society and withdraw from their fellowship.

"We believe that men should appeal to the civil law for redress for all wrongs and grievances, where personal abuse is inflicted, or the right of property or character infringed, where such laws exist as will protect the same."

The Church by her President Joseph Smith in 1844 (just prior to his death) gave to the world an epitome of faith and doctrines which were held sacred—and the only principles necessary to salvation, this, if we mistake not was made in answer to the inquiry of Hon. John Wentworth of Chicago and published by him in his paper, the Democrat, and also published by I. Daniel Rupp, in his History of the Religious Denominations in the United States during that year, and is as follows:

"We believe in God the Eternal Father and his Son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost.

"We believe that men will be punished for their own sins and not for Adam's transgression.

"We believe that through the Atonement of Christ all men may be saved by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the gospel.

"We believe that these ordinances are: (1) Faith in God and in the Lord Jesus Christ. (2) Repentance. (3) Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins. (4) Laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. (5) "We believe in the resurrection of the body; that the dead in Christ will rise first, and that the rest of the dead will not live again until the thousand years are expired.

"We believe in the doctrine of Eternal Judgment, which provides that men shall be judged, rewarded or punished, according to the degree of good, or evil, they shall have done.

"We believe that a man must be called of God, and ordained by the laying on of hands of those who are in authority, to entitle him to preach the gospel and administer the ordinances thereof.

"We believe in the same kind of organization that existed in the primitive Church, viz: Apostles, Prophets, Pastors, Teachers, Evangelists, etc.

"We believe that in the Bible is contained the word of God, so far as it is translated correctly. We believe that the canon of Scripture is not full, but that God, by his Spirit, will continue to reveal his word to man, until the end of time.

"We believe in the powers and gifts of the everlasting gospel, viz: the gift of faith, discerning of spirits, prophecy, revelation, healing, visions, tongues and the interpretation of tongues, wisdom, charity, brotherly love, etc.

We believe that marriage is ordained of God; and that the law of God provides for but one companion in wedlock, for either man or woman, except in cases where the contract of marriage is broken by death or transgression.

This your Honor was the faith of the Church up to 1844 A. D. under Joseph Smith, its founder—the same is affirmed by the Reorganized Church of to-day, and we submit that, in justice and by right under the laws of this government and in harmony with itself—it is now and must necessarily ever remain as the only and true faith of said Church, the declaration of polygamic Mormons to the contrary notwithstanding.

3. The tenet of polygamy is not now, and has never been taught by said Reorganized Church, nor was it any part of the faith of the Church organized by Joseph Smith in 1830, as this committee can clearly show; and as was shown before the Judiciary Committee during the Session of last Congress, pending action on the Edmund's Bill. To the contrary the Reorganized Church did in June, 1852, and has since constantly maintained a persistent opposition to the tenet of polygamy and those who have affirmed and practiced it; and has now an organized mission under the ministerial charge of Elder W. W. Blair, an American citizen, in Utah teaching against it.

4. The effort against this delusive doctrine made by the Reorganized Church, has not been confined to Utah; but in all parts of the United States, in England, Wales, the Canadas, Denmark, Switzerland, France, Australia and the Society Islands, the Elders of the Church have been actively engaged in denouncing it, and saying and declaring none other things than those provided for by law as accepted and held sacred by the Church from its inception down to the present time.

"Wherefore my brethren, hear me and hearken to the word of the Lord, for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none, for I, the Lord God, delighteth in the chastity of women, and whoredoms are an abomination before me, saith the Lord of Hosts." Book of Mormon; Jacob 2: 6-9. And again "Wherefore it is lawful that he (man) should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made." Doctrine and Covenants p. 161:—Witness also the marriage contract as used by the Church and based upon the foregoing fundamental law, to wit: "You both mutually agree to be each others companion, husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition; that is, keeping yourself wholly for each other and from all others during your lives." D. & C. p. 330. These we submit to your honor as being wholesome laws and in harmony with the position of the Church in defining her relation to governments and the duties of her members therein. The practice of Utah Mormons is so absolutely the opposite being in violation and abrogation of said laws that to call them "Latter Day Saints," appears at once a misnomer they having abandoned the faith of that Church and by virtue thereof should by right be called polygamists—The correctness of this position will appear at once when we consider the fact that their representative men, Orson Pratt in debate with Dr. Newman at Salt Lake City, and Del. George Q. Cannon before judiciary Committee of House of Representatives last winter—in answer to the question direct made statement that their practice of polygamy and its concomitants rested not upon the Bible or any other book, but upon a certain document which Mr. Cannon was pleased to name a "purported revelation"—and now as that document sets up a "new plan of salvation;" and is in violation and total disregard of the faith, laws, teachings and usages of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints we aver and ask that the claim set up in this paper be allowed it being just to all parties concerned, for, if the Government feels to condone the polygamic practice of Utah Mormons upon the ground of its being their religion, then in that case, as now, we ask and insist that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints be relieved from the reproach and shame sought to be fastened upon their faith by such teaching and practice of polygamy and that the line of demarcation be fully drawn that we no longer be improperly confounded with Mormons of Utah.

The impossibility of any true Latter Day Saint accepting any dogma which would lead him to violate the laws of his country may be seen in the following:

"Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the law of God hath no need to break the laws of the land; wherefore be subject to the powers that be, until He reigns whose right it is to reign, and subdues all enemies under his feet." Doctrine and Covenants p. 177. This we submit renders it impossible for any consistent member of the Church to live inharmoniously with the laws of the Government, and he is especially enjoined to be subject unto these laws until Christ comes—and greater importance may be attached to this when we consider the fact that the Church received this as the voice of God to them in August, 1831.

5. In carrying on the work of propagandizing, both in the United States and abroad the Reorganized Church has been confounded with the Mormon or polygamic Church in Utah, over which Brigham Young did, and John Taylor does now preside, and which has since August, 1852, and does still teach and practice the tenet of plural marriage, or polygamy, in contravention and in defiance of the wholesome laws of the United States; and it has not been until quite recently that the said Reorganized Church has been able to compel the recognition of the difference between it and the Mormons of Utah on this point, and that not until the matter at issue was brought into the courts, in the northern district of Ohio; and before Congress at its last session.

6. This confounding of the Reorganized Church and the Utah Mormons together as one; as being polygamic and disloyal to the United States, in that they both taught and practiced tenets subversive of good citizenship and contrary to the laws, has worked disadvantageously to the progress of the said Reorganized Church; and especially so since the circular letter of William N. Evarts, late Secretary of State, to the Governments of Foreign Nations asking them to discriminate against the emigration of Mormons from those nations to the United States. The effect of this letter of Secretary Evarts referred to, was such that in Germany, Switzerland, France, Denmark, Italy, Norway and the Society Islands, missionaries of the Reorganized Church were regarded with suspicion and were refused liberty to propagandize, as such liberty is given to missionaries of other American churches; and Consuls of the United States will not give the ordinary guarantees of protection to them as citizens of the United States while pursuing their missionary labors. The same disability and suspicion in a modified form attached to missionary labor in England and the Canadas and in New Mexico and the Southern States.

7. While we as a Church do not expect the Government of the United States to enact laws to specially favor, or foster, the religious views of the Reorganized Church, or to instruct the officers of the Government at home or abroad, to give special protection to the missionaries of said Church as religionists; we deem it right and a duty to ask that the Government shall secure to us as loyal citizens of the United States, all the privileges and immunities of such citizens at home, and protection abroad; and to ask that no enactment of Congress, nor instruction of the general officers of the Government shall discriminate against us to our injury as law abiding citizens.

In this case, we represent to you, that the effect of the letter of W. M. Evarts referred to has been to our injury in the manner specified; and we by our committee, ask of your Honor such favorable consideration as shall free us from said disability and that you so instruct the consuls of the United States to the various Governments named in this memorial, and others when necessity requires, that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints as the legal successor to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints organized April 6th, 1830, are not polygamists, and not disloyal; and that said Reorganized Church should be exempted from the disabilities imposed by said letter of instruction to Foreign Powers, from the late Secretary of State, Hon. W. M. Evarts, and that you will in such way as may by you be deemed proper, convey to the proper officials of said foreign governments, the information herein set forth, that we may be freed from the disability and suspicion complained of.

9. The members of the Reorganized Church are scattered in church organizations, of congregations, throughout the United States and Territories; largely in the States of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Michigan and Indiana and for their character for loyalty, etc., as herein set forth, inquiry may be made of the representatives of those States, Hons. James F. Wilson, J. W. McDill, W. P. Hepburn, John A. Kasson and others of Iowa, specially referred to.

10. We suggest to your Honor, that an effective aid may be given to the Legislative and Judiciary departments of the Government in suppressing the evils known to exist in Utah, ostensibly fostered by the dominant church there as a part of their religion, if this distinction between the Reorganized Church which we represent, and the Utah Mormon Church be formally recognized by the Government, and officially noticed by your Honor in the manner asked for by us.

For the prosperity and future success of our country we shall ever pray.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder W. H. Kelley, of the Quorum of Twelve, present, reported:

Since the last Semi-Annual Conference I have been actively engaged in the work assigned me; and I have no discouraging reports to make. The work is still moving slowly but surely along, and there is much to comfort and strengthen the believers and laborers in the faith. I have not been able to visit so many points in the fields assigned to me as I wished, but have done the best I could. Much of my time was spent in the Chicago Mission up to the holidays, when Bro. J. R. Lambert arrived, and has been directly in charge since. The spirit of opposition to constituted authority in Chicago still exists—harbored by a few. This opposition, as before, has been strengthened and encouraged by the action and resolutions of the Northern Illinois District Conference, and sympathy shown by individuals of the district. This opposition has been, so far as I have learned, as radically opposed to Bro. J. R. Lambert as myself, and I am convinced will be towards any one who does not fall in with the views and sentiments of the agitators. While I was opposed to the setting of Chicago off in the first place, and making a special mission of it, I am thoroughly convinced that it would be unwise and work serious injury to the cause to unite it with the Northern Illinois District at the present time. The wisest thing, in my judgment, that can be done touching that mission at present, will be to continue the mission, and also continue Bro. J. R. Lambert in charge.

Since the latter part of February I have been engaged in repairing the Temple and getting it ready for the conference, and arranging at the hotel for the entertainment of the brethren. This work has been done with a great deal of labor and anxiety, but for all of this we shall be amply repaid if the work done shall prove to be satisfactory to your honorable body; and we leave the work and preparations to speak for themselves. Brn. Jesse White; J. Shook, wife and daughter; and Bro. J. Lamereaux and daughters; each and all aided in this work, and deserve the thanks of the Conference.

I consider Ohio to be an important field of labor, and should not be neglected in the appointment of Missionaries. The same interest continues in Michigan and Indiana to become acquainted with the faith. Each year confirms me in the faith of Christ; and I am still in the confident belief that the work will accomplish its purposes in the earth and triumph, whatever may become of men. I am in the field; and may the Lord encourage his people and make strong his cause that truth may spread abroad.

Report objected to by J. S. Patterson. It was moved to receive the report. Spoken to by W. H. Kelley, J. S. Patterson, Z. H. Gurley, F. G. Pitt and Jos. R. Lambert. Previous question moved. Motion put to vote and carried.

Elder E. C. Briggs, of the Quorum of Twelve, present, reports:

I have preached but little since my appointment last conference. My reasons are that my circumstances have been such that I could not go to the field appointed; and only held few meetings in the vicinity of my own regions, since about the middle of February, and now will take the field as deemed wise by the conference, and hope as I once was in my might and faith, alive to the interest of the kingdom of God, and my fellow men.

Elder D. S. Mills, of the High Priests' Quorum, present, reports:

As president of the Southern California District, I herewith submit a brief report of labors, and of the work in said district. As you are doubtless aware, since Bro. Glaud Rodger returned home I have been sustained in the presidency of said district. My labors have been within the counties of Los Angeles and San Bernardino, which are larger than some of the New England states in area. I have been aided by Elder E. J. French who was appointed for that purpose, and also by Elder Hiram Holt, both of whom are active, able, and filled with the Spirit of the work to which their souls are wed. We have as yet had no difficulties to settle, as a good degree of love and union prevails. God has confirmed our labors everywhere with signs following, and the faith of the Saints is increasing; and as a whole are blessed both temporally and spiritually. Outsiders are interested, and the usual attendance at our meetings is large. We have added sixteen feet in length to our house at Newport, and yet it is too small. Our branches are alive and in good working order—a healthy growth is noticeable—and our additions are of the best class of people. Within the past five months I have baptized 16, some of them are able young men, who will shortly aid us in the ministry; there is work enough in that district for twenty active Elders. Old prejudices are yielding, and we have a standing as much respected as any denomination in that district; our influence is extending on all sides, and the work has received an impetus. Since the active labors of the Bishopric have commenced their efforts are endorsed by the Saints. Full confidence is established; and the outlook is better than it has been. I expect to be no tax to the Church in my ministry, but entirely self-sustaining; and in the strength of Israel's God do what I can for his kingdom. My soul is filled with thanksgiving and joy in this conference in the Temple of our God.

Elder J. F. Mintun, of the Quorum of Seventy, makes an additional report from Magnolia, Iowa:

Since April 1st I have preached three times and baptized one, blessed children and administered to sick with immediate relief. I have seen more good accrue from administration of James' prescription (Jas. 5:15) during the last month than ever before. It proves to me that the work of faith is increasing in the earth. When I look back one year and a half ago, when I turned my face westward to fill my mission, I exclaim, How good is the Lord, and how merciful.

Elder W. T. Bozarth, of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports:

I was appointed to labor in Missouri, and have done all that I could in the presentation of the word. Sickness in my family kept me at home over one month. I have preached in the following counties: DeKalb, Davis, Caldwell, Linn, Grundy, Mercer. I have opened a number of new fields, and have found good interest. I have more calls there now than I can fill. With the labors of the past six months I have got the work in a better shape now to do good than I have ever had before. Some are waiting baptism as soon as I can return, and others are interested, and say come and preach more. I do think that the work should be kept up there. I am still willing to labor to the best of my ability.

Elder M. T. Short of the Quorum of Seventy, present, reports:

I have proclaimed the word in Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas and Kansas, since the last general gathering. In the State first named I baptized three ladies. Domestic economy and the sickness and death of my venerable father claimed a very small fraction of my time. The lukewarm churches I visited seemed to revive, and the spirit of inquiry was from fair to good. I held my first and last informal discussion at Ottumwa, Iowa; my opponent in this night after night contest, was U. M. Browder, of the Christian Church. He was learned, arrogant, dogmatic, dishonest, and a pervaricating crank. This investigation continued in the Christian Church, until the flood of irresistible truth deluged and bore away the transparent philosophy of this man, and then they closed the house, although at the onset they talked of fairness. Many miles have I traveled, very many times preached, and kindnesses have cheered the blue-eyed missionary. I remember loving hands in a wholesale manner. I am the only traveling appointee within a hundred miles of the Mississippi above St. Louis, while the States of Minnesota and Wisconsin are entirely destitute. I cry for help, and beg for an associate in travel. The field is great and inviting. Open hands to aid, ears to hear, and hearts to receive and retain are in that broad domain. I seldom have such liberty and power as was enjoyed recently at Buffalo, Iowa, and the effect was telling.

Elder George Hicklin, present, reports:

Since the Fall Conference in 1882, I have labored in the Canada Mission. I have attended district conferences at Zone and London; and have labored at Tilbury, Blenheim, Corinth, Brownsville, Culloden, London, Osborne, Egremont and Ellice; have preached 103 times, and attended one funeral, and baptized six, confirmed seven, ordained one Elder, blessed two children, and have administered to the sick many times with marked results, and attended other ministerial duties. Canada needs more laborers, as there can be many new places opened. I am willing to labor and do all I can for the Kingdom of God, and place myself in the hands of this Conference, and shall try and fill any appointment made for me inasmuch as my wife can be cared for.

Elder Joseph P. Knox, present, reports:

I have been laboring in the Des Moines District the past winter, and have done to the best of my ability all that I could; but feeling the office of my calling urging me forward in the great fight, I offer my service to you for disposal.

Elder Joseph F. Burton, reports from South Rawdon, Nova Scotia:

I have been laboring in Hants county principally; have baptized eleven persons, organized the Upper Newport Branch, ordained two Elders, one Priest, one Teacher. Preached as often as convenient, principally in private houses. The ministers of the so-called Evangelical Churches are using their influence against us in pulpit, press, and privately. Still the knowledge of the truth is steadily increasing, and by the foolishness of preaching, by tracts, fireside conversations by friends and enemies, the word goes from village to village, and many are anxiously enquiring what is this new doctrine. We have many friends for the gospel's sake in this country, and think this a promising field, and that the outlook is good.

Elder C. H. Caton, of Birmingham, England, reports:

In submitting the statistical report of English Mission, I call attention to the marked progress in some parts of the mission during the year 1882. The opening up of the work at Burton-on-Trent promises to become a good field; every week brings fresh tidings of some one requiring baptism. The Lord is working amongst them with great healing power, and in consequence the brethren and sisters are rejoicing and praising his holy name. The organizing of a new branch at Wigan, in Lancashire, is an important step to the Manchester District, and by letter we learn that prospects for preaching were never better than at this time. I believe it is safe to say that throughout this country, so far as I can learn, there never was greater enquiry for truth than at this time. What with "Salvation Armies," "Blue Ribbon Armies," Messrs. Moody and Sankey, and one thing or another, the public mind is become incited to enquire "What is truth?"

Words fail me to describe the willingness, and energy put forth by our "Soldiers of the Cross," to respond to the calls for preaching. With more means, (which means money) we could accomplish much more than we do. However, we are fully satisfied that as our numbers increase, so will our funds. So we toil in hope, and faint not. Bro. Wm. Potts, of Burton-on-Trent, has built a neat little room in connection with some houses, and he very kindly lets the Saints have it, free of charge, for a meeting room. At Stafford, the brethren have secured a good hall, and are holding forth every Sunday. I rejoice in this, because for ten years we have hoped and the Stafford Saints hoped and worked hard for an opening in that town. Now it is accomplished we feel sure good will come of it. The brethren right through the mission, with one or two exceptions, are working heartily for the progress of the work;—as they teach so they endeavor to live.

With regard to sending some one from America to this mission, personally I am of the opinion that there is no pressing necessity for such a course. The affairs of the mission are looked after by Bro. Thomas Taylor to the fullest extent that means will allow. In England, as it seems to be in America, the expenses of branches falls on the few who can and will pay, and thus cripples the general church fund, in consequence. I know Bro. Taylor is ready to give up to any one Conference thinks well to appoint, and if it suits the Church funds better to retain him in charge of the mission, he is willing to continue to do his best. I bear testimony that I have proved him a noble man. However, should you in your greater wisdom, decide to send some one here, I do assure you we shall leave no stone unturned to make them happy and comfortable while with us. And let me here say, that I shall be one to lend a helping hand in so doing, notwithstanding the sentiments above expressed. Of course I know something how matters stand with the people here; and if I did not speak the feelings of my heart, according to knowledge, I should do wrong both to myself and the Church. The facts in the case are of a solid nature—means. If the Bishop has a deep purse, well filled, and can draw hard and fast, then there is plenty of room for one, two or three, to be kept in the field in this country. If not, well then my opinion is that local effort will accomplish all that, under the circumstances, can be.

In the Birmingham Branch we have adopted the weekly offering for the Bishop's fund, and by the grace of God we shall have a nice little sum to hand over at the end of the year. We hope other branches will soon take the same steps.

There is a growing desire right through the mission to see Bro. Joseph Smith pay a visit to this country. We are sure good would come of it, if he were here for a few months only. And as he has been to Utah, California and "Eastward," we should be highly delighted if he were to change his home for a little season and dwell amongst us. Brethren, think of this. Try to see that "Old England" has some sort of a claim to a visit from the President of the Church. If it was in my power I would bear the expense of such a visit, for I am sure it would do us all good.

Elder Josiah Ells, of the Quorum of Twelve, reported verbally, as follows:

I have for the last few years been unable to labor in consequence of ill health; but I am now improving, and hope to do a little for the cause. So far as preaching is concerned, I am superannuated; but I will visit among the brethren and do all the good I can, if they desire me to. Some have sent for me to come and visit them, and say they will not expect me to preach. My faith is as good as it ever was. If ever the truth was precious to me, it is to-day. I rejoice exceedingly in the prospects before you, and that young men are being raised up; and my heart is made glad by reading their reports. I know, if I know anything, that the work is of God. I have heard the voice of God declaring it. May the character of the Master be reflected in our lives, I pray.

Letters were read from Tehopea and Metuora of Papete, Tahiti; and addressed to the President of the Church, showing an active effort on the Society Islands. Petition for the return of G. T. Griffith and Hiram Robinson to the mission in which Lampsville, Ohio, is located, was read. Resolutions of the Massachusetts District Conference, asking that one of the Twelve be sent to labor in that district, and for the appointment of John Gilbert as a traveling missionary there, were read and referred for consideration when missions were considered. Letter from J. Armstrong expressing desire for appointment was read and referred. Petition from Julia V. Neal, John Barker, and thirty others, of Oak Island Texas, for the return of Heman C. Smith to the South-Western Mission was read and referred for consideration under the head of missions. Petition from Central Nebraska District for the appointment of G. S. Hyde to that field was read and referred. One from the Central Texas District for the return of Heman C. Smith was read and referred. One from the Florida District that R. J. Anthony be continued in the South Eastern Mission.

The resignation of W. H. Curwen as a member of the Board of Publication was read and passed subject to call, or regular order.

The following resolution from the Little Sioux District was read and passed subject to call.

Moved as a substitute that the delegates appointed to Annual Conference be requested to lay the subject of holding a general camp-meeting somewhere in the west during the coming Fall before conference and ask that it appoint such a meeting.

Benediction by J. H. Lake.

In the evening a large audience gathered to hear the lecture of Elder W. O. Clark of California. Bro. Clark is an old-time Latter Day Saint, a traveler and lecturer of note in many parts of the world and one who has the good of the human race at heart. In his lecture he entertained the audience by sketches of his travels in Palestine, and deductions from his observations there and in India, Italy, France and California to show the desirableness of giving our life to temperance in all things.

TUESDAY, APRIL 10TH.

At nine a.m. a prayer meeting was held in charge of brethren J. A. Robinson and G. E. Deuel. The power and gifts of the Spirit were richly poured out. Preaching at 10:30 a.m. by Eld. Charles Derry, upon the nature and necessity of a whole service unto the Father.

Afternoon session, 1:30 p.m. The session opened by singing, "Yes! we trust the day is breaking;" prayer was offered by Bro. J. S. Patterson.

Majority and minority reports were received from the Committee on credentials, and read:

MAJORITY REPORT.

We, your committee beg leave to report the following as delegates; and according to the instructions given your committee by your honorable body, find that they were appointed to represent the following districts, and recommend that they be admitted to seats in this body:

	No. Votes.
Eastern Iowa District: Warren Turner.....	10
Utah District: W. W. Blair.....	27

Independence District: A. H. Smith, Rod- erick May.....	16
South Eastern Ohio and Western Virginia District: L. R. Devore.....	9
H. C. BRONSON, C. DERRY, F. G. PITT, E. ROBINSON.

MINORITY REPORT.

As a member of your Committee on Credentials, I beg leave to submit a minority report. I heartily agree with the other members of the committee, in admitting A. H. Smith, F. C. Warnky, R. May and J. C. Foss to seats as delegates from Independence District, and also in granting Warren Turner a seat as delegate from Eastern Iowa District, for the reason that satisfactory evidence was had before the committee that they were duly elected by voice of district conference; but with all good feeling toward my brethren of the committee, I respectfully protest against admitting W. W. Blair as delegate from Utah, and L. R. Devore as delegate from South Eastern Ohio and Western Virginia District, for the reason that they were not appointed by action of conference; but by branches within the limits of organized districts, for which there is no provision in the law. My reasons for objecting are as follows: First, the Conference in adopting our first report agreed that such elections were illegal. Second, these matters were referred to us with instruction to "ascertain by evidence attainable who, if any, are entitled to certificates." Now, as the Conference has before decided such elections improper, I can not report that they are entitled to certificates; and must therefore protest against the majority report in admitting the delegates from Utah, South Eastern Ohio and Western Virginia. Respectfully submitted, HEMAN C. SMITH, of Com.

Moved by Brn. George H. Hilliard and John Chisnell, That the Majority report be adopted. It was spoken to by Brn. E. L. Kelley, Chas. Derry and A. W. Glover, when it was moved by Brn. E. L. Kelley and E. C. Briggs, to substitute the minority for the majority report. Spoken to by Brn. F. G. Pitt, C. Scott, and W. W. Blair. The previous question was moved and the vote ordered. The vote upon the minority report was put, result declared, and a division was called, on which 20 voted for and 44 against. It was declared lost. Brother William H. Kelley then spoke upon the adoption of the majority report. By request a division of the report into subjects was ordered; and upon separate motions adopted as follows: (1) Eastern Iowa District, Warren Turner, 10 votes. (2) Utah District, W. W. Blair, 27 votes. Spoken to by W. W. Blair, E. C. Brand, E. L. Kelley and Z. H. Gurley. Previous question was ordered and the second clause was adopted. (3) Independence District, A. H. Smith and R. May, 16 votes. (4) Southern Ohio and Western Virginia, L. R. Devore, 9 votes; adopted. The report was objected to as a whole, when it was moved to adopt, which carried. Division was called, resulting in 46 for, 18 against.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder James Caffall, of the Twelve, report as follows:

To President and Brethren in Conference, peace:—That peace, even God's peace, may be with you in your sessions will be the fervent prayer of many hearts, who fain would linger within the hallowed walls of Kirtland Temple too; but distance, and other forbidding circumstances, conspire to prevent; hence will wait in hope to hear that you have enjoyed a refreshing time from the presence of the Lord.

Since last report three adults have been added in Russel county, Kansas, and three in Colorado. I have spent most of my time in the latter place, but to find difficulties and hindrances to the progress of the cause. A good share of the population of Colorado is transient or floating, which has been one preventive to retaining an organization in Denver. As many as twenty-two members of the Church have been in Denver; quite a number of which are now preparing to go elsewhere. Additional barriers to those referred to in my last report, have arisen to prevent the erection of a house of worship in Denver, not necessary to detail. Denver is a modern city, with no attractiveness that genius can suggest, or money purchase left out, especially in church building. About thirty orthodox churches are seen, towering heavenward, with all the appendages, such as fairs, bazaars, sacred concerts, etc. From fifteen to twenty dollars being asked for the use of a hall for Sunday has been a preventive to securing a public place for preaching; frequent opportunities for journeys on foot of ten, twelve, fifteen and twenty miles occur, while to reach distant points is expensive; indeed it seems almost impossible to prosecute the mission without a good share of filthy lucre. I have thought it policy to continue efforts until success came, or proof developed of no success to be had. I have abandoned two localities where efforts have been made, north of Denver; and just struck another place, called Sterling, intending at an early day to respond to calls to visit the southern part of the State. Prejudice created by folly committed by our own members has done much towards creating prejudice in the public mind. It is doubtless a gigantic work to cast the devil out from individuals or societies; but to prevent his entrance is the more excellent way. But in this work there has been too great a failure. And his Satanic majesty seeing bars down, which according to his rules of logic has been tantamount to an invitation to enter; and not wishing to be wanting in appreciation of such little favors, when once in, has decided to stay awhile. And under such circumstances he proves the most tantalizing, gossiping, lingering visitor ever known. And it sometimes happens that those so forward in extending invitations, flee at his approach, leaving others to entertain or dispute with his Satanic majesty in that which appears to him a legitimate occupancy. I do not believe that the Church needs any new theological truths; but do believe that greater fervency is needed to honor and put in force the old ones. And I think that the act of conference, of 1879, prohibiting expelled members from entering the Church save by baptism, should be abrogated or efforts made to have it respected, that evidence of consistency, in a willingness to be governed by our own acts may be seen. I assume nothing in saying that a moral excellence among is an absolute necessity; and that assumption or sheer negligence of proscribed duties is not only a preventive to this, but may indulge the unworthy and discriminate against the worthy. That Christ understood himself as well, when instructing his apostles touching offenders, as when telling Nicodemus that he must and how he should be born again. That both are equally imperative. That when, where, or through whom trouble exists, a necessity is involved for a thorough investigation, culminating in a decision; said decision reached by law, and the preponderance of evidence that the innocent may be vindicated, the guilty punished, and the fair fame of the Church maintained, I verily believe. Liberty being defined to some, means to do as you please, or to be under no restraint whatever, which is a preventive to a just discrimination between a proper activity and priestly domination. To hear the plaintiff and encourage the tattler is vastly different. The latter too frequently occurs, or so I think. The Church ought to hear, believe and sustain her representatives, or prove their unworthiness and dismiss them. None should be thought transgressors in Zion until legitimately so declared. Nor should a proper investigation be hindered when a necessity exists therefor. And he that would shrink from duty because its performance might give offence or become officious because of advantage, must be either ignorant or governed by policy instead of principle.

At sundry times I have prepared eight articles illustrative of our faith and in contradistinction to Brighamism, six of which have found publicity in the Denver daily Republican and two in the Greely Tribune. But with those who have read, and seen immorality unrebuked in our own members, such efforts avail but little. I shall nevertheless, while claiming to be a representative of the Church, loudly and boldly proclaim that the discipline of the Church revealed through Joseph Smith, disavows immorality, in any shape or form. I do not understand that mercy calls for smothering up wrong doing or that pure friendship is thereby evidenced. He or she is my friend who points out, or warns me of a wrong—I admit of course there is a proper way to proceed, nor does it mean a watching for iniquity.

The publishing of gospel sermons in the Herald I think a great acquisition, a much needed improvement, it doubtless will be productive of good. I look upon the Herald as a necessity, but am not so sanguine of big results growing out of its change from a semi-monthly to a weekly as some. I trust this is not treason, for if I am disappointed in my expectations I shall feel not aggrieved.

The letter to Mr. Patterson on the Book of Mormon, I think should be published in tract form, and thousands of them sent broadcast through the land. Some policy culminating in supplying the ministry with a more liberal supply of tracts would be good. We have many well written tracts, but sometimes emergency arises requiring something different. The activity and teaching of the Bishopric is truly commendable and inspiring, but with due deference I confess myself unable to fully endorse their position touching surplus, ect., though its possible I may be converted, but require a probationary term of a few weeks at least. This I think the Bishopric wont deny me. Shall the Church fully endorse and decide to be governed thereby I shall offer no objection. I hope some wise decision may be reached that will satisfactorily settle the Chicago Mission question. I would not impugn motives, but think a mistake was made in making Chicago a special mission, especially as it was in the limits of an organized district. Special legislation, resignation, and disorganization are not provided for in the gospel economy; though its possible emergencies may arise creating a necessity therefor, but very rare, I think. A General Conference, in a sense, is all powerful, yet branches and districts are bodies corporate, and as a General Conference looks to them for support, she should in turn legislate to protect and guard their rights, but when by the legislative acts of conference it had been made a special mission, a change should have been sought and legitimately obtained, if obtained at all.

Respectfully and in hope

JAMES CAFFALL.

Elder Wm. B. Smith, of the High Priests Quorum, present, reports:

Since uniting with the Reorganized Church, I have been so isolated from usefulness in the ministry, that I can not report having done much for the advancement of the cause. I have, it is true, preached occasionally to the people in the surrounding country where I live, attending funeral discourses, and in all have held forth the latter day work at all times when and where opportunity offered release from my farm labor. It is needless to say to this conference, brethren I am with you in the faith and spirit of the work, to build up Zion, and to spread the gospel news of salvation abroad. From the early rise of this Church of Christ I have been one of its pioneers, and having passed up through the many trials this Church has suffered, to the present time, it would now be sacrilege and sin to me to lay down my armor and cease to fight on, until the victory in Christ Jesus shall be one of an eternal inheritance in the kingdom of our God. I respectfully submit to this conference that I am at liberty, should they be so impressed by the spirit of the Master, to go into the field to labor, wherever this conference may deem it wisdom that I should go; and it is further my desire and wish to be relieved from the monotony of a life confined on a farm where necessity of hard labor like a canker worm is constantly destroying my ministerial and spiritual food and spiritual life; and that my temporal days and temporal life may be prolonged, I ask this conference to make such action in my case as will give me a life and place that will enable me to add my testimony with the rest of my brethren that are here in conference for the coming year, as the Lord by his good spirit shall direct.

Statement from Elder James Caffall, was read, and by motion ordered spread upon the minutes:

STATEMENT.

To the Conference:—If not incompatible with known rule, I ask publicity for the following: Whereas, at a District Conference held at Netawaka, Kansas, November 25th, 1882, by a committee, the action had in the Fanning Branch in December, 1875, ultimating in severing one Wm. Gurwell from the body, was declared illegal; with which my name was closely connected, or presented as the prime mover; and whereas the force of circumstances precluded the possibility of attending conference to meet the parties concerned, ect. I ask the withholding of judgment by all who know, or have heard but one side of the case, until a proper investigation can be had.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder F. C. Warnky, reported from Independence, Mo.:

My labors in the ministry since last conference are as follows. I have preached in two different school districts, several times in this county; also a few times in Wyandotte, and I have regular appointments in Kansas City; besides the last three months I have acted as President of this Branch. The interest here is fair, yet not enthusiastic; while many are investigating there are but few that believe. I feel firm and my whole heart's desire is to do what I can in the spread of the truth.

Elder Thomas Taylor, of Birmingham, England, reports:

I have much pleasure in stating that the work of the Lord in this country is still moving steadily onward, our efforts to spread the truth have been and still are followed by success. Some are being added by baptism in most places, and we are greatly blessed with the gospel promises; more particularly in cases of healing the sick. We have had some very miraculous cases of healing, one has taken place at Burton-on-Trent, quite recently, which of course helps to strengthen the Saints in the work they have espoused, and prospects on the whole are very encouraging. The majority of the brethren and sisters are working wisely and zealously for the spread of the cause. Prejudice is fast giving way and the people are beginning to understand that we are a distinct and separate body of people from the Utah Mormons. If any one should be appointed by your honorable body to the English Mission, we shall esteem it a great favor if you will notify us of the same, because our Mission Conference is set for about the middle of May, and we would postpone it till he comes.

Appeals were presented as follows: from A. B. Kuykendall, and Thomas Tyler, Elmwood Branch, and Chicago Branch. On motion these were referred to a committee of three for examination and report to this body. D. S. Mills, H. Robinson and John Hawley, were appointed said committee.

Report of the Bishopric and Bishop's Agents were presented, the summary read, and on motion the report was referred to a committee of three, chosen on separate motions, consisting of P. Cadwell, J. T. Kinnaman and C. A. Beebe.

The following was presented by F. G. Pitt and E. C. Brand:

Whereas, The revelation of September, 1882, contemplates the consideration of the expediency of the discontinuation of the Chicago Mission by this conference; therefore be it Resolved, That the consideration of the Chicago Mission be made the special order of the day, on Wednesday, April 11th, at half-past one in the afternoon.

It was spoken to by Z. H. Gurley, A.

H. Smith and E. L. Kelley; put to vote and lost.

On motion, the following statistical reports received, were ordered entered in the minutes: Massachusetts District, and Newport (Nova Scotia) Branch, were read

Report of Chicago Branch read. It was moved to receive and spread upon the minutes. This was spoken to by W. H. Kelley, M. T. Short, J. R. Lambert, E. C. Brand, J. S. Patterson and Z. H. Gurley; when the vote was ordered and the motion prevailed.

A petition from certain members claiming to be the First Chicago Branch, was presented. On motion the petition was read, and it was moved that it be referred to a committee of three to be appointed by the chair; but upon motion it was tabled, subject to call, or to come up in the regular order.

Church Recorder's report was read, and it was moved to refer to a committee of three. A substitute was offered to receive and spread upon the minutes, which prevailed.

Closed by singing, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." Benediction by Pres. Joseph Smith.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 28th April, 1883.

WE read our remarks about the sort of spirit that should prevail at the late conference, a good deal as a man might read any saying, after the occasion had passed, as it reached us at Kirtland the day before the session would adjourn. But the advice had been antedated by performance; for certainly it is fair to presume that men never assembled under so great stress, who held themselves under better control than did those who gathered at Kirtland; once and once only did there seem to be any irritability felt, and then only for a moment; the presiding officer's gavel was not used to enforce order once during the entire session of ten days.

The arrangements for the reception and care of delegates and visitors were excellent and ample, the committee appointed for the purpose having discharged their duty faithfully and well.

The citizens were very kind, and all that they could do they seemed willing to do to entertain and make comfortable those who desired accommodations away from the hotel proper, which had been rented by the committee for the occasion. This hotel was just across the street from the Temple, and was occupied by the committee, with the family of Bro. John Shook, himself, wife and daughter, from Buchanan, Michigan, in charge, and Bro. Charles Butler, of Galien, Michigan, and Bro. J. Lamareaux, of Solon, Ohio, and his two daughters, and some others as assistants. Some of the sisters visiting conference, lent a hand also, when necessary to make things go.

A most excellent temper prevailed during the session, and better sermons, take them as a whole, have not been delivered at any former session.

THERE was a question asked by the brethren of the Seventy last fall, to which answer was requested from the Presidency, with reference to the position occupied by members whose names were dropped from the Quorum, 1, for cause; 2, inactivity; and 3, disability.

1. If the cause assigned is sufficient to warrant further proceedings for membership they should be instituted; but until such proceedings are had they are Elders.

2. If dropped from the list by virtue of a rule of the Quorum requiring report, or labor, or readiness to labor not complied with, or because of inactivity, they are by virtue of their ordination Elders, and under the same rules and regulations as obtain in regard to Elders of the Church.

3. If for disability to travel, the same rule applies as in the case of inactivity; except that disability is a valid excuse for not laboring, while inactivity may, or may not be, as the circumstances of each case must upon an examination disclose.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Bro. R. J. Anthony writes from Coldwater, Florida, April 9th, that he is being well received. Saints walk from four to six miles to hear him, which is "as good as north or western Saints would do. Bro. Anthony believes that the same amount of labor expended there as in the north would result in as good, if not better results in numbers.

Bro. James Moler arranged with the Pastor of the Disciple Church in Putnam county, West Virginia, for a discussion to be held at Bethel, in said county and state, beginning on the 18th of April, the following being the subject for an examination:—"Resolved, That the Disciple Church is the same in faith, organization and practice as the Church organized by Christ and the Apostles."

The King James version of Scriptures

was to be the standard of evidence. Bro. Moler wrote us on the 29th of March; but the letter was not read by us till April 18th, we being absent at Kirtland, Ohio, when it was received at the office.

MANY of the Elders and Saints gathered at Kirtland early in the week that conference convened, and in order to make good use of the time, obtained the use of the Methodist Chapel near by the Temple, which was kindly granted them, and held services; Bro. Heman C. Smith occupying the stand on Wednesday evening, April 4th, Bro. Thomas W. Smith, Thursday evening, and Bro. Gordon E. Deuel on Friday forenoon.

These services will not appear in the Conference minutes, as they were not strictly part of the meeting, although incident thereto.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. William Rosson, of Kenton, Tennessee, writes thus:

If there is any Elder passing through West Tennessee, on the Mobile and Ohio Rail Road, I would be pleased to have them stop and see us. We belong to the Deer Creek, Wayne county, Branch, Illinois, and we moved down here to keep house for my father, and we would be glad to see any of the Saints. Bro. Hyde visited us while he was on his mission in the South. The Lord blesses us here. There are no Saints here, except my wife and myself.

Sr. Harriet Roberts writes under late date:

If any of the Elders come to California, send them out here to San Pasqual; it is two days' drive from Gospel Swamp. There is very little known what the Mormons do believe; I would like to have them hear for themselves.

Bro. Israel L. Rogers, of Sandwich, says of his notice in Herald for a business man at Randalia, among other good things which we copy from a letter of April 7th:

I wish to have some brother—several of our brethren—out here. I am anxious to hear from conference. Hope to hear good news. I thought of you often when you would be in session. I hope the Lord will not forget us entirely. I feel to pray often for God's blessing on the Church. O that my feelings for the Church might be granted; I think that then I would be like Simeon of old.

Bro. Richard Coburn wrote from Blenheim, Ontario, March 27th, as follows:

Bro. Deuel came Wednesday noon from Ridgetown and Bro. Lake Wednesday night. Bro. Lake preached on Thursday night, and Bro. Deuel on Friday night. Bro. Lake preached twice here on Sunday, and Bro. Deuel and I went down to Ridgetown and confirmed eleven that he baptized there about the 16th. He has baptized twelve in Ridgetown altogether."

THE following clipping sent us by Bro. John McKenzic, will be read with interest by those who remember the sermon by Chunder Sen, reproduced in the HERALD some time ago.

Baboo Keshub Chunder Sen has issued a manifesto of his new Gospel, which he requests the journals in Europe, America, India, Australia, and Japan to make known. It is in the form of an epistle general, and is as follows:—

THE NEW DISPENSATION.—New Year's Day, 1st January, 1883.—Keshub Chunder Sen, a servant of God, called to be an apostle of the Church of the New Dispensation, which is in the holy city of Calcutta, the metropolis of Aryavarta. To all the great stations in the world and to the chief religious sects in the East and the West; to the followers of Moses, of Jesus, of Buddha, of Confucius, of Zoroaster, of Mahomet, of Nanac and the various branches of the Hindu Church; to the saints and the sages, the bishops and the elders, the ministers and the missionaries of all these religious bodies, grace be unto you, and peace everlasting. Whereas, Sectarian discord and strife, schisms and enmities, prevail in our Father's family, causing much bitterness and unhappiness, impurity and unrighteousness, and even war, carnage, and bloodshed. Whereas, this setting of brother against brother, and sister against sister in the name of religion has proved a fruitful source of evils, and is itself a sin against God and man: It has pleased the Holy God to send into the world a message of peace and love, of harmony and reconciliation. This New Dispensation hath he in boundless mercy vouchsafed to us in the East, and we have been commanded to bear witness to it among the nations of the earth. Thus saith the Lord—Sectarianism is an abomination unto me, and unbrotherliness I will not tolerate. I desire love and unity, and my children shall be of one heart, even as I am one. At sundry times have I spoken through my prophets, and though many and various my dispensations, there is unity in them. But the followers of these my prophets have quarrelled and fought, and they hate and exclude each other. The unity of Heaven's messages have they denied, and the science that binds and harmonizes them their eyes see not, and their hearts ignore. Hear ye men, there is one music, but many instruments, one body but many limbs, one spirit but diverse gifts, one blood yet many nations, one church yet many churches. Blessed are the peace-makers, who reconcile differences and establish peace, good will, and brotherhood in the name of the Father.

These words hath the Lord our God spoken unto us, and his new Gospel he hath revealed unto us, a Gospel of exceeding joy. The Church Universal hath he already planted in this land, and therein are all prophets and all Scriptures harmonized in beautiful synthesis. And these blessed tidings the loving Father has charged me and my brother apostles to declare unto all the nations of the world, that being of one blood they may also be of one faith and rejoice in one Lord. Thus shall all discord be over, saith the Lord, and peace shall reign on earth. Humbly therefore I exhort you, brethren, to accept this new message of universal love. Hate not, but love ye one another, and be ye one in spirit and in truth, even as the Father is one. All errors and impurities ye shall eschew, in whatever Church or nation they may be found; but ye shall hate no Scripture, no prophet, no church. Renounce all manner of superstition and error, infidelity and scepticism, vice and sensuality, and be ye pure and perfect. Every saint, every prophet, and every martyr ye shall honor and love as a man of God. Gather ye the wisdom of the East and the West, and accept and assimilate the example of the saints of all ages. So that the most fervent devotion, the deepest communion, the most self-denying asceticism, the warmest philanthropy, the strictest justice and veracity, and the highest purity of the best men in the world may be yours. Above all, love one another, and merge all differences in universal brotherhood. Beloved brethren, accept our love and give us yours, and let the East and the West with one heart celebrate the jubilee of the New Dispensation. Let Asia, Europe, Africa, and America, with diverse instruments, praise the New Dispensation, and sing the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

Correspondence.

NEW HARBOR, Maine,

March 28th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Your weekly visits bring to my heart joy and gladness while I read its precious columns of rich instructions from the Saints in different parts of the world. I feel very grateful to my Heavenly Father that I ever heard the gospel of the Son of God, as taught by the Elders of this dispensation; although I hear but little outside of the printed word, since we first heard the truth as brought to light through the agency of the martyred Prophet, in 1842. Bro. J. C. Foss visited us three years ago this winter, and is the only Elder that we have seen since our connection with the true Church. He held several meetings with us and sowed some of the good seed of the kingdom, which I think has taken root, and needs watering; and if some of the traveling Elders who come this way could make it convenient to come here and labor a few days, I think we might have quite a little branch. I hope that it may be the will of my heavenly Father that such will be the case. We live about twelve miles from the depot in Damariscotta, where the Knox and Lincoln trains stop, and our mail stage runs from there, daily, and would bring any one direct to our house where they would find a home as long as they would wish to stay; and a free church to preach in. May God bless all the honest in heart, is the prayer of a sister in the truth.

Yours with much respect,

ELIZA DAVIS POLAND.

EDENVILLE, Iowa,

April 15th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—It is with a feeling of thankfulness that I write you. To-day we have been blessed with one of those "Good" Saints' meetings. Our hearts were made glad and that to feel the presence of the Holy Spirit. The social meetings of the Saints have been held at my house for the last six months, at eleven o'clock of each Sabbath; also prayer meeting for some weeks, on Wednesday evening. I am happy to write that the Saints here are in the main alive to the work. Bro. Isaac N. White, the president of our Branch is away most every Sabbath, presenting the gospel at other places. To-day he is at Cambridge, about twenty miles west; next Sunday, he will be at Des Moines. We have preaching at our school-house every alternate Sabbath; Bro. Alfred White is to preach to us to-night to give us his good bye sermon—as he and family are intending to take cars to-morrow morn for their new home in ("Zion") Independence, Missouri. One by one they near the center of the promised Zion. We regret to lose such a family of Saints as our brother's, but feel that they are going where many others shall soon go, and so bid them God speed. I am doing but little in the way of preaching, as it takes most of my time of the Sabbath to be with the Saints; as I am Priest of Branch. I do a little local labor but it seems a very little, seeing there is so many to be convinced of this work. Brethren Loar and T. R. White have located at this place in the mercantile business. So the Saints here are from the "bench and anvil, from merchant's desk and plow;" each branch being represented by our people.

Yours in the truth,
D. C. WHITE.

BORN.

BRIGGS—At Clinton, Clinton county, Iowa, November 20th, 1882, to Bro. M. O. and Sr. Cynthia Briggs, a son. Blessed January 7th, 1883, by Elders H. C. Bronson and Warren Turner, and named John Warren.

At Reese Creek, Gallatin county, Montana, February 3d, 1883, to Bro. D. R. and sister Jenet Harris, a son, named Alexander Thomas.

MARRIED.

POWELL—GRAFF.—By Elder M. H. Forscutt, on April 15th, at the residence of the bride's mother, near Osborn, Mo.; Bro. Joseph E. Powell, to Miss Christina Graff. High encomiums were passed upon the happy couple, and upon the simple but beautiful ceremony by which they were made one. The guests were numerous from far and near, and worthy of them the sumptuous fare diffusing happiness, imparting cheer,—a veritable wedding feast. Long live and happily the joyous ones who were the occasion of it.

DON'T BE TOO CRITICAL.

WHATEVER you do, never set up for a critic. We don't mean a newspaper one, but in private life, in the domestic circle, in society. It will not do any one any good, and it will do you harm, if your mind being called disagreeable. If you don't like any one's nose, or object to any one's chin, don't put your feelings into words. If any one's manners don't please you, remember your own. People are not all made to suit one taste; recollect that. Take things as you find them, unless you can alter them. Even a dinner; after it is swallowed, can not be made any better. Continual fault-finding, continual criticism of the conduct of this one, and the speech of that one, the dress of the other, and the opinion of t'other, will make home the unhappiest place under the sun. If you are never pleased with any one, no one will ever be pleased with you. And if it is known you are hard to suit, few will take pains to suit you.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 5th May, 1883.

In the minutes of the Pottawattamie, Iowa, district conference for February 24 and 25, will be found preambles and a resolution respecting the Editor of the HERALD; in one of which preambles it is stated that the HERALD refused to publish the notice of the resolution requesting the Editor to resign. The readers of the HERALD will do the Editor a favor, if they will turn to the HERALD for August 1st, 1882, page 241, middle column, near the top, where they will see the identical resolution in as plain print as there is on the page. A copy of the same resolution was sent with the conference minutes with a request to publish. The Editor declined to publish the copy of the resolution, giving two reasons in writing that the matter was a personal one, and that the publication in the district conference minutes was sufficient. Those who read the preambles in the conference minutes of the district for February 24-25, and in the General Conference Minutes where they are again presented, might gather the idea that the resolution referred to as having been passed last May had not appeared in the HERALD, which would not be correct, as any one can verify by reading the August 1st HERALD referred to.

STRONG efforts will be made to build the Chapel at Lamoni, this summer and fall. Every Saint in the Southern Iowa, and Northern Missouri regions, is interested in that house; for it will form a grand rallying point for the next ten years, where the Elders can meet in Conference at least expense; and whence they can "radiate" all over the west—we fully believe now is the time to strike—and if the crops are good this season, this chapel ought to be built.

We are informed by the Cleveland, Ohio, Herald company, that they can furnish the whole set of the Cleveland Herald containing the accounts of the late conference at Kirtland, for fifty cents a set, to any address, post paid. Those of the brethren wanting them please take notice; address Cleveland Herald, Cleveland, Ohio.

The brethren of the Fremont District will please remember that Mr. W. P. Clark, states in a letter to us, dated April 8th, that Norris Hall, in the town of Malvern, Mills county, Iowa, can be procured at low rates to hold preaching services in.

Please read the advertizement of the Mason and Hamlin organ in Herald. Any of the Saints wishing one can be benefited by corresponding with us. The Mason and Hamlin is one of the standard organs in the United States, probably in the world.

Bro. J. H. Lawn writes us from Paicines, California, April 11th, that there is an error in the minutes of the Northern California District Conference, as published lately: the appointment for President and Vice-President should be—for President J. H. Lawn—for Vice-President J. M. Range.

Bro. T. W. Smith was at Lamoni and spoke for the Saints both in the old chapel and the new, March 18th, on his way to Conference. He spoke well and his sermons were well received. Bro. Blair visited Lamoni, on his way west, and spoke twice on Sunday, April 22d, both discourses full of wise thoughtfulness and encouragement to the Saints. Bro. Heman C. Smith, also, stopped en route, and spoke on Wednesday evening, April 25th, and notwithstanding the busy season of seeding, he had a good audience, his discourse was new, even to that much preached to people—the Saints.

Petition from Oak Island, Texas, was for return of H. C. Smith, W. T. Bozarth, A. J. Cato and D. H. Bays, and the petition from Texas Central District was for H. C. Smith, W. T. Bozarth, D. H. Bays, George Montague and A. J. Cato. See the last issue of HERALD, page 268, where only the one name occurs.

Bro. Rudolph Etzenhouser, gets nearly a column of defense in the Dubuque, Iowa, Telegraph, of April 12th. It is certainly very gratifying to know that nearly everywhere where the newspapers publish misconceptions, or misstatements concerning the faith, nowadays, there is some one able and willing to take up the cudgels in its defense. Thanks Bro. Rudolph.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Noah N. Cooke writes from St. Louis, Missouri, April 18th,

We are doing the best we can for the work in this part of the Lord's vineyard; the spiritual condition is improving.

BRO. JOSEPH LUFF gets off the following in the Salt Lake City Daily Tribune, April 8th, 1883:

UNPROFITABLE.

THE BOGUS CHURCH ELDERS AFRAID TO MEET
WHITE MEN IN DEBATE.

The News refers to the fact that some of the elders had been discussing publicly with the "Josephites" lately, and intimates that it was time wasted, or in other words, it was very "unprofitable business to expend ammunition on a dead duck."

A little over two years since, the writer arranged publicly with one of the Mormon missionaries, about fifteen miles from here, to hold a public debate on the subject of polygamy. The agreement was made before about two hundred people, to hold said debate in Salt Lake City, where a hall sufficiently large could be secured. The standards of appeal in the scriptural part, were to be the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants—the standard books of the Church. It was understood and announced that each disputant was to represent the Church to which he belonged.

All was definitely arranged for except the exact date, which was to be decided by the Utah Elder, and communicated to the writer. About a week after, a letter came stating, first, that the debate could not be held in this city; second, that he could not represent his Church, only having a right to defend his personal views of the subject; and third, that if the writer would go fifteen miles away and meet the unauthorized Elder, he would in turn come back to the city, and re-discuss the proposition—if it was desired. (The last statement was made on the Elder's own responsibility).

The letter stated that the Elder had been to see "President" Taylor, from whom he had received the instructions which led to the change. He had learned that it was likely to prove an "unprofitable" enterprise. However, rather than let the matter rest, the writer went to the little town fifteen miles distant, and held the debate there, and at the close, produced the written promise of the Elder to return, and asked its fulfillment. The promise was acknowledged, but its fulfillment refused. The offer was made by us to pay all expenses if the Elder would come to Salt Lake City and debate the question; but even this did not avail. The "improbabilities" of such work was manifest.

About three months ago, the writer attended a meeting at Union Fort, and heard an excellent discourse from Elder Bywater, followed by a harangue on polygamy and kindred topics, from Elder Watson, in which the latter stated that since the debate between Parson Newman and Apostle Pratt, the former had been going down—down—to insignificance, and that no man had ever dared to come, since then, and discuss the question of polygamy from the Scriptures. We immediately tore a leaf from our pocket diary and thereupon wrote an expression of our willingness to meet any elder his church would appoint, at any place, and discuss the question, using only the books recognized as standard works in the original Mormon Church. We gave our address, and asked for a reply soon. This paper was taken to and read by the Elder, who, however, has failed to reply. It was in order for him to defy and challenge the world, but "unprofitable" to respect an acceptance when so readily declared.

The writer, together with a co-laborer, baptized over seventy persons, as the result of less than nine months' labor in Utah, all of whom were members of the Mormon Church—some old time Saints, and Missionaries. For this we were personally threatened by those who were compelled to "grin and bear it." They did (shall we say dare) not come out and debate the vexed question. They (perhaps) concluded that the "duck" was "dead," or that ammunition was scarce, and therefore avoided such an "unprofitable" piece of work.

One of the Josephite Elders has been laboring for the past few weeks, and held a couple of brief debates, in San Pete. He also baptized several on his trip, and herein is the "unprofitableness" demonstrated.

Elders Gurley and Kelley, of the Josephites, went to Washington nearly two years ago, and helped the Government to an understanding of the fact that polygamy was not a part of the Mormon faith proper, but was an excrescence on it, and was a crime instead of a religion, proving their statements by an appeal to the original books, a copy of which they furnished the President and others.

The News heard of the matter, and, knowing that something must be written to quiet the fears of the people, published an article, in which the Church was told to have no fears, as the "duck was dead," or to approach its exact words, "the efforts of these two Josephite elders in Congress would amount to no more than the barking of two diminutive canines." The Edmunds' Bill passed at that session, and then the News informs the Church that the Josephites had been largely the cause of it. So it seems that in their estimation at least, the efforts of the Josephites had amounted to something.

The "duck was not then dead."

Surely this little Josephite institution is an anomaly in the eyes of this people. It has been the means, directly and indirectly, of removing over ten thousand people from under the pressure of Brighamism. It has gone to nearly every place in the United States where Mormonism was in disrepute because of real or supposed wrongs and crimes connected with its career, and has replanted the original faith, and remained till the name of Latter Day Saint has been relieved from the odium so unjustly imposed upon it by the Utah apostates, and has lived and labored till that name has been made honorable almost everywhere except in Utah, and would accomplish the same results here, but for the unmanly and unchristian course adopted by many who figure in the pulpit and the press, with a view to keep the people blind.

The News cries Apostates! Murderers of the Prophet! Dead Duck! Unprofitable! and three-fourths of the Elders parrot this kind of talk over and over throughout the Territory, and thus seek to keep the people in darkness regarding the real mission of the Josephites; but we take the liberty of interpreting this conduct as an effort to bolster with lies and misrepresentation, that which is too dark and loathsome to bear even an ordinary inspection, much less such an one as the standard books of the church in the hands of a Josephite would bring to bear upon it. "They will not because they dare not," was the remark of a Mormon Elder who had met with a refusal to discuss certain doctrines in England many years ago, from some clergymen. Permit us to use that home-spun speech regarding the News and those who peddle its sayings in regard to the Josephites.

We have no desire to abuse or insult men because of their religious opinions, but we take this opportunity of telling the News that its course in the past has proved to the mind of every free man that it has not esteemed the Josephite Institution as a "dead duck," but the "unprofitableness" of debate to the Utah Church, has been the result of the lively and earnest "quack" of that strange bird, which is ruinous to Brighamism. Strange that the News seeks a monopoly of the sport of shooting at the "dead duck," when ammunition is so precious. Isn't it rather unprofitable?

In conclusion we may as well tell the editor of the News that we expect to keep pounding away until the Utah Church yields to the demand we make for public investigation; and in order to afford a good opportunity for it we inform him and all others connected with the institution he represents, that we stand anxiously waiting for them to prove that they have ammunition enough or skill sufficient to even stir the feathers on the "dead duck." Send on your best marksmen, and we will be within easy range. But we do not dispute that it will prove "unprofitable" to you. You are welcome to that opinion, which, we think will meet with general endorsement, outside as well as inside your society.

The spirit of investigation and debate seems to have been transferred to the Josephites, together with the original faith of Mormonism.

Lamoni, a thriving village, but no Shoe maker; no one to take care for our—soles.

The following is from the Chicago Tribune of April 12th, 1883, and is quite creditable:

THE MORMON SCHISM.

The recent gathering at Kirtland, O., of Mormons who do not believe in polygamy and who reject it as a spurious revelation coined by Brigham Young and grafted into the creed of the church by him is an important episode in the history of this remarkable sect. The meeting of the so-called Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints was held upon historic ground, for it was at Kirtland, near by Gen. Garfield's old home, that the first Mormon temple in this country was built. The Mormons first came to Kirtland in 1831, but through certain financial transactions they met with disfavor and were driven out. Thence they went to Missouri. In 1838 they were driven out of that State, and crossed the river into Illinois, where they established their colony at Nauvoo. In 1844 Joseph Smith was killed by a mob. The temple was destroyed, and once more the Mormons sought a refuge at Council Bluffs, but during the ensuing two years the main body of them, under Brigham Young, went to Salt Lake. These were polygamists. It is unquestionable that Brigham Young, who pretended to have received the revelation of polygamy from the Prophet Smith before his death, was the real author of the infamous doctrine, and incorporated it into the creed, for it is not found in any of the writings of the original founder. The Book of Mormon absolutely forbade it.

When Brigham Young succeeded in getting the consent of the United States to settle in Utah he had 16,000 followers blindly devoted to him. There are now 125,000 of them in Utah and about 50,000 in the adjacent Territories, though recent hostile legislation will probably force the latter into Utah again. They have built up a strong and wealthy social community. Their property in 1880 was valued at $25,000,000. It now raises about 2,000,000 bushels of grain and yields nearly $10,000,000 in mineral wealth. It is strong enough to defy all efforts of the United States thus far to break up the odious practice of the community, and has shown itself crafty enough to elude the efforts of the Commissioners in the same direction.

At the time of the general break-up and the exodus of Young and his followers to Utah, many Mormons remained behind. Some were at Nauvoo, at Kirtland, and scattered throughout various States. They formed little settlements and opened churches, and followed the creed of the Mormons as it was originally promulgated. Hence they claim to be the original simon-pure Mormons. They were monogamists, and as bitterly opposed to Brigham Young's spurious doctrine of polygamy as any of the Christian sects. In 1857 [1851.—ED.] representatives from these various detachments came together and organized on the old basis, and this was the beginning of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints. The original Mrs. Joseph Smith joined it in 1860, and her son Joseph is now one of its Presidents. In various parts of the world there are 30,000 members belonging to this church. It has gathered sufficiently in strength and influence to send out missionaries to work among the Utah polygamists, and they report encouraging progress. In Utah less than one-half the Mormons practice polygamy, though the church leaders have declared it to be a sine qua non of the faith. There is a strong faction of monogamists there, who are styled Josephites and are under the ban of the church, but they are working earnestly with the Reorganized Latter Day Saints to wipe out the curse of polygamy.

Among themselves they are quite confident that the results of the gathering at Kirtland will be felt with great force in Utah, and that the monogamists there will be encouraged to make a desperate onslaught upon the "twin relic." Any schism is a hopeful sign, and if it is strong enough it is possible that it may be able to second the efforts of the Government and wipe out the disgrace which Brigham Young inflicted upon the church. This would be a great point gained; but even then, with the church cleaned and reorganized, would it be able to live or could it be tolerated in a Christian community? They propose to return to the old faith as it was before it was stained with the later impurities, but it must be remembered that before Brigham Young had any influence, or before polygamy had been declared, the Mormons were hunted from place to place. No people wanted them or would permit them to remain any length of time in their vicinity. This was nearly half a century ago, however, and in that time great advance has been made in liberal opinions, and stronger and more blasphemous utterances than the Mormons ever made are tolerated. It is possible, therefore, that monogamous Mormons, living peacefully, obeying the laws, and performing all the duties of citizens, would be treated as civilly as some other sects which exist in various parts of the country and are allowed the largest degree of license, though they have nothing in common with a Christian community. A Reorganized Mormon who believes in a revelation and behaves himself ought to have as good a chance as an Ingersollite, for instance, who doesn't believe in a revelation or anything else.

THERE is some hope of the faith cure becoming a bone of division in the churches yet. Let it come.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Baptist ministers, at the Grand Pacific, Chicago, this morning, in the absence of the President, Rev. Duncan McGregor called the conference to order, and Rev. William M. Lawrence was chosen Chairman pro tem. After prayer was offered by Rev. Samuel Baker, Jr., Rev. Mr. West, of the State Street, Rockford, Church was introduced.

Rev. J. Spencer Kennard read a very able review of Rev. Dr. Gordon's book, "The Ministry of Healing." He declared his belief in the divine power of miraculous healing. There were many instances of cure when they were entirely beyond the power of human help. If there were any one instance of superhuman healing, it was miracle enough to establish the fact that God visited the world with miraculous healing. Arguments which might assail the fact of miracles of to-day could as well be brought against there having been any work of miracles in the day of Jesus Christ. In the discussion which followed, Rev. E. O. Taylor had always, in a general view, supposed miracles, in the present day, to be out of order, yet he had found great difficulty in interpreting many matters. He thought there should be a distinction made between miracles in the day of Christ and the present day, but knew no reason why they should not believe that through a prayer of faith God would come to answer them.

Rev. Mr. Raymond thought if they had more faith they would see more miracles.

Rev. Duncan McGregor had read Dr. Gordon's book, and while he was open to conviction, like another reputed Scotchman, "he could not be convinced" by the line of argument presented.

He thought it would be a most unfortunate thing for the Baptist Church if they should follow that line of thought. In the olden time miraculous gifts had been resorted to as a condescension to Jewish weakness, and to stimulate their faith, and were merely to serve a purpose at the time being. He should deplore exceedingly the Baptist Church resorting to a mere material answer to prayer, a sort of bread-and-butter theory, as it were. He, from human instinct, prayed to God, but to dictate to Him was to follow heathenism, and to think of it was fanaticism.

Rev. Mr. Eldson, of Englewood, wished the theory presented were true, but unless he could be brought face to face with an individual case of miraculous healing he could not have faith in it. He thought a great deal of prayer was in the nature of a challenge to God, and no power would ever come in such a way.

Rev. Mr. Burhoe said he was surprised at the obstinate perverseness of some of his brethren. He gravely doubted the right of any one to declare there was no power in miraculous healing to-day. He was inclined to believe, if God saw fit to come and heal any one, He would do so. He believed in the prayer of faith, and was not prepared to say the age of miracles had passed away.—Chicago Journal, April 16th, 1883.

Summary of News.

April 14th.—Joseph Brady was convicted yesterday in Dublin of the murder of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke, and was sentenced to be hanged May 14th. This is the second conviction for the same crime.

Gen. Basslay, the leader of the Haytien revolutionary forces, is reported to have captured four towns, and to be in the full tide of coming victory.

A proposed prohibitory amendment was defeated in the Lower House of the Michigan Legislature yesterday.

There are now confined in the Cook County Jail, Illinois, no less than twenty-three persons who are awaiting trial for or have been convicted of homicide. In all cases but two or three the crime for which these persons are held in custody is murder pure and simple. This is a large number to have in jail at one time, and some day the people of Chicago will wake up to that fact.

21st.—In the case of Timothy Kelly, the third of the alleged Phenix Park assassins tried, the jury disagreed yesterday and were discharged. Kelly will be placed on trial again Monday.

22d.—One of the severest snow storms of the season struck Wyoming and Nebraska, yesterday, prostrating telegraph wires in all directions, and blockading railway cuts.

During a storm in the mountains yesterday a passenger train was blown from the track near Como, Colo., and the baggage car and three coaches were turned over. Several of the train crew and two or three passengers were slightly injured. The wind attained a velocity of sixty miles an hour, and the snow being badly drifted.

A tornado passed over Harrison county, Iowa, on Saturday evening, doing considerable damage to several farms.

23d.—An explosion, not attended with serious consequences, occurred yesterday at the Government small-arms manufactory at Enfield, near London. A quantity of burning tow and some pieces of a tin-box were found among the debris, and it is alleged that two mysterious men were seen around the building just before the explosion.

24th.—A cyclone of the most destructive character swept through South-western Mississippi on Sunday afternoon and laid the four towns of Beauregard, Wesson, Tiltman, and Lawrence in ruins. Thence it struck north and east through Georgia and wrought great devastation at Albany, Eastman, and other towns and villages. The number of persons killed is estimated at over a hundred, and the wounded at more than double that. No catastrophe of like character has been recorded in many years, and it is feared that the worst is not yet known.

25th.—Later details of Sunday's horror, caused by the cyclone which swept through Mississippi and Georgia, are more and more appalling. The cyclone is the fourth within ten years, and followed the exact route of others. Its width was from a quarter to half a mile. The very earth is torn and furrowed in its track. The storm pursued a beaten course, entering the Continent from the Gulf. It struck Wesson, only a few miles from the track of three preceding tornadoes, and only a few miles from Monticello, which was demolished last year. Wesson it left a heap of ruins. Proceeding obliquely through Alabama it struck Georgia below Columbus. At Barnesville the wind roared, the lightning seemed to flash almost incessantly, and one of the heaviest rains ever known there fell for about one hour, accompanied with large hail. The wind in its fury did not blow more than fifteen minutes, but the rain continued to pour in torrents until daylight. In Floyd hailstones fell four inches in diameter. In Elbert hailstones fell, some of which weighed a pound. At Beauregard thirty-one were killed and fifty-nine badly wounded. At Wesson twenty-two were killed and one hundred and fifty hurt, twenty-five mortally. In Georgetown and Rockport thirty-four were killed and fourteen wounded. At Aberdeen, Hohenlinden, and Pine Bluff fifty-five were killed and twenty-five wounded. Through Central Georgia twenty-three were killed and sixty wounded seriously. Whole congregations were killed or wounded. Several families of ten were killed, and many families of five.

26th.—At the trial of Timothy Kelley, one of the men accused of complicity in the Phenix Park murders, the jury have disagreed for the second time. How many more attempts are to be made to send Kelley to the gallows is not known, but his case has been temporarily postponed, and another alleged participant in the murders, one Fagan, has been placed on trial.

There was an explosion yesterday in a mine at Bessieres, France. Nine bodies were recovered.

At roll-call after the explosion 127 miners failed to answer. Many deaths are feared.

Gov. Lowrey estimates the death roll caused by the cyclone, will reach 200 in Mississippi alone, and between 300 and 400 wounded.

FALL RIVER, Massachusetts,
March 26th, 1883.

Brother Joseph.—Enclosed you will find slips from Boston Herald. The one headed "A Mormon Reunion" was in the issue of March 15th. My letter was published March 24th. I have just got home after an absence of six weeks. I visited Bristol, R. I., and spent a day with Bro. Robert Farnsworth and family. It was not found practicable just at the present to hold meetings. Bro. Farnsworth is a worthy brother, recently he obtained a pension from the government. His locks are silvered with age, his faith is firm in the truth of the gospel as revealed in the latter days; he desires that the work shall be opened in Bristol, I trust his desires ere long may be granted. From there went to Providence and met for the first time Bro. M. H. Bond, from Michigan. I preached twice on the Sunday, and was pleased with the prospects of the work there. One pleasant feature of the work there is the Sunday School. I found they had the best school in some respects, of any branch in the district. I was informed they had one hundred and ten scholars on their books besides officers and teachers; Bro. Andrew J. Perry, superintendent, and Sr. Metta Barbary their efficient secretary.

On Monday I joined Bro. Bond at Scituate; preached there twice and believe good was done. Wednesday evening together with Brn. Yerrington and Thompson we endeavored to hold forth the word of life at Hebronville; several there are convinced of the truth, and have signified their intention to obey. Thursday attended Saints' meeting in Providence. On Saturday, February 17th, I bid the Providence brethren good by and went to Plainville; Sunday I had the pleasure of preaching twice in their new chapel. O how different it seemed to preach in a chapel, instead as formerly in a private house. The chapel is small, yet large enough for present needs, comfortably seated with settees, very neatly and tastefully fitted up and is a credit to the Church. I spoke there again Monday night. Tuesday quite a number of the Saints went with a team and sleigh from Plainville to Hebronville, where we met Bro. Yerrington, and we again endeavored to point out to them the way of life; being assisted by Brn. Coombs, Holmes, Green, and Yerrington, together with a number of sisters and friends; we had a glorious meeting. The small hours of the morning were reached before we got back to Plainville, a distance of some nine miles.

Wednesday night in company with Brn. Coombs and Green we went to Chapel Corners, some five miles. The thermometer was away down, making it a cold ride. A request had previously, as I understood, been granted us to have the use of the Universalist Church, and word sent us that it should be lighted and warmed for the occasion. We were surprised when we arrived to find the church closed, not a soul around, and everything looked as cold as a barn. The reason of this we did not stop to learn but tried to make the best of the disappointment and returned to Plainville. On Thursday night I spoke again in the chapel; had excellent liberty. There is a nice little band of Saints there, and I rejoiced greatly at the interest and sympathy manifested. We spent an evening socially with them, and on Saturday bid them good bye and a God bless you, and went to Douglass, preached that evening to the Saints, in the chapel. Sunday spoke twice, also Monday and Tuesday evenings. Wednesday in company with Brn. G. A. Palmer and D. Keith, we rode a distance of ten miles to Tarkiln, and I preached in the White School House to a good congregation; good attention was paid. This is a new place, none of our Elders ever preached there before; after speaking I gave way for any one who chose to speak, and Bro. Keith and Bro. and Sr. Palmer arose and bore a faithful testimony to the work. The people seemed anxious to hear more, and we trust the opportunity may be granted them. Returned next day to Douglass, and I preached again in the chapel. On Friday night I met with them in their business meeting, and a good feeling seemed to prevail. I felt encouraged at the prospects of the work in Douglass. While there we did not have so many out to hear, I suppose the condition of the roads prevented, for it appeared to be a sea of ice, making travel, especially at night, very dangerous. There are good souls there, everything was done for my comfort. We were loth to part, yet I felt that duty called me away, so on Saturday I left them and went to Hyde Park en route for Boston; spent a pleasant evening with our friends in the gospel, Bro. A. W. Glover and wife. Sunday went to Boston, preached twice. On Monday I went and heard Joseph Cook deliver one of his Monday lectures. After he got through I made my way to where he was, and asked him if he intended to lecture on the subject of Mormonism, as I had seen it in print he was. He replied not this course. I asked him if he knew there was a distinction between the two churches, the Reorganized Church and the Utah Church. He replied he did; that one in Utah was presided over by John Taylor, the Reorganization by Joseph Smith. I asked him that when he did lecture upon the subject of Mormonism if he would do us justice by stating that the Reorganization utterly repudiated the doctrine of polygamy, and were a separate class of people from those under Taylor in Utah. He replied that he already had done so, and that his statement was in print. I thanked him and hoped he would continue to do so. He wished me success, shook hands and we parted.

In answer to a telegram I went to Cohasset, where we had the promise of the Congregational Church, but we were doomed to another disappointment. The use of the church had been granted, but the one who should have given notice, for some reason failed to do so, and the people were so scattered that it was thought best to postpone it and wait until their fairs that were then on foot should be over; then we have the promise of the church for several nights. Spent the evening with Sr. Mary S. Gammons and others in conversation and singing the songs of Zion. Tuesday returned to Boston; met Bro. Bond who had come from Providence. Wednesday met with the Saints in their meeting. Friday, in company with Bro. Bond, went to Cohasset, where we preached at the house of Sister Gammons. There are a number of people here who are styled Russellites. In the days of the Martyrs, as I understand it, there was a man by the name of Giles Russell, who was an Elder in the Church. Some time after the martyrdom he came to this place, and was kindly received by Bro. and Sr. Gammons, who previously had been baptized by John E. Page, but had become dissatisfied with some of the doctrines that afterwards began to be taught. Mr. Russell subsequently began to receive revelations, so I am told; the result was that he was accepted as a prophet. He, together with the labors of Mr. and Mrs. Gammons, baptized a number of those who believed. Both Mr. Russell and Mr. Gammons have now passed away, and "the mantle" does not seem to have fallen upon any one now living, and their work seems to be at a stand still. I find some of them, especially Sister Gammons, constant readers of the Herald, Advocate, and Hope, and they seem to manifest considerable interest in the prosperity of the Reorganization, and have stated their willingness to help in every way possible to bring its doctrines before the people. They appear to be an honest people; Sister Gammons is a very intelligent woman, and bore a strong testimony to the truth of the latter day work, but there appears to be a barrier in the way of their uniting with us that I do not as yet fully understand. What the import of Mr. Russell's revelations are I do not know. I trust they may be able ere long to come into fellowship with us. Our duty lies in doing what we now know, and not keep waiting for something great to turn up. To me the word as contained in "the books" reveals a grand central truth, around which all other things simply revolve. That truth is the glorious gospel of Christ, "the perfect law of liberty," "the law of the Lord that converts the soul," "the faith once delivered to the saints," "the way of life," "plan of salvation," "the celestial law," an obedience to which gives us the promise of a full salvation in the celestial kingdom. And that plan, that law, that gospel, has been restored, the Church has been established for the last time; "the God of heaven (has) set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, and it shall stand forever." Therefore anything that presents itself, claiming to supercede, or go beyond that, I look upon with suspicion; remember what Paul says to the Galatians, first chapter, about any other gospel being preached even by an angel from heaven. We were treated kindly as we have ever been when we have visited them.

On Saturday we left them and went to Plymouth; found the Saints all well. On Sunday morning Bro. M. H. Bond preached in the chapel, and did well. Afternoon met in a Saints' meeting, at the close of which one offered himself for baptism; we repaired to the water, and I baptized Bro. David S. Kelley. In the evening I preached, and was followed by Bro. Bond; congregation large. Monday we visited places of interest in the ancient town of Plymouth, among them the monument on Monument Hill, erected to the memory of our forefathers who came over on the Mayflower, who endured privations to establish civil and religious liberty. We visited Burial Hill," where lie the remains of many who were among the early settlers of New England. In this place is the spot where the "fort was built." Standing upon this hill we have a commanding view of the town and adjoining country; looking eastward is the broad Atlantic, while away off, just skirting the horizon, on a clear day can be seen the dim outlines of Cape Cod, stretching out as it does like a great arm into the sea. We visited the world renowned Plymouth Rock. In Pilgrim Hall we viewed the relics of the Pilgrims, all of which was very interesting. Bro. Bond left us in the afternoon for Brockton. I stayed and preached in the evening. It having been given out that I would speak on the difference that exists between us as a people, and the Utah Mormons, a good audience was in attendance, and I had excellent liberty in drawing the line; believe good was accomplished in removing prejudice from the minds of the people. The branch here is in a fair way to grow; there is quite a number interested and seemed only to be waiting a favorable opportunity to obey. The Lord has blessed some there in a remarkable manner, of which I may write hereafter. Tuesday night met with them in their business meeting, at which it was deemed wisdom to ordain more officers in the branch, so by vote two were set apart to be ordained. We ordained Bro. Frederic Sears a Teacher, and Bro. Henry Hammerly a Deacon. Wednesday night I preached at the house of Mr. Leander Newhall; Thursday night at the chapel; Friday night we had Saints' meeting and many good testimonies were given to the work.

On Saturday came parting again, so with a shake of the hand and a wish for each other's success and future happiness, I left them, Bro. David Kelley coming down to the train to be with us till the last. Truly "There is a love in Christ that is stronger than the bands of death." Went to Brockton. Sunday I preached twice at the Saints' Hall, evening congregation the best I have seen there. I spoke again Monday evening at the house of Bro. W. Chase. I trust the seed sown, will by the blessing of God find a lodgment in the hearts of some that heard.

I returned home Tuesday evening. While away I received no little kindness at the hands of the Saints and many friends. The protecting care of our heavenly Father has been over me. I take this method to thank all those whose sympathy and prayers have been with and for me. I trust that God will bless latter day Israel where'er they are.

In the gospel of Christ,

JOHN GILBERT.

LAMONI, Iowa.

Bro. Joseph:—I left home December 25th, to visit relations in Canada. Having been away from there eleven years, I found a great many changes when returning to the old home. It made me feel somewhat awkward not to know my own near relations. It was there I obeyed the gospel in 1871, and it made us so many enemies and caused such an uproar among the people I thought I would say nothing about our peculiar faith while there this time; but when questioned, "Do you still believe Mormonism?" our answer was "Yes." And we gave reasons why. We were glad to hear the conclusion of some good people there not of our faith; said they: "We could not make anything else of you. If you did not believe Mormonism you would be an Infidel."

While visiting my wife's relations near Wilkesport they requested me to hold some meetings. I saw I had to come to the front and show my colors, or be like that fish that goes backwards. Mr. Demitt opened his house and we held three meetings. Quite an interest was taken in our position. We held four meetings at Mr. Kimball's; and four at Con. Moore's at his request. He fitted up his bar-room to hold the meetings in. It seemed strange to hold meetings where they used to sell and drink whisky; but it is written "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." I tried to show the way that leads to life, and was blessed in so doing. Believe that there are some there who are not far from the kingdom. The best of attention was had. There is a great change in the people in that part; a spirit of liberty and enquiry now exist. I was treated kindly by all, and enjoyed myself well.

Yours for truth,

JOHN P. JOHNSTON.

STEWARTSVILLE, Missouri,

April 14th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Will you please answer through your columns the following question: Is it not erroneous and contrary to Scripture to suppose that a person dying in infancy will receive as great a reward as the one who has lived to an old age, and withstood trials and temptations, and passed through much tribulation, that John speaks of. Please answer and oblige many.

Your sister in the gospel,

MRS. ELLEN COVINGTON.

Answer:—No. They may receive as good a glory, but it will not be in the nature of a reward. Tribulation and experience may give farther advancement in knowledge and power perhaps, but not better salvation or greater glory.

ALBION, Idaho,

March 4th, 1883.

Joseph Smith:—I think the Herald goes abroad with a greater impetus as a weekly and seems filled with especially good things. It seemed good before, and now doubly so. It seems so good to know that amid all the rumble, and jumble of theories advanced for man's present and future good, by the great minds of the age that there are some good and able men willing to contend day by day for the faith once delivered to the Saints; when so many appear to hold if a man thinks according to the Savior's teachings that he is a bond man, and dare not assert his own thoughts much less his manhood. It would seem evident to even the least intelligent that such a view is incorrect. I believe we need a sure rule to think by, as well as to work by, and when we diverge from that lawful rule, either willfully or ignorantly, we stand upon dangerous ground; we can not arrive at right conclusions. Bro. Joseph you struck the key note, to my mind, in your sermon published in late number of the Herald.

If ever we as individuals can stand up in the clear light of heaven's truth, what can check the spread of truth. "What manner of men we should be, in all manner of life and conversation."

As ever your brother and well wisher.

BEVIER, Macon Co., Mo.,

Bro. Joseph:—I think to leave here for South Wales about the first of May. I will do my best to preach the gospel in that part. I left there twenty three years ago, went to Utah in 1861. I learn that the Utah Elders are very busy in Wales. I believe I shall do good in that place. Bro. Joseph, I want your prayers; I want you to publish a few words in the Herald, and bid me "God speed" on my trip.

I am for truth, your brother,

THOMAS D. REES.

FREEMAN, Gage Co., Neb.,

April 1st, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I still feel to rejoice in the latter day work. I was as a sheep that had gone astray. But the good Shepherd left the ninety and nine that safely lay in the shelter of the fold, and says

"I will go, though the road be rough and steep,
I shall go till I find my sheep."

I thank God I am safely back into the fold. We very often go astray, but bless the name of the Lord we have the privilege of coming to Christ in prayer, and he is ever willing to receive us again. E. H. Gurley's sermon in the last week's issue did me much good. It would do me much more good if I could hear brother R. M. Elvin or some one of the dear brothers of the latter day work. Although denied the privilege of facing the preacher and hearing his voice, I still thank God for the benefit that I derive from the sermons contained in the Herald each week.

Ever praying for success to the cause,

I remain your brother in Christ,

P. M. ROUSH.

PICTON, Ont., April 9th, 1883.

We have not many in number here, but we enjoy the Spirit at our meetings. This branch is off by itself, but God is with us. Bro. Meddowcroft has gone to Sarnia, expecting to start business there; his family is here yet. Bro. McIntosh has gone west also; Sister McIntosh fell and broke her leg, and he had to go to see her; and I am teacher of the branch, and have the branch to lead. With God's help I hope to do my duty.

Yours in gospel bonds,

GEORGE W. PARKES.

BANDERA, Texas, April 6th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—I once more take up my pen, to inform you, that I am still holding aloft the banner of Christ, yet I fear that I fail sometimes, to hold it to the breeze as I ought. Many times I think I am doing all I can, but in after days I look back and see where I might have done better; then I try to learn wisdom and to improve upon the talent that the "Nobleman" hath given me, I don't want it to be buried. Nor do I want the sickle which has been given me to use in the harvest of souls to become rusty from want of use. No! I want it to be clean and bright, and continue to brighten, until, like the "Crossed Swords" that were seen (in vision) guarding the House of God, it may guard this temple of mine against every evil that may seek an entrance.

When I sent the last communication to you, I was at Cook's Point, in Burleson county; thence we went to Paige in Bastrop county; from there to Lano and Blango counties, and the suffering

I endured because of the trip to the place last named, no one but myself and God knows but little about. January 21st, I went from Mr. Lamoni Wight's to Bro. James Storms' and a short time after I got there, I pulled off my boots and was not able to put one of them on again until the 28th, and then it was with considerable pain; yet I did not fail to attend all of our meetings. But as Bro. Smith has given you an account of the trip I will not worry you with a reiteration of the same thing. By the way, I think Bro. S. was a little uncharitable, when he would take advantage of a brother's sufferings to have his fun, or to laugh to "his heart's content;" yet, I find in Bro. S. a brother indeed. I will here state that I toiled and suffered both from hunger and fatigue, while a soldier in the Confederate Army; for instance, when we left the famous battlefield of Gettysburg, I could have been tracked to Staunton, Va., by the blood that issued from my bare feet at every step, yet the suffering was not as severe as what I endured on this trip. I was then striving to establish a cause that I (vainly) thought to be right. Now I am laboring for a cause that I know to be right. Hence, I don't feel like murmuring; for a loving Savior suffered death for me, and I certainly ought to be willing to endure anything for his cause.

Bro. H. C. having some work to do at Perdinales which would detain him two or three weeks, we thought best that I should visit Oak Island and Bandera, and see if something could be done at these two places. Accordingly, I parted with Bro. S. on the 5th of February, and on the 6th, Bro. Storm took his team and conveyed me two miles beyond the Colorado River; a distance of fourteen miles: I then had fourteen miles more to travel on foot; and about forty pounds of baggage to carry. I turned eight miles of the distance behind me that afternoon; something I could not have done, had not the ground been covered with snow, and a stiff norther blowing, northern people would call it a blizzard: when it was about an hour until sunset I stopped at the house of a Mr. Cook and rested until morning; and when I asked what my bill was: the answer was: "Nothing, only to call again when passing this way." I had only six miles to travel that morning, which I accomplished in about three hours and a half, but when I got through I could scarcely get up when I would sit down. I was then at Burnett, the western terminus of the Austin and North-Western R. R., and at one p. m., I boarded the train for Austin. They only have one passenger train on that road, and it is a mixed train; yes, badly mixed; and it has run off the track so often, that their coaches are all disabled, so they can't use them. Hence the car that I went down on was divided into baggage, express, and smoking rooms. In this smoking room I took a seat, (it was all the passenger car they had), and nearly every man that came in, came with a cigar or pipe in his mouth. And there I was compelled to sit and inhale the smoke of the pernicious weed, which, mingled with the disgusting fumes of the whisky bottle made it the most disagreeable ride I ever experienced. The distance is sixty miles, and it took something over four hours to travel it; and I am almost persuaded that if some of our brethren who love the "weed" so well that they "can't quit it," had been there, or in a place like it, they would never offer another burnt offering to B—I. I arrived at Austin in due time to get the train for Paige, on the Houston and Texas Central R. R., and was soon bouncing away to Paige, where I arrived at 11 p. m., having traveled forty-eight miles in five hours. The next morning I walked out to Bro. Roe's three and a half miles; and at night a few came together, and we endeavored to break the bread of life to the hungry.

On the morning of the 10th of February, at 2:47 a. m., we left Paige and arrived at San Antonio, about 12. We went to the hotel, where we expected to meet some one from Oak Island; but no one had come. We stopped at the house of Bro. W. G. North until Monday morning, when we took passage on the Pleasanton Hack, thinking it went near the place we wanted to go; but when we got to the nearest point we found we had about seven miles to walk; but we set out in good earnest, and in about five hours we found ourselves at Mr. J. P. Neals. My wife was about to give up; and I was not much better. Mr. Neal had been to meet us, but we missed him. Having been refused the use of any of the public houses in that vicinity, Mr. Neal kindly offered us the use of his house, where we preached to a small audience on Thursday evening. On Friday evening, Bro. H. C. came walking up,—a circumstance that we by no means objected to, though it was unexpected. We remained in that vicinity holding meetings as circumstances would permit, until the night of the 22d. On the morning of the 23d, we (Bro. S., my wife, and myself), took passage in Bro. Barber's wagon for Bandera, a distance of about fifty miles; we camped at night at the mountain, Mormon Valley, a place where Lyman Wight and his company stopped for a time. Next morning we spent about two hours looking over the old camp; then resumed our journey, and arrived at Bandera at one p. m., and were soon introduced to "Auntie Hay," and made welcome under her roof.

Sunday at 11 a. m., we held meeting in the Court-house; there were but few in attendance, hence we postponed our evening appointment to attend the Methodist's meeting, and try to get the use of the church to preach in; and as usual, we met with a flat "You can't have it;" by the Rev. Walker. We held two more meetings in the Court-house, and then went to Medina City, about fourteen miles further west, and up the Medina river. We had then traveled about sixty-five miles up the river, (which would, according to the two thirds rule, make about one hundred and fifty miles to follow the stream), and the water has increased in volume all the way up. Our meetings were hindered some at Medina City by the preliminary trial of two murderers. We held four meetings there, and the time came for Bro. S. to leave in order to be at the quarterly conference of the Central Texas District. I accompanied him to Bandera, and on the morning of the 7th of February we parted. I was loth to part with him, but the good of the cause of Christ is paramount to all others. I returned to Medina and held three meetings, and on the 13th returned to Bandera. Preached three times in the Court house. On the 19th I was taken out on the Verde by Bro. W. H. Davenport, preached seven times out there, returned to Bandera, and on Saturday met with the Saints for a business meeting; but a misunderstanding had got out with some, in regard to the day, and there was not many present; but all who were present seemed to enjoy themselves. I think it is about time something was being done, if there is not, I fear the Lord will "spew them out of his mouth," for being neither cold nor hot.

We ask the prayers of all God's people, in behalf of this mission.

Bro. Joseph:—My health is better, thank the Lord, through the prayers of the Saints; and I hope soon to be able to take the field again, and the Lord so willing I hope to keep it until I am called hence. I have given three lectures here, subject "Evolution versus the Bible," and preached once in Sacramento City, and had good liberty.

The light seems to be breaking through the long night we have had on the Pacific coast; and from the signs that appear I look for better times in spiritual work. The Saints are waking up, and the Elders that are trying to work are being blessed with power from on high in their preaching. This is the testimony of all I have talked with.

Yours in gospel bonds,

A. HAWS.

GEORGIANA, Ala., April 15th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—It has been upwards of five years since I obeyed the gospel. We received the Herald and it always favors us with good news, which adds to our good feeling. I am one amongst our fold that realize I have not lived for as much as I ought to and could have done, though I am disposed and have a desire to gain more spiritual truth, and a desire for a blessing if worthy. We have some preaching at Pleasant Hill Branch, but not very regularly. We hear of Bro. Anthony at Milton, Florida, and we are expecting his arrival soon, if nothing happens. We are of the impression that he was on the previous invoice of able Elders. I have observed that the Herald has made its way into dark places and has given an understanding of the truth to persons I least expected.

I request the prayers of the Saints,

I. A. BALDWIN.

MAMMOTH SPRINGS,

Fulton Co., Ark.,

Bro. B. V. Springer paid us a welcome visit; we were happy to see him, and were sorry to see him take his departure for other fields; we hope he will soon return, or some other efficient Elder. Bro. Springer is the first one to visit these parts. I was happy to see him baptize and confirm my wife and three others of my family; son and two daughters. We hope ere long to have a branch organized. There are others now waiting for his return to be baptized; may God speed the time.

Whatever tends to make the Christian content with a mere routine of religious duties is harmful to the true "higher life." We can not have it too deeply impressed on our minds and hearts that the religion of Christ is after all a character, not a creed; an every-day life, not a Sabbath routine; a vital, growing principle in the soul, not a fitful zeal for the growth of a church or denomination.

THE HOLY GHOST.

"THE Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." "Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak; and he will show you things to come."

Jesus made this promise to his disciples, just before his ascension. This shows us that after Jesus ceased to be with them, they were to be continually guided by revelation. But even the Holy Ghost was not to teach without the Father revealed it; for Jesus said, "He shall not speak of himself, but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak."

It is strange that preachers of the orthodox world, dare to lead the people without its being revealed to them; for Jesus and the Holy Ghost did not presume to do such a thing.

The reason why the Holy Ghost is called the Comforter, is because of the office which he was to perform; for he was to comfort the disciples revealing to them still further knowledge of the things of God. This same Comforter is promised to all who will obey the gospel; for Acts 2:38 reads: "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost," which promise says Peter, "is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." Consequently all persons in all ages, who will accept the plan of salvation as taught by Christ and his apostles, will receive this Comforter, which will guide them into all truth.

The Holy Ghost was also to be a revelator to the church; for John, speaking to church generally, says: "Ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things." Therefore, we see that the revelations of the Holy Ghost are indispensably necessary, to comfort and teach the church. Hence, in the Church of Christ, there is a unity of faith, such as is found in no other body or sect. In the Church of Christ there can be no difference of opinion, in regard to baptism, or any ordinance; for the Holy Ghost will teach the church all things pertaining to doctrine or ordinances, things present, or things to come. The various schisms which have torn asunder modern orthodoxy, among which we will mention eternal punishment, election and infant damnation, can have no existence in the Church of Christ. For there all matters of importance are decided by revelation. With such a revelator, knowledge abounds in every heart. With such a guide, there is no danger of being deceived. They have a test by which they can try all things, prove all things, judge all things, and overcome all things not ordained of God. When the church falls into sin, and neglects her duties, revelation is necessary to reprove and chasten her. We have many examples of the people of God being reprovved by revelation for suffering contentions to get among them, and destroy the harmony of the church. (Rev. 2d and 3d chapters).

We read in 1 Cor. 1:10, the following: "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and there be no divisions among you, but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment." Are the orthodox churches of the present day following this rule? No, far from it; for they teach doctrines entirely in opposition to each other, and yet they all declare they are guided by the Holy Spirit. This Holy Spirit must be a very uncertain guide, if he teaches one church to sprinkle infants, another to immerse, and only adults; and another to either immerse, pour, or sprinkle; and still another that it is not necessary to be baptized. If all these churches which teach and practice doctrines so very different, are in possession of the Holy Spirit, then that Spirit is divided against itself, and must fall; but the Holy Spirit is the spirit of truth, and always teaches the same doctrine; and when we see such differences of opinion in the orthodox world, we may know certainly that the "Spirit Guide" is not there, and the only church that enjoys it is the one that believes in present revelation.

Some argue that the divisions in the churches is owing to judgments and opinions of men; this I do not deny; but it only shows that men tried to govern the churches instead of the Holy Ghost; hence the strife and disorder in the Christian world. The Savior prayed for the most perfect union to be in his church. "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word, that they all may be one; as thou, Father art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in me; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."—John 16:20. This plainly shows us that the church must have no more differences in sentiment, than there is between the Father and the Son; and there is no possible way to bring this about, except through present revelation. This, and this alone, can accomplish the work, and perfect the Saints. All other substitutes will be inadequate to the task; and herein is the religion of heaven distinguished from all other religions. Again, Jesus says: "No man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him."—Matt. 11:27. Here is the most positive testimony, that no man can know God without he obtains a revelation, and that no one can have eternal life without such revealed knowledge. Think of this, all you enemies of present revelation, and tremble; for the only way to know God and obtain eternal life, is by revelation.

"Revelation's holy light,
Is the light, is the light,
And all else is dark as night,
Save this light of God.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MINUTES.

[CONCLUDED.]

CHURCH RECORDER'S REPORT.

Bro. H. A. Stebbins reports from Lamoni, Iowa:

I present to the Annual Conference of April, 1883, the following list of branches by States with the net membership of each as said branches stand upon the General Church Record of names, according to the latest reports received by me from branch and district officers, up to March 22d, 1883. In several instances I know that reports have not been made to the Church Recorder showing the gains and losses, hence the General Church Record does not agree with the mention made in the minutes of district conferences or in letters to the Herald. Yet on the whole there has been pretty fair order observed in reporting, and in the majority of instances replies have been received to inquiries written by me.

I have not received any corrections to the Australian records; although I understand that there have been great changes made that should be reported and entered on the Church Record, but no one in Australia knowing the facts seems willing to take it in hand. Neither from England nor Wales have I received any reports, with the exception of the regular and always correct report of the Llanelly Branch by the orderly and efficient clerk thereof. All other regions have been reported about as usual.

The following three hundred and seventy-eight branches are supposed to be in an organized condition, and the majority are such in fact, but a few of them are without organization and without meetings. The present membership of each on the Church Record is as follows:

 These three hundred and seventy-eight branches aggregate fourteen thousand and forty-three (14,043) members.
 In regard to the following branches I understand that they are all in a disorganized condition, the majority of them having been so for several years, either by the official pronouncement of district conferences or by a general going to pieces, so far as official organization is concerned, and by the cessation of meetings and the absence of other evidences of spiritual life as parts of the body of Christ, the Church. However the number of names given with each is as they stand upon the General Church Record, even though in many cases these members are "scattered abroad" and are unknown to the general Church, as to their faith or their dwelling places.
 The record of these fragments shows as follows:

 These seventy-seven fragments aggregate one thousand and eighteen members, (1018) making a total of present names upon the Church Record in the whole four hundred and fifty-five organized and disorganized branches of fifteen thousand and sixty-one members

 The net gain in branches the past year by baptism, by letter, and by vote has been six hundred and eighty-four, and by the organization of eighteen new branches two hundred and eighty-five and by the counting of four fragments of branches twenty-eight, making a gain of nine hundred and ninety-seven total. The loss by Letter of Removal, by death and by expulsion has been five hundred and seventy-seven, which taken from the gain of nine hundred and ninety-seven leaves the net gain of four hundred and twenty as previously stated. In ninety-nine branches there has been a net gain over the losses, but one hundred and forty-two branches have fallen off and had net losses greater than the gains.
 It should be understood that nine hundred and ninety-seven gain does not represent all who have joined the branches by baptism, letter or vote, but only the net gain by branches, that is the increase in each above decrease during the past year, where such net increase has occurred over losses of all kinds, as is the case with the ninety-nine branches. Likewise the five hundred and seven-seventy loss only represents the net losses over gains in those branches which have suffered losses that aggregate more than their gains have been, as is the case with the one hundred and forty-two branches.
 The yearly gain since 1876, as reported annually, has been as follows:

1877—1878.....net 775	1881—1882.....net 946
1878—1879.....net 1116	1882—1883.....net 420
1879—1880.....net 1235

 Also the following table that I have prepared shows the standing by States in the 1882 report and in what States there has been a net gain over losses and in what ones there has been a net loss over gains, with the present standing of each State upon the General Church Record:

 This shows, as said before, a net gain over all losses of four hundred and twenty members, so far as I have received reports or been able to obtain corrections through correspondence.
 I would also report that I have done but little on

Index work because I wished to labor towards the perfection of the Records as much as possible before this session of the General Conference

In the evening the Temple was filled with an appreciative audience, to hear the lecture of President Joseph Smith. The exercises of the hour began with a good selection of music by the choir, and prayer was offered by Elder John H. Lake.

Elder Smith then entered upon the theme of his lecture, and discussed "Temperance" in its relations to religious and political society, dwelling upon the uses of alcoholic spirits; the legal idea of restraint of our personal liberties; and the idea of discouraging the manufacture of liquors by the efforts to decrease the demands. The lecture was full, complete, and able, and was warmly received by the audience, by frequent interruptions of applause.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11TH.

Prayer meeting was in charge of Brn. B. V. Springer and Wm. T. Bozarth. Preaching in the forenoon by Elder Columbus Scott, assisted by Elder J. F. McDowell. The subject was that of the grand character and mission of Christ the Lord.

The chairman of committee on revising and enlarging Rules on Representation, stated that the committee had consulted and agreed upon a report, but in the hurry of leaving home, overlooked the report, had telegraphed for it, but should it not arrive in time, he would be under the necessity of asking for further time.

The assembly took into consideration the resignation of W. H. Curwen, as a member of the Board of Publication:

I hereby tender my resignation as a member of the Board of Publication, on account of my inability to attend the meetings of the Board, since its removal from Plano, Illinois, my business requiring my attention elsewhere at that season of the year.

At the request of Pres. Smith, Elder Alex. H. Smith was called to the chair, by vote of the assembly.

Moved by John Gilbert and Geo. S. Yerrington, to receive the resignation. Spoken to by W. H. Kelley, J. S. Patterson, Z. H. Gurley, John Chisnall and John Gilbert. A substitute offered by E. L. Curwen be released from acting further as a member of the Board, and that a committee be appointed to settle with him and other members of the Board of Publication, as to the accounts of the office. This was spoken to by William H. and E. L. Kelley, when it was moved by E. L. Kelley and John Chisnall, That the whole matter be referred to a committee of three to be appointed by the body, to consider and report what is the proper action to be taken. Motion to refer, prevailed.

Moved, That Wm. H. Kelley, be one of that committee; a substitute, That Alvin Patterson, C. A. Beebe and John Gilbert, be that committee; and they were directed to report to this body.

Bro. Alex. H. Smith vacated the chair, and President Joseph Smith resumed charge.

REPORT ON APPEALS.

We, your committee, submit the following report. In the case of Mr. Gillett vs. Constable, We report that after careful examination, we fail to find any evidence of action of Church authorities in the case, and have nothing from which an appeal can be founded.

We your committee recommend that in the matter of the Elmwood Branch vs. the Texas Central District, which we have examined and on which S. P. Sherrill claims the right of being heard; that it be referred to a Court of Elders from this conference. In the matter of the case of Philander Hinks vs. the Chicago Branch, after having carefully examined the written evidence in the case, as submitted to us, we are led to sustain the action of the court, and of the branch, from whose decision the appeal is taken, and find no just or legal grounds for appeal.

Whereas, In consequence of the Church dispensing with the Semi-Annual Conference, the Saints in the Western States feel there is a great void, and also one great means of spiritual strength taken from them; and believing as we do, that not only can the Saints be strengthened in their faith and hope, but also that the people of the world will be induced to attend such meetings, as shall be hereinafter named, and that thereby much good may accrue to the cause of God in general. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That this General Conference does authorize the holding of yearly meetings in the Fall of each succeeding year, at such time and place, or times and places, as shall be deemed wisdom in the mind of the conference, such meetings to be called Annual Reunion Meetings of Latter Day Saints. Be it further

Resolved, That this privilege be extended to all sections of the Church wherever it may be desired; and further, that a committee be appointed, as may be deemed proper, to select such time and place, or times and places, for the holding of such meetings as shall be most convenient for the section or sections where such meeting or meetings may be held.

Your committee on revising and enlarging Rules of Representation, appointed at your Fall session for 1882, beg leave and report that they have consulted and agreed upon the following; which though not perfect, will, we trust, form a sufficient basis for your action.

Sec. 1. That the general officers of the Church, known as the Presidency, the Twelve, the High Council, the Seventy, and the Bishopric (proper), are ex-officio members of Conference, and entitled to a voice and vote as representatives of the spiritual authorities of the Church at large.

Sec. 2. That all High Priests and Elders are entitled to voice and vote in General Conference, when present.

Sec. 3. Letter of Secretary of State read:

Department of State,

WASHINGTON, April 4th, 1883.

MESSRS. JOSEPH SMITH AND Z. H. GURLEY, Committee, &c., Lamoni, Iowa

GENTLEMEN:—I have to acknowledge your communication of the 22d of February last, in regard to a circular letter issued by the Honorable W. M. Evarts when Secretary of State, to the diplomatic agents of this country abroad, requesting Foreign Governments to discriminate against the emigration of Mormon converts to the United States, and you ask that a distinction be made between the polygamous Mormons of Utah and the non-polygamous Mormons of the reformed church to which you belong.

In reply I have to state that Mr. Evarts' circular was directed against polygamy, and intended to warn those persons abroad who emigrated to this country for the purpose of joining polygamous communities, that they would thereby expose themselves to the operation of the penal laws of the United States.

It is contrary to the practice of this Government to give by circular, as is proposed, any sanction or endorsement of a specific form of belief. It is for the agents of any religion to make known its character. Law abiding immigrants are secure against interference.

I am, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

FREDK. T. FRELINGHUYSEN.

Report of Committee on Chicago Branch. To the Northern Illinois District of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in conference assembled, greeting: We your committee appointed to draft preamble and resolutions, regarding the action of General Conference in deciding that the Chicago Branch was not connected with the Northern Illinois District beg leave to suggest, that the following preamble and resolution be presented to the Church at their next April Conference:

Whereas, we learn from the report of our delegate to General Conference and also by minutes of General Conference as published in Saints' Herald, that General Conference has declared that the Chicago Branch is not connected with the Northern Illinois District, notwithstanding the fact that the said Chicago Branch was formerly turned over to the Northern Illinois district; at a conference in Streator, in the fall of 1880, by M. H. Forscutt, the missionary then in charge at Chicago, and has reported at every district conference since that time.

And, Whereas, by the action of General Conference in this matter the Chicago Branch has been severed from the Northern Illinois District, without the district having any voice in the matter, Therefore,

Resolved: That we the Northern Illinois District in conference assembled herewith enter our protest against this action of General Conference, and respectfully ask the Church at their next Spring Annual Conference, to reconsider their action in this matter, and correct the mistake which we believe they have made.

Our instruction to present the above is found in the following resolution, passed at a District Conference held at Sandwich, DeKalb county, Illinois, February 17th and 18th, 1883.

Beebe was appointed delegate to the Spring Conference, and the $17.15 that the District Treasurer reported in hand was voted to go towards defraying the expenses of sending him, and a collection was taken up, amounting to $7.45, for the same purpose; the branches in the district were requested to take up collections for the same purpose, and report to Andrew Hall.

Bro. Thomas Chatburn, who was requested by last conference to visit Reno, in Cass county, reported that he had not yet been there, desired to be continued so as to give a "satisfactory report;" he was therefore continued.

Whereas, at the conference of this district held last May, a resolution was adopted asking Bro. Joseph Smith to resign the Editorship of the Herald, that he might devote more of his time to preaching.

And whereas, our delegates to the Fall Conference were instructed not to present the same in consequence of the Herald having refused to publish the notice of the resolution at the request of the district.

And whereas, it has since been brought to the notice of the Church in various ways; therefore, be it

Resolved, That our delegate to General Conference be and is hereby instructed to present to the conference the resolution passed last May, asking the Editor of the Herald to resign, and if possible obtain a favorable vote thereon. And he is especially instructed to oppose its being referred to the Board of Publication, as that is the body which has hired him.

Resolved, that the General Conference be requested to provide an efficient minister to labor at Council Bluffs.

Bro. P. Anderson was continued in his mission. Bro. Frederick Hansen was sustained as clerk. Bro. Andrew Hall was sustained as Bishop's Agent. Bro. C. A. Beebe was elected president for the next three months.

Conference adjourned to meet at Crescent City, Iowa, on the last Saturday of May, 1883, at half-past ten o'clock.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE received on May 2d, from the Art Gallery of Mr. J. F. Ryder, at number 239 Superior street, Cleveland, Ohio, several excellent photographic views of the Temple at Kirtland, Ohio. There are three large and some six or seven small, including a view of the interior of the building. One of the large views is of the town and Temple, from the Willoughby road north-west of town, and is a very excellent landscape. Mr. Ryder will, no doubt, take pleasure in supplying copies to any of the Saints who may desire souvenirs of the Temple.

Bro. A. J. Hinkle writes from Green Ridge, Manitoba, that most of the Saints there were trying to sell out for the purpose of moving west to where they could get nearer the body of the Church. They had a very severe Winter there, snow still on the ground at date of April 13th.

No cheap Voice of Warning on hand at present. Will have them by and by.

Card from W. W. Blair announces that he left Omaha, Nebraska, for Salt Lake on the 3d. He delivered two discourses at Omaha, and says of the branch, "Wise management will reunite and build up the Church here."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. E. L. Kelley, still at Kirtland looking after the continued repairs on the Temple, wrote from Cleveland, where he had been for material and other business connected with the affair, a breezy letter, dated April 28th, from which we extract:

The Temple is now on a level at least, as the work of raising the warped floors, &c., was a success. The repairs are now going on slowly, under supervision of Bro. White, the extreme bad weather hindering somewhat. The people of Kirtland and surrounding country I find still retain the kindest sentiment to the Saints who met in Kirtland to worship. Your temperance lecture did great good with the public generally; may you never have less to complain of in due appreciation than by those meeting you and hearing you during the Conference. So the waste places are well builded.

Letter from Bro. Zenas H. Gurley announces the death of their youngest, a babe, but little over a month old. Among other items of news which his letter contains, the following is pleasant to read:

Had the pleasure last Friday, of baptizing Bro. and Sr. Beach, whom you have met; also Bro. Jonathan Bissell, Sr. Church's brother. Held confirmation at Bro. Morse's house, not far from Grand River, and had a time of rejoicing; Brn. Reese, Morse, Robinson and Campbell assisting in confirmation.

Brother Thomas Gregory writes from Wall's End, New South Wales, (Australia), as follows:

We are holding two meetings a week. We have a Sunday School in the morning, a meeting at two o'clock, and at half-past six; we are striving to live as near as we can to our Master. We can see by reading the Heralds that there is a great number of Elders; we would like, if it was possible, that an Elder could be sent from America; we are like sheep without a shepherd.

Bro. John S. Patterson writes from Sandwich, Illinois, April 25th:

Health improving; chores round home nearly completed; shall leave for my field of labor next week, taking in all available points on my trip. Am still for the Lord's side of the battle.

Bro. Jonas W. Chatburn wrote from Harlan, Iowa, April 23d:

Last week the Congregational Association met in Harlan; something after the manner of our conferences; one of the discourses given by a gentleman from Shenandoah, Iowa, was "Mormonism in Iowa." He made the distinction between the Reorganized Church and the Utah faction, complete and emphatic. His discourse has done us good in this one particular, getting before the citizens of Harlan our true position on this vexed question of polygamy.

Bro. John T. Phillips wrote from Lucas, Iowa, April 29:

I baptized one lady to-day, Sister Phillips, the wife of Bro. Isaac Phillips. I believe that this branch is in a pretty good standing at present. We have a good president, Bro. George Spencer. I am determined to battle for the victory by the help of God.

THE following is from Little Rock, a place about five miles north of Plano, Ill., and was published in the Sandwich, Illinois, Argus, of recent date:

During 1882 there were received at the Hatch Cheese Factory 949,448 pounds milk, which was made into 2,278 cheese, weighing 99,751 lbs., and sold for $12,387.03, netting the patrons for January $1.27 per cheese; February $1.16; March $1.13; April $1.18; May $1.02; June $.87; July $.86; August $.93; September $1.13; October $1.24; November $1.33; December $1.35. A. J. Hunter makes a good show on milk. He made all the butter he used, raised eight calves and carried the balance of the milk from eight cows to the factory ten months, being 41,086 lbs. milk, and gets $439.06, making an average of $54.88 per cow. A. G. Houghtaylen, one cow, eight months, 6,398 lbs. milk, $66.68. Levi Zeller, five cows, twelve months, 38,952 lbs. milk, $456.33, average $91.26.

The material prosperity of the Saints means the material prosperity of Zion. The cause of truth has suffered much from the lack of temporal prosperity which has attended many in the Church. We are here with bodies which need food and raiment, and homes in which to dwell; and the way in which these wants can be best provided for, should be diligently sought for by us. It is high time that we should learn that thanking God because we are poor, when the means by which we might at least possess a competence are at hand, is no acceptable devotion, and not calculated to ennoble our minds, or give prestige to the cause we profess to love. Many charges have been made against the Latter Day Saints, some of them true, and many of them not true; but the charge of unwisely neglecting their temporal prosperity, is alas to be placed in the former category. This is strange too, when we remember the fact that the salvation believed by us is of a decidedly material character; and, it seems, can only be accounted for by a consideration of the fact that some have received the gospel because they believed its promises of future glory and rest upon the earth, pandered to their indolent and shiftless dispositions; and gave them hope of enjoying, when the earth shall be redeemed and given to the Saints, that which they are here and now precluded from enjoying, because of their own unwillingness to work for it. There is a peculiarity about this class which may with propriety be pointed out, not as an argument, but as a striking example of human weakness and inconsistency, which is this: While professedly thanking God that they are poor, they envy the rich; while regarding poverty as a blessing, they are angry with those who possess its opposite, riches—a curse. That is, they occupy the position in which one would stand, should he be possessed of heaven which he regarded as a blessing, and yet envy those who had to endure the punishments of hell, whoever those may be. In addition to this they seem to be perfectly willing to accept the good things of earth, provided always that they do not have to work for them.

The possession by us of the power to accomplish a good, argues clearly that it is our duty to God and man, to so use that power as to accomplish that good; and that it is not the design of God, to accomplish the work specified in any other way than by our use of this power. Infinite wisdom does not provide a stream with two fountains, when one is amply sufficient to supply all its demands. That there are numerous ways by which Providence accomplishes its designs, can not be denied; but human agency will be found, upon close investigation, to exercise an almost astonishing influence in the accomplishment of God's purposes.

We conclude then that while the Saints are endowed with powers of body and mind, which abundantly fit them for the accumulation of that amount of temporal means necessary for the rebuilding of Zion, that they need not look for these means to be placed in their hands by any miraculous manifestation of God's power; and that the successful and rapid completion of the redemption of Zion, depends largely upon their efforts in this direction. The question then is, How shall this temporal prosperity be secured; how can our ways be ordered so as to conduce most largely to the building of substantial homes in desirable locations, to the erection of suitable houses of worship, and the maintenance of educational institutions, where the promising soil of youthful minds may be sown with good seed, from which a golden harvest may be reaped in the near future, to gladden the hearts of all who love the triumph of truth, and glorify the name of the God whose Zion we are seeking to rebuild. Lamoni is a growing village; new buildings are springing up in many parts of the town.

In looking from the windows of the editorial room, we are gratified with the sights of improvements being made upon almost every hand. But one sad thought intrudes, as is the case in most seasons of human joy, as we look around and can discover no suitable place in which our children may be educated. What is the reason for this? Is it a lack of means, a lack of energy, or a lack of desire for the end that might be attained by a better state of things? Wherever the lack is found to be, it should be supplied promptly and effectually.

The quotation we give from Little Rock correspondence, as published in the Sandwich Argus, gives a broad hint to the farmers of Decatur county and other similar places, as to one of the ways in which they may increase their power for good, by a speedy and great addition to their temporal means. This country, for grazing purposes, is fully equal to that from which these almost astonishing figures came; and although we are farther from a central market town, yet not so much farther as to materially lessen the profits. The fact that land is much cheaper here, will more than counterbalance whatever difference there might be in the cost of transportation, so that we are safe in saying, that the business of manufacturing cheese, could be carried on as profitably in this county, as in Kendall county, Ills.

The following is from the Western Chronicle, published at Kentville, Nova Scotia, for April 11th, sent us by Bro. Joseph F. Burton, a pointer to what was on foot in that province, Bro. Holmes Davison is a young soldier, but will make a good fight, if the lists are entered.

Dear Sir.—As a subscriber to your paper, I request the privilege of stating through its columns, that recently the Rev. D. Freeman did cause to be published in the Christian Messenger, an article entitled "Mormonism" which was in many respects untrue, consequently misrepresenting the faith, doctrines, and practices of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints to a great extent. Also that the Christian Messenger refused to publish a reply, and in consideration of which, either Joseph F. Burton, or Holmes J. Davison, will be happy to meet Mr. Freeman before the public with equal privileges, to show to him and the public that the above statements are correct; and also to debate the following questions: 1st. Are the faith, doctrines, practices and offices of the above named church in accordance with the bible? We affirm, he deny. The same with regard to the Baptist Church. He affirms, we deny. King James's translation being the standard of evidence.

Yours respectfully,
HOLMES J. DAVISON.

We clip the following from an Ohio paper the Dayton Daily Herald, of the 12th of April:

The reappearance of the Mormons at Kirtland in Northern Ohio, recalls many reminiscences of their attempt to effect a permanent lodgment there fifty years ago. They were driven away by persecution. By persecution they have flourished and taken root permanently in the religious fabric of this country. The Kirtland band did not practice polygamy. Those who propose to reorganize the church there claim to be opposed to the polygamous feature of the church in Utah. People in and around Kirtland seem to be willing to tolerate the returning Mormons. No reasonable objection can be urged against them remaining there, while they conform to the laws of the State and usages of the people in matrimonial affairs. Peace and brotherly love among the men of various creeds in that quarter all depends upon future "visions" of the Mormon leaders. If some old prophet should happen to get a command "from above" to introduce polygamy in Kirtland, the people of that neighborhood, and of the whole State, would soon work themselves into a very unhappy frame of mind.

MATZOS.

THE UNLEAVENED BREAD FOR THE JEWISH EASTER, OR THE FEAST OF THE PASS-OVER—HOW IT IS MADE AND WHAT IT SYMBOLIZES.

It may be interesting to know that at this season 150,000 pounds of matzos, or unleavened bread, are being baked in Chicago. The Jewish Easter, which is known as the Feast of the Passover, will be observed on April 23d, and for eight succeeding days the children of Israel will eat their bread without yeast. It is not surprising, therefore, that three bakeries are running at the present time for their especial benefit.

In the feast of the Passover the Jews commemorate their deliverance from Egypt and the passage of the Red Sea. They were in such a hurry, so the legend runs, in getting away from their taskmasters that they had not time to bake bread, but carried the dough with them and heated it in the rays of the sun. Hence they commemorate the occasion by eating unleavened bread, and the anniversary of their deliverance is styled the "Feast of Liberty." This is the explanation given by the President of a West Side Hebrew congregation, but the Passover is believed to have its origin in greater antiquity. When Pharaoh refused to let the Israelites go the Lord sent the tenth and final plague, and destroyed the first-born in all the land of Egypt. But in order that the Angel of Death might pass the children of Israel by unharmed, the head of each household was instructed to slaughter a lamb and sprinkle the blood upon the doorposts. The paschal lamb is regarded by some Christian churches as a symbol of the Lamb of God, who was sacrificed for humanity on Calvary. Indeed, it is written that in ancient times children were sacrificed to Moloch. Subsequently children were spared, and a lamb was taken, as in the case of Isaac, mentioned in the Old Testament. This is the germ of the present Easter observances of the Jews, Roman Catholics, and Protestants. The unleavened bread of the Israelites, the sacrament of the Roman Church, and even the flowers of Protestant sects thus bear a subtle relation to one another, and may be traced to one common origin.

To return to the subject of matzos, the largest bakery in this city is conducted by M. Oesterreicher at No. 786 South Halsted street. "I shall use this season," said the proprietor, "nearly 1,000 barrels of flour, and shall turn out from 80,000 to 100,000 pounds of matzos."

"Will that be sold exclusively in Chicago?"

"No; I send boxes of the bread to Hebrews in Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Canada, Colorado, and Kansas. I sell in Chicago about 35,000 pounds. One of the largest bakeries in this country is at New Orleans, and is owned by a brother of Adolf Moses, of Chicago. Another large house is that of Simon Brothers, in Cincinnati, while there are quite a number of establishments in New York which do a large business.

"What others are there in Chicago?"

"There is one at the corner of Sixteenth and State streets, kept by Livingstone, which turns out about 40,000 pounds of bread, and another conducted by Polish Jews which produces about 10,000 pounds annually. The Poles claim that their method of baking is more strictly orthodox than any other. There are strict rules governing the manufacture of the bread, for it is laid down that the dough must not be allowed to rise beyond a certain point, and that it must be thoroughly baked."

"Is it distributed in the synagogues?"

"No; the people buy it just as at other seasons they have baker's bread. The night before the feast, however, a vigil is kept in each synagogue, and the unleavened bread is blessed. In this country and in Europe the Jews, for the sake of variety, are accustomed to grind it into meal and make puddings which they call 'matzo kugel' and 'grimsel.'"

A Tribune reporter took a trip through Mr. Oesterreicher's matzos bakery, which is in the basement, and observed the curious process of concocting the pious nutriment. The first thing seen was a large trough in which the flour and water are mixed. The dough is then placed upon a table and a young man presses it by sitting on a sort of lever. He jumps on and off with great rapidity. The stuff is then passed through a rolling machine, and comes out in long white strips of the thickness of sole-leather, but a trifle more plastic. It is then cut into large square biscuits, which are quickly shoveled into an oven. There they remain three minutes, and the result is—matzos. The biscuits are crisp, and, although some might call them insipid, are certainly not unpleasant to the taste. They are shipped in white-wood boxes to the scattered tribes.

During the reporter's visit several dark-eyed children of Judea dropped in, and the uninitiated might suppose that there was something talismanic in the word which each pronounced—"matzos." During the week succeeding the feast it can not be said of any young Israelite, no matter how accomplished, that "he takes the cake." He will have to be satisfied with the "matzos."

Chicago Tribune.

Summary of News.

27th.—The United States of Columbia, Central America, have been visited by an earthquake of the liveliest description. In Antioquia the old cathedral was badly damaged, and in Santa Rosa, Yarimal, Aquidas, and Abejiral the churches, prisons, town-halls, and many houses suffered severely. The volcano of Ometepe, near Lake Nicaragua, is in active operation for the first time in history, and a large island in the mouth of the Atrato River has disappeared entirely.

Sixteen lives were lost by a fire in Warsaw, Poland, yesterday.

A distressing accident happened at Middletown, Ohio, yesterday afternoon, resulting in the death of an entire family—father, mother, and child. A little daughter of a laboring man fell into the canal, and the father plunged into the water to save the child, when he was taken with cramps and drowned. The mother then attempted the rescue and was drowned. Thus the whole family was lost.

April 28th.—The trial of Michael Fagan for the murder of Lord Cavendish and Under-Secretary Burke, was concluded yesterday and he was sentenced to be hung May 28th.

Fitzharris, known as "Skin the Goat," will be placed on trial next Monday as one of the principals in the Phenix Park murders. The trial of Timothy Kelley has been deferred till Wednesday.

Three executions of murderers occurred in the United States yesterday.

A terrible and fatal railroad accident occurred to the Montreal express, on the Chicago & Grand Trunk Railroad, yesterday morning, near Bellevue, Mich. The train was stopped to permit the adjustment of the automatic air-brake, which had got out of order. A brakeman was sent back to flag any trains that might be following on the same track; but evidently he did not go far enough, for in a few minutes a heavy freight train dashed into the rear of the express, telescoping two Pullman cars. Three persons were killed outright, one has since died, and about twenty received serious injuries.

April 30th.—In a religious riot between Greeks and Arabs, at Port Said, several persons were killed and many wounded, including a number of police. British troops and sailors, with Gatling guns, surrounded the Greek Church to protect it. The Greek Consul took refuge on a gun boat. It is stated that the European residents were saved from a general massacre by the landing of the British sailors.

Reports from nearly every point visited by the terrible cyclone which passed through portions of Texas last Friday night have been received. The loss of life and property was much greater than at first supposed. The loss of life aggregated twenty; the number of wounded is about forty; and the destruction of property will amount to $75,000 to $100,000. The cyclone varied in width from 150 yards to a quarter of a mile, and swept everything in its track. The village of Palo Pinto is reported to have been totally demolished. At Rock Church, Cliff Brennam and wife were instantly killed. One of his four children was blown 300 yards away and picked up unconscious. The other three can not be found. No material damage to crops is reported, but fruit trees were stripped bare. No mention has been made of the loss in live stock, although the hides of cattle were terribly lacerated by the hailstones.

A careful survey of the country in Capiah county, Mississippi, which was visited by the cyclone on the night of the twenty-seventh, has been made on horseback. It was found impossible to reach the houses of some of the distressed, owing to fallen trees, debris of fences and houses, which littered the country roads. Several persons were literally cut off entirely from the outside world, and it was with the utmost difficulty that their houses could be reached, even on foot. Twenty were found to have been killed, and scores wounded.

Yesterday afternoon a terrific storm swept four miles north of Benton, Tex., tearing down houses and demolishing everything. Four persons are reported killed. Of seven seeking refuge in a church, two were killed and four not found.

Dispatches from Waco and other places in Texas say that the cyclone on Friday last was very severe throughout a large section of the State west and south-west of Fort Worth and Dallas. A section-house near Milanox Junction was destroyed and one of the hands killed. A school-house at Mt. Vernon was destroyed and three children injured. Another school at McGregor was blown down and nine children were seriously wounded. William Scott and a man named Mitchell living in the same neighborhood were killed, and two old ladies named Graves and Donnan were badly wounded, the former fatally. The houses, fences, and everything moveable in the track of the storm were destroyed or blown away. Mrs. Diamond was killed and her daughter fatally injured near Pelton. An immense quantity of hail fell on the outskirts of the storm, many of the stones being literally chunks of ice, some of them five inches in diameter.

A severe wind and hail storm from the north-west prevailed on Friday evening, at Hammond, Ga., doing considerable damage. The colored Methodist Church was entirely demolished. Trees were uprooted and blown in every direction, fences blown down, and many panes of glass in almost every house shattered. Thousands of dollars worth of damage was done to farmers, whose crops were entirely destroyed by hail ranging from the size of a common marble to one and one-half inches in diameter.

May 1st.—A terrific explosion of sulphur gas occurred to-day in Keystone Colliery, Locustdale, Pennsylvania, resulting in the instant death of three men, and the possible death of three others. A party of men were engaged in stripping the pillars, taking in the coal between the breasts, a most dangerous undertaking under the most favorable circumstances. One of the pillars came down with a crash, throwing off at the same time a great quantity of gas upon the naked lamps of the miners and causing an explosion which shook the whole mine. The concussion extinguished nearly every light in the mine, and sent a great cloud of dust and choking smoke up the shaft, which, in addition to the shock, which was felt for a mile, indicated to those above the nature of the accident below. The explosion throws 250 men and boys out of work until the necessary repairs can be made.

Wm. Blackburn, aged 55, who was injured in the cyclone at Wesson, Miss., died yesterday. Mrs. Parker, who lost her husband and son, had her arm amputated. Another amputation will be performed Monday.

A letter from Collinsville, Ill., says that an interesting and valuable archaeological discovery was made last week on the farm of the Hon. J. R. Miller, on the bluff overlooking the American Bottom, two miles from that place, where there is a group of ancient mounds. The find was made by Mr. McAdams, Assistant State Geologist, who dug up nineteen human skeletons, adults and children, both male and female, most of them in a good state of preservation, and also found a large quantity of pottery, copper and stone ornaments, and domestic and agricultural implements. Among the latter were several flint hoes, which evidently had been used a good deal. Further excavations will be made, and it is believed that a very valuable collection of relics will be made, and much information of great interest to archaeologists be obtained.

A tidal wave of extraordinary character broke over the steamer Aquila on a recent passage from Weymouth across the English Channel. When about an hour out, mountainous seas suddenly, and with scarcely a hint of their coming, smote the vessel, threw her on her beam-ends, swept her decks from stem to stern, flooded the cabins and engine-room, broke the bulwarks in several places, twisted off the iron rail of the bridge, rendered the pump useless, smashed one paddle-box and every skylight, and then immediately subsided, leaving the sea perfectly calm. Not more than five minutes elapsed from the first sign to the last vestige of the tumult.

During 1882 there were 41 theaters destroyed by fire. Of this number 17 were burned in the United States, 7 in England, 5 in Russia, 4 in Germany, 2 in France, 2 in Spain, and one each in Belgium, Sweden, Bulgaria and Roumania.

May 3d.—Patrick Delaney and Thomas Caffrey, two more of the men charged with participation in the murders of Cavendish and Burke, were arraigned for trial yesterday morning. They created a sensation in the court room by pleading guilty to the charges against them.

When Delaney was called upon to plead, he said: "I am guilty of being in the park at the time Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke were killed, but I did not commit the murder. I plead guilty."

The Judge explained to him that this really amounted to a plea of innocence. Delaney then formally pleaded guilty. He said: "I was brought into this at first foolishly, not knowing what it was. I was forced from my work to go to the park. We had to obey the orders of the society or take the consequences. When I got to the park I could not get away. I saw the murders committed, but I took no part in them."

Caffrey on being asked whether he had anything to say why sentence should not now be passed upon him, replied in a loud, clear voice: "All I have got to say, standing on the brink of the grave, is that I did not know what was going to happen until twenty minutes before the murders were committed. I was bound to go to the park under pain of death."

Both were sentenced to be hanged on the 2d of June. The sentence of Delaney will probably be commuted to life servitude.

The jury in the case of Fitz-Harris, charged with the murder of Cavendish and Burke, in Phenix Park, returned a verdict of not guilty. The prisoner seemed overpowered by the verdict, and the Crown prosecutors were evidently dismayed.

Direct telephonic conversation was had between New York and Chicago yesterday over the wires of the Postal Telegraph Company. Sentences containing several words were transmitted, and the voice of the speaker at one end of the line was distinctly recognized by the receiver at the other.

Henry Forham was hanged at Helena, Mont. yesterday for murder. In Franklin County, Mississippi, a colored man named Amos Bailey, who killed a farmer, was taken from the Sheriff's custody by an armed mob and hanged to a tree.

The vicinity of Adams, Lancaster county, Neb., was visited by a destructive prairie-fire Tuesday night. A farm-house with stable, cribs, and three head of horses were burned. The family escaped just in time to save their lives.

Charles Tyler, one of the men injured by the explosion at the Keystone Colliery Monday, died last night. Tyler is the fourth victim of the explosion. He leaves a wife and six children in poor circumstances.

The house of William Jackson was destroyed by fire yesterday morning at Bailey's Harbor, and two of his children lost their lives in the flames.

MILK is declared by practical physicians who have tried it thoroughly to be an almost certain cure for typhoid fever. An old Virginia doctor, who, it is alleged, never loses a patient of typhoid, says his treatment is the simplest thing in the world. "All you have to do is to get the patient's stomachs in good order and then diet them on buttermilk." If it is good as a cure it should be excellent as a preventive.

What seems only ludicrous is sometimes very serious.

WALLSEND, Australia,

March 19th, 1883.

Dear Brother Joseph:—Great praise is due to the Church, and also to those Elders sent by the Church into these parts for the purpose of teaching us the way of God, which they have done in a most perfect manner; and evidently according with the spirit and order of the gospel; for the which things' sake compensation is impossible. Individually I can not express my love to them for the timely warning and impartation of light through the word preached, and faith by the word. I will offer that which to my mind might be followed to the solution of a great mystery, and is in part the outcome of a letter from Bro. T. F. Stafford in Herald of January 20th, 1883, under the heading of "Who is from Heaven." As I understand the brother, he puts forth his letter more for the purpose of soliciting a solution than of giving one. All that I ask is the prayerful consideration of the reader in my endeavor to solve or to offer some ideas thereon.

There is undoubtedly an order in the works of God, on earth as in heaven, and some agreement between the two; and remember all things originated in heaven before that they are made or placed on the earth. This appears to have a wide application, and it is by this rule we intend to work out a solution if possible. Who is there that is prepared to say that before the work of creation was proceeded with, that they were not first conceived and agreed to in heaven, even from the smallest shrub to the largest oak; and from the smallest insect to the largest animal, including all and every form and principle of life; and hence, if conceived there in heaven they may be said to have come from heaven, in a sense, and now this brings us face to face with our subject. "No man hath ascended to heaven, but he who came down from heaven." Remember, came down from heaven. Now the form is not spoken of as being composed of the same material substance as that which John declares to have handled and to have seen, even the Word of Life which was with the Father before the world was. Now again it appears that there was either two descents of the Son, or otherwise he had made one descent at creation and had not returned from the lower creations to the creations which are above. And again John describes Christ to have been with the Father—mind now before the world was. The idea is, had he returned between the creation or remained on earth, the latter of which seems to have been the most likely; for this reason he prayed for the same glory as he had with the Father before the world was; and from this it seems very clear to my mind that he had not possessed that glory between the aforesaid period until he had trodden the arch enemy of God and man under his feet; and it was then that he hungered, for he had accomplished so great a task; to share once more that same glory which he had with the Father before the world was. Here we call to mind the fact, even after the creation of all things on the earth, that he, the Creator used to walk on earth and talk with those of earth; and on one occasion a certain person walked with God and was not—for God took him and his, with a city, even Zion, the paradise of God, his own blessed abode, the home of our first parents who had been driven out because of transgression and into which the faithful of all kindreds and nations are permitted to enter and to remain until they with the city once more shall be placed on the earth and will then become the abode of the changed and resurrected. In connection with the birth of the Son of Man this appears to be regulated by the same rule, (namely), it was designed in heaven, by the Father for which it was necessary for Mary, as for the followers of Christ that the Holy Ghost should come upon her and also the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee. Was this done for to beget or was it not rather to demonstrate to many this fact; as in the commission of the angel, "he shall be called the Son of God." Mary was as we are, not spiritually discerned of herself, and it was as necessary for her to receive the Holy Ghost to discern in the child Jesus, that he was really the Lord God, and "no man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost." No more could Mary; and I now think that the explanation here given should be sufficient for any person. But still I will not seek to force the human mind. If this will meet with the assent of my fellows I will be amply repaid.

We have commenced a fund in the Hunter River Branch, to assist the spread of the gospel; and we hope, if not before then, at the Fall Conference help will be sent to Australia. I intend to notify all the Saints and give them a chance to contribute some little.

From your affectionate brother,
ED. JAS. HAWORTH.

KEMPNER, Lampasas Co., Texas.

May 1st, 1884.

Bro. Joseph:—I moved to this place last September. It was soon known that I was a Mormon; people here knew nothing of the Reorganized Church and of course we were looked on as polygamists of the Utah faith. I lost no time in telling them better. I have distributed books and tracts for twenty miles up and down the Lampasas river. Bro. Elias Land came to my help and preached two discourses at this place; also, I held two meetings ten miles below on the river. There is already much prejudice removed and some few are believing. I think some will obey, by and by. Some of the priests are warning their flocks against us, which seems to work to our favor. We are anxiously waiting for some able Elder to come to our help.

Your brother in Christ,
ABSALOM KUYKENDALL.

PLATTSMOUTH, Nebraska,

April 30th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Since penning the last lines for your pages, I have visited the historic ground of Kirtland, and took an active part in the late General Conference. The visit did not shake my faith in my God or the gospel of peace. I arrived at home on the 18th inst. Our quarterly conference held on the 22d and 23d inst. We had a good time, at the preaching service the house was full. Came here in company with Brn. L. Anthony and E. C. Brand, seeking to settle up troubles among the Saints. It is surprising how foolish Saints can be that they will sell their birth-right for worldly pleasure and sin. The condition here will be better, although the numbers will be less. There is a good opportunity for preaching.

HOLDEN, Mo., April 26th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—My wife and I are visiting with the dear folks here upon the goodly land. Father sent my wife money to come and visit her new father, mother, sisters and brothers. She likes them and the country very much. I got a letter from Bro. Anthony day before yesterday; he seems to be in good spirits. I think he has aroused the Floridians a little. He starts for East Florida in about two weeks. Until this time I have only been with the folks at home in Holden about eleven days for over three years. They want me to make them a longer visit this time, and I expect that I will do it; though I feel anxious to get into my appointed field of labor. In the mean time I shall not be idle. I preached last Sunday in Holden, and have an appointment next Sunday out in the country. Plenty of openings around here and scarcely any laborers. Ever praying God to bless you, I remain your brother in Christ.

FRANK P. SCARCLIFF.

GREAT BEND, Kansas,

Bro. Joseph:—I am not forgetful of my duties to God or that I owe my success in life to his mercy and goodness shown to me in the past, and which is still extended to me. I have no reasons to be ashamed of, or doubt the glorious truth which I have received. There is an abundance of the "form of godliness" here; but I have no use for it. I miss the blessed influence of the society of the Saints, which I realize now more than I ever did before, has been so much to me in the past few years. May God bless the dear Saints of Lamoni, is my earnest prayer. Remember me in the meeting Bro. Joseph, and ask the brethren to pray for me that I may not forget my covenant. Say to the young Saints that the grandeur of life is obtained only through a strict adherence to the principles of truth and righteousness.

With love to all, I subscribe myself your brother in the gospel,

OSCAR L. FERGUSON.

CALIFORNIA.

Bro. Joseph:—I have just returned from a three days meeting held in Long Valley; had a splendid time, long to be remembered. The Spirit of God was one in our midst throughout the entire session. Preaching was by Elders J. H. Lawn, Richard Smith, and John H. Range, each one spoke with excellent liberty to good, attentive congregations. One lady stood up for baptism, and I think several others believe and will eventually join the Church. Had two testimony meetings; would have had more in attendance had it not of been for showers of rain, which caused some to stop at home. Those Elders who addressed us seemed alive in the work, and determined to revive and push forward the Gospel. I really think they means business, and by the help of Him, who has called them they will do a good work. I pray God to strengthen and enable them to perform the work He has called them unto, that the way may be opened up before them.

Bro. Joseph:—My health is much better then it was when I wrote to you last. I have opened Sunday School once more. It is nine years since I closed the school. I taught Sabbath School nine years, and a great portion of that time without any help. I then had to close on account of poor health. We have quite a large school for such a small place: about thirty-five children and five teachers; and a great many visitors every Sunday. Remember me in your prayers as I require help. May God bless you and all of his people is my prayer.

Your sister in the truth,

NEW PARK, York Co., Pa.,

April 20th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—We have a nice branch here, of sixteen and they are trying to do their duty and advance the cause which is moving slowly. There are seven here who say they will have me baptize them as soon as possible. The prospects are good. I never saw the time since I came into the Church that there was such a call for preaching as there is now. I have two points where I hold meetings, one is at the Rocks of Deer Creek, about eight miles from here where Bro. Joshua Fowler lives, the Teacher of our branch; he has opened a good work there. He is bringing them into the work fast, he is a good teacher. I believe that he will raise up a branch there. The Spirit and the hand of God are with him. We are establishing the gospel and the truth. The people are taking notice, seeing there is a light that they never saw before. The outside world is encouraging us to go on. We are doing well; God's hand is with us on every side, thank him. Blessed is the name of Jesus. I was at the Rocks some time ago, and when I opened meeting we sang hymn nineteen, and the voice of the Spirit sang with us. The outside world heard it as well as we. O, what a glorious voice it was. Glory to God. Is this not encouraging to the Saints? I preach every Sunday twice, and two and three times a week I hold meetings. There is great need of more preaching through this part. I know of six points where they want Bro. Z. H. Gurley to preach, for they know him from the report of the papers. If he would come here they would hear him, for they know what he is. They want me to get him if I can, and to publish when he comes and they will come far and near to hear him. Please send him here, if possible; he would do a good work. The Lord is blessing me both temporally and spiritually.

Yours in Christ,

M. O. MATTHEWS.

HORNERSTOWN, N. J.,

April 26th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Brethren Frank M. Sheehy and John Gilbert stopped here on their way home from General Conference. Bro. J. A. Stewart was with them. They arrived on Monday evening and Bro. Gilbert preached to a fair audience, notwithstanding it rained, which prevented a number from coming out. Bro. Gilbert left on Tuesday morning, but Bro. Sheehy remained and preached on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings to good audiences. His efforts were well appreciated by the Saints and friends who heard him; and we would much like to have him come this way again soon. On Thursday morning Bro.

Frank left here for Brooklyn and Bro. Stewart left for Philadelphia. I am glad to learn that Bro. Z. H. Gurley still has charge of the Eastern Mission, and that Brn. Sheehy and Gilbert are to labor in the field under his direction. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion.

I remain yours in the one faith,

W. H. BROWN.

PAIGE, Texas,

April 20th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Feeling an interest in the latter day work, believing that every one should do something for the cause in some way; as I am encouraged by reading the letters published in the Herald, I take this opportunity of writing to you, hoping by so doing to encourage some benighted one. Two years ago Bro Heman C. Smith preached at this place and as he was one of the wonders (a Mormon preacher) that I had heard of, of course I went to see him, simply from curiosity and to make some enquiries of him in regard to some of my relations that were members of the church he represented. I saw him and heard him preach twice, both able sermons, but differed from what I had been taught by the D. Ds., and right reverends. I let it go, not suffering myself to think much about it, until last May. Bro. A. J. Cato made me a visit; I heard him preach several times; asked him many questions, which were readily answered as his views and mine were different, in regard to the teachings of the Bible. I came to the conclusion that one of us was wrong; and as Bro. Cato seemed to be satisfied I did not know but I might be the one, so I went to God in prayer; read his word carefully. In about three weeks Bro Cato baptized seven, I was one of them; and I have never regretted it. He organized a branch called the Live Oak; the name taken from the tree he preached under. We did not have the pleasure of the only church house in the vicinity; and it was built by the neighbors. In a short time he baptized four more. All are trying to do their duty. Pray for us.

Yours in the faith,

W. G. ALLEN.

GOSHEN, Clay Co., Kansas,

April 23, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Your weekly visits to us have been received with thanks. I have often thought of the effort put forth by those who care for thee, in preparing subject matter for thy pages; and of the many letters received to enter into thy columns, which must pass before the inspector. If calculated to build up, strengthen and feed the hungry and thirsty mind, in thy columns we find them, if not, into the waste basket they go. Who knows what will suit the many thousands that read thy pages, a man in Florida or one in the office, who has read and re-read letters from the many who contribute to your pages, and has made it a study to endeavor to suit all minds, as nearly as possible. I think those who care for thee and prepare thee for us to read; and if our thoughts and letters do not always find room in your columns we should not be discouraged but try again. This may pass into the waste basket, yet I shall love your golden instruction. I know this to be the Church of God, and the gospel we preach to be the power of God unto salvation; and if we will live faithful God has promised to let his angels guard us through all the scourges passing over the earth. It is easier to live as a good saint should than to be half a one; we have the name and can have the blessing if we will keep all the commandments. "If ye love me, keep my commandments." That is plain, why can not we do that? We are commanded to come together often, pray for and encourage, exhort and endeavor to strengthen one another. Some don't do this; still they want to be saved. We are commanded to teach our children and walk before them so when eight years old they may have a full understanding of faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands; and if we do this the Lord has promised to bless them with an obedient spirit. He has commanded us to pray with our families and instruct them. Are we doing this, brethren? God has said he would do so and so, and these signs should follow them that believe. We have a branch here of forty-three members; most all of the saints come out to meetings; some ought to try to be more prompt. We ought not to stay away from prayer meetings. We are having good meetings. We want to live so the Lord will bless us with all the gifts, then there will be more inducement for those who are careless of coming out to the house of God. They are ours to enjoy, if we live faithful.

May the God of heaven bless all that are called to be Saints, and those that are called to leave the comforts of home to preach, is the prayer of your brother in Christ,

A. H. PARSONS.

EAST TAWAS, Michigan,

April 11th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Since I wrote to you last Fall I have been laboring in the field the most of the time. I left here on the 21st of November and went to Grey county Ontario; labored some with the Saints there; also opened a new place and preached fourteen times with good liberty, and some made application for baptism and have since been baptized. I left there for the lumber woods in Michigan on January the 8th, Elder George Hicklin being sent to attend to the work in Grey county; I however did not remain long in the woods, as my brother got hurt and I had to take him home to Sanilac county, Michigan. I then took the field again, February 1st, and since then I have labored in Sanilac, St. Clair and Tuscola counties. On the 18th of February Elder Andrew Barr and myself went into a new place three miles west of Lexington, preached twice, and then left an appointment for Monday night, February 26th; I filled the appointment and spoke to a crowded house with excellent liberty. After meeting a Baptist minister came forward and began to ask questions in regard to the Book of Mormon, &c.; I told him I believed it to be an inspired work. He then began to ridicule it, and said it was not inspired of God, and that he could prove it to be an imposition, and challenged me to debate with him. We made arrangements to meet on the 9th of March; he affirming that the Book of Mormon was not inspired. We met at the time appointed, and the Lord was present by the power of his Spirit, inasmuch that he was completely confounded, and could not in his last speech occupy all his time; his whole argument was showing that Ephraim never left the Eastern Continent; this we admitted, and showed by the Scriptures that his posterity came to this land, and that God wrote the "great things of his law" to them, and that after a certain time had elapsed that law was hid up in the earth to come forth unto the children of men in the last days; also that the Book of Mormon was that law. There were five or six hundred people present, and thinking people saw that his arguments were in vain; there were two ministers present also; one a Bible Christian, (who was very eager to have the debate on the start), and the other a Disciple; they expressed themselves as being very sorry that the debate had taken place, and thought it had been a great injury to the minds of the people. We feel however that good was done, and that God is not forgetful of our labors.

After the debate I went into St. Clair county, to Bro. Henry Wing's. He gave out an appointment for me to preach in the Burchville School-house, Sunday evening. While it was being noised around, two of the officers of the school busied themselves so much all day Sunday, trying to prevent the meeting, and nailing up the door of the school-house, that they did not have time to attend to their own meeting; but through the influence of our worthy brother Wing the door was opened, and we preached to an attentive audience, both Sunday and Tuesday evenings. I also preached in the Reymond School-house near Bro. Wing's where any of our Elders passing through will find a good opening, as the people are anxious to hear the gospel. I then went above Richmondville three miles, where Elder John J. Cornish has been laboring, and found he had done a good work. The Saints contemplate building a church there this summer; may God bless them in their effort. I preached there several times and then started for home; and passing through Reese I called upon Elder E. DeLong, who induced me to stay a few days with him. I preached three times in Reese, and then went with Bro. DeLong to Vassar, and preached three times there; thence resumed my journey home. Met with the Saints here last Sunday and preached to them; but I am sorry to say, that some of them are not as active in the work as I would like to see them.

I intend to remain here this summer, as I have some obligations to meet, and will (if possible) take the field again in the Fall; for my heart is in this great latter day work, and I feel desirous of telling the gospel to the children of men, that the honest in heart may be gathered out from among the nations, to reign with Jesus throughout one eternal day.

Yours in gospel bonds,

WILLARD J. SMITH.

CLARINDA, Iowa,

Dear Brethren and Sisters:—We are living alone, as far as the Church is concerned, in this place. There are a great many excellent people living here though, we find. We attend their meetings pretty regularly, and seldom if ever, fail to be edified; for the reason that we hear truths each time, and truth is a benefit to all, let it come from whom it will. Therefore, we think it good for Saints to go to other meetings, occasionally. If we do not attend their meetings, to them we appear selfish, if we attend theirs, they will ours. I am very thankful for the weekly Herald, and am as glad to see the new number each week, as I once was the semi-monthly. Though there are some articles wrote to it, which we do not fully endorse, yet even they contain some truths, and are the honest convictions of the writers. My letter has grown longer than I expected, therefore will subscribe myself, your friend for truth,

B. W. DEMPSTER,

HOMEWARD BOUND.

'Twas years ago, one sunny, summer day,
When first I started out to walk the narrow way;
Passed through the door, e'en through the watery grave,
And took him for my guide, who died my soul to save.

How bright and cheerful seemed the pleasant way,
How light my heart—sins of the past all washed away—
The burdened, troubled soul, had found relief,
And now seemed bathed in undisturbed and heavenly peace.

And for a while the way I traveled well,
Until I grew more careless, dangers then befell;
Heeded syren voices, calling me away,
Forgetting that my guidebook said, they'd lead astray.

And oft I wandered, seeking fancied good;
'Twas vain,—true pleasure lies within the rugged road,
Instead of promised joy, unmixed with cares,
These wanderings brought me but remorse and bitter tears.

Then came affliction's dark and gloomy cloud,
For years I groped my way;—at last I cried aloud
'My God, Oh! why hast thou forsaken me,
In pity look, and help me still to trust in thee.'

And when was past the dark and dreary vale,
And I, by patient toiling, climbed the mountain tall,
I saw, Oh joy! so bright the cloud above,
The sunshine of his matchless and eterna' love.

And so we strive to travel on the way,
Where'er He leads our faith should all unshaken be,
O, fellow travelers, let not courage fail,
Though off the road lies through some darksome, lonely vale.

Remember how upon the heights we've viewed
By faith, the glories of the home we're traveling to;
Tasted its joys, to which naught can compare,
What should turn us from the way?—All is fleeting here.

But there we ever shall abide in peace,
Share with the purified the bliss that ne'er shall cease,— We'll joy to meet—then part—all sorrowing days—
And give to him who sitteth on the throne the praise.

THE JEWISH PROBLEM FROM THE JEWISH STAND-POINT.

IN The Century Magazine for February, is an article called "The Jewish Problem," written by Emma Lazarus, who is doubtless a daughter of Leah.

She states in her prefatory paragraph, that "from the time when the Monotheistic, Semitic slaves of the Pharaohs made themselves hated and feared by their Polytheistic masters, till to-day when the monstrous giants, capital and labor, are arming for a supreme conflict, the Jewish question has been inextricably bound up with the deepest and gravest questions that convulse society. Religious intolerance and race-antipathy are giving place to an equally bitter and dangerous social enmity. This scattered band of Israelites, always in the minority, always in the attitude of protestants against the dominant creed, against society as it is, seems fated to excite the antagonism of their fellow country men. Intellectually endowed, as M. de Lavelaye has remarked, with 'a high ideality and a keen sense of reality' they may be said broadly to represent liberalism and revolution in Germany and Russia, conservatism and capital in England and America. Liberty they must and will have, but when this is once obtained, their energy is transferred to the aim of fortifying and preserving it."

In a review of Jewish history she notices first the colonies planted in various parts of the Roman and Parthian empires, and extending as far as India, before the time of Jesus. She refers to Graetz's history for proof, that Christianity resulted from a schism in the Jewish Church, and says: "The Jewish Christians of the first century were scarcely distinguishable from the Jew proper. They regarded Jesus as a great and holy man, descended in a perfectly natural manner from King David. They strictly observed the Jewish law on the authority of Jesus himself, who said: 'I am not come to destroy, (the law), but to fulfill.' * * * The gradual crystalization of the huge organism of the church, and the curious blending of Judaism and Paganism in the rites and ceremonies, originated among the Hellenistic Christians. Thus, the Jewish ceremonies of baptism and the evening meal, or communion supper were retained, and to them was attached a mystic significance thoroughly in accord with the Greek temper of mind. Between the Jews and the Ebionites subsisted perfect cordiality and free intercourse; between the Jews and the Pauline christians, on the other hand, existed from the beginning mutual repulsion and contempt. In proportion as the Ebionite Christians inclined more and more decidedly to the tenets of the Hellenistic christians, they naturally widened the distance between themselves and the Jews, until all semblance of unity was lost."

Unfriendly legislation began with Constantine. When the christian state was established the Jews were shut out from official posts which they had honorably filled in Pagan Rome. At a later period, the unscrupulous priests represented Christ, the Son of God and man, as the victim of Jewish crime, and inflamed the hosts of believers with fiery hatred. Christian historians affirm that the priesthood devoted the Jews to pillage because the church needed money. There came a time when the Jew was forced to wear a peculiar costume; was branded on the chin; imprisoned in ghettos; robbed of lands; excluded from trades, &c. The wealthy ones took to usury, because no other resort was left them; the poorer were compelled to degrading labor. "As if," says De Graetz, "all powers had sworn—and indeed they had so sworn—to exterminate the Jewish race from the circle of humanity, or to change it into a brutalized horde; even so did they attack it." According to Millman, the crusades and every great mediaeval institution and movement were, in turn, a cause of anguish to the Jew. Of the expulsion of the Jews from Spain, at the instigation of the priests of the Inquisition, Milman exclaims, "Great God of mercy! this was in the name of Christianity! Frantic mothers threw their children into wells and rivers—they destroyed them with their own hands."

In proof of the good qualities of the Jews during the dark ages, our author makes the following quotations:—

"History has never sufficiently acknowledged the influence of the Jews in the Middle Ages, upon the culture of Europe in general, and especially upon that of Southern France. Their medical schools, as well as their schools for the promotion of knowledge of oriental languages, were of the highest importance."—Fauriel.

"Their commerce was unrestrained, except by a limitation enforced upon Charlemagne rather by the irreverent covetousness of the clergy than by the misconduct of the Jews. * * * From the ports of Marseilles and Narbonne their vessels kept up a constant communication with the East. In Narbonne they were so flourishing, that of the two prefects or mayors of the city, one was a Jew. The most regular and stately part of Lyons was the Jewish quarter. The superior intelligence and education of the Jews in a period when nobles and kings, and even the clergy, could not write their own names, pointed them out for offices of trust. They were the physicians, the ministers of finance to nobles and monarchs."—Milman.

The greatest triumphs of the Jews were under the mild dominion of the Moors, exempted from the influences of the Church, Moimonides, physician of Saladin, was founder of rationalism, the priest who endeavored on broad principles to establish the harmony of reason and religion."—Milman.

"The simplicity of their creed enables them more readily and naturally to throw off the shackles of superstition, and to enlarge the boundaries of free thought, than any other sect. Considering their religion from the highest standpoint, their creed to-day is at one with the latest doctrines of science, proclaiming the unity of the creative force. No angels, saints, or mediators have any place in this sublime conception, arrived at intuitively, in a pre-historic age, by the genius of the race, and confirmed by that modern scientific research which has revolutionized the thought of the world. The modern theory of socialism and humanitarianism erroneously traced to the New Testament, has its root in the Mosaic Code. The Christian doctrine is the doctrine of consolation; the Kingdom of Heaven is held out as a glittering dream to suffering humanity. Poverty exalted into a mission, the vocation of the mystic, the spiritualist, the idealist, enjoined equally upon all, a vision and an extacy offered to the hungry and the needy; what provision is here made for the world as it is? On the other hand, the very latest reforms urged by political economists, in view of the misery of the lower classes, are established by the Mosaic Code, which formulated the principles of the rights of labor, denying the right of private property in land, asserting that the corners of the field, the gleanings of the harvest, belonged in justice, not in charity, to the poor and the stranger; and that man owed a duty, not only to humanity, but even to the beast of the field, and the ox that treads the corn. In accordance with these principles, we find the fathers of modern socialism to be three Jews: Ferdinand LaSalle, Karl Marx, and Johann Jacoby."

Russian and Roumanian mobs and other considerations have roused thinking Jews to the necessity of a vigorous and concerted action of defense. They have long enough practiced to no purpose the doctrine which Christendom has been content to preach, and which was inculcated by one of their own race—when the right cheek was smitten to turn also the left. They have proved themselves willing and able to assimilate with whatever people and to endure every climatic influence. But blind intolerance and ignorance are now forcibly driving them into that position which they have so long hesitated to assume. They must establish an independent nationality.

Neither we, nor our immediate descendants can hope to see humanity at that point of perfection where the helpless and submissive victim will, as such, be respected. Existence continues to be a struggle in which the fittest can survive only through the energetic assertion and constant proof of superiority. The idea formulated by George Elliot has already sunk into the minds of many Jewish enthusiasts, and it germinates with miraculous rapidity. "The idea that I am possessed with," says Deronda, "is that of restoring a political existence to my people, making them a nation again, giving them a national centre, such as the English have, though they too, are scattered over the face of the globe. That is a task which presents itself to me as a duty; * * * I am resolved to devote my life to it. At the least I may awaken a movement in other minds such as has been awakened in my own." "Revive the organic centre," says Mordecai, with still more eloquence. "Let the unity of Israel which has marked the growth and force of religion be an outward reality. * * * When our race shall have an organic centre, a heart and brain to watch and guide and execute, the outraged Jew shall have a defense in the court of nations, as the outraged Englishman, or American. And the world will gain as Israel gains. For there will be a community in van of the East which carries the culture and sympathies of every great nation in its bosom; there will be a land set for a halting-place of enmities, a neutral ground for the East as Belgium is for the West. Difficulties? I know there are difficulties. But let the spirit of sublime achievement move in the East among our people, and the work will begin."

This quotation is more interesting to us from the fact that, in the same great work, George Eliot makes favorable mention of the Book of Mormon.

The Century article concludes as follows:

"I am fully persuaded that all suggested solutions other than this of the Jewish problem are but temporary palliatives. Could the noble prophetess who wrote the above words have lived but till to-day to see the ever-increasing necessity of adopting her inspired counsel, though her own heart would have been lacerated by 'the hideous obloquy of Christian strife,' yet she would have been herself astonished at the flame enkindled by her seed of fire, and the practical shape which the movement projected by her in poetic vision is beginning to assume. Highly significant in this connection are the labors of the 'Alliance Universelle Israelite' and the recent Jewish conference held in Berlin on April 23, 1882, where the chief cities of Germany, England, France, and the United States were represented, where such men as Lasker, Professor Derembourg, Sir J. Goldsmid, professors, privy-councilors, and member of the Imperial Diet took prominent part, and where a vast Jewish system of mutual cooperation and aid was organized. 'The result of the present Russian persecution,' says the 'American Hebrew,' 'has been to knit Jew to Jew as never we have been knitted since the dispersion.' From the princes of European finance to the most wretched despoiled refugee who steps from the steerage of the emigrant steamer upon our soil, every true Jewish heart to-day burns with the same sentiment of patriotism and of sympathy. Mr. Laurence Oliphant's scheme for the colonization of Palestine has been too thoroughly and clearly defined in his own interesting volume, the 'Land of Gilead,' and has attracted too much attention from the press of Europe and America to need more than brief mention here. Strongly impressed with the advisability on political, commercial, and philanthropic grounds, of establishing a Jewish colony in Palestine, Mr. Oliphant started three years ago on an exploring expedition through the land east of the Jordan. The result of his travels was to intensify into an ardent faith his conviction of the practicability and desirability of the plan. In commenting upon it in the 'Nineteenth Century' of August, 1882, he writes:

"The idea of a return to the East has seized upon the imagination of the masses and produced a wave of enthusiasm in favor of emigration to Palestine, the force and extent of which only those who have come in direct contact with it, as I have done, can appreciate."

"How politic and rational, as well as humane, is his suggestion, is proved by the fact that it met with cordial encouragement from princes and statesmen, among others the Prince of Wales, the Prince and Princess of Schleswig-Holstein, the Prime-Minister of England, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Grand Vizier of Turkey, Khairreddin Pasha. Committees were organized, and Palestine Colonization Societies were formed. All over Russia, Roumania, Poland, Galicia, and Bulgaria, thousands of Jewish families registered themselves as ready to start, a fund of over £2,000,000 was raised, and official agents were appointed all over Turkey, when suddenly the whole movement was paralyzed by the Sultan's ordinance prohibiting Jews from settling in Palestine.

"Every Israelite who entered the Ottoman Empire was obliged to sign a paper binding him not to establish himself in the Holy Land, and thus the enterprise for the moment is at an end. Nevertheless it has afforded conclusive proof of two vital points hitherto generally denied, viz: first, that a very large majority of the Jewish people earnestly wish to be restored to the land of their forefathers, and second, that the Jews not only evince no natural repugnance to agricultural labor, but, on the contrary, enthusiastically proclaim their desire to pursue it. Says Mr. Oliphant in his letter of August 4th, 1882, to the 'Jewish Chronicle' (London):

"The impetus has been given, and though the movement has been checked, nothing can now retard its final accomplishment; on the contrary, the temporary political obstructions now existing will merely have the effect of damming a flood which will burst forth with greater violence when they have been removed."

"Eternally grateful as all Jews must be to such Christians as George Eliot and Laurence Oliphant, they neither should nor need seek outside of their own ranks their guide or their spokesman. They who in our own generation have led the Conservatives of England, the Liberals of Germany, the Republicans of France, can surely furnish a new Ezra for their own people.

"While a few years ago the most enlightened Jews, yielding to the indolent apathy of comparative security, would have ignored or ridiculed the vision of a Restoration, to-day it is no exaggeration to say that whenever two Israelities of ordinary intelligence come together, the possibility, nay the probability, of again forming a united nation is seriously discussed. 'Already,' as Mr. Oliphant says, 'the alternatives loom in the near future,—either of race-extinction by marriage in countries which are too civilized to attempt it by massacre, or of separation as a young nationality.'

"There is something absolutely startling in the world's sudden awakening to the probable destiny of Israel. To judge from the current literature of the day, as represented by the foremost European periodicals, it has been reserved for Christians to proclaim the speedy advent of that Jewish triumph for which the Jew has hoped against hope during his prolonged agony of twenty centuries. In all such questions as this, that which is agitated to-day, is formulated and acted upon on the morrow, or as Emerson put it, 'the aspiration of this century is the code of the next.' Again and again has history repeated this process. Where so many minds are considering how best to overcome the obstacles, the problem must sooner or later be solved, and when the hour strikes, the man will not be missing. The question is not one of narrow sectarianism; indeed it is scarcely any longer a religious one. Jews who are fully emancipated from the yoke of dogmas have this national sentiment not less, but rather more, fully than do the bigots and zealots who are necessarily men of inferior intellect.

"A young Russian Jew of the former stamp expressed to me, in a recent conversation, views of such significance on this subject that with them I may fitly close my paper, for they sum up the desires and ambitions of the nation.

"The mission of the Jews throughout history has been to protest against corruption and despotism in religion and morals. The religious mission of the Jew belongs to the past: it is no longer necessary to preach the unity of God. But the moral mission remains unchanged: he has still to protest against narrowness, corruption, and materialism. As for his mixing with Christians, I have no fear nor objection in regard to it; he can but mix in blood; the genius of the Semitic race can not be adulterated, but flows through history pure and distinct as the waters of the Rhone through the Rhine. * * * The racial tie binds Jews together even though they discard all religion. What they need is to be once more consolidated as a nation. They are essentially an original people, borrowing neither thoughts, emotions, nor manners of the nations around them. (From this statement I exclude American Jews, who have lost color and individuality, and are neither Jew nor Gentile.) Let them organize with sufficient strength under a competent leader, and establish their central government,—whether in Palestine or South America, East or West, is a matter of indifference. Thus only can they command respect from other nations. But I would not have all Jews congregate in a single community: their fate and their purpose are to be separated. They are to serve as the connecting link between hostile peoples, and to advance the glorious cause of our common humanity. In their midst is to be found every type of mind which a perfect community needs. They are the greatest hero-worshippers in the world; except in matters of religion, they can be more easily swayed and kindled to enthusiasm by an appeal to their imagination than any other people. Let the hero arise to lead. Such things have been seen before and shall be seen again. —I am no dreamer; I speak of facts. In their present wretched condition the Jews have grown old, they have lived too long. But a new life will be instilled into them by such an achievement; and once more incorporated as a fresh and active nation, they will regain youthful vigor and power.'

"No, the nation is not dead that in its class of destitute outcasts produces men filled with so haughty a pride, so high a patriotism, and so indomitable a sense of election for a lofty mission as breathe through these literally-quoted words of a Russian pariah."

It is thirty-three hundred years since Moses forecast the fate that Israel is now working out. This is the epic of the ages. Emma Lazarus does not realize the full scope of the grand movement. She merges all Israel in Judah. She makes no provision for the nations and colonies of Israelites in Asia, nor for the ten lost tribes. Nor does she recognize the fact that the blessing that prevailed unto the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills, was pronounced upon the head of him who was separate from his brethren. Neither does she recognize the promises contained in the New Testament; and does not know that her article confirms the divine utterances of Christ, and the prophetic declaration of Paul. She does not see that the Iliad of woes she has so graphically penned, has any connection with the words "Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves and your children." She denies the one great sin of the Jews, against the testimony of her own prophet Zachariah: "They shall look upon me whom they have pierced * * * and there shall be a great mourning in Jerusalem. The land shall mourn, every family apart. * * * One shall say unto him, What are these wounds in thy hands. Then he shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends."

There is nothing in philosophy that explains why a people should suffer for sins of their ancestors, but the divine scheme will be justified when "the redeemed of the Lord shall return, and come with singing unto Zion, and everlasting joy and holiness shall be upon their heads."

Increasing thousands that Emma Lazarus knows not of, are waiting to join in the cry, "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people; speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem." * * * For her warfare is accomplished; her iniquity is pardoned.

S. F.

"WHAT has he done," is the question upon which every man's value is hinging. It is required of him that he do, not dream,—accomplish as well as plan: and the plain, sensible dealing of the world is good after all. Let a man produce his work if he set himself up to be anything in this busy bee-hive of human life. There are too many honest workers for dreamers or visionary schemers to have any show. Let his work testify of him, and the world will very soon see if there be anything in him. A truce to this sentimental gush of "unappreciated lives." A life is appreciated if it be really one of value to the world, or will be; and if it will be in future, it is so now, prospectively, which ought to satisfy a generous spirit. "Results show," as the old saying is, and all may expect to be judged by them.

THE TWO GATES AND WAYS.

"ENTER ye in at the strait gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction and many there be who go in thereat. Because strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life and few there be that find it."

Here are two gates spoken of, the one gives entrance to the "narrow way" leading to life, and the other to the "broad way," that leads to destruction. We perceive that there was a time when the parties choosing to walk either of these ways, were not walking therein, had not entered either of the gates. This is proven by the saying, "many there be which go in thereat," on the one hand, and the admonition to "strive to enter the strait gate" on the other. All mankind,—no matter what their attainments afterward,—come into this world in obedience to the same law of our being as infants, helpless innocents; if innocents had broken no law, therefore could not be in the way of destruction. But after coming to the years when they can discern good from evil they are accountable for their acts; and there being many of their own kind ready to tempt them to do evil—as well as the serpent who tempted Mother Eve—they give way to temptation, commit the sin of disobedience and thus enter the wide gate and are in the broad way that leads to destruction.

It is incompatible with the character and attributes of the Deity to let those made after his own image go to destruction without warning them of the consequences, and providing a way out of this broad way and showing them the way of life. Paul, the apostle of Christ, in one of his epistles says "For after that in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God; it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

Now if the apostle is good authority, the point I am after is this—as made evident in the text—that human wisdom could not know God, could not devise a plan to gain this life eternal. They might "gauge the dimensions of suns, measure the distance of the planets, calculate with unerring certainty the conjunctions and oppositions, the transits and altitudes of the vast wheeling orbs of immensity." Yea, with their human wisdom they might do more than this and yet by it they can not gain Eternal Life.

The text plainly inculcates that God—in his own wisdom—determined that by human wisdom, he should not be known, and inasmuch as the Savior declared as stated in John 17, "This is eternal life that they might know thee the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent," the logical conclusion is, that if by human wisdom God can not be known and to know God is life eternal, that then by human wisdom that life can not be obtained. It follows, if we want to gain this life we must look to some other source than the wisdom of man to obtain a knowledge of the way to secure it. What says the text? "It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." And what is a preacher? Paul defines him as one that is sent!

A preacher of God then must be sent by him with a message to whom it may concern. A message received signifies communication made from the sender unto the one sent. It must be so in the nature of the case; for if man went of his own accord—no matter how sincere he might be and however much he might believe he was sent of God—the message he declared would be man's wisdom and by the fiat of Jehovah no man could gain eternal life by the message he declared.

Jesus the Savior of all men was the greatest preacher ever trod the earth. He declares that he came from God, that the Father sent him, and was so particular as to state that the Father gave him commandment what he should speak, and declared what he was commanded to speak was life everlasting.

We also find in his prayer, John 17, that he was particular in telling his Father that the words received from him—which made known the way of life—he had given to those whom he had chosen as his special witnesses on the earth, that they also might declare the same. For hear him saying to them on the eve of sending them out, "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you." Why was Jesus so particular to give the same words? Because the Father had been particular in giving him those words; and those words being the plan of life, the conditions by which the human family might receive the same were the product of Supreme wisdom, and if man—though sent of God—should add to, or take from those words one iota, the message they would declare would be man's wisdom; it could not accomplish the object sought, and such men would bring the anathema of God upon their heads; as Paul understood when he declared "though we, or an angel from heaven should preach unto you any other gospel than that which we have preached unto you let him be accursed." Paul declares that the word he preached was not received of man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ, Jesus came with the well developed plan of salvation devised by his Father, it was the offer of eternal life, the way to go to obtain it which was a narrow way and a gate to enter that narrow way which was strait. He admonishes all to strive to enter that gate; and says that the reason only a few find it is because "wide is the gate and broad the way that leadeth to destruction and many there be that go in thereat." We can not for a moment entertain the thought that the majority of mankind would desire destruction and consequently would not for that purpose knowingly enter the wide gate. There must be attractions to entice them through the wide gate, and being wide it is easy of access. No great amount of labor, no large amount of self-denial, but tempters who present a life of pleasure and of happiness are many, and the temptations are robed in gaudy and tinselled splendor, to dazzle the mind and captivate the senses. We are satisfied that when the uninitiated first enter the broad way they do it with trepidity, with fearfulness and trembling, and if they do not immediately retrace their steps, pursue the broad road step by step, until they may have obtained a knowledge that it will eventuate in destruction, yet the pleasures of this world have such a hold on them that they become reckless of consequences.

We have seen that Christ came to earth to offer eternal life to the human family, and that this offer consisted of something that was to be said or spoken, evidently suggesting to the mind conditions to be made known unto them. He places eternal life at one end of a narrow way and makes the entrance to this way strait. It is plain then that none can obtain eternal life except by pursuing the narrow way till they find it, and none can enter the narrow way except through this strait gate, hence the admonition "strive to enter."

It is evident to the reader that the words "gate" and "way" are only figures of speech suggestive of the mode of entrance into fellowship with God and his people and the manner of life required after entrance. So that when the Savior says to Nicodemus, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he can not enter into the Kingdom of God;" when he says, "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber;" and when he says, "Strive to enter in at the strait gate," he has an allusion to the same thing the being adopted into the family of God. We must keep in view that the Father commanded his son what to say with respect to the conditions of eternal life. We have seen that a man must be born of water and of the Spirit before he can enter the kingdom; or in other words, baptism is the mode or door of entrance therein. We have seen that he who enters not by the door, &c., the same is accounted a criminal, and liable to be dealt with and punished, consequently could not be recognized as a child of God, while the safe conclusion is that he who enters by the door can lay claim to that title.

It is declared that the Good Shepherd entered at the door, (John 10), and to him the porter opened. [Porter is one that hath charge of the door or gate.—Webster.] According to the word, the one that Jesus went to, to be baptized, was the John the Baptist. He it was then who was officiating at the gate, and he opened it to the Lamb of God, who as the Great Shepherd, entered through the gate into the narrow way, showing a willingness to conform to his Father's law, and then he could consistently say, "He that will be my disciple, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."

But this gate, or baptism, is very strait. [Webster defines strait as close, or narrow.] It is so strait that a man can not squeeze through if he has any of his sins unrepented of; he can only be admitted after his determination to forsake his sins. It is the opinion of the writer that there is a striking example of this in the account given of Simon Magus, (Acts 8 chap.), who though having been baptized by Philip, was told by Peter: "Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter; for thy heart is not right in the sight of God. Repent of this thy wickedness," &c. It is our opinion, from the context, that he was baptized out of wrong motives, repentance never entered his head, therefore not his heart, and he could not squeeze through the strait gate to enter the narrow way, and was still in the gall of bitterness.

The preachers sent of God always told those who believed their words to repent before baptism; as witness the act recorded in Acts 2d. "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." And this is a natural consequence—allowing the phrase—and why? Because sin, according to Paul's definition, is the transgression of the law. A sinner then is living in open violation of God's law; and consequently, while so doing, could not be adopted as a son or daughter of him; therefore, to become as such, must cease to break the law of God—and this is repentance—and then he is a fit subject to enter through the gate upon the narrow way which leads to life.

We do not think it a matter so much of time as of decision concerning the act of repentance. Those three thousand told by Peter to repent did not consume much time in manifesting their repentance, the word says they were baptized the same day. They believed Peter's preaching, which produced a desire to be saved, hence the question what they must do. He seeing their position, from the manner and tone of the question, told them to repent, that is to cease, break off from their evil ways, and then by baptism their sins were cancelled, themselves adopted into the family of God. This narrow way was laid out by Jesus himself, and whoever will take the pains will see it minutely described in his sermon on the mount. It is a very narrow way, so much so that we can only walk single file in it. We can only by our conduct save ourselves, we can not save another; we can succor, encourage, cheer, and comfort each other on the road, but each one must walk that path for themselves. The narrowness is plainly indicated from the sayings: "He will not look upon sin with the least degree of allowance,"—"abstain from all appearance of evil." It is said of God that he walketh not in crooked paths, and hence his children can not be allowed to do so. This narrow way is laid out through a country possessed by an enemy. The world is represented in spiritual phraseology as being an enemy to God.

The prince of this world has great enmity against the author of this way to life, and consequently against all who enter his service; and hence inspires the hearts of his servants to use every possible means to decoy all who essay to walk this "narrow way," from so walking. Every cunning artifice and stratagem capable of being thought of are used, and every thing that caters to the fleshly appetite is paraded in a multitude of ways, and in the finest style, to tempt the feet of the pilgrim from the way to life.

This prince knows that it is prohibited, by the Author of Life, to walk after the flesh, and enjoined to walk after the Spirit, and he being a very skillful general, and knowing that all men are not constituted alike, as what would tempt one would have no effect on another, has inspired his servants to erect establishments in close proximity to, and all along the line of travel of this way, which serve up every kind of a dish of temptation adapted to the weaknesses of the differently constituted pilgrims to draw them from walking after the Spirit. The enemy is very wary, very skilful, very adroit, and patiently watches for his prey. He knows that he can not accomplish the destruction of a child of God all at once; if he should attempt it his designs would be manifest, and their consummation hindered. He cares not if he can only persuade one step to-day; he knows that after one step has been taken, though they should return to the narrow way, that at some future period he may get them to take the one step easier than before, and perchance another with it, and after awhile they become less timid, take the step bolder, and are led off into a labyrinth, from which they may never return, and lose what they set out for on the narrow way—Eternal Life. It is the first step we have to guard against; it plays the mischief with those who take it. It is the first glass makes the drunkard, and who can tell the depths of misery entailed by that first mis-step. Every crime in the calendar may be said to follow in the train of intemperance.

But if the enemy can not by any contrivance of his own outside the church, or from the world, or the flesh, cause our feet to leave this narrow way, he will try to set us at loggerheads amongst ourselves; and this, his heaviest battery, reserved to the last, often makes a breach. He fires a round of grape and canister, composed of jealousies, animosities, back-bitings, evil speakings, slanderings, &c., and a heavy breach is made, sometimes carrying away whole branches of the Church completely demoralizing and disorganizing altogether. Some of the members are killed outright, while some after suffering remorse of conscience seeing the error of their ways—retrace their steps to the narrow path; but oh! what misery, what torture of mind we might have evaded had we not taken the first steps in these sins that caused so much havoc in our midst.

The Great Prince, author of this narrow way that leadeth to life eternal has lined the way with cautions against those who would seek to decoy us from it. Posted up in convenient places are such as follows: "Watch and pray lest ye enter into temptation;" "Abstain from all appearance of evil;" "Beware of men;" "Beware of false prophets;" "Beware of covetousness;" "Beware of evil workers;" "Beware lest ye also being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness." These admonitions, with many others not mentioned, if followed strictly will prove for our eternal welfare in keeping our feet in the desired path, and by so doing secure the great prize. The humble, faithful pilgrim has the promise of a guide to be with him, whose name is the Comforter, who has been one of the three witnesses to his entrance through the strait gate. "There are three that bear witness on earth, the Spirit, the water, and the blood."

After bearing witness on earth he takes the matter above to the heavens, and there in company with the Father and the Son beareth record to this new born child of God, and entereth his name on the record above. (John 1:5-7). He is an especial guide to all who faithfully walk the narrow way; for Jesus said he should guide into all truth. He has the power also to bless with all spiritual blessings (1 Cor. 12) to comfort and cheer the heart and strengthen the weary pilgrim on his way. He will guide and cheer those whose feet keep the narrow path, but is not bound to follow if we leave it, for he is to guide into all truth, not error, good, and not evil. He may sometimes whisper to a stray sheep that it is time to return to his Father's fold, for God hath said "His Spirit striveth with men," but there is a condition men may get into that this will not be the case, for he says, "My Spirit shall not always strive with man." Sad indeed must be the condition of that man or woman, who has arrived at that state of things; having by his acts so grieved the Holy Spirit that it will have nothing more to do with him, left weak and helpless, to the mercy of the devouring enemy to be overcome and dragged down to perdition. May the Good Being forbid, or strengthen you and me, dear reader, that we may never be found among that number.

The life that the narrow way pilgrims are seeking is said to be eternal, that is, without limit, full of joy and perfect bliss; not like the present one, which only extends to three score and ten years, and is embittered at many stages with suffering, sorrow, disease, and terminates in death. We will not undertake to describe this eternal life for it is beyond our power to do so. Some have been permitted to ascend to the third heavens and view things they were not allowed to utter, Paul, John the Revelator, of olden, and Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon of latter times. Paul says "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered the heart of man the things that God hath prepared for those that love him," &c. The latter day prophet says that even the celestial glory—as spoken of by Paul in 1st Cor. 15th chapter—surpasses the understanding of man, and that no man knows it except God has revealed it unto him; that the terrestrial glory exceeds the celestial in glory, in power, in might and dominion, and that the celestial excels the other in all things. The celestial glory is what the narrow way leads to, even where God and Christ dwell, and they who persevere on to the end obtain this glory. Dear reader, is it worth your while to strive for this glory? Picture in your mind the highest felicity and glory that you can, and you have not the faintest conception of it except God should reveal it. Thrones and dominions of earth sink into insignificance; all the glory and powers of earth fade away into oblivion in comparison to it!

The Savior might well declare or ask the question, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

Yours in hope of eternal life,

E. STAFFORD.

LAMONI, Iowa, April 24th, 1883.

IS CHRIST THE ETERNAL FATHER.

I SEE NO reason to doubt that he has a right to the title, "Eternal Father," as God, the Director of everything, says that he created everything by the Son. He says he created the heavens and earth, by his Only Begotten he created all things; and again he says: "I, God, said to my Only Begotten, which was with me from the beginning, Let us make man in our image, and after our likeness, and it was so." We see by this quotation, that God the Father gives his Only Begotten power and authority to create all things, from the beginning; therefore he (Christ) has the right to the title, Father, for he was the Creator; and God, his Father, gave the direction to create; for he says: "I do nothing, but the Father through me;" "and as the Father commands me, this I do;" "I do nothing of myself." Therefore we see the reason that Christ says unto Nephi: "I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God; I created the heavens and the earth, and all things that in them are. I was with the Father from the beginning." He says also, "I am Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the End." As he (Christ) was from the beginning, he must have been as he says, without end, and is not this eternal? Therefore he is the Father, the Eternal God, as he says to the brother of Jared in the mount: "I am Jesus Christ. I am the Father, [because I created all things], and the Son, [because I am chosen of the Father of heaven]."

Therefore he is Father of this system of creation, and the creator of all that are therein; for he saith I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the Father of heaven and earth.

We can reason thus: If Christ was the creator of all the living and the dead, and had all power given him in heaven and on earth, there is no reason why he should not be called the Eternal Father. And again, he is called God, therefore he is God, as he is to rule this earth, as King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. There is no doubt in my mind that he is (or will be) the God of the system of planets of which this earth is one. In this case he (Christ) would be the very Eternal Father of all his creation, both of heaven and of earth, and all that are in them. Therefore he showed himself to the brother of Jared, that he might know that he was the Son of Man, even after the manner, and in the likeness of the same body, even as he showed himself unto the Nephites. And he ministered unto him, even as he ministered unto the Nephites, and all this that this man might know that he (the Son of Man) was God, and because of the knowledge of this man, he saw the finger of Jesus. (Ether 1st chapter).

Now we see why so many say that Jesus is the one and the same God, the Supreme Ruler of the heavens. It is because he has a right to the offices of Creator and a governor of the laws of this Universe. When the character of Christ is not clearly seen, it is difficult to discern the right from the wrong; to give each his right name in the right way. When one comes to the knowledge that Jesus Christ is Author of this world, and all that pertains thereto, either in this life or the next, we will feel safe, and continue with knowledge that Jesus Christ is the very Eternal Father, and God of all living

PRAYER.—Literally, prayer is supplication; it is asking. By asking is meant, not simply desire expressed, but paramount desire. There must be a desire for the thing asked, greater than for anything else that would be incompatible with it. This is prayer, and nothing else is. If a man may have either an estate or so much money for the asking, but can not have both, however much he may desire the estate, he can not really ask for it unless he desires it more than the money. And so, whatever desire a man may have of heaven, or of the presence with him of the Spirit of God, yet if he has a stronger desire for any form of worldly good, any form of expression that he might use in the guise of prayer, would not be asking. It would be hypocrisy to the omniscient eye. It is only a paramount desire presented to God with the submission becoming a creature, that is prayer.

THE PARENT'S FIRST LESSON.

THE very first lesson a parent has to learn is that whatever he attempts to teach, he must himself first practice. Whatever he wishes his child to avoid, he must make up his mind to renounce; and that from the very earliest stage of existence and down to the minutest things. In young children the imitative faculty is so enormous, the reasoning power so small, that one can not be too careful, even with infants, to guard against indulging in a harsh tone, a brusque manner, a sad or angry look. As far as is possible, the tender bud should live in an atmosphere of continual sunshine, under which it may safely and happily unfold, hour by hour and day by day. To effect this, there is required from the parents, or those who stand in the parents' stead, an amount of self-control and self-denial which would be almost impossible had not heaven implanted on the one side maternal instinct on the other that extraordinary winning charm which there is about all young creatures, making us put up with their endless waywardness, and love them all the better the more trouble they give us.

That is—mothers do. When I said "maternal instinct" I spoke advisably and intentionally. Of paternal instinct there is almost none. A man is proud of his sons and daughters because they are his sons and daughters—bound to carry down his name to posterity; but he rarely takes the slightest interest in any body else's children, and in his own only so far as they contribute to his pleasure, amusement, or dignity. The passionate love a woman often has for another woman's children, and for the feeblest, naughtiest, ugliest of her own, is to men a thing entirely unknown. Two-thirds of parental love is pure pride, and the remaining third, not seldom, pure egotism.

Therefore for the first seven, nay, ten years of a child's life, it should in most cases be left as much as possible to the care of women. Not that every woman has the motherly heart; but the fatherly heart is a rarer thing still.

Besides, men's work in the world naturally unfits them for the management of children. It is very hard for a man, who has been worried in business all day long, to come home and be pestered by a crying child; even though the poor innocent can not help itself—is probably only tired or sick or hungry. But the father will not see this; he will only see that the child annoys him, and must therefore be "naughty."—Selected.

CONCEPTIONS OF GOD.

It is not to be supposed that God manifests himself to all ages or to all men of one age in the same manner; He speaks at sundry times and in divers manners. He works by diversity in the domain of grace no less than in the kingdom of nature. But often the difference is more in us than in him. Though he is ever near and waiting to be gracious, unbelief bars him from our hearts, and sin separates him from us. So we come to judge, thing and speak of him according to our experience.

To the patriarchs and prophets of old, God was very near and familiar. Enoch walked with God through a long life, and then was translated to heaven without dying. Abraham oft communed with Jehovah, who revealed to him the long future down to Gospel times. Jacob wrestled with the divine messenger till break of day, and would not let him go until he had obtained the blessing. The Psalmist's theme ever rested on God and His works, and regarded Him as the source of every blessing. Augustine talked to and with God as a familiar friend, who enraptured his heart and sweetened all his experiences.

Are such exceptional cases, or imaginative or fanatical? Neither. Admitting a personal Deity, and the reality of religion, the exercises of devout minds are no more than would be expected. If there is a Being who created, upholds and governs the universe, he must be omniscient and omnipresent, ready to hear our cry, to help our infirmities and guide our steps. He loves us and cares for us—He is a God at hand, and not afar off.

The tendency of the present day is to abstraction and isolation. There is a pride of false philosophy that looks upon practical religion as enthusiasm and fanaticism. Nothing can be admitted as rational unless it can be measured by the senses, and subjected to all physical tests. Men must scrutinize, and analyze, and classify to the last degree of artifice and speculation. Every principle must be a dogma with its exact place in the system defined. All must proceed by rule and order. By subjecting not only the intellect, but also the emotions, to such requirements, the spiritual nature is restrained and the vitality of religion endangered.

It is our duty to listen to the demands of the intellect, to be consistent with reason, to guard against every form of superstition. But in doing this, there is no need of repressing and denying the requisitions of our moral and spiritual powers. These, it is true, differ in individuals, circumstances and times; but they have a basis in all minds and a reality. Those are not necessarily the most correct and reliable who are the most cool and calculating. The moral instinct, the glow of emotion and the impulse of the heart are often more authoritative. The warm heart is as essential as the cool head.

The feelings and emotions are not to be distrusted so long as they are well founded. The conceptions can never be too vivid, if their basis is truth. Nature and revelation authorize the belief in God and his personal supervision of all our affairs, and thus should we conceive of him. We do injustice to him and ourselves if we do not allow and cherish such conceptions. The tendency at present with Christians is too much to doubt, indifference and coldness; there is need of more faith, more vivid conceptions of the living God and the vital truths of the gospel, more interest in the Bible, more love to each other, more earnest co-operation in doing good.—Morning Star.

MORAL COURAGE.

WHEN I was a boy of twelve years of age, fifty-two years ago, my father dictated to me the following composition, which he required me to write out, commit to memory, and from time to time rehearse to him. I am inclined to think he was not himself the author of it:

"There is a moral courage which enables a man to triumph over foes more formidable than were ever marshaled by any Cæsar—a courage which impels him to do his duty; to hold fast his integrity; to maintain a conscience void of offense toward God and toward man—at every hazard and sacrifice, in defiance of the world and the prince of the world. Such was the courage of Moses, of Joseph, of Daniel, of Aristides, of Phocion, of Regulus, of Paul, of Luther, of Washington. Such is the courage which sustains every good man amidst the temptations, allurements, honors, conflicts, opposition, malice, cruelty, persecution, which beset and threaten him at every stage of his progress through life. It is not a noisy, obtrusive, blustering, boastful courage, which pushes itself into notice when there is no real danger, but which shrinks away when the enemy is at the door. It is calm, self-possessed, meek, gentle, unostentatious, modest, retiring; but when the fearful hour arrives, then you shall behold the majesty of genuine Christian courage, in all her native energy, breathing the spirit of angelic purity, and grasping victory from the fiery furnace or the lion's den, when not one of all the millions of this world's heroes would have ventured to share her fortune.

"I fear God, and I have no other fear," is the sublimest sentiment ever felt or uttered by mortal man."

May they thus forever live.

DIED.

LOCK.—At her home, Coldwater, Michigan, February 22d, 1883, in the 43d year of her age, Sr. Catharine M. Lock. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, Bro. Dudley Lock, and two sons. Sister Lock first heard the preaching of the gospel in the Winter of 1871-2; and after a thorough investigation, believed and obeyed the same. Ever afterwards she was foremost among the Saints to help the work, and both lived and taught the gospel of Christ. She passed away with a strong testimony of its truth, and confidently awaits the promise of Jesus—when he shall bring them that are his with him. Funeral services conducted by Elder Wm. H. Kelley; the music and hymns used being those selected by the deceased for the last sad rites.

Lines Written in Memoriam of Catharine B. Lock, Deceased, by Sr. Elsie Lockery.

How strong the ties which bound her here,
None but a mother's heart can tell;
The watchcare of her boys she craved,
But bowed resigned to heaven's will.

Full well she knew the paths of sin,
Which lure the young with bright array.
But in His care she trusted them,
Who never will her trust betray.

Come cast your burden on the Lord,
Accept the gospel's precious truth,
Yield to its precepts, lavish there
The pure devotedness of youth!

And, husband, orphan, weary ones,
Forgive us if we press too near;
But as a little band of Saints,
We loved and miss our sister dear.

Her heart went out for famished ones,
Who might to truth eternal cling;
She knew the food that nourished her,
Would lasting joys to others bring.

She charged us all to faithfulness,
To labor here with all our might,
Sustain our Herald's weekly form,
And ever stand for truth and right.

Then wonder not that we are sad,
But let us each his burden share,
Gone is the mother, sister, friend—
We're mourners all, this sad, sad hour.

COLDWATER, Mich., 22d Feb., 1883.

EWING.—At Davis City, Decatur county, Iowa, March 29th, 1883, of disease of the heart and lungs, Sr. Deborah Ewing, aged 71 years and 25 days. She was born in Sempronius, Cayuga county, New York, March 4th, 1812.

EWING.—At Davis City, Iowa, April 3d, 1883, Bro. George Ewing, aged 77 years, 11 months and 8 days. He was born April 26th, 1805, at or near the place where now stands the city of Toledo, Ohio.

Thus passed away this aged couple, dying within five days of each other, he to a great degree by reason of grief at the loss of her who had been his companion for over fifty years. According to the items given to the writer of this some years ago, Sr. Ewing was baptized in April, 1831, by Elder Edson Fuller, and Bro. Ewing was baptized in September, 1831, by Elder Demas Harris, both at Brownhelm, Lorain county, Ohio. They were married on the 30th of October, 1832, and there have been born to them eight sons and four daughters. Ten of these children are now living, and seven of them were present at the time of their parents' deaths, or at their burial. Bro. and Sr. Ewing remained in Ohio until 1842, when they removed to Hancock county, Illinois, settling at Ramus, (Macedonia), and remaining till 1846, when they removed to DeKalb county, Illinois, near Sycamore, living there for nearly thirty years. Since 1875 they have lived part of the time in Sandwich, Illinois, and part of the time in Decatur county, Iowa. On October 30th, 1882, their children gathered and celebrated the golden wedding anniversary of their parents' union, and now both have passed away, within six months of that pleasant occasion. Bro. Ewing was one of those who, during the Winter prior to April, 1860, received a testimony by the Holy Spirit of the calling of the present Joseph Smith to have charge over the Church of Christ, and in his last illness he said that he had always followed the Church, and he wished for himself and wife to be laid to rest at Lamoni, where the Saints buried their dead, also that President Smith should preach their funeral sermons. In all of this his wishes were complied with, one sermon being preached on April 1st, and the other on April 22d. One item of historical interest is worthy of note, namely that Bro. Ewing was a boy doing service on one of the vessels of Perry's fleet at the battle of Lake Erie, probably one of the last, if not the last to live of those who had part in "Perry's Victory." H. A. S.

CARVER.—At Monterey, Allegan Co., Mich., February 13th, 1883, Robert Carver, aged 49 years, 4 months and 10 days. He was not a member of the Church; but was always kind and brotherly to the Saints; and the Elders always found a welcome at his home.

LEAVINS.—At Lamberta, Alabama, April 8th, 1883, of sickness caused from an operation on the eye for cataract, Sr. Martha Leavins. She was born in Jefferson county, Georgia, June 18th, 1808; was baptized August 7th, 1881, by Elder G. A. Montague, and confirmed by him and J. H. Givens. She had been a consistent member of the Baptist Church about fifty years; but believed the gospel as presented by the Saints, and obeyed it; though blind and infirm in body, she went down into the waters of baptism to follow her Lord, received the Spirit, and died strong in the faith.

We live; but our beloved ones who have died also live. We stand weeping on this globe, floating in infinite space; but our glorified dear ones are, like ourselves, in God's world. The loved ones whose loss I lament are still in existence; they are living with me at this very time; they are, like myself, dwelling in the great paternal mansion of God; they still belong to me as I to them. We are not separated. No time lies between us; for I, like them, dwell in eternity, rest in the arms of God.

Consolation is the dropping of a gentle dew from Heaven on desert-hearts beneath; it is one of the choicest gifts of Divine mercy.

A man may be great by chance, but never wise nor good without taking pains for it.

Heaven has no promise of comfort to the lazy man, but to those who "labor and are heavy laden" the invitation is, Come and rest.

I wonder many times that ever a child of God should have a sad heart, considering what the Lord is preparing for him.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 19th May, 1883.

KIRTLAND, since the Saints left it so many years ago, has been the scene of a great many ventures in religion, and quite a number of the offshoots of Mormonism have made efforts at a lodgement there. It was here that the portion of worshipers known as the followers of Zadoc Brooks had for a time their headquarters; and after them the Miner portion; then the effort of I. VanDusen, and lastly the Reorganization. Bro. J. F. McDowell, perhaps as much as any other one Elder, is entitled to credit for its occupancy for many years as a local missionary field; and we think it was by him that a branch was organized, holding their services in the Temple, which the little band partially reclaimed from vandalism.

But Bro. McDowell came further west, and but few of the old number were left, among them Sr. Rebecca Dayton, E. Stratton, Bro and Sr. Fahnestock, M. Scribner, Sr. Harvey, Father Bond and wife, and a few others.

But for many years the Church has had only a nominal standing there, the branch dwindled away, until the keys of the Temple were left in charge of Sr. Dayton, who for the love she had for the Master, remained a devoted and faithful witness to whoever might call to see the Temple.

The Temple was levied upon and sold at Sheriff sale, at or during the existence of the Brooks faction at Kirtland, and was bought by Elder Russell Huntley, who repaired it to some extent to preserve it from the weather. After the decay of Brooksism, Elder R. Huntly decided it to Elder Mark H. Forscutt and Joseph Smith, during whose ostensible ownership suit was brought by the Church and the title found to be in the Church. The custody of the building has since then been in their hands through the Bishop, who held it by local agency.

A few years ago the idea of holding the annual spring session of conference at Kirtland in the Temple was broached and advocated by Bro. T. W. Smith, who believed that such holding of conference was not only feasible, but would do an incalculable amount of good. But at the time scarcely any but himself thought as Bro. Smith did on the subject, and his suggestion was not acted upon; it may have been because the time was not come. In the Spring of 1882 the Church met in conference at Independence, Missouri; and at that session the idea of meeting at Kirtland met with some favor, and looked less formidable than before. It was talked of more or less among the Saints, and the project took shape at the session held at Lamoni last fall, when it was resolved to meet there. Considerable doubt about its entire feasibility was entertained by some still; and the only plausible way that presented itself was to ask the Church to aid in the work by contributing to the repairing of the building; which the Bishopric reported could be done for a certain sum to the extent of putting it into a state to be preserved. But as to the conference a commissary committee consisting of Brn. W. H. Kelley and Z. H. Gurley, who with the Bishopric were to be also a "committee of ways and means," was appointed, to make the necessary arrangements for holding the conference on the old camping ground. The men appointed to this task did well. They took in the situation, and so far as the care of the visiting Saints and Elders was concerned, we believe no one had reason to complain.

The Reorganized Church has held conference in Independence and Kirtland; at the latter place in the only temple built by Latter Day Saints, and accepted of God to his worship. And whatever the outside world may say, or think; or whatever the dwellers in Utah under Pres. John Taylor may think, or say, the Saints who met in the Temple last April may feel justly proud that the Lord blessed them there.

The day of our convening the question of molestation by uncivil, or evil disposed persons was considered, and in conversation with one of the citizens we made inquiry in regard to local police authorities. He kindly gave the information desired, but stated that he thought we would not be disturbed. And to the great pleasure of the Saints, and to the credit of the people in and around Kirtland, we can write that no police officers were appointed by the conference, no application was made to local authorities, nor was there any necessity for either; the session throughout being one of the quietest, pleasantest and best behaved we have ever held.

If any body wants to hear bug-a-boo stories about the Mormons we can assure them that they are plentier, huger and blacker away from Kirtland than they are right there on the historic ground.

THE late Conference at Kirtland acted favorably upon a resolution presented by the delegates from the Galland's Grove District, coincided in by the delegates from Pottawattamie, Fremont, and Little Sioux districts, to the effect that at some time in the late Summer or Fall, there should be a reunion of the Saints some where in the west part of Iowa.

This resolution has since been favorably considered by one of the Nebraska districts, and likely will be by other of the west and south-west—it certainly should do.

We personally favor the proposition, and suggest that each of the four districts, Little Sioux, Galland's Grove, Pottawattamie and Fremont appoint each a committee of one to meet at Council Bluffs, which is about midway, at an early day and confer, and agree at what time in the Fall and at what place such reunion should be held.

The resolution as passed by the Conference seems to offer a permission for any of the districts to hold such a reunion; but should this be attempted according to the letter, the main purpose of its introduction and adoption would be defeated. This purpose was that there should be such a reunion as would in a great measure replace the Fall session of Conference, a mass, or camp meeting, to hold two, four or six days as the interest should demand.

We are heartily in sympathy and favor such a meeting—a grand latter-day rally, that will mark an era in the history of the Reorganization; and we hope that the districts named will at once move in the matter, and agree upon time and place and then make such other arrangements as will make the affair a success. We promised some of the delegates from the west that we would not only attend such meeting, but that we would give them all the aid through the HERALD that they would need, or could ask. We begin our part early, so as not to be found wanting. Let the good work go like fire in the dry grass, let the meeting be a rousing one. There are plenty of preachers to fill all the time allotted—there will be no long, tedious, business sessions, with their strifes and perplexities, to prevent a full spiritual enjoyment. There will be time for prayer meetings, Saints' and testimony meetings, visiting and getting acquainted—let us have a good one, brethren.

THE Conference at Kirtland adopted a resolution passed at the Northern Illinois District conference, and presented by delegates from said district for action, asking the Board of Publication to have the books offered to sale by the Herald Office "better bound." It must not be taken amiss if the Board presumes to ask of those who read the resolution in the Conference Minutes, to consider the following statement.

The Editor of the HERALD has carried dozens of the Scriptures, Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, and Saints' Harps, and has some of the first and intermediate editions of those works on hand now, in good condition, and has never had one of them go to pieces on his hands. He carried one of the poorest bound Scriptures for nearly four years, and then sold it to an Elder who has it yet, and during the time he used it he carried it in satchel and open buggy hundreds of miles, without starting a stitch or loosening a leaf. He has used a Doctrine and Covenants and one of the Rules of Order, together now for years, carrying them to the Fall and April Conferences, to and from, in satchel and overcoat pocket for several years, and they are still in good condition for use, backs whole, leaves all in and untorn, and they are of the common binding. We also know of books in the hands of other Elders and members of the Church, that have been carried for years, and are still in good condition. Why this difference?

Books are usually made of frail material, and by reason of the demand, those intended for daily use have been made as small and compact as possible, with safety. Large type, clear print and thick paper, always makes books bulky and heavy. Nor is it practicable to make large print and small sized books, and get much reading into them.

The Doctrine and Covenants is in as small type as is desirable, so is the Book of Mormon and the Scriptures. To get good paper for these books we have to use heavy thinnish paper, and then ask the binders to bind as closely as can be consistently done. Heavier binding would be out of harmony. The Saints' Harp is also in as small type as convenient and is bound as nearly in proportion as practicable.

Ever since the Church has had a publishing Board, there has been a system of chronic complaint and persistent inquiry and fault-finding with the high price of HERALD, HOPE, and the books of the Church; and resolutions of such complaints have been passed at different conferences; and both by private letter and public statement the prices of the various publications of the Church have been declared to be too high; some have personally remonstrated with the Editor upon these alleged high prices, and have stated that it was a shame that the Saints had to pay so much for the books of the Church. This complaint of high prices has induced the Board to get the books out as cheaply as it was possible to do, and still retain a semblance of good, serviceable well looking books; and now there are the two counter complaints, those of "high prices" and "give us better binding."

We give below prices of binding, and will be much obliged to the person who will tell us how to get better quality and lower prices:

Saints' Harp, Imitation Morocco, plain edges, 48c. Same book, same binding, gilt edges, 70c. Saints' Harp, Imitation Morocco, marbled edges, 49c. Bound tracts, cloth, 17c. Holy Scriptures, in skivers, (sheep skin), sprinkled edges, 38c. Morocco, gilt edges, 87c. Imitation, gilt edges, 56c. Doctrine and Covenants, sheep, 32c. Morocco, marbled edges, 64c. Book of Mormon, Roan, (sheep), 46c. Morocco, 65c.

We are aware that it is said that the binding done years ago is much better than that done now-a-days. This judgment is based upon specimens of books that are well preserved, and have been kept by careful hands; but what has become of the thousands of others of the same editions of books? They fell into careless hands and are gone to pieces. We suggest that books are friends, and as such are entitled to kindly care and attention. They are made to read and not to abuse. The book that is subjected to twisting in the hands, of either singer or speaker, or is used to lean upon while speaking, or is shut back to back in holding it open, or is filled with place markers or newspaper cuttings, until its thickness is increased, or is sat upon in or out of church, or is used as a window prop at church or at home, or is given the baby as a plaything, or is "chewed" at the edges and corners by giggling girls or thoughtless women, or is thrown at any person, animal, (cat) or thing, or is jammed tightly into bookcase or box, or is left lying on the ledge of an open window at church or at home, to get wet with dew or rain; or is carelessly laid on shelf, table, organ, stand, mantel, writing desk, chair, or window sill, to be knocked off upon the floor; or have the fly leaves at front or back pulled out to write memoranda or notes upon; or is left out of doors on chair, bench, or under shade tree, where moisture gathers, is sure to go to pieces, nor would it save them if they should be ever so much better either in paper or binding.

We would like to have the privilege of tracing the history of the books that the persons who complain of poor binding have owned and used. We know a little of some of them. For instance, we once saw one of them while preaching in the stand, take his hymn book in his left hand, and resting the end of it on the desk in front of him, leaned upon it so hard as to press the covers open and to bend the back of it quite perceptibly. We saw another whose Scriptures lay open on the desk atop a large King James' version, bring his shut fist down upon it with a blow that fairly made the leaves dance; and in such a way as could not fail to break the pasted and glued back, and strain the sewing. We know another who has a Scriptures that is warped and bulged out of all shape by the numerous slips of memoranda, notes, and place keepers that he keeps in it. We know another Elder in whose house we saw a Saints' Harp on the floor by a baby big enough to tear paper, which Harp was minus its back. We saw a Saint at church raise a heavy window sash and put a Harp under it upon its end to hold it up—the poor book was bent and twisted out of shape when taken out of its perilous place.

But enough on this point. The Board will do the best it can to secure goodness of binding with cheapness; but so far as one member of it is concerned, he does not expect to see books made of paper and leather that will stand the use and abuse that some men and women will give them. He advises that Saints learn to treat their books decently and as they should do; and he is satisfied that when they do this the Board will cease to hear such continued complaint of poor binding.

We do not write this to reflect upon Conference, nor upon those who desire to see a better class of binding on the Church books, but as a reminder to all readers to treat their books better.

THE following notice of the choosing in of men to fill the Utah apostolic quorum was selected a good while ago for the HERALD, but was overlooked in the press of matter.

The Mormon apostles filled two long-standing vacancies in their ranks to-day, by the election of George Teasdale and Heber J. Grant. The latter is a young man, and so far as known a monogamist. He is the first monogamist admitted to the apostles since the pretended revelation concerning plural marriage. The selections cause general astonishment and chagrin, Teasdale being a conspicuously weak man intellectually, and Grant a mere boy, not yet 30; while old, able, and tried elders are ignored. It is understood John Taylor made the selection.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE name of Bro. James Caffall should appear in the list of names of the Quorum of Twelve as sustained in the regular order. Also, there should have appeared in the minutes of Saturday evening, April 14th, that there was preaching at 7:30, by Bro. A. H. Smith, assisted by Bro. E. C. Briggs. Also a mistake was made in conference minutes where it is stated that George Montague was recommended to "present field," and amended by adding "Indian Territory." The facts are that Indian Territory was included in George Montague's present field. The amendment was in the case of J. T. Davis recommended to "present field" (Missouri and Kansas), which was amended by adding Indian Territory. These items were unintentionally omitted, and we trust no offense will be taken, as no slight or disrespect was intended.

It is stated by the Deseret News that the laws of Norway in respect to religious bodies have been so modified that even the Latter Day Saints have a right to hold services and establish branches, without fear of legal molestation. So far so good. If this has been done at the solicitation of lawyers employed by the Utah Church, it is still a step toward human liberty and should be welcome to mankind.

Bro. C. M. Fulks wrote from Weir City, Kansas, a long and chatty letter, chiefly about the pleasure he had in meeting and conversing with an old-time Saint, by the name of Scammins. Bro. Fulks states that Bro. J. T. Davies is actively engaged in his field of appointment. Bro. Davies is well received and is doing well.

Brn. A. H. Smith and J. W. Brackenbury have formed a real estate co-partnership at Independence, Missouri, for the sale of lands. It may be well for those wishing settlement there, or in the regions about, to give them a call. Bro. Smith will be the traveling agent, and Bro. Brackenbury the local agent; address the firm Smith and Brackenbury. See card in HERALD.

THE following is placed under the head of "Publications Received" in the Phrenological Journal, from which I transcribe.

"Utah and its people. Facts and statistics bearing on the Mormon problem. By a Gentile." If one half of the showing of this pamphlet be true, a city controlled by Mormon civilization is happier than it would be under Christian. The taxes are represented as low, so low that Utah ought to be a farmers's paradise; and as compared with other states and territories. This Gentile says there are few liquor saloons and disreputable places in Utah; and where such places exist, they are run and sustained by anti-Mormons. He also says that ninety-eight per cent of the gamblers in Utah, and ninety-five per cent of the lawyers are Gentiles. But this sort of evidence, good as it is, would not convert us to Mormonism, so long as polygamy is upheld as a cardinal virtue in its system.

Bro. Wm. Anderson, of Oakland, California, wrote April 27th:

I was glad to hear from you and to learn of the success achieved at the late Annual Conference. I felt a deep interest in its prosperity; it has given us the best advertising we, as a church, ever had. All the papers have had something to say; some state nearly facts, others anything else but facts. The cause in this northern district has received a new impetus. Preparations are being made for some preaching. Bro. Phillips has succeeded in getting an opening in a new place (Walnut Creek), and sent me to dish out the truth. I made the effort, before a large congregation, and expect to continue as often as possible until some one else can be found as a substitute. Several have been baptized lately, and more will follow Sunday, so I learn.

The Wild Man from the Mountains (Thomas R. Daily) has been to the city and raised quite a little stir in one of the sects' meetings, by relating his little experience among them; he is one of the Lord's curiosities. Bro. H. P. Brown is taking quite an interest in the work. Bro. Haws is quite poorly, not able to follow his business; he thinks of going to Nevada soon with his brother, and camp in the mountains. Bro. George S. Lincoln is trying hard to get up an interest in the city; he is untiring in his effort to spread the truth. Some fellow commented on our late Conference through the Bulletin. I wrote a short reply and sent George S. Lincoln with it to the Evening Bulletin but they refused to publish it. Their excuse was they could not allow a controversy through their paper and my article would call one forth. And so it would.

Mary Shields, horribly mangled during the cyclone at Wesson, Miss., has died.

Lake vessels which were caught in the storm of Thursday night are coming into port at Chicago in bad condition, and a number of minor mishaps are recorded.

May 7th.—The town of Koningshoff, in Bohemia, was nearly destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. It was an important manufacturing center, and many operatives are left without houses or employment.

The Alaska, which came in to New York, yesterday, beat her best previous westward record by two hours, her time being 6 days 23 hours and 48 minutes. Moody and Sankey, the revivalists, who were among the passengers, held services every day and several leading members of temperance organizations talked, and succeeded in getting ninety of the passengers to sign the total abstinence pledge.

The number of persons killed by tornadoes in this country in 1881 was 187; in 1882, 369, and up to date (May 6th) this year the number is estimated at 250.

Two hundred persons who have reason to believe themselves to be included in the category of "suspects" are said to have left Dublin since the beginning of the second private inquiry into the murder conspiracy.

While the men were coming up from work in the Vale Mine, N. S., a rope broke, and the boxes ran down the slope, killing four men and two boys, and fatally injuring two men and two boys.

At least seventy lives have been lost by the burning of the steamer Grappler, off Victoria, B. C. Two bodies only were recovered with the survivors. Harrowing accounts are given of the disaster.

A barn 200 feet long, containing 500 tons of hay, burned last evening at Pittsburgh, Pa. The stock-yards narrowly escaped destruction. Loss $30,000. The origin of the fire was incendiary.

Information is received from Fort Apache, N. M., that 1,200 San Carlos Indians have left the agency and are settling in the mountains around that post, and demand corn and small grain for seed. The commanding officer, Capt. W. E. Dougherty, has issued 6,000 pounds of corn and asked the Secretary of the Interior for small seed. Fears are entertained that there will be difficulty in keeping them quiet, as they will not return to the agency, and there is no provisions for supplies.

Information is received here that a band of marauding Comanches raided the Cons Cattle Company's ranch in Garter county, Texas, run off a number of horses, killed several cattle, and that a party of well-armed cowboys were in hot pursuit.

The agricultural laborers of England and Scotland, whose condition is believed by many to be as bad as that of the same classes in Ireland, have succeeded at last in forcing Ministerial action in their interests. The government yesterday announced that it had completed the preparation of the Tenant-Farmers' Compensation bill. This will guarantee to farmers compensation for whatever improvements they may make during their tenancies, and provides for arbitration to settle disputes between farmers and landlords as to the proper amount of compensation. In all cases where arbitration is resorted to the referee will have the power to determine the increased renting-value of the land made by the tenant's improvements, and use this determination to prevent unjust evictions by means of raising rents, the tenant being allowed to demand arbitration whenever he believed the increase unfair. The bill will also limit distraint for the rent to one year. The bill is decidedly progressive, and indicates the Government's intention to propitiate the uneasy radical element in England which is fast growing strong, and which has in the agricultural districts made itself a power, and is being used scrupulously and unscrupulously by agitators who have come to the front.

An entire family of white persons, a boy and girl only escaping, were murdered near the Village of Palaccos, Cuba. Alonzo Rivers, a wealthy tobacco-grower, was shot dead while driving home with his family, near Pinar Del Rio.

May 8th.—Timothy Kelly was placed on trial for the third time in Dublin yesterday. The informer Carey swore that with the exception of Brady every one of the arrested "Invincibles" offered to turn Queen's evidence, and that he was the last one to do so.

At Pana, Ills., Ex-City Marshal, S. V. Roseberry, his wife, daughter, and youngest son were dangerously poisoned last Saturday evening by eating peaches that had been put up in tin cans. During the night they were so violently ill that none were able to get for assistance. Next day a physician was summoned, who gave relief, and all are now out of danger.

Before daybreak yesterday morning, East St. Louis was visited by the most disastrous fire it has ever known. No less than twenty-five dwellings were destroyed and fifty families rendered homeless. The loss is placed at $50,000, and as there is only a partial insurance, many of the victims are rendered penniless as well as homeless.

The original of Uncle Tom, the character made famous by Mrs. Stowe's work, died at Dresden, Ont., Saturday, aged ninety-four years. The true name of Uncle Tom was Josiah Henson, and during his lifetime was known and addressed as Uncle Si. He was one of the finest specimens of his race, shiny black skin, keen, restless eyes, intelligent face, framed by a full silver gray beard, head bald only a little way back from the forehead, and covered for the most part with a wealth of snowy wool. While in England in 1876, he lectured about fifty times in London, and preached from pulpits where formerly stood Wesley and Whitfield. He left England to go through Scotland and Ireland, and then return home, and had got to Edinburgh when a summons from the Lord High Chamberlain brought him back to London and Windsor Castle. Queen Victoria received him with great cordiality, declaring that she could not let him, whom she had known of since she was a young lady, return to America without seeing him, gave him her photograph, which bore her autograph, the whole set in a solid gold frame. He also received a fine gold watch from a wealthy English family.

May 9th.—The sentence of death passed upon Patrick Delaney, one of the assistants in the Phenix Park murders, who pleaded guilty to the crime with which he was charged, has been commuted to penal servitude for life.

Very discouraging reports as to the condition of winter wheat in Illinois are made to the State Department of Agriculture. According to the returns made up to May 1st from nearly 1,600 townships the wheat has been so damaged by the fly, by winter-killing, and other causes that it will not realize more than 40 per cent of a full crop.

The most terrific hail-storm ever seen in Colorado visited Denver about 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The hail stones were of immense size, and heaped up in the streets a depth of from four to five inches. The ground appeared as though a great snow had occurred. In twenty minutes there was a rainfall of two inches. So violent was the fall that it was dangerous for man or beast to venture out of doors. All over the city the tin roofs were cut and houses flooded. The loss to merchants and owners of buildings will aggregate many thousands, while the damage of orchards, gardens, and crops within the belt of the storm is immense. All manner of vegetation was crushed and torn to pieces by the great deluge: windows and skylights of large blocks were crushed in, and the buildings flooded. Horses, attached to vehicles were terrified and ran madly through the streets, smashing wagons and carriages to pieces. Several houses were struck by lightning, and a number of persons injured in various ways by the storm. It is said by historians in Denver that this was the greatest hail-storm ever seen in the United States.

May 10th.—The English Government succeeded yesterday in convicting Timothy Kelley of murder in connection with the Phoenix Park tragedy, and sentenced him to death. The government, on the third trial, intended to secure a verdict and postpone the trial in order to secure other informer's corroboration of Carey's evidence, which, in the two previous trials, had failed to convict. The prosecuting counsel have throughout been convinced of Kelley's guilt; but popular feeling as to the methods employed ran so high as to prevent an agreement by the juries. The verdict was secured entirely by the confession of Delaney, made at the time when he pleaded guilty and was sentenced, which strongly contradicted the alibi evidence put in, and to which the court particularly attracted the attention of the new jury.

In the Italian Chamber of Deputies yesterday the Premier, Depretis, in replying to a question concerning the home policy of the government, said that force would be quickly used to suppress all attempts to create any public disturbance, and while abroad the government expected to maintain peace, it also intended to sustain existing treaties, and to see that they were respected by other nations.

A fearful storm of wind, rain and hail passed over Dubuque, Iowa, yesterday afternoon. Trees, walls, telephone wires and sheds were prostrated. One large frame house on the hill was blown to pieces, but only one of the inmates was seriously hurt. The children in the public schools were in a panic and were with difficulty restrained from rushing out in the storm. In the Fourth Ward School most of the windows exposed to the storm were broken and the building flooded. The steamer Ben Hershey, tied up at the levee, was blown across the river and stranded on a sandbar, and several barges were carried away. Wooden sidewalks were floated and washed down the streets. The damage in the city will reach many thousands of dollars. It is the most terrible storm experienced here for many years. Outside of the city great damage was done to the grain fields in washing away the soil and recently sown seed.

The loss by the sinking of the steamer Big Horne, near Poplar River, Minn., yesterday, will aggregate fully $325,000. Very little of the cargo care be saved, and the vessel will be a total loss.

Early yesterday morning a fire occurred at Vermontville, Mich., resulting in the destruction of a large saw and planing mill and the loss of two lives, Park Grimes, one of the owners of the mill, and Cassius Ides, an old mill man, were the names of the persons lost.

One of the most serious accidents that has ever occurred at a fire in New Haven, Conn., happened last night, flames were discovered in the loft of a livery stable, which was soon under control, with a loss of about $5,000. There was some danger apprehended from the wall on Center street, and just as the order was given to the firemen to stand from under, the wall fell burying eight men under the debris. Two of them are fatally injured and the others are more or less seriously. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

Farm laborers, who are conspiring near Muncie, to destroy self-binding reapers, last night fired Adam Sheller's barn near Desota, Ind. The building, containing six horses, a number of cows, farming implements and one self-binder, was consumed. There is considerable agitation here over the outrage, as a number of barns containing self-binders have been burned here this spring.

An accident occurred last night to a regular day passenger train bound for Chicago, which might have resulted in serious loss of life. Shortly after the train had passed Muncie, Ind., the gas stove in the baggage car exploded, setting fire to the entire outfit. The clothes of the newsboy in the baggage car caught fire while he was attempting to suppress the flames. The express messenger attempted to extinguish the flames, and in so doing received most serious injuries. The bell-rope was burned, so that no communication could be had with the engineer to stay the flying train. The boy jumped from the blazing car, and finally, when the flames burst from the car, the engineer saw the trouble, and stopped the train. But before this was done the whole interior of the car was ablaze. It was filled with the passengers' baggage, and express and mail matter, all of which was consumed. There were no means of extinguishing fire on the train, and it had to be allowed to burn itself out, thus delaying the train nearly four hours.

THIEVES IN ENGLAND.

FROM a return of judicial statistics for the year 1881, issued by the Home Secretary, it appears that there are no fewer than 71,637 known thieves and depredators in England and Wales. Of these, however, only 39,161 are in a position to carry on active operations, the rest being in convict or local prisons. These criminals are worse than drones in a social hive. They are the Ishmaelites of society preying upon honest people when out of prison, and supported at the public expense when in. Without reckoning the value of property stolen and not recovered during the year, we find that the cost of police and prisons in 1881 in England and Wales was nearly four millions sterling, which has to be defrayed either by direct or indirect taxation.

ADELL, Dallas Co., Iowa.

Dear Herald:—It has been but a short time since I obeyed the Gospel and I do not regret it; as I know it is the Church of God. My wife, myself, and four others were baptized January 30th, 1883, and I shall always give God the honor. He says in his Holy word, "Harden not your hearts; ye believe in God, believe also in me." I rejoice that I did not turn away when I had a chance to hear the word. Bro. W. Nirk came into our neighborhood and had meetings at our school-house, and the neighbors thought the best way to get rid of them was to stay at home; they thought that there might be some weak minded ones who might join them old Mormons; but bless God for the truth, and I think if we only live faithful until death shall change this cold world into heaven, we still will rejoice more than ever. Brothers and sisters, let us try and be faithful and show to the world that we are the children of God. There are eight of us here now, and we have meeting every week, and have a good time. My health has been very poor for years, but since I have obeyed the gospel I have had such good health, that it seems that it can't be myself. To-day I feel stronger in the faith than ever, and why? The reason is, that God never turns any away empty if we ask in the right way; and thank God, I have found the right way. It was one year that I was in a great study to know the right church, but when I heard the brethren preach I was not so much at a loss; but then this Mormonism was the drawback there; but it did not draw me back very far; I soon saw that that was only an effort to break down the truth; but thanks be to God it takes more than man to do that. Let us show to the world that we are not so weak minded as they suppose. G. H. Joy.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wisconsin,

April 29th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I am very much pleased with the Herald. I was one among the many that was very anxious for it to become a weekly. There is no branch of the Church here, so the Herald and the Spirit have to do the preaching for me. If anything occurs that I don't get my Herald Saturday night, I am more disappointed than I would be without my Sunday dinner. Its pages are a source of joy and comfort to me, and I pray that all that write for it may be inspired to set forth the truth in simplicity and clearness, that the poor and unlearned may understand the great gospel plan of Jesus Christ that we may measure ourselves by it, and see if we have embraced the truth for the love of it. Beloved Saints, it is not enough that we obey the truth because we fear God will punish us if we don't, or even because he will reward us if we do; but if we obey the truth because we love it, because it is the only clement we can enjoy ourselves in, then and not till then are we fit for the gift of Eternal Life with that same free agency that was given to us before the foundations of this earth were laid. If any one has an idea that our father, Adam, brought the principle of evil into existtance, I believe it must be a mistaken or incorrect idea. I believe the principle of evil ever did and ever will exist, and is as essential for our perfection as the principle of good. I see no way of comprehending the good only by its opposite, or the presence of evil; hence the necessity of our having it to contend with all through our probation. Jesus praying for his apostles, he said, "I pray thee, Father, not that thou wouldst take them out of the world, but that thou wouldst preserve them from the evils of the world. I have overcome the world." Now if we can by the help of the Spirit and the teachings of the gospel of Christ overcome the evils of the world, day by day, till we have finished our race here; O, how great will be our joy to say with our Master, "I have overcome the world." May we never be shaken, or yield till we have gained the prize—Eternal Life.

Your brother in Gospel,

RICHARD PREATOR.

BYESVILLE, Ohio,

April 30th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I write to apprise you of the rapid progress the Church is making in this part. Some time ago there was a request made through the Herald by a Mr. Luke Sharp, of this place, asking that one of the Elders of the Reorganized Church would call and see him; also made the statement that there was a minister here by the name of W. M. McBroom, who would like very much to have the privilege of exchanging views with one of our Elders. On reading the above notice I immediately wrote Bro. Sharp a card, the import of which was, that I would visit him providing he would get me a house to speak in. In reply he wrote me to come, that he would procure me a house. Accordingly I went, and on my arrival here I had an interview with Mr. McBroom. He stated that he would like to debate the points of difference between us, which I gladly agreed to do; but before leaving his house he changed his mind, making the plea that his throat was sore and his lungs were affected, in view of which he did not think he would dare enter into discussion just then; but peradventure he would before I leave the town. He then informed me I could have the use of his church to preach in just as long as I wished, providing he did not want to use it himself. I accepted his invitation and preached for six nights, to an audience that would average two or three hundred; enjoyed excellent liberty. By this time a number of the Second Advents (to which church the Reverend belonged) had become very much interested in our doctrine, and so expressed themselves to him; but this did not meet his approbation, from the fact, he did as all others have done by us, when they discovered that some of their flock have their eyes open to the truth, he closed his church against me, and then undertook to expose Mormonism. Still he did not meet the issue fairly and squarely, as he had previously promised to do; neither did his despicable actions meet the approval of the citizens, as on the third night that he spoke on Mormonism there were but eighteen persons out to hear him. I have had the pleasure of baptizing seven here, five since the Kirtland Conference. There are many more who are on the verge of coming into the Church. I organized a branch, named Byesville; Bro. Luke Sharp, President, Bro. Geo. Rosser, Priest; Bro. Wm Moor, Teacher. I sincerely believe that we will have a large branch here in a short time. I leave here for West Wheeling in company with Bro. M. S. Sutton to attend to regulating the Branch. This Branch is in a very bad condition and has been for some few years. They are not having any meetings there at present, but the prospects are that every thing will work out all right bye and bye. There are more calls for preaching than we can attend to. We ask an interest in the prayers of all Saints.

Yours in the one faith,
G. T. GRIFFITHS.

SPRING-TIME HAS COME AGAIN.

WYANDOTTE, Kas.,
April 19th, 1883.

For the Herald:—As the first bright days of Spring come and make glad the heart of man—more glad because the chilling blasts of Winter are past—so doth love come with joyous tidings to the hearts of many and heal the wounds of years gone by. Wednesday the 21st day of March, was one of the first pleasant days of spring, and its evening was one of the most beautiful. The moon bathed mother earth in a flood of golden light, the stars shone in all their brightness and seemed to contend for superiority over each other, warriors had laid down their implements of war,—the sword being forged into plow-shares—man had ceased all strife among men, all was calm and peaceful, love and fidelity ruled supreme, and God looked down from out the portals of heaven and said “Blessed be thou, ye band of faithful Saints assembled in my name, for I will hearken unto thy supplications and bless thee in the name of my Son.”

Surely, they were a blessed throng, for never was there a more intensely interesting Saints' meeting than was held that night under the hospitable roof of Sister Allen. Faithful Saints—true believers in their doctrine of salvation—seekers after the truth—old and young—and strangers to the church were there assembled, and all joined in singing “Come thou fount of every blessing,” and all heads bowed as prayers by the devoted leader, and brother and sister Saints went up to heaven, and the deepest interest was paid as testimonial after testimonial of God's power and wisdom and goodness and the glorious work of the sainted church were given; until it seemed as if we were standing on hallowed ground in the very presence of the great and Almighty God. Thus progressed the meeting of this glorious band of pilgrims, each testifying of glorious things and praying for each other, till the hour grew late, when the God-chosen leader, Benjamin J. Franklin, arose from his seat, and with a peculiar movement drew forth a document making legal the union in holy bonds of matrimony of Bro. Alphonso Milotte and Sister Caroline Allen of Wyandotte, Wyandotte county, Kansas, which was solemnized by the leader, and they stood before God in the sight of man and the law as husband and wife, and were greeted with the joyous congratulations of the surprised yet happy band of Saints. A sumptuous repast was served and all united in singing the marriage hymn, and thus ended this glorious meeting which may ever bring to the happy and worthy couple the highest degree of prosperity and happiness that is allotted to mortals here below. May the sun shine down upon them in all his brightness, and may heaven strew their pathway with flowers and golden opportunities through life; and when death, with its dark mantle shall come to claim its own, may their eyes be closed in silence and their hands folded each upon the other's breast, and may they be placed together, side by side, beneath nature's green heath, and rest for all time to come in the arms of Jesus, for 'tis said, “Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder.”

“Our summer may squander
A blaze serener, grander;
Our autumn beam
May, like a dream
Of heav'n, die calm away;
But, no—let life before us
Bring all the light it may,
‘Twill ne'er shed idly o'er us
Like that first youthful ray.”

KEWANEE, Ill., May 2d, 1883.

Bro. Joseph: Since my return from General Conference I have been called by telegram from Bro. T. F. Stafford of Lewiston, Illinois, as some of his family were stricken down by the hand of affliction; but thanks be to our Master, we left them rejoicing in the blessings of God. I expect to start this week for Millersburg, Buffalo Prairie, and Rock Island county; and thence into Eastern Iowa. I wish to say to those in some parts of the Kewanee District who seem to complain because they do not have as much preaching in their immediate vicinity as they ought, to please remember that the district embraces quite a large territory; and to further remember that the president is the only one that has been traveling and preaching in the district, and therefore all points can not be reached at once; and please further remember, that the president has in some parts where this complaint seems to come from, done more preaching than in any other part of the entire district. I expect to continue my services in the field assigned me at the last General Conference, and do all I can for the advancement of the cause we all love so well, and for its ultimate triumph will labor and pray.

Yours in the one faith,
H. C. BRONSON.

GREAT BEND, Kan., May 9th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph: I received the Heralds yesterday, for which accept my thanks. In looking over their columns, and reading of the progress of the work everywhere, my soul was stirred with that blessed blissful emotion that comes to us through the hope of the gospel. I read with pure Christian pride the article submitted to the Secretary of State in behalf of the Church, signed by yourself and Bro. Gurley. It is to me a noble effort, and one that will do much to show the difference between the true and the false. I am glad the distinction is being forced upon the world, without feeling any disloyalty to the truth which I have received, the gospel that is dearer to me than any worldly thing. I have always felt a timidity in being called a Mormon, the reason for which every lover of truth, honor, and virtue, will see at a glance. I have always willingly and gladly expressed my faith and belief to every inquiring person, but I have always hesitated to say I was a “Mormon.” I love the Book of Mormon and wish that I might adhere closer to its principles. But when I look back over the history of the Church, of the terrible evils connected with it, I sometimes shrink from bearing any of the burden of those evils, even by accepting the name under which they have been perpetrated. In the doctrines which I have received I find no principles to be ashamed of, and upon those principles I build all my hopes, both for the present and the future life.

I rejoice in one thing, that since I have been in the Church, I have been under the best of teaching in doctrine, for if any point of doctrine needs “airing,” it usually goes through the process at Lamoni; consequently, I feel pretty well founded in the faith, yet fully realize the danger of falling by the way. I pray that I may hold out faithful and true to the end of the race. I pray for the Church, especially with whom I have been so pleasantly associated in the past few years, and to whom I feel deeply grateful for their kind love and forbearance. I am interested in the future of Lamoni, especially the young Saints of that place. I pray that they may conduct themselves to the honor and glory of God, and fit themselves for use in His kingdom. Remember me in your prayers, and in your meetings.

Your brother in the Gospel,
OSCAR L. FERGUSON.

FALL RIVER, Mass., May 3d, 1883.

Brother Joseph:—I arrived home last Saturday. On my way home in company with F. M. Sheehy, we visited Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Horners-town, N. J. And I went to Oakdale, Long Island; F. M. staying at Brooklyn. I stayed at Oakdale three days; spoke three times, and baptized two men. Our district conference convenes on the 5th inst here; looking for a splendid gathering.

In hope,
JOHN GILBERT.

Dear Herald:—In order to obviate the necessity of writing quite a number of individual letters, I will reach the interested ones through your columns. At the close of the conference, the good byes were exchanged with many, and again at Cleveland with others, and at Toledo I found none were going my way, except Sr. Robinson and son, of Peoria. I called at Peoria and visited two or three days; then on to Canton, stopped over night, and spoke to the little band of Saints; thence on to Burnside, the home of my boyhood. Spent a week visiting old time associates; spoke once in the Christian Church; thence to Carthage, took in the city; but old father time has wrought many changes. In walking the streets, where once almost every face was familiar, all were strangers now; I met only one of my old associates, Wm. R. Hamilton, Ex Sheriff of the county. I visited the Republican office and had a pleasant chat with the Editor, J. M. Davidson, who by the way is a gentleman and a scholar, and is related by marriage with the royal family of Springer. I also had a view of the beautiful phiz of T. C. Sharp,—the old fossil remains who runs the Gazette: his face was quite familiar forty years ago, and I am glad to state that he retains his primitive beauty remarkably well. I visited the old jail building, which brought to my mind sad reminiscences of the long ago. It is now occupied by J. M. Browning, Esq., a very estimable gentleman. On the afternoon of April 30th, in company with my dear old mother, I started for home, arriving at Keokuk, that prince of good fellows, and Bro. “chip,” B. F. Durfee, met us at the depot with a carriage to convey mother to his house; which he did without much ceremony,—and I was coolly informed that an appointment for me to speak that night was out, and I talked a while to the Saints and friends; not very satisfactory to myself on account of a severe cold in my head; but we did have a splendid visit with Bro. Durfee and his estimable family,—a bright spot in my pilgrimage. Arrived at home safely on May 1st, found all well and a welcome all around the circle. In conclusion I will say to those of my field of labor in Missouri and Arkansas, I expect to be with them ere long, and strive by the help of the Master to perform my whole duty to God and man, tenderly, lovingly, and fearlessly, Yours determindly,

B. V. SPRINGER.

ALLISTON, Ontario,
April 30th, 1883.

Dear Brother:—Through the kind representations of Bro. J. H. Lake, I was appointed by General Conference to labor in Canada. I was also requested by the district conference to labor in Canada. I took the field immediately after appointment and have been in it ever since, till the 26th inst.; have met with much success in way of new openings and numerous Macedonian cries; but in all my experience, with all the preaching that I have done, I have met with less success in the item of additions by baptism than in any like period of time before. The hard winter may have had something to do in retarding, as many have said, "You tell the truth;" "I have heard more truth from you in one sermon than I ever heard from any one man before," &c. I met with very little opposition or misrepresentation, as the people seem to be wakening to the distinction between the Latter Day Saints and Brighamism; in some places more slowly than in others, however. I have enjoyed much liberty in presenting the word. Made one opening at a place called Bloomfield, in Prince Edward county; where I had to walk from Picton five miles every night and walk back after preaching, (Queer hospitality?), yet the town hall was lighted, heated, and furnished free and the people turned out well, and expressed themselves favorably, in some cases decidedly for us.

During my absence, however, it did not fare so well with my poor wife as she got her leg broken above the ankle and the ankle dislocated four weeks ago last Saturday, she is progressing favorably, no doctors however; bone set, ankle in its right place, all by the kind Master's love and the faith and prayers of the Saints. She utterly refused to have a doctor set the bone on any account. The pain however continues very severe, although she is able to walk on it by the aid of a stick.

There are quite a number of old-time Saints and some Brighamites that I have got the addresses of, scattered in different parts of Canada which I did intend visiting, but for the mishap to my wife calling me back sooner than I expected; but I hope to be able to reach some of them yet, and shall write to others, and try preaching by the pen if I can not reach them any other way. As you have always been so kind as to send me tracts for distribution I still presume on your generosity to ask you to send another bundle as I find them almost invaluable; particularly in removing the idea that we are Brighamites, and removing prejudice against the doctrine. People have come to the meetings saying; "I got one of your tracts, liked it; supposed you were same as the Mormons; see differently now, and such like remarks. Hope you had a peaceful and good conference at Kirtland. The leading papers in the United States are or have been filled with rehearsals and other items (some of interest) on Mormonism, growing out of the Kirtland assembly. Surely the Saints are beginning to find "grace in the eyes of the people." The constant importuning at the feet of the President of the nation has not been in vain. May God bless the good work and bless you indeed. I know of a surity it is as true as God himself, for it is his own word and work; it must go on till it fills the whole earth. Pray for me in my weakness and failings, that I may receive strength and grace to overcome the flesh and the devil. I am not so much afraid of the world—my great fear is self, or the flesh. The Saints here have become apathetic since I left them, the officers here do little or nothing to keep up the spirits of the Saints. In Egremont they are alive to the work and trying to do their duty, elsewhere the work in Canada so far as report is in general good.

Ever praying for the good to prevail, I remain in gospel bonds, your brother, JAMES A. McINTOSH.

ASHLAND, Nebraska,
May 5th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I have been reading the Herald which makes me rejoice to see how the good work is advancing. I have been greatly strengthened through reading and searching its columns, as it is the only way I have had of hearing a gospel sermon for over a year. I believe the last was by Bro. R. M. Elvin, which was greatly with power and demonstration of the Spirit. I not only take pleasure in reading the Herald, but love to let my friends and neighbors have them to read. I am still contending for the faith once delivered to the Saints. I know that I am a very weak mortal, and many times do err; but then I have assurance of an advocate with the Father. And when the burdens of earth become grievous he is always willing to cheer me up, and speak words of comfort and encouragement. Thus day by day we can discover renewed evidence of our acceptance with God, and the divinity of the work. My desire is to prove faithful. Pray for me.

In hope of eternal life,

CLAYTON BARGAR.

WEBBERVILLE, Ingham Co., Mich.,
May 7th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—We are glad to receive your weekly visits, as the Herald and Advocate are all the preachers we have. It is over four years since we moved from London, Canada, and I have not seen a Saint since, except my own family and one sister, who is a sister in the gospel as well as in the flesh. My sister and I are doing all we can to enlighten the minds of the people here. May God give his blessing and help them to the light of the gospel. We are lending our books, papers and tracts to any who will read them. There are some who would like to hear one of our Elders. My son is waiting to be baptized. I have great reason to bless God for what he is doing for me and mine.

I remain your sister in the gospel,

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., May 2d, 1883.

Brother Joseph:—One month ago I was made choice of to preside over the Independence Branch. I found things in a bad condition; but we are making a settling up of matters. Additions to the branch are made about every Sunday, some from other branches. Bro. Alexander gave us a good sermon about the General Conference at Kirtland, Ohio, on his return home. He wants me to go into Nodaway county, and I leave in a little while on his call. All goes well.

Mr. Editor of the Herald:—I was reading your Herald the other day, and noticed a letter from one of the members asking for an able Elder, if there was one to be had. I see nothing wrong in that that he should have got the answer he did. The answer sounds to me like an insult, don't it to you. "Exactly, we will comply as soon as our new invoice of able Elders arrives and we get them properly sorted, very able, able, good, partly able, unable, and disabled." Now, that don't sound like a proper answer to me. I like to see things done right and in the right way. I am not a member of the Church, but believe in the gospel. I will ask a question and I hope it will be answered if the above is not. Will some one please tell me if Elias is Elijah?

Bro. Joseph:—The Keystone Branch still occupies a place among the living; and still trying to hold on to the rod of iron, and keep the banner of King Jesus afloat. On Saturday, April 28th, Bro D. Hougas made us a visit, preached twice with good liberty to full houses. May 5th, Bro. G. E. Deuel came in our midst, the word was sent around, and we met at the school-house at half-past seven and listened to one of the most powerful discourses it has been our privilege to hear. On Sunday at eleven o'clock, he spoke again with power and the Spirit that did our hungry souls good. At three o'clock we met at the house of Bro. Wm. Schick, and partook of the emblems of the Lord's Supper, and then spent some time in prayer and testimony. The Spirit was manifest with us. In the evening we met at the school-house again and Bro. Deuel spoke to us, with feeling and power. He left us with many strong requests to come again

A SERMON IN RHYME.

If you have a friend worth loving,
Love him. Yes, and let him know
That you love him, ere life's evening
Tinge his brow with sunset glow.
Why should good words ne'er be said
Of a friend till he is dead?

If you hear a song that thrills you,
Sung by any child of song,
Praise it. Do not let the singer
Wait deserved praises long.
Why should one who thrills your heart
Lack the joy you may impart?

If you hear a prayer that moves you,
By its humble pleading tone,
Join it. Do not let the seeker
Bow before his God alone.
Why should not your brother share
The strength of "two or three" in pray-er?

If you see the hot tears falling
From a brother's eyes,
Share them. And by sharing
Own your kinship with the skies.
Why should any one be glad
When a brother's heart is sad?

If a silvery laugh is ripp'ing
Through the sunshine on his face,
Share it. 'Tis the wise man's saying—
For both grief and joy a place.
There's health and goodness in the mirth
In which an honest laugh has birth.

If your work is made more easy
By a friendly, helping hand,
Say so. Speak out brave and truly,
Ere the darkness veil the land.
Should a brother workman dear
Falter for a word of cheer?

Scatter thus your seeds of kindness
All enriching as you go—
Leave them. Trust the Harvest Giver
He will make each seed to grow;
So, until its happy end,
Your life shall never lack a friend.

BEARING TESTIMONY OF CHRIST.

A DUE consideration of the relationship which we bear one to another; as also that sustained to the race, prompts men in all nations to give expression to principles, by which declaration, their positions in a religious, or political sense may be properly understood, and they entitled to the benefit of that statement in all subsequent time. That all men are entitled to such right of expression is beyond the peradventure of a doubt. That it is a duty which each in some sense owes to the race and self is also equally true; that by it each soul shall have the benefit of its own choice or selection, as the sum of our differences lies in the "choice" we make, for unto whatsoever a man yieldeth himself "servant to obey" he becomes subject; and in the "selection" each individual undoubtedly thinks he has the best. This fact should teach us the necessity of a large liberality in deed and in truth; a broad charity that has no fears of religious theories, a power of mind to accept or reject as the case may require, knowing and understanding that each man with his work must pass into judgment finally, and at the hands of the Great Judge of the universe receive that which his work merits either good or evil. And all the glory and praise with which man may have lauded and cajoled his fellows while here, will certainly be of no special benefit there, either to the one upon whom such worship has been extravagantly expended, or to the individual who has offered it; for "every man's work shall be made manifest, for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." Hence we see that in the trial or judgment, it is proposed to subject each man's work to a "fiery" ordeal and when thus exposed naught of it will remain but what is right and proper as that which is "fittest" will survive.

I understand that the gospel is the same to-day that it was before the foundation of the earth was laid, as in God there is "no variableness, or shadow of turning;" neither is there in his gospel or plan of saving man: as "it is the power of God unto salvation." But while this is true, yet in different periods of the world's history, and especially in his dealings with those that professed his name, we find that certain dispensations have been given to the people, usually through some prophet as his especial calling and work; not that the gospel or its requirements had become changed, or modified, but simply because the people would not live in harmony with the gospel, and as they could not abide the law of that order and be cleansed under it, a dispensation was given by which a lower grade of spiritual life was administered, and under which they might develop and be saved in that order rather than be entirely lost, hence "the law was added because of transgression;" in this case it was intended as a "schoolmaster," to bring the confessors of it to Christ, or back to the gospel; but to what extent it has succeeded, I am not prepared to say. Much of the dispensation, however committed to Moses, passed away with him; part of the especial work remaining departed at Joshua's death, "the law and the prophets" continuing until John and Christ, when the dispensation committed under Moses was entirely disposed of. The "love of God" and of "neighbor" upon which the gospel is based had remained unchanged during all those long years of patient waiting, by which God desired to save the people, but they would not; and yet notwithstanding these facts, that people called Israel thought they were in possession of the only sacred truth extant, and were disposed to treat uncivilly and unkindly the teachings of those who differed from them, this feeling and sentiment reaching its climax in the crucifixion of Christ.

To us as a church, in 1830, was committed the gospel in its "fulness;" but in 1832, we were told that "condemnation" already rested "upon the children of Zion even all;" and it was specifically stated that said condemnation should remain until "they repent (turn away from something) and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon," &c. To add to a fulness is always dangerous as seen in this case, and as the "return" was not made, the "rejection" of the Church was the inevitable. Now this view seems terrible to some of the old-time Saints, who both think and say, "We had the prophet Joseph with us and why did not he lead us back if it was necessary?" For the same reason, I answer, that Moses did not lead Israel back,—simply because he could not. Nay more, Moses even gave them "the law," and the commands under it which were not good, and in which God had no pleasure, yet Moses and Joseph doubtless did the best that the condition of the people would allow, and does not history repeat itself? The dispensation to, or local interests of the Church forty or fifty years ago and to-day are widely different. If I have anything committed to me above another in this work, it is to insist upon a "return" to that primitive faith, and in this I may have appeared even radical to some of my brethren, or over jealous for the gospel. If so, I trust sincerely that the following statement will be sufficient explanation as to the reason why.

In the month of May, 1877, one afternoon as I sat in my house, I felt suddenly, a pleasant yet peculiar influence and power to rest upon me; first upon my head and then to pass steadily down, until I was enveloped therein. So powerful was this influence, that my bones quaked and felt powerless, and I hastened to rise up and step to the bed near me and lie down; before my lower limbs should lose their strength; instantly, I was in vision, part of which had its fulfillment in the Conference held at Lamoni, last fall; and in the vision, or during the time of it, I received the following:

"Hearken, O Israel, and hear, for thus saith the Lord God; There shall not any man among you teach aught save the gospel of Christ, and this shall ye teach: Faith in God, in Christ, and in the Holy Ghost. Repentance from dead works, and in this let no man think himself able to resist the power of the evil one; but to every soul that desires to repent, I the Lord will give them strength to overcome. Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins, and the laying on of hands for confirmation into the Church and the reception of the Holy Spirit. Resurrection from the dead and eternal judgment, the administration of the Lord's supper, and the organization of the Church after the primitive pattern; This shall ye teach and naught else, saith the Lord God."

After a moment's pause, I received what seemed to me a double portion of the Spirit, and these words: "As I live, saith the Lord God, there is no man who can gather my people; but, in mine own due time, and in mine own way, I will gather my people."

This to me is God's command, and my object in publishing it is, that I may be upon the record, bearing testimony of the Gospel of Christ, by which we may be saved in the celestial glory of God's kingdom, and perchance aid some in coming to an understanding of the truth which makes us free men and women in the sight of God.

Now, in conclusion, a word to those who are called to be Saints; have you not read that in the last days "perilous times shall come;" are you prepared for those "times?" Again: "darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people;" have you sufficient light to protect you from this "gross darkness?" Again: "As with the people, so with the priest;" are you trusting in some priest, prophet, or apostle to guide you? If so, beware; for everything "which can be shaken will be shaken." Let your guide be the Holy Spirit of God, as John the "beloved" expressed it. "But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you; but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him." And as Jesus promised when "the spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth."

Book of Mormon makes promise of the "Holy Ghost" to all "who seek to bring forth God's Zion" in this day.—Remember, that all the "virgins" fell asleep—"as with the people, so with the priest") the midnight cry aroused them all; but one half had "no oil," and those who had, were denominated "wise,"—and they were "wise," because they had taken the Holy Spirit for their guide. No servant of Christ should be a guide for you to follow, only as he follows Christ; hence, my exhortation is, follow no man, but Christ, and thank God for his Spirit to guide you in these days of agitated thought, and when you have learned this by experience, you will have found the key which opens the "hidden portal."

PLEASANTON, Iowa, May 3d, 1883.

SERMON BY ELDER J. W. GILLEN,
OF LAMONI, IOWA,
AT OLD CHURCH NEAR LAMONI,
DECEMBER 31st, 1882.

I call your attention to the reading of the third chapter of the first general epistle of John:

"Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he is pure. Whosoever committeth sin, transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law. And ye know that he was manifested to take away our sins; and in him is no sin. Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not; whosoever sinneth, hath not seen him, neither known him. Little children, let no man deceive you; he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous. He that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil. Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin, for his seed remaineth in him, and he can not sin because he is born of God. In this the children of God are manifest and the children of the devil; whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God; neither he that loveth not his brother. For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning, that we should love one another. Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous. Marvel not my brethren, if the world hate you. We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother, abideth in death. Whosoever hateth his brother, is a murderer; and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him. Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. But whoso hath this world's goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth. And hereby know we that we are of the truth and shall assure our hearts of him. For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things. Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God. And whatsoever we ask we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight. And this is his commandment, that we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment. And he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us."

I thought this morning what time I might occupy, to call your attention to two passages of Scripture. I shall not tell you where they are, but shall quote them. "God is love," connected with another passage, "Perfect love casteth out all fear, for there is no fear in love."

Whether I shall be able to do justice to the text that I have quoted or not is very doubtful. Still if I shall have that assistance from him who is love, perhaps I shall be able to say something that may be for your edification, and this is the only object that I have in view. My desire is, that if by any means I may be able to assist and encourage, and build up the faith of the Saints, and if possible to induce them to a closer walk with God, that they may become more like him. And while my efforts shall be to endeavor to encourage others, and induce a closer walk with God, I too feel admonished of the necessity of endeavoring to practice that which I set forth unto others as obligatory upon them.

"God is love." You will discover that in the Scriptures nowhere is an effort made to prove the existence of a God. It is assumed. And the first declaration we have in the Scriptures is, "In the beginning God."

I do not know that it will be necessary for me to set forth some of the reasons why we believe in the existence of a God; why we accept of a supreme, overruling, governing power. But it seems to me to be quite evident to every thinking mind, to every reasoning individual, that there must be a power superior to man. That there must be some being in existence who is the cause of all things that we behold around us. And it seems to me that present existence argues an eternal existence. Something now exists, and we think, that reasoning from this standpoint we are irresistibly driven to the conclusion, that something must have always existed. For nothing can not produce something. For everything there is, it is evident there must be an adequate cause. We examine ourselves, and we see that we are organized and beautifully arranged, and everything seeming to be adapted to the end in view. Perhaps man is the most intricate piece of machinery in existence; and when we discover a mechanism, an adaptation of means to an end, we certainly conclude that there must have been a designing mind, there must have been a mechanic, an intelligent one too, that understood the arrangement of parts, and understood the end for which the individual thing that is constructed was adapted. We look forth upon the visible world, and as the Psalmist declares: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork."

Now we can not say that law is the cause of this. That is we can not say that law separate and apart from intelligence possibly could produce these things; for we understand law at best to be but a rule of action, or a rule for action. You may define it either way, a rule of action or a rule for action, I care not which way you have it. If it is a rule, there must have been some one to lay down this rule. To simply refer to law, or to chance, or to the working of a law without an individual working by this law, it seems to me is to abandon all claim to being a philosopher.

But some who are willing to admit the argument from design, that is from effect to cause, still desire to carry that same argument to the Deity himself. But we think there is one thing lacking. There is one link missing here. Because before we look for a cause of an effect, we must first come to the conclusion, and be satisfied that that thing is an effect, that it had a beginning. We must certainly prove that it had a beginning, or else we have no right to look for a cause, for the originator of that thing. We have no right to look for a cause if it always existed. If it never had a beginning, it is not an effect, and does not need a cause. When we are arguing from effect to cause, the first thing is to ascertain whether this thing we are examining had a beginning. If there was a time when it did not exist, then there must have been an adequate cause to produce this effect.

When we examine the earth and all there is upon it, we are driven to the conclusion, that there was a time in the history of this earth, when man did not exist. Nay, if we are to accept the deductions of science, there was a time when man could not exist upon it. Not only man, but the present race of animals—there was a time when they could not exist, that the earth was not in a condition for them to subsist upon it, and they could not live there. That the conditions were such that it was not adapted to life upon it at all at one period of its existence. And we go down still farther, if we accept the deductions of science, and we find a time in the history of the earth when it was in its embryotic state, when not only the animals that are now upon it did not exist, nor man nor any living thing. There was a time when life was not upon the planet. We pass down through one strata after another, and we find one grave-yard after another, and we pass down below the era of life, and find a time when no living thing subsisted upon this earth. Hence all that live, whether past or present, at one time were not. They are effects. Then there must be an adequate cause for them.

The Scriptures tell us too, that "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork." If we accept this declaration as it reads, as truth, then we are irresistibly driven to the conclusion, that all that we behold of the various planets is the workmanship of God's hands. And if so we ask, What law, what power it was that placed them in such orderly arrangement by which they move in their orbits, obedient to the laws that govern them?

Law, what is it? The laws of nature, we hear men talking very learnedly about them. We hear men who have never stopped to inquire what is meant by the laws of nature. Why do you use the term just as flippantly as though you understood all about nature and nature's laws? Men talk as though they had gone into the laboratory of nature, and there discovered the secret workings of it, the main springs, and the causes that have produced all these things. Why you say, What do you mean by a law of nature? I apprehend that there is not one in ten of those who use this term that can tell you anything about it. They are simply at a loss, they know nothing about it. Suppose we should have to give a definition of a law of nature, What should we say it is? Simply a fixed, stated, uniform law. A law that acts constantly, uniformly. If any one is able to give us a better definition than that, I have failed to discover what that definition can be. I can not for the life of me tell. I have thought about it, and studied about it when I have heard individuals talk so learnedly about the laws of nature, I have studied in regard to it, and I have used my weak powers to endeavor to find a better definition of the phrase, laws of nature, than this. That they are firmly fixed, universal laws. Some power acting constantly if you will.

The moment we talk about law, or about the existence of law, certainly it refers us to the originator of this law. If law is a rule of action, or a rule for action, I care not which, then there must have been some one who laid down this rule. I care not whether they are the laws of nature, or what we might term the laws of God, or laws for the government of nature, or for the government of man, we hold that all law is the one and the same thing.

We understand that if law is eternal, then the individual making this law must be as eternal, and indeed if there is any difference, must be prior to the law. That if the laws of nature are eternal, then the individual who formed those laws must be eternal also. We inquire what is law? I understand it to be simply the will of God, and that all law is referable to God, to God's will. * * *

We ask, Why does the earth move in its orbit? Why does it have its annual and diurnal motion? Why does it revolve in its elliptic? We answer because it is God's will. God has placed it there, and it is his will that it should thus revolve. Can you tell us any better reason for it? Can there be any better reason for it? All law is the will of God, and upon this hypothesis we argue that all law is eternal, because God himself is eternal. And that everything exists by the will of God, and everything is governed by the will of God. We find that wherever God's law is acting without the agency of man, that law acts in a uniform manner. There is harmony, there is no disorder there. Everything moves forward in its proper order, obedient to the laws that govern it, and everything moves in harmony. But whenever man has anything to do with this law, whenever man is brought into relation to it, whenever he becomes a factor, then we find imperfection. We find things do not move in harmony with the will of God. But all inert matter, all matter, or all bodies that are not possessed of intelligence, that are not endowed with rational powers, all that act as mere machines acted upon, then the law acts constantly, uniformly, without deviation, because they move obedient unto God's will. And therefore they move in harmony.

We understand then, that all law is referable to the will of God. Therefore, when we come to ask the question in regard to positive law, or moral law; whether God commanded certain things because they are right; or whether they are right simply because they are commanded, we are led to the conclusion at once, that if all law is referable to the will of God, then all law must have been and existed eternally. God does not command to-day things simply because they are right, and that other things are right because they are commanded. This question has been agitated very much. Whether certain laws that were given to us, were given because they were right, that is according to the eternal fitness of things; or whether their right and rectitude simply consists in their being a commandment of God.

Now if we take the position that God is eternal, and that all law is the will of God and referable thereto, then we can see that all law has existed from eternity, and that those laws must have been enacted, must have been given expression to, so far as man is concerned,—and we hold that all law is equal so far as intelligent creatures are concerned.

There are only three classes of intelligences with which we are acquainted other than God, so far as I know anything about it, angels, devils, and men. Angels we understand rejoice in doing the will of God. We find that they rejoice in executing his commands. Devils were not always devils it appears, but became such by the violation of some law. Now mark you, "Sin is the transgression of the law." If we take the Scriptural view of the matter, we will say that devils rebelled, these certain spirits rebelled, and are "reserved now in chains of darkness unto the judgment of the great day." That they are undergoing a certain punishment, and are held in reserve for a punishment. If we take this ground, then we are certainly irresistibly driven to the conclusion that law existed there, and that they violated that law.

The angels kept the law, whoever they are. No matter who they are, or what they are, whether they came into existence at a certain period of time, or whether they always existed. What they are has nothing to do with the inquiry this morning. But we simply say, that according to the Scriptures there was a certain class of spirits which rebelled. We care not when they had a beginning, or how they had a beginning, or what the character of their rebellion was. It simply appears that there was a law, and that they failed to keep that law whatever it was.

Now our object is to show that this law is binding upon man, that is upon all intelligences, that it is universal. Why? Because we claim that this law is love, the law of love. And we hold that this law has been in existence always, from all eternity. We hold inasmuch as God is love, that everything that he has made, that everything that he has formed was formed in love, and for the benefit of his creatures.

Should it be proven, or should it be taken for granted, or should they accept the statement made in the revelation, that there are thousands of worlds like this, and there are intelligences living upon them. You may accept this statement, or you may reason by analogy, and say that other planets are surrounded by atmospheres, and adapted to man equally as well as the one upon which we live. You may go still farther and reason from analogy, or take the revelation, as a statement of a fact, that there are other worlds, and that they are peopled with intelligences. Let that be as it may. We hold that this law of love is universal. We hold that it is adapted to all intelligences, whether there be men upon the other planets, or whether there be angels, that all are governed by the one general law, and that law is love. And we hold that when the Savior said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself," he referred to the relation of the creature with the Creator, of one individual with another; and we see it is adapted to individuals who may live in communities. It presents our duty to our neighbors, as well as the creature's duty to God.

We find when we look at it in this manner, that the law is eternal, that it existed from all eternity, and that it is universal, and that the will of God to Adam, and the law of God to other individuals, are but expressions, are but single enactments or manifestations of this particular law, or rather particular manifestations of this law, expressions of it.

We hold that all laws are alike, they are but simple expressions of the one grand law. That each expression is but a particular manifestation of this law. That the law existed before the enactment.

Now in regard to the government of man, we understand that in the far distant past when these spirits rebelled, whenever it was, we understand that they failed to keep the law of God, whatever the particular nature of the rebellion was, that the principle of it was, that they sinned in not loving God. Had they loved God they would have obeyed him, no matter what the particular requirement was, no matter what they were commanded to do, I care not what it was. The principle that they transgressed, was love to God. It was not a particular enactment that they transgressed; they did not keep this general law, love to God. And I think too, that the love to their fellow creature, or their fellow spirit was violated too. Because not satisfied with their own transgression, they sought to lead others into a like rebellion, and sin from their allegiance and their duty to God. And therefore, not only did they fail to love God themselves, but they held out inducements to others to ignore, or to set aside this love to God, to turn away from it. So that both love to God and love to man, upon which "hangs all the law and the prophets," was violated by them, and because of this violation they were cast out, and are reserved unto chains of darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

God is love, and we hold that whatever laws he gives to man are given in love, and for the good of man. In the garden of Eden God gave to man a law. Now I understand that the general law had existed before from all eternity. But this particular expression of it was then given. "Of every tree in the garden thou mayst freely eat; but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat." Why? Simply because God has commanded it, if you will; and you as the creature, owing love to God, ought cheerfully and willingly to observe whatever law God has given you.

Why? It seems reasonable when we come to the conclusion that God is our Creator, that he has fitted up the earth for our abode; that he has adorned it with everything that is to gratify our best feelings, if you will, and to satisfy our love for the beautiful, and satisfy our wants and provide for our necessities and supply us with everything necessary; surely if we love God as we ought to love him, with all our hearts; had Adam done this, he certainly never would have allowed any mere curiosity or love to the woman to turn him aside from his love to God. It is evident that the woman in partaking of the fruit, forgot her love, forgot her duty to God. She could not have loved him as she ought, else she would not have allowed any power to influence her, or turn her aside from keeping this law of love to him. We understand it was a violation of this grand law, this moral law, if you please. This law upon which all other laws rest. Upon which all other laws hang; for upon these two commandments the Son of God declares, "Hang all the law and the prophets."

We take it then, that although law has its exactions, those exactions that attach to law are given in love, and for man's good. There are some who seem to think that it is unjust, and that there is no love in punishing man, or in God punishing his creatures because of their transgressions. We hold it is in love. We hold that when the parent corrects the child with a view to the reformation and the ultimate good of the child, when he does it in a proper spirit, in a proper manner, he is manifesting more love for the child than he possibly can do to neglect that proper correction. We hold that a parent is not faithful to his trust, that he does not discharge the duties resting upon him as he ought to do, if he sees his children do that which is wrong and fails to correct them for it. So we consider when man departs from God, and God attaches a certain punishment to the transgression of the law, that it is done in love, and the object is man's ultimate good. We hold that all punishment, whether here or hereafter, and we can not look at it in any other way from the standpoint that God is love, has for its object the reformation and ultimate good of man. Why? Because "God is love." Yes, says one, God is just too. So he is. We admit that. But there can be no love without justice. That is a perverted love which is not just. Justice belongs with love. That love is not a pure love that ignores justice. We understand where there is love, with that love is justice, is impartiality too. It is uniform too. Whatever corrections may come in for the transgression of this general law of love to God, they are in mercy to man and with the ultimate good of man in view. We claim that inasmuch as God is love, that all his acts to man are in love. They are because of his love to man.

You will discover that before the foundation of the earth was laid, he knew what would be the consequence of placing man upon it. He knew that man would depart, would fall from his original state of innocence; therefore God provided himself with a means for the recovery of man. He devised a plan if you will whereby man could be restored, after suffering pain, sickness and sorrow. That he would ultimately, provided man should keep this law of love, that although he had fallen, yet if he would make use of the means that he had prepared, whereby he might reinstate himself with God, that God would restore him, not only to that from which he had fallen, but to a higher degree of exaltation than man could possibly have enjoyed had he not fallen. I claim then that man is benefitted, if I might be allowed the expression, by the fall. That every individual that keeps God's law, and is governed in his individual actions by love, love to God and love to man, that it will be a benefit to him. In other words he shall attain to a higher degree of glory, a higher degree of enjoyment, and be placed in a higher sphere than he possibly could have been, had man not fallen. I do not say that the fall was altogether for man's benefit, but that the promise is made by God himself, that "All things shall work together for good," and I accept the statement just as it is written, if we love God, if we will accept the means that God has placed within our reach, that God in love has given us, that is if we will accept of the gift of his Son, for in love he gave him, and the Son was prompted by love to come and offer himself, and work out man's salvation, to pay the debt for him. And that therefore we hold, that inasmuch as an individual loves God, he would be willing; not only willing, but anxious, and not only anxious, but he will rejoice in the opportunity of doing whatever God commands him to do.

Now we hold this to be a fact, that it is not simply because it is a duty, simply because it is required that we should perform anything, but we ought in everything that we do, to be glad, rejoice, and be thankful; yea our hearts ought to swell with love and gratitude to God, that we have the opportunity of showing our love to God, of doing just what he commands, no matter what it may be. We ought to ever rejoice in doing the will of God whatever it may be. Therefore we understand that there is one part of the Scripture that tells us to live above the law, all special enactments of the law, above anything except the one perfect law, because "perfect love casts out all fear." There is no fear of transgressing God's law. There is no fear of being cast out into endless darkness. There is no fear in those who love God with all the heart, that they will be ultimately cast off. There is no fear of a failure to ultimately attain the end they are making for. There will be no fear. Why? "Perfect love casts out all fear." We hold if we love God with all our hearts, our mights, and our minds and our strength, and if that love reaches out towards man, as God's love reaches out towards us, as the Son's love reaches out towards us,—we claim that if this love to God dwells in the heart of man, it is the spirit of God dwelling there, for this love comes from the spirit of God, for "God is love." And the more we love God the more we have of his Spirit, and this begets in us a desire to make our fellow men partakers of this good. We not only desire to love God ourselves, but we desire that everybody else should love him. Suppose they do us wrong, suppose an injury is done to us, does our love abandon us? No, it ought to come out in pity, in sympathy for them, in commiseration for their weakness; for I hold that perfect love is the fulfilling of the law, and that "perfect love casts out all fear."

Where the love of God dwells in the heart of a man, he will not perform certain requirements that are made at his hands because it is a duty simply, he will not go out to preach simply because it is a duty; he will not seek out his fellow man because it is a duty simply, he will not go and labor to sustain the cause of Christ because it is a duty, because the law says he shall. He will stop looking at what the law says in regard to the matter. If he loves the Lord his God with all his heart and mind, he will work for him, and will take pleasure in working for him, he will delight in working for him. It will cause his heart to reach out towards his fellow man, and to do all things in his power that are for their good.

But says one, This is all well enough if we knew that everything was all right. But it has to pass through other hands, and whether these use it for this purpose or whether they do not we do not know. Here comes in the Scripture now, "Perfect love casts out all fear." It is evident we may be loving God, but there is something else lacking. We can not have kept the other part. Remember one part of the love is to God and the other is to man. We may have kept the love we had to God but we have lost our love for our fellowman. We can not love our brother as God has commanded us to love him, our love is deficient, it is not perfect, his law is not observed in its entirety, when there is this fear. Our duty to God we may be performing, we may perhaps be loving God with all our hearts; but this is not possible, because the apostle says, "How shall we love God whom we have not seen, and hate," mistrust, misjudge, be suspicious of, be fearful of, "our brother whom we have seen." Shall I put for the word "hate" mistrust, suspicion, misjudge, be fearful of, "our brethren whom we have seen?" It follows that according to the apostle's reasoning, we can not love God whom we have not seen, if we hate or despise, or suspicion or are afraid of, or misjudge our "brethren whom we have seen." Are these terms admissible here? If they are, then it is evident that there is something wrong in our hearts, or we have discovered something that is wrong in our fellow man.

What ought to be our course towards such individuals? Suppose this is the case, what does the law require of us? That we shall hold them off in the distance? Is this the way the father does with the son whom he loves? Is this the way a mother does with her child because it has transgressed the law; does she for that reason hold it off at a distance, and never give it an opportunity of redeeming itself. Is this the course that a mother pursues towards her child? Is this the course that a father pursues towards his son or daughter? No. Why not? Simply because they love their children with a purer affection than that with which we as brethren love one another. Hence our love is not as perfect as theirs. For there is no fear in love. "Perfect love casts out all fear." "Love is the fulfilling of the law."

What I want to get at this morning is to show, that no matter what is required of us by special enactments, by certain laws, they are all based upon this one fundamental law of love to God and love to man. That is the substrata, if you will, upon which everything else rests. If we keep these two laws we will do whatever God requires of us, whatever Christ requires of us. Whatever our duty to God is we will do it willingly and cheerfully, not because God commands us simply, not simply as a cold duty, not simply because we feel that we are obliged to do it; but we do it heartily, because we love to do something for God, because he has done so much for us. We love to serve him. Why? Because he loves us. And because we are so wholly and entirely dependent upon him for all that we have and are, that we ought to rejoice in having the opportunity of showing our gratitude to God in serving him, in loving him and doing whatever he requires of us in regard to the great work.

God's law we understand to be the will of God. That is, the laws of God are the will of God. For instance we are told that Jesus Christ came to do the will of the Father. We are told that if we are obedient to the truth, the truth shall make us free. We are told that God's word is truth. We are told that the commandments of God are truth. God's laws are truth. We are told that Christ came to bear witness to the truth, and he says, "Thy word is truth." Well surely the word of God is the will of God, is it not? Then the will of God is man's law, whatever that will is. Whatever God's will is, man is to do. That is God's law to man, and is obligatory upon him. Hence all these various expressions of God's will in the various enactments in the gospel, are but special enactments, particular expressions of this one great general law of love.

I remark now, that so far as this is concerned, we pray that the will of God may be done. "Thy will be done." What do we mean by this? That God's will shall be done. What is God's will? The salvation of man, is it not? "God willeth that all men should be saved," does he not? Verily if God's will is that all men should be saved, if we desire God's will to be done upon the earth, if we desire it to be universally kept as it is kept by the angels in heaven, we understand they rejoice in doing his will, take pleasure in doing it, if we desire God's will to be done, and we take pleasure in doing it, and obeying his law because we love to do it, what is our duty now to our fellow man, if we love our neighbor as ourselves? Do you love the truth? Yes. Are you anxious to have the human family all obey the truth? Is it good for you? If it is good for you, if it is good for me, if we are made happy in the truth, if we love the truth and rejoice in it, if we find that we have been better men because we have obeyed the truth, if we have found more happiness because we have obeyed the truth, if we find it brings the spirit of life from God, if we find that it brings happiness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost, shall we who love our neighbors as ourselves, withhold this great blessing from them? This is the great question for us. If we have love to God and love to man; if the angels rejoice over one sinner that repenteth; if there is joy in heaven over it, ought we not to have joy also?

I inquire right now, if we keep these two commandments, love to God and love to our fellow man, is there any obstacle, is there anything that lies in our way that should hinder us from doing all that lies within our power to bring this good to our fellow man also? I say if we love God with all our hearts and our neighbors as ourselves, we will want to impart it to them, we will want them to have the same good that we ourselves have. If it has brought joy and gladness to us, if we love them we shall want to bring joy and gladness to them. We will not stop at simple things; we will not stop at little obstacles; we will not stop because this one does not do just as we think he ought to do, or because some one else is not doing just as we think he ought to do, or because some one else is not acting just as we think he ought to act. Perhaps they are acting conscientiously. Perhaps they are acting sincerely. Perhaps they are living up to the best light which they have. Perhaps they view it from a different standpoint from what you do. Perhaps they have canvassed the ground much better than you have. Perhaps they are doing the very best that according to their understanding can be done. And if they are, and you are keeping the commandments, then there is no fear there. Because there is no fear in love. "Perfect love casts out all fear." The great difficulty seems to be this: That we have not that love in our hearts that we ought to have, and not that confidence in Him that we ought, and it is our privilege to have.

But says one, this is all practicable, it is easy to love God and have faith in him. But have you implicit confidence in him? The child that loves its parents with all its heart, just thinks that whatever father does, whatever mother does is all right. Do we not think sometimes when certain things take place, that if God loves us as he is represented to do, or as much as he ought to do, that he would let us pass over these afflictions? Do we not sometimes think that his afflictions are not altogether in love? When we are prostrate upon a bed of sickness and affliction, and are suffering pain and anguish, do we not sometimes think that God might have done a little better and have saved us from this suffering from these pains? Does not that thought sometimes cross our minds? Hence you discover there is something lacking. You do not love God, you do not have that confidence in God, you are not joying and rejoicing in the will of God. You are not willing that God's will should be done. There is fear there. There is not perfect love there. Love is not fulfilled there, for love is the fulfilling of the law, and whenever that law is not fulfilled in its entirety, whenever we allow ourselves to depart from the path of rectitude, and the path of duty, from the path that Christ marked out for us, perfect love is not there, and the law is not fulfilled, I say in its entirety, there is something lacking.

When we withhold the means that we have that might be used for the purpose of carrying this great good to our fellow men, setting forth God's great love to man, spreading it abroad upon the earth; when we fail to put forth proper efforts, it matters not whether it is I or you or somebody else. If he allows love to family, to children, to wife, to father or mother, or any one to stand between him and his God, that moment perfect love is not there. We do not keep the commandment. There must be fear there. There must be doubts there, there must be misgivings there, for perfect love casts out all fear. There will be no fear there, if our love is perfect. You know Christ says, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another."

When we keep his commands simply from a standpoint of duty, simply because it is a duty, it seems to me that the general law is broken. If I do a certain thing because I am commanded to do it, because it is my duty to do it; if I do it simply because it is a duty, because I am required to do it, I have failed to keep the law. I may discharge duty, but where is my love to God? The law of love is not kept; and we hold that the Scriptures teach that whatever we are required to do by God, if we love God we will rejoice in the privilege of doing it, we will be glad to do it, and will rejoice in doing it whenever that will is made known unto us. If we love God we will be willing to err rather on the side of love than to act simply because stern duty requires us to act.

Says one, If I could avoid it, I would let it go. Then we do not want to do any more than we can help; we do not wish to do any more than we are compelled to do, than we are required to do, than it is our bounden duty to do.

One revelation tells us that we ought to bring to pass much righteousness of ourselves. That he that waiteth to be commanded in all things, is a slothful servant. Why? Because if we love God and our fellow men we will put forth efforts for their good, for their well being, for their happiness, for their comfort, that the law does not require of us, that is the strict letter of the law. Therefore, whenever we see that we can work a good for the cause of God, that we can do anything to bring man to love God, that is, when we can put forth any effort that will induce man to love God, or do anything to roll forth the work of God; wherever we see an opportunity, wherever the privilege is give unto us of benefitting our fellow man, of relieving misery, of comforting and alleviating the distressed, there our duty is. As it was in regard to the neighbor, who is my neighbor? Now it is a certain fact that the law had no hold upon this Samaritan who passed by to relieve the distresses of this man who fell among thieves. There was no law binding him to do it. But he did it of his own accord. He did it willingly, freely. Without any compulsion, without any influence being brought to bear upon him. His own goodness of heart and love to his fellow man was what prompted him. He saw misery. He saw need. He saw where he could do some good. Where he could be of some benefit to his fellow man. And he did it. Hence the saying, "Go thou and do likewise." Do not stop to ask the question, "Who is my neighbor." There was a case of suffering; there was a case of want; there was a case of need. Whenever there is such a case presented, I say there is our neighbor, wherever it is. Love, the general law of love, I say, underlies all other law and requires us to do this. Love to God and love to man.

I do not know that I shall occupy any more time. My thoughts have been rambling and rather disjointed; but if I have said anything that will induce any one to think more upon this matter, and will induce any one to greater efforts in keeping the great fundamental law of love to God and love to man, then I shall be fully satisfied. I desire to see love in every heart. I wish to see an increase of love towards one another. I desire less listening to fears and doubts towards one another. I want if I possibly can to induce more confidence in one another. If I can get us to love one another more; if anything I can say will get us to love one another more, it will banish doubt and distrust, unless we have good reasons for it. We ought to have good grounds for it before we ever allow it a place in our hearts. There is no fear in love. "Perfect love casts out all fear."

Remember this, that "God is love." The more we become God-like the more pure love we will have in our hearts. Remember that charity, which is the pure love of God in the heart, "Thinketh no evil, is not easily provoked, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Charity never faileth. But whether there be prophecies they shall fail." They are only for time. "Whether there be tongues they shall cease." They are only for time. "Whether there be knowledge," so far as worldly knowledge is concerned, "it shall vanish away." But love that binds the heavenly hosts together, pure love, will continue through all eternity. It has been from eternity, and it will continue. It is the general fundamental law governing all creatures, pointing their duty out the one towards the other, and their duty to God their Creator. It is the chain that binds all intelligences together. It never fails.

Now the more we get of love to God in our hearts, and love to our fellow man, the better we are prepared to enter into that community of love, to enter into the presence of him who is love. Into the presence of those who are obeying the law of love, and who are rejoicing over the repentance of every sinner upon earth.

May God help us to thus cultivate the spirit of love. And let me say that those who love most come nearest to God, they are most God-like. If we do make mistakes, let us make them on the side of love. Let us be found erring in that direction, if error be found. May God help us then to love one another, with a pure heart, fervently. Let us allow nothing to step in between God and us. Let us allow nothing to cause us to cast aside, or to obstruct or hinder our love to God. Let love to God be supreme, then love to our fellow men. May God help us to cultivate this spirit of love, is my prayer.

A WONDERFUL LAND.

ANCIENT ruins have recently been discovered in Sonora, which if reports are true, surpass anything of the kind yet found on this continent. The ruins are said to be about four leagues southeast of Magdalena. There is one pyramid which has a base of 1,350 feet, and rises to a height of 750 feet; there is a winding roadway leading up an easy grade to the top, which is wide enough for carriages to pass over, which is said to be twenty-three miles in length; the outer walls of the roadway are built in solid masonry from huge blocks of granite in rubble work, and the circles are as uniform and the grade as regular as they could be made at the present day by our best engineers. The wall, however, is only occasionally exposed, being covered by debris and earth; and in many places the sahuaro and other indigenious plants have grown up, giving the pyramid the appearance of a mountain. To the east of the pyramid a short distance is a small mountain, about the same size, which rises to about the same height and if the reports are true will prove more interesting to the archæologist than the pyramid. There seems to be a heavy layer of a species of gypsum about half way up the mountain which is as white as snow and can be cut into any conceivable shape, yet sufficiently hard to retain its shape, after being cut. In this layer of stone a people of an unknown age have cut hundreds upon hundreds of rooms, from 6x10 to 16 or 10 feet square. These rooms are cut out of the solid stone and so even and true are the walls, floor and ceiling to plumb and level as to defy variation. There are no windows in these rooms and but one entrance which is from the top. The rooms are about eight feet high from floor to ceiling; the stone is so white that it seems almost transparent, and the rooms are not at all dark. On the wall of these rooms are numerous hieroglyphics and representations of human forms with hands and feet of human beings cut in the stone in different places. But strange to say, all the hands have five fingers and one thumb, and the feet have six toes. Charcoal is found on the floor of many of these rooms which would indicate that they built fires in their houses. Stone implements of every description are to be found in great numbers in and about the rooms. The houses are one above the other to three or more stories high; but between each story there is a jog or recess the full width of the room below, so that they present the appearance of large steps leading up the mountain. Who these people were and in what age they lived must be answered, if answered at all, by the 'wise men of the East.' Some say they were the ancestors of the Mayos, a race of Indians who still inhabit Southern Sonora, who have blue eyes, a fair skin and light hair, and are said to be a moral, frugal and industrious race of people, who have a written language and know something about mathematics.

It is desirable that those coming will come on Friday if possible, leaving Bellaire at 2:30 p. m., on Baltimore and Ohio R. R., stopping at Glen Easton. We anticipate a pleasant time, and hope the Saints will make an effort to get there.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

LAMONI, like many other places, has been laboring with a week's continuous rain. The north-west and south-east winds are driving the sodden clouds to and fro over the land, drenching it from both ways.

Please read the letter from Bro. Wm. Still, St. Louis, Missouri.

The San Francisco, California, Chronicle for May 7th, contains the following notice of Bro. Anderson's effort referred to by him in his late letter: "A Mormon preacher has been holding forth in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Walnut Creek, Contra Costa county, lately.

A card from Bro. Wm. Anderson of Oakland, California, May 6th, states that the wife of Bro. H. P. Brown, a Catholic lady, had united with the Church by baptism, "accepting the gospel as it is in Christ." "Quite an ingathering of late; we all feel good."

Bro. T. F. Stafford, of Lewistown, Ills., wants a girl or woman to take charge of his housework; a good opportunity for somebody; there are himself, wife and two children in the household.

By letter from Kirtland to Coldwater, Michigan, we learn that the roof of the Temple at Kirtland caught fire from the tinner's kit, employed in tinning the belfry; and but for the timely discovery, and the energy and activity of Bro. E. L. Kelley and assistance of Bro. C. Scott and Sr. E. L. Kelley, the old building would have been burned. Sr. Kelley wrote: "Five minutes later and the whole thing would have had to go. Ed. went out on that slick tin roof—and the wind was blowing a gale about that time—and it seemed that his doing so was all that saved it. No damage was done to the building to amount to anything as it was. Everything seemed to come out as if a kind providence had directed all of us. I drew water and the rest carried."

Six were baptized at Fall River, Massachusetts, during the session of their district conference, and six at Hebronville. So writes Bro. J. Gilbert; conference was a success. Two of those baptized at Fall River were of the number of those who went to Jaffa, Palestine, with J. G. Adams in 1866, Isaiah B. and George Ames.

Bro. Briggs Alden writes from Fontanelle, Adair county, Iowa, that there is a German house of worship in that place, the society of which have no preacher. If an Elder speaking German would go there he would find an opportunity to preach; possibly to win souls to the faith. Bro. Alden says that one could stop with him till the effort would decide whether they would, or would not hear the message.

Elder J. H. Merriam is a member of the Town Board at Stewartville, Missouri, of which town Bro. J. M. Terry writes encouragingly of the prospects there. Another of the brethren has been chosen as collector of taxes there.

Bro. E. C. Brown, of Fonda, Iowa, has been doing a good work in the school-house in his own town. He had the use of the M. E. Church for a time; but this was at length refused, when the School Board offered him the school house. Some were awaiting baptism at Pilot Rock, and one it is thought at Eldora. Bro. Brown preached the funeral discourse on the 6th over the remains of a young man by the name of Russell, to the largest congregation ever assembled on a similar occasion in Pocahontas county. His effort was well received.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Has a district conference the right to appoint local missionaries to labor exclusively within the limits of said district?

Ans.—Yes.

Ques.—If they do, how should they or their families receive their support?

Ans.—From the contributions of the Saints of the district.

Ques.—As there is more or less expense in every district, and the office of district treasurer has been abolished by order of General Conference, how are the expenses of a district to be paid, and who shall pay them?

Ans.—They are to be paid by the district. Funds for the purpose may be raised directly, and be paid into the hands of the Bishop's Agent, to be drawn on for the purpose; or an agreement be made between the Bishopric and the district providing for such payment out of the general fund raised in the district, and paid to the Bishop or his Agent under the general law, and paid out as agreed upon.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS.

Bro. A. Greek, of Salesville, Montana, writes May 5th, 1883:

I think the Hope a very nice paper, and am willing to help it all I can; and if you know of one of the little "Hopes" that is not able to subscribe for the paper I will pay for it and send it to them one year. If each one will help that much we can increase the subscription greatly.

Bro. J. R. Cook, writing from Sacramento, California, May 5th, says:

Bro. James H. Parr is now president of the Sacramento Branch, which is in a more flourishing condition than it has been for years, as are many of the branches in this upper California at the present.

Bro. W. W. Blair has arrived at his place of labor. He wrote us on the 8th from Salt Lake City. He held services at Omaha on Sunday night the 5th, and Monday night following, and had good liberty. He reports good meetings at Crescent City and Council Bluffs; good prospects for additions in all these places, as also at Lucas. Some gave their names to unite. He says further on:

The work here moves, and prospects are good. Bro. Luff has just returned from the south, and reports large and deeply interested congregations out to hear both himself and Bro. Hansen. He has gone up to the Warm Springs to baptize two men, heads of families.

The faculty for self-improvement in the negro race is evident from the observations of Mr. Medill, of Chicago, as seen from the extract we print of his visit south.

Dear Herald:—I suppose I must say I am glad to see you a weekly, or I shall be out of fashion; but to be out of the fashion I will say I shall be glad to see your face twice a week, for you do me good every time you come. As soon as I have scanned your pages I begin to look at the spot where your numbers are laid near my chair, and if you are a day over your time, it seems a long time to wait. I think I have read all, except one number since 65, the year I bowed to the principles you so nobly advocate. Go on, little Herald, tell your editor, and all associated with him, I love them as my brothers; and sometimes I am pained to see some questions asked of him, that if the persons who ask would read the standard works of the Church they would have no need to ask, for they could get all the information they need. Some also write to your columns to answer the questions of others, but do not answer the questions at all. I see in this Herald April 7th, an attempt to answer Sister Almira M. Snow's question; but he is a long way from the mark, for neither the Christianized Jew, or Gentile can prove that the ark was deposited in a vault of the Temple. If it had been it would have seen daylight before this, and the gold that covers it would have been melted down, from the covering of the ark to the lining of the Gentiles' pockets. It seems by Scripture that when the Lord has anything to hide from the world he never hides it in a building, where thieves break through and steal; but look at the hiding place of the sixty-two pounds of gold found at Cumorah with the Urim and Thummim, etc.; and is not the ark with its sacred contents, viz., the Priests' clothing, with the gold plates on the shoulders, on which is engraven the names of the twelve tribes, attached to which is the Urim and Thummim, the covenant God made with Israel, together with Aaron's rod that budded, and last, not least, the pot of manna, as precious as they were. It will be a rare day for all Israel when the covenants will be read to all his living house, probably from the house top; and all the Saints are promised to taste of the hidden manna together with a white stone and individual Urim and Thummim. See Rev. 2: 17.

I am not surprised at Sister Snow, or any other real Saint, wanting to know where the ark with its sacred contents is. Now if our sister will believe the Apocrypha, I will tell her where it has been for 2500 years. If you will read the 2d Maccabees, 2 chapter, and one to thirteen verses, inclusive. You will see that all Christianized Jews do not tell the truth. Was Jephtha's daughter sacrificed? Judges 11: 30, 40. The damsel was sacrificed according to the vow, or covenant that Jephtha made with the Lord; and what real Saint would not keep the vow; the daughter evidently was a Saint, and the daughters of Israel knew it, by going to her tomb every year to mourn for a noble woman. The sons of God, Job 38: 3, 7. The sons of God shouted for joy in heaven at the fact of the line and rule were laid upon the earth for a homestead for his body and spirit combined. He may well shout for joy. Every true Saint can echo this.

Dear Herald it is good to be a Saint in latter days. In conclusion I will try to be a Saint in my heart.

Ever praying for success to Zion,

C. D. NORTON.

LANCASTER, Indiana,

May 6th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—We are yet in the faith, trusting and hoping that better times will dawn on us, down here in southern Indiana. It seems that some here have lost their first love, and are growing cold to the covenants they have made; but I must say my faith is confirmed in this work, from day to day. Seeing the minutes of General Conference I am strengthened, and it gave me courage and caused me to praise God that he had remembered his promises, and had vindicated his word that was spoken by the mouth of the chosen Seer. How can any one doubt the Reorganization? It has accomplished some of the things prophesied of; and has proved its mission so far, by unmistakable evidences, that God is at the helm. My prayer is for its success, and as long as we are humble, prayerful, and faithful, we will grow in favor with the people; and above all with the Savior; and if he is with us, who can stand against us successfully.

We organized a Sabbath School here to-day, as a Union School; I was chosen superintendent, and will try to do the best I can; will endeavor to set forth the truth. Pray for me.

God's peace be with you,

V. D. BAGGERLY.

OSHKOSH, Wis., May 6th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I feel happy to see the work of God continue as it does at present. There are many brethren and sisters that are doing a great work for the Church, and when I read the Herald, Hope, Advocate, and the different books of the Church, my eyes are filled with tears at times for joy for the cause. I feel at times that I can not stay away from preaching the gospel any longer. It is true, "Woe is me if I preach the gospel," but more so if I preach it not, but am found wanted at home for years to come; unless the Church should comply with my request which is a trifle—being $200.00 per year to be sent out to preach, per foot. I have asked that at different times, and made the proposition, but no heed was taken, why I do not know. Please state why. At the first place it is not half as much as some are getting from the Church, if I am correct in figures. 2d, I believe it a great deal more just to pay a man a certain amount agreed upon, than to leave it to the judgment of a few, or the Bishopric, to decide what is necessary to pay an Elder and his family according to their wants; for while one Elder and family wants from five hundred to one thousand dollars per year to live on, the other is willing to live on from two hundred to four hundred dollars under the like circumstances, and I claim that this personality should not be among Latter Day Saints. And as long as there is as much personality shown as there is at present it is utterly impossible for the Church to prosper fast. We read that in the Apostolic age the Saints had temporal things in common and prospered, and among the Nephites when in the greatest prosperity there was neither poor, nor rich, and every Saint, or head of the family received according to the size of his family; and this is as it should be. Although being poor at present myself (having had fate against me for many years) and therefore expecting words like this from some, it is well enough for him to write on this subject, for that would give him some property and so forth. It is a very delicate point, God knowing I do not crave property to live at ease, and rather would write on this subject were I rich. Wanting to profit some by writing thus and to give offense to none, without any personality whatever, I wrote thus.

Now to another subject which is found in Book of Doctrine and Covenants, p. 200. "And again, inasmuch as parents have children in Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized, that teach them not to understand the doctrine of repentance; faith in Christ, the Son of the living God; and of baptism and the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of the hands when eight years old; the sin be upon the head of the parents; for this shall be a law unto the inhabitants of Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized; and their children shall be baptized for the remission of their sins when eight years old, and receive the laying on of the hands. And they shall also teach their children to pray, and walk uprightly before the Lord."

We see by this that we as parents (those of us that are parents) are bound by the law of God to try with all earnestness of our souls to bring our children unto the Lord in much prayer; and to see to it that they are baptized and so forth, when eight years old, (provided that we ourselves have the love of God in our bosom as we should have at all times). We have no right to claim the name of Latter Day Saint to ourselves if we are among the worst artful dodgers that ever lived, in twisting out of everything that does not seem just exactly to our natural fancy. Children at eight years of age know a great deal of wickedness, especially nowadays, and why not as well be capable of learning, with the greatest of effort made in teaching them true wisdom.

May God grant us wisdom, is the prayer of your brother,

JOSEPH LAMPERT.

No. 1646, 7th Street, OAKLAND, Cal.,
May 6th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—The future prospects of the work in this district are good. We have opened up a new field in Sanamoon Valley; Bro. Wm. Anderson commenced at Walnut Creek, two weeks ago last Sunday; he preached in the Methodist Church, to a full house. We have rented the Masonic Hall, by the month in order to have regular meetings there. There are several other places in Sanamoon Valley we intend to open up soon.

I have been to Sacramento, found the Saints there in good spirits. They have been for some time without much preaching there; the branch has taken a new start. Bro. Parr was chosen President of the Branch. Bro. J. R. Cook is alive in the work, preaching out in the country in the Methodist Church. Bro. Thomas Daley is preaching in the mountains to the miners, or where opportunity may afford, Bro. G. W. Harlow is full of faith and does all he can. The good Sisters Bixbey, Hunt, and others have put in their efforts in holding the fort in the past, may God bless them. The prospect is bright in Oakland; several have united with the Church of late. Bro. H. P. Brown's wife was baptized to-day, there was many of her Catholic friends looked on but she was brave in fulfilling her Savior's command, "Ye must be born again." I am in full faith and confidence in the future success; if we put our trust in the Lord, as in the days of yore.

Your brother in gospel bonds,
D. J. PHILLIPS.

No. 5, Walnut-St., PROVIDENCE, R. I.,
April 30th, 1883.

Dear Bro. Joseph:—Judging from our own standpoint, and realizing that all items of the work, interesting to us, may be still more interesting to you, and as we are cheered and blest by each Herald in this line, for which we rejoice, we accept the same for others, and so doing, write you a few lines for that more than welcome paper.

Having a good opportunity with Bro. Yerrington while on the way to Hebronville, (Bro. Thompson's mission), we learned that the General Conference at Kirtland (perhaps in answer to the prayers of many Saints), was a season long to be remembered by many, both in the church and out of it, and that the prestige gone forth is most excellent. For this we praise our Heavenly Father, and take courage to go on.

We also learn, that on the way home, at Waterbury, Conn., by order of the District President, (Jno. Smith), all things considered, he ordained Bro. Collier to the office of an Elder; also received invitation to come again, with the prospective baptism of three or four, if the Lord will.

Here at Hebronville, Bro. Yerrington has been called from the place of assistant to that of leader, in this mission, by reason of Bro. Thompson's illness, which has been quite serious; but as he seems to be some on the gain, by the Lord's blessing we hope he may recover. Having been requested by Bros. Thompson and Yerrington, also by a desire to know of the work ourselves, we have been out here several times; and have felt well paid for the travel (eight miles) for our hearts have been made to rejoice in the blessing of the Spirit there, given in a little meeting of eighteen or twenty. Also, the blessing of the Lord in his ordinance of anointing and prayer for the sick, which has brought in one dear brother, that was a square and active Methodist; also his wife, who was in the lead, she having employed various doctors, (one from Philadelphia, Pa., as we hear), to little or no avail; but hearing the gospel from Bro. Thompson, she called for the ordinance, by which the Lord granted his blessing, and she testifies to be healed by him; also her husband testifies to similar blessings in the same way. So we feel that the Lord is truly working there, for we see much of the "one spirit," that is ever characteristic of the Lord's work; and by the appearance of those who attend the meetings, we feel assured that among the honest of heart in Hebronville the Lord will truly claim a people for himself. Last Sabbath we journeyed there, having a northeast storm of sleet most of the day, yet we were more than paid for the toil, in meeting some six or eight happy converts, four of whom are young, and comprising the heads of two or three families, and two fine girls, willing and glad to yield obedience to the gospel by baptism; which duty devolved upon Bro. Yerrington, who at 12:30 officiated in that ordinance to six, all things being done satisfactorily, and we trust to divine acceptance, a goodly number being witnesses. At 2:30 P.M. meeting was called for confirmation, which was first in order, and led by Bro. Yerrington, assisted by Bro. Chas. Coombs, President of the Plainville Branch; their "Church home" at present in confirmation, linked with enjoined faithfulness, was a calling to two or three to a specialty in the Lord's work of the Latter Days. Succeeding we had the sacrament, also the demonstration of the Spirit in power, by Bros. Coombs and Yerrington, in exhortations, prophecy, and a tongue with interpretation. Also testimony of all the Saints, in all, an excellent meeting of about three hours, enjoyed by all present. Others are expected ere long to obey; and this in a place where some nine months ago Bro. Thompson was refused a place to speak, even from the railroad platform, having been licensed there in former years to preach the sectarian gospel, but as a Latter Day Saint, they "did not want any of his stuff." But the Lord opened one man's heart to ask him into his house, also to eat supper, and there they told him that there was one Latter Day Saint in the village, so searching around he found her, and that she was willing to open her doors for the gospel in its fullness. Thus the Lord provided and the work began. Now our opponents, the world with its wisdom (?) wonder that in this enlightened age, why it is that this ignorant little sect cannot be extinguished. They seem not to realize the fact that it is the "little stone" of the Prophet Daniel that was cut out without hands, to smite the image, and is fast, and surely becoming a great mountain, to fill the whole earth." Truly, if we serve the Lord with faithfulness, in sincerity and humility, he will give us grace to overcome. Let us all pray for each other, that we all may receive his blessing, and especially those that are called to minister in holy things, and that we may all gain eternal life, with celestial salvation, is our prayer.

Yours, in the true gospel,
I. S. BROWN.

STEWARTVILLE, Mo.,
May 14th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—We had a refreshing rain, yesterday, which was much needed, as the crops were suffering from drouth. Saints generally well, except Bro. Jacob Warnock, who has been sorely afflicted with rheumatic fever for some weeks past. We ask prayers in his behalf. Work growing, gradually; prejudice giving back as the light of truth advances. Intemperance and attendant evils, are strong enemies with which we as a community have to contend. It is strange that even professed Saints will lower themselves enough to tamper with the accursed stuff. We would love to see Saints take a higher stand than this. Prosperity can not attend the Church to that degree that it should, as long as its members will endeavor to hold the gospel of purity and liberty in one hand, and with the other pour down their throats that which will destroy manhood and invite the entrance of the arch fiend. We have changed our place of meeting to a hall whose capacity is between six and seven hundred, which we think will give room for the General Conference; so we are thus far prepared for the coming event. There are some inquiring after truth, one here and one there. There have been several baptized lately in the neighboring branch, and one in this one. We have a respectable hearing at our Sunday night meetings, and the very best order. May the good work go on, and be hastened in God's own time.

Yours for truth,
J. M. TERRY.

COLDWATER, Michigan,
May 10th, 1883.

Bro. J. Smith:—Your letter at hand. Uncle Wm. B. Smith is here and preached an excellent discourse last Sunday. Saints enjoy hearing him on past experiences connected with the history of the Church. He is old and the sands of life fast running out, but his crowning hope is in the gospel preached by Paul, and his brother, Joseph. Brn. Lake and Briggs comforted the Saints and aided the cause while here. Went away rejoicing. We are having it very wet just now. E. L. at Kirtland yet, and presumably C. Scott, by this date. Uncle William just from there, brings good report, and says the interest to hear more of the faith continues.

Fraternally,
W. H. KELLEY.

OLIVET, Mahaska Co., Iowa,
May 12th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—The third day after adjournment at Kirtland I began work at Dubuque, and continued as long as was then expedient. The work is gaining there. I took my leave with a peculiar degree of peace, thanking God, Saints and friends for a kind remembrance of my needs.

As I got no word from Bro. Turner, of Clinton, I passed on to Marshalltown, resting and visiting at our genial friends, Mr. and Sr. Murphy's, where true hospitality is extended to gospel wanderers.

On the eve of 28th and twice on 29th, I tried to dispense the word of life at Bro. Wm. H. Kelley's old scene of action, the locality of Bro. and Sr. Brush, at Timber Creek; extraordinary liberty and interest were had. On 30th put in on appearance at headquarters, Edenville; found it much changed by moving about of the Saints resident there, and the absence of A. White and family, where the writer was wont to go, day or night, and always find home in reality. I was pleased to find my associate laborer of other days, Bro. I. N. White, ready for permanent work again. Also Bro. W. C. Nirk nearly ready to embark; and Bro. W. S. Loar, arranging for a share of his time in the field. All of these brethren are safe and wise laborers in the work.

I returned to Marshalltown on 3d, to make arrangements for a place to speak, which is still pending. Formed the acquaintance of Mr. and Sr. Bullis.

On the 5th I arrived here, greeted by Sr. Laughlin and family. That cowhiding which was to have been done last winter, and our esteemed Bro. McDowell to be the receiver, has not been meted out to me, as his proxy, yet.

The social, religious, skeptical and theological atmosphere is at a state of unrest, and we are doing what we can to keep it stirred evenly; found it necessary to renew a challenge made jointly last winter. Am cognizant of the fact of being only an amateur, but will try a contest if needful. Bro. McDowell has more and warmer friends than ever. The omens for the work are good; splendid liberty in speaking.

I have rejoiced in a special degree of the Holy Spirit's peaceful influence while at Sr. Laughlin's and Sr. Murphy's at Marshalltown, and fully realized that where true integrity is had for the work, God is mindful of the lone sheep of his fold. Any desiring labor in this locality of which I may not know, in Central Iowa, or close proximity, can address me at Edenville, Marshall county, Iowa. Bro. P. Cadwell's kind solicitations for June, I can not respond to. I have been blessed in every effort put forth speaking and otherwise, and hope by a close vigil on my line of action to maintain such equilibrium.

Praying for wisdom to rightly represent the Great Latter Day Work,

I am your Brother in Christ,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

May 14th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—You are received at our house with great delight. I hail thee as an angel of mercy; for in thy columns I find the blessed testimony of my dear sisters and brothers. So many times does the Spirit testify to the truth contained in thee, it is truly food for the hungry and strength for the weak one. We have no Saints here, but some very dear friends, which might become Saints if they were to know the doctrine. I intend that they shall know a part of it if you will send me some tracts; as I shall inclose the money to pay for them. My desire is to try to do my duty, and meet with you all in the promised land.

Your sister,

MARGARET RICHNER.

WATSONVILLE, Santa Cruz Co., Cal.,
May 4th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—It is with pleasure I write to you expressing my feelings toward this work, and the good I have received since I became a member of the Church of God once more. When I was a child twelve years old, I was baptized into this Church; but only stayed in about two years; I was persuaded to leave the Church, not only by those who pretended to be friends, but the adversary; so I yielded to those that were constantly talking to me, and then I turned back into the wicked world; and for seventeen years I paid no attention to the commandments of God. But thanks to my Heavenly Father I am a member once more; and it is my intention to serve God, my Heavenly Father and not man. I know since I have turned my attention to the works of God, I have seen a change that satisfies me that it is better to be a Saint and be laughed at by those who are so stubborn that they will not listen to the Word of God. What care I for that, I have myself to look after; that when I depart from this life I may be ready to meet my Savior, and be caught up in the clouds with all those who are worthy of that home that God has promised to those who will obey his commandments.

I must speak a word for Bro. Daniel Brown, who presides over this branch. He works faithfully and does all in his power to build up this Church. If this branch should dwindle away it would not be his fault for he sets a good example before the members and also the world. I would like to have some of the Elders to visit this branch and enliven it up. There are some here who are lukewarm and backward; and perhaps if we could get them together again, they would see the ground they stand upon, and do better in the future. It is my intention to put my shoulder to the wheel and press forward and show to the world I am what I profess to be.

WM. P. KING.

REESE, Michigan,

May 10th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I am at home at present and have been for the last four weeks, excepting Sunday. My health has been very poor, and has kept me home. I was troubled with diphtheria and for five days my case was doubtful; however, the prayers of Saints and my identity with the Church of Christ prevailed. I am restored and feel to know from whom such blessings come. Last Sunday I preached twice in Vassar, a good feeling of interest was manifested. I received a notice from Columbiaville, a request for me to come; I will respond to it soon. Recently we were pleased to entertain Bro. Willard Smith and Jennie his amiable wife. While they remained here Bro. Smith helped to revive the work by preaching three times here, and twice in Vassar. We were sorry they could not have stayed longer. I baptized one in Reese since writing, and I feel strong in this latter day work. I hope I may always prove a profitable servant: I have not so successfully represented my field of labor as my desire has been; however, if all is well, I hope to double my diligence and crowd a better report in the future. I pray that all Saints will wake up to temporal duties, that the work of the ministry may be carried on without delay. The truth taught by the Saints is inviting. I hope there will never again come a famine for hearing the "Words of the Law," as spoken by Amos 8:11. We are pleased to see the columns of the Herald and other papers reporting so favorably of the late session of conference held at Kirtland. I sincerely hope that it will be productive of good throughout.

In Christ,

E. DELONG.

No. 1745 Madison-st, ST. LOUIS, Mo.,
May 1st, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Now that the conference is over, and you have returned home, I desire to send you a few whisperings of my feelings as an Elder, and President of this little village branch; the village itself contains about 400,000, however, and I am trying to act as the legal representative; but I only wish I was a prominent church official; although I am at a loss to know what that means—if one laboring continually for the Church in all its interests in St. Louis, is not entitled to the same respect, as those who sometimes are doing about half the work, and drawing continually from the Bishop, while we are self-supporting. I don't know why. What I allude to, is that little article I sent about the middle of December; which you were so very kind to give room in Herald for in March 17th number, while the prominent church members in the field (St. Louis is out of it) were having their epistolary communications the day after date. Joseph, I shall trouble you no more under that head, (communiications), but these discriminations, the dividing lines, this exception may do for a certain class, but not for Mo. In the first place I have lived long enough to know it is wrong; and in the next place it will only engender hard feeling and strife. Thank God we are not in Utah. Now don't think I am excited over this, for I am not; I only wish fair play. For if a man has brains enough to act as he should as a minister and elder—and is not a church official and prominent in his official capacity—he had better step down and take a back seat. Now I wish to rest my case here; but am ready at any time for a revival. If the Church Herald is only for the few let them have it.

Yours respectfully in gospel bonds,

WILLIAM STILL.

P. S.—We have had two accessions to St. Louis Branch, from England, by letter, from the Birmingham Branch.

CLEAR LAKE, Steuben Co., Indiana,
May 14th, 1883.

Joseph:—My journey towards Illinois and Iowa, my appointed field of labor seems rather slow. I found it somewhat difficult to get away from some of the old friends in Kirtland. The general wish of the people, both far and near, is that the Church should locate itself for a permanent length of time in Kirtland never to be left again uncared for, as in years gone by. I had the pleasure of preaching one discourse in the Temple after you left for Lamoni, and on conversing with many of the older inhabitants with whom I had formed an acquaintance some twenty-five and fifty years ago, they gave me great encouragements that in case a faithful Elder was kept there to impart the good word, that they would be attentive hearers; while others spoke more plainly that when a good opportunity offered, they intended to unite with the Church; and I think that the prospects look fair for quite a number of the citizens of Kirtland handing in their names for baptism soon. Before leaving Kirtland for the west, by invitation of friends, some of whom attended the conference, living at Perry, distant six miles from Painesville on the main road leading to Buffalo, desired to hear more on the subject of this latter day work. I gave them a call and was invited to occupy the Disciple Church, both morning and evening, which I did; and trust I have sown some seed of the good word there, that I believe ere long will bring forth an abundant harvest. At least there is an opening where a good faithful Elder can find a home among a liberal class of people and find doors open for preaching. But on account of my mission for Illinois and Iowa, it was quite impossible for me to stay longer at Kirtland; so, as it will be seen from this writing, I am still calling by the way. I am at present visiting among the Saints at Clear Lake, Indiana; left Kirtland May fourth, and got into Coldwater on Friday evening, called on Bro. William H. Kelley, Saturday morning, May 5th, and on Sunday, May 6th, went to the school-house with Bro. Kelley, where I preached once, had good attendance and am much pleased with my visit at this place. Bro. William H. Kelley and wife are God's people, is all I need to say on that point. It has been by earnest invitation that I have stopped among the brethren here. Bro. Patterson being over on business at Coldwater, brought me over to this branch, on Friday last, and on yesterday, Sunday, May 13th, I preached in the Saints' Chapel, morning and evening, to a crowded house; and I have three appointments out to fill for the balance of this week. Joseph, I think I shall get down into Illinois after a while, the Lord willing. The work goes bravely on. The Saints here have a splendid Sunday School. I may say more on this subject in my next. May God bless the Hope and Herald and all the means made use of to spread gospel tidings abroad.

From your Uncle,

WILLIAM B. SMITH.

DELOTT, Iowa, May 6th, 1883.

Brother Joseph:—Feeling sad and lonely, (and so impressed), I write you. I have belonged to the Church of Christ seven years. Was baptized by Elder E. T. Dobson. I was from childhood nurtured and fostered in infidelity, which almost made me a natural skeptic, but God in his infinite mercy sought to draw me to him by affliction. Whilst I was passing down into the water for baptism, my strength began to fail me, and immediately my mind was directed to the Savior's baptism; and I asked him to support and bear me up; and when I rose from the water, I never experienced such happiness and joy; light seemed to burst in upon my dark and benighted mind, and I was made to rejoice; I knew that my redeemer lived, that I was accepted of him; that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God; that the Book of Mormon was divine. Since then I have had many and lasting testimonies of the truth of this great latter day work, and I feel satisfied it is God's work, and am firmly rooted and grounded in it. Although I have many trials and troubles, I am willing to trust all to God. He is my solace and comfort. He it is that has laid down those precious promises in his sacred word, that bears me on life's rugged pathway, and bids me hope. I desire to be faithful and to so live, that when this mortal shall put on immortality, I shall be worthy of an inheritance in the celestial glory of our God.

Your sister in the gospel,

KATE TURNER.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, May 14th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—On the 1st inst, I had the pleasure of baptizing my sister-in-law, Miss Ettie M. Bass, in the clear placid waters of Prospect Lake, near Lawrence, Michigan. The day was mild and lovely, and the occasion was solemn and grand. After waiting at home a few days, expecting to join Bro. E. H. Gurley in a brief tour in Michigan, prior to coming here, and he not arriving at our place till the evening of the 7th; I having arranged to start to this place on the 8th, so I only shared the company of Bro. Gurley to Kalamazoo; he then went north to spend a part of this month in Michigan, before going on to Canada, his field of labor; I came on, reaching Kirtland the next day. Found Bro. Kelley and family well, and enjoying their visit to Kirtland.

The Temple repairing moves slowly along, but the work is of substantial and satisfactory character. The basement is quite nicely cleaned up, solid piers and sound posts having been supplied to the floor sleepers where needed. Basement doors and windows have been provided with new casings and iron rod protectors, and withal present a decidedly improved appearance. Tinning over the belfry is nearly completed, and the work of the painters is now awaiting them.

I spoke twice yesterday, and had our audiences been seated in an ordinary building, they would have been considered fair sized. Audiences at the Temple services are gradually on the increase.

On the 11th, I performed the sad duty of preaching the funeral of the infant daughter of Bro. and Sr. Scribner at their house, about two miles west of Painesville. A respectable audience of about fifty persons were present, and were, as we afterward learned, agreeably surprised, that the Saints entertained a hope with reference to the future, of so decidedly "orthodox" cast?

Bro. E. L. Kelly and family, have arranged temporarily to remain here for a season. He will take general oversight of the work in this and surrounding vicinities while here. Have arranged to hold meetings near Painesville, next Friday evening, and over Sunday following. Pray for us, More "bye and bye."

Summary of News.

May 10th.—The third trial of Timothy Kelley for complicity in the Phenix Park murders, has resulted, as was expected, in his sentence to death. The confession of Delany that the informer Cary told the truth, settled the case of Kelly, who was undoubtedly one of the attacking party.

There was a bad collision yesterday on the Third Avenue elevated railroad, New York city. Haring, the fireman, was caught and forced against the boiler. One of his legs was broken and the other badly bruised, and he was seriously burned and scalded about the lower part of the body and legs. The water-tank engine burst, and the scalding water poured down in a flood upon the horses of one of the surface cars. The forward platform of the first car of the switching train was badly broken, and the cylinder head of the engine blown out. The passengers were badly shaken up, and the engine almost knocked into the street.

A wash-out near Norfolk, Neb., caused the wreck of a train; the brakeman was killed and the engineer badly injured.

One of the heaviest storms for years occurred yesterday afternoon, at Dubuque, Iowa. The rain fell in floods, accompanied by hail, and terrific thunder and lightning. Telegraph wires were prostrated, fences blown down, and considerable damage done by wash-outs and flooding of cellars, breaking windows, etc. A house on the bluffs was blown down, but fortunately none of the inmates were seriously injured. The steamer Ben Hershey, with several barges lying at the levee, were blown from their moorings and carried across the river.

A wind storm yesterday afternoon, at Fort Madison, Iowa, played havoc with shade trees; blew down two barns, and unroofed several houses.

Within a week, the 2,000 employees of the North Chicago rolling mills, who have for several months been idle, will resume work.

A fire, early yesterday morning, at Oshkosh, Wis., destroyed a hay pressing establishment, together with three dwelling houses, a team of horses, hay-pressing machinery and a quantity of hay. Several barns and adjoining buildings were also destroyed. The fire spread rapidly, and the occupants of the houses barely escaped.

Yesterday afternoon, fire broke out in the stove works at Indianapolis, Ind., and did damage to the amount of $60,000.

May 11th.—Dr. W. W. McLane, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Steubenville, O., has been suspended from the ministry by the Presbytery of Steubenville on the ground of heresy. His offense consisted in the publication of a work entitled "The Cross in the Light of To-day," which was held to deny the atonement and the mediatorial power of Christ.

At Dublin yesterday, Joseph Mullett was found guilty of conspiracy to murder Dennis Field, one of the jurors in the Hynes case, and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. Another adjournment was taken in the case of the men arrested in London for the unlawful possession of nitro-glycerine.

Marvin Fenner was yesterday found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to imprisonment for life. He killed John Hesler, near Grand Rapids, Wis., the motive for the crime being robbery.

Pittsburg, Pa., had an execution yesterday, Ward McConkey being hanged for the murder of George A. McClure, at McKeesport, in August 1881.

Yesterday was a day of terribly-destructive conflagrations in the United States. At Communipaw, N. J., the immense works of the Standard Oil Company, the largest in the country, were almost entirely destroyed, and seven lives lost, with a loss estimated at $1,500,000. Eight buildings were burnt at Vienna, O.; Avoca, Ia., had a $100,000 fire; and three lives were lost by the burning of a residence in Baltimore. At Harrison, Ont., six stores were burned and one life lost. Other disastrous fires occurred at Cincinnati, Rome, N. Y.; St. Albans, Vt.; Columbus, O.; Lafayette, Ind.; Lawrenceville, Pa.; and half a dozen other points.

A little twelve-year old girl in Knoxville, Ia., was frightened to death by a severe thunder storm a few nights since. She had been quite well the day before, but awoke during the storm and besought her mother to take her to her bed, "for she was afraid of thunder." Her supplications were unheeded, and soon the mother was aroused by the child's difficult breathing. Approaching the bed with a light, she found her in a dying condition, and in a few moments she breathed her last.

A fearful storm of wind, hail and rain passed over Sterling, Ill., on the 9th. A large amount of damage was done by uprooting trees, blowing down buildings, and fearful damage generally was wrought.

During a very heavy rain storm, on the evening of the 9th, at Janesville, Wis., a whirlwind did considerable damage to farm buildings and orchards. In Rock township one school-house, and all the buildings on five farms were wrecked.

A small sized hurricane passed over a portion of Lansing, Mich., shortly after noon yesterday. Chimneys, fences, trees, etc., were scattered promiscuously. The roof of an unfinished steeple of the M. E. Church was carried a full block, and other damage done.

During the severe storm on the 9th, a tornado passed through the vicinity of Fairfax, Iowa, and did a large amount of damage to buildings, demolishing several, and unroofing many. Fences were flattened and trees torn out by the roots.

Violent and almost uninterrupted rain has prevailed over nearly the entire State of Iowa for the last two days. The storm has been the heaviest in the central and eastern portion. High winds have been general, and thunder and lightning have been frequent, with a prevailing tendency to strike.

The heaviest rain and thunder storm that has occurred for years, passed over Joliet, Ills., on the 9th. The lightning was terrific, and did considerable damage, striking several houses and stunning the occupants. The most singular phenomenon occurred in the telephone exchange and telegraph offices, where the electricity gave a most brilliant and dazzling display of pyrotechnics. Balls of fire, as large as a man's fist, interwoven with illuminated streaks kept up a constant exhibition for two hours, with sharp, gun-like explosions. A wash-out caused the ditching of a train-load of live stock. A large number of cattle were killed.

About seven o'clock on the evening of the 9th, a veritable cyclone struck Evanston, Ill., accompanied by a driving rain, which continued through the night. The roof of the belfry of the Methodist Church was taken off and carried over the house across the street. The large stained-glass windows of the Congregational Church were driven in, and the storm given free course through the structure. The chimney of the lecture-room was blown down, making a large rent in the roof, through which brick and timber were hurled at the pipe-organ below. The damage is estimated at $1,000. The Methodist Church, at South Evanston, valued at $3,000, was picked up from its foundation and thrown into a shapeless wreck. The storm seemed to have a special antipathy for churches, as the German Lutheran Church, west of the village, was also blown over.

The First Baptist Church of St. Albans, Vt., was burned yesterday, at a loss of $40,000.

London May weather has been very cold and cheerless, rains prevailing with heavy snow throughout Southern England. A terrific snow-storm has visited Galway, Ireland, where the snow lies over two feet deep.

There are already 55,000 troops and 3,000 military officers quartered at Moscow in anticipation of the coronation ceremonies.

A few days ago Indians attacked Casta ranch, in Sonora, killed three gentlemen, and mortally wounded another.

A man worth $6,000,000 shot himself through the heart, in the bath room of his residence at Cleveland, Ohio. Ill health was the cause assigned. Wealth does not always bring health and happiness, it would appear.

Mrs. Jessie R. Grant, mother of General U. S. Grant, died of heart disease, at her home at Jersey City, yesterday, aged ninety-four years.

May 14th.—There is over a foot of snow over a great part of Ireland, and in England and Scotland heavy storms of snow and sleet have done great damage. In the north the snow is as heavy as during the winter, and thousands of lambs have died in the chevots.

A bomb was exploded on the street in Moscow, Russia, Saturday. Several persons were wounded. The police say it was only a railway signal. This explanation is not satisfactory to the public, who have become alarmed.

With much reason the Irish Nationalist leaders fear the influence of the Vatican in Irish politics, and seek to prevent any declaration by the head of the church against the interference of priests in matters political. Yesterday Mr. Edmund Leamy, member of Parliament for Waterford City, addressed a meeting of 4,000 of the men of Wexford, and bitterly denounced the Gladstonian policy which seeks to antagonize priest and people.

A passenger train was precipitated into Hughes River, W. Va., yesterday, by the bridge giving way. The passengers were uninjured. The conductor and engineer are supposed to have been killed. The train fell fifteen feet.

At five o'clock on Sunday afternoon Kansas City, Mo., was visited by a terrible cyclone, and the loss will be at least $300,000. So far as has been ascertained, but five people were killed outright. At least fifty buildings were blown down, and two hundred more badly damaged. Among those demolished was the elegant new church of the German Evangelical Society, but recently completed at a cost of $35,000; and the new Methodist Chapel was scattered to the four corners of the vacant lots beyond. After passing through the city, the cyclone proved very destructive to farm property; houses and barns were demolished on every hand; one house blown down took fire, and with the contents was entirely destroyed. School-house No. 7 was blown away. A farmer's wife was dashed against a cherry tree and killed; Mr. Reid, her husband, was fatally injured. The four children who were in the house—the oldest ten and the youngest only ten weeks—escaped without serious injury. It was pitiful to see those four children hover around their dead mother. Examination showed that the dead woman's neck was broken.

Austin, Texas, was visited yesterday by a $175,000 fire. The Anderson Pressed Brick Company's Works near Fullerton avenue, Chicago, were totally destroyed by fire last evening; loss $250,000.

May 15th.—Joseph Brady, the first of the condemned of the Phenix Park murderers, was hanged at Kilmainham jail, yesterday morning at eight o'clock. Fully 4,000 persons were gathered in the roadway leading to the jail; no one was allowed to stand in front of the building.

A British mail-train from Glasgow was in collision with a train from Carlisle last night. Seven were killed and several injured.

News from Christiania, Sweden, denotes that the present position of political affairs in Norway is very serious. The resolution of the Odelsthing to proceed with the impeachment against all the eleven Ministers of the Crown in the Supreme Court formed for this occasion, is considered as meaning war to the knife against the Crown and as aiming at separation from Sweden.

Four thousand boot and shoe makers at Cincinnati were locked out yesterday owing to a dispute with the manufacturers.

A fire in the Village of Leamington, Ont., yesterday morning destroyed the entire business section and burnt over five acres of ground. The loss is estimated at $150,000. The entire Town of Qu'Appelle, Manitoba, an important station on the Canadian Pacific Railroad, was destroyed, and the same fate overtook Bartlett, Dak., a village of about 1,000 inhabitants. At Seattle, W. T., the steamship Mississippi, of the Oregon Improvement Company's line, was burned to the water's edge, with a loss of $65,000. The chief engineer of the vessel perished in the flames.

To-day's paper, in speaking of the Kansas City cyclone, says: At Oronogo it struck the town with terrific force at 7:40 p. m., entirely demolishing the business part of the place and leaving but few dwellings. Three persons were killed outright. Thirty-three persons were seriously hurt, some of them fatally, one of whom has since died. Reports indicate that the surrounding country has suffered greatly by the destruction of buildings, fences, and crops, which were swept away by flood as well as wind. Three persons are known to have been killed in the town. Two others were killed in the country near there. Sixty were wounded, among whom are some thirty or forty who are seriously hurt. Two houses in Webb City and ten in Centerville were blown down by last evening's storm. But no one was seriously injured in either town. At Liberty, Mo., several houses were destroyed or badly damaged, and in the country adjacent several farm-houses and other buildings were blown down, fences destroyed, and trees uprooted. Capt. John Thompson was severely hurt and his horse killed while passing a barn that was blown down. At Missouri City, on the Missouri River, the steamer Bright Light was torn from her moorings, blown across the river, and lodged on a sandbar. It is not stated whether she was damaged. The storm last night passed one and a half miles south and east of Pattonsburg, destroying timber and everything in its path. Three dwellings, church, and two barns are reported destroyed, and a number of cattle killed. Only two persons are known to be injured—Al Burton and son. Fragments of houses and pieces of clothing were blown into Pattonsburg from across Grand River, indicating a good deal of destruction done on the south side of that stream.

In the vicinity of White Pigeon, Mich, the storm was felt with much force. Three distinct storm-clouds were seen to form; the first to scatter, the second to strike the ground about ten miles to the south-west apparently, and the third which touched the ground about three miles south from this place. The first building in the pathway of the cyclone was the Stone Lake School-house, in which were twenty-three pupils and the teacher. The wind lifted the building, down to the floor, and carried parts of it some hundred rods: The floor was moved four feet, but the seats were untouched, and the children found themselves in an instant with only the sky for a roof. The further path of the storm was strewn with houses in ruins, barns without roofs, orchards blown down, &c. After traveling two miles it struck the home of Peter Moak, and swept both house and barn into a mass of debris. His son William was in the barn, and was instantly killed. His body was carried 200 feet, and when found his head was nearly buried in the earth. Of the three persons in the house, two escaped by rushing into the cellar; the third, an aged lady, was lifted and carried nearly 100 feet in an opposite direction from which most of the debris of the house was blown. She escaped with a few bruises.

About six o'clock last evening, the vicinity of Indianapolis, Ind., was visited by a furious wind and rain storm. There was no particular damage in the city, but the village of Southport, six miles south suffered severely. The Methodist and Presbyterian churches and a school-house were blown down, and residences and shade-trees greatly damaged, the town being almost wrecked.

A severe storm, accompanied by hard rain, vivid lightning and high wind, passed over Cleveland, Ohio, last night, but was not extraordinarily violent. No damage as yet is reported here. The cyclone swept over Willoughby, Ohio, uprooting trees, unroofing houses, and seriously injuring one person. The hurricane struck Fredericktown with similar effect, and several people were injured, among them Postmaster Moore. The storm appears to have been general throughout Northern Ohio, with very high winds in spots.

May 16th.—For several weeks Jefferson Davis has been in very bad health, and has shown all the signs of a rapid breaking up. Yesterday he had an attack of throat disease, which materially impeded his breathing. He is thought to be not in any immediate danger.

At Chicago, yesterday, Judge Barnum sentenced Thomas Walsh, the brute who beat his wife to death with a strap, to thirty-five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. This really means only eighteen years and nine months if Walsh obeys the prison rules.

Several shots were fired from ambush at a care-taker at Castleisland, Ireland, on Sunday, and he was severely wounded. The affair is much commented on, and considerable alarm is caused, as it was hoped such deliberate outrages had been checked. Eight persons have been arrested on suspicion.

Twenty-seven buildings were destroyed by fire at Harrodsburg, Ky., including the Assembly Presbyterian Church.

Violent rain and hailstorms, accompanied with high winds, amounting almost to cyclones in some places, were reported from Mound City and the north-west part of Jackson county, Illinois, doing much damage to fruit and crops. In the Whitewater Valley, two nurseries had 68,000 panes of glass broken by hail. In Washington, Pa., and vicinity, the damage to property was very great. One man was badly hurt. The eastern section of Maryland was severely visited, and the peach orchards suffered; thousands of trees were stripped of their fruit blossoms: one grower estimates his loss at 70,000 baskets.

The German Reformed Church at Ridgley, Md., was struck by lightning and the roof torn off.

From Petersburg, Va., heavy hail storms are reported, with high winds, and many telegraph poles blown down.

A destructive cyclone swept over Fredericktown, O., last evening, accompanied by a heavy hail-storm. Hail-stones measuring eleven inches in circumference and weighing eight to ten ounces were picked up on the streets. A dark, funnel-shaped cloud did much damage to buildings and fences. The oldest citizens say they never saw a storm one-half as great as this one.

The Pope in his circular to the Irish Bishops says: "Whatever Parnell's object may be, his followers have often adopted a course openly against the rules of the Pope's letter to Cardinal McCabe, and the instructions sent to the Bishops which were accepted at their meeting in Dublin. While it is lawful for the Irish to seek a redress for their grievances and strive for their rights, they should at the same time seek God's justice, and remember the wickedness of illegal means in furthering even a just cause. It is the duty of the clergy to curb the excited feelings of the people and urge justice and moderation. The clergy are not permitted to depart from these rules and join and promote movements inconsistent with them. Collections to relieve distress are permitted, but a subscription to inflame popular passions is condemned. The clergy must hold aloof when it is plain that, by such movements, hatred and dissension are aroused or distinguished persons insulted, and when crimes and murders go uncensured, and when patriotism is measured by the amount subscribed, for the people are thereby intimidated. Therefore the Parnell fund is disapproved, and no clergyman should recommend subscriptions thereto, or promote it."

THE NEGROES.

HOW THEIR CONDITION IN THE SOUTH IS IMPROVING.

Once in a while we find a man who has traveled in the South for the purpose of ascertaining for himself to what extent the South is improving and to satisfy himself as to whether the colored people are possessed of sufficient taste and adaptability to take in the advanced conditions of American civilization who is fair enough to express in unequivocal terms what others have labored to disprove. Mr. Joseph Medill, editor of The Chicago Tribune, has taken a trip to Florida, and returns with the following statement, made in New York in an interview published in the New York Tribune.

It is eight or nine years since I was last in the South, and I was struck by the evident improvement all through the country. There is more contentment now than then, and a greater number of white people are at work: the colored people appear to be all at work, and have improved immensely in their seventeen or eighteen years of freedom. Every observant Northern man I talked with had noticed the same thing. Apparently they are in better condition than ever before; they are acquiring property, living better, dressing better, and their children are going to school very generally. It is my opinion that nearly one-half of all the colored children in the South over 10 years old and under 20, of both sexes, can read and write. While I was coming down the St. John's River, half a dozen little colored lads, from 7 years to 12 of age, were on the lower deck of the steamboat. An Englishman, who was traveling as tutor with an Italian Marquis, asked them if they could read or write. On their replying affirmatively, he asked them to write their names, ages, and where they were born in his note-book. They did it except one, who could read only, and in a very fair hand; some of them considerably better than mine. In talking to the colored men I found that the younger men had acquired the art of reading, and many of the older ones, too. They are fond of reading the newspapers, and seem as well posted as the whites in the current news of the day and political matters. I asked a young black at Palatka, who seemed idle at the time, what he did for a living. "In summer," he said, "I fish for a living, and in the winter I live off the Yanks."

If the South were visited by more such men as Mr. Medill, the false impressions which are made upon the people of the North by men who resort to devilish journalistic adroitness in order to satisfy their color bias, would soon give way to something like a fair estimate, a just knowledge, and a high appreciation of the advancement of the colored people throughout the whole South.

SENSIBLE AND SOUND.

DON'T be afraid of killing yourself with over-work, son, is the facetious way the Burlington Hawkeye has of counseling young men to thrift. Men seldom work so hard as that on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes; but it is because they quit work at six p. m. and don't get home until two a. m. It's the intervals that kill, my son. The work gives you appetite for your meals; it lends solidity to your slumber; it gives you a perfect and grateful appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, my son—young men who make a living by sucking the end of a cane, and who can tie a necktie in eleven different knots and never lay a wrinkle in it; who can spend more money in a day than you can earn in a month, son; and who will go to the Sheriff's to buy a postal card, and apply at the office of the street commissioners for a marriage license. So find out what you want to be and to do, son, and take off your coat and make success in the world. The busier you are, the less evil you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holiday, and the better satisfied will the world be with you.

DANIEL WEBSTER, it is said, once declared that if he had "as many sons as old Priam" he would have them all "learn a trade so they would have something to fall back on in case they failed in speculation." A Philadelphia paper commenting on this subject says:

The number of young men and girls who are brought up to no useful trade or calling is on the increase. The effect of this is seen in political life, where thousands of men are begging, as at present in Washington, for "position," with a vague idea that untrained powers and ignorance can find shelter in some cosy nook where they may at least draw their pay. Being practically of no earthly use to themselves or any one else, they only hope to find some place where they can continue to exist without benefiting any one. A destitute young man, without a trade, and who is not qualified by practice to become a tramp, is very likely to become one, or far worse even by becoming a criminal.

God's laws are not to be evaded with impunity. Cleanliness in externals as well as purity of life is one of these not to be safely violated. Cleanliness in our person, our houses, our towns and cities. Of these laws He distinctly says: "If ye will not hearken to me and will not do all these commandments; I also will do this unto you: I will even appoint over you terror, consumption, and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart." Against all sanitary reform have always been found the ignorant, the prejudiced and the ungodly. The sad thing is that the carelessness or apathy of these should lead to the loss of so many innocent and valuable lives. Be it cholera or yellow fever, the pure and the innocent must lay down their lives for the sins of the ignorant and unholly.

EXHORTATION.

Awake, Ye saints of Zion,
Sleep not as others sleep;
For soon your Master cometh—
O then your vigils keep.
Have oil within your vessels;
Let not your voice be dumb;
For soon upon Mount Zion
You shall be gathered home.

Arise my chosen servants,
Proclaim to fallen man,
That dire destruction's coming—
Is even now at hand.
Tell them that Faith, Repentance,
Baptism is the way;
And that the Holy Spirit
Gives light that they may see.

Be faithful all ye children,
Walk not in ways perverse;
For danger is around you,
Shrink not to bear your cross.
Ne'er call your burden heavy,
Nor think your trials hard;
For if ye are but faithful
You'll earn the great reward.

THE TRUTH THE WAY.

"Jesus saith unto him, I am the truth the way and the life."—John 14: 6.

It is written that Jesus come into the world to save sinners and that he brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. He found man in a wretched condition, living in the midst of death, surrounded on every hand with influences over which he had no control, a helpless, dependent creature and in need of a Savior that he might be redeemed from his helpless condition and from the power of an eternal death. Man's experience has taught him that he is weak and that within himself he has no strength, or power to save himself. He reads the history of man and of his once happy Eden home and his spiritual nature asserts its rights and earnestly desires to regain that power and dominion he once had. But how can he, without a helper? The Spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. Nothing but his fair Eden home will satisfy the longings of his soul. The gospel comes to him laden with rich promises and a glorious hope. He examines it, and it seems to suit all the demands; and when he is almost persuaded to lay hold of the hope set before him, the natural man begins to look around upon the beautiful things of this earth and its enjoyments; and as he does so, some one reasons with him upon the grandeur of the law of nature and nature's god, and of the wonderful wisdom of man; and to the carnal mind it is like sweet strains of music filling his being with joy for a moment, the next it is gone on the wings of the wind. It is like the dream of the night vision, he eateth and is filled; but when he waketh it is not so, he is hungry still. When left to himself he finds himself still undone, and in despair he is ready to cry out, "Whither shall I turn?" And his spiritual nature says, To him that said, "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest." "There is a spirit in man and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." God put that spirit in him and that spirit seeks to commune with the highest intelligence. Isaiah says: "The Lord created the heavens and stretched them out; he spread forth the earth and that which cometh out of it; he giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein." The spirit of man is not satisfied with the things of the earth; he wants a more enduring home; he hears and reads of the mansions of the blessed and he longs then for a city whose maker and builder is God. But how can he secure an inheritance there? Surely not by his own wisdom or power; neither by the riches of earth. What then must he do? Believe the gospel of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and obey it. That man might be saved, Jesus sent his gospel to all the world and gave men authority to tell the people what to do to be saved. "But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness" were the words of the blessed Lord. And again, "Except a man is born of water and the Spirit he can not enter into the Kingdom of God" comes with great force spoken by him that was sent, and to them to whom he was sent; evidently humanity must bow to the scepter of the King of Glory; and if saved at all, must be saved in His kingdom. And that man might understand what he demanded of the world, he sent forth his ministers holding, as Peter declares, a royal priesthood; and as Paul affirms, were ambassadors for Christ, and had authority to beseech the world in Christ's stead to become reconciled to God. And when and wherever men confessed the Lord and asked what to do, they readily told them; and their answer was always the same. Peter's answer to the people on the day of Pentecost was "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."—Acts 2: 38. And when Saul of Tarsus was on his way to Damascus to punish the Saints and met Jesus on the way and he trembling and astonished said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do. And the Lord said unto him: "Arise, and go into the city and it shall be told thee what thou must do."—Acts 9: 6. Ananias was sent to tell him what to do, and his answer was, "And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord."—Acts 22: 16. Philip went to Samaria telling the people to seek the Kingdom of God. "But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the Kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women."—Acts 8: 12. Then Peter and John went from Jerusalem to Samaria and confirmed the baptized ones members of the Kingdom of God by the laying on of hands, and by obedience to this ordinance they received the Holy Ghost. See Acts 8, Paul in his letter to Corinthians, says: "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ. Now I praise you brethren, that you remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances, as I delivered them to you."—1 Cor. 11: 1-2.

When Paul was traveling through the upper coasts he found some professed disciples and when he had taught them the words of the Lord according to the gospel, he baptized them, and laid his hand on them and they received the Holy Ghost. (See Acts 19). By a belief in the gospel and obedience to the ordinances they were made children of the kingdom of light; but before that they were Gentiles in the flesh. "That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world."—Eph. 2: 12. Truly a deplorable condition. God did not recognize them. They were out of Christ. And that they might have both the Father and the Son they must keep the ordinances as the apostles delivered them. "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death."—Romans 6: 3. Baptized into Christ; into his church. "And he is the head of the body, the church." (Colossians 1: 18). "For his body's sake, which is the church." (Vs. 24). "Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son; in whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins." Verse 13: 14.

To further show that they must be baptized before they are entitled to an inheritance in the church and kingdom of God, I quote from Gal. 3: 27-29. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew, nor Greek; there is neither bond nor free; there is neither male, nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if you are Christ's then are you Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Now as many as were baptized into Christ, the church, were heirs according to the promise. "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the Saints, and of the household of God. And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto a holy temple in the Lord; in whom ye are builded together for a habitation of God."—Eph. 2: 19-22. If that church with living apostles and prophets was like a building fitly framed together for a temple of the Lord, and the members of it were builded together for a habitation of God, surely nothing less than the same living body can save men to-day. The world if saved must be saved by seeking the kingdom of God, keeping its laws and ordinances as the Lord gave them. "Obedience is better than sacrifice," said one of olden time. Jesus said, "And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say? Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like."—Luke 6: 46-7. His commandment was, "Go and preach the gospel to every creature and he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." He that heareth these sayings and doeth them shall be saved in the kingdom of God; but he that doeth them not shall be damned. James said, "Be ye doers of the word, not deceiving yourselves." Paul says, "Christ became the author of eternal salvation to them that obey him." Surely the Savior of man and all the ministers God gave him out of the world have not mistaken in this thing. Peter exhorted the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Capadocia, Asia and Bithynia to be mindful of the words spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandments of us the apostles of the Lord and Savior. He commanded that Cornelius and his people should be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. John said: "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and enter in through the gates into the city." (Rev. 22: 14). "I am the way, the truth, and the life," comes to us full of meaning. "Strait is the gate and narrow is the way that leads to eternal life," points the wayward, wandering and erring ones to the mansions of the blessed. O, what a blessed hope! Come, all ye that are weary and heavy laden, throw off that terrible burden and stand free in the liberty of the gospel of peace. Obey the precepts and examples of the just, the pure and the good. Put on the whole armor of God, and go forth conquering and to conquer. And when the victory is won, hear the joyful acclaim, "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

WHAT IS DEATH.

THERE is nothing so certain in life as death. How true are the words of the poet:

Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set; but all—
Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O death!"

Said the great Apostle to the Gentiles, "For me to die is gain." And again on another occasion we hear him using language like this. "I am in a straight betwixt two, having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ, which is far better." The grand old Apostle does not seem to have looked upon death as something terrible; something to be feared and dreaded. The thought of dying (or departing as he expressed it) seemed rather to have given him joy and consolation. For him "to die was gain," and to "depart and be with Christ far better" than to remain in this world of sin and sorrow. I think death is a misnomer. We should not call our leaving this world, death, but rather dissolution; that is, a separating of body and spirit. Sure, the body dies a temporal death, but even this is a temporary death as well as a temporal. Temporary, for the reason that it dies for a time only; for, if we believe the Scriptures, we are assured that every one of these earth houses will, in the Lord's own due time, come forth from the stillness of the grave, or the depths of the ocean, or from wherever it may have fallen, or have been placed; and it shall be said of each one, "He is not here, but risen." Let each one of us strive to so live that when the grim monster shall come to us we may hail his advent with joy and not with sorrow.

W. H. BROWN.

A GENTLEMAN is a rarer thing than some of us think for. Which of us can point out many such in his circle—men whose aims are generous; whose truth is constant and elevated; who can look the world honestly in the face, with an equal, manly sympathy for the great and the small? We all know a hundred whose coats are well made, and a score who have excellent manners, but of gentlemen, how many? Let us take a little scrap of paper and each make his list.

IS REBAPTISM ESSENTIAL?

IN looking over Herald of October 15th, 1882, I saw the question asked by a brother in Utah in the following language: "If I was baptized in the days of Joseph the Martyr, and have come to Utah, and have been baptized into Utah Mormonism, etc, would I not have to be baptized to become a member of the Reorganized Church?" The above question being left open, I thought I would say a word or two on the subject.

I am well aware that I shall come in contact with many of my brothers and sisters in the Church in my views on the above subject; but before we condemn, let us stop and consider the subject, and see what grounds we have in the word of the Lord for rebaptism. Until a short time ago, I was a strong believer in the doctrine of rebaptism; but in a conversation with a man of the world on the principles of the Gospel, (about ten months ago), my views were changed in the twinkling of an eye, not by the man's argument, but by the impression that came upon me.

For the benefit of those who may wish to consider this, I will give the subject of argument at the time. The man above alluded to, was a confirmed believer in the doctrine of "once in grace always in grace," or once in a saved condition, always so; and of course my argument was, that if a man after being converted to God, turned from him, committed sin, and forsook the ways of the Lord, that he would become a castaway, (or lost). He then said to me, "Through obedience to the gospel we become sons of God, and do you believe because a man may turn from the Lord and commit sin, that he will lose his sonship? If so, a man may be a son of God to-day, and a son of the devil to-morrow, and so on through his life."

Now, dear reader, if you are a believer in rebaptism, what answer would you make to the above question? For you will observe there is a point there on the subject in question. The answer came to me without a moment's thought on my part, and seemed to be surrounded with light as it came, and it was to this effect: That a man falling into sin and forsaking the Lord, does not lose his sonship; but through sin and transgression he becomes disinherited. Now, if such is the case, which I certainly believe, is rebaptism essential?

Now, for example, I am my father's son, (earthly father). I may be disobedient to his commands, and do everything in my power to displease him; yet I am his son. I may so provoke him, that he disinherits me, and banishes me from his house, yea more, I maybe so disobedient that he may have to confine me in prison; but for all that I am his son. Then from this standpoint I argue, that if a man once obeys the Gospel, and is baptized by legal authority, and thus becomes a son of God, that such baptism will stand good to all eternity, and in no case to my mind is re-baptism necessary.

But says one, Does not the Bible teach us that if we sin that we are to turn and do our first works? Yes, very, true, it does. Rev. 2:5.—“Remember, therefore, from whence thou art fallen, and repent and do the first works, or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.” Now it will be seen by the above quotation, that the greatest stress is laid on repentance—forsaking sin. Will any one take the position that baptism is the first works of the plan of salvation? I should hardly think so, for faith and repentance both come before baptism; and faith and repentance, to my mind, are the first works here spoken of. And to the man who has been led astray, or wandered from the true faith of the gospel of our Savior Jesus Christ, into the doctrine of Adam-God, blood atonement, polygamy, or any other corrupt doctrine, surely can see the necessity of turning from the errors, which he has fallen into, and exercising the true faith of the gospel, and repenting of all sin, (turning from sin and doing that which is right in the sight of God), and to all such we read they have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. 1 John 2:1. Also, if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 1 John 1:9. Also, the prodigal son, although he took his portion, left his father's house, and wandered into a far country, and fed on husks and became clothed with rags; yet when he exercised faith in his father, and his house, and repented of his folly, he did not have to pass through nature's laws and be born again in order to become a son, or to find acceptance with his father as a son. But when he made his humble confession to his father, “I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son,” the father had the best robe brought forth and put upon him, (type of the robe of righteousness), a ring on his finger, and shoes on his feet, and the father had a feast made, and was merry; for he said, “this my son was dead and is alive again; he was lost, and is found.” So we, if we should allow ourselves to be led away by the devices of the evil one, and find ourselves feeding on husks, (the vain things of the word), and see the wretched state we have placed ourselves in by sin and transgression, then like the prodigal son say, “I will arise and go to my father, and say, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight;” confess our faults to our brothers and sisters, and ask their forgiveness if we have done them any wrong; forgive all who may have trespassed against us, and live with an eye single to God's glory, discharging all those Christian duties that belong to a true follower of Christ, we shall find to our comfort, that God will accept of us as the Father accepted his prodigal son when he returned, and will bless us with his Holy Spirit without rebaptism by water.

Yes, I hear some say when they read this, that if a person commits certain sins it is his duty to be rebaptized. This is not our opinion, and if it is yours, will you please tell us where we shall find the doctrine of rebaptism taught in the revelations of God.

We have seen some commit sin, others dispute and quarrel with their brothers and sisters, and after doing such things would not humble themselves, nor confess they had done any wrong, (as the law of God directs), but would allow themselves to be cut off from the Church. Then in a few weeks would ask to be rebaptized, and still show no humility, nor confess their faults to those they had wronged, but simply used the ordinance of rebaptism as a cloak for their sins, and came back into the Church again with the same bitterness in their hearts, to break out again and cause more trouble; and by such things as these cause others (of the world) to treat this holy ordinance of God with contempt, and use light phrases in connection with it, such as, “They want another dip,” or “They want another plunging,” &c.

In conclusion let me ask one or two questions. Will God forgive any sins to those who have obeyed the gospel, without rebaptism? If so, where shall we find the line drawn between those sins he will forgive, and those he will not, for John says, as quoted above, “If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.”

Hoping that our Heavenly Father will bless us all with light, wisdom, and understanding, that we may all see eye to eye, is the prayer of your brother, in the gospel,

THE MORMONS AND POLYGAMY— THE TRUE HISTORICAL FACTS.

Editor Bulletin:—In your edition of Wednesday last you have a report of a Mormon meeting of those who pretend not to be polygamists, to follow the paternal Joseph Smith and his son, now their leader. These men accept Joseph the elder, as a prophet, and pretend that he did not teach, preach, practice or countenance the holding of more than one wife. They pretend that the abomination was introduced only after his death, by Brigham Young and others. Now, sir, there is good reason for believing that these statements are entirely unfounded, that these men wilfully disregard the truth, and are probably only a disguised form of the same old leaders. The following facts can be relied upon. They are well known to the writer, and can be proven by abundant testimony if challenged:

First—In 1840 Mormon preachers were distinctly charged with polygamy, and although they denied the charge, it is quite certain that it developed itself very soon after as a fact.

Second—In 1842 the writer was among the farmers in the neighborhood of Nauvoo, in Illinois, and polygamy was one of the charges made against the Mormon settlement, and not denied.

Third—In 1844 the writer was as at Far West, Missouri, from which the Mormons had been driven to Nauvoo, and stayed all night with a farmer who had been one of them, but seceded and remained behind. He had in his house the children of two wives, though the second one had married another man.

Fourth—In 1846 when the Mormons fled from Nauvoo, through Iowa and Missouri, to Council Bluffs, the writer saw many of them with two, three and four wives, and children by them of six or seven years, and the doctrine openly avowed.

The elder Smith, the Prophet, so-called, had just been killed when this exodus took place.

Now, it is not to be conceived that these people were falsely charged with polygamy and afterward adopted it from choice. The charge came from the fact. But they were falsifiers from the beginning. If John Smith junior wants to be a prophet, and people like to believe in him, it is none of our business, but let him not drag his father in and leave out the corner stone of the faith. I believe in neither polygamy nor falsehood, and I incline to think this sect of Mormons entitled to no more belief or respect than the others. SCIENTIA.

Editor Evening Bulletin:—In your edition of Thursday, “Scientia” has given us what I suppose he considers positive evidences that polygamy is the corner stone of Mormonism, and does not forget to seriously doubt the effort made by the Reorganization, under Joseph Smith, in combatting that evil.

The Reorganization I believe to be honest in its work, sincerely believing as it does, that polygamy is a sad innovation upon the original faith. “Scientia” is right when he says “these men accept Joseph the elder as a prophet.” And they not only pretend, but believe sincerely that he neither taught, preached, practiced nor gave countenance in any manner to the doctrine. If he did it stands always ready to be convinced of the fact. Its faith in his prophetic calling can not be shaken; but his participation in polygamy in any manner would not for a moment prevent it denouncing him as a wicked transgressor. "Scientia" has failed to prove this, and we hesitate not to challenge him to do so, letting every church record and document be the rule of evidence.

A very prevalent idea is entertained that if polygamy could but be proven as existing during the life time of Joseph Smith, it would establish that the Reorganization is a falsifier in denying it as a corner doctrine of the original faith.

This position is not tenable when viewed in the light of facts. The view of the Reorganization is this, that Mormonism in the abstract rests upon Divine law and any tenet introduced not in harmony with that law, whether by Joseph Smith, Brigham Young, or any other person is wrong; and such person introducing it is a transgressor and amenable to God for so doing. Joseph Smith, now presiding, I am persuaded to believe from a personal acquaintance and knowledge of his character and his devotion to what he believes to be a continuation of his father's work, would be the first one to step forward and justly denounce him as a transgressor, if he could be convinced that his father was the cause of so wicked and abominable departure from the original faith as he surely believes polygamy to be.

"Scientia" labors to prove its existence in 1840. Admitting, for argument's sake, that his assertion is true, what is proved? Simply a transgression in the church, not by any means that it was a corner of the original faith. If "Scientia" will accompany me back to a much earlier period, 1832, he can learn something that may perhaps aid him in his reflections upon Mormonism. In a revelation received by Joseph Smith, dated the 23d of September, 1832, is found these words, "And your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received, which vanity and unbelief hath brought the whole church under condemnation, and this condemnation resteth upon the children of Zion even all, and they shall remain under this condemnation until they repent and remember the new covenant even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments which I have given them, not only to say but to do according to that which I have written."

The Reorganization does not hesitate to point out to all mankind that even at that early age of the Church, not yet two years old, it had become so manifestly corrupt in its departing from the counsels of God as found in the Book of Mormon and other commandments which it was required to observe, that God pronounces the whole Church under condemnation. As a member of the Reorganization I can not date the incipient stage of polygamy, but like all great crimes and crises that startle the world at times, a chain of events lead to their final culmination; so I believe with polygamy in the Mormon Church; a long line of successive transgressions followed in the growth of that condemned church, that led it up step by step to that awful culmination of apostasy, the receiving of the polygamous revelation from an evil source, its practice and expulsion from Nauvoo and rejection by God; a monument of disgrace and warning to all who transgress a covenant made with God.

"Scientia" says "they were falsifiers from the beginning," in denying polygamy in face of facts. These polygamists I have no doubt from its commencement made lies their refuge. This is exemplified in the leading polygamist presiding in Utah, John Taylor, whilst engaged in a religious debate in France. His opponent accused him of polygamy, which he vehemently denied as untrue, at the same time had a number of wives in Utah. "Scientia" thinks the Reorganization is entitled to no more credit or respect than the others; that its leaders are only a disguised form of the old leaders, believing but still denying polygamy.

The Reorganization and its mission is to try and reclaim those transgressors who have departed from the way, those covenant breakers, those law breakers, whose shame we are made to unjustly bear; its mission will never cease until the last vestige of this shameful odium is swept away and the cause it represents becomes honorable in the sight of all men.

MEMBER OF THE REORGANIZATION.

WILL-POWER.

THE universe is run by the Divine will-power. Man's will-power is not a peculiar product of his own, but is the offspring of the universal will-power. "The Son is one with the Father," says Christ. Will-power can be condensed or rarefied, grossified or sublimated, but these different forms are one in substance, though different in degree and quality. In the first case we call it anger, wrath, rage; in the latter case it becomes faith or love. Faith and love are forms of sublimated will-power that grow in efficacy by their sublimation. To the degree that we refine and educate our will-power, to that degree we make it useful and applicable. It is the true homeopathic principle in its highest spiritual aspect that pervades all creation; that that which becomes destructive and endangers life and health, when used in condensed form, becomes regenerative and healing when applied in a very much finer and attenuated form. In the sexual effects this fundamental principle of truth becomes of peculiarly striking evidence, and as it is true in the spiritual and moral life of man, we may safely conclude that it will also be valid in his physical life, for the principles and laws of creation are the same in both forms of its manifestation. The same principle is applicable, and is, in fact, the only genuine remedy for the evil of drunkenness. When the life-principles of the cereals is extracted, and in highly condensed or grossified form taken as liquor, it becomes deadly poison that burns up body and soul. Take it as nature prepared it in finely attenuated form—as unfermented breads and mush of wheat, barley, and maize, with grapes and fruits, and life, genuine life is restored, and the worst drunkard will be redeemed and become a man again. All diseases can be cured—one might say, can only be cured by will-power, or faith-power, or love-power. The finer, the more radiant, the more penetrating the power becomes. It is a strange infatuation, or deception, to believe that a physician or a drug cures a patient. The life of man is in his soul, and the life of the soul is its faith. A person that is not entirely grounded in faith to God or to Christ, or believes that the spiritual powers only control his soul and not his body, loses his organic faith when abnormal external conditions produce an acute form of disease. If the organic faith is not lost, any acute disease will be healed by the agency of nature alone, when the abnormal causes are removed and normal conditions are put in its place. If the last faith-action is not restored by faith in a doctor or a certain form of medical treatment, the soul becomes sick and chronic disease is established, because the soul has lost its life, that is, its faith. The faith of the soul manifests itself through the body by corresponding forms of breath, and the breath of faith—that is, the breath of life—is different in quantity and quality from the breath of doubt, or fear, or unbelief; the former gives life, the latter forms give death or paralyze life, when by prayer or by whatever external cause, the soul is re-established in the attitude of faith, it regains the breath of faith, and thereby life and health are restored.

To the degree that we develop and discipline and educate our will-power, by applying it to uses in finer forms, we master the universe, and become conjoined to the spiritual powers of God. If we rely on our own individual supply of will-power we will find it soon exhausted, but if we tune our own will into accord with the universal or Divine will, and subject it to the laws that regulate the latter as revealed, we can draw from the universal fund of will-power, and thereby become supplied with inexhaustible stores.—(Selected) by C.

LETTER FROM ELDER CAFFALL.

Dear Herald:—The fact of Christ telling his disciples to leave the city that would not hear, would seem to favor the idea that there would be residents of cities that would not hear them. And the singularity of this is no more apparent (in the opinion of the writer) than the declaration comparing the Kingdom of Heaven to a net gathering all kinds, good and bad. They are both somewhat peculiar, and cause a wonderment, that any human being should turn a deaf ear to the only system that can afford solid comfort in mortality, and give an earnest of celestial joy in the beyond. And that those who recognize God's government, which frowns on even the appearance of evil, only promising reward or justification for good deeds should think of, much less practice evil, and then use more cunning or deception and lying to hide or deny the deeds, than was necessary to perpetrate them, or assiduously laboring to make somebody else a scapogoat for their wrongs is marvellously strange, to say the least. But puzzling or perplexing as it may be, there is a thought founded in God's truth and justice making it tolerable, and 'tis this: That all may cultivate good desires, aspire to and receive the benefits resulting from good works performed during the battle that will rage through life's journey. For though evil exists, there is no force used in a manner to compel, in the absence of any desire for a participation in the evil. What though my path over the sterile plains or through the desolate kanyons of Colorado be beset with reptiles, vicious in their nature. If they have no more power over me than I give them. If there are bounds to which I may go, and be secure from their venom or deadly bite, and I transcend and fall into their embrace, who is to blame? It is certainly said the devil goeth about as a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour;—terrible, is it not? Well, yes, somewhat. But not so bad either, when it is remembered that the same authority declares: "Resist the devil and he will flee."

During the last ten years I have seen a frequent curling of the lip, snapping of the eye, and heard many protests against law, and we want to hear less of law and justice, more of mercy, &c. And to make this position formidable, 'tis said, Christ came to save and not destroy, as if the advocacy and enforcement of Christ's own laws would neutralize or render ineffective the great plan of salvation. Why did Christ say that he who offended, and refused to be reconciled, or hear the church, should be as a heathen man or a publican? Why did he tell his disciples as soon as he informed them how close they were related to God, that every branch that did not bring forth fruit, &c., God would take it away. From where? From the vine; and the vine was Christ. And to fully explain himself, he said that the branch could not bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine. No more could they, except they should abide in him. Hence the injunction: Abide in me. And having himself obtained the grandest victory ever obtained since God said Let there be light, during his severe struggle for forty days in the wilderness; and that by law, for it was the recognition of God's law with a corresponding effort to be governed by the same that he overcame, or resisted the offers of the devil. It was this that made him crouch and wither as it were before Him, when he said: "Get thee behind me, Satan." The declaration, "It is written," when his Satanic majesty saw a fixed determination by the Savior to be governed thereby, disarmed him of courage, and gave evidence that the will of the Father amid his severest trials was both meat and drink to him. And that the most dazzling jewels he could present was but the poorest and most miserable dross. Yes; knowing that his strength to resist all opposition lay in keeping his Father's law, with the greatest consistency he could, and did thus instruct his disciples.

The only reason that can be assigned for Christ's thus teaching is, that their spiritual welfare could not be otherwise enhanced. And it is most remarkable, that that young Palmyra Seer caught this inspiration, as is evidenced in the following declaration: "That which is governed by law is also preserved by law, and perfected and sanctified by the same." And nothing is more logical, that if a keeping of a law preserves, a disregard for that law or laws that preserves will expose to danger; or if one brings justification, the other brings condemnation, otherwise law were a farce. In which event we might change our policy, and instead of proclaiming a specific and exclusive gospel, join in with the masses, pass an examination by the orthodox, get the signet or mark in hand or forehead, or be christened Orthodox or Evangelic, and glide with ease down the current of popularity, all of which can be reached by acknowledging that God's laws are flexible. These sentiments are not the result of a consciousness of a purity above others, or a belief of a less liability of violating law than others; but the honest convictions of my mind, through efforts to understand the great plan of salvation for man's redemption. Hence, when I read in the law that he who shall trespass shall not partake of the sacrament until he is reconciled to me, it means just that; and law being the rule of action, when such an emergency shall arise, it involves a necessity for labor. And the "let him not partake" imposes a responsibility on some one. And justification of the one whose duty it is to perform the labor depends on its performance of course, while the justification in the eyes of the law, of the offender, is made to depend on the required reconciliation. The work therefore is imperative. And thus it is that the item of law which declares, he that learns not his duty, or fails to show himself approved, shall not be counted worthy to stand, has a significance which is by no means diminished in another item, which reveals the fact that a failure to bring the offender before the church, and do with him as the Scriptures direct, may incur the displeasure of the lawgiver. (Doc. & Cov., sec. 64.)

It is possible that a non effort to be an apologist for God may evidence to such an extent of a non-regard for man's well being as to expose him to criticism and a charge of a lack of charity. It may be thought that any effort culminating in a member confessing to a wrong, or being severed from the body, is officious, unkind and cruel. And I don't know but fingers may have been put into ears to shut out the sound of expulsion, excommunication, or cut off—under the pretext that they are hard, and harsh sayings. If so, then Christ is hard, harsh and cruel; for he himself taught and enforced the method of separation. And but for that, I had not known aught of the expulsion method. But since man is haughty, proud and revengeful, he is apt to prostitute his power to unholy purposes. But he should never be thus charged, unless there is ground for such a charge; and if there is, no time should be lost in preferring it, and the same alacrity exhibited, in a proper examination and decision.

Never having learned that Christ taught in vain, or without authority, I know no reason why objection should be raised to his separating method, or even exhibit a slothfulness, much less a negligence, in carrying it out when duty makes it imperative. A failure to act because justice may demand a decision which would give an offense, would evince a cowardice, or a non-realization of responsibility; while to watch for iniquity, or exhibit a diligence terminating in declaring against some one through spite or revenge, is to exhibit an ignorance or depravity, giving evidence that if ever God's love did fire such a soul, the fire has ceased to burn. It has been said, cowardice asks, Is it safe? Expediency asks, Is it politic? Vanity asks, Is it popular? But conscience asks, Is it right? Whatever conscience may be, or whatever works it may lead to, the Latter Day Saints have accepted a higher law, or rule, than that of conscience, which is God's law. And we are told that he who doeth according to said law shall be saved; but he that doeth not, or breaketh the law, shall be damned if he continues to break it. But we are all tenacious of rights, and when defining law, are wont to define very much in favor of self, and look on the one as our enemy who may fail to accept our definition and give co-operation for our special benefit. This arises from a self-justifying spirit or disposition in man. To write bitter things against one's self is not a lesson presented for learning in the gospel school. But efforts to educate our spirits, to call light light, darkness darkness, right right, and wrong wrong, is most essential to a proper and full development in Christ. And any Latter Day Saint who fails to see and forsake his own faults; and not only seeing but stumbling over others, and insisting that they shall confess and forsake, while he wraps himself tighter in his pharisaical cloak, is in a very bad dilemma. For a continual correction of errors is the road to perfection.

If a branch is brought into being with one or more officers, the necessity by that fact is established for official activity; not a spasmodic, but a well directed, and persistent activity. I would not oppose labor in organized branches, by the traveling ministry. So far from that, that I consider it very necessary, when legitimately done, or by those properly appointed. But going without tidings, or a galloping among the branches, under the pretext of a love for the work, when the sequel develops the fact that personal interest was the only incentive, should not be tolerated. Touching the regulation or setting in order the churches, the law of God is very explicit. And if this had been better understood, and less efforts made to throw suspicion and create distrust in those designated without desire or aspiration on their part, save to do God's will, much of the spiritual inactivity and evils resulting therefrom might have been prevented. The fiat, "Those that hear you, hear me, and those that reject you reject me," is still in force. And when labor by those legally and properly designated, is performed in Christ's name, and as his law directs, and is rejected, it is a rejection, whether by Saint or sinner, and effects of that rejection are known, seen, and felt. I believe every member amenable to the body for his moral conduct and ministerial labor, whatever his official position. That a General Conference has power to appoint and in a measure regulate, ministerial labor, I believe. But I do not believe that a General Conference has the right to grant, or curtail duties or privileges contrary to the written and received law. Futhermore if branch officials had been more studious, and correspondingly sought to be more united among themselves, with a view to a performance of official duties, and then labored to have infused life among the members of their respective branches, much good would have come, where evil has entered. And the necessity for labor by the traveling ministry lessened. The law of the Lord is not given to tell us exactly where hell is or may be, or the length or severity of the condemnation of those who go there. Or how beautiful or grand heaven is, or will be, further than that sin will be banished, and it will be beautiful. But more especially to tell us how to escape the one and gain the other. Hence, less soaring and delving to solve mysteries, and greater efforts to know ourselves; the law, given to govern, standing and working where appointed, learning and discharging present duty, and thereby showing ourselves approved, is, for our spiritual growth, absolutely necessary. Nor need this prevent efforts to study and learn from all we behold. For there is much to be learned from other sources, very much, but God's law is supreme. Nor does this preclude a recognition of good, wherever seen, or by whomsoever done, but does evidence an appreciation of human rights. And since Christ not only recognizes the good done by giving a cup of cold water, with a promise of reward, we certainly should not be backward in this work. And however the idea could be entertained, that none had had a good thought or performed a kind act, unless he had been, was, or should become a Latter Day Saint, is beyond my ken; and that of course is not wonderful. He who induces the inebriate to desist from his killing practice, and raises him to a higher plane of morality, is doing a good work, as are those who go among the suffering as angels of mercy, alleviating and making their sorrow less. But with all that, should they fail to accept the fulness of the gospel, become and remain valiant in the testimony of Jesus, there, for them is no guarantee of celestial glory.

Every individual who assumes the responsibility of following Christ, should by virtue of faith and fidelity, enjoy spiritual life in himself, which God has promised to give. And yet he may say:

*"But the friends that most cheer me on life's rugged road,
Are the friends of my Master, the children of God."*

And so it is, or should be with a branch, for it is a body corporate having power, by virtue of its relation with the body, to regulate its own affairs. And those who accept responsible positions, as presiding Elder, Priest, Teacher or Deacon, therein, are measurably responsible for its spiritual condition, as they are not appointed to be ciphers, officious, or meddling, but active, wise, and diligent. And a discrimination between officious and a zeal leading to an understanding of timely, and proper performance of duty, is most essential; as is a discrimination between natural impulses, and spirit impression. And a failure in either may be attributed, or assigned as a cause, for much of contention, inactivity, or a departure of spiritual life.

If the law provides for, or imposes a system of visitation, it evidences that good is to come to the members through that method that is not to be otherwise obtained. If therefore a failure to carry out this system a deprivation of good ensues, which is tantamount to an invitation to evil to enter, it enters bringing its effects, who is culpable? Districts coming into being through an increase of branches, and as additional auxiliary for the spread of the cause, branches may, and should receive help through the timely co-operation of the president of the district, who should be free to devote his entire time in the field without having to take thought for the morrow; that at the gathering in conference capacity he may tell the wants and needs of the district, and be familiar with the available help, suggest Elders best adapted for certain localities; for adaptability, in elevating men to offices, and appointing to missions, ought so far as possible, to be considered and acted upon. The adoption of measures for the further extension of the work, and the impartation of suitable instruction should be the stimulus for meeting in conference. But it has often happened that the consumption of precious time in the discussion of some topic, foreign and detrimental to the cause, tending to division rather than making the bonds of union stronger, has been the object rather than extending the cause, or evidencing such a desire.

The constant labor of an energetic presiding officer would supercede the necessity of so frequent gathering of district conferences. Two gatherings instead of four, in a year, would be ample, and prove a matter of economy in time and money. And if twenty members spent two dollars four times a year, and the gatherings reduced from four to two, would make a saving of eighty dollars, which would be so much toward sustaining the president in the field. And it does appear to the writer (though it is but suggestive) that many long and well trodden fields where the gospel has to the dwellers therein become an old song, might be abandoned, and new ones sought and explored. It would be reviving to read in the minutes of some district conference of the opening up of new fields. And it might afford an experience to some of our worthy young Elders in the work, of carrying the gospel to strangers, without purse or scrip, and with sometimes blistered feet and aching limbs; who, if they continue to swing round the circles of branches and districts, having good times in visiting district conferences and Saints, may die in blessed ignorance of such experience. These are some of my proclivities as I look out, or think of the cause I have espoused. And efforts to inoculate others with my proclivities by me is not attempted. So far as co-operation with quorums or the body is necessary, I would not be behind, but aside from those considerations, I am myself; looking for, nor expecting no unmerited favors, loving brotherly kindness and unity, wishing by all laudable means to promote and increase them, but never descending beneath a proper dignity to obtain favor, or shun censure or rebuke.

I struck Trinidad, in Las Animas county, two hundred miles south of Denver, on the 14th of April, applied for and obtained access, to the Court House, where I commence labor. On the 22d about forty citizens of the above place, which is said to contain five thousand inhabitants, favored me with their presence. Similar favors being denied me in other localities, I appreciated being admitted to this public place, a Temple of Justice. Though after printing, circulating and posting bills, my expectations were raised to a larger congregation than forty; but alas! The Court House is capable of accommodating three hundred persons, a lofty ceiling, velocity of sound very great. In speaking to so few I sought to modify my voice, but whether I came up to the standard of an Elder in Herald for March 10th, is doubtful. Four miles south of Trinidad is Starkville, a coal mining district. Here lives Bro. J. W. Kent who migrated from Iowa two years ago. Here I have held five or six meetings, with an average number of twenty; some apparently interested. Four miles east of Trinidad lives Bro. H. G. Smith and wife, who also came from Iowa. Twelve miles south of Starkville is the line between Colorado and New Mexico. There are all kinds of nationalities here, but in Las Animas county it would seem that the Mexicans preponderate, as they elected a sheriff who could neither read nor write. His deputies of course do all the required writing. There is quite an element of Italians, who with the Mexicans, are Catholic. This fact, with a strong skeptical element, and orthodox, which abounds everywhere, leaves but a small portion that may probably listen to what is called Mormonism. As a general thing the people in Colorado are the most listless I ever saw. The announcing of any subjects, through papers or posters, reviewing discourses given by the most popular divines through the press, all seem to fail to create an interest or the least excitement. I was anxious through an urgent request a man made of Bro. Boyd while living in Greeley to induce me to visit Sterling, who said he would secure a school house, and a good hearing might be depended on. I reached there in March; it lies over a hundred miles north of Denver, near the Platte River, to which point both Brn. Boyd and McConley have moved. The first meeting I held was in a private house. It was Sunday; appointed a meeting for Tuesday night in the school house. On the night a Colorado zephyr was felt; the house was built of sod, of more than an ordinary size, two windows, one half sash minus, and several lights gone from the other, the door off, hinges having broken, and to crown the whole beside, the floor becovered with dust as if a broom had not been drawn over it in the last decade. The house was perfumed but not with frankincense, myrrh, nor Hoyt's German Cologne. For Mr. Skunk had taken up his abode in close proximity. Blocking out the wind so that a lamp would give us light, after singing and prayer, I addressed the audience composed of six men, one woman and a boy. One of the men present suggested the propriety of appointing the meeting earlier the following night; thinking this evinced an interest, we acted on the suggestion, and the next evening we were greeted with three men and a woman; the third night three men, a woman, a girl and boy; the fourth time was Sunday, when we looked for a big attendance. With Bro. Boyd, swept and fixed the school house; but neither boy, girl, woman nor man put in an appearance. We held one more meeting; had three men, a boy, and three girls. What the result of labor may be in this locality, I know not, but do not feel very sanguine. That man who was so anxious for us to go to Sterling, never put in an appearance. So your readers will see that packed houses, many near the kingdom, can not at present be reported from Colorado. So far from this that it would appear this is the place for one of a city, and two of a family only, or a total rejection of the message.

CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The District Conference for Michigan and Northern Indiana is appointed to be held at Clear Lake, Steuben county, Indiana; to begin on Saturday the 9th of June, at 10 o'clock a. m. We hope that as many of the officials and brethren will attend as can. All of the branches should send reports and make their requests known, of whatever nature and character they may be. Ample preparation is being made (so we are informed), to entertain all who may come. Let all become interested in making this conference a most excellent one. Can not we beat the one recently held at Kirtland, Ohio? Emulation is good in a good thing—or cause. Take the Ft. Wayne, Jackson and Saginaw R. R.; get off at Ray Station; enquire for Jackson Smith, A. Patterson, B. Teters, Housman, Baily and others. This railroad crosses the Michigan Central at Jackson; and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern at Jonesville. Ray is south of these crossings. Brn. Duncan Campbell, J. F. McDowell, C. Scott, E. L. Kelley with as many of the First Presidency, Twelve, Seventy, High Priests, Elders etc., as can arrange to meet this appointment, are expected to be present. Don't wait to get everything else done, then think of conference, if you have time. Think of it as among the important things. Attend, or send a good word. We only hold conference here twice a year. Just before leaving home, stop a moment, reflect, and see if you have the right spirit. If not, better have prayers before starting—then attend in that frame of mind and feeling and we will have an enjoyable conference—long to be remembered for good.

DIED.

CARRICO.—Betsy Carrico born December 4th, 1811, at Bethlehem, Grafton Co., New Hampshire, died on the 2d of May, 1883, at the residence of her eldest daughter, Sister Almira Adams, Harrison county, Iowa. Sister Carrico obeyed the gospel in a very early day; lived with the Saints in Kirtland and was there married to Thomas Carrico. Her life was one of usefulness to her fellow man, and of faithfulness to God. Loved by all lovers of virtue and purity who knew her; her loss is keenly felt. Her example lives before the eyes of her children and acquaintances, and was truly one worthy the imitation of all. Her years were full being in number seventy-one. For more than a year this noble woman, who has always been so helpful to all, lay helpless, except at brief intervals, but her Heavenly Father has blest her with two kind and loving daughters, Sisters Almira and Jane Adams, who never wearied in caring for their mother. Their children also nobly emulated the example of their parents in seeking to comfort dear grandma in all her sufferings; nor can too much be said of the patient kindness of their husbands, Byron and Addison Adams. Their knowledge of her worth had rendered her dear to them all. We all mourn the necessity of her departure from our midst; but we rejoice to know that she is released from her intense suffering, and now waits in blissful anticipation that glorious morn when Christ will burst the bands of death, and restore the renewed and glorified body to the waiting spirit, when death shall be no more, and her joy and ours shall be complete in him. Elder P. Cadwell conducted the funeral. The writer endeavored to improve the occasion from Rom. 6: 5.

CHARLES DERRY.

CRAKE.—At London, Ontario, April 25th, 1883, Sr. Beatrice Martha Thompson Crake, aged 19 years. Deceased was born at Ipswich, Suffolk, England, and was baptized at London, Ontario, about eighteen months previous to her death, by Elder George Mottashed. Funeral service was on Sunday, April 29th, and was conducted by Elder George Mottashed. Hymn 1069 was sung, that being a hymn the sister sung about two hours before her spirit took its departure; the 21 chapter of John was read and commented upon. A funeral sermon was preached in memory of the dear departed sister, on Sunday, May 6th, from the 14th chapter of Revelations, 12th and 13th verses by Elder Mottashed in the Saints' Church, Maitland street. During the illness of our dear sister which lasted about seven weeks, she suffered much; but bore her sufferings with true Christian resignation; and bore a testimony to the truth of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

BASS.—At Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, March 25th, 1883, William Henry, son of Seth M. and Sarah C. Bass. Deceased was 5 years, 3 months and 2 days old, and is supposed to have died of blood poison, occasioned by a cut on his foot nearly three weeks before his death.

"When the buds broke forth in spring-time
Little darling, bright and fair,
Left us all alone and weeping
O'er his little vacant chair.
He was laughing, sweetly laughing,
As he trotted to and fro,
I can hear his sweet voice ringing,
In the starlight's gentle glow.
When we gather round the table,
When we say our evening prayer,
Then we miss our Willie darling;
There's a little vacant chair!
And the birds will come to listen
For the voice they loved to hear,
But the voice is gone forever,
And the days seem sad and drear!"

WEBB.—At Sacramento, California, April 18th, 1883, of infirmity and old age, Elder E. H. Webb, aged 74 years, 8 months and 2 days. Of his death Bro. J. R. Cook writes: "He sent word for the Saints to pray that he might go home. It will be useless for me to write much concerning him, as his life forms a part of the history of the Church. Suffice it to say that his record is a bright one, and he died strong in the faith."

CHASE.—At Brockton, Massachusetts, May 2d, 1883, Lizzie M. daughter of Bro. W. B. and Sr. Rosa Chase, aged 2 years and 26 days. Funeral services conducted by Elder John Smith. "For of such is the kingdom of heaven."

DEVORE.—Near Graysville, Monroe county, Ohio, March 1st, 1883, of consumption, Elizabeth A. Devore; aged 54 years, 10 months and 15 days. She was born April 16th, 1828, in Harrison county, Ohio; united with the church, November 7th, 1882, under the ministration of her son, L. R. Devore, and Elder H. Robinson. She died possessing the faith of the righteous, whose hope is glorious.

"Dearest Mother, thou hast left us,
And thy loss we deeply feel;
But 'tis God who hath bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal."

G. A. BLAKESLEE, BISHOP.

EXTRACTS FROM A SERMON BY

ELDER E. L. KELLEY,

AT SAINTS' CHAPEL, LAMONI, IOWA,
DECEMBER 10th, 1882.

I NOTICE there is a sentence contained in the revelation of September 28th, 1832, which to my mind is met in the very work we are attempting to do now.

"Nor is it expedient now to further fill up the quorums, except it be the Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons: Which ye may do as ye deem wise, by the direction of conference."

It occurred to me at the time that that was given, that there was indeed a very wise reason that the prayers that had been offered by his people should not be answered, when I was informed by the Bishop and those who had to do with the funds of the church, and understood the fact that a number of individuals that were occupying places in those quorums that we were asking to be filled up, were unable to fulfill their callings under those quorums, for the reason that he was compelled to say, if you go into the field we can not maintain your families. Now what my friends is the use of a people coming together, and by resolution applying as they did, fervently and in good hearts, to the Creator of us all, to know his mind and will in regard to whom he would place in certain quorums of the church, when the individuals who are placed in those quorums are under the necessity and duty of going into all the world, forsaking home, forsaking families, forsaking wives and mothers, and brothers and sisters and children in order to disseminate the good seed, the word of God, when it is not possible for them under the existing affairs of the Church to comply with these duties and callings?

I am one who believes that there is great harm sometimes results from ordaining individuals to certain offices in the Church when it is not in their power to fulfill those offices. So it seems it would only have been an injury had any individuals been called to the work under the quorums specified in our prayers and petitions, and been permitted to be placed in a situation which it was impossible for them to carry on the duties of those offices. It would be placing them under the responsibilities of those offices, but not relieving them in accordance with the regulations of the Church.

Now this temporal law has been a means by which corrupt individuals have been permitted, and not only permitted, but they have delighted it seems, in teaching and abusing it. But this is no reason why the temporal law of to-day should not be equally taught with the spiritual law, as it was delivered from the same Creator himself. And if we look back to the spiritual law and the teachings of the spiritual law, all along down through the ages since the apostles' time, we will find that the corruption of that and the mal-administration of it, has been as great if not greater than the mal-administration of the temporal law that was instituted in the time of the Savior. It is possible for individuals to so pervert and misapply any law, as not to reach the great end of the law; and before the law should be called in question by any individual that it is a bad law, he must show us a people who have complied with the law, who have kept the law as it was revealed in the books, as revealed by him, and that they have brought forth bad fruits as the just and proper emanations of that law.

It is not enough to say that a law is bad because somebody is bad who is trying to keep the law; or that the law is bad because some individuals who have been trying to keep the law, or thought they were trying to keep the law, have brought forth bad fruits. The fruits of these individuals would be proof that the law was bad, provided they kept within the law and the principles which they professed to believe in and teach. Herein is a great principle which underlies numerous principles that are taught and put forth by those who live to-day, and do not believe in the Scriptures of divine truth. They condemn that which is written in the law because they do not find individuals bringing forth the fruits that are predicted in the law when they should look back to the point whether these individuals are keeping the law or not, as it is; because if they are not keeping the same law, why should we expect the fruits spoken of in the New Testament?

Before you can condemn Christianity, you must show us a people who are living up to the principles of that law taught in the Bible, and that they are not a good people. Before you can condemn the Christian Savior, you must show me a people who are living according to the spiritual law taught by the Christian Savior; who are living in accordance to the temporal law as taught by him, and then judge whether they are bringing forth bad fruits in their lives or not. When you show me a people like that, who are bringing forth bad fruits in their lives, then you will show me that Christianity has been a failure.

Now I have spoken of the manner in which the Bishop is to give an account of the funds that come into his hands, to which I also referred this forenoon, so that we might see that in the undertaking of the temporal authorities of the Church to teach the law, it is incumbent upon them, that they are only doing that which is required at their hands, and it is not for the purpose of sinister motives or anything of that kind, as some may claim.

In the first place, it is placed upon the Bishop of the Church and his counselors to teach the law of the Church as pertains to temporal things, as well as upon certain other quorums of the Church. And it is said here in the revelations that if he fails to do that, that he shall be removed; and I believe if he fails to comply with his duties as a just and true steward to you, that he should be removed. And not only that, but you fail to do your duty as just and faithful stewards of your own, of that which the Lord has given you, and seeing that it is placed in the way of doing good for the promulgation of the gospel, if you hesitate for a moment to so displace him if he fails to fulfill the law as taught in the revelations. It is the duty of the Saints to work in these matters, and I will assure you that so far as I am concerned, I shall as heartily work in that as any other thing in the Church, because this I conceived to be my duty under the calling under which I was trying to labor previous to my present position, that whatever the law of God taught should be maintained without fear or favor of men in any particular. And if the time shall come when the Church shall say step out, we prefer another, and the Lord shall say it, I shall say, God's will be done, with the same thankful heart that I do now, and especially in regard to my present duties I should be very thankful to my brethren.

We are urging compliance with the law by every individual in the Church. Why? Because it is only by that kind of a compliance with the law that the Church can take its place among the nations of the earth. I am not one of those individuals that believe that we shall always be behind. I believe it is possible for the Church to which we belong to take its place among the churches of the land, and among the nations of the earth; and that it may and must come, before the gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world; also, before the great end shall come. We in order to place ourselves in that position, and occupy as the Bishop has said, must do something. We must not only work as individuals in our individual capacity, but we must make a united effort. We must make such a grand, determined and united effort as was made by our forefathers when the Republic in which we live was established, when they united their properties and their services, that we may come forth as one man to establish the cause that we believe to be of that great king himself, so that when he comes we shall have a cause worthy of him, and be ourselves worthy to receive him.

The same God who said you should be blessed temporally, if you obey the temporal law, said also if you obey the commandments of God which he has given unto you, you shall have Eternal Life. If you believe in one, why not believe in the other? We sometimes chide our brethren who are on the outside, by saying that if they have not faith to attain to some of the least of the blessings that can be attained to in the Church here, the reception of the Holy Spirit, so as to speak under its power in prophecy, and so forth, how do they know that they will ever attain unto the great reward of Eternal Life? Now how do you know that you will attain to it, if you have not faith that God will fulfill his word to you in temporal things? And this word we showed this morning was incorporated under the gospel dispensation by Jesus himself.

Now I believe if we want good crops that we must comply with the law. If we want to receive the fruits of the ground we must comply with the law of God in temporal things, and then God is bound upon his part to pour out a blessing that, as he says, our granaries shall not be able to contain it even.

Now I remember meeting one individual, in traveling around, who has tried this, and I will narrate this circumstance, though quite a number have told me of like circumstances.

He said that upon the occasion of the sowing of his grain in the fall—it was in a state where they sow fall wheat—he promised the Lord if he would give him so much grain from that sowing, that all that was over that he would give unto him, and he calculated in his mind about how much he would get from this if the Lord prospered him as he had been prospered before. When he came to thrash his grain, he said that he had what he had asked for himself, and the amount that he had asked for the Lord, and one hundred and twenty-five bushels besides, and then he asked us when the Bishop was up there, what he thought he ought to do with that one hundred and twenty-five bushels.

I will leave you to say what you think he ought to have done with the one hundred and twenty-five bushels.

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Sec. 72, Par. 4.

And now, verily I say unto you, that as every Elder in this part of the vineyard must give an account of his stewardship unto the Bishop in this part of the vineyard, a certificate from the judge or Bishop in this part of the vineyard, unto the Bishop in Zion, rendereth every man acceptable, and answereth all things, for an inheritance, and to be received as a wise steward and as a faithful laborer; otherwise he shall not be accepted of the Bishop in Zion. And now, verily I say unto you, let every Elder who shall give an account unto the Bishop of the Church, in this part of the vineyard, be recommended by the Church, or Churches, in which he labors, that he may render himself and his accounts approved in all things. And again, let my servants who are appointed as stewards over the literary concerns of my Church have claim for assistance upon the Bishop, or Bishops, in all things, that the revelations may be published, and go forth unto the ends of the earth, that they also may obtain funds which shall benefit the Church in all things, that they also may render themselves approved in all things, and be accounted as wise stewards. And now, behold, this shall be an ensample for all the extensive branches of my Church, in whatsoever land they shall be established. And now I make an end of my sayings. Amen.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 2d June, 1883.

Not long since the Burlington, Iowa, Hawk-Eye, contained an Editorial calling attention to the rumors that Mormon propagandists were actively engaged in trying to make converts in the South and elsewhere, mentioning the late meeting at Kirtland, as an instance of their daring in Ohio, and remarked:

"In Ohio, there has been within the past month (April) a rededication of the Temple erected by Joseph Smith, from which the Mormons were driven years ago; and the report is, that the Saints, although the Mormons living in civilized states are nonpolygamists, were welcomed back with open arms by the people of that locality. From these facts it would appear, that instead of dying out, Mormons are making marked headway, and that they are in a measure justified in their expectation that the righteous, meaning themselves, shall inherit the earth."

"Of course every body feels secure in the belief that this is an absurd expectation; but it does not require unusual foresight to see that there is danger in Mormonism, which ought to be destroyed the sooner, the better. Strange things have happened in the world's history, and as this is a new country, with a complex population and undeveloped possibilities, there is no telling what may happen here. Every day's delay will make it more difficult to subdue the evil. If through party policy and indifference this sect is permitted to grow and to gather strength to successfully resist overthrow in these western territories, we will have ourselves to blame."

To this editorial screed Brn. W. R. Sellon, resident in Burlington, and Zenas H. Gurley, of Pleasanton, Iowa, replied; demonstrating the faith of the Church, and showing how strange it is that men conducting a live newspaper like the Hawk-Eye, can be so ignorant of what is going on among the people of their own state.

However the paper seeks to make the "amende honorable" for confounding the two classes polygamists and anti-polygamists together, and pays a just tribute to the Saints of Iowa, calling the attention of the readers to Col. Sellon's article. Really, our brethren are getting to be so numerous and so vigilant that in every quarter where this tenacious-of-life misunderstanding comes to the surface, there is some one to correct it. That is right. "A lie may travel from Maine to Georgia, (or from Utah, August 29th, 1852), while truth is pulling on her boots;" but when truth finally gets on her feet and started the lie has to seek for a refuge.

Some of the papers of opposite political proclivities are seeking political capital out of the question of Mormonism, the Weekly Globe, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, thinks that the Republicans do not "discuss the excellencies of the Edmunds' Bill" before "persons of the Mormon faith scattered throughout Iowa" because they are voters. The same paper adds that the "Hawk-Eye thinks that the Mormon religion is a great abomination in Utah, but that it is pretty decent in Iowa!" And that the probable reason for this is that the Iowa Mormons can vote in the next fall election; while those living in Utah can not. These papers on opposite sides of the state and opposite in politics, may each advocate the convictions of their respective parties and the editors; and it is just possible that neither has much regard for either church, the Mormon, or Reorganization, and it would be quite bad policy for the Saints to permit themselves to be coaxed, or forced into bitter political controversies, and animosities by either of the parties they may affiliate with.

Whatever view any of the Elders, or brethren may hold respecting the powers, and policy of the Government, it is their grave duty as conservators of "Peace on Earth and Good Will to men," to be good citizens of the Republic, and good citizens are neither apathetic in respect to the laws by which they are being, or to be governed; nor brawlers about this or that form or policy. The Declaration of Independence was wisely designed and served the purposes of its appointment; the Constitution is a grand one, and a great many of the laws are good ones; and however much any one of us may fancy that we could re-adjust the bad ones and make them better, we are far safer to abide the test of use and experience that may finally set them right. And besides this we are by church rule and covenant under duty to abide by the constitutional law of the land. Nor has any man in this wide republic, churchman, or sectary, minister or layman, believer, devotee, infidel or fatalist any individual right to decide for himself as to the constitutionality of any law, good, bad, or indifferent, which he may like or dislike; and elect to obey, or disregard, as he may dissent from, or agree to its consonance with the constitution. His assent to the constitution is heartily given, or taken for granted; and in itself are the provisions by which laws made under it are to be decided upon. And when any man, or people choose to set up a superior authority, and claim the right to decide upon the constitutionality of any existing law, or enactment by proper authority which may interfere with their schemes, or theories, whether of religion, or social economy, they assume what can not be granted by any government however liberal it may be, with any consistency or propriety; and which, if such people be allowed to exercise it must prove destructive to the existence of such government.

The claim for constitutionality for plural marriage which our Utah religionists make is of precisely this character; for in a late issue of the Deseret News, the quotation from the Doctrine and Covenants, which makes it the duty of the Saints to maintain that law of the land which is constitutional, the reservation to decide adversely to any law restricting, or interfering in any way with Utah's laws governing the domestic relation is clearly made. The reason assigned by them is specifically that it is commanded by God, hence is a "higher law," higher than Supreme Courts and the Congress—above all laws of county, state, or nation. This reason at first sight seems plausible, but its specious character is seen, when it is discovered that to command any such practice God must contravene specific law given by himself at other times, in other places and in other dispensations, of a directly opposite character; and must likewise command the disregard of those very constitutional guarantees of human liberty that he had pointed out to the people and enjoined their maintenance and observance of because they had been ordained of him.

Whatever may be said by them this fact remains, clear and indisputable, that God chose the United States as the arena in which the work he designed to accomplish by the sending of the angel to Joseph Smith, with the gospel message; and to create before hand a favorable form of Government under which his design might be wrought out, and to surround that work with suitable aids to its accomplishment, he "raised up wise men to frame the Constitution;" which includes the provisions by which the Government may decide as to the constitutionality of its own laws in its own way.

The Supreme Court has decided that laws passed by the National Legislature attempting to regulate the institution of marriage in Utah were constitutional; and when this was done, it was a formal and positive declaration on the part of the Government of their right to control that institution in that territory. Of what avail then is it for these Salt Lake sages and Utah lawyers behind their plea "This is our religion," to claim exemption from legal enactments to compel them to live in accord with the fundamental, firmly laid and God given principles upon which the Church was first established.

It can be no hardship upon patriots to obey the law. He who loves his country obeys its laws; in the way that he who loves God obeys his laws; and we are not chargeable justly with inciting persecution when we insist that the laws be enforced there as elsewhere.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE LAMONI BRANCH adopted a rule early last summer requiring that for the purpose of making or changing any rule governing the branch in its business, or the choosing of branch officials, there should be one hundred members present, and that for other business twenty-five should be a quorum. Under this rule the Elder then present resigned May or June, and the care of the branch devolved upon the Priest, who faithfully discharged his duty to the welfare of the branch and the satisfaction of the Saints. At no meeting for business from the adoption of the rule until April last was there a quorum present; but on the meeting, April 28th, upon the occasion of the annual choosing of officers, a full quorum was present. Bro.

Henry A. Stebbins was chosen by a large majority, and will have for his assistant officers, Bro. Asa S. Cochran, Priest; David Young, Teacher; and Norman W. Smith, Deacon; together with such others as these may select to aid them in the care of so large a branch. There is now rising of four hundred and fifty members belonging to the branch at Lamoni, and something near a thousand in the Decatur District. Not more than one half of the membership of the branch can be packed in either the places of meeting, and not a fourth of the district can possibly get in. This, of course, provides nothing for those not of the Church who are and will be attendants at the meetings, and how they shall be accommodated begins to be a troublesome question. Besides this, the necessities of this strange work require that there should be at Lamoni, or some near locality, a building large enough to accommodate the sittings of the Annual Conference. And who is there that shall say such a house is not needed. Come, brethren, let us go to and erect this place of worship. We have been comforted and cheered in the Temple at Kirtland, and our hearts are aglow with God's love.

Bro. Wm. E. Coiner sent us a copy of Harpers' Weekly, of April 7th, containing a pictorial representation of the Temple at Kirtland, and the assembly there last conference. Parts of it are more amusing than truthful; and some are quite correct. We thank Bro. Coiner.

Bro. Oscar L. Ferguson visited the small branch of Bickertonites, in Kansas, on the 13th of May, and attended a meeting presided over by William Bickerton. Bro. Ferguson is of the opinion that if an Elder informed in church history would go among them, many would be won to the Church. He thinks many of them to be sincere and earnest; and some are quite ready for a change. Bro. Oscar failed to give us the name of the town, or locality where they are.

Bro. D. S. Mills, of Santa Ana, California, stopped at Lamoni on his way home, and was heard morning and evening; at the old church in the morning, at the new in the evening. His discourses showed that the spirit of the gospel has obtained in the land of flowing wells and orange blossom honey, as well as on the mid-American plains and the stoney places of New England.

Bro. B. V. Springer reached his home in Davis City, Iowa, with his dear old mother, and after tarrying a few days at home, during which he favored the Saints of Lamoni Branch with two of his unique and stirring discourses, on May 20th, one at the old chapel in the morning, and one at the new in the evening, both of which were interesting, notwithstanding he was suffering from a most tedious and painful gathering in his head, that gave him great annoyance. Lamoni is being favored with visiting preachers and we are thankful when they come.

THE EDITOR of the Willoughby (Ohio) Independent, is now and then inclined to a little dry fun. A Mr. "J. C." wrote up an article on the faith of the Saints, which while respectfully enough worded, threw shades of coloring against the faith, cleverly too. To this article Bro. E. L. Kelley at once replied, to the extent of a column of fine type in the Independent. The Editor, J. H. Merrill, emphasized the article by directing attention to it in the following neat hit:

We had supposed that a colporteur of the American Bible Society resided in our neighboring township of Kirtland; but if so, he must have been very remiss in his duties; for this week we are called upon to print a large portion of the New Testament for the especial benefit of J. C. We know that most of our readers are well acquainted with the contents of the good book, and are not a little surprised that in this 19th century any Kirtland man has to be enlightened on its narratives and precepts. While we are perfectly willing to do our share in the evangelization of the heathen, we protest against the use of our columns in such a wholesale manner; would prefer to present J. C. with a copy of the book, rather than publish a verbatim account of the sayings and doings of the evangelists and apostles, interesting as the record may be.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS.

Bro. J. M. Wait, writes from Whitcomb, Wis., May 17th, 1883:

I am still here in Whitcomb. I have not been well for the last year. I have comfort in that I intend to be on the warpath. The Sheriff of Antioque offered me the court-house to preach in. I shall go some thirty miles by rail. I want to bear my testimony a little more to this work before I go hence. I am seventy-two years old. May God bless this work.

Bro. Isaac N. White writes from Adell, Iowa:

This is my seventeenth day from home, and am sounding the tocsin of truth by Adell, Iowa. Have felt the presence of God's Spirit. I truly feel that God is favoring Zion. I am not in a spiritual cyclone, neither am I ready for such. Pray that I may have wisdom coupled with zeal, and this will "hold the fort" and gather Zion."

Bro. Thomas Hayton, who had his house and premises destroyed in the cyclone that fell upon Oronogo, Missouri, wrote on the 17th:

Oronogo is almost wiped out with a cyclone.

My family and I were at Webb City, Mo., at the time attending Saints' meeting. I guess our faith saved us, as all I had of this world's goods are destroyed, about one thousand dollars. I have sent you a paper giving a short account of the cyclone, but one has to see to realize. It beggars description.

BRO. M. B. WILLIAMS, of Middletown, Ohio, succeeded in getting into his town paper, the Journal for April 16th, nearly a column of sound information in regard to and in defense of the Church, in answer to an attack made upon the faith by a Methodist preacher, on Sunday, April 8th, who affirmed in relation to Utah Mormons and the Reorganization that "they were all alike." We reproduce a few paragraphs, for the sake of their brevity and clearness of statement.

The gentleman who so misrepresented the Latter Day Saints last Sunday night, did it wilfully or ignorantly, and if wilfully his sin is in defaming the character of a law-abiding people, when he knows to the contrary; and if ignorantly, he is speaking evil of that which he knows nothing about, and hence he is to be pitied, no matter which of the two positions he occupies. Nicodemus said, "Doth our law judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doeth?" Just so I ask, does the law of our land judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doeth? What right has any man to say that I believe contrary to that which I publicly teach, unless he has evidence that I have privately taught to the contrary? The man, woman or child, who has ever heard me teach any thing to the contrary to that which I am willing and anxious to tell to every one, is now at liberty to proclaim it upon the housetop. If the man who has never seen me, and probably would not speak to me if he had, knows more about my private thoughts than myself, or more about my moral character than those who have know me for eighteen years in Butler county, the matter is virtually settled.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it proper and right for sisters to deliver public addresses upon religion, Sabbath Schools and their work, temperance, the duties of mothers, children, and the like? And what spirit would continually exhort them to such work, as an imperative duty?

Ans.—We see no impropriety in those talented for such work doing it; and to us the right would largely, if not wholly rest upon the possession of the requisite ability. As to the Spirit that may urge to such work, it would be difficult to say, for the answer must range all the way from the highest and best desire to do good, down to the whisperings of pride and personal vanity; from the noble impulse of a well prepared mind and modest spirit to the vainest desire for notoriety that could move an empty mind and aspiring spirit.

Wisdom, opportunity and fitness are handmaids that travel together in usefulness, and duty never lies where these do not lead or accompany.

BRO. WM. L. MILLER sends the following, clipped from a Washington Evening Star, of May 16th, and suggests that some one of the Elders visit the region and dispel the suspicion complained of. This is a good suggestion.

MARYLAND MORMONS.—The mormon sect that has been revived in Herford county, Md., is known as the Limited Brethren of the Latter Day Saints. At their last meeting recently between 60 and 100 persons were present, the males outnumbering the females three or four to one. These Mormons believe in the divine institution of the Mormon church by the prophet Joseph Smith, but repudiate the church in Utah, which they hold has departed from the true faith in engraving polygamy upon the original Mormon doctrine. A good deal of suspicion is, however, entertained of the movement lest it may cloak polygamist tendencies such as it is declared were manifested thirty years ago.

THAT there is motion in the theological world may be easily seen from the following brief of one of Rev. H. W. Beecher's sermons. His expression, italicized in the extract, we can readily endorse; yet how different it is from that criticism upon the belief and teaching of the Elders concerning the existence of a "personal deity," so long and so universally passed upon them, that they were "making God like unto corruptible man, and teaching what was debasing and demoralizing to man." How are the tables turning, that which tends to do away with a personal God is demoralizing. Verily "time hath its revenges."

THE EXISTENCE OF GOD.

MR. BEECHER BAPTIZING TWENTY-TWO CHILDREN AND PREACHING ON EVOLUTION.

There was a fine display of flowers in Plymouth Church yesterday morning, and Henry Ward Beecher baptized twenty-two children and babies before preaching the sermon. Among those who listened to him was ex-Congressman the Rev. J. Hyatt Smith. In the course of his sermon, which treated of the inability of finite minds to know and understand God, Mr. Beecher said that to-day the existence of God and the Divine nature were apparently of more interest out of the pulpit than in it. The bringing down of arguments to prove the existence of God into the court of human criticism was apt to make men doubtful that God really existed. It was safer, generally, not to try to prove that God existed, but to take it for granted. Yet it was not fair to let it be said that God's existence would not stand the test of reason. Both atheism and agnosticism were very mischievous, and agnosticism, although much more amiable than atheism, was quite as dangerous. Many men sentimentally accepted God, but scientifically they were forced to say "We don't know." It was a matter of grave doubt, they said, whether all the phenomena of nature could not be accounted for by secondary causes. Mr. Beecher said he admired the writings of Huxley, Spencer, Tyndall, Darwin and other investigators, and these men were certainly entitled to credit for honestly searching after truth, but in all points he could not agree with them. He was inoculated with the doctrine of evolution, Mr. Beecher continued, more than forty years ago. He found that doctrine in the Bible, and when he found that it had been preached by scientific men he gladly accepted it. He held it to-day with greater strength than ever. It was going to give Christianity a power it never before had. It let in a flood of light on many otherwise obscure things. This age was much indebted to Herbert Spencer for his presentation of the history of creation, but Mr. Beecher could not agree with his agnosticism. Anything that tended to do away with a personal God was demoralizing. If all things were evolved from preceding elements, where did the force that inheres in natural laws come from? Where did the elements themselves come from? Admitting that the creation as it stood now was not that which sprang up at the word of God; admitting that everything sprang from something preceding, and that from something preceding, and so on and on for ages and ages, until the very lowest elements were reached, where did those elements get their power to evolve? Did the whole creation spring from absolute nothing? Did natural law produce itself? Was nothing more powerful than something?

A good deal of the difficulty which turned men toward scientific agnosticism, Mr. Beecher went on, was the over-confidence and positiveness of theology. Theological teachers had been supremely conceited in their knowledge of God. One would think they knew all about God's nature and all about creation. The Scriptures, however, were very modest as to God. Everywhere they made the declaration that God was unknown and unknowable. Nowhere did they teach that our knowledge of God could be absolute. The scope and grandeur of God were too great for our limited faculties. When we were told that God was infinite, we could not know what infinity was. God could not be bound by man. In conclusion, Mr. Beecher pointed out that only by moral intuition could the existence of God be known, and this moral intuition did not need to be understandable to be accepted.

New York Times, May 14th.

William H. Seward: "I do not believe human society, including not merely a few persons in a State, but whole masses of men, ever has attained, or even can attain, a high state of intelligence, virtue, security, liberty, or happiness, without the Holy Scriptures."

Dr. Adam Clark: "We should be cautious how we appeal to heathens, however eminent, in behalf of morality; because much may be collected from them on the other side. In like manner we should take heed how we quote the fathers in proof of the doctrines of the gospel; because he who knows them best knows that on many of those subjects they blow hot and cold."

Summary of News.

May 18th.—A cyclone struck Denison, Texas, this morning at 10 o'clock, demolishing the Baptist Church, a frame building. It blew out the front portion of the public-school building, a large brick structure, and wrecked many residences.

A heavy wind and rain storm passed over portions of Nebraska this afternoon, doing considerable damage in the way of destruction of houses, barns, fences, etc. About a dozen houses and a school-house were destroyed in and about Valparaiso, Neb.

The special commission for the trial of the Phenix Park murderers and their associates concluded its work yesterday. Six men pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiracy to murder, four of whom were sentenced to ten years' penal servitude each, while the sixth escaped with half that penalty.

Smelting works at Leadville, Colo., were damaged to the amount of $60,000.

Advices from Asia report another encounter between the troops of the Ameer of Afghanistan and the Shinwaries, in which the Ameer was defeated. Seven hundred Shinwaries were killed and their heads sent to the Ameer of Cabul.

The boiler of a passenger steamer on the Volga River exploded yesterday, killing twenty-seven persons and injuring many others.

May 19th.—Racine, Wis., was struck by a tornado last evening. It is believed that at least twenty people were killed, three times that number injured, and a hundred houses destroyed by the tornado.

A high wind, or cyclone, passed over the suburbs of Springfield, Ills., last evening, and did much damage to property, and injured several persons. At Round Prairie, four miles east of the city, it was felt with more force, and the damage was worse.

Daniel Curley, who with Carey and Joseph Brady took the leading part in the deliberations and actions of the Dublin "Invincibles," was hanged yesterday. A considerable crowd waited outside the jail for the raising of the black flag, but there was no disturbance of any kind. Curley declined to make any statement touching his connection with the crime for which he was executed.

Two judicial executions occurred in the United States yesterday, both in Georgia. Henry Knight was hanged for the murder of Edward Hunter, and Joseph Cohen for the murder of his wife. The execution of the latter was witnessed by 6,000 persons.

Five hundred feet of frame shedwork erected on the Lake-Front for the accommodation of the Railroad Exposition was blown down yesterday afternoon. Five men were buried under the ruins, but none were killed.

The steamer Granite State was burned in the Connecticut River yesterday morning, and although it was almost at its landing several lives were lost. About 120 passengers were on board, fifty of whom jumped into the river.

May 21st.—At noon yesterday a collision occurred on the Maine Central Road, between a freight train and a special engine. Three men were killed. The concussion was terrific, driving back the engine several yards and tearing up rails and sleepers. Almost immediately the boiler of the freight engine exploded, the smoke-stack flying fifty rods. The boiler-head of the other engine was blown out. The engine was badly damaged and fifteen cars wrecked.

The police of St. Petersburg, Russia, have been informed of the existence of a plot to frighten the horse of the Czar at some favorable opportunity during the procession at Moscow on the coronation day, and in the confusion which would no doubt follow, to kill the Emperor.

Later news from the cyclone which passed over Racine, Wis., says, nine bodies have been recovered and identified. There are thirty patients receiving attention in the hospitals and sixty slightly injured at private houses.

Additional details gathered from various sources show that the tornado of Friday night plowed through three counties in Missouri—Montgomery, Warren, and St. Charles—and besides destroying a large amount of property, killed and more or less seriously wounded over twenty people. The largest amount of destruction seems to have been wrought in St. Charles Co., where the storm swept along south of the Wabash Railroad, leveling to the ground nearly everything in its path, and leaving nothing but devastation and ruin in its track.

Over in Illinois the storm raged in about the same manner as it did in Missouri. Luckily there, as on this side of the Mississippi River, it struck no town of much size, but spent its force upon farm-houses, country residences, growing crops, forests, etc. A well containing twenty feet of water was sucked perfectly dry.

At Brighton, Kenosha County, Wis., the Catholic Church was demolished, the roof torn off the priest's house, and the new Catholic school-house and several barns and small buildings destroyed. In the vicinity of the Union Grove, Wis., two storms joined, and buildings, barns, timber, and live-stock were destroyed. In Boone and McHenry Counties, Ills., the cyclone swept through a score of villages and left a track twenty miles long and half a mile wide behind it, marked by unroofed houses, ruined barns, and blasted trees. Four lives were lost and over twenty persons more or less injured in these two counties.

The iron suspension bridge of the Indianapolis & St. Louis Railroad at Hillsborough was blown away about 9:55. The express train was completely wrecked, the engine, tender, and express car being plunged into the creek where the bridge had been blown away. The engineer was killed outright. The fireman was injured seriously if not fatally. None of the passengers were injured. The Chicago Tribune says, concerning these cyclones, "It is noteworthy that the occurrence of so many strongly-marked storm movements within a few hours and in such a limited area is probably without a parallel in history. At least, so far as known, it is not a matter of record.

Twenty-five dwellings were destroyed and forty families rendered homeless by a fire at Rudesheim, Germany, yesterday.

A rumor gained currency yesterday that an attempt was to be made to destroy the dockyard at Hull, England, by means of dynamite. The force of watchmen on duty was doubled, but the expected explosion failed to occur at the appointed time, like most other "outrages" announced in advance. A box with a fuse attached, and containing four bottles filled with colored liquids and a number of wires and springs, was found yesterday on the steps of Petersborough Cathedral. On the lid of the box was a representation of a skull and cross-bones and the words: "Beware the Invincible army." The box was marked "Depot branch office, 57 Broadwood street, New York," and a slip of paper with the words "Conscience makes cowards of all men" was found inside it. The thing is considered a hoax, and it is difficult to conceive of it in any other light.

At a meeting of the Third Ward Land League yesterday afternoon Mr. Patrick Egan, former Treasurer of the Irish Land League, made a speech in which he pronounced the circular recently issued from the Vatican "an insult to the common sense of the Irish people." He recalled to his hearers the time when Irishmen rallied for the defense of the Papacy, and said that England had schemed and intrigued to obtain just such a declaration as this from the Pope. As to the effect of the circular he declared that Irish Catholics had become educated with regard to their rights as men and citizens in matters purely secular, and would stand no dictation or interference with these rights from any quarter. In other words, "if Rome enters into an unholy alliance with England against us, we shall stand for national rights and the liberties of Ireland against Rome and England combined." The Sixth Ward Land League adopted resolutions indorsing the action of Congressman Finerty in the Philadelphia convention, and speeches denunciatory of the Papal circular were made.

Delaney, one of the Phenix Park murderers, has been reprieved.

Moscow is decorated in honor of the approaching coronation of the Czar. The streets are crowded with people. Great numbers are arriving daily. The Czar was received at the depot by a number of Grand Dukes, Princes, and Generals. The national anthem was played as he drove in an open carriage to the palace. Great crowds cheered him along the route. It is estimated that 200,000 persons lined the streets from the station to the palace. Order was maintained by unarmed citizen guards.

News of a great flood and loss of five lives and $150,000 worth of property, is received from Deadwood, Lead City, and other places in that part of Colorado. The Methodist Church and more than one hundred houses were washed out of Deadwood alone.

22d.—Yesterday's storm on Lake Michigan will long be remembered by the Chicago sailors. Wind and wave wrought terrible destruction among the lighter and less sea-worthy vessels, and from all points disasters and loss of life are recorded. Two vessels went ashore at the Twenty-ninth street pier, and five lives were sacrificed. The storm extended into Lake Huron, and did great damage to shipping there.

The Jenny Lind was wrecked south of Thirty-third street, and four of the crew drowned.

From Milwaukee we learn the gale on Lake Michigan yesterday was undoubtedly the heaviest since 1875. The only loss of life occurring was three of the crew of the schooner Petrel.

One of the highest winds that has ever visited Sarn'a has been blowing from the north-east since last night. A barge, apparently about two miles above Point Edward, on the Canadian shore, is waterlogged and drifting on the beach. Heavy seas have been breaking over her since she first struck at two o'clock this afternoon. There is no question but that all hands are lost.

A cold snow-storm set in yesterday morning at Hudson, Mich., and has raged with considerable fury since noon to-day.

At Cedar Falls, Iowa, the season continues backward, and the outlook for the farmer is discouraging. The weather partakes of a Polar wave. Ice froze last night from an eighth to a quarter of an inch thick. Similar reports come from Dubuque and Des Moines.

Friday night's cyclone struck near the mouth of Horseshoe Creek, Johnson County, Arkansas, near Hartman Station, followed the east fork of the creek a few miles out, blew down over twenty buildings of various kinds, including a country church and school, killed one man, and injured several others.

Since the report of five deaths by the Liler, Ills., portion of the terrible cyclone Friday night two more of the injured have been added to the sadly lengthening death roll. The ruin is indescribable, the whole track of the wind being marked by a mass of debris. Houses, stores, churches, furniture, merchandise, and railroad-cars are lying all in heaps. Those citizens who are able to work are clearing up by making immense bonfires of these demolished structures.

The fireman of the ill-fated engine which plunged into the creek, where the iron bridge was blown away by the cyclone, died yesterday. The work of clearing away the debris is progressing slowly. A baggage-car and engine are still in the creek. The engine is a total wreck.

One thousand acres of timber land have been burned over in Clinton and Essex counties, New York. The Rogers Iron company lost 200 cords of wood at Clintonville. Several kilns have been consumed. At Beekmantown the large frame house and five barns fell prey to the flames. A large number of hogs were roasted to death. It is reported that two houses and a paper mill at Port Kent were reduced to ashes. The fire has communicated with the brush and thick undergrowth at Junction Kilns, and a considerable amount of cordwood is in danger of destruction.

The Village of Neuenkirchen, a market town of Prussia, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. Even the fruit trees and wooden crosses in the church-yard burned. The entire population, 1,300, is homeless.

The body of a steward named Quinn, who has been missing for four months, has been found in the lake near Castlebar, Ireland. A heavy chain was around his neck, showing that he met his death by foul means.

A memorial monument to Burke, assassinated in Phenix Park, was placed in position at the Glasnevin Cemetery, Dublin.

May 23d.—The first consignment of New Zealand apples were received at San Francisco, Cal. As the apples ripen there in the months corresponding with our spring, it is possible that a good trade will be developed.

Yesterday afternoon Harvey Cool, a young man employed in a sawmill at Carrolton, Mich., fell from the saw-carriage upon the large circular saw and his body was completely severed. He had been married only a month.

The rain and thunder storm which arose last evening at Reading, Pa., continued during the night and grew more severe every hour. The storm was accompanied with considerable lightning and heavy claps of thunder. A number of large trees were splintered, and telegraph poles and wires were considerably damaged by lightning. The spire of the Trinity Reformed Church was struck by lightning and considerably damaged. Crops were damaged and fields flooded.

There seems to be no room for further doubt that during the recent storm one of the finest sailing-vessels owned in Chicago was lost with all on board. The schooner Wells Burt, from Buffalo to this point, coal-laden and with a crew of eleven men, was seen Sunday night off Waukegan, and has not been seen since. Sailors report having noticed the spars of a vessel rising above the water at a point about three miles from Grosse Point, which would be in the course of the vessel from Waukegan to Chicago. The Wells Burt was owned in Chicago, and was valued at $37,000.

Longfellow's memory is to be duly honored in London by the placing of his bust in Westminster Abbey. It will occupy a position between the tombs of Chaucer and Dryden.

The alleged dynamite conspirators were arraigned again at Liverpool yesterday, and testimony to show the connection of the prisoners with the explosion at the Glasgow gasworks was offered.

A loss of two lives, of property worth $50,000, and of fourteen horses resulted from fire in Brooklyn, N. Y., yesterday.

DUNVILLE, Dunn Co., Wisconsin,
May 17th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. J. R. Cook has written a reply to my letter in the Herald on the baptism of John; I feel constrained to rejoin. I feel very feeble in my body, but my soul is alive to the glorious truths of these last days. My hands shake with age; in June I will be eighty-five years old. My eyesight has failed me greatly; you may see this by my getting sometimes from the ruled line. My dear companion and I have no brothers and sisters of the Church to have fellowship with, but live in the midst of gross darkness. Our dear relatives care for our temporal wants. They have been as kind children unto us. There are some of our neighbors believe with us. I used to go among them and speak of the gospel; but I feel that my limbs are too feeble for travel. Had Bro. Stebbins, or Kelley when here, remained a month or so, I am quite sure they would have raised a branch or two. If there was a branch here my soul would rejoice; I would labor with them. There have several called upon us after Bro. Stebbins left, asking us if he would come back. When Bro. Kelley was here he only preached twice in Menominee, and there were many that were stirred up and edified. He sold to one a Book of Mormon. But just after he left the Baptists held revival meetings, and they baptized several. It was in the Baptists' meeting house that he preached. I went to the owner of the place, a Mr. Wilson; it was a large hall that a lumbering company, called the Knay, Stout & Co., built for a public hall. Mr. Wilson was one of the company, a very rich company.

Mr. Wilson, and all the company know me, and respect us; when I asked him for the place, he said, "Surely." He told one of his men to put a fire in it and light the lamps. The two nights a large hall filled with eminent hearers. I believe that had Bro. Kelley remained a month or so, there would have been a branch raised up. Mr. Wilson and a Mr. Tainter, another of the company, was very fairly impressed. My lack of hearing keeps me from going alone, as I could not hear questions were they asked that I could answer.

God bless you, and all the Saints is my daily prayer.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 14th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—A few days after my return from Kirtland, I addressed a note to R. Patterson, stating I learned through the Herald that he had published a pamphlet relative to the origin of the Book of Mormon; but I gleaned from the review of his effort in the Herald it was the same old story of the Spaulding Roinance, yet I would like to see his pamphlet. At the same time I mailed him a copy of "Prophetic Truth." I observed in doing so, that I learned from other parties that he desired that persons possessing any information upon the subject would communicate with him; that I offered as my reason for addressing the gentleman. I informed him I was acquainted personally with the Seer and several parties who saw and handled the plates, from which the Book of Mormon was taken. And as I was a resident of the city, and had been for nearly forty years, if agreeable to him I would make him a call. He acknowledged the receipt of my note and mailed me a copy of his pamphlet; and stated that he would be pleased to meet me at his office on Penn avenue. I, as a matter of course, did myself the pleasure of obtaining an interview; but it was but a brief exchange of ideas, as after I stated my conviction that Mrs. McKinstry's statement of their having possession of the alleged "Manuscript Found" remained in the possession of the family from 1820 to 1834, together with the statement of E. D. Howe, of Painesville, that the manuscript given to Hurlbut and by him transferred to Howe who affirms it had no similarity to the Book of Mormon, but was written after the modern style of composition, proved to me that a fraud was attempted to be imposed upon the public; and that it was a vain glorious effort upon the part of Spaulding's family, and the opponents of the restored gospel, to give a dead man some degree of notoriety, who by his history possessed nothing of any apparent ability while he lived. At this juncture I found I was not the kind of informant desired. I urged the departure of christendom from the original doctrine and church polity; but that could not be admitted. He replied that Jesus told Peter that the gates of hell should not prevail against the rock upon which he would build his church. Of course the question, What was that rock, presented itself. Patterson and a friend present, affirmed the rock was the truth! That was not denied; that truth continued to exist; but the form in which that truth was to continue showed clearly it was by the continuation of revelation. That revelation has ceased and its perpetuity denied; and Paul to 2d Timothy 1st chap. 15th v. lamented his apparent loss of his life labor in Asia. John in Rev. 13:7, 8, shows that after the destruction of those who retained the spirit of prophecy and revelation, that the gates of hell prevailed over all kindreds, tongues and nations. Thus ended the interview, which confirmed the well known fact that men love the darkness rather than the light. The review of the Spaulding story in the Herald has forever killed the Spaulding myth, and will afford the Saints an answer in that direction for ever.

I expect in a few days to start out and labor, if strength is continued, throughout the district. I have so promised; may the good Father help me. I am feeling well—about as at the Conference. May mercy and peace be with Israel forever.

THE SECOND NOTE OF THE "MIDNIGHT CRY" OF MATT. 25.

The prediction in my last communication based upon Professor Wiggins' astronomical calculations was only fulfilled in part; the event predicted being a period of time, in place of a point of time, which event is "the shaking of the powers of the heaven."—Matt. 24:29. The heavens here referred to is the same heavens mentioned in Gen. 1:7, 8, "And God called the firmament heaven." This is the same heaven referred to in the Savior's prediction in the above text. Matt. 24:29, "And the powers of the heavens [the firmament] shall be shaken." The copulative conjunction "and" couples this event (the shaking) with the event recorded immediately preceding this event in the Savior's predictions, in answer to the enquiry made by his disciples, recorded in the third verse of the 24th chapter, as follows, "Tell us when shall these things be and what shall be the sign of thy coming?" The sign of his coming is composed of those four events recorded in this 29th verse; of which this shaking is the last event of the four; to-wit, the sun shall be darkened. The tribulation here mentioned fixes the chronology of this event at the close of the Papal persecution, about 1780, "Immediately after the tribulation," &c., the sun shall be darkened. The sun was mysteriously darkened on the 19th of May, 1780, just at the predicted time, just after the greatest persecution the church ever experienced or endured, or ever will.

There are many historical records of this dark day unnecessary for me to quote. "Sears' Guide to Knowledge" says: "Similar days have occasionally been known, though inferior in the degree or extent of their darkness. The causes of these phenomena are unknown, they certainly were not the result of eclipses."

Again, the historian, Mr. Tenny, quoted by Mr. Gage, before the historical society, says, in reference to the moon becoming as blood: "The darkness of the following evening was probably as gross as has ever occurred since the Almighty first gave birth to light. I could not help conceiving at the time that if every luminous body in the universe had been shrouded in darkness, or stricken out of existence, the darkness could not have been more complete. A sheet of white paper held within a few inches of the eyes was equally invisible with the blackest velvet; and whenever on this memorable night the moon did appear, as at certain times it did, it had, as predicted in the prophecy, the appearance of blood."

"The falling of the stars." This event took place November 13, 1833. There is abundance of evidence in regard to all and each of these events referred to having been literally fulfilled; namely, the darkening of the sun, May 19, 1780; the moon the same night; the falling of the stars, November 13, 1833, just fifty years ago in the coming November; and surely the next event, the shaking of the heavens, is now due, and is now actually taking place in the terrible destructive calamities (tornadoes and cyclones) that are becoming more frequent and destructive continually, and will increase in magnitude and destructive power until the mould of prophecy is literally and completely filled, as recorded by John the Revelator, Rev. 6:14: "And the heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places." The wheels of prophetic fulfillment will never stop or turn backward "until every jot and tittle are fulfilled."

This fourth event, the shaking, brings us to the close of the sixth period in the Christian era, and introduces the great day of his wrath (Rev. 6:17), which is the last day, the harvest, the Judgment day. And this also is a period of time and is covered by the seventh seal; and in this great judgment day the judgments and calamities are much more terrible than the tornadoes and cyclones that are now taking place and are plainly indicated by the seven trumpets that all belong in the seventh seal and are yet in the future, and will be eternal in their results. In the coming period the Saints must be divinely protected, or fall with a guilty and condemned world.

Dear Herald:—On your journey of love to the dear followers of Christ, far and near, take with you a greeting: and tell them that the spirit that gives them joy and peace, the same is also with me; so that I can feel its hallowed influence—and I have the promise that if I shall strive after it I shall have it as a constant guide, companion; however weak I am I am one of them that strive to follow Christ, and how little progress I may have made on the way yet I hope to hold on and not give up until I reach the high point of view, which is before me. I would be pure and holy, with permission to dwell in his divine presence, with the Saints of all the ages of the world. I know that God is the same from eternity to eternity—that his promises are true and faithful. I have an assurance within that the gospel originated with God, and that no man can affect it, in taking from or adding to it, and therefore I love it, and cling to it, and am ever thankful to God that He opened my understanding to this heavenly light. I have no greater joy and pleasure than when I am in meeting with the Saints, listening to their testimonies and songs of praise, am filled with the Holy Spirit, its hallowed power spreading over me, filling my heart with love to God and all men. Still at such times my strength fails me, and when attempting to speak and testify of God's blessings towards me, my body trembles with weakness and it seems that I can not utter the feelings of my heart. I ask beloved brethren and sisters, sincere and earnest souls, when you look upon these lines that you pray the Father in my behalf, that I may receive strength to overcome the weakness and fearfulness which holds me on the bench, and binds my tongue in the presence of the Saints when the good Spirit is prompting me. I long to see something through the Herald from the pens of brethren Kemp, Henry, George and James. I don't remember having read any from Bro. George Kemp; but precious words have I heard him speak, here in a conference meeting,—and Bro. W. Street. I love to read his pieces, also those of Sr. Perla Wild; and the writings of all our dear brethren, (defenders of the holy truth); God bless them, and their dear ones whom they leave; and blessed be those who entertain, aid, and uphold them.

Your sister in bonds,

NICOLINE W. THOMSON.

CLEAR LAKE, Steuben Co., Ind.,
May 16th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—This beautiful morning I take great pleasure in writing to you and asking you for a space in the columns of the Herald, for the first time; to inform you and those whom I was made acquainted with at the late Kirtland Conference, the ministers and Saints of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and this great latter day work; with which work I was made known three years ago, after living up to the age of forty-nine years. It was made known to me through the Spirit of God by his servant G. T. Griffiths, who was sent to Galien, Michigan, to proclaim the everlasting gospel of Jesus Christ. There and then was the first I began to seek after truth and light, and yielded obedience to the gospel and commandments of our blessed Savior and found relief for my poor soul. There I went forth to obey the commandment of baptism for the remission of my sins, and for the cleansing of this body to receive the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands. Ever since I have tried to live a faithful servant of Jesus Christ, and this latter day work; well might I say, this great latter day work. The most of my life I was a riotous, drunken and gambling man; being a poor boy at the close of the Mexican war, after working six years for my board and clothes, in the State of Pennsylvania, the only place I could get work was at a distillery. Times were hard and I was glad to go to work any where. But O, my kind reader, here I was made partaker of the appetite for strong drink. Remaining two years, I started west, no kind father and mother to call me in at bed time, or call me to family prayer around the altar. Dear brothers and sisters, may the God of love and his kindness press this upon your hearts while you read these lines; when you bow around your family altar, see that your children are bowed with you, is the prayer of your brother in the Spirit of Jesus Christ. I am not giving a statement of my life merely to show how bad I lived, but to show how I was brought into so much sin and the appetite of intemperance, and to tell you that the good temperance people did their part towards me in a great many parts of our beautiful land; as I was taken up by different temperance societies, such as Temple of Honor, and Sons of Temperance; but it was of no avail; the appetite would overcome me, and way down in the gutter, for the last ten years of my life was my destination. A little over three years ago, at Galien, Michigan, I believe that God, through his kind mercy used his power and his Holy Spirit, through a hand maiden of his, to sicken me of the life I was living, by saying to me as I came along the side-walk, that she felt sorry for me, that she would pray for me, and do anything that would make me a better man. After walking away three or four steps, this came to my mind, "See how much this handmaiden of God thinks of you, and how little you care for yourself." After going to bed in the evening at the hotel, I would every now and then wake up and hear her praying for me, perhaps a half dozen times during the night.

Next morning I started for home, going north perhaps one mile, not having been home for four days, feeling like a sheep-killing dog; system all racked by drinking the poisonous liquors; almost wishing that the road might spread apart and swallow me up—but, Ah! there, at that certain spot, I heard a voice say to me, by the roadside, "Look! look up! Promise your Heavenly Father that you will love and serve him and keep his commandments that he will remove the appetite for whisky from you." I made the promise, looked, asked God to remove the appetite for whisky; and to my astonishment my Heavenly Father answered my request, and my prayers to this object ever since. And I thank him for the Spirit he brought to bear upon his handmaiden to cause me to be weary of my wicked and sinful life. There and then I was made a believer in the power of God. But kind reader, will you please place yourself in my fix. After living the life I had, up till I was forty-nine years of age. Will you remember the promise I made to my Heavenly Father that I would obey his commandments? Where were the commandments? I had gone to the different churches; but what one minister told me in the morning were the commands of God; in the evening in the church across the road would be denied; so, not being learned I was left in the dark. But, the commandments I had promised to obey; so I went and got down in secret prayer in the barn, in the woods, as I was hunting my cattle, and asked God in the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, to make known to me the commandments that he had given to his children. I was pointed to the sixth chapter of Hebrews, first and second verses, faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead, eternal judgment. After receiving knowledge of the commandments of God, I would ask him in secret prayer, for the plan of salvation, and the Church of Christ. I soon learned through the word to go forth, obey the commandments. This was done by hearing the gospel preached by Bro. Griffiths; and ever since I promised my Heavenly Father to love and serve him; and obeyed the commandments, I had the power of God given to me, so that I could govern my appetite. That Spirit that Paul speaks about has entered. The things we once love we now hate; the things we hated we love. Our prayer is that God ever will continue his blessing upon fallen humanity. Amen.

Wife, daughter and I left Kirtland, May 10th; bidding good-by to Bro. E. L. and Sr. Kelley, Bro. Scott and all the rest of the Saints, and the kind people of Kirtland and went westward, bound for Steuben county, or Clear Lake Branch; where we were kindly met by our worthy Brn. Peter Bally, Housman and family, and the rest of the Saints and a great many kind people. Bro. William Smith is with us, giving us of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and this great latter day work, that has made us such a happy home in this temporal kingdom; with a spirit to work faithfully to enjoy the home in the spiritual kingdom, that our Savior is going to prepare for us.

May God bless the work and build up Zion is our prayer.

Yours in the gospel,

JOHN SHOOK.

WEBB CITY, Jasper Co., Mo.,
May 14th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I am happy to tell you all's well. I accompanied our worthy district president, J. A. Davis, to this place, 12th inst., from Waco, to enjoy their social meeting, which we did on the 13th, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, which services were conducted by their worthy branch president, T. S. Hayton, during which services we were all much edified and encouraged through the teachings, prayers and testimonies. After meeting Bro. and Sr. Hayton spoke of going home, four miles, to Oronogo, but was prevailed upon by Bro. Southerland and others to stay all night; so several of us met at Bro. and Sr. D. Bradford's, where time passed pleasantly, talking and singing; when the house shook by violence of the storm that was raging out doors. One house, and several out buildings were blown down and damaged. Carterville, one mile away was much more damaged; houses, &c., including one new M. E. Church and school-house. We soon learned that Oronogo was all blown down and two killed, many wounded, some mortally. Brn. Davis, Hayton, Southerland, Bradley and writer soon witnessed the heart rending scene; death, suffering, and destruction of property. All the town dwellings, business houses, &c., except a few, were wrecked and torn to peices. Bro. Hayton's, comfortable, well furnished house; was caught up, carried some distance and dashed all to splinters; furniture, clothing, relics, papers and other valuables mashed, torn and mostly lost; including Sr. C. W. Short's effects, and Bro. Johnnie Barton's. About all they have is what they have on. Oh! how merciless king storm is. Bro. and Sr. Hayton has had many warm invitations to share with those who knew them. The people are visiting the scene by the thousands, some say ten thousand, who are furnishing tents, stoves, clothing, provisions and subscribing largely cash. Brn. Southerland and Bradford are offering a small house, &c., to Bro. and Sr. Hayton, until they can do better.

In the one faith of the new and everlasting covenant. Affectionately yours,

C. M. FULKS.

P. S.—We done all we could for Bro. Hayton and others Sunday night. Monday and Tuesday, one more has died. O what a heart rending scene. I am at Bro. B. Combs, Carl Junction.

PAYSON, Utah.

Readers of the Herald:—I feel it my duty to acknowledge the unspeakable goodness of my Heavenly Father in bringing me to know the truth as it is in Jesus. I had been connected with the Utah, Mormon Church, a good many years back in England; came to Utah in 1873, with the desire to know more of the ways and things in which the Saints should be instructed so as to be more acceptable to the Great Father who revealed himself to the Prophet Joseph Smith. I soon got my eyes opened to see that I had made a mistake, as to the whereabouts of Zion. I was afraid at that time to speak the true state of my mind. I doubted four years as to the true state of Utahism; I then became disgusted with the system. For four years was almost infidel. No one knows the wretched feelings I had but the Lord himself. Thank God I found the true light; and was baptized last July. I have found that which I never could find in the various systems of men; perfect satisfaction.

I am the only one here besides Bro. Joseph Hancock, from Iowa; and my boy thirteen years old, and a lady seventy-four years old, who was baptized last summer, by Bro. W. W. Gibson. It is very seldom we have any preacher come here, but we can enjoy the good Spirit,—praise the Lord. We enjoy good times among ourselves. People all admit that Sr. Sheffield, though she is in her seventy-fourth year, is far better in body and mind than ever she was before. She sings like a young girl; she feels so much different. We intend to do all we can. Pray for us to be kept in the good way.

Yours in Christ,

JAMES T. BIRKS.

HINESBOROUGH, Douglas Co., Ill.,

Bro. Joseph:—I had a remarkable time to-night, away over here on the Midland road, while talking with some gentlemen on the chastity of the marriage covenant. After expressing my views, I asked, "What do you think of that from a Mormon Elder?" Bewilderment seemed to seize them. I opened my satchel and produced some tracts, which seemed to assure them. This was about 5 p. m. I was invited to preach, that night, the town was cried, I paying for an invitation to be carried to every house in town; the bell was rung, and for an hour and a quarter, in the Christian Church, I was favored with liberty and power in presenting the claims of the Church, in a manner that cleansed her fair name, and showed to those who heard me, the way of life and salvation, to a good sized congregation of attentive listeners. Thank the Lord for his favor at this hour.

Yours,

J. A. ROBINSON.

GALESBURG, Mo., May 16th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I thought that you and others might like to hear from the great destruction of the town of Oronogo on last Sabbath evening. Neither newspapers nor I can give a correct idea of the scene that meets the eye as you approach the place. Where once were happy homes, in the space of five minutes nothing but desolation, death and ruin. I could not help weeping when shaking the hands of friends and acquaintances, all they had of this world's goods gone; some thirty wounded, some not expected to recover. Bro. Thomas Hayton lost all; there was not a board left on his lot of a nice home. Sister Short had her trunk, bed, and what little she owned up stairs at Bro. Hayton's, but all gone; there is no trace of anything that was in the house. Bro. Hayton and family went to Webb that morning to meet with the Saints there; but through the mercies of God they were detained in Webb, to return Monday to find all gone, even the heating stove and organ could not be found. Bro. Tommy told me to-day that he saw this in vision three years ago. I can only say, the "Lord's will be done;" for we do not know who, or where next. I look for one here sooner or later, but I hope that we, with all the Saints, will try to keep all the commandments, having oil in our lamps; to light our way at any time the Lord sees proper to call us hence. This is the prayer of your humble brother;

S. MALONEY.

SERMON BY ELDER B. V. SPRINGER,
AT THE DEDICATION OF THE SAINTS' CHAPEL, CHELTENHAM, ST. LOUIS COUNTY, MO.,
JANUARY 14TH, 1883.

IN appearing before you this morning, brothers and sisters and friends, I do so with a lively sense of the importance of the occasion, and of my inability to present before you that which I desire.

It has been a time honored custom to dedicate houses of worship by the different societies of religious character for many years; and I have tried to inform myself with reference to the bearing it has upon the public mind. I have concluded that the different orders of religious character have embodied the idea that in each house there was a specific form of worship, and that those who worship in the different houses are supposed to have peculiar views with reference to the object of their worship, and the relation that they sustain to God and the hereafter.

I find only one object in view, and that is to worship God in spirit and in truth. And now arises the question, what is truth? Now, we as a people, are understood in this country as being a separate and distinct order; and the line of distinction between the church in which I am living and that of any other church is plainly set forth in that we believe that all the truths, or every truth revealed from God forms one grand continuous chain, and that the force of circumstances will not affect these truths as revealed to man. It has been supposed by the religious classes that the church denominated the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was really an uncalled for institution. And it would be, perhaps, not out of place to give a short statement, rather a historical account of the rise and progress of the Church.

As I said, then, in substance, God has had a design in revealing every truth, and those truths which were revealed are undoubtedly intended for man's good. There has been great changes among men; but because such is the case, we are not willing to accept the statement that God must change his order of things—must change his plans and adapt himself to circumstances. We believe that the great scheme of life and salvation that was archetyped in the mind of God in the beginning is of a specific and definite character; that the salvation of the race was to be brought about through the Lord Jesus Christ; that his plan was one peculiarly adapted to the condition of man; and that God has his own way of bringing about this salvation. And further that this system of facts revealed from God to man is not subject to any change so as to become, as some supposed, adapted to the changed conditions of man. Our attention is then drawn to the fact that God is unchangeable: that his way is one eternal round. In and through the Lord Jesus Christ he proposes to redeem the race; therefore, Jesus is said to be a lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

In all the history of the past we have noticed that where men who have had the revealed will of God by which they could attain to life everlasting, they have often times rebelled and wandered away from that path which was marked out for them, which has resulted in their being rejected, or rather that the good which was to accrue to them was withheld, as a legitimate consequence. God provided that if the individual followed a certain line of policy good would result to them. History is rife with instances where men turned from the right way, and the Spirit of God seemed to be withdrawn as a consequence and they left to their own wisdom. Thus left, they brought forth systems of their own, and claim that their action was based on an emergency. When the Savior was made manifest to the world, from history we discover that, while there were those who claimed to be believers in all that God had revealed; yet when Jesus came he declared that they were all out of the way. He recognized none of the systems as being right. These societies rejected Jesus for the simple reason that the peculiar form of worship introduced by him and the peculiar doctrine which he introduced were not in harmony with their ideas of what the doctrine was, which was in the writings of the Old Testament; and because of their interpreting them according to their own wisdom. But Jesus did not attribute the failure of Israel to receive his teachings to any ambiguity existing in the writings touching his coming; but to the fact that they had turned from the wisdom of God and relied on the wisdom of men.

But we shall have to hasten on. What we wish to do is to present to the people at large our true position as a people, and that upon which our hope is based. I need not argue any length of time to prove that there was a falling away, or an apostasy since the days of Christ. Any one who has carefully examined the Scriptures must readily admit that. The system of worship which existed in the days of Christ and the Apostles has undergone a radical change. The question will arise in our minds whether this change was of divine appointment, or whether it has been the result of the wisdom of men? Whether God decreed that there should be a thousand different forms of worship and as many different ideas and conceptions of God and his attributes? We claim that after the days of the Apostles there was a turning away from the truths of God and men followed after their own wisdom. They took the Scriptures and interpreted them to suit the surrounding circumstances! We are not questioning their honesty or sincerity in so doing; but did God design that all these changes should be made; and that there should now be so many conflicting theories with reference to God? We claim that the Scriptures are very plain on this point. We are not at a loss, when we look over the New Testament, to come to a conclusion as to the cause of this falling away. There was to be a falling away; and there is where we make the mistake in this day and age of the world in attributing this change to Divine origin. We as a people claim that this changed state of affairs in the religious world is not of Divine origin; it is the result of the wisdom of men.

Martin Luther, and almost every man from him down, has struggled to bring the people back to the original doctrine of Jesus Christ; and to re-establish that order of things which existed before the apostasy I have just referred to. But they have failed to do this; and if I were to appeal to the different theologians of the present day, each of them would give me his peculiar view as to what constituted the religion of Christ. And I want to say to you here that these very conflicting ideas which now exist in the world is what is making infidels; and it is making rapid progress in the land, destroying Christianity. Then I say, if there is any standard of evidence by which we can determine truth or error, we should appeal to it; and in appealing to the New Testament as a standard, we are bound to admit that the principles taught by Jesus Christ and his apostles are what we must rely upon in order to determine when we have reached the truth. It is predicted in the Scriptures that this falling away should take place; and as it has, will there ever be a time when the Church of the living God will be established upon the earth just as it was in the days of Christ? Will everything that characterized it then, characterize it again. We think the Scriptures will bear us out in saying that there was a time appointed when God and not man should restore again the apostolic doctrine—the pure principles of the doctrine of Christ. This restoration is to be brought about not by the wisdom of man, but by the power of Almighty God. We see a great many theories established in the world to-day by man; and there is antagonism existing all over the city. While all believe that there is a God, there is a variety of opinions with reference to him; and that the relation sustained between God and man is of such nature that it requires some action upon the part of the former in order to be saved. But, as we said all this is the result of the wisdom of man.

What we want to get at is, whether or not God does not in his own way re-establish his kingdom on earth; and if we can find that this is true, we shall have a reason for the existence of this organization known as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. In order to give the people an idea of what those for whom this house of worship is built, and who worship God in spirit and in truth, believe in, I will speak somewhat with reference to the hope that is within us. The apostle Paul tells us that men will “turn from the truth and turn unto fables;” and that after his departure “grievous wolves shall enter in, not sparing the flock.” Now at the time of the organization of this Church in 1830 but one organization then existing denied this apostasy; and they were those who claimed to have come down from John the Baptist; but since the organization of this Church they have concluded that there was a little ray of light passed down through, or with that apostasy, and has developed in the great christian churches of the present day.

Now, the apostle Paul goes on further and tells us (2d. Timothy 4: 1-4):—

“I charge thee, therefore, before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and doctrine! For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables.”

To show that this is true, we refer to the prophet Amos: (Amos 8: 11, 12.)

“Behold the days come, saith the Lord that I will send a famine in the land; not a famine for bread nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the word of the Lord: and they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east;

they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the Lord, and shall not find it.”

And why shall they not find it? Because they have followed after their own wisdom.

Then, after this apostasy what interests us most in this world is whether God and not man shall re-organize the true Church again, so that the Bride shall be prepared for the second advent of the Bridegroom. We understand that the Bride, or the Church will be ready and prepared to meet her husband, the Bridegroom—Jesus Christ, when he comes the second time. Not as a lamb, but as a “King of Kings and Lord of Lords;” when he comes to sit on his Father’s throne and reign over the House of Israel and his Kingdom shall have no end.

We have now seen that the Bride will be ready for the advent of the Savior of the world, let us inquire when God will bring about his re-establishment of the pure doctrine of Jesus Christ. This Church when established must have ordinances, officers and subjects, as God did appoint in the days of Christ and the apostles. After Christ’s ascension the Holy Spirit came, as he said it should, revealing God’s will to the children of men.

In that organization they had apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, helps, governments and gifts: all these to characterize the body of Christ. All these were established to make it one grand, specific, definite arrangement. This doctrine was of a character which came within the grasp of humanity. It did not require then, nor does it now, a man who has had a theological education to preach the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, to preach repentance and baptism; the remission of sins; the laying on of hands for the reception of the Holy Ghost; the resurrection of the dead and eternal judgment. This then we say, that God in his infinite mercy and goodness, has promised to restore again his kingdom; and he is not going to counsel men as to how he shall accomplish it. The church and kingdom of God must be in existence prior to Christ’s coming; for we read in the one hundred and second Psalm and sixteenth verse as follows: “When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory.” We understand that Zion is the people of God; and “when he shall build up Zion he shall appear in his glory,” and prior to his appearing Zion will be ready, waiting, and watching for the Son of God in whom they delight.

In the first chapter of Revelation we are told that John received a revelation from Jesus Christ; that Christ “sent and signified by his angel to his servant John” his will concerning the Seven Churches which then existed in Asia. John was to write what should be hereafter. In the 4th chapter of Revelations, in his great panorama, which God gave to him in order to show him what would be in the hereafter, is written and described where the church would go and through all the different stages through which it should pass. We find in this chapter that John saw a door opened and a voice spoke to him saying, “Come up hither, and I will show thee things which must be hereafter.” By reading further on we find that the apostasy of the church is foretold, and we see that great city “MYSTERY BABYLON” described. We find that the whole world paid homage to that city; and that the woman, or the beast had made all the world to drink of the wine of her fornications, &c. Now, this state of things was to continue a certain time; and then in the fourteenth chapter of Revelations and sixth verse it reads: “And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth; saying with a loud voice, Fear God and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come; and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and fountains of water.” God has promised to judge this same “Mystery Babylon;” and in his own appointed time he will judge that woman; for the word of God is true, and it is that through which the servants of God will be sanctified. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation. The “hour of his judgment is come. Worship him that made the earth, the seas and the fountains of water.” That is a strange idea that away back in that time, of which John speaks, a revelation should be given that there should be a time a long way in the future that men would be called by God direct to proclaim his gospel, and to worship him that made the seas and the fountains of water. But it is not very strange. Perhaps all of you find that there is a variety of opinions as to what constitutes he whom we denominate God. There is an imaginary God existing in the minds of many. But the pure gospel of Jesus Christ teaches us that God is a rewarder of those who diligently seek him; that he is the maker of the sea and the fountains of water; that he is the embodiment of power, wisdom, love and life. This angel that brought the gospel was to come at a time when the world was in spiritual darkness,

Now, I want to notice a few more things connected with this, one of which is that few men will accept the true rendering of the Scriptures. If they would open their eyes and ears they would realize that this restoration of the gospel was to be at a time, as I said before, when men were preaching for doctrine the precepts of men. Now, whenever that time was when men were preaching for hire and divining for money is the time when that gospel should come forth. It was also, to come forth when they should say "Lo here and lo there!" but Jesus said "believe it not;" and he further tells them that there will be no mistake about that event, that the coming of the Lord shall be as a light that cometh from the east and shineth unto the west. It was also to be at a time when this land was in a barren, sterile condition. This gospel was to be restored and to be characterized by all these surroundings. It would be in a time when God should make bare his arm in the act of restoring the former and latter rains; and in the gathering of the Jews. We leave it to the world to decide whether this prophecy of the restoration has been fulfilled, or is being fulfilled. We leave it to the world to decide whether our doctrines to-day are the doctrines of the Bible and of God, or the doctrines of men. Further we are not to blame for the supposed invasion upon Christianity. We can not be held responsible for God's design in bringing about the restoration of the gospel. I am thankful that I live in that day and age of the world when the gospel is restored in its purity. In contradistinction to all other organizations this church, as an organic structure, has apostles, prophets, evangelists, helps, governments and gifts.

Now, to any reading and thinking man the signs of the times make it apparent that there must be something in this; and any one man can likewise see that the religious theories of the present day are entirely different from the doctrines taught and practiced in the days of Christ and the apostles. If we go to a meeting and hear some learned theologian get up and make a flowery speech, we may, perhaps hear them say that it is only necessary to believe. But they can not change one jot or tittle of God's truth. We make the claim that this Church as organized in 1830, was organized by the power of God, or that he chose his own instrument to bring it about; as he always works by means. I have heard men argue that God could save his creatures either with or without means, but I have never learned it yet from the book of God. The reformer, who brought forth this Church, in contradistinction to all other reformers, claimed to have received revelation from God; claimed to have received a visit from an angel of God, bringing him the intelligence that God proposed to set his hand again for the re-establishment of his Church. That seemed a great trouble to the world. They were moving along for all those centuries and making a success out of their efforts to convert the world to God, and save them, &c.; and when a man had the audacity to come out and proclaim that God had spoken to him through an angel and put him in possession of certain facts with reference to God's will concerning the children of men, they considered it a terrible affair; but at the same time they could not show that God's church ever existed twenty-four hours on the earth in their time, because there was no communication from God to men. I can say with my hand upon this good old Bible, that God's church never existed without a revelation from him; and it can not be proven in the Bible that God ever accepted a people upon the face of the earth without communicating his will to them. This seemed to be the great trouble that this reformer, Joseph Smith, had to deal with. If he had been like all the balance of them, and had found out by his learning sufficient to start another church, it would have been all right. They would not have made objections if he had not made the claim of inspiration. And when he took the Scriptures of eternal truth as his standard, they thought he was trying to deceive; but he did not have the power to deceive a single individual, because God had through him restored the original gospel, and there was no possible chance of being deceived through him. That is why the gospel is said to be the power of God unto salvation; and Jesus said that if any man would do his will he should know whether he spoke of God or of himself. And further that they should receive the Holy Spirit that would lead them into all truth.

Then I say if this gospel does not impart to man the Spirit, or the truth of the work, it is not the gospel of the Bible. So this great impostor, as the people call him, surrendered all his power to deceive, and it was utterly impossible for him to do so. He told them that God had re-organized his church and had clothed him with that administrative authority to initiate men into the church in order to prepare the bride for the bridegroom. We hear a great deal said in revival meetings about accepting Jesus. I can not comprehend the idea of accepting Jesus outside of accepting his doctrine. Now, then, the doctrine of Jesus Christ used to be in the days of the apostles, faith in God as the grand moving principle of all action, and faith comes by hearing; and it is a belief that through Jesus Christ we can be saved, or cleansed from our sins and raised to a higher plane by accepting the truths as exhibited in the gospel. Next comes repentance. Then God ordained in the days of the apostles that men should be baptized for the remission of sins, and that they should then be entitled to the gift of the Holy Ghost.

I have often thought of the hymn that I used to read:

"Tis a point I long to know,
Oft it causes anxious thought,
Do I love the Lord or no?
Am I his or am I not?
Lord decide the doubtful case—
Thou who art the people's Sun,
Smile upon thy work of grace,
If, indeed, it has begun."

It seems that the poet did not know whether he was right or not. Jesus says that, if any man will do his will he shall know of the doctrine, whether it was of God or whether he spoke of himself. As I said before, the gospel is a specific, definite system of facts; and any man or woman who will avail him or herself of the opportunity may be partaker of the blessing. If they do this, then they are entitled to the things of the Spirit to guide them into all truth. The people say we have got a new doctrine, I say no! They sometimes call upon me when I am preaching in my simple way, for a miracle. They have said, "Now work a miracle, and we will believe all about it." They say that Joseph Smith was a false prophet, &c.; and yet if I would perform a miracle they would swallow the whole thing. Now, friends, truth is truth, and the truth Jesus says shall make you free. We preach the oldest gospel in existence—that Jesus Christ is the power of God unto salvation, and that God is a rewarder of all those who diligently seek him—that God has provided a system, through the merits of the blood of Jesus, by which we may be saved, and if we will not be saved by that, then we must take the consequences.

"But," says one, "if this church originated in inspiration, as you state, why is it that some of you went into iniquity?" I want to say right here that this thing called polygamy occurred outside of the Church. It never was a result of obedience to the gospel. Paul says "That in the latter times some should depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils, and that they are they who creep into houses leading captive silly women." Now if they depart from the faith, it is simply an evidence that the faith was in existence or they could not have departed from it and went to teaching that which I call the doctrines of devils. Further, the Scriptures says that in the last days men shall be heady, high minded; that they shall be fierce, despisers of those that are good, having a form of Godliness, but denying the power thereof.

Now these practices in Utah are not the result of obedience to the gospel, they are the result of base minds following after their own lusts, and they have only connected it with the truth in order to get men into it. That is not the Church, it is an apostate body who went out from us. They are not of us.

Now, there is a great deal said about the new Bible. It is said that these Latter Day Saints have a new Bible. We hear a great deal about Joseph Smith's new Bible. Well now, the Saints never called it a Bible. To show you that this book called the "Mormon Bible" is not in favor of the practices that have been carried on by Utah Mormons, I shall read a few words. [The speaker read from the book—quotations omitted.]

In conclusion I would say that I wish that all persons would inform themselves of the facts in the case before they condemn. Whatever the actions of men may be, the truth of God remains the same. Each individual will stand or fall for himself or herself. I can not be held responsible for some one else's sins; neither can I be saved upon the righteousness of another. The Scriptures teach that all who profess Christ, and are taking upon themselves his name, shall live pure and righteous lives; that they shall take Jesus Christ as their exemplar, as well as their preceptor. Israel rejected Christ and consented to his death, but that did not change the great plan of salvation: it did not change God's great truth: it did not change the command that men shall live holy and righteous lives. Whatever may be brought about by the force of circumstances, remember this one thing, that God is unchangeable, and that while mankind may be forced to adapt themselves to circumstances, we must not admit, we will not admit that God is under any obligation whatever to do likewise.

We believe that just what constituted the Church in the days of Christ and his Apostles, is just what constitutes God's Church now: nothing more, nothing less: that the Church was organized in the days of the Apostles by divine appointment, and that we have no authority for accepting any other form of government. All the arguments that men may use to sustain some other organic structure are simply without foundation. If I were out in the world of sin, desiring to get into the Church, who can tell me where to go. I might travel all over St. Louis from meeting house to meeting house, and each denomination would tell me, "here is the place." I would turn to my standard of evidence—the Scriptures—examine, and I would find that it will not fill the bill. You know that just as well as I do. When I should come to a church and ask, have you any Apostles in your church? No sir. Have you any Prophets? No; nobody believes in Prophets in these days, except the Mormons. Well; there is the two principal spokes out of the wheel. Do you believe in revelation from God? No sir. All inspiration has passed away.

Now, I have told you what God set in the Church. When did he ever change that order of things? It was changed like the Israelites changed their law. They made a golden calf and set it up to worship. It was changed by their turning from the truth. Men made these changes. The Scriptures teach us that if the Church of God is in existence, there is communication from God to man. Our desires are to be saved in the Kingdom of God. Our desires are that when death comes, we shall be prepared for that event; that we shall be ready then to lay our bodies away to await the appearing of the Lord Jesus Christ; and that we shall attain to that everlasting life. Friends, in preaching the gospel, our argument is that men and women may be saved in the Kingdom of God. We do not preach for hire and divine for money; but we preach the principles of the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, that men may be benefited thereby. We feel that as long as we have that Spirit of Christ within us, we shall have an incentive to put forth every effort and make every sacrifice that we may be called upon to make, in order that the truth may be made apparent.

May God bless the people here and everywhere with a desire to know the truth; that they may attain to and be sanctified through it, that we may meet again in the celestial kingdom of our Father, shall be ever my prayer. Amen.

Reported by John S. Parish.

The class of men that disturb and disorder and distress the world are not those born and nurtured amid the hallowed influences of Christian homes; but rather those whose early life has been a scene of trouble and vexation, who have started wrong in the pilgrimage, and whose course is one of disaster to themselves and trouble to those around them.

CONFERENCE ITEMS.

WITH BRIEF SKETCHES OF DISCOURSES DELIVERED THERE,

FROM NOTES TAKEN BY CHARLES DERRY.

It has been suggested that I ought to write a sketch of my trip to Conference. I realize that I am not much in the descriptive line, lacking the powers of language, and the art of coloring; but I may give the plain facts as my memory serves me. In company with my friend and brother, David Kennedy, I left Logan, Iowa, on the evening of April 2d, for Chicago. We arrived in Chicago about 2 p. m., of the Third. Here I experienced the generous kindness of a Mr. Lewis, brother of the late lamented Bro. Charles Lewis, husband of Sister Minnie Lewis, now of Lamoni. Such kindness shown to a stranger is evidence of a truly generous heart, and I can well pardon his mistaking a man of my clerical appearance (?) for a farmer. It has been my misfortune all through my ministerial life, either from the unclerical cut of my coat, lack of ministerial cravat or the too meagre longitudinal dimensions of my "physiog," or perhaps it may be the lack of a "stove pipe." Any way I am rarely ever taken for a minister, so I have to plod on without attracting the attention that some of my more clerical looking brethren do. Well I will try not to envy them.

On the evening of the 4th we went on board the lightning express, on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Rail Road. We were bound for Kirtland. There were about twenty-six brethren together, Brn. Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair among them; all seemed happy and bent upon having a good time at Conference. We arrived at Kirtland on the 5th. Here I saw for the first time the only house that stands upon earth, that can truly claim to be the house of the Lord, being built by his direction. I think I am no man worshipper, and still less would I worship a pile of stones built however it may, by whomsoever it may, or for whatever purpose. I confess I was disappointed. Much as I had heard of the Kirtland Temple, I was not prepared to see a building of its dimensions, convenience and style of architecture. The conclusion I came to after examining it inside and out was, that it was such a building as I should expect God to have built. It looked to me like his gospel, plain, simple, and well adapted to the purpose for which it was reared; indeed, it is grand in its simplicity. It is like all the works of God, durable. I did not worship it, but I was thankful for the privilege of worshipping God within its sacred walls. I do not believe there is an inch of waste space in the entire building. I shall leave for other pens to describe the building in detail. I took up my quarters at the hotel opposite the Temple; Bro. William Rumel, of Omaha, was my bed mate. Excellent accommodations had been provided by the commissaries appointed at the Fall Conference. The charges were as reasonable as could be expected under the circumstances; and the brethren well merited, and I believe received, the hearty thanks of all the visitors. In this gratitude we do not forget the corps of cooks and waiters who so generously responded to our wants. The preparation for services in the Temple not being completed, we met in the Methodist Church and listened to a good discourse from Elder T. W. Smith. On the morning of the 6th, in the same place, we heard Elder G. E. Deuel, and we saw by the merry twinkle in his eye, and the inimitable twitch or shrug of his shoulder that there was considerable fun as well as gospel in him, but he delivered some excellent ideas. In the afternoon we met in conference, and very soon the writer was, with others, appointed on a committee upon credentials and of a necessity had to retire to attend to that business, and lost the splendid remarks that were made that afternoon. It is unnecessary to enter into the details of the Conference, as they are found in the minutes. My Quorum meetings taking up part of my time I did not attend all the prayer meetings, but what I did attend the best of order was evident, which spoke well for those in charge, and also for the attendants; I do not remember seeing any wild-fire, but there was an evident earnestness of purpose, abiding faith, and a persistent determination to seek and enjoy the blessings of God. The spirit of enlightened worship was there. Here were people from the two extremes, east and west of our land, also from Canada and Minnesota in the north, and Florida and Texas in the south, and perhaps from every intervening State; men who had never beheld each other in the flesh, and women too. Yes, woman! first in every good, was represented here from various States; and in spite of the fact that they were entire strangers to each other until their meeting, all bore testimony to the truth of the latter day work, the power and blessedness of the gospel, and the boundless love and verity of God and his Christ. I was strongly reminded of the words of Dryden after contemplating the testimonies of the ancient saints:

"Whence, but from heaven, could men unskilled in arts,
Born in different ages, lived in different parts,
Weave such agreeing truths; or how, or why,
Should all the world conspire to cheat us with a lie?
Unasked their pains, ungrateful their advice,
Starving their gains, and martyrdom their price?"

The gifts of tongues and prophecy were present, reproofing, comforting, and strengthening with precious promises the children of God. One sister, aged seventy-eight, both spoke and sang in tongues; I did not hear the interpretation. Duty prevented me from hearing all the sermons; there were generally two a day. I heard the most of them.

ELD. JOHN GILBERT quoted Heb. 5: 8, 9. "I presume all present have at some period thought of future life and preparation for it. As thinking beings we are responsible for our powers of mind. I do not believe in letting others do our thinking. We must think for ourselves in spiritual as well as in temporal matters. As elders, we are called upon to meet the people under difficulties such as prejudice and tradition. It was the case with the apostles, Paul said, 'The Jews had made the Word of God of none effect by their traditions.' We have to clear away the rubbish before we can enlighten the people. Our text says 'Christ became the author of eternal salvation to all them that obey Him.' There is something to be done, mere belief will not bring us into the desired condition. But belief is necessary to righteousness. Some creeds say 'Salvation by faith only, is a very comforting doctrine.' James says 'Faith without works is dead being alone.' Many suppose that 'When we die we enter upon that happy place, the fulness of glory, and play upon our harps and sing the praises of God throughout eternity.' I should tire of this. They tell us when the unbelieving man, though honest, dies, he sinks to hell, there to suffer as many years as there are leaves on the trees, or sands on the sea shore; and when this period is past, he must endure his torment 'throughout the never ending ages of eternity.' God says He will reward every man according to his doings, James tells us 'We shall be justified by works.' 'Let God be true, though every man be found a liar.' Paul says, 'We are saved by grace, not of works, lest any man should boast.' How are we to reconcile these two statements? While undoubtedly we shall be justified before God for keeping his commandments, yet, had not Christ died, salvation could not have come unto us. Therefore, God will justify our righteousness and by His grace save us, for 'Christ hath become the author of eternal salvation to all that obey him.' The grace of God gives all that we possess and all that we may attain unto, but unless we serve Him there is no promise, only of condemnation; but to those who serve Him salvation is given as a free gift,

There are many ways taught us as the ways of salvations, which brings confusion to our minds, and we do not know what to do; but Christ says, 'If any man will do His will he shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God or of man. Did Christ come here to teach us nonessentials? No! Christ taught the only way to obtain eternal life. He sent his apostles to preach; but he did not tell them to preach as they pleased, he said, 'As my Father hath sent me into the world even so send I you into the world.' He told them to teach the people to 'Observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you.' He also told them to 'Tarry at Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high.' Read in the 2d of Acts of the endowment of power, which he had promised. The people thought they were crazy, which proves they did not know the Spirit of God. So it is today. Peter quoted Joel's prophecy, he preached Christ unto them, his crucifixion and his resurrection from the dead. The people wanted to know what to do. Read Peter's answer. No mention of penitent forms; but he tells them to do something, 'Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus for the remission of sins.' This implies making restitution as far as possible, without this our prayers are nothing. I believe in the law of compensation. The creeds say baptism is non-essential, still it is a part of the doctrine of Christ. Paul says, 'There is but one baptism,' then it is necessary to find out that one and obey it. Moody says if he thought it was necessary to salvation he would take a bucket of water and baptize them; but he was not taught in the same school that Paul was, who declared 'We are buried with Christ in baptism.' Again 'If we be planted in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection.' Paul was not left to follow his own imagination, but was told to 'Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord Jesus.' Some say 'Baptism is simply a figure, not a saving ordinance,' but Peter says 'We are saved by baptism.' Others say, 'It does not matter whether sprinkling, pouring or immersion is performed.' They say 'It takes a little more water to run our Church than it does others.' But John baptized in Aenon because there was much water there, and it requires as much water to run the Church of Christ now as it ever did. Had Noah failed to follow the instruction given him and not trusted in God to save him, he would have perished in the flood. Some of the sects say, 'If we only believe and use a little water we shall be saved,' hence they sprinkle or pour. They say if we baptize in water we are putting away the filth of the flesh. But we realize that it brings the answer of a good conscience, when our sins are forgiven in its operation, for baptism is for the remission of sins. 'He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved and he that believeth not shall be damned.' The Gospel makes us better men and women. It recommends itself to all. If you will obey it you shall receive the knowledge that it is of God. The Holy Ghost will teach you all things. It answers the question 'If a man die shall he live again?' It is the spirit by which we are to be quickened. We are authorized to make this promise to all mankind, and if you obey you shall receive the great salvation."

ELD. JOSEPH R. LAMBERT, spoke from Acts 28:22; showing the right of every religious organization to explain its own views. "Our enemies will misrepresent us, the foes of truth always misrepresented it. We do not appeal for mercy, we demand justice. We claim the right in common with all others, to represent ourselves. If the people in Christ's day had listened to him as the great representative, they would not have persecuted him, nor his servants; but they listened to his maligners. It would be unjust in me to condemn others from my stand-point without examining theirs. If you wish to oppose our faith from our representation of it, we bid you welcome. Undoubtedly there are careless, criminal people in the Church as there were in the apostles' days. Ought you to judge the Church by those who do not adhere to its precepts? We can only righteously judge the Church by those who walk in harmony with its faith and precepts. Noah, Abraham, David and Solomon did something wrong, would you reject the Bible because of those wrongs. The apostle upbraided members of Christ's Church in his day, for deeds too vile to name. Is that Church to be condemned?"

ELD. W. W. BLAIR read Rev. 21 from 9:21 inclusive, "There is something in man that longs for a better life." And this description is in answer to that desire. The Psalmist says, "There are pleasures at thy right hand forevermore." Paul says, "Eye hath not seen nor ear heard the things that God hath prepared for them that love him." Jesus told of a glory to be enjoyed with the Father. He prays that all believers may share that glory with him. It is the grandest theme that can enter the minds of men or angels.

The things of this life are but auxiliaries to it. God has devised the means by which man can attain unto it. It is the everlasting gospel. No man can come unto the Father but by Christ. The gospel is free for all. It is simple, and adapted to man's condition. It will reach down to the lowest of the low and exalt them to the boundless riches of God. Jesus was well qualified for his work. He was foretold by prophets; heralded by angels who came not to the high and great, but to the humble shepherds. The Eternal Father acknowledged him; the Holy Spirit was given to him. John was his fore-runner and testified of him. The prophecies respecting his first coming were fulfilled. He was crucified for the sins of the world, he rose again from the dead, committed the great commission to the apostles to preach the gospel. They preached repentance and baptism for remission of sins; and promised the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Says one, "I believe in the morals of the gospel, but the ordinances are chaff." My friend, God makes the wheat to grow inside the chaff. Let God's plan remain and accept it. If you join any society of man, you submit to their ordinances. Why will you refuse to submit to God's ordinance? The Holy Spirit is a power of intelligence enlightening the understanding. To obtain this spirit you must obey the gospel. Paul and Cornelius, obeyed it and received the blessings promised. I was told to-day that when this Temple foundation was laid, that the Bible was laid under the corner stone thereof. Thus the Church of Christ is established upon the truth, under this plan man has the promise of having this body renewed and made like unto Christ's glorious body. John saw him in his glory, we are to be like him. This is something worthy for us to attain to.

ELD. COLUMBUS SCOTT read Matt. 5:43, but chose for his text "Crown him Lord of all." I find a law that seems contrary to my nature, when I am told to love my enemies; my nature is to hate them. I do not believe that the nature of those who are opposed to God can love their enemies. Human nature says, "An eye for an eye?" The law of love is not the evolution of the heart of the race. It comes from a higher source. The Jews did as they were done by; they knew no higher law. A being is said to have lived upon the earth, who went about doing good. He was looked upon with suspicion; persecuted by those he came to bless; yet his character is announced in the inception of his career on earth. "Peace to the world." He taught this divine law of love, nay more, he practiced it. When in supreme contempt and fiendish hate they nailed him to the cross, offering him as the climax of their hate, vinegar and gall to drink, he lifted his eyes to that being, who gave him for the life of the world, crying, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do." With this illustration before you, go search the history of the past, for the benefactors of all ages; yes, to the sixteen saviors of whom the infidels boast so much, and find the production of a character compared to this, from the evolutions of the ages; or else acknowledge that no such character has been introduced to the world beside the Christ of God. We can not produce the fruits of a condition in which we do not live. The unregenerated man can not yield the fruits of regeneration; hence the Master said "Ye must be born again." A little child is pure and holy, and of all the eyes I love to look into, they are those of a little child. "Except ye become converted and become as a little child, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." The child does not love its parents for the honor of the world. Its love is pure, ours must partake of this nature. This condition of love for our enemies is in reality a superhuman one, humanity can not conceive of such a condition. It never has, hence the law is divine. When do you hear of scientists and philosophers talk of conversion only with contempt. Here is the natural tree bearing its natural fruit, but soon a little scion is grafted into the wild tree, and little by little it diffuses itself throughout until the tree brings the excellent fruit of that which has been grafted in. Thus when we become converted; soon the latent light of truth is seen. It increases as we foster and nourish it, until the light of Christ shines in our hearts and illuminates our whole lives. It gives us new life and ability to give higher proof of the divinity of this law, and of our own regenerated natures. I grant you, as a finite being. I am not able to become as perfect as my heavenly Father, but I can go from grace to grace, until I am in harmony with his divine nature and fitted for his presence. Yes! filled with the divine spirit, partakers of the divine nature, we can pray for our persecutors, and love our enemies, and though prophecies fail this love shall never fail.

ELD. G. H. HILLIARD quoted John 7:16, 17. "Here we think is a text by which all may prove whether our doctrine is of God or not. In every age when the gospel has been presented it has seemed strange and new, and has met with the bitterest opposition; yet men would not investigate it, or give it a trial; but as many as have thoroughly and honestly tested it, have borne witness of its truth. This promise as found in our text holds good to-day as in the first hour of its utterance. I propose to examine the subject, and the promises of God and see if we are not entitled to this power and those promises. In all temporal things we want evidence that our labors shall be rewarded. The eternal life is vastly more important than our short life here. When we strike for the riches of eternity we want some thing to depend upon. Christ has given us the surety we need. He did not intend we should rest satisfied until we have obtained all that he has promised. If we could not have evidence of his truth here, what warrant should we have that we shall enjoy the blessings of eternity? We may hope, but we can have no knowledge. How are we to know that the gospel is divine if it has no power to give us that knowledge? I was raised a Catholic, I asked for a Bible, they told me to read the Catechism. They said I had no use for the Bible, that I could not understand it. I became an infidel, then I had no use for the Bible until I heard these people, I then investigated and found their doctrine in harmony with the Bible. I went to the woods, I asked God if this was his Church, the truth was impressed upon my mind; I obeyed it and received the baptism of the Holy Spirit; and have continued to receive additional portions, which told me to go and preach the gospel, and I realize the position of the Elders when they testify of these things. We are told our doctrine is the weakest of all, yet the same men tell us it is the greatest of delusions. The Saints teach, like Jesus, that it is our right to know whether it is of God or no. The divines of the day can not determine which is the right way. They can not agree among themselves, they say "these things are mysteries. The wants of men are alike in all ages, and if they needed a gospel of power in ancient times they need it now. If the blessings enjoyed then were necessary, they are needed now. If God had not intended we should have this power to know of his doctrine, he would never have given the promise. The truth of the doctrine does not depend upon the acts of men; it is independent of man. The grand question is, Is it from God? The testimony of all who have obeyed it is in the affirmative and they offer you the same test that Jesus gave, God has never refused to give wisdom when we seek it properly.

Our eye must be single and then he will not turn us away empty. We must be established in the truth when we have found it, and bravely stand for it, fearing not what men may do.

ELD. JOS. F. McDOWELL.—"Can any good come out of Nazareth." This work began in obscurity, but this did not prevent it spreading and obtaining prestige. As a system of theology it found the world asleep. It was a star, if nothing brighter. It was a death knell to all that was opposed to the doctrine of Christ. Those that sat in spiritual darkness received new life, and it set their souls all aglow with its life giving power. The message spread as no other could. It carried life and principles that were found in no other. It stood a bulwark against the storms of persecution, and as truth crushed to earth will rise again, it served to make it grander than ever. Its march is onward, to eternal victory. The question is often asked, What is Mormonism? I am often asked if I am a Mormon? I tell them if they mean to ask if I believe in polygamy, etc., I answer, No! If they mean to ask if I believe the Bible, I answer, Yes! How are we to judge of Mormonism? I answer, by its principles—the fruits resulting from its practice. There has been an apostasy. Richard Watson says: "The whole Christian world underwent a miserable change: it continued to degenerate for eight centuries!" What did they have after these eight centuries? They deny revelation! The ancient church had a certain form of organization; they had certain promises. Paul declares these blessings and this gospel came by the power of the Holy Ghost. Where is that power now? Some say Christianity is prospering. I deny this. They lack the powers and blessings of the ancient church. The deficiency occurring through apostasy must be supplied from the source whence they were first given. Jesus said that we must have the spirit of the word of Life. We claim this deficiency has been supplied by the advent of an angel,—the only way in which it could be brought to be in harmony with the Scriptures. Paul says, "Be careful to entertain strangers, thereby you might entertain angels unawares." But the people now do not want an angel. We have been forewarned. Paul cautioned against receiving a false gospel, even though brought by an angel. Paul received his gospel from Jesus Christ. Paul saw the apostasy; John saw an angel restoring it. It is biblical to believe that an angel will come and restore the gospel, (John 14:6). If there had been no apostasy there would be no necessity for an angel bringing it. We will interrogate this angel and see what gospel he brought. Good angel, Did you teach this man to declare Faith, Repentance, and Baptism for the remission of sins; Laying on of Hands, the Resurrection of the Dead and Eternal Judgment, Gifts of the Gospel, etc.?

I did!

Does the angel come under Paul's curse?

It was the same gospel Jesus taught and committed to his Apostles!

I applied in Dubuque for a hall to preach this gospel in. I was told I was not orthodox. Jesus Christ with his message stood alone; so do we stand alone. Our enemies laughed at us; but the laugh is going plumb on the other side. We claimed that Christ is coming to reign on the earth. The people said: Aha! Later: the Evangelical ministers in Brooklyn declared there were three hundred passages in the Bible on that subject. Then we laughed. They laughed at our doctrine on healing. They laughed at our doctrine on Faith Cures; Now they tell us of Faith Cures; we laugh at them, but ours is the last laugh, thank God. We want to tell you God is our leader; Christ behind; and Angels on either side. God says, Come on! Christ says, Go on! Angels say, We will stand by you! Mormonism is the gospel that Christ preached; testimony is borne to it in persecution. Yea, some have testified of its truth in martyrdom. All these unite with Paul in declaring that it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes.

IOWA TO NEBRASKA.

APRIL Seventh we set out from Lamoni, making north and west, through muddy roads, with an occasional shower and continued cold wind, passing through Kellerton and farther on till within about four miles of the Humeston and Shenandoah Railroad, where we halted for the night on a bleak ridge, under the swaying, verdureless branches of a tall hedgerow, at Blackamoor Corner. Shivered round the little camp stove, manufactured by Uncle Peter White of Lamoni, and crept shivering into bed under the wagon cover, with the drip of fog and rain from the limbs overhead, glad to leave the cold mud of without. The next morning the sun broke the misty veil above us, and we started on to reach what had been our intended destination the previous night. Not without some misgiving, for yesterday's experience had taught us that there was no bottom to the roads in some places. O the mud, the mud! The southern Iowa mud!

Well, we drove thro' Wirt, a new little station, and another mile found us at the hospitable door of brother Newton Kent, where we were most warmly welcomed, and remained over a day and then parted most reluctantly with the brother and his estimable wife and family. Brother Anderson resides little more than a mile distant, and we found his home a most pleasant one, and his family interesting and amiable. These few earnest, zealous Saints, the families of brothers Kent and Anderson, are alone in the faith, and literally hungering for the sound of the gospel and the society of kindred souls. May God bless them for their kindness to us, and grant the desire of their hearts.

The portion of Ringgold county through which we traveled was much like Decatur. Union county is handsomer. Creston, the principal town, is a thriving, beautiful place, with railroads branching in five directions, we believe, containing some nice business streets, a large, handsome round house, and estimated to have 9,000 inhabitants. The western part of the county seems more rolling, even quite hilly. Quite an excitement about hydrophobia about this locality. Several animals died of the malady, and it is said that a rabid dog visited a school some distance south, towards Corning, and a number of children were bitten, some of whom had shown signs of hydrophobia and been taken to a mad-stone some where in Missouri.

Cross a branch of the Nodaway river at Carbon, a coal mining town, as its name indicates, and continue our course, mainly west, over the hilliest roads with the strongest south wind, that clear skies ever witnessed. Eleven miles further we cross another, larger stream of the Nodaway, at the village of Sciola. On again, north-west, this Adams county, hillier than before, if possible. Montgomery county roads rather muddy from heavy rain consequent on such a wind as has prevailed for two or three days previous, but the hills not quite so bad. Red Oak a most lovely and picturesque little city on the Nishnabotany river, presented the first heavy greensward we've seen, on the lawns of some of the fine residences. Everything seemed so clean and neat and orderly here. Finer country, now. Prairie, but quite rolling still. Mills county: larger farms, and almost all have Halliday windmills.

Pottawattamie county similar to Mills. Through the lower part of Council Bluffs to the large imposing Union Depot, whence we cross the slow rolling Missouri by the transfer train, and traverse the streets of Omaha, as fine and flourishing a city as can be found of no greater age. A prominent business man informed us that the city claims a population of 65,000.

Nebraska furnishes us the best and levellest roads we have found. What we saw of Douglas county was pleasant to view, beautiful, slightly undulating prairie, about two-thirds under cultivation, with no fences, but good and even fine farm-houses, in many cases. Follow the telephone line from Omaha, north-west, to Elkhorn City, where it diverges. Said city has a shanty store and smithy, and two or three small habitations in the vicinity. We were sure of the place, for we inquired, and were blandly informed that this was the city. A mile or two further on, we found a cosy camping spot on the bank of the beautiful Elkhorn river, close to the fine, substantial, iron extension bridge that spans the stream at this point. Indeed, similar bridges seem to be the principal ones in favor in this part of Nebraska.

As we sat around our little fire, for the heavy south wind still prevailed and the twilight hour was chilly,—with the calm-faced moon, the same that was smiling down on the friends and land we had left so far behind us,—two young girls from a farm house near by, joined our circle. During our conversation with them, we inquired if there were any Mormons in that locality. "O yes," was the reply. "There are several four or five miles from here. They have meetings sometimes. We went once or twice, just for fun, (te he!). But there are none of them that have more than one wife." As if that were remarkable. Fourteen miles of level lowland, between the Elkhorn and Platte, bearing more westerly toward the last named river, near which we find Fremont, an important town in Dodge Co., with railroad communication in four directions. Here we find a branch of between twenty and thirty Saints, and remain the afternoon with them. Brother and sister Wallace Scovil and brother Samson and family—all whose acquaintance we had time to make in so limited a time,—were particularly kind and hospitable, and anxious that we abide there.

One day more mild and enjoyable, but the morning we left Fremont the wind blew a stiff gale, and the sand filled the air till one's vision was almost obstructed. Still same lovely, smiling prairie land, mostly improved, with scarcely a fence save a stock pen. Stock mostly cattle. Hooper, small station on Fremont and Elkhorn Valley Railroad, and near the river, and thence we follow the winding way of the Elkhorn, and the railroad the remaining four or five days of travel, encountering two rain storms, cold and dreary, and a bitter cold, driving north-east snow storm, but level roads. West Point, county seat of Cumming county,—several minor points, Stanton in Stanton county, through Madison county, Norfolk being the important place, we pass during the rest of our trip. Here are some nice business houses, five railroads centering here, and quite a bustle and stir. Elder Hyrum O. Smith is engaged in the south depot building, but we did not have the pleasure of meeting him at that time. Through Battle Creek and Burnet to Oakdale, a very pretty town, scarcely as large as Lamoni, though more compact, most handsomely situated, and the principal town in Antelope county. We had been fortunate in finding good places, and kindly people wherever we stopped, save in two or three instances, and the last half of our journey we had neither hilly nor rocky roads,—yet this eighteen days' trip caused us to welcome a friendly shelter, and a terminus to our wanderings, as well as, we hope, to appreciate the warm greeting and congenial society of brother E. C. Wildermuth and family, and the family of brother H. O. Smith, residing here. For their kindness and hospitality we shall ever feel truly grateful and for their prosperity pray.

With the Editor's permission we will give a brief description of Oakdale, and the prospects of the country, next time.

She's gone, and we miss her, so sadly
We part from this bond of our love;
Yet we're cheered with the thought that so gladly
She's welcomed 'mong angels above.
Thus as sad our bereavement, as cheering our joy,
Our darling's at peace where no sin can destroy,

TWITCHELL.—Near San Juan, San Benito county, California, May 7th, 1883, of typhoid fever and neuralgia of the heart, Irene Twitchell, aged 16 years, 7 months 1 day. She was the daughter of Jasper H., and Emeline Twitchell, who are members of the Church; she was not a member, but was blessed in the Church before eight years of age, by Bro. C. W. Wandell. She believed the gospel as taught by us, and sent for the writer thirty miles to administer to her. I went, did all in my power, believe with others, that she received temporary relief; she was under the treatment of a good physician also; nevertheless, with the unceasing care and anxiety of parents, brothers, sisters and friends, the Lord took her home. Bro. John M. Range preached her funeral sermon, from the text: "If a man die, shall he live again?"—John 14:14.

WILTER.—In Butte City, Montana, March 29th, 1883, Mabel Adeline, daughter of A. C. and Sr. Sarah Wilter, aged 1 year, 8 months, and 7 days.

Yes, our darling Mabel's left us,
Here on earth to mourn her loss;
She has gone to join the angels,
There with Jesus and the blessed.

O, her loss we keenly feel it,
And this world seems dark and drear;
But our Father did reveal it,
That she could not linger here.

O, may God, our Father, heal you
Of the wounds you have received,
May he comfort you, dear sister,
In this hour of time and need.

There is joy and consolation
To our broken, weary hearts,
That in heaven we may meet her,
There never more to part.

Yes, we trust the blessed Jesus,
And rely upon his word,
That we'll meet our little Mabel,
In the paradise of God.

Now she's gone we'd not recall her,
From a home of peaceful bliss;
For to share our joys and sorrow,
In a world so cold as this.

PHEBE GAULTER.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 18th, 1883.

SCRIBNER.—Near Painesville, Lake county, Ohio, May 9th, 1883, of congestion of the lungs, Sarah Emily, infant daughter of Martin D. and Mrs. Scribner, aged 6 months and 22 days. Funeral by C. Scott, from the words of Jeremiah, chapter 31:15-17.

ROBERTS.—Near Stewartville, Missouri, Roberta Lee, daughter of Elder I. N. Roberts and wife, aged 9 months and 28 days. Bro. Roberts was just moving in, and was absent after a load of goods when their darling was taken to rest. Funeral sermon on following Sunday by J. M. Terry.

Sleep on, sweet babe, thy pangs are o'er,
And thou art now at rest;
Thou wilt know suffering and death no more,
In Jesus thou art blest.

We would not call thee back again,
(No darling, 'twould be wrong),
To suffer sorrow, death, and pain.
Thy troubles now are done.

"Bear ye one another's burdens," was the solemn admonition of Him who sublimely bore the burdens of an entire world.—Miss Evans.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THERE is a great deal of bitterness in this world, a great deal of sourness; but these are, possibly, only the foils which serve to enrich the pleasure and sweetness of the many pleasant things which enter into and make up our lives as we journey forward toward the brightness of the world to come. We were busy at our tasks, only yesterday (May 25th), and "chewing the cud of bitter fancies," when out of the gloominess of them we were lifted, by the presentation of a box of real "bon-bons," sent by our good brother, W. Anderson, of Oakland, California, who is in the candy manufacture at that place. We enjoyed them, and Editor and all hands thank our brother for "sweet reminders" of him.

Bro. N. S. Singley, writes from Grass Valley, that he is striving to live righteously, but is surrounded by much to disturb and lead him astray.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Would it be legal for a district conference to choose representatives to General Conference, unless the district conference attended to the rule passed by General Conference, in clause 3. We find it requires that due notice be sent to each branch composing said district, both of time, and place, and business, if any to be done.

Ans.—If a general notice to the branches be given, similar to that required for any specific action of the district, it is enough; or if the notice be given by resolution of adjournment, or at the meeting of district conference last held before the one at which such delegates are to be chosen; or by letter to the presiding Elders or Clerks of branches in due time; or by publication in HERALD. No notice for business to be done is needed unless it is known what business is to be done. If the meeting for business of the conference is a regular one, no notice for the selection of delegates is needed, as it is provided for in the Rule itself.

Ques.—Is the above clause, 3d on Representation, a standing rule until repealed.

Ans.—Yes, the same as any other rule. The resolution passed at April session for 1882, at Independence, explaining clause 3 or 4 is not a part of the Rule, but explanatory only.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS.

Bro. Thomas W. Smith wrote from Stewartville, Missouri, May 23d:

I expect to leave home some time next week. I may call at Bevier. Expect to reach Jeffersonville, Wayne Co., Illinois, by June 4th or 5th. That will be my address for awhile. I baptized the wife of Bro. Barnes lately, Bro. Alexander is preaching in the Opera House in town. I spoke there with good liberty, to a good congregation on Sunday night.

Bro. John A. Robinson wrote from Empire, Illinois:

We had a glorious social meeting Sunday, at home. Bro. J. F. McDowell has been visiting at our house for a couple of weeks.

THE following sent us by a brother is a good pointer to our Elders, as to how the spiritual land lies. There is one almost insuperable difficulty presented, however, and that is, notwithstanding the sentiment expressed that such a belief is an absolute necessity, those to whom the Union addressed itself, nor the writer of the article will accept such belief, offer it never so freely, brethren. They would rather perish in their self made theories, than accept ours, though it is scripture itself.

The Christian Union this week has the following good, healthy statement under the heading "Creedless Churches:" "There never was an age that needed more than the present strong, clear, positive convictions in its preachers. It wants no doubts, first or second hand; it wants no mere negations. It wants no hypotheses and guesses. It wants no second-hand beliefs borrowed from the past. It wants no stale bread of last century's baking, no manna gathered in the sixteenth century and kept in a sacred ark ever since. It wants in its ministry a living faith, a vital belief, a creed that has grown fresh out of experience, truth that may be as like as you please to truth as Calvin or Arminius, or Wesley, or Robinson, or Edwards, or Lyman Beecher saw it, but truth seen afresh by the soul that tells what it has seen. It needs in its ministers a faith that can say with Paul, I know whom I have believed. And wherever a minister has such convictions, wherever he preaches out of his own personality, wherever he brings things new and old out of his treasury, and the oldest made new in his own heart-hold upon them, whether he be a Spurgeon or a John Hall, or a Stephen H. Tyng, or a Phillips Brooks, or a Moody, he is listened to gladly by the churches and the creedless."

WHAT is manifestly true of the so-called orthodox churches, is also true of the Quakers, as the item from the New York, Tribune, will show. Wonder why that of which it is perishing may not be called a species of spiritual dry-rot. The Saints may find a suggestive thought in the article that it will be beneficial to consider. Is the evil one the responsible author of the love for music, painting, things of beauty and rarity, with which the world abounds? Will there be no toleration in heaven for the pleasant and the attractive? Are not the hard liens we sometimes draw, the result of tradition rather than duty or revelation.

QUAKERISM.

THE FIRM, HONEST, LITTLE OLD SECT DYING AT THE ROOTS—THE QUAKERS' CHILDREN REFUSING TO JOIN IT.

The Friends this week are holding their great Yearly Meeting in Philadelphia. A Quaker meeting is always earnest and practical, and there is no want of earnestness and practical shrewd common sense in this congress of keen-faced, middle-aged men, and placid, middle-aged women. There are some things lacking, however,—the enthusiasm, force, and energy which belong to all growing bodies, physical or social; a want which is explained by the simple fact that the members of this and all the other six Yearly Meetings are almost invariable middle-aged or venerable old people. Most of the time this week was occupied in discussing the causes of the universal decline in attendance at First Day meetings and the general decadence of the society, a decadence reluctantly acknowledged, but too apparent to be longer ignored. The cause is evident: the sect is literally dying out for the want of young blood. All over the country the sons and daughters of Friends, even of the most eminent preachers, have assumed the world's garb. They are seen in the theater and ball-room, they hang pictures on their walls, are musicians, artists, good or bad, and either remain outside of any religious body or slip quietly into some Protestant sect; usually those whose ritual appeals most strongly to the senses and imagination. Even in the stronghold of Quakerism, Philadelphia, where it once held absolute possession, a young man or woman in the plain dress is now so rare a sight on the streets as to attract remark. Not only in this country are the children of Friends deserting the Meeting, but in England this desertion is so marked that a revision of the large volumes of doctrine, practice, and discipline of the society has been ordered for this year. In this revision the remonstrances with backsliders are energetic with a note of despair. Friends are urged "not to seek help in forms or modes of worship inconsistent with their own;" to "call the months and days by Scripture and not heathen names;" to adhere to "plainness in speech, dress, and behavior;" and to abandon the "pursuit of music, dancing, vain sports, and theatrical entertainments." The rules of the society are relaxed in regard to the report which was exacted of the individual condition of each member, the ceremonies preceding marriage, etc., etc.

There is something pathetic in the sight of this old failing church, composed almost wholly of old and failing people who watch their children go from them and make feeble, useless efforts to keep them in the faith that has strengthened and comforted themselves. If they would face the issue with the keen hard sense that they bring to secular affairs, they would see why it is impossible that the young man and woman of the present day should remain in the society as it is, and also the concessions which if made by it would probably keep them. Quakerism consists of two parts—the spirit or soul of it is a fine pure devotion to the simplicity, the brotherly charity, the truth of Christ; but the body of it is an adherence to a certain costume and peculiarities of speech, and an inexorable prejudice against music, art, and all the softnesses, courtesies and beauty of manner or surroundings which refine and gentle everyday life.—New York Tribune.

WE are requested to reprint the "Puzzled Dutchman;" and as it is a capital hit at the philosophy that proposes to do away with the direct teaching of the word, we insert it. It was skilfully used once by one of our young Elders to do away with the impression left upon the minds of an audience, by a pedantic old elder's harangue on the Greek or Hebrew words and their meaning, different from the English version. He gave it in the broken Dutch, and quite routed his opponent.

A PUZZLED DUTCHMAN.

A Wisconsin secular paper contains the following good story:

One who does not believe in immersion for baptism, was holding a protracted meeting, and one night preached on the subject of baptism. In the course of his remarks he said, some believe it necessary to go down into the water, and come up out of it, to be baptized. But this he claimed to be a fallacy, for the preposition "into," of the Scriptures, should be rendered differently, as it does not mean into at all times. "Moses," he said, "we are told, went up into the mountain, and the Savior was taken into a high mountain, etc. Now we do not suppose that either went into the mountain, but upon it. So with going down into the water, it means simply going down close by or near to the water, and being baptized in the ordinary way, by sprinkling or pouring."

He carried this idea out fully, and in due season and style closed his discourse, when an invitation was given for any one so disposed to arise and express his thoughts. Quite a number of the brethren arose and said they were glad they had been present on this occasion, that they were well pleased with the sound sermon they had just heard, and felt their souls greatly blessed. Finitely a corpulent gentleman of Teutonic extraction, a stranger to all, arose and broke a silence, that was almost painful, as follows:

"Mister Breacher, I ish so glad I vash here to-night, for I has had explained to my min't some tings dat I nefer could pelief pefore. O, I ish so glad't tdat, into doesn't mean into at all, put shust close py or near to, for now hi can pelieve manish tings vot I could not pelieve pefore. We reat, Mister Breacher, that Taniel vas cast into the ten of lions, and came out alive! Now, I neber coult pelieve that, for de wilt peasts would shust eat him up right off; put now it ish ferry clear to my mint. He vash shust close py or near to, and tid not get into the ten at all. O, I ish so glad I vas here to-night!"

"Again we reat dat de Hebrew children vas cast into de firish furnace, and dat air alwish look't like a peeg story too, for they would have peen purnt up; put it ish all plain to my min't now, for they were shust cast near py or close to the firish furnace, O! I vas so glad I vas here to-night!"

"And den, Mister Breacher, it ish said dat Jonah vas cast into the sea, and take into the whalesh pelly. Now I nefer could pelieve dat. It always seemed to me to be a beeg feesh story, put it ish all plain to my min't now. He vash not taken into the whalesh pelly at all, put shust shumped onto his pack and rode ashore. O, I vash so glad I vash here to-night!"

"And now Mister Breacher, if you will shust explain two more bashages of Scriptures I shall be, O, so happy dat I vash here to-night! one of them ish vere it saish de vicked shall pe cast into a lake that purns with fire and primsthone always. O! Mister Breacher shall I pe cast into that lake if I am vicked! or shust close py or near to, shust near enough to pe comfortable? O! I hope you tell me I shall pe cast only shust py a good vay off, and I vill pe so glad, I vash here to-night! The other basage ish that vich saish, plessed are they who do thees commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life and enter in through the gate into the city. O, tell me I shall gets into the city and not shust close py or near to, shust near enough to see vat I have lost, and I shall pe so glad I vas here to-night!"

He sat down with the impression left on many minds present that it would not do to take the Bible for only what it clearly says.

Nothing is so certain to bring genuine happy smiles to our own faces as to watch such smiles grow in those of others as the result of our sympathy, our gentle words, or helpful deeds.

Summary of News.

May 24th.—Late returns from the Town of Brighton, Wis., estimate the loss at about $25,000 by the cyclone of Friday night. Among the principal losses are the Catholic Church, utterly demolished, which had just been finished at great expense, the nunnery and school-house, badly shattered, and barns, houses, and orchards. Mr. Umble, of Wheatland, was killed, and all of his family are seriously, if not fatally, injured. Matt Evans was seriously injured, and may not recover. A 2-year-old daughter of Mrs. Benne-man was gashed terribly in the neck, after being carried twenty rods by the storm, and her recovery is doubtful.

A disastrous cyclone is just reported from Jefferson County, Ark. It followed Horsehead Creek several miles, destroyed twenty-five dwellings, one church, numerous barns, killed John James, and wounded about twenty.

Snow fell last night a foot in depth between Lynchburg and Clifton Forge, Va. The weather is exceedingly cold.

Two distinct shocks of earthquake were felt at 11:30 o'clock last night at Katlettsburg, Ky.

The police have seized the plant of the Kerry Sentinel (Ireland) and prevented the publication of that paper, which is the property of Harrington, the member of Parliament from Westmeath. The cause of the seizure, it is supposed, is the publication of a notice in the Sentinel asking persons desiring to join the Invincibles to attend a meeting, which was to have been held last Sunday. A notice appeared in last Saturday's issue, and was a seditious placard, beginning "To Hell with the Queen!"

A French woman, 61 years old, and lame with rheumatism, lost her life while warning the inmates on an upper floor of a burning dwelling, in New York.

A livery stable and a pattern shop were destroyed by fire at Montague, Mich., yesterday forenoon.

Guerneville, Cal., a small town was almost completely swept away last night by fire, comprising thirty buildings, including the railway station.

A steam bakery and candy manufactory at Charleston, S. C., was totally destroyed by fire this morning. A colored employe was burned to death.

At Lyme, N. H., a man 80 years of age, was consumed in a dwelling.

May 25th.—With much pomp and circumstance the magnificent new bridge between New York and Brooklyn was opened yesterday. The President and several members of the Cabinet, the Mayors of the two cities, the Governors of New York and other States, and many other distinguished public servants took part in the proceedings, which were of an elaborate character.

The Presbyterian Church is to be spared the trial of one "heretic." Dr. William W. McLane, of Steubenville, O., whose outspoken utterances in regard to the Atonement were condemned by his ecclesiastical superiors, has withdrawn his notice of appeal and declares that he will withdraw from the Presbyterian Church.

Chicago was visited last evening by a $75,000 fire, which swept away a malt-house, and a planing-mill adjacent.

A tall factory chimney has recently been erected at Breslau, Germany, that is made almost entirely of paper. Some substance is added to the paper pulp to make it incombustible, and it is then run in ring-shaped molds and subjected to enormous pressure. The rings thus made are laid one upon another, and fastened with iron bolts.

The boiler in the Bismark (Dak.) Brick Works exploded yesterday forenoon, instantly killing two men, and fatally injuring two others.

The landing of the French troops in Madagascar has surprised the Malagasy Embassy, now in London, England, who state that the natives will fight the French to death. Some members of the embassy will hasten home to assist in defense of their country.

Dr. S. Griffin, who has been lying at the Jacksonville (Ills.) City Hospital since Friday in an unconscious condition from the effects of wounds received in the Litter cyclone, died this afternoon. This is the fourth death in that family.

A passenger train went through a bridge over the Gunnison River, Colorado, yesterday morning. The mail and baggage cars floated a mile before lodging. The engineer and fireman were drowned. One brakeman was slightly hurt. It is supposed that the bridge was weakened by the high water.

The steamer Pilot, a stern-wheel boat running between San Francisco and Petaluma, Cal., exploded her boilers yesterday morning while on the down trip to San Francisco.

The entire upper deck and forward part of the boat were blown up and the boat immediately sank on a mud flat in Petaluma Creek. The death roll so far as learned, is three grown persons and six children. Eleven are missing.

Collector Robertson, of New York, yesterday received a dispatch from Assistant Secretary French requesting him to take proper measures against a party of 100 Salt Lake Mormons now on their way to New York from Switzerland. The United States Consul at Basle writes to this Government that they are mostly women, recruited from the lower ranks, who have been shipped at the expense of the Commune. They are said to be poor, ignorant, and in many cases imbecile creatures, to get rid of whom the Communes are willing to pay 160 francs a head.

An extensive fire occurred at Vars, in the department of the upper Alps. Fifty houses were destroyed. Several persons perished in the flames.

Fire in the Town of Osterromfeld, Holstein, Prussia, destroyed fifty houses.

A dastardly attempt to blow up a tenement-house in Troy, N. Y., in which over fifty people reside was frustrated yesterday evening. The building is an immense frame structure, and among its occupants are thirty-three non-union molders employed at the malleable iron works in the immediate vicinity. The proprietors of the foundry recently discharged their force of union molders and engaged non-union from the West. A boy while at play chanced to run into a rarely-used passageway between the building and an adjoining tenement containing four families of twenty persons. The lad noticed that an opening had been made through the foundation of the house sheltering the non-union molders. The police were promptly notified. An investigation revealed that a hole six feet by four had been made through the foundation three feet thick. Dirt had been piled upon the outside to hide the opening. The hole gave entrance to a sub-cellar, where everything indicated that arrangements had been about completed to blow up the structure. A new shovel, hoe, iron bar, pickax, pocket-knife, a pair of overalls, and undershirt were found covered with earth. The police have no doubt that a dynamite scheme that would have resulted in the sacrifice of seventy lives, including those of nearly twenty children, has been nipped in the bud.

May 28th.—The ringing of bells, booming of cannon, and shouts of the people of Moscow yesterday morning announced that Alexander III. had been solemnly invested with the dignity of Emperor of all the Russias and seated, along with his royal spouse, on the throne of his fathers. At an early hour the streets leading to the historic Kremlin were crowded with a large but orderly and thoroughly enthusiastic crowd. A magnificent procession filed between the ranks of spectators to the little Cathedral of the Holy Assumption, where the Czar was crowned and anointed in the presence of the dignitaries of the realm and foreign personages. The ceremony in all its elaborate detail was carried out with a magnificence which accorded with the Imperial dignity formally assumed two years after Alexander had really ascended the throne. In the afternoon the Emperor and Empress were the central features of a grand banquet at the palace. Patrols of Cossacks and regular troops guarded all the avenues, but there was not the slightest indication of hostility to mar the success of the great event.

Queen Victoria's condition is now known to be such as to warrant alarm, even on the part of physicians and of her personal attendants. The character of her illness has not been well defined beyond the point that it is of a nervous type, and is not readily controlled by ordinary remedies. Her condition has been such that for days it has been difficult to get from herself any sufficient description of the symptoms to enable the physicians to act intelligently. Her Majesty's nervousness has become so extreme that she is frequently hysterical, and sometimes almost beyond control and bordering on delirium.

May 29th.—Yesterday afternoon at the Reinecke mine, five miles north-west of Belleville, Ill., a large number of striking miners made a demonstration which justified the Sheriff of St. Clair County in applying to Gov. Hamilton for State protection. Three companies of militia stationed at East St. Louis were ordered to the Reinecke mine, reaching the ground about five o'clock. The soldiers, believing that their train had been fired on, shot through the car windows, killing one of the rioters. In pursuing the mob it is stated that one of the strikers was run through with a bayonet. A feature of the lawless demonstration is the fact that many women have joined the men, that they carry clubs and whips, and are very abusive. At eight o'clock last night hostilities had ceased.

Helenwood, Tenn., was the scene of a horrible tragedy Sunday evening. John and Riley Cecil, father and son, were shot down by three Smith brothers. The origin of the difficulty dates back four years, when Smith Senior was shot by the Cecils in a quarrel over a bottle of whisky. The Smith boys made their escape to the mountains near by.

Michael Fagan, one of the Phenix Park murderers, was hanged in the Kilmainham Jail, Dublin, yesterday morning. He was the third who paid the extreme penalty of the law for the most wanton and cowardly assassination of the century.

Concerning the case of the Salt Lake Mormon immigrants from Switzerland, Germany, and Scandinavia who were permitted to land from the steamer Nevada, yesterday, Capt. Mason, United States Consul at Basle, who is now in this city, said to-day; "This result is not surprising. Under the present statute which regulates immigration the only ground upon which they could have been excluded would have been that they were paupers without means of support or any one ready to take care of them. I see that the priests in charge of the party denied that any of their Swiss converts were deported at the expense of their communes. Such a denial is of course easy to make and difficult to disprove without an actual investigation in the villages and cantons from which they came. But I have seen the correspondence concerning their transportation, which showed that many of the lot were shipped on compensation due bills, issued by communal officers, and payable only after the arrival of the immigrant in the United States. These Mormon proselytes are brought here to live under a system which would not be permitted to exist under any European Government. The fact that three principal immigration agencies in Basle refused to undertake the shipment of this same party of converts will sufficiently illustrate the disrepute in which the business is held there."

Two of a party of four were drowned on Loveland lake, Colo., by the upsetting of a boat.

May 30th.—A destructive cyclone, attended by heavy rain and hail, passed over the southwestern portion of Indiana last night, beginning on the Illinois line, near Terre Haute, and extending to Cincinnati. It did very great damage to property, and it is reported that twelve or fifteen lives are lost. Near Corington a woman and child were instantly killed by lightning. At Clay City twenty houses were demolished and very great damage done to timber and crops. The house of John Croft was literally torn to pieces and five persons instantly killed. Mr. Croft and an elder son, who took refuge in a cellar, were badly hurt and will probably die.

At Patrickburg, three mills and ten dwelling houses were demolished, but nobody was killed.

At Edinburg, the steeple from the Methodist Church was blown through the roof of the parsonage, badly injuring the minister. A stable on the farm of Jarrett Demings, near that place, was blown down and two men, who had taken shelter there were instantly killed.

In the neighborhood of Madison the storm resulted in serious damage, both in that city and throughout Jefferson county. William L. Haddy's large dwelling house, near Moorfield, was destroyed by the lightning. One end of Charles Thompson's residence at Smyrna Township was torn away by lightning, but the family escaped. James Reed's barn, near Brooksburg, was also burned by the electric fluid.

At Brazil, the wife of Dr. John Williams was killed by the flying debris, and her infant child, which was in her arms, was carried away and has not yet been found. The little village of Lancaster was very badly demolished, and a bridge over the Eel River, in which eight men had taken refuge, was torn to pieces, John Seeley and George Hay being killed and the others badly injured.

The storm struck at Flat Row Station and swept on to Norristown, where not a building escaped damage. There it turned to the eastward to Geneva on into Decatur County. The storm covered a territory some four miles wide, and was accompanied by hail, many of the stones being very large. Acres of valuable timber were blown down, fine orchards uprooted, barns blown down, and some were struck by lightning. Fences were burned, houses were wrecked by the storm, and the roads are obstructed by fallen timber. So far as is known eleven persons in all were killed by the cyclone, and probable too badly hurt.

Reports of the storm on Monday night say that up in the Little Miami Valley something like a cloudburst occurred, flooding houses and driving people from the first floors of their dwellings.

This morning a terrific storm passed over Fort Smith, Ark., unroofing houses, blowing down shade-trees, and carrying away fences. The Southern Hotel was unroofed. No persons were injured.

Mrs. Lena Rapp, an aged German lady was killed by lightning during the storm last night, at Louisville, Ky. Her husband, in the same room, was uninjured.

It is stated that the Pope, not satisfied with instructing the Irish Bishops and priests to discountenance among their parishioners all movements towards amplifying the Parnell fund, will shortly issue an encyclical to the faithful warning them under pain of excommunication to refrain from all seditious movements.

There is trouble in the church. The United Presbyterian Assembly in session in Pittsburg is greatly torn up on the question of instrumental music. In the debate yesterday several bitter and personal reflections were indulged in, and threats of a disruption were freely made.

Minneapolis, Minn., seems to be infested with fire-bugs, and the number of evident incendiary fires within the past two days has thoroughly alarmed business men. Since Sunday at midnight there have been eleven different fires. Last night, just before 12 o'clock, an alarm was sounded, calling the fire department to a lumber yard, and within an hour and a half five fires occurred in different parts of the city.

The most destructive conflagration that ever occurred at Lynchburg, Va., broke out at ten o'clock yesterday in the basement of a hardware store. During the progress of the conflagration the walls of one of the buildings fell and five men were killed. The flames raged furiously all day, and spread rapidly to three other large buildings which were entirely consumed. The loss is estimated at $250,000, upon which the insurance is about $100,000.

The schooner-yacht Skylark, containing eight men, was overturned in Boston harbor last evening. Two of the men managed to float until assistance arrived, but the others sank. John Codrington was also drowned from another yacht.

A preacher named Byerd has been tarred and feathered by a mob at Franklin, Neb., for beating his daughter, who had informed her mother of his relations with other women.

Financial troubles threaten the "prisoner of the Vatican," as the Pope delights to call himself when speaking of his temporal relations with the Italian Government. The "Peter's pence" have continued to decrease so rapidly during the last few months that an appeal, addressed to all the Bishops, is being prepared by the Pope, urging them to awaken the faithful to the necessity of providing funds for the needs of the Holy See.

May 31st.—One week has barely elapsed since the Brooklyn bridge was thrown open to the public with great pomp and ceremony. Yesterday it was baptized in blood by one of the most horrible accidents that the press has been called upon to chronicle for many months. A woman fell down the wooden steps at the end of the New York approach to the bridge yesterday afternoon while the pathway was crowded with thousands of men, women, and children walking and passing one another. As she lost her footing, another woman screamed, and the throng behind crowded forward so rapidly that those at the top of the steps were pushed over and fell in a heap. Those following were in turn pushed over, and in a moment the narrow stairway was choked with human beings, piled one on top of the other, who were being crushed to death. In a few minutes fourteen persons were killed, seven injured so seriously that their lives are despaired of, and twenty-eight others more or less severely wounded. Many persons received slight injuries. When the approach to the bridge was cleared at last, it was literally covered with articles of clothing and personal property abandoned in the struggle. The police took possession of 42 umbrellas and parasols, 6 canes, 30 bonnets and 34 hats, a skirt, a velvet cloak, a switch of hair, 2 babies' cloaks, 2 hoods, 6 pairs of shoes, a blouse, and a lot of handkerchiefs and small articles, broken hair combs and the like, covered the asphalt walk.

At the funeral of William Henderson who was killed by the military at Belleville, 1,800 miners followed the coffin in a procession through the streets of Belleville, with a band playing a dirge, and with banners bearing appropriate inscriptions.

The damage from the Indiana cyclone Monday night does not seem to have been confined, as was at first supposed, to the western part of the state, but the devastation was very great in the range of counties immediately south of this city. It struck Johnson county near the town of Kansas, where it destroyed a brick church, ten or twelve houses and a barn. In Decatur County, north of Greensburg, large trees were torn up by the roots and many houses were ruined. At the town of Adams the Baptist Church was torn to pieces and several farms laid waste. At this point the tornado seems to have been nearly five miles wide and its force was somewhat spent, but in Seely County the damage to orchards, gardens, timber, and growing crops was very great.

Correspondence.

DOWNEY, Cal., May 16th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph: I often think of you and your co-laborers; yes, very often. And pleasant remembrances of past associations come before my mind of those I have met in the different social gatherings that we have had at different times and places; and many faces that I shall not be able to behold until the resurrection of the just, come in the fond recollections of the past. It is now almost nineteen years since I united with the people of God. I need not say that I have seen my trials with the rest, as you will know that from experience; although they no doubt have been sometimes of a different nature from your own. But I will say, with all life's varied trials, the knowledge that the gospel has given me has proved a sufficient help thus far in every time of need; and great have been the peace and comfort I have enjoyed therefrom. My daily prayers are that you, and all my brethren and sisters may be able to surmount every obstacle that is thrown in your path through life, and come off victorious. Often in meditating upon things connected with your work, I feel a spirit of assurance come over me that victory will crown the efforts that are being and have been put forth for the emancipation of the honest in heart from sin and vice of all kinds; and that the dawning of a brighter day for those that labor and have labored for Zion is near. I must not weary you with too long a letter. We came from Kansas to California last January. Nelson's health has been gradually growing more feeble, and he visited these parts a year and a half ago, came in the fall, and he thought he was benefited by the change, so concluded to arrange his business matters and move out here. I do not see much improvement as yet in health; but think perhaps as the season advances I may. We attended the last conference held at Gospel Swamp, also attended meeting once since. We made but a slight acquaintance with the Saints there; but perhaps as much as we could expect being strangers. We sought and found Bro. and Sr. Schnell of Los Angeles, yesterday; were warmly welcomed, found they were formerly from Iowa. There are no regular Sabbath services held by the church near here as we can learn. Elders that are able to preach the word seem to be scarce in California from what we can learn, or rather I should say in this part. I notice in the minutes of the conference held at Kirtland that Bro. Gland Rodger is again assigned a mission to California. If he is still at Lamoni will you please give him our address; we live in town and shall be here this summer. Would be pleased to receive a visit from him. There is none of the Church here but our family. This place is the first station on the R. R. from Los Angeles to Santa Ana. We can easily be found on inquiry. Remember me kindly to your wife and family. With kind regards for yourself and all enquiring friends.

As ever your sister in the gospel,

ABBIE M. VANFLEET.

VANCLEAVE, Jackson Co., Miss.,

May 21st, 1883.

Dear Herald: "Do you know a great, big, black book, with great, big, black letters on the first leaf?"

"Why! Who has such a book as that."

"Why; Mr. I-know-that-too. Lives on Fort Bayou."

"Why I would like to see such a book."

"Well, you need not want to see it."

"Why? Why its a Mormon book?"

"What of that; it's as good as any."

"No! no!"

"Why?"

"Because I heard somebody say, that somebody else was reading in that great, big, black book, that had them big, black letters on the first leaf; that Mr. I-know-that-too, had; and that other fellow said that that other fellow heard that some other fellow had read in it."

"Very well, my friend; but I don't know of such a Mormon book as the one you are speaking about. But I can tell you something about the Book of Mormon, translated by Joseph Smith, Jun. I can tell you, or any body else, that if they even followed and obeyed what the Book of Mormon teaches, they would not be so sinful and prejudiced."

And let me tell you, my kind readers, I wish every body to have a Book of Mormon; that every one should know something about it. People talk about the Book of Mormon when they know nothing about it.

I am sirs, your humble friend,

A. L. LIVINGS.

WILBER, Neb., May 26th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—For some time the people of this vicinity and district, have been expecting a discussion of some importance to take place here, but I am of the opinion that no debate will eventuate. With your permission I will give a short history of the work in this locality. First, the larger proportion of the inhabitants of this part of Nebraska are from Bohemia, and most all of them are Catholics. I believe no conversion has been made among them to any of the Protestant churches, therefore the only increase the latter receive is from their children, and by immigration. About five years ago the first of our faith was presented, and the reception that Bro. R. J. Anthony received, was that some of the leading church members wanted to hang him. The leading Protestant organizations at that time were the Christian and United Brethren. The first of these have lost their house of worship and hold no meetings, and the latter have so materially decreased that they have almost ceased to be a power for either good or evil. And now comes in the part of the work in which we are interested. Our success among the Catholics has been no better than other denominations, but our membership has been mostly recruited from the Protestants. And this has caused some ill feeling toward us, from the fact that this is the only body that manifests a steady and healthy growth. During these five years, an undercurrent of dissatisfaction has been kept up, and much small talk against the Saints and the doctrine, has been indulged in; and finally the straw that broke the silence was by the Rev. Zealy, of the Methodist Church, in a sermon preached here against immediate, or continued revelation. He was a stranger here, and did not know any of the Saints; he therefore gave Joseph Smith the usual send off, as an impostor and deceiver. Bro. Robt. White, fortunately for us, was present, and very promptly at the close of their meeting informed the Rev. Mr. Zealy that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was the only true church of Christ on earth, in organization and doctrine. That Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God, and that the Book of Mormon was a divine revelation from God. Bro. White was ignored because he was not a public speaker, and the arranging for the debate was left to Rev. L. L. Luse, pastor of the Methodist Church of Wilber, and Bro. Levi Anthony. In the Opposition, the local paper published at Wilber, February 22d, Rev. L. L. Luse published a lengthy notice of the debate; however, he did not give the accurate wording of the propositions agreed upon, and conveyed the idea to the public that he was to meet one of our most able Elders; that the debate would take place in the early Spring, and that he would procure a short-hand reporter and publish the debate in book form. At the request of Bro. Levi Anthony, Bro. E. L. Kelley agreed to be our standard bearer in the contest. April 17th Rev. L. L. Luse wrote Bro. Levi Anthony that the representative of the Methodist Church, the Rev. Mr. Craft, of Pittsburg, Pa., could not come; thus putting an end to the debate. For some time the opinion had been gaining ground, that the Methodist Church did not intend to stand fire. So upon the receipt of Mr. L. L. Luse's letter, I wrote to the Opposition, Bro. Levi Anthony signing with me, placing the responsibility where it rightly belongs. And now Mr. L. L. Luse comes out in flying colors, and denies that the Methodist Church has anything to do with it, but claims that he personally is only responsible. We however have the whole matter in black and white, and propose to vindicate the truth of the gospel and let the public have a perfect and a complete understanding. At the time the discussion was first arranged this Rev. L. L. Luse was the pastor of the M. E. Church, of Wilber, at a salary of six hundred and fifty dollars; but a short time after the arrangements were begun, he accepted a position with the Congregationalists at eleven hundred dollars. Thus the potent call of the almighty (dollar) caused a change; and at an official meeting of the Methodist Church they voted not to let their house for the debate. I have thus been particular to give, as I understand, a truthful history of this proposed discussion; because many in the Church as well as those out, have been, and will be disappointed. And it puts us in a bad light, when we make special efforts to obtain the labor of a practical short-hand reporter, and for him to prepare for such work and then have it dropped. Let it be understood we were in earnest and expected to have met the issue. And now Bro. Joseph, I make a personal appeal, that inasmuch as L. L. Luse is a subscriber to the Herald that he be permitted to explain the reason of crawfishing.

The outlook for the work in this State is very encouraging, and as good an opportunity to blister the feet of the Elder as can be found in Colorado, but more opportunities to get the people to turn out to hear. There has been considerable rain during the past month, and some frost, notwithstanding fruit and crops look well, and promise a large harvest. Everything in the State is greatly improving, and the value of property is rapidly advancing, and for our home city we are expecting a "boom." Now is an opportune time for those who wish to obtain good homes, in a growing and healthy country. For the year 1882 this State ranked No. 3, as to increase in membership, and only No. 5 numerically; with the prospect that we will keep pace with the work, and retain the present relative position.

Sickness in my family kept me at home three weeks, and during that time I had a tilt in "The Press," with an old opposer of the cause; but as some time has elapsed since his last letter I am of the opinion that his guns of slime and abuse have been silenced. If not we are equal to the task of of keeping the flag of truth and peace from trailing in the dust.

Should this find a resting place in the wastebasket it will only inspire me to be more careful in the next. For write I will, because I like to.

In gospel bonds,

CLYDE, IOWA, May 14th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I am young in the work; was baptized the 12th of November. Bro. Joseph F. McDowell came and preached some for us, and husband and myself were baptized. Bro. Longbottom stopped with us a while last winter but the roads were drifted so that he did not get to preach much. I would like to have some Elder passing this way to stop and preach some for us; we have not had the privilege of attending the meetings as it is so far away. I feel very weak, but my greatest desire is to do some good for the cause. I thank God that I ever had the privilege of hearing the gospel in its fullness and had the disposition in heart to obey it. I ask the prayers of all the Saints that I may ever be faithful and at last gain a home where parting will be no more.

Your sister in gospel,

J. L. HUGHES.

CLARINDA, IOWA, May 26th, 1883.

Dear Saints:—We ought to feel greatly encouraged, when we look around and see how wonderfully the Lord has fulfilled his promises, in giving the Saints favor in the eyes of the people, inasmuch as they would keep his commands. We not only see that they have found favor in the eyes of the people; but the doctrines of the Church are finding favor in the eyes, and also in the hearts of many. In the last few years, we hear from the pulpit many times, "that God hears and answers prayers immediately;" and that "he speaks directly to some in these days." We also see by the papers, that in the east many are believing in the faith cure, and thereby accept the gift of healing, and the gift of miracles. While many are thus falling in with Christ's doctrines, many, not liking to accept such doctrines are gradually increasing the infidel ranks.

May God help the Saints to be faithful, and live to the light they have received; that others may see the beauty of righteousness, and repent and live, is my prayer.

B. W. DEMPSTER.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Utah,

May 21st, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—A few words from this Rocky Mountain Zion may not be amiss. I have of late been laboring in Moroni, Spring City, and this place, with some prospects of doing a little good notwithstanding the strong efforts of the leaders here to keep the people from investigating, by counseling them not to go near, or have anything to do with these Josephites, or apostates. While preaching in Moroni in the Presbyterian school house, lately, an attempt was made by these "true-born sons of Zion(?)" to disturb our meeting, by throwing stones on the roof of the house, and against the door, knocking it open several times. The windows would have been broken if they had not been protected with heavy shutters. There are a few in that place who seem to be with us in faith, but lack courage to come out and manifest the same by their works.

At this place I held a discussion with Mr. C. H. Wheelock, of the Utah Church, about two months ago. It was when I first came here, I went to see some of the leading men of the place and asked for a house to preach in, when I was informed that I could only have a house upon the condition that one of their Elders could occupy half the time; to this I was willing to consent, and agreement was made to debate the following questions: "Is Joseph Smith, the son of the prophet Joseph Smith, the legal successor to his father as president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?" "Is polygamy a Bible doctrine?" We were to hold two sessions of three hours each, and each speaker was to occupy thirty minutes at a time, giving each three speeches on each question; which was not half enough time to investigate the subjects; but it was all that Mr. Wheelock would agree to. With reference to the result, I shall only say that I am satisfied; while it appeared from my opponent's own words that he was not; for he said in his last speech that he had made a blunder when he consented to discuss with an "apostate; but if the Lord and congregation would forgive him for this time he would never do it again." I gained a number of friends here and a good opening for preaching is effected. A hall can be had by our Elders free of charge, and quite a number outsiders desire our Elders to labor here; and I think by a continuation of labor good will be done.

Mr. Seeley, the chief Bishop of the place, was not at home at the time we had the discussion. I am informed that in his first sermon after he came back, he informed the people he had heard that a skunk had been among them; and he could smell him yet. Of course he warned his flock to be more careful in the future not to give apostates a foothold. I called upon that gentleman a few days ago and told him I was going to preach in the place, and invited him to come and hear; but he refused, and said that if he had been at home before he would have kicked me out of the meeting house. It was bad that the people had not known that public investigation would prove injurious to their system; but some did learn so to their disappointment. In my opinion it requires constant, patient labor in Utah; no great result will be effected in a day.

Yours in Christ,

H. N. HANSEN.

TEMPLE, Bell Co., Texas,

May 25th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Your visits are welcome. "The Two Gates" in last Herald was splendid. We get you at about a day old, alive and full of spiritual food. I read and pass round to hungry souls who are grabbing at straws. There are only three Heralds coming to this office now; but I think the prospects are good for about four more soon. Some outsiders have promised to subscribe. I have passed round Mother Smith's and Tullidge's Histories, Voice of Warning, book of tracts, Book of Mormon, Inspired Scriptures, and Herald, to quite a number of people. I think some honest ones will be benefitted; at least I pray to that end. I have lived at this place two years—the first year alone as to any other Saint. This last spring Brn. E. Land and D. T. Boul and sister Adair have settled here; also, Bro. Dr. Boyd, of Kentucky, has bought property and will move here soon. Bro. Land has preached here twice since he located. The work seems to be opening up slowly. God will give the increase. Some of our brethren are in bad condition spiritually. What has come over them we can not tell. Some times spiteful, unkind, unfair and fault finding. May God forgive them when they ask it, is my prayer. We have had great afflictions among the Saints the past winter and Spring; hardly a family but what one or more has been prostrated in sickness; surely it looks like a faith trying time. However, some have been benefitted and some have not. That that is of earth is earthy. Some have called quacks; some for the Great Physician. We read in 2 Chronicles 16: 12, 13, "And Asa in the thirty and ninth year of his reign was diseased in his feet until his disease was exceeding great; yet in his disease he sought not to the Lord, but to the physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers and died in the one and fortieth year of his reign."

Sometimes the Saints take the advice of James 5: 14, but do not seem to exercise faith as 15th verse advises; and seldom, if ever seem to think that the 16th verse applies to us directly. The blessings fail to come some times; there is a lacking some where. Well, the rule was complied with as directed in 14th verse, but was that faith shown that 15th verse requires? Were that oneness and humbleness as shown should be in 16th verse? The same one that said call for the Elders, said if we were lacking in one thing we were guilty, etc. I think no one should try to slip out on the little flimsy excuse that they showed their faith by calling for the Elders. Some times we call for the Elders, and if we fail to obtain the blessings at once, we send for a quack, as though the Great Physician needed help by consultation. Is that not mixing things? It reminds one of the two great powers that met at the pinnacle of the temple. Luke 4:9. The tempter is always at hand to cut us off from the blessings that are for us. Why can't we say "Get thee hence Satan? Is it not better to confess our faults one to another and pray one for another that we may be healed, and seek unto the Lord, and not the physicians as Asa did? We should keep the Word of Wisdom, that we may have the full benefit of all the promised blessings of God.

Yours in hope,

J. J. P.

Brother Joseph:—I desire to say through the Herald which we all love, that I am trying to spread the glorious truths of the gospel, to the inhabitants of the earth. A short time ago, I visited the few Saints of Morgan Center, Ohio, and tried to speak words of encouragement to them a few times. Although they are not organized, they meet every First day for worship, and are blessed in so doing. May the Lord continue to bless them is my prayer. I left some almost persuaded to obey the gospel. Any of the Elders that can, should visit them. I desire to say concerning the "discussin" that was noticed in the Herald, that I was to hold in Putnam county, with the Disciple Pastor, that the Rev. D. D. would not face his own music. He sent me a note, giving as his reasons for not meeting me in "discussion," that he had conferred with his brethren, and they had informed him that I had been an Elder in the Disciple Church, and was therefore an apostate, and if he had known it at the time he would have denounced me as a false teacher. When the facts are fully known they are about these: In my preaching in his presence I declared that I, at one time was a member of the Disciple Church; and the brethren (of his) that advised him had heard a discussion between a Saint and a Disciple, and could well advise him to keep out of our hands. I published them in their county paper; what the result will be I can not tell. May the love of God, and Jesus Christ his son, and the Holy Spirit be with you, and all the household of faith is my prayer.

JAMES MOLER.

FONTANELLE, Iowa,

May 23d, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Respectfully, this morning, I wish to say, your efforts to uphold and sustain the cause of Christ and his doctrine I admire; and hope and pray, that your wise co-laborers will come off victorious in your efforts for the cause of Zion, which is to become a city that is to be a light to all the nations of the earth. Yes, Isaiah says, the nation that will not serve the Lord shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.

Now who that has this understanding in his heart that this American land is the land of Zion, can refuse to give all he has to build up and establish such a kingdom as this; a kingdom of an eternal duration, one that is never again to be overcome by the devil out of sea or land. Let every Saint read the 60th of Isaiah, 12th verse, and he can see there is to be a change in this world some day. Well, then you will have the right man for president, or king, whether minority, or majority. But in the day that takes place Judge Black's expression will be felt by many, whether they believe or not, ("God's mills grind rather slow; but, gentlemen; very fine."). This language took place when they counted in the minority man.

Well, Bro. Joseph I will now try to write something I intended when I began. I see you have written a lengthy article on the resolution of poor or bad binding of the books published at the office under your control. Though you gave quite a lengthy description of the errors and harsh treatment that your books have to endure; and some under your own observation; what do you think happens to those books that are lent to the neighbors, who sometimes take an interest in their own welfare? Well if it would do you any good, I would like to tell you some experience I have had of this kind. But after all you wrote, to me you did not prove that the book was well, or rightly bound. Now I want to tell you a little more, if your love will stand it, I have a Bible that I gave full value, twenty-five cents, in year of 1857, I think I used it freely 1868 or 9, since then yours has been in use mostly and lent some; but the oldest is in the best condition. Now you request some one, or more, to tell you how to bind books better than they have been. When I was young, books at home and at school were far more durable than at this day, and they were all put together the whole book, then they used a thin sharp (I shall call it chisel), some would call it instrument, and cut down on the back of the book, when it should be bound; chisel should be half an inch wide; then a strong thin leather strip of half inch width drawn through the incision made by the chisel, two in each book; in heavy books three or four; the ends run up on the covers from one to two inches on outside of cover, strap and cover well fastened with paste, or glue. Books bound in this style will be out of fashion; but if properly done will stay, or stop the lovers of truth and justice from finding fault with you, and all that are connected with book, or printing office under your control. The Saints who observe and practice the best economy inside and out are the best off, in this world and the next. Amen.

Respectfully yours,

B. ALDEN.

SANDWICH, Ill., May 25th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith: May 24th will be long remembered by the Saints of this branch. We felt as though we ought to give our esteemed brother and pastor, F. G. Pitt, an expression of our feelings, we threw together our mites, and the result was some solid tokens of our respect in the shape of the following presents, to-wit: one silver cake basket, one silver pickle castor, one silver butter dish and knife, two silver mugs gold lined, also silver pickle tongs. Sister and Brother Pitt were completely taken by storm. It was our Mite Society day; we met at Sr. Pitt's, and were puzzled to keep her from suspecting anything. As usual we all bade her good afternoon, only to go home, get our baskets and presents, and return. We sent the baskets in an express wagon, and while the expressman and Sr. Pitt were arguing as to the proper destination of the many baskets, (Mrs. Pitt thinking the Expressman was unloading at the wrong place), the owners of said baskets climbed the back yard fence and took possession of the kitchen, and were running things their own way when Sr. Pitt returned. She could only stand and look, rub her eyes and look, pinch herself to be sure she was not asleep and dreaming. Things began getting worse, until Sr. Pitt gave up the fort and surrendered her culinary department to the marauding band of merry-making, warm-hearted sisters.

Bro. and Sr. Pitt were coaxed out into a small but neat parlor, and there held in captivity until the sisters had everything ready to execute the beloved prisoners, when they were escorted into the spacious dining room by a committee appointed for that purpose, led up to a center table, where Mr. William Pease, in a very neat and appropriate manner presented in behalf of the brothers and sisters of the Sandwich Branch, the beautiful silver presents above mentioned.

Bro. Pitt responded with deep feeling; after which the esteemed host and hostess were led to a large table groaning with good things that the brothers and sisters had brought in those mysterious baskets that the Expressman had unloaded at the gate of the surprised sister Pitt.

Bro. Joseph, if you could have been here, I know you would have enjoyed yourself. We had prayer, singing, talking and laughing, but occasionally a sad pang would dart through our hearts and mar our happiness for a moment, when we would think of losing our pastor, and no one to take his place; but all the time a secret prayer is going up from this little flock that Bro. Pitt leaves, "May God hold up and bless our faithful pastor in his far off home in the east." This is the prayer of the entire Branch. With many regrets he leaves us and only for the health of his wife would he go; but for years she has been and is afflicted, and only the pure sea breeze does her any good. They will locate in Brooklyn, N. Y. May his life and hers be long and useful, and he be the means of gathering many stray lambs into the fold of the great shepherd. With all good wishes that we all may meet again at the bountiful repast of the table of love, I remain your sister in Christ,

ISABELLE SHREWSBURY.

DOW CITY, Iowa, May 21st, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Our conferences are close at hand, that is, Pottawattamie, Little Sioux, and Galland's Grove; and we will likely make arrangements for holding our Union Meeting in the West. I like your suggestion in the last Herald, and we may adopt it. I discover in the Herald for May 19th, an article from Bro. Gurley. I have read his instruction with interest, but I find a revelation directed to Israel in it, which I wonder at a little. I see no tithing, no patriarch, no Order of Enoch, no High Council, no baptism for the dead, and I brought it to comparison with the fire he wrote about in this article, that was to try every man's work, and the order it come to Israel and it would not stand fire. I hope the Apostles will not feel hard towards me for this. The standard of evidence must be our safeguard, for by this we must stand. By the books I try John Taylor's revelations, and Joseph Smith's, or any one else's; for we read in the Covenants, page 147, "You have received a commandment for a law unto my church, through him whom I have appointed to receive revelations and commandments." Read the first and second paragraphs, and we will all see that this is a good test case.

JOHN HAWLEY.

THRUST IN YOUR SICKLE.

"The golden grain is waving,"
And many idly stand;
Because their hands are fettered
With strong and heavy bands.
Although they long to labor
And gather in the grain,
Before Messiah cometh
With Saints on earth to reign.

"The Golden grain is waving,"
In vain we hear the call,
For reapers to the harvest,
To labor, one and all;
But from the Master's store house,
We hear the wailing cry;
"Of pennies not sufficient,
The golden grain to buy."

"The golden grain is waving,"
Who can the help withhold?
Which sendeth joyful tidings
To weary, hungry souls,
Oh, labor in the morning,
At night hold not the hand,
Until the gospel tidings
Goes forth to every land.

THE MORMON QUESTION.

Editor Herald:—Because of expressions made by me at Kirtland, Ohio, and elsewhere, relative to the Utah Mormon Church as being the teachers of diabolism, &c., and because some may have thought this language too positive, radical or something—and because a wail seems to have come up from Utah itself on account of this, I deem it expedient to examine the matter briefly and see what cause if any, exists for such complaint. The question is not, nor does the issue rest upon the enormity of the statements, but entirely upon their truthfulness—for if not true then in that case they should be either modified, or withdrawn; but if true, then every man, woman and child concerned should take notice and see to it that their ways are amended at once, and Mormons of Utah should be the first to lead out in the work as it especially relates to them.

It should be distinctly borne in mind that Utah Mormons have accepted a certain document called a revelation, dated July 12th, 1843, and presented to their church August 29th, 1852, by B. Young, as divine and binding upon the souls of men. This "document" must be allowed to speak for itself, for when we understand its requirements and doctrines we shall properly understand Utah Mormonism, and the individual who does not understand that document has not a proper conception of Utah Mormonism. I know I shall be met here with the statement, "Why, they believe in faith, baptism," &c. Yes, O yes; but what benefit is a belief when people do not act in harmony with it? Do not devils also believe? Utah Mormons do not believe the gospel, they have made it a vain and empty thing. The gospel as revealed in Christ and as given to the church in its fulness in 1830, A. D., was and is "the power of God unto salvation;" and the "vision" given in February, 1832, revealed to Joseph and Sydney the fact that all who obeyed that gospel should come forth in the "first resurrection" and receive of God's glory, even the "holiest of all" "whose bodies are celestial, whose glory is that of the sun, even the glory of God the highest of all;" and similar expressions confirmative of the same fact are contained in a revelation of Dec. 27th, 1832. This harmonizes with the testimonies of Christ and the apostles, and many others. Now, do Utah Mormons believe this? They do not, or rather they can not if their statements to the public are made in good faith wherein they state by Mr. Cannon at Washington, D. C., that they have a "purported revelation, which we believe Joseph Smith received, but whether he received it or not, and whether it is true or false we have accepted it." This accords with O. Pratt's statement in debate with Dr. Newman, and is in harmony with their church. And now let us see what that precious "revelation" says:

"Therefore, prepare thy heart to receive and obey the instructions which I am about to give unto you; for all those who have this law revealed unto them must obey the same; for behold! I reveal unto you a new and an everlasting covenant; and if ye abide not that covenant, then are ye damned; for no one can reject this covenant and be permitted to enter into my glory. And as pertaining to the new and everlasting covenant, it was instituted for the fulness of my glory; and he that receiveth a fulness thereof, must and shall abide the law, or he shall be damned, saith the Lord God."—pars. 3, 4, 6.

A more diabolical statement than these contained in these paragraphs could not I think be made by the Devil himself, as it is in fact a complete denial of the efficacy and power of the gospel as quoted from the revelations of 1832, and as taught by the Church from its inception, and even by Utah Mormons themselves until 1852, when this "document" was read, presented, and accepted (in silence perhaps) when their apostasy was complete. But further; this document teaches murder! Perhaps you think this impossible, if so, just read for yourself, paragraph 19.

marry a wife by my word, which is my law, and by the new and everlasting covenant, and it is sealed unto them by the Holy Spirit of promise, by him who is anointed, unto whom I have appointed this power, and the keys of this priesthood; and it shall be said unto them, ye shall come forth in the first resurrection; and if it be after the first resurrection, in the next resurrection; and shall inherit thrones, kingdoms, principalities and powers, dominions, all heights and depths—then it shall be written in the Lamb's Book of Life, that he shall commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, and if ye abide in my covenant, and commit no murder whereby to shed innocent blood, it shall be done unto them in all things whatsoever my servant hath put upon them, in time, and through all eternity, and shall be of full force when they are out of the world; and they shall pass by the angels, and the Gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things."

I ask all who read this to do so calmly and carefully, and to notice particularly that the only exception in the murder business is that of "innocent blood," hence as a law, it is not against murder. Now upon this principle here enjoined I suppose that Brigham Young based his celebrated "blood atonement" doctrine, wherein he said after speaking of the necessity of "apostates" having their "blood spilt" etc., that "if your neighbor needs help, help him, and if its necessary to spill his blood in order to save him, spill it; now Latter Day Saints will you live your religion?" And in par. 26 this "document" provides that whoever enters into this "new covenant" i. e., "marry a wife according to my word", "and he or she shall commit any sin or transgression of the new and everlasting covenant, whatever, and all manner of blasphemies, and if they commit no murder, wherein they shed innocent blood—yet they shall come forth in the first resurrection, and enter into their exaltation" etc. And in the 64 par.: provision is made that if a woman whose husband desires to enter into this new covenant—and he teaches her "pertaining to these things" and she then refuse to "administer unto him" "she shall be destroyed saith the Lord your God for I will destroy her." In this case God is to murder her himself I suppose, provided he has no agents to act for him.—Upon these doctrines and enjoinders contained in this "purported revelation" which the Utah Mormon Church declare they have accepted as a rule to guide them, I submit that my statements in relation to that organization are warranted by the facts of the case and that the "document" aforesaid does contain and enjoin the diabolism of the age, the "doctrine of devils," and yet, strange as it may appear some writs in

Utah refer to this as Joseph Smith's "most sacred doctrines." Whether Joseph Smith received this revelation or not, cuts no special figure with the writer, as it is in opposition to God's word and professes in fact to be another plan of salvation, or another Gospel, I feel warranted in the language of Paul to say "let it be accursed," and as the Book of Mormon would have it "the gates of hell stand wide open to receive such."

Polygamy in itself is bad enough, but other doctrines contained in this "document" are too damnable to make it tolerable in any sense. I am told that there are many good people in the Utah Mormon Church—of this I have no doubt, and I am not fighting them, I wish them well, but just so long as any hierarchy called a church whether under John Taylor or some other, send out men declaring that this abominable sheet called the revelation on polygamy, is a part of Mormonism proper, the faith of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,—just so long I say they will meet the opposition it merits, but when the Utah Church shall act honest and say and admit that polygamy is no part of Mormonism, that they are Polygamists, not Mormons or Latter Day Saints; then in that case the war is over between us, and they and the Government for it; and I can't see why they should object to this course as their own record stands alarmingly against their present position, and they will yet learn if they have not already that under the laws of America they can not change the faith and remain the same Church. They say publicly "we accept this document called a revelation," the substance of which is "we have changed our faith"—why not admit the inevitable and stand in their true light before the world, such procedure would make their case less complicated and free them from much opposition they now have to meet, and they would appear much more honest before the world, for it is known that they condemned, denied, and decried polygamy upon both continents from 1844 to 1852, which law takes the wind out of their sails as witnesses now, for if Joseph Smith was guilty of receiving that thing they are no less guilty for lying about it for eight years, and in the most solemn manner possible, deceiving thousands and thousands of honest trusting souls, and they will I think excuse me from believing their stories now as the stain of eight years perjury is upon them—so in charging Joseph Smith look to your "glass house."

These facts are known to the Government, for my attention was called to them by a member of Congress in referring me to House Miscellaneous—Contested Elections, 1865 to 1871. In which the whole case of polygamy is examined. P. P. Pratt is quoted from the Millennial Star, vol. 6 for July, 1845, as having declared against "spiritual wifery," &c., by calling it the "doctrine of devils." And now when I include "murder" and "all manner of sins and blasphemies," and call it the same, some think I am harsh, and "have not the spirit of Christ." I think Christ would say of such doctrines and their advocates, "O generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell;" but to continue. After going through the whole case the committee appointed by Congress summed up as follows:

"In 1830, the Mormon Church organized and the Book of Mormon was published, in which polygamy is strongly condemned. In 1831 the same doctrine condemned in Revelation to Joseph Smith which was afterward published in Book of Doctrine and Covenants. In July, 1843, the revelation in favor of polygamy said to have been given to Joseph Smith. In February 1844, polygamy publicly denounced by Joseph and Hyrum Smith. In March, 1844, the same practice again denounced by Hyrum Smith. In June, 1845, the death of Smith. In 1845 the publication of the article on marriage in the appendix to the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, in which polygamy is called a "crime," and is again strongly condemned and repudiated. The same year the spiritual wife doctrine of J. C. Bennett denounced by P. P. Pratt in England. In 1846, polygamy condemned at the conferences of the European Mormon Churches in England. In 1848, 'polygamy' and 'sexual resurrectionism' severely denounced in the Millennial Star, published at Liverpool. In 1850, polygamy denounced by apostle John Taylor in France. And yet in the face of all these facts, in 1852 we have the same doctrine publicly given to the church in Utah accompanied by the announcement that it had been believed and practiced by the church for many years."

"Oh, what a tangled web they weave,
Who practice solely to deceive."

seems apropos in this case. All I have to say in conclusion is, that I have no personal spite or animosity to satisfy in any sense, but my rights as a Latter Day Saint are just as sacred as one whose name is associated with Utah Mormons, and as a citizen of this Government I propose to exercise them. Let the Government draw the line of distinction between the two churches, and then if the Government can or will tolerate polygamy as a religion, I will oppose it only as I oppose other religious theories with which I am not in harmony, but we will not rest under the charge that it is Latter Day Saintism. And I have no fears as to the result before the courts of the land.

THE SPIRIT OF TRUTH, AND THE GOD OF THE SAINTS.

PERMIT me, dear Herald, to present to your readers my views upon the above, prepared some months ago, but which for reasons unnecessary to state, were withheld. For some time past my mind has been led to the subject in hand, because of the things that have appeared in the Herald; and I wondered within myself how many gods the Latter Day Saints have, as the apostle Paul tells us, there are gods many and lords many but to us "One God" and that God is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. The same apostle exhorts the Saints in his day, to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered unto the Saints and that faith is the gift of God.

The God of Abraham, Isaac and of Jacob is the God we wish to worship, or should do. In the 20 ch. of Exodus he says, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." Neither shall there be any after him, so saith the scripture.—Isa. 43:10. "Besides me there is no God." 44:6. Is there a God besides me? Yea, there is no God: I know not any." 8 v.

Dear reader mark these passages. "I am the first and the last," (God). The commandment is "Thou shall have no other gods" "I (God) know not any." As we are taught that God knoweth all things. That He made all things, and without him was not anything made that was made. He is the same (God) yesterday today and forever.—Isaiah 29:25. Mal. 3:6. To a saint indeed, these passages should be final proof of the personality and individuality of God, though many other passages might be brought from the Bible, Book of Mormon and Covenants to establish the theory; but I will merely cite the reader to the 7th chapter, 2 Book of Nephi; and 30th section, (Old Ed). Book of Covenants for the present. As it does not seem sufficient to many to believe the Scriptures and search for light and obtain what is promised in John 5; 24, and 40 verses, 6 ch 39; 40-44 v, as though we had not obtained that knowledge of eternal life, see John 17; ch 3. In this age of infidelity, and great learning (?), the question of all questions is not who, or what is God; but of what is he composed. Jesus up-braided the Scribes, and Pharisees, Saducees and hypocrites of his day of unbelief, hardness of heart, &c. Their niceness of etiquette which would not allow them to eat with unwashed hands, nor with Publicans and Sinners; no, not even to do good on the Sabbath day, and it is very doubtful whether their niceness of manners allowed of their doing good on any other day, judging by the words of our Savior who informs us; they shut up heaven against men and would not go therein themselves.

Are we not surrounded on every hand by just such moral suasionists to-day? What guest would think of taking such liberties to-day even on being invited to a feast, public or private, of asking questions about the food? How would it sound in the ears of our hightoned infidel teachers and lecturers, if one should say to the kind hostess; "Mrs. B., I really don't like this pie, what is it made of?"

How wide the difference between the respect man has for himself, and the respect for God. Well might the prophet declare, "The wicked shall be turned into hell, with all the nations that have forgotten God." But say the many, "It is all important that man should know God and understand what kind of a God he is to worship." The Lord informs us that the wisdom of man never found out God. Again, "No man knoweth the things of God, save by the Spirit of God." Some of the great (?) men of our day, esteeming themselves wise, have become fools. For saith the wise man of sacred writ: "The fool saith in his heart, there is no God." So thus, dear reader, it is not safe ground for us to stand upon and declare that there is no God. It is not with some the desire to know what God is as to prove that there is no God at all. The wisest fool of our day, scarcely honest enough to declare that there is no God, commences one of his grandest efforts to prove nothing at all; by saying "An honest God is the noblest work of man." Answer a fool then according to his folly. "Can the thing framed say of him that framed it, he made me not?"

Another of our famous philosophers who would be wise enough perchance to do without a God at all even after this life: science has taught him that God did not perform miracles; for there being no God outside of nature, he could not believe in miracles. What greater miracle could be performed than would be necessary to transform the flesh of man to the flesh of beast.

Professor Darwin and his disciples would have us believe that man originated from the Monkey Tribe. It would be equally easy to comprehend that with such great learning; such wonderful development of scientific discovery; such magnificent ideas, he might turn up in his native element, a handsome gorilla. Surely much learning maketh man mad! The illiterate farmer would chuckle, yes, laugh such wisdom to scorn: only fancy this wonderful protean scientist and great naturalist (?) entering a wheat field and seeing a farmer sowing wheat, he should observe to the husbandman; "I should think such fine wheat would produce very excellent squash."

Jude, the servant of the Lord, would denounce such naturalists speaking evil of God and of those things they know not; but what they know naturally (?), as brute beasts. But to close this diatribe among scientists, we will quote Paul, whose prophetic vision of these new resurrectionists is simply plain, truthful and easy to be understood. "Awake to righteousness, and sin not; for some have not the knowledge of God: I speak this to your shame. But some will say, How are the dead raised up? And with what body do they come? Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die. * * * But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body. All flesh is not the same flesh; but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, another of birds." God, not nature giveth to every seed his own body, as it hath pleased him, (God), 1 Cor. 15; 34-39. God and nature act so much alike, that is, rationally, that irrational man mistakes the one for the other. As like begets like, so does every seed or germ beget its own kind; so light dwelleth not in darkness.

To the Saints of latter days, I would say, have no connection with the unfruitful works of darkness. It is quite as absurd to ask for information about God of a man who does not believe in one, as it is for a teacher to ask an untutored pupil to solve a problem in mathematics. "God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. If we say we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." If Peter, who lived eighteen hundred years ago, saw the mockers and scoffers of the last days; could see what should transpire, why not we see with our natural eyes, how that men do walk after their own lusts, "denying the Lord Jesus Christ, and saying, where is the promise of his coming?" If we have truly received that unction from above, we need not that a man should teach us, and should stand firm building each other up in our most holy faith, and calling through Christ; being gathered into one." This oneness is like that of the Father and the Son. "I and my Father are one."

How many do err understanding not the scripture. As the Savior hath spoken, so it is. And it is not improbable that many who have joined the Church of God in these days may have retained some of their former traditions and preconceived notions, imbibed during their youth, when taught the precepts of men. Hence we hear and read these dogmas promulgated in the Herald, from the sanctum, in public and in private. Of course we are endeavoring to come to the unity of the faith, or should be, so shall we see eye to eye, when the Lord brings again Zion. But are not the scriptures given for our instruction in the doctrine of Christ the righteous, for reproof, for correction, that the man of God (not of the world) may be thoroughly furnished &c. If then the scriptures, inspired, were given for the above purpose, let us feel reprov'd if necessary, and not be offended because of it; remembering this, that "He that being often reprov'd hardeneth his heart shall suddenly be destroyed and that without remedy." Again, "The law of the Lord is perfect converting the soul." This law, is the scriptures. As no man knoweth the things of God save by the spirit of God; and the spirit is given by the prayer of faith, not the prayer of him that turneth away his ear from hearing of the law, let the law itself decide and not judge unrighteously. John 12 ch: 48.

So little do men seem to know about God because they have not the Spirit of God, hence can not understand the scriptures, that the scriptures are more sought to prove what God is not, rather than what he is. Again, they are sought to prove if possible, that there is no God at all. Let us read. "God is a spirit and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

Jesus is called the son of David by Peter, Acts 2; 30. In the 3, of Acts 13, he is called the Son of God. In the first chapter of Luke he is called the Son of God, and in the 35 v., the Son of the Highest, and although begotten of the Holy Ghost Jesus was never called the Son of the Holy Ghost, but the "Son of the Carpenter." "The Lord's Christ &c."

In the first place Jesus was to be called the Son of the Highest, born of the virgin Mary. Wicked men, unwilling to give any glory to God, or any power even, will reproachfully speak of the birth of Christ as though God had no right to beget a son of a virgin, an unmarried woman, promised, engaged to be married; for we find in Luke, 1st chapter, the angel Gabriel informed her that she, the virgin, was favored of God and should conceive and bring forth the Son of God. She evidently understood the angel, and that it was necessary that she must first know a man. Read 34th v. In the 4th of Luke 23d v., Joseph was the supposed father of Jesus. This plainly shows who was the real father, if we continue from the 34th v., 1st ch., reading 35th verse. The angel told her the Holy Ghost should come upon her, and the power of the Highest should overshadow her; therefore (for this reason) he should be called the Son of God. We are told that Jesus was begotten of the Father, by the Holy Ghost, which is God's power. Jesus was the express image of his Father's person. This is conclusive evidence, or should be, to any reasonable, thinking, sound mind, that Jesus was not the Father, nor could he be, when John in Jordan baptized him, and heard the voice of his Father acknowledging him, Jesus, to be his, the Father's. Almost the last words of our Savior inform us the same, when after his resurrection he said, "I have not yet ascended to my Father, to your God and mine."

We would not charge Jesus with insanity, nor yet with crookedness of speech. After so much has been quoted; and a vast amount of Scripture might still be quoted, did reason require and space allow. Because he said, "I and my Father are one," again, "Have I been so long with you yet ye say show us the Father," he, Christ, was one with the Father, not one and the Father, but the express image of him, begotten by his power. We now see that two personages are spoken of, and apparent, plain, clear, one person speaking, another person spoken to; and if there was another person he would be spoken of. That the Holy Ghost was spoken of can be proved beyond successful contradiction. Jesus said: "If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter (a third), that he may abide with you forever; even the spirit of truth, whom the world can not receive."—John 14:15-17. Here is conclusive evidence, because it cometh from so great a source, that man can not by his wisdom find out God;

hence can not know him. Why then aspire or rather assume so much as those who know not God, also telling us that there is not any God. No matter how much we know or can do we can not give the Holy Ghost, for it is the gift of God alone, of Jesus Christ alone, being equal and one with the Father. So then with the promise of the Holy Ghost comes its office works to confer gifts to men who are heirs of salvation. Of its office work we say no more at present, but will endeavor to show what it is.

Before going further we will make one or two assertions, and then endeavor to clothe, cover the assertions, backing them by the truth, in the spirit of truth; in other words, proving the assertions by the word of God, the Scriptures. Others have the same privilege, and have made some strange assertions, such as seem to them to be scriptural. Of this sort are: "We believe in God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost, and these three are one, [one God without body, parts, or passions]." A distinction without a difference, if you please, as neither has body, parts or passions. We (Latter Day Saints) believe in God the Eternal Father and in his son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost. A distinction with a difference. Now I will assert that the Holy Ghost is not God, but the power of God. Secondly, that God is love and love emanates from him, but love is not God, any more than nature is God. Thirdly, God is not the Holy Ghost. Fourth, the Holy Ghost is spirit.

We will now prove these assertions by the Word. Matt. 3:11: "I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: * * * he (Christ) shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." A purifying element: not God, but an element, pure as God only is pure. Paul to the Romans saith: "There is now therefore no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus who walk not after the flesh but after the spirit."—Rom. 8:1. "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." Paul also informs us, the Saints of God, "That it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but that we [that is, we that are led by the Spirit of God and know him, by his power, and need not then that man teach us] shall be like him, [God];" not like the Holy Ghost which some men call God, but like the Son who is like the Father.

Now dear reader, what is he, the Father like? A spirit? I answer nay. When Jesus suffered, bled, died for us he had power to lay down his body, and take it up again. The day he died, he went unto the spirits in prison, left his body in the grave, came and took it up again as he had said he had power to do, fulfilling the prophecy of Isaiah 26:19. "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they rise." We do read that when Christ rose from the dead, the graves of many were opened and the dead arose. We can not fail to see that Jesus at his death went to two different places, the body in the grave, the spirit to the spirits, still performing the work his Father sent him, Jesus, to do. When Jesus rose from the dead some said it could not be, others who saw him thought he was a spirit: but no, he was like his Father, not like the Holy Ghost, Spirit; not flesh, but power to take up the flesh—the weak body. For the flesh is weak the spirit is willing, having power. And Jesus said: "handle me and see for yourself, a spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have," a resurrected body. Before he died he was like his Father's person, appearance, having his features, having hands like Moses saw him; fingers, feet, head, body, parts, etc. When Jesus rose from the dead he was more like him; and even then it did not appear what he would be altogether, to use the expression of Paul, but when he, Jesus, ascended to his Father he was most like him as we shall then be most like him. As Jesus prayed to his Father to glorify him as he once was glorified. The Father said, "I have, (in the past), and will, (in the future), glorify thee again with the same glory as before the foundation of the world." So plain to me is the scripture upon the subject of the Godhead that I can not see how men can differ. That which is flesh is flesh, and that which is spirit is spirit, and of the grades of spirit I can not take the time to write, I only wish I had the time. I have not quoted one hundredth part of what might be of the word of God; but I have quoted sufficient for the present, and will add the Holy Ghost is the highest; not the highest God, no; but the power of the highest. That the spirit of Jesus was a part of him as our spirit is a part of us is made apparent; that he had power after his death to take up the same body again, that he had all power, both in heaven and on earth; that we have not that power, but the Father hath it, are all plain and clear. To the Saints of latter days who have seen a part and know in part, I would say, contend for the mastery, not with a contenteous spirit, but with a prayerful heart; in malice being children, putting away all sin, endeavoring to keep the unity of the faith; avoiding all vain babblings, ever watching unto prayer. Let foolish contentions have no place among us. If we say of Christ he is divided, we deceive ourselves.

Before closing this article protracted as it may seem, no passage has been quoted from the Book of Mormon, nor the Covenants, which agree, testifying the one of the truths in the other. I will sum up the whole in a few words. "Try the spirits, whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come (has been also) in the flesh is of God." If they do not believe this and teach men so: beware of false prophets; let no man deceive you, bid them not God speed, for in the one is the spirit of truth, in the other the spirit of error, darkness and death. For God dwelleth in us if we have received the spirit of God. Luke 3: 22, "And the Holy Ghost descended, in a bodily shape, like a dove upon him, (Christ the Son of God), and a voice (of another, a third person) came from heaven, which said, (having a mouth could speak and say), thou, (Jesus), art my beloved son, in thee I am well pleased." Was the Holy Ghost a dove? Let us read again, Acts 6: 3, "Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost," etc. How many doves were upon Jesus in bodily shape? How large was this dove seeing it filled seven men, yet only lighted upon Jesus? If you can not answer, I will give you an idea or two. It was powerful enough, to appear as cloven tongues of fire, to make men and women prophecy; hence testify that Jesus Christ is the son of God, and that he came in the flesh, that he entered unto the same glory after he ascended into heaven, that he had before the world was. It made men dream dreams, see visions, speak with new tongues, as well as old ones, things past. Interpreted these all; was able to make the Eunuch rejoice, take up Phillip; to make some one else rejoice, and glorify and praise God with unspeakable joy and full of glory, and to know all things, past, present, and to come; powerful enough to accomplish whatsoever he will, a comforter to all who obey him. Of his size, large as a man, small as a dove if necessary, large enough to fill seven men or three thousand on the day of Pentecost or any other day. Large enough to fill the hearts of the Saints in a thousand different meetings of the Saints day or night, large enough to cover the sea and the earth as the waters cover the deep; to make all mankind know the Lord and fear him, from the least to the greatest. Large enough to fill heaven and earth.

Now if any one doubt the mystery of Godliness, and if the same should be of those who teach even the third person in the Godhead, and can not comprehend what is here written and in the scripture: if you will count the eyes and ears of this third person, I will have one of my little children count his toes. Thus saith the Lord * * * "Look unto me all ye ends of the earth and be saved, for I am God and there is none else."

SKETCHES OF CONFERENCE SERMONS.

[Reported by Charles Derry.]

D. S. MILLS: Fellow travellers in eternity—not for eternity—I gladly quote from the Bible, I once did not believe it, but now I know it contains the word of Jesus Christ, of God, of good men, bad men and of devils. Hence, we need to know who is speaking, to whom the personage is speaking, and of what he is speaking. "Produce your cause" saith the Lord; "bring forth your strong reason," Isa. 41st chap. 21st verse. "Beware of false prophets," Math. 7: 15. I consider I have found the greatest truth in existence. There is a God. He has revealed himself. We find nothing inconsistent in His word. It came not by the will of men but by the Holy Ghost. This truth is accepted by this generation, but they do not accept his revelation to-day; in fact, they deny present revelation, yet God declares that He "does nothing but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets," Amos. 3; 7. We find a remarkable instance recorded in Judges. The hosts of Israel are in peril surrounded by their enemies, they ask aid from God, one stands at their head whom God has called and chosen, a man of faith; he calls on God for a sign that he will deliver Israel at his hands. It was given. Again he seeks, bringing a test of his own, a dry fleece is put upon the floor, it is covered with dew, while the earth around that upon which it lies is dry. The sceptic may say, "This is no evidence, it would be wet any way." Gideon asks that is be reversed, it was done, he was satisfied, God told him he had too many men "I want my people to know that I fight their battles." There are yet too many, they are reduced to three hundred men. "It is enough Gideon, go down to the camp of the enemy, thou shalt hear what they say." He goes and hears one telling a dream and another interpreting it. He divides the little army into three companies, puts a trumpet into every man's hand and a pitcher with a lamp in it he puts in the other hand. The enemy are routed and slain, Israel is delivered from the Midianitish yoke. Two hundred years later, we find Israel at the same place. One is at their head who was once accepted of God, but now is rejected because of disobedience. He is about to lead his armies to battle, he is troubled, and desires to know the result, he seeks it from another source than the God of Israel. He applies to one who deals with familiar spirits, he is disguised, but it is difficult to hide his tall and kingly stature. He ask the woman to bring up Samuel, she told him Saul had forbidden her. He swears she shall not be hurt, she threw herself into condition and then declared she saw gods ascending out of the earth, (a pretty place for gods to come from, "Our Father who art in heaven). She contradicts God by saying This is the prophet Samuel, when God had said He would not answer him by prophets. She made a false prediction. Israel is defeated despite their mighty host because they had rejected God.

We pass on to a man in authority. There is in Israel a prophet of God of whom the people stand in awe. The great man of Syria is afflicted with leprosy; no arm of flesh could heal him. He hears of the prophet of God from a Jewish maid. With much pomp he goes to see the man of God. He supposed he would lay hands on him, but the prophet says, "Send him to me and he shall know there is a God in Israel." He tells him to wash in Jordan seven times. The man says "I will not go." He could not see any healing virtues in Jordan's stream more than in his native rivers. But on reflection he sees this is his only chance for life. He obeyed and was healed. He is satisfied there is a God in Israel, but there is another power at work. Gehazi sees a chance for speculation. What must be the condition of that man to dare commit such an act. He follows the general and lies to him; receives reward, then lies to the prophet on his return. He receives another reward, "The leprosy of Naaman shall cleave unto thee." He skulks away in his degradation to hide himself from human gaze, to live a loathsome life and die a leper's death. When Naaman heard of this example his ideas of God must be more exalted than ever. Some may think it was too severe, but this example will teach all men that God will not wink at iniquity.

God declared things in the ears of Israel, but they rejected the message. He does so to-day, but the people do not believe it any more than the ancients did. He foretold things thousands of years before they came to pass. How was it that Daniel could tell of four successive kingdoms on the earth, reaching through many centuries? God revealed it to him after three weeks' fasting and prayer. It was recorded for the generations to come. Those kingdoms came, Babylon then existed: Medo Persia, Greece, then Rome. They passed away as foretold. No more shall they exist, no more shall the dark and bloody deeds be enacted in them, another kingdom must take thier place. Isaiah declares the name of Cyrus many hundreds of years before he came, he could not acquire this knowledge but from God. Men tried to overthrow their predictions but in so doing they brought the very things to pass, as in the case of Julian the apostate. Yet this did not convert the man. God fulfills his word delivered by his Son and also the prophets. By Malachi he foretold another event, "Behold I send my messenger and the Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come to his temple," etc. We are told John the Baptist was that messenger. John was in the ministry six months. False witnesses could stand before Christ then but in the day spoken of, "Who shall be able to stand." This witness is counter to the testimony of the nineteenth century. Some say it was fulfilled in Paul's day. The apostasy was foretold by Paul. The Lord told John the Revelator he would "Shew him things that must come to pass hereafter." He shewed him the apostasy as described in the revelations. Everyone knows that Rome ruled over every city in the world and was the woman shewn to John. He also saw "An angel fly in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel," shewing that not only shall prophets be restored, but angels shall come to earth. He was shewn two prophets in the streets of Jerusalem who were slain after they had prophesied. Oh! says one, "Those were the Old and New Testaments." Did the Old and New Testaments do the things these prophets were to do? Were they ever slain in the streets of Jerusalem? Read Gen. 48, 49; and Psalms 35; Isa. 29; Ezek. 37, a record is there foretold. The Lord had declared by his Son and by the prophets and apostles, that there would be a great apostasy, hence the restoration of the gospel would be necessary. What were the signs of his coming? Not only eating and drinking etc., as in the days of Noah but angels, prophets, etc., as in the days of Noah and Lot. These are necessary to warn the people and gather out the righteous. If ten righteous men had been found in the cities of the plain those cities would have been spared.

A distinguished preacher says, "We must make religion popular." You can not do this with the religion of Christ now, any more than in the days of Noah. The masses despised the warning, but the windows of heaven were opened, destruction came. and so shall it be in the coming of the Son of Man.

Beware of false prophets, for there must be true ones, or the false ones would never come to imitate them. There has been a departure from the faith and there must be a restoration, that the kingdom of God may be established. This is to be just before the end. The stone was to be cut out of the mountain without hands (see Dan. 2d). It is not the work of man. It does not strike the head of the image. It strikes the feet. It must commence in the West, roll on to the East, and destroy the whole image, and then the "Kingdom shall be given to the people of the Saints of the Most High."

In fulfillment of the prophets a record is delivered to a boy and instructed him. "Why did he not deliver it to the learned?" says one. They would have had traditions, this boy had none. He is every where spoken evil of. I believe him to have been a good man. He did not claim to be a perfect man. Yet he had been called of God. He must fulfill the word. The record was presented to the learned, who declared he could not read it. Three witnesses testify to the divinity of the book. You ask, Why did he not have more witnesses? Eight more testify to seeing and handling the plates. Why are there not more witnesses to Christ's resurrection? Says another, "If Smith was a prophet he should have prophesied." He did prophesy and it came to pass. (Read the prophecy on the Rebellion, etc.) It was to begin in North Carolina; was to be poured out on all nations. The commerce of our nation is swept from the seas. Mason and Slidell appear before the nephew of his uncle. France has a war of conquest on her hands. He sends his armies to Mexico. He is defeated in his purpose, but the spirit of war burns. He sends his armies to the states of Loraine, but finds that Sherman has marched to the sea. He knows not what to do. The Liberator uproots the Papal power. The war between France and Germany was fatal to France. The South was conquered, four millions of slaves liberated. Thus far the prophecy has been fulfilled, and is still being fulfilled in all its details. War is still rife. Krupp employs forty-four thousand men in turning out the weapons of death, to say nothing of other like firms. The Indians have vexed and are vexing the nation. A California editor says, three hundred thousand savages have vexed the nation forty years and the end is not yet." Another editor says, "More lives have been lost within the last ten years than have fallen since the landing of the Pilgrims from the same cause." Thus the purposes of God are being accomplished and the way for his kingdom being prepared.

EXAMINE.

"Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?"—2 Corinthians 13: 5.

THE reasonable conclusion to be arrived at from reading the text is this: That the Corinthian Saints, to whom the apostle Paul wrote the epistle, had embraced that form of doctrine which he so well knew how to preach; and that he suffered so much in promulgating amongst the Gentiles. In the course of his varied experiences of the different churches he had labored to establish, and still labored to maintain, he must at times have felt that the task allotted to him was much, very much beyond the power of frail man to accomplish of himself. But he trusted so entirely on the grace and mercy of the Almighty for aid in all the persecutions and trials he endured in his active ministerial life; trusted in that redemption he knew so well how to imprint on the memories of those who either heard him preach or received his letters,—that he was at all times ready to say, "Thy will be done.

What a fine advice is contained in our text, not only to those Corinthian Saints to whom the epistle was immediately sent, but to all who ever have been the recipients of the glad tidings, as contained in the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of God. "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves." This naturally causes the inquiry: What was the faith he so strongly urged them to prove whether they were in or not. The faith he here speaks of is that "form of doctrine which had been delivered to them." (Rom. 6:17). What is that form of doctrine? "Therefore, [not] leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God; of the doctrine of baptisms, of laying on of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.—Heb. 6:1, 2.

That was the doctrine he wished them to examine themselves in. He wished them then to make sure that they were keeping in the path marked out by our Savior, in which all his followers should tread.

And the same thing holds good with us to-day. We have received that form of doctrine that the apostle was so zealous should be obeyed in his day. And it holds equally as binding on us in these days; for the same noted preacher in Gal. 1:8, 9, says: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed," showing conclusively, that even so early as when he wrote his epistles there were some who perverted the gospel of Christ. What an awful responsibility then rests on those who have been preaching since the apostle's time. For now, and for hundreds of years, preachers have been telling the world that there was no need to obey that form of doctrine which was once delivered to the Saints, in its entirety; but that different parts were, but are not essential to salvation. Only believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and you shall be saved, say they.

They take not into consideration that they must obey him in all things, and enter in by the same narrow way by which he, the Savior fulfilled all righteousness. (Matt. 3:13-15). And if it was incumbent on him, the Lord of all, to enter in the God appointed way; how much more is it our bounden duty to follow in the footsteps of the Master. In Matthew 23:23, we find how severely the Savior denounces the Saducces and Pharisees for not fulfilling or obeying the whole law, but leaving part of it undone. So it is to-day. The outward form of religion is very closely followed by some, who like the Pharisees of old, pray in the streets that they may be seen of men. But woe, woe is decreed against all such, except they repent. May the good God cleanse us from all unrighteousness, and help us to examine ourselves that we may see and know wherein we err; and that through the merits of our Savior, we may be enabled to hold on to the rod of iron, that we may attain unto perfection, and that we be not wafted about by every wind of doctrine; but that we remain true to the covenant into which we have entered with the only living and true God.

We see how severely, in 2d Peter 2d chapter, those who have been in the faith and have fallen away, are spoken of especially in 21st and 22d verses, viz: "For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandments given unto them. But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, "The dog is turned to his own vomit again, and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire." Can any one doubt that the way of righteousness, here mentioned by Peter, was that form of doctrine that he in common with the other apostles taught, that it was the same form of righteousness that he speaks of in the same chapter, 5th verse, as being preached by Noah, and so on, back to the first man Adam, who was a preacher of righteousness to his posterity.

We see then that it is our bounden duty, and should be our greatest pleasure, to "examine ourselves, whether we be in the faith," and prove our own selves, that we may learn whether or not we be in the faith; and that we may know whether we obey that form of doctrine which was once delivered to us by the servants of God, sent to call us from the power of sin unto salvation.

If we only obey the commands of our Savior in their entirety, seeking always for help from on high to guide and direct us into the way of all truth, we shall be blessed indeed; but if in the midst of all our professed endeavors to walk in accordance with his commands, we have some secret longing for some form of sin, such as may be read of Gal. 5:19, 20, 21 verses, wherein are enumerated the works that are manifest in the flesh, which are these: "Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulation, wrath, strife, sedition, heresies, envying, murder, drunkenness, reveling," and such like, "of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in times past, that they who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

We here find enumerated a catalogue of crimes, the most common of which in this country are drunkenness and reveling; and here we find it emphatically declared, that "they who do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." If, I say, we have a secret longing for any of those sins enumerated as above, and also in 1st Peter 4:3, our religion is vain, and of none effect. In James 1:26, 27, we read: "If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridled his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain. Pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the vices of the world."

If we mix and join in the reveling, banqueting, and excess of wine so common in our midst, can we keep ourselves unspotted from the vices of the world? I think not; for they are devices of Satan to lead us astray, and to draw us into divers kinds of what is supposed to be pleasure; but which is in reality the bondage of sin. Paul in Romans 6:16, says: "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" We are here taught that if we yield ourselves to any manner of sin, we are the servants of sin. Why then should not we, I ask, eschew the evil and follow the good, when we are so plainly taught the consequences of following the evil, which makes us the servants of sin unto death? Whereas if we obey the commands enjoined on us through having entered into the new and everlasting covenant, our obedience will bring us into righteousness.

We must not forget that the letters of the apostles were addressed to the Saints, so that the advice given to them holds good with us. What was right for them to do in those days must be right for us in these latter days, and that which was condemned of the apostle then, as being in any way inimical to the glory of God, must of necessity be under condemnation now; for our God is an unchangeable God, the same yesterday, to-day and forever. How grand, how sublime, are the promises held out to man, if only he will obey the commands of our Lord and Savior. If we will only cast ourselves unreservedly on God for protection, he will guide us into all truth. If we lack wisdom to understand the will of God concerning us, let us ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given to us. (James 1:5). What a grand promise is here contained. Only ask of God. But it must be asked for in faith, nothing wavering; "for he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven with the wind and tossed, for let not that man [the waverer] think that he shall receive anything of the Lord." We are here taught that we must implicitly rely on God and the Father to strengthen us and to guide us into all righteousness, and which can only be obtained by our entire obedience to his commands.

"Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith. Prove yourselves; know ye not your own selves, that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?" "Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates." We here see that the Apostle Paul was so firmly convinced that the Saints at Corinth had been at one time so well grounded in the faith that he says, "Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates," showing plainly that they must all have known the gospel in its purity at one time, and he here tells them to "examine themselves, whether they were in the faith," recognizing that they had the power and were able to examine themselves, and also at the same time pointing out to them their responsibilities; showing, that as they were in a position to examine themselves, they were in duty bound to do so, so that they would know of themselves whether they were in the faith, and that Jesus Christ was in them except they were reprobates, implying thereby, that were they reprobates, and had fallen away from the commandments of God given unto them, they would have lost the guidance of the Holy Spirit of truth, and consequently would also know that Jesus Christ was not in them. What a state for those who have once tasted of the heavenly gifts to be in, to be conscience that they are in a worse state than before they had received the knowledge of a Redeemer's love and grace. Let us then examine ourselves, and constantly cry to the Almighty for strength to keep from all unrighteousness. And if we leave a good record, we shall receive a reward from him who is faithful and true to reward all those who keep his commandments; and they are not grievous.

That we all may be made partakers of the first resurrection, is the prayer of your brother in Christ,

DAVID McINTOSH.

It is often asserted that if facilities to consume drink in public houses were reduced the only result would be that secret drinking would replace open drinking. Mr. Hoyle's statistics refute this, by showing that since public houses have been closed on Sundays in Scotland, there has been a decrease of 21 per cent in the sale of spirits; that in Sweden since an alteration in the liquor laws took place which reduced the places for the sale of spirits in the whole country to 450, drinking has enormously fallen off, whereas in Switzerland, where public houses since 1879 have increased from 17,807 to 21,838, there has been a marked increase in the consumption of spirits and in drunkenness. All this proves that the habit of drinking intoxicating liquors is in direct relation with the facility to obtain them. This is in accordance with reason. The number of persons who feel such a craving for spirits that they are ready to sacrifice everything to gratify it are few in number. The mass of drinkers consists of people who drink if they can easily come across spirituous liquor. If they could not do so, they would not go greatly out their way to procure it.

THOSE who may fancy that there is merit in place and birth of which to be proud, with a lifting up of the head in self pleasure at the thought of them, read the truthful as well as forceful sentiments expressed below, and taking "heart of grace," remember that few may become very great in the sight of the world, but any or all may become good in the esteem of The Law and The Truth.

THE TRUE GENTLEMAN.

True gentlemen are to be found in every grade of society. The plowman with his broad sunburnt hand, his homely dress, and his open, honest countenance, is oftener found to be possessed of the real attributes of the gentleman than the enervated man-milliner, who is much more careful of his gloves than his honor; whose shirt bosom must be as pure as a virgin's form; and who, if one curl of his glossy wool were displaced, would be immediately thrown into strong convulsions. The blood which flows in a rich and generous stream through the heart of a Russian serf is as pure in the eyes of God as the life current which eddies round the princely fountain of the highest of England's noblemen. It is a false, illiberal idea, that because a man can not claim alliance with the proud and wealthy his name should be stricken from the list of gentlemen. We are all created alike—our mothers suffer the same pangs; and shall the one who is ushered into life upon a silken couch spurn him whose limbs were first laid on a truss of straw? Which class from time immemorial has shed honor and glory on the earth—the proud aristocrat or the poor peasant? Whose names are enrolled on the pages of history—the gentleman of fashion or the gentleman of nature? Whose voices are most heard, and to most effect, throughout the world? Why, those of men born in poverty, but clothed by truth with the jeweled robe of honor. Does the mere fact of a man's being able to make a bow with scrupulous exactness constitute him a gentleman? Shall the children of one and another be divided because one portion are gifted with gracefulness of action and coxcombrity of demeanor; while the others will not cringe at flattery's fawn, or waste the hours given them by heaven to improve, in the useless study of the puerile forms of fashion?—City and Country.

Prof. Dana says of the first chapter of Genesis: "Examine it as a geologist, I find it to be in perfect accord with known science; therefore, as a Christian, I assert that the Bible narrative must be inspired."

Dear, dear little darling, Normy,
Could'st thou here no longer stay?
Is this world too dark and stormy;

Though in life our griefs are many,
And we have but little joy;
Let us live, to live forever,
With our darling little boy.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 16th June, 1883.

BRO. WM. C. CADWELL sends us from "The Cliffs," Iowa, the following, cut from the New York Sun, of May 27th, 1883.

WHICH IS RIGHT?

In a sermon delivered last Sunday before the faculty and students of Cornell University, Bishop Simpson of the Methodist Church celebrated the success of Christianity. He found nothing in the present condition of religion and religious thoughts to alarm, or even to dissatisfy him, saying: "Christianity was never so gloriously successful as now. Never were there so many Christian churches on the earth as on this lovely Sabbath day; never were there so many communicants gathered about the table of the Lord; never was the Bible so widely read as now, when two million copies of the revised version are sold within the first few days after its issue. What we have yet seen of Christian civilization is but the foretaste of what we shall see."

The Rev. Dr. Bernard O'Reilly, a distinguished and learned clergyman of the Roman Catholic Church, is not by any means so optimistic regarding the religious future as the Methodist Bishop. Writing to the Sun from Spain, Father O'Reilly speaks of the "spreading contagion of infidelity," adding: "At present—let me confess it—I am, as a Christian, deeply concerned with the future which I cannot help foreseeing. To counteract all the irreligious agencies which are at work on both sides of the Atlantic; to remedy an intellectual disease which is spreading so rapidly not only among the Latin and Germanic peoples, but in the world tenanted by the Anglo-Saxon race—what can, what ought the religious guides of the people do?"

After having advised systematic Christian education, especially for women, as a needed safeguard against infidelity, he continues: "Let me not, after more than forty years spent in the priesthood, be deemed importunate if I press these considerations on men of all creeds in our own great country. While the old World is rocked to its foundations by forces more potent than dynamite, we are revelling in all the blessings of incomparable prosperity and peace. Let us not wrap ourselves up in a fatal security. The first mutterings of the storm, the first faint oscillations of the approaching earthquake, may be felt by the wise and wary among us."

Which is right, the Catholic Priest or the Methodist Bishop, and which utters for the Church the words to which it needs to listen?

Many among the Saints will experience but little difficulty in choosing which to them is the nearer a correct understanding of the situation. It is a question being forced home upon all denominational classes of believers, "What ought the religious guides of the people do?"

Bishop Simpson looks out upon the world through an atmosphere rose colored from the surroundings of a successful prelate, an honored and flattered officer of a popular and numerous church; and it is a flatteringly distorted picture of Christian conquest that he sees. He has advanced from the outermost circles of the pioneers of Methodism to the central forum, from which it is difficult to see only the rich, prosperous and growing congregations nearest to him, and among which he moves. His view is that of the elated churchman who has reached the zenith of clerical ambition. Nor does he see through this halo of his dream the struggling denominations, and distant congregations perishing for want of pastors. Nor does he see the ominous signs that mark the insidious encroachments upon the citadels of faith, in every popular and noted church in every principal city in the United States. Nor does he see what many do see that with every leading out of a Tyng from the Episcopal, a Swing from the Presbyterian, a Beecher and an Adams from the Congregational, and a Thomas from his own, the Methodist Church, there are drawn away from the standards of belief in Christ, many other wise good men and fine intellects, who from these divisions themselves become distrustful of men, methods and churches, and drift into the easier meshes of unbelief and infidelity.

Father O'Reilly, on the other hand, is looking out upon the world from the confines of a struggling priestly dynasty, one that was once the imperious mistress of the earth, caring little who wore the crowns so her counsels ruled in the camp and court. He sees Christianity, interpreted by him as by the Pope to be the final triumph and rule of the Universal Catholic Church, being born down by organized dissent, from which in turn there are dissenters who cast off restraint from all faith. He sees further that prosperity and popularity have sapped the fountains of early piety, such as it was, with which departures from the mother church were made; and while he admires the audacity and sublime heroism of those reformers, he pities the degenerate followers who have fallen away from the original standards, false as he may deem them have been. He sees also, the growing impatience with which congregations listen to the positive dogmas propounded from the creeds of men, and is alarmed because he knows from the past experience of the church that while the faith to which he adheres may suffer much, the Christian idea represented alike by him and the Protestant ministry will suffer more, by the "falling away."

One of these men is wrapped in a sense of self security and self gratulation; the other is quickened into alarmed consciousness of impending peril, and would, if possible, awaken even the protesting denominations to the greatness of the emergency and the necessity for something different than present theology to effect a salvation for the decaying churches, for this is what both men mean when they refer to Christianity.

The Christianity of the New Testament Scriptures, the philosophy of Christ, must prevail sooner or later, and those who are in sympathy and accord with that philosophy and prepared in mind, heart and life for the methods and triumphs of that Christianity will be accounted wise and worthy to enter in and enjoy.

BRETHREN Henry A. Stebbins, Henry C. Smith and David W. Thomas attended the Decatur county, Iowa, Sunday School Convention, held at Leon, the county seat, Tuesday, June 5th, to represent the Lamoni Sunday School. They were well received; Bro. Stebbins being requested to address the convention on the subject of The relation of Sunday School work to the Church. Brn. Smith and Thomas report that his effort was a good one and was well received and appreciated. The report of the school was a good one and showed fairly as compared with others in the county. The following named persons were chosen to represent the county in the State Sunday School Association to be held at Marshalltown, Iowa, June 12th to 14th, 1883; Elder F. Edwards, Rev. Thomas Waller, Miss Bell Thomson, Leon; Elder Henry A. Stebbins, Lamoni; Mrs. E. J. Thomas, Decatur.

The following is taken from the minutes of the County Convention as printed in the Decatur County Journal, June 7th:

Finally, on motion of Rev. Wooten, a committee was appointed and the following resolutions submitted, which were adopted after a red hot debate, it being opposed by some of the best temperance men and most earnest temperance workers in the county:

Whereas, advantage has been taken of certain technicalities concerning legal enactments upon the temperance question, whereby the expressed wishes of a large majority of the citizens of Iowa have been set aside and the question has been thrown back upon them still unsettled, and the great evils of intemperance still existing and legalized, and

Whereas, These great evils not only pervade society at large, but also penetrate our homes and our schools with their unhallowed influence, thereby tending largely to thwart the efforts of Christian men and women to instill into the minds of the young the principles of temperance and sobriety, as so plainly taught in the word of God; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Decatur County Sunday School Convention, that, inasmuch as we believe that early impressions are the most enduring, that we recommend to all Sabbath School officers and teachers in Decatur county that they instruct their schools and classes, on this important subject whenever proper opportunity offers in considering the lessons, and from scriptural and moral standpoints that they impress this principle upon the minds of the young. And we would recommend that one Sunday in each quarter be devoted to a special exercise or lesson on this subject.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS.

Under date of June 1st, Bro. F. M. Sheehy writes from Providence, Rhode Island:

Bro. Gilbert and I have just returned from three week's trip; six baptized, making eighteen in this district in a few weeks past; prospects are good for more. We are getting ready for a tour through the State of Maine; everything looks bright and cheerful thus far, with us East. Expect to make things count this season, with divine assistance and a little courage, patience, and charity on our part included. Send Zenas this way soon, we are anxious for him. Yours in the conflict.

Bro. M. R. Scott wrote from Scottville, Indiana, May 24th:

For the time present I think to labor in the Branch, and the adjoining counties where calls are made; and hope, by and by, you may hear something more encouraging from Southern Indiana.

Bro. L. R. Devore writes:

I have been preaching in Mason and Jackson counties, West Virginia, and am now on my way to Fayette to present our faith.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE take advantage of an old friend and publish a pleasant letter lately received from him. We believe that he will not object. Our only excuse for doing it is that the letter, not having been written with a view to publication, is more heart and homelike than if it had been designed for print. Usually when one writes for the press he puts his company face on. We like to see folks in their every day life, to know what they are really like.

The Supplement to the HERALD, including the Bishop's Report, was printed from stereotypes cast in the Herald Office by Bro. W. H. Deam, our pressman. It is an experiment, and has demonstrated that what one man does another can do, if he will intelligently try. This experiment opens for us a new field which we shall try and occupy further on.

A brother, John Erter, an inquirer after the truth living at Antwerp, Paulding county, Ohio, wrote us on May 13th, reciting briefly the way in which he came to take an interest in the Way of Life as seen by us. He had been a United Brethren; but was a lover of light. He met a Bro. Beeman Gaston, now living in Nebraska somewhere; and from him learned something of the views of the Church; subsequently Bro. Gaston sent him a HERALD containing a sermon preached by one of the brethren, which aroused his attention. This sermon he read and circulated among his neighbors, as it met his mind favorably. He sent us for further information, which we have tried to send him. It may be advantageous to send some one down there, by and by. Brethren in charge in Ohio, please make a note of this.

For "hard liens" in the last sentence of the second paragraph, third column, first page of HERALD for June 9th, read "hard LINES."

The drawing to which Bro. T. R. Allen refers may be had by any one who may be in condition to work it up who may wish so to do. Of course if more than one sends for it, we shall make our selection of one and send it to him.

The Rev. Murry, of the United Brethren, ventured to attack the faith and the Church, at Andover, Harrison county, Missouri, on Sunday, May 27th, in the evening, and said some awful things about the origin of the work. Bro. J. W. Gillen had spoken in the morning and Mr. Murry took this method of counteracting the influence of what was said, as we take it. He was called to order by a man in the congregation however, who does not belong to us or the United Brethren, who thought his remarks uncalled for.

LET the dreamers now come to the front, they have an apologist in the ranks of orthodoxy.

REV. J. L. JENKINS ON DREAMERS.

Rev. J. L. Jenkins of Pittsfield, Mass., occupied the pulpit of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago. As the basis for his morning discourse he selected the following: "And they said one to another, behold this dreamer cometh. Come now, therefore, and let us slay him and cast him into some pit, and we will say some evil beast hath devoured him; and we shall see what will become of his dreams."—Genesis 37: 19, 20. The reverend gentleman said Joseph was a dreamer, fond of gay clothing, and indulging in the wildest aspirations, and it was but natural that a young man of such proclivities should be an object of hatred and envy to his brothers, who were practical, toiling men. Yet his very dreaming drew to him the affections of his father, a prosaic, practical man, who, although perplexed and puzzled by his son's visions, loved him more than all else. Dreamers were generally considered useless by the world's commonplace, logical people. But it was to the world's dreamers that its progress was due. From their ranks had come the successful men all through the centuries. If it was impossible to displace dreamers from places of power, if the Bible be believed, David, God's most effective worker, was a poet, a self-communer, a dreamer of dreams. The ancient prophets ruled the great Hebrew commonwealth not by exact logic, or argument, but by their enlarged spiritual insight. Logic and the senses were not the only avenues through which Peter and Paul desired truth. Christ himself was a dreamer, and the entire book of Revelations was a series of visions.

Behind the Christian civilization of Europe were dreamers. The world's explorers were notorious dreamers and inventions were actualized visions. In everything power lay with the idealist. He who pictures a better social state, a higher, more unselfish life, draws the race steadily, evenly upward. By dreaming of better things, man showed himself capable of reaching them. The idea was prevalent that scholars, practical, prosaic, logical men, were wanted to disseminate the truth of religion. They were misguided who demand exactness, logic and argument in religion. The frequent use by God of dreamers, men of imagination, to perform the works recorded in the Bible conveyed an idea of the quality of spiritual power now wanted. The call was not for philosophers, but those who could make short excursions away from the things of earth. They should be thankful that by dreams they could know more of God. It behooved God's chosen then to dream with optimistic vision of the heavenly home, the beautiful streets of gold, to listen with the imagination to the seraphic voices of heaven's choir, and some day they would awaken to find their dream a reality.

Correspondence.

PLEASANTON, IOWA,

June 2d, 1883.

Editor Herald:—I see from your issue of today that Lamoni Branch numbers nearly five hundred members, and that they propose building a chapel to worship in. I certainly think that a good move, and when we consider the wealth represented there compared with the condition of the brethren at Independence, Missouri, and elsewhere, who have of their own means builded houses unto the worship of God, one can readily see that Lamoni is quite able to carry out the work proposed; I trust she will go forward to success and afford a good example thereby.

We need a house here at Pleasanton and shall try and build soon. The same is true of nearly all the branches—all need houses to worship in—and my counsel is, “go to, brethren,” wherever you are upon the earth and erect houses to worship in, occupy and keep the banner of truth unfurled, all to be in harmony with wisdom and prudence.

June 5th.—Last Sunday I had the pleasure of administering the ordinance of baptism to sister Mary Bradley, daughter of sister Sloan, of Davis City. Quite a concourse of people gathered at the water's brink, and a good time was enjoyed.

Letters from Brn. Gilbert and Sheehy, who are at work in the Eastern Mission, show that success is attending their labors, having baptized four since their district conference. Prospects of other accessions to follow soon are good;—so the good work goes on. I am having sore throat, have had it two weeks past.

In bonds,

Z. H. GURLEY.

DUBUQUE, IOWA,

May 30th, 1883.

Editor Herald:—Having often been encouraged and strengthened by reading the letters from different parts of the world, giving accounts of God's dealings with his people, and prospects for the building up of the work; I thought I would try and do my part and cast in my mite to help make the Herald a power for good, by sending an account of the work in this place. Brn. Joseph F. McDowell and R. Etzenhouser held a series of meetings here, in private houses, as we could not get any other place. The result was two were baptized, and others convinced. After the brethren left I had to take a trip down the river; while I was gone Satan improved the time, a gentleman from Utah, Rev. Bishop Hall, stopped in this city for a few days and was interviewed by a Times reporter and the result published. Among other things Mr. Hall said he had a friend in the city who was trying to establish a branch of the Latter Day Saints Church here. And you may rest assured I have received all the honor (that is, dishonor) of being that friend. It has not stopped the work here. Father Adams paid us a visit, and while here did some excellent labor for the cause. He found out some more who were once Latter Day Saints and went out in the country to hunt some up, (traveling about forty miles on foot; he being over seventy-five years of age). While out there he obtained an opening and found friends who treated him very kindly, and wanted him to come back and preach to them. He was offered the use of a Presbyterian church, and we will try and have some one go out there.

The prospect in the city here is good. We look for a branch of the church to be established at an early day. In fact we have had the promise of the Spirit to that effect. We expect to continue laboring here for the upbuilding of the latter day work, and ask that you will remember us in your prayers, that we may have strength and courage to carry out the work that is entrusted to us.

Your brother in Christ,

C. A. HALL.

OAKLAND, Cal., May 31st, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Your welcome favor bearing date May 11th, came to hand and duly considered. Especially that part concerning the future condition of untimely births. “Will such children come forth in the resurrection? Will they be permitted life who never had the privilege to breathe? These come up.—What think you? Will children coming to life while yet unborn but dying in birth (still born) rise in life in the resurrection?”

I know of no law bearing directly upon the question; and in the absence of such, shall philosophize a little in answering your question, as I understand it. There is in physiology what is termed embryo life in all animals, which exists independent of spiritual life. “Though they come out of the loins of Abraham.”—Heb. 7:6. It is evident that life existed in the germ yet in the loins of Abraham. This we shall call life in process. Until the birth has been accomplished and breath enters the respiratory organs, life is not perfected. Hence Job alludes to this, 3:16: “Or as an hidden, untimely birth, I had not been as infants which never saw light.”—Ps. 58:9; Ecc. 6:8. Hence, still born, premature, or untimely, are births unto death, and not life. Hence the spirit of life has not permeated their bodies, and life in process has been annulled; and the babe reverts and remains as though life had never commenced.

To more fully illustrate to you my ideas, I will introduce a batch of lemon drops, to explain my ideas. We first call for the material (sugar) and prepare it by infusing into it a quantity of acid, sufficient to hold the batch from granulation and add sufficient water to melt the sugar, then place over a hot fire to evaporate the water. This now is in process. When done cool on marble. Now if some grain of sugar should have remained on the kettle or marble, or the marble is too hot, the batch will grain and the compound revert to its original element, and the process of bringing forth lemon drops is a failure.

My philosophy teaches me (although it may be at fault) that embryo life commences at the concentration of all the vital essences necessary to organize the germ and is in process of development from its conception to its birth when spiritual life commences. “And [God] breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.” “Ye must be born again.”

Hence I agree with you in your saying, “My hopes say yes; but my philosophy confesses that it [hope] is at fault; my theology is silent.”

What a vast amount of brain work might be dispensed with, if all the obtuse questions growing out of the gospel had been made plain by the Almighty. I have not written this for criticism, but as an expression of my belief.

Well, Mrs. Canavan is here and at work. Bro. D. S. Mills paid us a welcome visit. He appeared in the spirit of Bro. Mills years ago; he did us all good in rehearsing his travels and relating incidents of note. He left sooner for home than he calculated, on account of sickness in his family. Bro. J. B. Price and wife left yesterday for Salt Lake to visit friends there; they will be absent about two months. Sister Percila Lincoln and her daughter Frankie start east to Boston on the 5th of June to visit friends; they intend remaining one year there. Brother and Sister Bullock in whom we were so much interested, are now in Boston. He is about the same. Their address is Boyd Bullock, Hotel Washington, 1143 Washington street, Boston. They are good people, but very hard to get to understand the gospel.

Well we are jogging along slowly. The country is looking finely. Our late rains and warm weather have ensured us good crops. Fruit is coming in quite plenty. Soon we shall have grapes; they are the fruit I like. Real estate is advancing all over the State. Here and in the City many fine buildings are in course of erection; times are much improved over 1880. Money is quite plenty, bearing only five and six per cent. Mrs. Anderson's mother (Mrs. Varley) and sister (Mrs. Ferrell) are now visiting with us.

I think I have made this letter sufficiently long, therefore shall close with hoping you have sampled the lemon drops. Mrs. A. joins in kind regards to yourself and family.

Yours in bonds,

WM. ANDERSON.

CLEVELAND, Lucas Co., IOWA,

June 6th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—This place is almost at a standstill as to labor at coal mining. The miners are out on strike to resist the use of a new system of screens, which the company has newly put in. The miners find it to be such an outrageous reduction upon their labor that they could not stand it, and stopped working two weeks ago to-day. The work of instructing the people in the plan of salvation is kept up by some of our good Elders here. By request of some of the Welsh people of this place, preaching was had in their own language last night in the church, and I hope it will do good to the cause.

I enclose a pencil draft of a damper for steam boilers, which I believe would be a great saving of fuel, wherever they could be put in use. I am not in circumstances to develop its merits. You may, if you please, mention in the Herald, or to some brother in the Church, to write to you for it, who is turning out castings able to test its merits, or you may forward it to any brother in the Church you deem worthy. I have the drawings of two other articles of machinery of untried merits which would cost but little to prove them. If it is thought worthy a trial I will give my instructions to any one who will write to me.

Your in the covenant of peace,

THOMAS R. ALLEN.

COAL VALLEY, Allegheny Co., Penn.,
March 29th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—You are dear to me, for you are laden with so much of truth. Whilst perusing your pages, you administer comfort and peace causing aspirings after holiness, virtue, and the good qualities that accompanies the gospel of the kingdom. Since I came to Pennsylvania, I have made several efforts both in private and public, which I have every reason to believe will result in good to the cause you so faithfully represent. I visited Bro. George W. Henderson, Springfield, Fayette Co. We made several efforts, but the people did not seem to appreciate Mormonism very much; yet I am in hope that some seed fell into good, honest hearts, some times there would be perhaps a dozen, so our congregations were even down to one. In every instance we held service. I left there 24th inst; am now at Coal Valley, preached on last Lord's day to a few of Bickertons followers, their condition is peculiar, but I pray the Lord may open up their way. I would like to write more, but it is with difficulty I write, not feeling strong, but thanks be to our Father for the glorious hope of an inheritance in the kingdom of peace.

Am yours ever desirous for the welfare of truth,
JOSEPH P. KNOX.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 28th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—The district conference which was convened at Edenville, Iowa, on the first Saturday and Sunday in March, last, was a success, and was enjoyed by the Saints and friends in attendance. Some good steps were taken thereat, in placing safeguards around the work, which do not, for some cause or other, appear in the published minutes. I left there on the day following, and arrived here two days later. It was with pain that I bade them "good bye," for I realized that ere I should again see that district of the Church, some, and perhaps many, shall sleep 'neath the clods of the valley. I look back with pleasing recollections of the dear Saints of the Des Moines District, and in particular, to the Edenville branch—from which I removed here. A better band of Saints I never have met,—noble, generous souls—many of them, the friends of my boyhood days. May God give them "grace unto grace," that they may achieve victory upon victory, and at last, clad with immortality, reign with Christ upon earth.

I had strong emotions, when I met with those of "like precious faith," in "their own hired hall" in this city. It was the one we used to meet in tens years ago. Many changes had been wrought. I saw empty chairs, whose former occupants, I fully believe, are now basking in the sunbeams of everlasting blessedness, in the spirit-realms above. I was filled with joy and pain, as I undertook to address the assembly. A remark made by your beloved brother Ellis, years ago, came forcibly to mind: "The old must go, and the young are returning home." Here and there, was a veteran remaining; but, thank God, those who were but "boys and girls" ten years ago, are now men and women in Christ Jesus. Some have grown cold, and others have fallen away—while others have removed to other places; but, I thank the Lord there have been accessions to the fold—that the good seed has not been sown in vain—and that the banner of truth has at no time been furled. The Saints here certainly deserve great credit for their persistent effort in maintaining the cause. They have sacrificed both pleasure and means, but in so doing, they have laid up "treasures in heaven," to be revealed at the coming of him "whose right it is to reign." May the labor of love and salvation ever continue, culminating in rich harvests of righteousness, joy and peace, and spiritual blessings from on high.

Let the experiences of the past admonish us to humility before God and man, and that we may stand in our appointed stations, simply striving to do the will of God, so that upon our skirts shall not be found the "blood of this generation." For one, I desire to be found at the post of duty, and to stand in my calling. Although I may be situated so that I shall be able to do but little, yet I want that little to be for God and in favor of right, and for this I pray. If the door ever opens for more extensive labor, I feel resolved to step into the opening, and labor to the best of my feeble powers. The branch here is in fair condition, and those who live for the blessings receive them. There was a notable instance of healing with a German sister, of a sore malady which had afflicted her for seventeen years. The cure was complete.

Of our late brother, Jesse Price, who was one of the old Nauvoo Saints, it is stated that when he lay dying, there was a halo of light around his head—a spiritual transformation of countenance, as he passed over the "dark river" into the mansions of bliss. He had conversed with angels, and had witnessed the display of God's power—and tasted of the sweets of salvation—had enjoyed the acquaintance of the Martyr—Seer, and now, in the throes of death, there was given him the fortaste of the glory which awaited him! O! blessed hope, may we be worthy of the privileges we enjoy—and be found where duty calls.

Yours in Christ,
THOS. E. LLOYD.

EGREMONT, Ontario,
May 30th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I can realize more and more every day the beauty and worth of this latter day work; and the more I learn to prize it myself, the more I wish to have every one on earth hear the glad sound of the gospel. It was a blessed day for me when those servants of God carried to where I was then living the precious truth as it is in Christ Jesus; and more blessed was the day went I went forth to follow the steps of my Master through the door of Baptism into the sheepfold. We had a good time last winter attending preaching meetings here, and at another place about six or seven miles away. Bro. Willard Smith was here from Michigan and preached several times and the Lord was with him. Bro. McIntosh was here also for a few days, and while here was not idle, but earnestly and faithfully tried to do the will of the Master. Then we had Bro. Hicklin and Brown, who stayed with us quite a while, so you see we had quite a lively time. Bro. Hicklin has done a good work here; and he is still remembered with love and respect by the Egremont Saints.

We are trying with God's help to press on in the narrow way. I for one feel my weakness, but the Lord is ever ready to help us if we look to him and trust in him. We have some good prayer and testimony meetings, the good spirit meeting with us. Yesterday we were called to take the last look at and follow to the grave the remains of our dear brother Jonston. He was baptized last winter by Bro. Hicklin. We will not sorrow as they that have no hope, for we hope to meet him on that bright morning when our blessed Redeemer shall come to gather up his jewels.

I remain your sister in Christ,
ELSIE MC LAREN.

BEVIER, Macon Co., Mo.,
May 28th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I am at home for a few days, and am trying to do all the good I can in the Master's cause. Since I arrived at Bevier on the 19th day of April, I have not been idle. I find that there are lots of calls for preaching and no one should stand idle. I returned home a few days ago from Salt River, where I preached eight times and the house was well filled and good order prevailed all the time. I feel that good was done, which I think will be seen before very long. There are places waiting for me to come. I will come and go as fast as I can. I leave home again in a few days, and I ask the prayers of the Saints in my behalf.—My address will be for the present, Box 556 Bevier, Macon County, Mo.

Your brother in bonds and in Christ,
GEORGE HICKLIN.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa,
June 3d, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—You remember that I wrote to you last winter about tracts that I had translated into the Danish language. I have two of them printed, the "Voice of the Good Shepherd" and the "Kingdom of God." But I can not get any more printed for want of money. Probably some of the Scandinavians belonging to the Church in other parts of the country would like to help spread the work among our countrymen to show them the difference between Mormonism and Brighamism. I hope you will make it known to them through the Herald; and if they feel like doing something for the cause they can send the money to Bro. Andrew Hall, Bishop's Agent, 102 Broadway, Council Bluffs, Iowa. My address, Peter Anderson, Box 1437 Council Bluffs, Iowa. I have tract entitled Polygamy, written by A. H. Smith, nearly translated; think it would be a good one for the missionaries in Utah to sow among the thousands of Scandinavians there.

Yours respectfully,
P. ANDERSON.

SAN FRANCISCO, California,
May 30th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I bear my testimony to the truth of this latter day work. I was baptized by Bro. T. Daley, at Sacramento, on December 12th, 1882, I knew then as I came out of the water that my sins were washed away. After I was administered to for the gift of the Holy Ghost, the scriptures were unfolded to my understanding to such a degree that I scarcely knew what to think of it, for now I could read and understand, where as before the Bible was a sealed book unto me. Since then I have received many testimonies of the truth of this latter day work, and can say that I know it is of God. I love to read the letters of the Saints, it does me good. I think a sermon every week is good for those that do not often have the privilege of hearing, or seeing any of the Saints. I know how I used to feel myself while away out in the country, and not able to receive any spiritual food whatever, and only by the grace of God have I been kept in the paths of righteousness. I desire to ask an interest in your prayers, that I may remain steadfast in the cause of truth. My great desire is to see this work roll onward. I am doing what I can by writing, and other ways, but the gift of speech is not given unto me at present.—Address 436 Brannan St., San Francisco, Cal.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I remain your brother in gospel bonds,

ARTHUR GOODWIN.

STARKVILLE, Colorado,

May 28th, 1883.

Mr. Herald:—Please say to that ambitious brother who through an assemblage of a district wants to beat the Kirtland Conference, that the writer appreciates his kind invitation; and but for distance, and the probability of running against a few conductors, whose demands he might be unable to meet, he would accept; giving him, and the rest, a chance to see a good looking chap from the Colorado regions—and here, Bro. Will, is my hand. The next time you send and invite, break through all modesty—and extend, and say to President Elect, and all that have been, or expect to be Presidents, Senators, Representatives, Judges, Governors, Mayors, Aldermen, Constables, Philosophers, Scientists, Clergy, Catholic, and Protestant, etc., etc.; and who knows but a dozen, or more excursion trains may come flying into the city of your next session? May peace attend your gathering.

In bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

PLANO, Ills., June 4th, 1883.

Dear Bro:—When I was left in charge of the Plano Branch, I did not think that I should be able to hold out as long as I have, but I feel as earnest and as determined to go on as ever, and want to do more in this cause than I have. We had a good meeting yesterday, with a good degree of the Spirit present. Bro. Wm. Bronson was here from Wisconsin; came to attend the funeral of his son, and is to remain with us. His family is coming soon to make Plano their home. Sister Whitaker is here also, and they tell us of more to follow as soon as their way opens. Glad to hear that your branch is in good running order, with Bro. Henry at the head; May God bless you and all the Saints, is the prayer of your brother for Christ's sake.

W. VICKERY.

SYDNEY, Australia,

April 14th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I have received a letter from Wallsend. The Saints there are alive in their Master's cause and feel determined to do all they can towards rolling on the glorious latter-day work. They have more promptings of the Holy Spirit than they ever had before. They have Sabbath School every Sunday morning, testimony meeting in the afternoon, and preaching in the evening; a weekly prayer meeting and a Bible Class, and a very good attendance of strangers at their meetings. Many are believing in the work and some prepared to enter in at the gate. Bro. Haworth tells me they are now better off financially than they ever were since the branch has been established. And they feel to make a call on all the Saints in the colony to contribute towards a fund to defray the expenses of an Elder which we want you to send us if it is God's will, for we are in need of two if they can possibly be spared. The enclosed notice of our work I cut out of the Sydney Morning Herald. A few of such will do much good to the cause, and allay prejudice against the work. I am glad the Herald is weekly. It is truly a God send to us in this far off distant land. I prize it as one of the greatest blessings sent to us in absence of an Elder. Please remember me to Bro. Gillen and family, also Sr. Smith and family, not forgetting yourself.

I remain yours respectfully,

RICHARD ELLIS.

Summary of News.

June 1st.—A fiendish attempt to blow up a house and its occupants was made at Des Moines, Iowa, yesterday morning. The house stands in an isolated part of the city and was occupied by two colored miners, their wives and an eight-year-old girl. At about 2 o'clock a keg containing several pounds of blasting powder with a lighted fuse attached was thrown through a window into the room where the two women and the little girl slept. The front of the house was thrown into the street, the two women and one of the men were seriously injured and the little girl fatally. The cause, as near as can be learned, is that the colored men were hired to take the place of white men, who have been on a strike for the past month demanding an advance.

The Coroner's jury at Belleville, Ills., rendered a verdict yesterday censuring the militia for the killing of Henderson at the Reinicke mine.

Robert Smith, one of the brothers who killed the two Cecil brothers at Helenwood, Tenn, was killed yesterday while resisting arrest.

One of the most blood-curdling human butcheries ever known was committed last night at the Joliet penitentiary in which Michael Mooney stabbed to death his cell-mate, John Anderson. There were thirty one most horrible gashes on Anderson's body. He was literally stabbed full of holes, and his knees and shins were all skinned up, and the cell looking-glass was broken, shows that the death-struggle must have been horrible beyond description. The verdict of the jury was, that John Anderson came to his death by wounds inflicted with a knife in the hands of his cell-mate, Michael Mooney.

Montreal was visited yesterday by a northwest gale, which caused the ships to break their moorings and drift down the river. There were some accidents by scaffolding and insecure walls being blown down, but nothing serious is reported. Torrents of rain fell, and the warm weather lapsed into cold again.

Commander Cheyne is lecturing on his proposed balloon expedition to the North Pole. His plan is as follows: Three balloons will be employed. Three men will go with each balloon, and will take with them a tent, a sledge and dogs, with provisions for men and dogs for fifty-one days. By numerous experiments, made in previous expeditions in which Commander Cheyne has taken part, he found that at the height of about 500 feet there is a strong air current setting towards the pole which would carry them there in twenty-four hours at the longest. The total cost of an expedition would be about $80,000, of which the commander hopes one-half will be contributed by Canada and the remainder by the United States.

A dreadful accident is reported at Oleggio, near Milan. A boat laden with workmen capsize in the river and twenty-two were drowned.

In regard to affairs in Prussia, the Tribune says: Prussia and the Vatican are again at sword-points, because the Parliament of the former will not repeal the "Falk laws" governing the appointment of Bishops and priests, and prescribing their duties in reference to the State. Diplomatic relations have been broken off. It is more than probable that Bismarck's recent solicitude for more cordial relations with the Papacy, and his apparent desire to mitigate the force of the Falk laws, was a diplomatic blind to aid him in cementing the lately formed triple alliance between Prussia, Austria, and Italy. The last two are Catholic, though the church is no longer an important factor in the political affairs of the latter. Bismarck was shrewd enough to see that an attempt at conciliating the Vatican would vastly lighten the task of engrafting himself on Austria and Italy. Having accomplished his purpose he is perfectly willing that the Pope remain a prisoner in the Vatican and never again possess an iota of temporal power.

June 2d.—Considerable currency has been given to a statement that the Pope contemplates a convocation of the American Bishops to be held in one of the Eastern cities at no distant date. A well-known Chicago priest was interviewed on the subject. He stated that many of the Bishops were favorable to the convocation, for many of the decrees of the Baltimore Council had fallen into disuse and were now regarded as a dead letter. Many abuses had crept in. The selection of Bishops had been made a matter of personal favoritism, and in several dioceses the English-speaking faithful complained of the appointment of French, Belgian, and German Bishops and priests.

Woolen mills and a tannery were destroyed by fire at Manitowoc, Wis. The fire started in the woolen mills and is supposed to have originated by spontaneous combustion in the woolen waste. Loss to the mills $10,000, to the tannery $4,000.

The striking coal-miners at Des Moines, Iowa, are charged with another successful incendiary attempt, which resulted in the destruction of about $5,000 worth of property. About two o'clock this morning the shaft of Van Ginkel's coal mine, situated in Sevastopol, was fired, and the buildings located at the mouth of the mine were totally destroyed, with the machinery and all the contents.

There was a double hanging at Macon, Ga., yesterday. Fifteen thousand people were present. Bob Henderson was executed at Oxford, N. C., for the murder of his young wife. The three expiators were negroes.

A dispatch from Berlin to the Exchange Telegraph Company says: "Prince Bismarck presided yesterday at a meeting of the Prussian Ministry, at which it was decided to take the regulation of church matters into his own hands, independent of Rome, and submit a bill in the Diet providing for the modification of the May laws." The bill to be submitted to the Diet is not intended to be an organic measure, but one removing the chief objections to those laws. The bill will consist of a single paragraph, allowing the saying of mass and the dispensing of sacraments in consideration of the recognition of the Government's modified rule in regard to the duty of notifying the Government of church appointments.

The French have bombarded two posts on the northwest coast of Madagascar, causing great destruction to British and other merchandise.

At Dublin, Curran, Divisional Magistrate of the Metropolitan Police; Mallon, Chief of Detectives; and Juror Field have received letters threatening vengeance.

Capt. Olsen, of the Norwegian bark Inga, which arrived at New York, yesterday, from Batavia, reports that during the night of Feb. 14th, when eighty miles northwest of Engraw Island, which is in the Eastern Archipelago, several earthquake shocks were felt. The ship trembled so that the seamen in their berths woke up in alarm and hurried on deck. The sea, which had been perfectly calm, suddenly became confused. The water foamed and boiled violently, and waves rose to a great height. For about two minutes earthquake shocks rapidly succeeded each other. Afterward the sea became calm again.

The people of the little Village of Huntsville, Pa., were horrified yesterday morning by the information that Mrs. Martin Douglas and her three children were lying dead in their house with their throats cut from ear to ear. The oldest child was five years and the youngest but six months. The most plausible theory is that the mother, in an overpowering fit of insanity, committed the shocking deed. An inquest, and a verdict was rendered that the mother had killed the children and then taken her own life.

At six o'clock last evening one of the worst rainstorms that ever visited Council Bluffs, Iowa, set in, and for four hours the water poured down in torrents. Indian Creek, which runs through the heart of the city, overflowed, and the damage from the same is roughly estimated at $200,000. Seven iron bridges and two stone culverts belonging to the city were swept away, as were also several dwellings and barns along the creek. All the business-houses on Main street and Broadway are flooded.

Heavy frosts were reported yesterday at Morris, Ills., Holland, Mich., and Toledo, O.

At 8:30 a. m. the boiler in a shingle-mill East Saginaw, Mich., eight miles below exploded with terrific force, shattering the mill building into fragments, which were scattered in every direction, and only a pile of brick, mortar, and remnants of the walls mark the spot where the boiler-house stood. Three men were horribly mangled and killed: while four were badly hurt.

June 4th.—Early yesterday morning a mob visited the jail at Winterset, Ia., glided past dungeon bolts and bars without apparent hindrance, took a man accused of murder from the cell, and with the aid of a rope, the limb of a tree, and a revolver, ended the earthly career of John Hamner. The dispatch which chronicles the event says the lynching occasioned but little excitement, as the community believed Hamner guilty.

withdrawn from Madagascar on the recognition of the French protectorate and an indemnity of 1,500,000 francs, as the cost of the expedition.

The struggle over the location of the new Capital of Dakota, which has terminated in the selection of Bismarck, has been long and acrimonious. This future great State now contains half a million people, and if the Territory is ever divided Bismarck will be the natural location for the Capital of the northern half.

Very extensive forest fires are raging in the pineries north-west of Tawas, Mich.

The burning of barns containing self-binding harvesting machinery still continues in Indiana; the last one occurred last night in a barn ten miles south of Muncie, which contained a self-binder just purchased, and which had not been unpacked, corn, a large amount of wheat, and farming implements, all of which were destroyed, entailing a loss of $4,000, with $900 insurance.

June 5th.—The latest accounts direct from Greenville, Tex., regarding the tornado which struck that town Saturday evening are that three residences were torn to pieces, but none of the inmates seriously injured. A large number of houses resting on blocks and posts were blown down or twisted off their supports, and more or less damaged, but very few of their occupants hurt. A large amount of goods was damaged by water being blown into stores. Nearly all the churches in town were badly damaged, and in fact but few buildings in the place entirely escaped injury. Meagre accounts from the surrounding country say the storm was severe, and several houses in the track of the storm were blown down, and two or three persons somewhat injured. The losses aggregate $50,000 to $100,000, but there is no individual loss of any magnitude.

June 6th.—A phenomenal black ring around the sun appeared about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, at Fort Worth, Texas. The negroes were greatly alarmed, fearing that a cyclone would follow.

Other workmen in the building were prostrated by the shock.

Comanche, Texas, was visited last night by the largest storm ever known in this country, the wind coming with terrible and increasing force. A number of frame houses were destroyed, and a large two-story frame building was blown down, a portion of the timbers being carried some distance. So far as known no lives were lost. The strength of the wind seems to have been confined to one street. It soon began raining, whereupon the wind moderated, and a rain grateful to the farmers followed.

The storm yesterday was quite severe at Laredo, Texas. Four bridges and half a mile of track were completely washed away.

A cyclone passed through a portion of Barbour county, Ala., on Sunday morning. Many houses on the plantations were blown down and crops badly damaged. One negro man was killed, and several people badly injured.

Last evening while a circus was in the midst of the performance at Suspension Bridge, N. Y., a heavy gale struck the tents completely demolishing them. The storm raged furiously, and rent the canvas from bottom to top and blew the seats promiscuously upon the heads of the people, who all made a rush to the main entrance. At this moment the whole main tent collapsed and came down upon the large crowd of people, who were pushing and jostling each other in their frantic efforts to escape. A scene of dire confusion prevailed, a good many being trampled upon. Mothers besought people to look for their children, who had become separated from them in the panic. Strange to say, no one was killed, although a number were injured. A good many people came out minus pocketbooks, watches, etc.

Barnum's circus was damaged $15,000 by fire at Chicago.

John W. Fisher, who had been confined in the jail of Gasconade county, Mo., for the murder of William Burchard, whom he had shot and killed on the 10th ult. during an attempt to rob, met death at the hands of a mob last night. With sledge hammers and chisels they broke off the ponderous locks of the iron cell doors. The prisoner was securely bound and then marched out about one mile from the jail, the mob following quietly, to a sycamore trees standing near the road, where he was hung.

As they passed up the street, a public-spirited citizen fired a load of buck-shot into them. Anderson has since died, and Brown can not recover.

PATCHWORK RELIGION.

It is characteristic of the people of to day that they look at religion from the short range. The question to be considered, from their point of view, is not whether religious opinions are correct, but whether they are in accord with popular feeling. The opinion of the moment rules the day, and the larger considerations are not sufficiently thought of. In other words, religious expediency, to a very large extent, unites with the prevailing unrest in belief—to produce the chaotic state of thing through which we are passing. The preaching of the hour is just for the hour, and is apt to insist on things of the moment. The measures for controlling the spiritual life are not usually those which a wise experience dictates, or which look to lasting results. They are chiefly measures that look to immediate fruit, and pay regard only to what is to be done now. The policy of churches is dictated, not by looking at religious movements in the large, and reaching broad and inclusive views of the field, but by regulations that pay attention only to what is immediately before one, and by neglecting to provide for the vested interests of the future. It is the experimental system that is most in vogue. It is found that large numbers of people are still experimenting upon some new methods of arriving at truth, and that the narrow, limited and personal range of opinion usually decides the direction of the individual life. This state of things is indicated by much that takes place in current discussion; but it is still more distinctly seen when one breathes the close atmosphere of religious societies in country villages, and notes how the great ends of the Christian religion are lost sight of in the experiments of those who constantly put expediency in place of principle.

The dry rot that perplexes the churches to-day is very largely due to the sacrifice of Christian principle in their management. They are run too much upon a clap-trap and catch-penny policy, so that one does not feel the great spiritual purpose which they profess to have in hand. So deeply has this principle of expediency come to rule in spiritual affairs that most people, especially most ministers, do not recognize this fact, would keenly resent the imputation, and yet the most conspicuous thing about our present Christianity is its thoroughly secular character. It is worldly-wise. It has a policy, and its secular policy is its chief attraction. One becomes everlastingly sick of "our church," while the great work of truly spiritual religion is put in the back-ground. The want which men are feeling is that the ideas of religion, whether in the liberal or the orthodox direction, are not broad enough to co-ordinate with the facts of life. They do not impress the world with their spiritual character. They seem to be limited to the day of their expression.

Surely there is more than this cheap expression of Christianity in the religion of the Christ, and this is precisely what thoughtful people are feeling after. The religious range is too restricted. The heights and depths of truly spiritual religion need to be explored anew, and larger views, based upon wider knowledge and a greater reach of observation, must be entertained before people are to be satisfied with the current religious development. The characteristic defect of the entire development of Christianity in America has been its patchwork methods. It has been a system for the hour, and its methods have had little to support them in the large experience of Christianity. The range of view has almost entirely overlooked the integration of those facts which have made Christianity inclusive of all the interests of a great people. One of the sorest needs of American religion is the method that allows for proper length and breadth of view.—Selected.

Some tremendous figures bearing on the liquor question have lately been compiled in England, from which it appears that 70 per cent of the patients in hospitals are said by doctors to owe their presence there to alcohol. Chief Justice Coleridge is quoted as authority that eight-tenths of the crime that comes into court is the offspring of drink. Three-quarters of all the people in the poor houses, it is said, are there by reason of drink. The British people spend about $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 a year for alcoholic liquor. There is a revenue from the liquor taxes, and it is a logical bit of reasoning that if there is to be drinking the vice should be levied upon to help sustain the expenses of organized society! But if seven hospitals out of every ten, eight jails out of every ten, and seventy-five poor houses out of every hundred could be discontinued, the saving would probably be far greater than the profits of the present tax, and the traffic, it must be admitted, does more in the way of disorganization than of organization.

"What has he done," is the question upon which every man's value is hinging. It is required of him that he do, not dream,—accomplish as well as plan: and the plain, sensible dealing of the world is good after all. Let a man produce his work if he set himself up to be anything in this busy bee-hive of human life. There are too many honest workers for dreamers or visionary schemers to have any show. Let his work testify of him, and the world will very soon see if there be anything in him. A truce to this sentimental gush of "unappreciated lives." A life is appreciated if it be really one of value to the world, or will be; and if it will be in the future, it is so now, prospectively, which ought to satisfy a generous spirit. "Results show," as the old saying is, and all may expect to be judged by them.

SIBERIAN EXILES.—A Russian criminal condemned to exile is sent away with very little ceremony; but when an officer of the army, or other person of note, has been sentenced to banishment for life, he is dressed in full uniform and led to the scaffold in some public place. In the presence of the multitude, and of certain officials appointed to execute the sentence, he is made to kneel. His epaulets and decorations are then torn from his coat, and his sword broken over his head, to indicate that he no longer possesses rank and title. He is declared legally dead; his estates are confiscated to the Crown; and his wife, if he is married, can consider herself a widow, if she chooses. From the scaffold he starts on his journey to Siberia. His wife and children, sister, or mother, can follow or accompany him, but only on condition that they share his banishment, and can not return to Europe.

INSPIRATION.

IF WE but pause and examine the things around us that are sustained by the laws that be, what a great and wonderful variety is presented to our view. In all the ramifications of nature we see these vast variations. In the vegetable kingdom, trees of a vast difference in size, beauty and quality, yet each kind perhaps, many at least, serving some good purpose, though in a different sphere. Of the flowers, whose qualities are various, and whose name and colors are as a myriad. The same classification exists in the mineral kingdom. Stones, metals or ores, of vastly different quality, color, shape, strength, and fineness. Turn to the animal kingdom for the more noticeable proof common with all men, and the principle of gradation is largely developed. We will not enter into details, but refer alone to man. The history of the past, the facts of the present, show him divided into many classes, physically, mentally and morally. From the strong, the learned, and the noble, down to the weak, the ignorant, and the mean; and though each is the architect of his own fortune, and many have changed their natural standing; yet all will agree that originally they were none the less various. The "leaven" of Christ may and can "leaven the whole lump," yet more "leaven" is required for some than others, to make equally as good. Though all are called to repent, as all are sinners, yet we can but expect that the trials and toils and works of this lot, as a whole, will be just as various as their characters. But our object is to improve and become one in Christ. Evidently our moral powers are the result of choice and efforts instead of endowments by our Creator; but otherwise the rule with man is the result of design. I apprehend no controversy upon this. The rule that everything has its opposite can be traced with these things. Different kinds of associations have their peculiar influence, just as much so as flowers have their peculiar influence. A good society has a good influence, and vice versa, and just so all along the line between the extremes; the various influences arises according to the standing or position between the extremes, which influence reacts on man, because it takes intelligence to comprehend, and it must comprehend before it can be moved by influence. As we believe everything has its opposite, so there arises a counter influence with all to the first, and according as the will power, as it is king of the mind, yields to the influence, whether good or bad, according to the desire of the heart; for the "mind," or "will power," is influenced and sometimes led captive by the desire of the heart, whether for good or evil, so that person chooses, and it would be contrary to all testimony if they never succeeded in obtaining.

"To us there is one God, and one Lord Jesus Christ."—Paul. Him we try to serve. "Justice and judgment are the habitations of his throne; truth and mercy shall go before his face."—Psalms. The last verse expresses his attributes. He is the author of all good. The Devil is the representative of evil. Both have powers, both have influences, or spirit. One of good, the other of evil. One brings joy, the other misery. One enlightens, the other darkens the intellect of man. Man is between these two extremes, and is influenced by these two opposite powers. Man has an agency and degrees of intelligence, and God has told him to choose. It is evident that God proposes to make all intelligence responsible to himself, because he is the great first cause of all things, and the supreme being over all things, the only perfect intelligence.

Now commencing with God, by the word, it is easy to trace down through Christ, Angels, "Spirits of just men made perfect," good men, medium, bad, mean, angels to the devil and devil of devils. A harmony with all nature of the fact of gradations or degrees of quality, standing, and influence, or power, according to knowledge. Hence comes the thought that necessarily from this situation arises all grades and shades of inspiration, from God down to the lowest devil. God's Spirit is truth, because he is truth. God's Spirit is justice, because he is just. God's Spirit is mercy, because he is ever merciful. God's Spirit is light, because he is the light of lights. The devil is full of hatred; he is a liar and a murderer, and hence his spirit partakes of those abominations, for it comes from him, and it actuates those who do those things. It darkens the mind and drags the soul down to hell. I pity the soul that gets under that influence be he who or what he may.

With the illustration above of the gradation of intelligence, and influences, is it anything mysterious that false spirits are abroad? To me it is not, because of false hearts, false pride and evil desires. As witnessed in the case of Ahab, king of Israel. He refused to accept the warning by the mouth of God's servant, so a "lying spirit" was permitted to deceive him. A similar condition is shadowed forth in 2d Thess. 2d chapter: "God would send [or permit to come] strong delusions" to those who receive not the love of the truth." If we will live humble and prayerful and watchful, God will work with us each to his glory, and we will get a good reward. The force of 1st John 2:27, steps in to those who stand as did those John was writing to, "Ye need not that any man teach you; but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth and is no lie," etc., implies that we should learn of him; abide in him who sends it, for while our traditions are brought with us into the Church, I apprehend that the traditions of those former saints were brought into the Church and they sought to fasten them in the faith (as circumcision for instance) and I for one, do not want parts or particles of the old Jewish "leaven" mixed with the "leaven" of gospel truth as delivered by Christ. And I feel to refuse that anything not taught or enjoined by him is to be dovetailed into my faith, or "the faith;" for man spoke and still speaks, by permission, and some times when they thought they had the Spirit, too much for me to permit them to write my faith for me. A unanimity exists between us on "The Epitome of Faith and Doctrine." Ought we not to cut loose from any thing else, or every thing else as being essential? My experience teaches me that God never imposes on or drives man; he is left free to choose, with the injunction to "try the spirits." Are we not living in an exceedingly progressive age? Are not the various improvements in science and arts the outgrowth of the spirit of light? Is not the extent of this greater than at any period of the past in the world's history? Then should not the Church receive light and improve also, keeping pace with, if not leading the developments of science and arts. Does not the history of the past prove that as men have opened their hearts, so to speak, for the reception of light, or permitted improvements to continue, God has also worked with them, helping them to progress in religion? Or as they closed their eyes against it or were forced to do so by priestly domination, when they ruled both Church and State as in the earliest history of Egypt; the people became darkened in religion, and an increase of "idols"—"other Gods" was the result; evidently because they refused to improve farther than a certain line, either in science and arts, or in religion. Hence the inspiration of that age was darkness compared with the glorious light of Christ, which burst forth in all its glory possible for that age, more especially so because he was the divine Son of God. In the present century and within the last six decades marvelous light has sprung up as compared with the "darkness that covered the earth and gross darkness the people," for a number of centuries preceding it. The world greatly needed it; but shall we stop here? We may well expect that the traditions of our fathers, and specimens of Judaism will be found here and there exhibiting themselves, for those "fathers" were human and liable to err. It is but natural that errors should be found in church lore. So if the spirit of truth, and progression is with the Reorganized Church she is inexcusable if she does not "reform," and turn solely and wholly to the "new covenant" and lop off those questions of strife, that are secondary in their nature, to say the most of them, if much truth is found in them at all; and build upon the rock, against which the gates of hell can not prevail. And so let every man take heed how he builds thereupon, whether it shall be "gold, silver, precious stones," or "wood, hay, and stubble." Let all be assured that "that day shall declare it, of what sort it is." And "though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you" etc., "let him be accursed." I confess I believe it, and for any one to attempt to harmonize all that is good, beautiful, and elevating, with that which is treacherous, avaricious and lustful, in short devilish in all its effects, is like mixing "light" with "the unfruitful works of darkness." "Woe to them that call evil good, and good evil." I aver that the conception of God begotten in the mind of man is weak at its highest attainments. We need not to make attempts to qualify our best ideas of his righteousness, for in its best state it is quite liable to be qualified too much by the evil "leaven" so inherent in man, that we have great need to watch lest we attribute to God that principle which is strictly human. I have read Prof. Buck on inspiration and rather like many of the ideas therein expressed. 1st. "An inspiration of superintendency, in which God influences and directs the mind of a person." 2d. "Plenary superintendent inspiration, which excludes any mixture of error at all from the performance so superintended." (Is not this latter class exceedingly rare?) 3d. "Inspiration of elevation, where the faculties act in a regular or common manner yet raised to an extraordinary degree." 4th. "Inspiration of suggestion; faculties superceded and God speaks direct to the mind, making such discoveries as it could not otherwise have obtained." "That spirit that enticeth to do good is of God and that which enticeth to do evil is of the devil," is a splendid test on most things. By loving truth and right, and watching unto prayer we may succeed.

For truth I am,

A STUDENT.

PRAY FOR FORGIVENESS.

PENITENT sinners to pray for the forgiveness of their sins. This is a doctrine advocated by most of the popular churches, and if there is any scriptures to substantiate the same, then it is all right; and if there is not, then it must be a false doctrine. I have examined the New Testament Scriptures with all possible care on this popular point of doctrine, and I have found plain and positive Scriptures where one person was to pray for his sins. That where Simon, after he had been baptized, seeing that by the laying on of hands they received the Holy Ghost, wanted to give them money, that he might have the power; and Peter told him to repent and pray God to forgive him. (Acts 8:22). I am bold to say there is not one syllable of Scripture inside of the lids of the New Testament to prove that either Christ, or any of his Apostles, at any time commanded any unbaptized person to pray to God for the forgiveness of their sins. It is always a good sign to hear penitent sinners pray; but to command sinners to pray to God for the forgiveness of their sins before they are baptized, is a doctrine which is designed to make Christ's conditions of salvation of none effect. When Annanias was sent to Saul, who had been fasting and praying for three days and three nights, he did not say: "Pray on Brother Saul, and thy sins shall be forgiven thee." But he commanded him at once to be baptized and to wash away his sins. I think that if some of our modern preachers had been sent to Saul instead of Annanias, they would have told Saul to "Pray on, Brother." And whereas Christ said, "My yoke is easy and my burden is light," they would have laid a heavy yoke upon him. They would have kept him lamenting and praying a month or more, until he would have been wearied out, and would have yielded to a spirit of delusion. Woe to such preachers of unrighteousness, for by their subverting of the Scriptures, they have stolen away the key of knowledge; they have shut up the Kingdom of Heaven against men, and they enter not in themselves; for by their traditions they have made the commandments of God of none effect. And as the Lord said unto the Jews, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men."

T. H. MOORE.

"GOD IS LOVE."

THE inspiration contained in the above simple expression has been the foundation of many an eloquent, soul-stirring sermon, and has given both gist and attraction to prose and poem, until it would seem almost superfluous to make an attempt to add to what hath been said and written. However, as we are to "speak thou the things which become sound doctrine," producing by the love of God in us the desired condition, that we may obtain in the full fruition of the gospel, that peace and satisfaction, "that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of truth." The essential means by which this grand and ever to be desired result is attainable, was granted in the beauty of holiness, as breathed on the mount of trial, by the "Consolation of Israel." "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." But it seems so easy to be wayward, careless, and neglectful of the plain duty of saintship, that often it becomes a necessity as a watchman upon the walls of Zion to seek to say unto some, Oh that I could "stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance," that you may escape the remorse of having it truthfully said: "The dog is turned to his own vomit again, and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire," knowing that the Father in great mercy and kindness has assured us that "As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked;" and as once said when the souls of men were tried, "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," so it would seem to be in the gospel economy. "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord;" and this is supplemented with, "For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end." Considering the bond of union made in Christ, that we are before God answerable on our part, and therefore with reason or equity, can not complain that the immutable fiat of Jehovah should be meted out in the most positive and impartial manner, "for it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heav-

only gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance, seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame." May the burden of our prayer and song be, "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." And notwithstanding the fog of ignorance that beclouds the perception and dims the horoscope of our future, still planted in the recess of our heart, faith and trusting confidence in the cheering statement, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is, and every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." And in the eternal fitness of things, another cheering promise is vouchsafed unto the toiling and faithful sons of God. "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." And when this shall be accomplished, the long cherished condition of all things common will be fully realized, I hope, to the extent that many now theorize, for to all those who prove true and faithful and overcome, shall "be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints."

Shall we fail to confess that "God is Love," with such a grand future before us, and promised aid at every step, with a security of, "But he shall receive a hundred fold now in this time, . . . and in the world to come eternal life." No earthly investment can promise a better dividend. Who can forbear to rejoice at the music of heaven, as sang by the angels: "Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people." And the Apostle who was taught by revelation, testified "there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." And the meek John comforts with "for God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son." And here our work is to view, for "in the ages to come he will show the exceeding riches of his grace." Thus the manner and reward of the conflict with sin, taught to us so plain, that it would seem to be enough to prompt all to the work of scattering seeds of kindness along the uneven and thorny path of life. Perhaps the poet had a degree of the fire of this inspiration when he wrote the following beautiful and touching lines:

THE MINISTER'S DAUGHTER.

JOHN G. WHITTIER.

In the Minister's morning sermon,
He told of the primal fall,
And how henceforth the wrath of God
Rested on each and all.

And how of his will and pleasure,
All souls, save a chosen few,
Were doomed to eternal torture,
And held in the way thereto.

Yet never by Faith's unreason,
A saintlier soul was tried,
And never the harsh old lesson,
A tenderer heart belied.

And after the painful service,
On that pleasant, bright first day,
He walked with his little daughter
Thro' the apple bloom of May.

Sweet in the fresh green meadow,
Sparrow and blackbird sung;
The blossoming orchard hung.

Around in the wonderful glory,
The minister looked and smiled;
"How good is the Lord who gives us
These gifts from his hand, my child.

"Behold in the bloom of apples,
And the violets in the sward,
A hint of the old lost beauty
Of the Garden of the Lord."

Then upspoke the little maiden,
Treading on snow and pink,
"Oh father! these pretty blossoms
Are very wicked I think.

"Had there been no Garden of Eden,
There had never been a fall,
And if never a tree had blossomed,
God would have loved us all."

"Hush, child!" the father answered,
By His decree man fell;
His ways are in clouds and darkness,
But he doeth all things well.

"And whether by his ordaining
To us cometh good or ill,
Joy or pain, or light or shadow,
We must fear and love him still."

"Oh I fear him!" said the daughter,
"And I try to love him too;
But I wish he was kind and gentle,
Kind and loving as you."

The minister groaned in spirit,
As the tremulous lips of pain,
And wide, wet eyes uplifted,
Questioned his own in vain.

Bowing his head, he pondered
The words of his little one;
Had he erred in his life-long teachings,
Had he wrong to his Master done?

To what grim and dreadful idol
Had he lent the holiest name?
Did his own heart, loving and human,
The God of his worship shame?

And lo! from the bloom and greenness,
From the tender skies above,
And the face of his little daughter,
He read a lesson of love.

No more as the cloudy terror
Of Sinai's mount of law,
But as Christ in the Syrian lilies
The vision of God he saw.

And as when, in the clefts of Horeb,
Of old was his presence known,
The dread, ineffable glory
Was infinite goodness alone.

Thereafter his hearers noted
In his prayers a tenderer strain,
And never the message of hatred
Burned in his lips again.

And the scoffing tongue was prayerful,
And the blinded eyes found sight,
And hearts, as flint aforesime,
Grew soft in his warmth and light.

As a minister for Christ I desire to prove worthy of the guidance of the "Giver of every good and perfect gift," that by reason of the hope established in my soul, I may abide till the Master shall say, It is enough, rest from your labors, and I will give you a crown of eternal life, that fadeth not away. Even so, amen.

SKETCHES OF CONFERENCE SERMONS.

[Reported by Charles Derry.]

PRES. JOSEPH SMITH.

Romans 10:9. From the circumstances of our gathering here it is natural to expect that what will be said will be definitive of our faith. The proposition that has been announced from the different pulpits in the land is "That a man shall be judged from his character, and not by his belief." But there must be some standard to form that character. God endowed man with reason hence it follows that we must examine all things presented to us and try them by the standard erected within us; and when we find them not in harmony with that standard we may throw them aside. We accept this truth in all temporal things, but reject it in spiritual. The idea that "It does not matter what creed we may have" is false. That creed will form a man's character is certain. I illustrate: Suppose I come here to look out a building site. I next look out for a builder. I inquire of him if he has the qualifications of an architect to understand all pertaining to that science. If he does not I do not employ him. The architect is the result of his architectural creed. I am astonished that men admit this truth in all temporal things, and yet say "It does not matter what religious creed he has." If creed is not important how is it that every preacher is teaching some particular creed? Paul says, "If a man confess with his mouth the Lord Jesus and shalt believe in his heart that God hath raised him from the dead he shall be saved." Very few men would believe that a man can be totally depraved in a moment. How then can he be made pure in a moment? "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness." The man of large brain without his heart in his work can not do what the man of smaller brain, who throws his heart into the work, can." "Give thy heart unto God," means giving all our life forces to him. He that liveth unto God lives to the benefit of his fellow men, but he does not become a perfect man all at once; he grows up to that condition. The wise man says, "As a man thinketh so is he." What is the life of a man whose thoughts are bad? It must be bad. If we are to give account there must be some means placed in our grasp by which we can govern our lives; and it must be essential that we do govern ourselves by that standard. In the revelations of Christ we can find that by which we can be educated. John saw a time when the dead, small and great, must be judged. If a man's deeds are bad, his life is bad, and if his creed is bad his life can not be otherwise. Christ said "I am the way," hence we must walk in that way. Christ also said, "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit he can not enter into the kingdom of God." Can a man enter the kingdom if he does not behold it? If there is no power to see visions there is no power to see the way in which we should walk. If a man can not see the truth he is spiritually blind. "The blind will fall into the ditch." He thinks that I am in error. There is but one bar before which this question of difference can be settled, the bar of Christ. We are not judges. If we can be given a character that shall be in harmony with the courts of heaven, we shall have accomplished the object of our lives. How can we acquire this character unless we are governed by the teachings of Christ?

ELD. JOHN H. LAKE spoke upon the promised inheritance of the Saints. God gave man dominion in the beginning, over the earth and all things therein. We are informed there was an opposite power who led man astray. In consequence of their yielding to this evil power they lost their inheritance. The apostle gives the key to this in these words: "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness. Christ was promised as the seed of the woman, to deliver man from this thralldom of sin. The ancients looked forward to his coming, They were inspired with the glorious hope of redemption. Paul speaks of the faith of ancient worthies, and of their endurance; how they wandered in goat skins, and sheep skins, being destitute of any inheritance, yet filled with the hope of an enduring home. But here comes the Second Adam to redeem man, and to wrest the power from the adversary, and thus to reinstate all who shall accept of Him in all the rights and privileges given in the morning of creation. God sent John the Baptist to prepare the way before Him. The Jews said He was a devil. Then Christ came, and they said he was a wine-bibber, etc.; and they cried out, "Away with him; crucify him." The people slew the Apostles; they said these meek men shall have no inheritance here. That has been the spirit of the world all through; yet Christ has said: "The meek shall inherit the earth." We believe this promise will be fulfilled. The devil may say: "I will reign in the sides of the North;" but God will bring him down to the pit, and will accomplish his own eternal purposes. When the latter day work commenced, the world said: "They shall not live here;" "If the law can not reach them, powder and ball shall." And so, as in ancient times, they drove the Saints from place to place, thinking to uproot the truth which had been planted, but God tells his people what to do. He told them to seek for redress according to the laws of the land; to lay their case before the Judges and the rulers; and if these would not redress their wrongs, He would come out of his hiding place and vex the nation with a sore vexation. When the Chief Magistrate was appealed unto, he said: "Your cause is just, but I can do nothing for you." Jesus said, "If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight" for me. I thank God our weapons are not carnal,—the word of God is our sword. When the Prince of Peace and the Prince of this world stood face to face with each other, Jesus said, "It is written." Thus he was content to oppose truth to error. Again, Jesus says, "If ye were of the world the world would love you, but now it hateth you, because it hateth me." If they did not love the Master, will they love the servant? The world applauds the ability and generosity of its own servants; but they did not admire Jesus, or his servants; yet how he loved the world, when he meekly endured its scorn and submitted even to the death of the cross at their hands. My mind is too finite to comprehend the love of Jesus; but there are times when I could kiss the earth in adoration of Him. His glorious character is one of the grandest evidences of the truth of his doctrine. We come to you to day filled with that spirit of peace which characterized him. Are we coming here and telling you we will take this place with the sword? No! We come singing, "Give us room that we may dwell." We do not ask you to receive doctrines that will mar society. No! We present the gospel that brings the fruits of righteousness. As for the doctrines of the Salt Land, we have done more to expose those errors than any other people, and we expect to continue. Jesus made the promise of inheritance to the pure in heart—"the meek of the earth." Job said, "O that my words were written." He hoped to stand on the earth, even though skin worms destroyed that body. This brings in the resurrection. Man shall live again, but he shall be brought forth "In his own order." Christ has conquered death; death has no sting for the righteous. He did not take this power of redemption upon himself, it was given to him of the Father. "Life and immortality are brought to light in the gospel." Its cardinal principles are "faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment." Which of these is non-essential? God has inspired men with a desire to spread the word to every home in every land, that you may have his testimony on these matters. The religious world do not believe in the resurrection of to-day. Have you not been taught that if you died in sin you would go to hell and there remain forever and ever? If this be true, can there be a resurrection? Says one, We are to have a spiritual resurrection. What kind of resurrection will that be without the body? Paul says, "There is a spiritual body, and there is a natural body." There is as much difference between a disembodied spirit and a spiritual body as there is between a steamboat and a boat made of steam. Jesus arose with the same body as that in which he was crucified, and we are told, "Our vile bodies shall be made like unto his glorious body." We do not build on any other foundation than that on which Christ built. If you want to stay out of the old house all right. One asks, Can the body be raised from the dead that has been devoured? I answer, He is able that hath promised. Can you tell me how the grain grows, and the trees renew their foliage? Jesus says, "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live." After his resurrection he appeared to his disciples. They supposed they saw a spirit, but he told them "A spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." Even doubting Thomas became a witness of his resurrection. "If any man will do the will of my Father he shall know of the doctrine." John says, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be, for when he shall appear we shall be like him." If Christ had not a spiritual body what shall the Saints have? Isaiah says, "Thy dead men shall live." There are three resurrections spoken of. One at the resurrection of Christ, when many of the saints that slept arose. Then Paul speaks of the resurrection of "those who are Christ's at his coming." And John the Revelator declares that "the rest of the dead live not again till the thousand years are finished." The Saints will have mater ial bodies, but not gross mortal bodies. But until earth has filled the measure of its creation in its present state, the meek can not inherit it; but the promise is sure for the redeemed sang, "We shall reign on the earth." Daniel said the greatness of the kingdom under whole heaven should be given to the Saints of the Most High.

WILLIAM B. SMITH.

EXPERIENCE AND TESTIMONY.

I will give you my experience in connection with the latter-day-work, and tell you how I became a Latter Day Saint. I was the youngest son of my father's family. About four years after my father removed with his family from Vermont to New York, my brother Joseph became concerned on the subject of religion. My mother and brother Hyrum and a sister were members of the Presbyterian Church. We knew that Joseph's mind was engrossed on religious subjects for some time, and we compared his condition to one who felt himself a stranger in a strange land, a desert land, without any one to guide him, or to afford him the needed relief. Yet seeming to know there must be some circumstances to arise that would afford succor, and desiring to know where to find help. This was Joseph's condition. The idea was then, as it is now, that there was another world where the soul must live forever, and some means in existence whereby man might be prepared for it. "Was there a revealed plan by which man could find out that way?" My brother told me there was a lack of wisdom; he did not know which way to go. He retired to the woods to ask the Lord for guidance. While praying he saw a bright light, like the brightness of the sun. In that light he saw a personage; and that being pointed him out as the messenger to go forth and declare his truth to the world; for "They had all gone astray;" "Every man was going his own way." If we understand the order of God we learn that he is a God of order and hence could not be the author of all this confusion. After he had received this vision, he called his father's family together and told them what he had seen. If a youth, not more than seventeen, could concoct the message that he brought forth and then delivered to his family, it is strange indeed. He told of the "golden plates" which contained the history of the ancient inhabitants of this continent. That in that record would be found the true gospel, and the true order of Christ's Church; for there was no church on earth that would answer the description of the ancient church. Here is where the germ of Mormonism began; and Mormonism does not mean "mormo, bugbear," etc., as its enemies declare. It signifies "more good." Here began my experience. I believed the testimony of my brother; my father and mother believed it. We received it with glad hearts. I always believed he was a servant of God, ever since I heard his statement. It never entered my heart that there was any deception in it. All the contumely that the world can heap upon me can not make me disbelieve it. Now as to my duty when it was preached. The first principle was faith. Was that good gospel? It was written in that very book. After believing I began to repent and thus the Spirit of God began to will and to work in me to fit me for the home of my heavenly Father. The third principle was baptism for remission of sins. I was baptized by Oliver Cowdery in Seneca Lake, New York. I was buried all over in the water, then I was born of the water. I felt as if a load fell off my shoulders. When they laid hands upon me to confirm me, it seemed as though the light of glory rested upon me and on those present, and I received the testimony of the Holy Ghost bearing witness to the truth. The Church was organized on the Sixth of April. New conversions were had. Various Elders were soon sent out. Parley Pratt and Oliver Cowdery came here, among the Disciples. Sidney Rigdon was at that time a preacher in the Disciple Church; he was a fluent speaker, and to him these men introduced the work and the Book of Mormon. It is said Rigdon got up that book. It was published before ever Rigdon saw it. It is said that one Solomon Spaulding wrote it. If there had been any truth in the "Spaulding story" I should have known it. When God commences a work then comes something new. Hence the Melchisedeck Priesthood was restored. You ask, Is there any authority in the Scriptures for this priesthood. Paul speaks of the Melchisedeck Priesthood. It was taken away because of the transgression of Israel; but the Aaronic Priesthood remained. God told Joseph to build a Temple, but how could he do it without money? Well they preached the gospel; they did not "walk on the water," as their enemies claim; they laid the corner stone. Here was a man who would give a day's work. There was a sister who would knit a pair of stockings, and give them to the man who worked on the Temple. They were few and poor. They were promised an endowment of the power of God. I will tell you what a proper endowment consists of. The Brig-

hamites in Nauvoo went through six or seven different times before they got out of the last one, and then whatever they did they claimed they could not sin. Theirs was a regular humbug endowment. I am glad to be with a people who do not believe in polygamy. It was not taught in the early days of the Church. When Jesus was on the earth "He had no where to lay his head," but now there is a temple, and if Jesus does not want to lay his head there he can visit it, and bless his people there. In the upper story there was the "washing of feet." They girded themselves and washed each other's feet in love. There was the washing of the body also and the anointing with oil to represent that the servants had been set apart to the service of God. The endowment was not signs, grips, and pass words, and covenants. The only covenant was that of the gospel. Under that endowment they spake in tongues and prophesied. They saw manifestations such as man seldom gazes on. The spirit of God rested on them.

"MEN'S HEARTS FAILING THEM FOR FEAR."—Luke 21.

CYCLONES seem to be the order of the day, and are limited to no particular locality. No one is sure that his place or home is secure from the ravages of tornado, cyclone, or something causing destruction of life and property, from one day to another; and it is really a matter of uneasiness, in the minds of a great portion of the people hereabouts, and no doubt elsewhere. Some account for them in one way, some in another, but no two agree. They agree in one thing I find, and that is in hoping that their particular locality may be exempt. Well it is natural they should; but not one in a thousand ever thinks for one moment of the words of Jesus as stated above in Luke 21; but at the same time are unconsciously fulfilling the prediction. These are imbued with the doctrine of predestination who claim God as the author of these terrible, death-dealing cyclones. Others say they are caused by a too heavy charge, or two heavy charges of electricity coming together, the result of which is hurricanes and cyclones. And taking it all in all, the opinions are as varied as can possibly be. Your humble servant has an opinion as well as others, and he thinks that it would be well, as no one seems to take issue with the elements through the columns of the Herald and tell us why and wherefore these things come, for him to do so. His opinion is this; that Satan is at the bottom of all of it, being the prince and power of the air. Now, if God is love, which I heartily believe, he can not be the author of so much misery and death to so many people, including the little prattlers, that have and must suffer death in the many cyclones already accounted for in our dailies. He is so kind as to send rain and sunshine on saint and sinner, the ground of a wicked man yields as abundantly as of the church member. For any one to cast such a reflection on the goodness of God, is to me a sin. I am then well satisfied that Satan is, and that until God puts a veto upon his destructive power he will do the same and more; from the fact that he knows his time is limited:

"Tis the strength of his despairing."

The question was broached not long since by a gentleman of Calvinistic views, as to what was the cause. I answered promptly, Satan. Several being present were amazed at my answer; but when I was through amazement was gone. Several things were produced at first against my views, and one particular scripture passage was that of Christ rebuking the wind and waves; arguing from that, that God was the author of all such. I replied, that being the case the Son was rebuking the very thing the Father had done, and of course was opposed to his Father, while the scriptures bear me out that the Father and Son worked harmoniously together, and that Christ came for the express purpose of destroying the works of the devil.

I believe that instances of God's direct vengeance are recorded in Holy writ; such for instance as the flood; and others we could enumerate, as Sodom and Gomorrah. The destruction of Jerusalem was God's work, or the means used were his devising; for Jesus predicted the downfall of that city and nation, the cause of which was the national depravity of the Jews. God was love, is love, will be to all eternity; and will not without warning destroy indiscriminately, men, women and children, as these awful cyclones are doing wherever they occur. Could Satan fasten this upon God, and have the masses believe it, what a dark picture he could and would paint of our God of love; thereby causing people to really hate instead of to love such a God. I can not for my life see where any one can for one moment attribute these sad occurrences to God. When the Pharisees found fault with Jesus for healing a certain woman, He told them that Satan had bound her these eighteen years. All the afflictions we read of in the Savior's life were works of the Devil. For he says as much, when he commands those evil spirits. And I certainly believe that while the Lord was sleeping in the after part of the storm-tossed vessel, Satan thought to destroy the vessel and all concerned. He knew that the Redeemer of men was there, and took this method of doing what he had failed in doing in so many ways before, of destroying God's dear Son. We hear a great deal said about God's providence; of his goodness and tender mercy: loving kindness, and of his other attributes, by some of the people that consider the great calamities by sea and land as the providence of God.

I ask now, and am prepared to ask everywhere in any place, what providence there is in the ship on fire, with hundreds of passengers on board frantic with fear? What providence in a railroad disaster with the destruction of life, to say nothing of property? What providence is there in a Hotel on fire with hundreds of guests rushing hither and thither trying to escape; and some in their extreme fear of fire jump from second and third stories to certain death? Providence! The providence of God is for good, and always was. But I am opposed to the theory of God being the author of all that is claimed he is by some. For instance, a man is killed in some way, no matter how; he is a member of some society; he may be a good man, as the world would say; next we hear of him is a resolution. that "whereas God in his providence has seen fit to take our beloved brother or friend, Mason, Odd Fellow, Good Templar, or what not; resolved that we sympathize, and so forth, with the relatives and friends." Did God plan the man's death by throwing the train off the track, or put a vicious nature in the horse to throw him and break his neck? No, no. It is time such things were taken as they are; give to every one his due; not excepting Satan. If, as I believe, he is the real main spring of all these sad affairs let him have what honor there is in them; but do not charge upon a God of love and truth, and every thing that is good, an indiscriminate slaughter of innocent people without a moment's notice. I am aware it is recorded that he, Christ, will come as a thief in the night. And "when they shall cry peace, peace, then sudden destruction cometh." But for all that, the warning has been sounding for generations; so that nothing happens as God's appointment without fair warning. Not so with the devil's work. It is darkness, deep and black; ruinous, not saving. And if Christ comes as a thief in the night, it will be because the world of mankind love darkness rather than light; and are neither looking nor caring for his coming. Noah warned the people in his day; but no heed was given to it; hence the calamity.

"Let us pray for one another,
For the day is fading fast,
And the night is growing darker,
While the scourge goes flaming past."

DIVORCE OF CHURCH AND STATE.

THAT the Established Church in England is being strongly attacked is shown by the great meetings of the Liberationists, held in London on the 3d May. Spurgeon wrote as follows:

"The longer I live the more I am convinced that liberation of religion from state patronage and control would be the end of innumerable evils and the commencement of a true and happier era. The monstrous misalliance engenders mischief in ten thousand little suspected ways—in religion, in politics, in social habits, and in the common conscience. If it did not exist no one would now propose it; or if he did, he would find himself proposing an impossibility. I am a liberationist because I am a Christian, and tremble to be a partaker in the crime of subjecting the Church of Christ to the rule of the state. The Lord God can maintain his own cause in the land without the aid from the gold, patronage and legislation of commons, lords or kings. Those who believe in their own religion know this. Those who do not, with ill grace, require those who do to maintain their worship."

John Bright, the principal speaker, said: "In 1683 there were in England 40,000 members of my sect in prison, and 400 of them died from that confinement up to 1686. Fifteen thousand Quaker families had been ruined in England through James II.'s persecution, and 5,000 Friends died in prison. These cruelties were practiced in the name of the Established Church. The Bishops of the Church of England, always an important body in the House of Lords, have seldom aided legislation in the interests of humanity. About 1780 the bill abolishing the death penalty for petit larceny was defeated in the House of Lords by a vote of 31 to 11, and six of the majority were Bishops and one an Arch-bishop. Up to the reign of George I. sixty-seven offenses were punishable with death in England. Bishops of the English Church, instead of endeavoring, like Christians, to lessen the number, did nothing to prevent its increase, and by the end of the reign of George III., 156 new offenses were added to the list punishable with death. During this time the Church of England had 15,000 to 20,000 ministers, and more than a score of Bishops in the House of Lords, none of whom raised a voice against the growing barbarity of the law. So it came that Voltaire said: 'The English were the only people who murdered by law.' During the agitation of the abolition of the slave trade, Lord Eldon, who was Lord Chancellor, was supported by the Bishops in the position he took, that he did not believe the slave trade was so hostile to the spirit of Christianity, or it would not have been so general as it was. There is no evidence in English history that the Established clergy have ever favored the great reforms which have illustrated our history for two hundred years. The blood of Englishmen has been poured out in unchristian wars so mercilessly that it has colored nearly every part of the globe, without any opposition from the Church of England.

The late Archbishop of Canterbury, instead of wielding his great influence to prevent the late Egyptian war—one of the most criminal in history—officially ordered a prayer of his own composition to be said in all the Established Churches for those Englishmen who fell for their country, although he had no prayers for those poor Egyptians who fell, numbering ten to one Englishman, in the really patriotic struggle to keep invaders out of their native land, who came to kill them for being unable to pay usury to English bondholders. The Church of England for 500 years has always upheld and prayed for the potentate, no matter what his policy, and the business of an Established Church seems to be principally that. The disestablishment of the church, if it did nothing else, would help the people by depriving the king of one of the chief instruments of wrong ambition. The pagan poet said: "Unhallowed is the voice of loud thanksgiving over slaughtered men." But a dignity of the Established Church orders his clergy to pray to the Supreme Ruler: "Teach us that thy hand did it; that thou didst give up our enemies to us." No wonder millions of Christians stay away from the Established Church. I tell you that the indestructible quality there is in the pure Christian faith is best proven by the fact that it should so long and so well survive this treason of those who pretend to maintain it. Disestablish the church and the state clergy would continue to have congregations. As it is now, the Established Church is dumb when the state wishes to do wrong, and is only heard when the state is willing to do some act of justice to the people. The Established Church must perish; then the true church would flourish, and millions of the people would return to its sheltering arms."

RUNNING IN DEBT.

I DWELL on this point, for I would deter others from entering that place of torment. Half the young men in this country, with many old enough to know better, would go into business—that is, into debt—tomorrow, if they could. Most poor men are so ignorant as to envy the merchant or manufacturer, whose life is an incessant struggle with pecuniary difficulties, who is driven to constant "shinning," and who, from month to month, barely evades the the insolvency which sooner or later overtakes most men in business; so that it has been computed that but one man in twenty of them achieve a pecuniary success. For my own part I would rather be a convict in the State Prison, a slave in a rice swamp, than to pass through life under the harrow of debt. Let no young man misjudge himself unfortunate, or truly poor, so long as he has the full use of his limbs and faculties, and is substantially free from debt. Hunger, cold, rags, hard work, contempt, suspicion, unjust reproach, are disagreeable, but debt is infinitely worse than them all. And if it had pleased God to spare either or all of my sons to be the support of my declining years, the lesson which I should most earnestly seek to impress upon them is, "never run in debt." Avoid pecuniary obligations as you would pestilence or famine. If you have but fifty cents and can get no more for a week, buy a peck of corn, parch it and live on it, rather than owe a dollar! Of course, I know that some men must do business that involves a risk, and must give notes or other obligations, and I do not consider him in debt who can lay his hands directly on the means of paying, at some little sacrifice, all he owes. I speak of real debt—that which involves risk or sacrifice on one side, obligation and dependence on the other—and I say from all such, let every youth humbly pray God to preserve him evermore.—Horace Greeley.

The Lord's term for the Millennium of peace can be found by reading the forty-third section of the Covenants and Commandments.

It takes four things to be a gentleman:—you must be a gentleman in your principles, a gentleman in your tastes, a gentleman in your manners, and a gentleman in your person.

SLEEP.

THERE are two kinds of sleep, the complete and the incomplete. Complete sleep is a temporary metaphysical death, though not an organic one. The heart and lungs perform their offices with their accustomed regularity. It is characterized by a torpor of the organs of the brain, of the external senses, and of voluntary motions. Incomplete sleep is the activity of one or more of the cerebrian organs, while the others are in repose; this occasions dreaming. Sleep is variously affected by health and disease. Man in time of health sleeps in tranquility. He arises in the morning refreshed and prepared to go forth to his daily labor. New strength is given him; languor has gone; and all the faculties, both mental and corporal, are recruited. But the sleep of disease is far different. It is short and unrefreshing; disturbed by fearful sights and frightful dreams. Stupor and sleep are different, though supposed by some to be synonymous. In both there is insensibility; but it is easy to awaken a person from sleep, while it is sometimes almost impossible to arouse one from stupor. It is frequently the case in sickness that the person lies for several days in stupor, totally insensible. Though sleep be natural and necessary to the languid, mental and corporal faculties, yet it is often brought on by external cause. Heat produces sleep. We witness it in Summer season; it is common to see the laborer devoting an hour in the heat of the day to sleep. A heated church is likely to bring on sleep. Variety, whether in sight or sound, prevents sleep, while monotony of all kinds is apt to produce it.

DIFFERENCES OF OPINION.

MEN do not all speak alike. Good men do not always agree as to what is right or expedient. There are a thousand things in regard to which they honestly differ in their opinions. It is proper that these differences should be understood.

Every man has the right to speak, and express his views of truth or of Christian expediency, in relation to any measure of interest proposed for the accomplishment of good. Men may with great propriety oppose each other in argument, earnestly contending for the truth, or for the best way of accomplishing desired ends. In no other way, perhaps, do we get so clear and at the same time comprehensive a view of a man's disposition and true character, as by reading his controversial writings, and especially if the controversy be such as to admit of or invite personalities.

In such a disputation man ordinarily exhibits his greatest and at the same time his weakest points. He acts when from the very nature of the case his intellect is aroused so as to exhibit ordinarily its full strength; while, again, the circumstances are such as to furnish occasion for the display of egotism, vanity, wounded pride, and all the less amiable traits of individual character, which at other times are concealed, or at least kept in the back ground. So it is that men, in some respects truly great, in cases such as we have supposed, show astonishing littleness by laying aside all dignity and indulging in mere slang.

It should never be forgotten that while thinking people may for the moment laugh at slang, especially if shrewdly dished out, still they never admire it, and can not approve it; while he who indulges in it, is in the estimation of this class of persons, always a loser.

Especially is it true, that the discussion of matters coming under the heading of "religious" should be conducted in such a spirit and in such a manner as is due to the truth for its own sake, and at the same time gives evidence that the testimony is from a faithful witness, himself under the influence of the truth, and moved by the love of the truth.

MARRIED.

CHRISTIANSON—GREEN.—At the residence of the bride's parents at Nortonville, Contra Costa county, California, May 1st, 1883, by Elder D. J. Phillips, Mr. Anthony D. Christianson, of Sacramento City, and Sister Eliza A. Green, of Nortonville, Contra Costa county, California. They will make Sacramento City their home.

DIED.

ERICKSON.—At Nebraska City, Nebraska, November 19th, 1881, after two weeks' illness of brain fever, Sister Henrietta L. Erickson, youngest daughter of Sister Elki Jasper, aged twelve years, was baptized by Elder Mark H. Forscutt, September 26th, 1880. She was a member of the Zion's Hope Sabbath School; unusually bright and intelligent for her age. There was a large assembly gathered at the funeral; among them the teacher and scholars of the Public School, who came in a body to pay their last farewell to their little school mate, and follow to her grave. It was a touching scene to see the Sabbath School and Public School scholars march by to look for the last time on her who but two weeks previously had been with them in full life and glee. Few eyes were dry, seeing those young, sober, crying faces, as they gazed upon her who lay beautiful and smiling, surrounded with flowers, in perfect peace, while mother, father, sisters and brothers, felt their loss of little Etta. Elder James Thomsen preached the funeral sermon, which was solemn, earnest and appropriate. The writer led the singing, selected from the "Pure Gold" song book, in which scholars and others joined to sing the sad theme. At the grave a beautiful hymn from the Saints' Harp was sung; the benediction was pronounced, and we left Etta to slumber in quietude, till the angel of the Lord shall blow his trump to call forth the sleeping dead; to bid his Saints to arise to life everlasting.

RIGGS.—At Lucas, Lucas county, Iowa, May 9th, 1883, of consumption, Sister Catharine Riggs after many years of suffering. She passed quietly to rest in the full faith of the gospel. Aged 40 years, 10 months and 6 days.

ACHEN.—At Atchison City, Kansas, Mrs. Anne Achen, formerly Oxendale, departed this life on May 28th, 1883. She was baptized into the Church in the year 1877, by Eld. David Williams. She has borne a faithful testimony of this work. Consumption had fastened upon her and she only lived a married life a few days over one year, and then departed in the 22d year of her age. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

NASH.—Sister Clarissa Nash died March 27th. She was born April 30th, 1801, in the county of Washington, town of Addison, Maine. When she was nineteen years of age, she united with the Methodist Church, of which she lived a faithful member fifty-four years. Having children belonging to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, while stopping with them she attended our meeting, she believed there was something more for her to do to obtain salvation in the Kingdom of God. She was baptized September 27th, 1874. She lived an humble Christian life, was very patient in her last sickness, but a great sufferer. Her talk was all about Jesus until she fell asleep, O, blessed sleep! She was the mother of seventeen children, of which eight are living. Funeral services by Elder J. D. Steele.

ARMSTRONG.—At Nebraska City, Nebraska, May 17th, 1883, to Bro. Joshua and Sister Janette Armstrong, a son; named Joseph Albert. Died on the 19th, only living about 36 hours, this is the sixth child, that these sorrowing parents have laid away, till the morn of the coming of the Lord, to claim his own. Funeral service from the house by Elder Robt. M. Elvin.

A NEW METHOD.

The new postal note will be ready in September next. It is to be bought like a postage stamp, and is made payable to bearer in any amount from 3 cents to $5. It will be almost the size of an ordinary greenback. The postmaster at the office issuing the note will punch the month and the year, the number of dollars and cents in their respective columns, thus preventing any alteration of the amount or date. The postal note will be good for only three months after date. This provision is to prevent its becoming a part of the currency.

In city life, where street attractions are so conspicuous, it is often difficult to restrain boys from wandering abroad at night, forming companionships and entering places of amusement not approved of by parents and guardians. No one who has had the training of boys can fail to see that often right here there come running into the main line the side tracks of prodigality and ruin.

To save the boys! All parents ought to feel this to be the greatest work of their lives. Money-making and money-keeping fall into utter insignificance in comparison. Your property may perish by flood or flame, but your boy's undying spirit lives forever. You may be robbed of your possessions by fraud and dishonesty, but the blessings of a dutiful and obedient boy stay with you. He is in training, to take your place in the church and society, when you are gone.

If you would be a welcome visitor, and be dismissed with a pressing invitation to come again, place yourself in a receptive mood; be for the time the attentive pupil, and not the teacher.

How bravely a man can walk the earth, bear the heaviest burdens, perform the severest duties, and look all men boldly in the face, if he only bears in his breast a clear conscience, void of offense toward God and man!

The shortest and surest way to live with honor in the world is to be in reality what we would appear to be; and, if we observe, we shall find that all human virtues increase and strengthen themselves by the practice and experience of them.

Great thoughts are always helpful. They give a noble tone to the spirit, exalt the mind and stimulate to worthy deeds. Those who cultivate such thoughts arrive at best experiences and achieve the happiest lives.

"DESERET NEWS" REVIEWED.

THE Deseret News, the newspaper of the Mormon Church in Utah, has at last departed from its makeshift policy of ignoring the Reorganization and its work as unworthy of time or talent to notice, and is out in a leader in their issue for May 11th, from which we make the following extracts; premising that we should give the article entire, but for its length. The caption of it is, "The Church and its counterfeit." The occasion of the article is the publication of "An Open Letter to Joseph Smith and others," of the Reorganization, written by L. O. Littlefield, and published in the Utah Journal, of Logan, Cache county, Utah, and reproduced in the News.

* * * "The 'Josephite' movement is called the 'Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.' Its very name pre-supposes, what its members claim, that the original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was disorganized. When did the event take place? We know nothing of any such occurrence. The expulsion of the Saints from Nauvoo did not disorganize the Church or affect its constitution in the slightest degree. * * * When the body of the Church moved from Nauvoo, it simply changed its location, as it had done before, the Church remained intact with its organization unimpaired. The authorities which managed its affairs, and every essential to its perpetuation, continued in it and directed and animated it. The priesthood in all its quorums and councils—excepting for a little season that of the First Presidency—officiated in the various callings and duties pertaining thereunto. * * * 'The mountain of the Lord's house' was established 'in the tops of the mountains' and to it came people from all nations that they might 'learn of His ways and walk in His paths,' and here they were free to carry out the work revealed to the Prophet Joseph, and built upon the foundation which he laid. * * * The 'Josephites' quote the word of the Lord in commanding the building of the Temple at Nauvoo: 'And if you do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a Church with your dead, saith the Lord your God.' And against all the certain signs and proofs to the contrary, gratuitously assert that the Lord did reject the the Church and its dead. But the Temple, on the neglect to build which this provisional curse was predicated, was erected by the "Saints, and the ordinances revealed for the living and the dead were administered therein, as a cloud of witnesses can testify.

"Verily, verily I say unto you, That when I give a commandment to any of the sons of men, to do a work in my name, and those sons of men go with all their might, and with all they have, to perform that work, and cease not their diligence, and their enemies come upon them, and hinder them from performing that work; behold, it behooveth me to require that work no more at the hands of those sons of men, but to accept of their offerings."—Doc. and Cov. sec. cxxiv, v. 49.

"This is good common sense, sound justice and the word of the Lord. It applies to the case of the Temples which should have been built at Far West and Independence, in Missouri, and to every other work which the Lord has required or may require of 'any of the sons of men.' The object of the Temple is shown in the revelation. That object was measurably accomplished. 'The anointings and washings, and baptism for the dead, and the solemn assemblies,' were all attended to in that holy house, many of which, if not all, are now repudiated and scoffed at by the persons pretending to have reorganized the Church, and who have done nothing towards even attempting to carry out the principles and purposes of the revelation from which they make the solitary quotation that we have here explained.

"That the Lord did not reject the Church nor its dead is evident to those who have eyes to see, for the blessings, and endowments, and sacred ordinances for both the living and the dead have been continued in the Church, and have been and are now administered in the holy places which the Lord has permitted his people to build in these Stakes of Zion, the keys and authority to attend to which have remained with the Priesthood that administer here, and with them alone! Here is the solid substance of that power and authority; and the pretended reorganization of something that was never disorganized, has but 'the shadow of a shade.'

"The Lord, from the beginning of the Church, gave the most solemn and certain assurances to His servants and Saints that the power of this Priesthood was revealed 'in the last days and for the last time,' that this kingdom should 'not be prevailed against, but should prevail,' that it should 'not be left to another people;' that the keys thereof were not only given to the Presidency but to the Twelve, in connection with the Priesthood from the beginning, being sent down from heaven' unto them 'last of all.' It was 'never to be taken again from the earth until the sons of Levi do offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness.' 'Fear not little flock,' said the Lord, 'the kingdom is yours until I come.' The whole tenor of the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants is to the same effect as these quotations. It was understood from the first that transgressors should be dealt with from the greatest unto the least, but the Church and Kingdom of God set up on the earth should remain, 'no more to be thrown down for ever.'

"Neither did the death of the Prophet Joseph affect the organization of the Church. It would be a poor system that depended upon the life of one man, or two or three men. Even the death of the Savior, the head of the primitive Christian Church did not affect the organization thereof; it continued and grew and increased as has the latter day church under similar circumstances, and like the tree springing from the grain of mustard seed, flourished and spread forth when watered by the blood of martyrdom.

"The Quorum of the First Presidency was dissolved by the death of Joseph and Hyrum, but the Quorum of the Twelve, with its President designated by revelation, was in full force, and according to the order of the Priesthood 'was equal in authority' to the First Presidency, and expressly endowed with power to 'build up the Church and regulate all the affairs of the same in all nations,' (Doc. and Cov. sec. cvii). When the First Presidency is in active existence the Twelve with all other quorums and councils are under its direction. But when the first quorum is dissolved the next succeeds, because the Church was organized for perpetuity and the order of the Priesthood is arranged with that grand object in view.

* * * "After the Twelve, as the the Presiding High Council according to the revelation, had been in charge of the Church for some time, finishing the Temple, officiating therein and regulating the work of God in all nations, the First Presidency was reorganized according to the plan and pattern designated. The same course was repeated after the death of President Young.

* * * "If the son of the martyr had proven himself worthy by following in the footsteps of his father, had 'come in the gate,' and had been called and ordained in the way appointed to the fullness of the Priesthood held by the Prophet, it would not even then follow as a necessary consequence that he would be called to preside over the Church. Heirship relates to Priesthood, but does not involve presidency. Priesthood and presidency are two different things. No one can preside in or over this Church without a Priesthood, but many may have the Priesthood without presidency. What might have been, if the son of the Prophet had taken the only legitimate course to obtain the keys and powers of the Holy Melchisedek Priesthood is not for us to say. But the facts are that he holds neither Priesthood nor presidency to-day. If he had any understanding of the doctrines of the Priesthood as received and taught by his father, he would perceive the fallacy of his claims, the utter lack of authority in the organization which he was appointed to lead by presumptuous men who thought the prestige of his name would suit their purpose, and the wide dissimilarity of the cause he represents to the grand and glorious work introduced by Joseph the prophet, continued by President Young and now expanding while consolidating under the leadership of President Taylor, whose blood mingled with that of the martyrs in the tragedy at Carthage, * * * "Take away the two theories which we have here exploded, and the whole 'Josephite' movement sinks out of sight as a claimant to the title of 'The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.' It may exist for a while as one of the many sects and component parts of 'Mystery Babylon,' but has no connection with the Church established under Divine commandment, inspiration and revelation by Joseph the great Prophet of the nineteenth century. It may adopt many of its tenets, imitate its ordinances, claim to act under the title of its Priesthood. But it will be in fact but a sect, its administration will be void in heaven, and its pretended authority will be only in name, like that assumed by the priests of the day on the credentials given by Jesus to the eleven Apostles. Impostors are to abound in these last days, deceiving if it were possible 'even the very elect.' Let all people be warned against their influence and pretensions."

In the foregoing extracts, we have given the pith of the leaders referred to, and will see what they may be like viewed from our side of the controversy,—and we specially invite the attention of the News to our criticism.

The real point of this volunteered defense against the Reorganized Church is found in the opening language of the leader, referring to Elder Littlefield's letter, thus:

"We recommend it for perusal to all persons who are interested in the question of the origin, in this Church, of the doctrine of celestial marriage."

This marriage question is the one main issue suggested by this premise; and it is not altogether improbable that were opposition to this item of Utah faith, and some things necessarily attaching to it, removed from the creed of the Reorganization, we might possibly be tolerated. But as it is, our persistent opposition is like an "old man of the sea" to them. Why should they complain of this. Twenty-three years ago we gave notice of our intention and purpose; and have always borne it in mind.

Joseph Smith, the Seer, whom these Utah people profess so much to revere, and whose words when possibly favorable to them they so delight to quote, wrote once as follows:

"There are many called, but few chosen; and why are they not chosen? Because their hearts are set upon the things of the world and are aspiring to the honors of men; they do not learn the lesson that the rights of the priesthood are inseparably connected with the powers of heaven; and that the powers of heaven can not be controlled nor handled, only upon the principles of righteousness. That they may be conferred upon us it is true, but when we undertake to cover our sins, to gratify our pride, vain ambition, or to exercise dominion or compulsion over the souls of the children of men in any degree of unrighteousness; behold the heavens withdraw themselves, the Spirit of the Lord is grieved, then amen to the priesthood, or to the authority of that man. Behold, ere he is aware, he is left to kick against the pricks; to persecute the Saints, and to fight against God."

"We further caution our brethren against the impropriety of the organization of bands or companies, by covenants, oaths, penalties, or secesses, * * * and let our covenants be that of the everlasting covenant, as it is contained in the holy writ, and the things which God has revealed to us; pure friendship always becomes weakened the very moment you undertake to make it stronger by penal oaths and secrecy."

When the question is asked: When was the Church disorganized? We answer: Whenever that which was contrary and adverse to the revealed word and rules given to the church at its origin was introduced into its formulated creed, or its well understood faith, the elements of disorganization came in with it.

This was well understood by those men who constituted the Twelve in the days of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. In the Times and Seasons for December 15th, 1841, will be found an Epistle signed by Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Orson Pratt, William Smith, Lyman Wight, Wilford Woodruff, John Taylor, George A. Smith and Willard Richards. In this Epistle, occurs the following:

"The building of the Temple of the Lord, in the city of Nauvoo, is occupying the first place in the exertions and prayers of many of the Saints at the present time, knowing as they do, that if this building is not completed speedily, 'we shall be rejected as a Church with our dead,' for the Lord our God hath spoken it."

This is at the beginning of the Epistle, and is the premise upon which the rest of the article is based. The words "we shall be rejected as a church with our dead," are italicized in the printed article, as above showing that special attention was called to them. It closes in these words:

"The Elders everywhere, will instruct the brethren, both in public and private, in the principles and doctrine set forth in this Epistle, so that every individual of the Church may have a perfect understanding of his duty and privilege."

Joseph Smith writing September 6th,

1842, closes a letter to the Church thus:

"Let us, therefore, as a Church and a people, and as Latter Day Saints, offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness; and let us present in his holy Temple when it is finished, a book containing the records of our dead, which shall be worthy of all acceptance."

Joseph Smith was Editor of the Times and Seasons at the time, and in the same number in which the letter above referred to is found, there is an editorial under the caption of "The Temple," in which occurs the following:

"The word of the Lord is, Build my house; and until that command is fulfilled, we stand responsible to the great Jehovah for the fulfillment of it; and if not done in due time, we may have to share the same fate that we have heretofore done in Missouri."

We give these extracts to show that the idea of a rejection of the church did not originate with the Reorganized Church, nor with those whom the Deseret News chooses to class as apostates. Such a contingency was known to be in the near future when the things quoted were written; and the apprehension of such a rejection was appreciated by the then Twelve.

At the trial of Elder S. Rigdon, Nauvoo, September 8th, 1844, Parley P. Pratt, then of the Twelve, said:

"The great God said through Joseph—Build this Temple; I give you a sufficient time to build it, and if you do not build it by the appointed time, you shall be rejected as a people with your dead."

The prominent theory advanced by the Quorum of the Twelve at the death of Joseph and Hyrum respecting the succession was that the places occupied by those two men would not again be filled; but that the authority and responsibility to carry on the work rested with the Twelve, as a quorum. To this claim perhaps no reasonable objection was at that time urged. The argument upon the part of the Twelve seemed to be good; and there are strong reasons for believing that had the Twelve remained true to the principles of the faith as established by Joseph Smith, acting in their calling, there would have been no reason for so dread a separation as has taken place. The body of the people seemed to comprehend this when on the 8th of August, 1844, the matter was put before them in this form, "All in favor of supporting the Twelve in their calling, signify it by the uplifted hand;" and all voted to so sustain.

Positive and strong declarations were frequently made, as the public prints of the church show, that the Twelve as a quorum would lead the church; one of which may be found in an Epistle signed by Brigham Young, as the president of the quorum, dated August 15th, 1844, and is as follows:

"Let no man presume for a moment that his (Joseph's) place will be filled by another; for, remember he stands in his own place, and always will; and the Twelve Apostles of this dispensation stand in their own place and always will, both in time and eternity, to minister, preside and regulate the affairs of the whole church."

And another in the same Epistle:

"Brethren, be not alarmed, for if the Twelve should be taken away, still there are powers and offices in existence which will bear the kingdom of God triumphantly, victorious in all the world."

On September 2d, 1844, a statement was made to the Church that "when any alteration shall be required, seasonable notice will be given." On the 6th of August, 1847, the Twelve, comprising Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Orson Pratt, Willard Richards, Wilford Woodruff, George A. Smith and Amasa Lyman, were re-baptized, in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, Brigham Young baptizing and confirming the rest, himself being baptized and confirmed by H. C. Kimball. On the evening of the 7th, succeeding, Heber C. Kimball baptized (rebaptized) fifty-five in the City Creek, and on Sunday, August 8th, the "whole camp of Israel renewed their covenant by baptism;" "two hundred and eighty-eight" being "rebaptized" during the three days.

On December 5th, there was a feast and a council held at a private house in Winter Quarters, near where Council Bluffs, Iowa, now is, at which Orson Hyde made and Wilford Woodruff seconded a motion that Brigham Young be President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; which motion was carried. Brigham Young then nominated Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards as his Counselors, and they were so appointed. On the next day John Smith was appointed Patriarch by the Twelve.

On December 24th, 1847, nineteen days after the feast and council, one thousand of the then fleeing multitude, met in a "Log Tabernacle" and chose Brigham Young President. This was reconfirmed the next year in October, at Salt Lake City, by a conference held there.

It must be remembered that there were in Nauvoo and vicinity at the death of Joseph and Hyrum, an estimated number of twenty thousand; and in the United States and Europe an estimated membership of one hundred and fifty thousand. These had, so far the Times and Seasons and Mil-lennial Star were taken and read; and so far as the Elders disseminated the views concerning the Presidency and the position occupied by the Twelve, had been taught that no such organization would take place; or if it did, "seasonable notice" would be given. But all the notice that was given must have been what circulated from mouth to ear during the lapsing of the nineteen days referred to; and that could not have been very extensive. The council was held by special call, the conference in December was a special one; and when held, less than a twentieth of the number of the Church estimated to be at Nauvoo and vicinity, and less than one hundredth of the entire membership, as estimated at the death of Joseph, were present when that vote was taken. It was sprung upon the people without that previous preparation and notice that the Church was entitled to, under the circumstances. It was done too, after the man so chosen had rebaptized his co-associates unto himself in the waters of a land afar from the place where the Temple was to be builded. It was presented at a time when no such extra official act was needed. Brigham Young, as President of the Twelve, was virtually the leader; and by the counsel of his quorum had done as he deemed best. No additional priesthood was conferred by the choice; nor could there be. That body of Twelve men could have done all that the exigency demanded. By the taking of Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards out of it, the Twelve was disorganized. By the defection of John E. Page and William Smith, and the removal of the three created into the Presidency, that Twelve upon which Joseph had "rolled the work," if such a thing had occurred, had been vitiated. But a new line of policy had been adopted by the man thus created President. That which was to vitiate and destroy was to be fostered and be made a church tenet. To do this, a re-creation, a reformation must be had. It was for this end that the renewal of a covenant made years before was presented in that far away land, and in the rebaptism and reconfirmation that followed, were the seeds of that disorganization laid which culminated in the completed rejection of the "church as a church."

Following in the footsteps of this example, a wholesale rebaptism took place, a readjustment of quorums ensued. The quorum referred to by Orson Hyde, September 8th, 1844, as the one "where revelations can be tested," was disbanded by Pres. Young. The rule by which whatever was alleged to be a revelation from God to the church was to be tested was ignored. The way was prepared for the final stroke of policy, by which the usurpation of unwarranted power was made complete. It is not amiss to believe that all who were emigrated to Utah were rebaptized into this reformation.

Again, in 1856, after the fatal introduction of the unauthorized revelation touching plural marriage, August 29th, 1852, which Brigham Young had so artfully prepared the way for, a Reformation took place. A general rebaptizing was ordered, and the faithful and obedient were baptized into the spirit and power of the "New and Everlasting Covenant," the Plural Marriage tenet.

In defense of this dogma it is asserted that Joseph Smith received the revelation and practiced its precepts. It is certain, however, that at no time in Joseph's life was this document, called a revelation, submitted to the tribunal test required. No such claim for its validity was ever made. No publication of it as a church tenet, or as a properly accredited revelation from God, was ever made during the time that Joseph lived. The practice of its precepts if had was in secret. Not until its secret practice could no longer be concealed did even Brigham Young avow it. Then he comes before a special conference eight years after Joseph's death, and tells the beggarly tale that it was a "copy," the original having been "burned by Emma Smith," Joseph's wife. Joseph's wife declared that she never burned it, never saw it. The iniquity that destroyed the organization of the church perfecting its rejection, had now done its work. Henceforth there can be no doubt that the church to which the command to build the temple at Nauvoo had come had been rejected. Its quorums had been broken. The law of their organization was ignored. Instead of the Twelve remaining complete as a quorum as left by Joseph, two of them had been driven away from it, and three taken out of it in an unauthorized manner, and without a proper and seasonable notice had been put in the places of Joseph and Hyrum. The quorum next to the Twelve, of which the law provides there may be seven times seventy, had swollen to one hundred and twenty-five times seventy, by improper ordinations. Twice had the people been required to be rebaptized, under the plea of a renewal of their covenant. The original bond, stated of God and recognized as the new and everlasting gospel from 1830 to 1844, had been thus weakened and derided. The Temple in which they were to receive the further endowment of the Spirit when finished, had not been completed.

What further evidence of a rejection can any one ask.

It is a principle well known in civil law, and ought to be in ecclesiastical circles, that whenever a church is founded, its principles of faith formulated; its traditions formulated from the forum and pulpit, those declarations become the constitution of its corporate and legal existence. If in the history of any church, anything out of harmony with, or antagonistic to that constitution is introduced, or a change is sought to be made in the creed and government, which is opposed and resisted, or denied by any of the members of the church, that portion of the membership that remains in adherence to the faith as it was before the change was attempted or made, is the church. Nor does it make any difference in law how few this adhering portion may be, or how numerous the changing membership, the church is that part of the members remaining true to the original tenets.

In spiritual harmony with this principle of law is the statement, "Behold, the heavens withdraw themselves, the Spirit of the Lord is grieved, then amen to the priesthood, or to the authority of that man." This statement was made years ago, and it seems almost prophetically, as if the Spirit guided the pen of the Seer. "But, when we undertake to cover our sins, to gratify our pride, vain ambition, or to exercise dominion or compulsion over the souls of the children of men, in any degree of unrighteousness." This is the condition named by the Seer. In the same letter he cautions the Saints not to enter into secret organizations or to bind themselves by oaths to each other.

The case is clearly made. There was an attempt to introduce an other principle into the faith quite distinct to any of those held at the organizing of the Church. What was sought to be incorporated into the creed was directly contrary to the faith formulated and taught from 1830 to 1844. The inevitable ensued, the man or men who essayed to do it, practiced deceitfully. There was an end to their priesthood. They no longer held the "powers of heaven." They were practicing unrighteously. Not in a small degree, but in a great and vital departure from the faith. "He that repenteth and is baptized shall be saved," "This is my gospel," "Whatever is more or less than this cometh of evil, had been given as the Divine Will. These were the constitutional pillars of the law. To depart from them was to say "amen to the priesthood" of him who did so. If our Utah Mormon contemporaries have not departed from the original faith of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, there has not been an apostasy, nor departure from the faith of a church since Christ's ascension.

If, as the News claims, the "power of the priesthood was conferred for the last time," there were those upon whom it had been bestowed who would remain true to the faith. With them would this power of the priesthood remain. It could not be with those who were practicing secretly what was contrary to the faith of the church. It must be with the few, or the many who remained in adherence to the faith as it existed when it was bestowed. This is the claim of the Reorganized Church. It takes the position that the power to act for the upbuilding of the church having been conferred, there would always remain men of the faith who could perform every functionary duty necessary to the perpetuation of the work. If the quorum of the First Presidency was broken by death, or apostasy, the Twelve would remain as the leading quorum. If both the Presidency and Twelve were destroyed by similar means, the Seventy remained. If all three of these leading quorums should conclude to abandon the faith, or be killed in the massacres of the faithful, the priesthood held alike by Elder and Apostle, would hold efficient authority to still carry on the work.

How happened it? The First Presidency was broken by death. The Twelve had the opportunity to carry the work on to its completion, as it had been begun. Did they? Let the history of the long thirty-nine years since elapsing tell. What revelation touching the church was presented to the Twelve, then to the Seventy, and thence to the whole body under the administration of President Young? Through whom did the command to organize the First Presidency in 1847 come? When and where was the revelation on plural marriage submitted for examination before its final foisting upon the people in 1852? The spirit of it had ruled in secret for years, so we are told by its devotees. The man who presented it stated that it had been in his care all the years from Joseph's death to that day.

The Temple was unfinished. The dread consequences of a failure to do that work in due time, were known to Pres. Young and his co-workers, and public statement of them had been made. The Lord had said: "I give you sufficient time in which to accomplish this work." If you do it you shall be blessed within its walls. If you do not do it you shall be rejected as a church. The iniquity of unrighteousness which caused the "heavens to withdraw themselves" and "grieved the Spirit," was at work. Priesthood, the right to act in the name of Christ as quorums, was at an end. Whatever acts were done by them afterward must be weighed in the balances of individual righteousness and acceptability before God. The powers by which the gospel should be preached and souls won to Christ and salvation had been conferred. They could not be destroyed. Those persons upon whom the authority to act had been conferred who accepted the new departure, were left to fight against God. On the other hand those who had received this right to act and who refused to accept the new dogma were still commissioned of Christ. His work must be completed in righteous administration of the gospel law as it had been begun. Upon these, sooner or later, the lot of reorganizing the broken but faithful element into an acceptable whole was to fall. Just prior to the crowning act of forgetfulness of the original faith upon the part of those who had forfeited their priesthood, a number of those who had been true to the constitution of the Church met by direction of the Spirit and avowed their allegiance to that constitution, and in formal terms declared their opposition to the iniquity that had been secretly at work. These men held priesthood. It had been conferred upon them as individuals. No power on earth could divest them of it, unless they had become iniquitous, or had denied the faith. This they had not done. They had refused to accede to the new dogma, preferring the command of God: "Thou shalt take the things written in my scriptures to be my law to govern my church." Those men had the right under God to reorganize the church so sadly marred and they set about doing so. The Spirit worked with them, and the end though sure, is not yet.

WE learn by a letter from Bro. J. W. Waldsmith that the branch at Nebraska City, is in condition to pay off the debt on their chapel bought a few months ago; and propose to have it dedicated this coming autumn. The Saints did well to buy, and they have done better in paying for their dwelling place for the Spirit.

At Montrose, Lee county, Iowa, the Saints will also dedicate their church this fall, as it is about finished and paid for. It is called the Sisters' Church.

The Saints at Corinth, Ontario, have dedicated their building, so Bro. John H. Lake writes.

Bro. J. W. Chatburn writes from Harlan, saying that they have an excellent Sunday School in their new church, well attended. Bro. Nathaniel Booth is superintendent. Their preaching meetings are well attended.

By the way. While at Harlan last winter at the dedication of the church there, we fell into the company of a gentleman transiently stopping over for the Sunday there; and walked with him down to the church from the public square. On the way we conversed about the Latter Day Saints, he asking and we answering questions about them as strangers might do. He told us that he was going to hear Joseph Smith, who he was told was going to preach that afternoon, &c. He attended the service both afternoon and evening, and paid strict attention. One day at Kirtland just before services began, some one came hastily forward to shake hands with us, and asked if we remembered walking down from the square in Harlan, on the occasion of the dedication of the Saints' Chapel there. It was our chance acquaintance. He apologized for his intrusiveness, as he called it, that day and said that the incident gave him great pleasure, as he was much pleased with what he heard that Sunday. "It was" said he, "one of the best spent Sundays I ever spent on the road." He was a commercial traveller for some large firm.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. BLAIR writes that two had united with us at North Ogden, Utah, of late. One of these was baptized in Kirtland fifty years ago, and was received on his original baptism. Bro. Blair expected to go to Camp Floyd the week he wrote, June 5th.

Bro. Luff writes June 4th, that L. O. Littlefield's Open Letter is being circulated in Utah in tract form.

Uncle Wm. B. Smith was to occupy the Disciple Church at Colchester, McDonough county, Illinois, June 10th, on the subject of the origin of the Book of Mormon. Bro. Kelley wrote that Uncle William's labors at Coldwater were well received, and did the Saints good.

Bro. and Sr. Murdock McKenzie, of Whitemouth, Manitoba, buried a little one, May 31st, of croup and diphtheria, and upon returning home were themselves taken ill of the same disease, together with another of their children. It is a terribly malignant disease.

We have received a good kind letter from Bro. and Sr. Thomas Revell, Nauvoo, Illinois. There has been much rain there this Spring and Summer. Crop prospects bad. Sr. Richard Lambert had been very sick, but was recovering. Major Lewis C. Bidamon, widower of Sr. Emma Smith, is Police Magistrate of the city. He is upwards of seventy-four years of age, and still tolerably hearty and strong.

Bro. John S. Page, son of Elder John E. Page, one of the apostles in the days of Joseph and Hyrum, writes us from Independence, Missouri, that he is willing to undertake a mission among the Lamanites whenever it is properly directed that the mission should be taken.

Several replies to our notice that a shoe maker was needed at Lamoni, were received. One from Mr. A. Jagge, of Omaha, who sent his wife to reconnoitre, in person. She came, and returned to her home, and last week Mr. Jagge put in an appearance, rented premises of Bro. J. C. Chrestensen, and is now engaged in mending up the soles, and repairing the vamps and counters of the citizens of Lamoni and its vicinity. Mr. Jagge has located on the corner opposite Thomas Teale's store in the village of Lamoni, where he will carry on the business of shoe and boot making and mending, until it is seen whether he can make a living and stay in the town.

Bro. Samuel D. Hannah wrote from Buchtel, Ohio, June 4th, that they had had the promise of one of the laboring ministry to visit them and preach for them. But he had not yet put in an appearance, for which they felt considerably put out. We counsel patience. It is not possible for the brethren to fill all the calls being made on them; Elders should be very careful in making promises, and should keep them when they make them.

Extra copies of this number of HERALD can be obtained at the Office. If any of the Saints desire to send copies to any of their friends in Utah, or elsewhere, they can send us the fee and the address and we will send the papers direct from the Office, on receipt of an amount equal to regular subscription price.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS.

Mr. N. Makepeace, with whom "Ye Editor" took a friendly meal in Kirtland, during the late conference there, wrote us a friendly letter dated May 21st, in which he says in relation to the meeting there:

I find by talking with people from a distance, those that attended the conference, were well pleased with the preaching and doctrines taught; many of them saying, "I have no fault to find with such preaching, as it is all found in the Bible." I think I am safe in saying that the impression left by yourself and people who were with you; also those you left behind is very good indeed.

There is evil enough in man, God knows! But it is not the mission of every young man and woman to detail and report it all. Keep the atmosphere as pure as possible, and fragrant with gentleness and charity.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa,

May 20th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I send you another batch of sketches of conference sermons. I have still more but they are so imperfectly taken I will not copy. I took these sketches for my own perusal, not intending to give them to the Herald, but in reading them over I found so much good in them that I thought their publication would benefit the Saints who had not the privilege of hearing them. I do not claim that I have done my brethren justice in these sketches, but I have done the best my clumsy hand, in long hand could do; had I been a short-hand writer, they would have appeared to far greater advantage, but I have tried to give faithful sketches as far as my ability would permit, and I have no doubt they will be read with pleasure and profit; and if so, my purpose will be answered.

Last Saturday and Sunday I held a two day's meeting about eight miles from here. Elders Mintun and Crabb preached and the writer added a few words. Two were baptized by Elder Lanphear. Had a little opposition, but it was as chaff before the wind. I am still trying to point men and women to the Lamb of God.

Yours truly,

CHARLES DERRY.

Bro. Joseph:—One of the enjoyable times, only realized by the people of God has just passed during the conference of this district, and the dedication of the church at this place. The church is completed and does great credit to the little band of the Corinth Branch. It shows taste, energy and zeal for the cause of God, and the salvation of souls. We met Saturday, June 2d, at 10 a. m., for the first time the Saints had met in the church to worship. The conference was organized; we then had prayer and testimony meeting. I think I am safe to say that from the time the meeting was opened the Spirit of the Lord filled the house. It was not heard as a "rushing mighty wind," but felt as the gentle dews of heaven. Every heart seemed to be filled with love and praise to God, and tears of gratitude was seen flowing down the cheeks of many. Sister Janet Pearson bore her testimony to the truth of the manifestation of God's Spirit to her and her sister. They were baptized nearly forty years ago, when persecution was raging in these parts. It was revealed through the gifts of the gospel, if they were faithful they would yet see a branch raised up in these parts, which she said did not seem possible, but now she not only realized a branch but a new church to meet to worship in. Some of the means to build the church had been furnished by those who had in days past been enemies to the cause of Christ. The services and the dedication were a success. Peace and harmony prevailed. The only disappointment was that only a few Elders were present. Those that were present cheerfully helped when requested. Bro. Richard Coburn, of the Blenheim Branch, was the chorister to conduct the singing and did his part well; assisted by many of the sweet singers in Israel. We had

Bro. Thos. Bearss' wooden songster, to assist in the praise, presided over by sister Margaret Brown, of St. Mary's, assisted by others.

Bro. R. C. Evans of London, preached on Saturday evening, and assisted me in the dedicatory services at 10:30 a. m. on Sunday, and also at the preaching at 2:30 p. m. He preached at 7 p. m. At the Sunday meetings the house was crowded to excess. It was said there was nearly as many outsiders as those belonging to the church. Good attention and order prevailed. We met at 9 a. m. on Monday for prayer and testimony. The Lord gave us a parting blessing, and at 12:20 many of the Saints took the cars for their homes; some for the west and some for the east as the trains passed at this station. Some few remained another day and left yesterday. Bro. Samuel Brown left this morning, so I am left to hold the fort for a while yet. I propose to hold meetings three evenings this week and once next Sunday, the Lord willing.

I have not heard from Bro. Deuel, only by Bro. R. Coburn, and it was some time since he heard from him. Bro. E. H. Gurley is in Michigan. I expect him in Canada soon, and Bro. Delong with him. They have been exchanging labor. Can't just say where I shall go from here, but shall try and do for the best. Love to you and yours, and all in the office.

Yours for truth,

J. H. LAKE.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, June 6th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Some time has elapsed since writing for your columns, and I have had some pleasant experiences and some which are not so agreeable. On February 14th, in company with my uncle Lamoni Wight, and cousins Hattie and Sophie, I visited an old grave yard near which my parents resided when I was a child, and soon designated the spot where a brother, of whom I have no recollection was buried. Five small cedar trees grew round the grave, which had come up since he was buried, over thirty years ago. A plain stone on which was engraved "C. S., 1852," aided us in determining the place. After trimming the trees and planting some ivy upon the grave, we departed, while peculiar thoughts passed through my mind as I thought of what "might have been." The next day I parted from my relatives at Burnet, and went to Oak Island, where I met my co-laborer, A. J. Cato, and with him performed some labor in that vicinity, and visited Bandera and Medina City; in both places we were well received, and felt encouraged in regard to some things, and discouraged in regard to others. At Bandera Bro. Cato baptized one, the wife of Bro. Alex. Hay. March 10th and 11th I enjoyed a conference of Texas Central District which met with the Live Oak Branch in Bastrop county. Here for the first time met Bro. William Fanckler, formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church of Atlanta, Georgia, who had quite recently united with us, receiving baptism at the hands of our worthy brother, H. L. Thompson. Bro. Fanckler is quite intelligent and very full of zeal. Many of the Saints are quite sanguine of his becoming a man of great usefulness in the Church. That their hopes may be realized I shall earnestly pray; I would suggest to the Saints however, that Bro. F., like all the rest of us, needs their prayerful support rather than their praise. Let us pray that he may find with us the peace which will stay his tempest driven barque, until it shall sail safely into the portals of bliss. After conference at the earnest solicitation of the Saints and friends of Oak Island, I returned there to deliver a series of lectures upon the authenticity of the Book of Mormon. The school house was obtained for our use, and for eight successive nights I addressed the largest, and apparently the most interested audiences I ever met in that place.

The next day after the close of the lectures Mr. J. P. Neal, who has shown me many other favors, conveyed me to San Antonio, and furnished the wherewith to carry me to Bell county. I remained a few days with the Saints of Elmwood, and the way being opened I took my departure on March 30th, for Kirtland, Ohio. Sunday, April 1st, I spent a few hours with the Saints in St. Louis and enjoyed a part of their conference. On the 2d I arrived at Kirtland, and being early on the ground I had abundant time to examine the Temple building, which I did minutely, and was pleased, surprised and strengthened. I enjoyed the Conference well, and am glad I was there. Since Conference I have, as a rule enjoyed fuller and freer liberty than before.

I arrived at home May 1st, calling on the way at Ridgeway, Missouri, Lamoni and Davis City, Iowa, and Columbus, Nebraska. I preached twice at Cedar Creek and twice at Clear Water, while attending to matters of a temporal nature. June 1st, after bidding relatives and friends adieu I started for my field of labor, and arrived here next day, and found conference in session which I attended and enjoyed. Since the adjournment I have preached twice in the Saints' Chapel of Magnolia. I think of attending in company with Bro. Charles Derry, (whose guest I am), the Galland's Grove Conference which convenes at Deloit the 8th inst. I will then turn my face southward and reach my field of labor as early practicable. Bro. Montague and Cato are still at work in the mission, and Bro. Montague has been challenged by the Rev. Mr. Worley of Clarksville, and has accepted, the debate to commence on August 7th. Much will depend upon the success of this debate, and I ask the readers of the Herald to remember the time and pray for the complete vindication of the truth, and the protection of those who shall engage in it.

I remain in hope of Israel's redemption,

HEMAN C. SMITH.

GALIEN, Mich., June 5th, 1883.

Joseph: I have been stopping with Bro. Blakeslee since Friday evening, June 1st. On Sunday, June 3d, preached to the Saints in the Hall over the store belonging to the Bishop, a place very commodiously arranged for seating a congregation of some two or three hundred people; my text for the morning service was from John's gospel, 14:1, 2, 3. The discourse on the mansions prepared for the Saints of God—those of Christ's disciples that were his obedient followers in all ages of the world. It will be noticed that this promised reward named in the text, as applied by the Savior to his disciples, does not legitimately apply to the unbeliever in the outside world, for the special reason that the disciples to whom the language of the text was addressed were not apostles nor servants that had followed Christ on flowery beds of ease. For as exemplified in the text, to gain this promised inheritance these Apostles of Christ had to fight. Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ, I was much blessed with the Spirit of the Master while speaking on this subject. In the evening the Saints were entertained in a discourse on the coming forth of the Book of Mormon and the vision of finding the golden plates from which the Book of Mormon was translated, which was listened to by an attentive audience.

My visit to this branch of the Church has been somewhat unexpected, but I think I have been well paid for coming, for the reason I shall not let the cause suffer for the want of testimony in regard to the true merits of the latter day work. The gospel field opens wide, and much may be said, every where, on that gospel that Peter preached on Pentecost day.

Besides this, in coming to this place I have formed a very interesting acquaintance with Bishop Blakeslee, and his amiable wife Sister Blakeslee, whom I find in the spirit of this latter day work. And one thing I admire more than anything else in the character of professed saints of God, that they who profess to be saints boldly advocate the cause without fear of popular prejudice, or the frowns of a persecuting world. Bro. Blakeslee's prayer is for the onward prosperity of the work that now engrosses the attention of the Elders laboring in the field. On last Sunday evening after concluding my lecture on the Mormon plates, Bro. Blakeslee gave a very impressive exhortation to the Saints to faith and obedience to the law of God in all things that pertains to the building up of the kingdom of Christ on earth.

Suffice it to say that I have had much pleasure while on this visit, not only in proclaiming the good word of the gospel to the people who have listened with attention to what I have had to say, but in looking at Bro. Blakeslee's steam saw mill works, and broom handle factory; which saws up logs in all kinds of shapes, and by the use of machinery, car loads of lumber, boards and broom handles turned out, and shipped from this place to almost every city in the west, and many other parts in these United States; a business that furnishes employment for a good many men. Galien is quite a business town, where our respected Bishop, George A. Blakeslee lives and hangs out his banners for this latter day work. Long Long may he enjoy the Spirit of the good Master's cause.

When I began this letter it was my intention to say some things on the subject of the law of tithing; for I am firmly of the belief that there is too little said on that subject. The gospel that the Elders preach while out in their fields should be divided into two parts: first faith, repentance, baptism, and so on, to the unbelieving world; second, to the Saints they should teach the law of tithing, for sacrificing brings the great blessings of God upon his Church and people, as it helps the Bishop to furnish means to keep a good healthy ministry out in the field, where gospel laborers are needed to advertise this great work of salvation to a dying world. The Bible tells us of a day when the knowledge of God shall cover the earth as the waters do the mighty deep; but when will this thing be. Surely this can not be, when there is no ministry to carry these tidings abroad. Elders can not live on the wind, neither can the Bishop furnish expenses for traveling Elders, nor furnish subsistence for Elders' families when there is no money or means in the treasury of the Church to help to aid on in this great work. Joseph, I shall leave here this week for Colchester, and write more on this subject in my next. May the good Lord be with you in your labors of love for the Church.

Beloit, Wis., was struck by a cyclone yesterday afternoon. Six persons were more or less injured and considerable damage was done to buildings, orchards, etc. The steeple of the First Congregational Church was blown down. The large Presbyterian Church on the Main street was completely wrecked, along with some six dwelling houses in the same vicinity. The storm seems to have started in Fayette County, Iowa, near the Village of Brush Creek, about one-third of which was wiped out, including the M. E. Church. It then moved eastward, and after crossing the Mississippi struck a freight-train on a branch of the Northwestern Road near Elmo, in Grant county, Wisconsin. The cyclone through Eastern Iowa and Southern Wisconsin Monday proved more disastrous than the first dispatches indicated. The loss at Beloit is estimated at $50,000 to $75,000.

News was received by Superintendent Kelley, of the Kansas Central, yesterday that a train was blown from the track by the storm last night while crossing Three-Mile Creek, about ten miles west of Clay Centre, Kansas. The train was running through a furious storm, and when it reached the stream, which is about twenty-five feet deep, the wind literally picked up the rear cars and tumbled them into the creek bed, twenty-five feet below. A wind-storm at about 10 o'clock last night, twelve miles north of Abilene, Kansas, did a large amount of damage along the line of Dickson and Clay counties. June 14th.—During the prevalence of a thunder storm near Paducah, Ky., Monday night, a waterspout burst near the head waters of Chestnut Creek, and almost instantly the roaring torrent, rising in its might, crashed down the valley, carrying everything before it, flooding inland several hundred yards. Several dwellings situated on what was thought a safe elevation were flooded to a depth of four feet, while fences and bridges were carried away as though they were chips. A mule attached to a wagon in charge of William Ford was crossing the bottom land dry-footed, and before Ford could detach the team the water was waist deep, and he was forced to mount the mule and swim it ashore. The loss on fences and bridges will be very great, while great loss was occasioned by overflow of growing crops.

THE REJECTION OF THE CHURCH.

AS VIEWED FROM THE CHURCH WORKS.

"Search these commandments for they are true and faithful, and the prophecies and promises which are in them shall all be fulfilled."—Doc. & Cov., sec. 1: 7.

As God our Father here plainly states that the "prophecies and promises" contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, "shall all be fulfilled," it is well for us to consider seriously what those prophecies are. Let us therefore examine what it says concerning the Church, remembering that it is the word of the Lord, and "shall be fulfilled."

THE CHURCH.

On the 6th of April, 1830, Joseph Smith and five others organized the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by direct command of God, through revelation, God having set that day for the coming forth of his great work, and the establishing of his everlasting covenant, and "To lay the foundation of this Church and to bring it forth out of obscurity and out of darkness, the only true and living Church upon the face of the whole earth, with which I the Lord am well pleased, speaking unto the Church collectively and not individually." D. of C. sec. 1: 5.

In February, 1831, the Lord gave them the following:

"Ye shall receive my law, that ye may know how to govern my Church, and have all things right before me, * * * and ye shall see that my law is kept. He that receiveth my law and doeth it the same is my disciple; and he that receiveth it and doeth it not, the same is not my disciple and shall be cast out from among you."—D. and C. sec. 41 (6r): 1, 2.

Shortly after this God revealed his law unto them, the same gospel law which his Saints always had as the following shows:

"The Elders, Priests and Teachers of this Church shall teach the principles of my gospel which are in the Bible and the Book of Mormon, in the which is the fullness of the gospel, and they shall observe the Covenants and Church Articles to do them, and these shall be their teachings as they shall be directed by the Spirit."—D. C. sec. 42 (13): 5.

Also:

"I have sent forth the fullness of my gospel by the hand of my servant Joseph."—D. C. 34: (11) 4.

"Thou shalt take the things which thou hast received, which have been given unto thee in my scriptures for a law, to be my law, to govern my Church; and he that doeth according to these things, shall be saved, and he that doeth them not shall be damned, if he continues."—Doc. and Cov. 42 (13): 16.

It is here plainly stated that all who live contrary to the laws, which the Church had received, should be damned if they continue—and salvation rested entirely upon living up to these laws. And God further says:

"Behold the laws which ye have received from my hand are the laws of the Church, and in this light shall ye hold them forth."—D. C. 58: (18) 5.

All these revelations and commandments were given to the Church prior to September, 1831, and from them we can see that our Heavenly Father was desirous of impressing upon the minds of the members of the Church, that the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the revelations which they had received up to this time, contained the "fullness of the gospel," and "my law to govern my Church" saith God. And one would suppose that the people living at such a time, would keep the commandments which came to them so direct, and not treat them lightly—but they were sinful and negligent, and although the Church of Jesus Christ, they so disregarded the things of God, that they brought his condemnation upon themselves, as early as the 23d September, 1832, only two and a half years after the organization of the Church, as the following shows:

UNDER CONDEMNATION.

"Your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received, which vanity and unbelief hath brought the whole Church under condemnation. And this condemnation resteth upon the children of Zion, even all; and they shall remain under this condemnation until they repent and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments which I have given them, not only to say, but to do according to that which I have written, * * * otherwise there remaineth a scourge and a judgment to be poured out upon the children of Zion."—D. C. 83 (4): 8.

We are here shown the sad condition of the Church at this early date, and that they were to remain in this state until they should return to the new covenant," "the Book of Mormon and the former commandments." But our merciful Father was willing to give them another opportunity to show their faithfulness, for we read in the next verse:

"I will forgive you of your sins with this commandment, that you remain steadfast in your minds in solemnity, and the spirit of prayer, in bearing testimony to all the world of those things which are communicated unto you."—D. C. 83 (4): 8.

Here they are again forgiven, with the same injunction, that they teach the world concerning the things which God had given them, which are his laws as they had received them. In section 85 (7): 2, the Saints had the promise of Eternal Life, and of entering the celestial kingdom of God, and this was to be attained through the laws which had been "given unto them," for we read in verse 5:

"And they who are not sanctified through the law which I have given unto them, even the law of Christ, must inherit another kingdom, even that of a terrestrial kingdom, or that of a teletial kingdom."—D. C. 85 (7): 5.

From the foregoing we must conclude that there had been enough revealed up to this time, to save all who would obey, in that kingdom where God and his Christ dwell, and to enable them to be numbered with the Church of the First Born. Ibid verse 2. Although the Saints were in such nearness to the Lord, he was not pleased with the acts of all of them, for we read in the revelation given August, 1833:

"Behold, I, the Lord, am not well pleased with many who are in the Church at Kirtland, for they do not forsake their sins, and their wicked ways, the pride of their hearts, their covetousness, and all their detestable things, * * * verily I say unto you, that I, the Lord will chasten them and will do whatsoever I list, if they do not repent and observe all things whatsoever I have said unto them. And again I say unto you, if ye observe to do whatsoever I command you, I the Lord, will turn away all wrath and indignation from you, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against you."—D. C. 95 (86): 4.

One would suppose that such pointed language coming from our Father would have the desired effect of awaking the Saints to serving him in purity, but it was not so, they continued in negligence and carelessness, and many continued in sin, so their enemies were allowed to persecute and distress them, as we learn from reading the revelations given October and December, 1833. The Lord says he suffered the afflictions to come upon them, on account of their transgressions, for they needed chastising, because "there were jarings, and contentions, and envyings, and strife, and lustful and covetous desires among them; therefore by these things they polluted their inheritances."—D. C. 98: 3.

WHY PERSECUTED.

On account of these things God allowed them to be cast out, driven away from Kirtland. But he was ever mindful of them, and willing to forgive, and in February, 1834, he spake unto them, saying:

"Concerning the salvation and redemption of your brethren, who have been scattered on the land of Zion, being driven and smitten by the hands of mine enemies, * * * I have suffered them thus far, * * * that those who call themselves after my name might be chastened for a little season, with a sore and grievous chastisement, because they did not hearken altogether unto the precepts and commandments which I gave unto them. But * * * inasmuch as they hearken from this very hour, unto the counsel which I, the Lord, their God shall give unto them. Behold they shall, for I have decreed it, begin to prevail against my enemies from this very hour, and by hearkening to observe all the words which I, the Lord their God, shall speak unto them, they shall never cease to prevail, until the kingdoms of this world are subdued under my feet; * * * but inasmuch as they keep not my commandments, and hearken not to observe all my words, the kingdoms of the world shall prevail against them."—D. C. 100 (101): 1, 2.

Here we see that God promised them that their troubles should end from that very hour if they would only hearken to his teachings; but that they did not is shown from the following, given June 22d, four months after:

"Were it not for the transgressions of my people, speaking concerning the Church and not individuals, they might have been redeemed even now; but behold they have not learned to be obedient to the things which I require at their hands, but are full of all manner of evil, * * * and my people must needs be chastened until they learn obedience, if it must needs be, by the things which they suffer."—D. C. 102: 2.

After this revelation the Saints in a measure lived nearer to God, and kept his commandments somewhat better, and they were permitted to build his house (Temple) in Kirtland, which was dedicated March 27th, 1836. God accepted the building, and endowed the Saints with his Holy Spirit there, as on the day of Pentecost. The Savior, Moses, Elias and Elijah appeared unto Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, and many others saw angels, had visions, and there was a general outpouring of the Spirit.

THE TWELVE THREATENED.

Although God here showed such mercy unto them, they still rebelled, and on July 23d, 1837, they are again warned, and the Twelve Apostles are cautioned, through Thomas B. Marsh, the Lord saying unto him:

"Pray for thy brethren of the Twelve. Admonish them sharply for my name's sake, and let them be admonished for all their sins * * * and after their temptations, and much tribulations, behold, I, the Lord, will feel after them; and if they harden not their hearts, and stiffen not their necks against me, they shall be converted, and I will heal them."—D. C. 105 (104): 5.

We are here clearly shown that although they had been warned continually, still, through their transgressions, and sins, there was to be an apostasy, even among the Twelve, and they were to be found in an unconverted state, "without God in the world—" with no hope in Christ. But God was to feel after them "after their temptations, and much tribulations," and then they might hear and "be converted" if they would. Soon the Saints began to sink into the same negligence concerning the commands, and to treat lightly the things they had received, as before, and therefore the promise that they "should prevail against their enemies," was not kept, showing that they did not keep the word of God. And on October 27th, 1838, Gov. Boggs issued his exterminating order against them, and they were driven from Missouri.

THE CHURCH THREATENED.

In June, 1839, they began to gather in Commerce, afterwards named Nauvoo. And here, in 1841, our Father still willing to save them, made them special promises upon special conditions, and this time he not only warns them, but he commands them. This is his last trial of their willingness to obey him. If they will now at this time serve him, he will forgive them their trespasses, if not he will reject them. He says:

"I command you, all ye my Saints, to build an house unto me; and I grant you a sufficient time to build an house unto me; and during this time your baptisms shall be acceptable unto me. But, behold, at the end of this appointment, your baptisms for your dead shall not be acceptable unto me; and if ye do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a Church with your dead, saith the Lord your God. For verily I say unto you, that after you have had sufficient time to build an house unto me, wherein the ordinance of baptizing for the dead belongeth, * * * your baptisms for your dead can not be acceptable unto me."—D. C. 107 (103): 10, 11.

Now here is the final test, will they by their works become accepted of God, or will they through their own negligence allow themselves to be rejected. He says "I grant you a sufficient time;" but at the end of that time, if they did not build this house, as he commanded, they should "be rejected as a Church," not as individuals, but as a Church. The Saints for a time seemed to realize their condition, they put forth their efforts to build the house, and for a time all went well; but they soon fell into the same negligence, and when the "sufficient time" expired, lo and behold the house was not finished. Hence they must be rejected, saith the Lord.

THE TEMPLE NOT FINISHED.

But says the Utah Saints, "It was finished." Let us see. In the Latter Day Saints Herald, January 1st, 1872, speaking of the Nauvoo Temple, it says:

"No part of the Temple was completed, with the possible exception of the main assembly-room, into which the front doors opened. The basement, in which was the font, was incomplete; the stairway, to the left of the front, was not relieved of the rough boards laid on the risings, on which the workmen went up and down. The upper assembly-room was not accessible, the floor not being laid, neither the doors hung, nor the walls plastered. Besides this the inside ornamentation was by no means finished, even in those parts called complete."

For further evidence I have before me, "The remarks of Pres. Brigham Young, at the Temple, St. George, January 1st, 1877," as printed in the Deseret News, about that date, in which he says:

"We that are here are enjoying a privilege that we have no knowledge of any other people enjoying since the days of Adam, that is to have a Temple completed, wherein all the ordinances of the house of God can be bestowed upon his people. * * We built one in Nauvoo. I could pick out several before me now that were there when it was built, and know just how much was finished and what was done. It is true we left brethren there with instructions to finish it, and they got it nearly completed before it was burned; but the Saints did not enjoy it."

From these quotations it will be seen that the house was not finished, the Saints made an effort only, although our Father had repeated:

"I command you again to build an house to my name, even in this place, that you may prove yourselves unto me, that ye are faithful in all things whatsoever I command you."—Sec. 107 (103): 17.

Did they prove themselves, in building that house, after such strict commands? They did! They proved themselves a careless, negligent, and disobedient people, and as such God rejected them, as they by their own acts have since shown.

THE CHURCH REJECTED.

The first noticeable feature of that rejection, was the taking away of Joseph and Hyrum Smith,—the President, Prophet, Seer and Revelator,—and also the Patriarch of the Church, whom God allowed to be slain in Carthage jail, June 27th, 1844. This left the Church without a head, not only so, but every quorum of the Church was broken and incomplete. But the revelation last quoted said further, verse 13:

"If ye labor with all your mights, * * and if my people will hearken unto my voice, and unto the voice of my servants whom I have appointed to lead my people, behold, verily I say unto you, they shall not be moved out of their place."

Did they hearken? Were they removed? In February, 1846, in the dead of winter they were driven out of Nauvoo by their enemies, they were compelled to cross the river on the ice in the deepest distress, according to the warning in verse 14: "Ye by your own works, bring cursings, wrath, indignations, and judgments, upon your own heads, by your follies, and by all your abominations, which you practice before me, saith the Lord."

The Church was now a rejected Church, and it was driven from the land of Zion, in fulfillment of the revelation given in September, 1831:

"The willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land of Zion in these last days; and the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land; for, verily, I say, that the rebellious are not of the blood of Ephraim; wherefore, they shall be plucked out."—Sec. 64 (21): 7.

It is here shown that they were to be "cut off," because they were rebellious, and that they were to be sent away "out of the land of Zion."

THE MANY DIVISIONS.

At the death of Joseph Smith, the Church numbered about 200,000 members, which soon divided into many factions; some followed Sidney Rigdon, some J. J. Strang, some Lyman Wight, some Alpheus Cutler, others followed James Emmet, others James Collin Brewster, others joined the "Banemyites" under Charles B. Thompson, some joined the William B. Smith party; but the largest faction, about 30,000, followed Brigham Young, and eight others of the Twelve, to Utah, "out of the land of Zion," where they have attempted to locate a gathering place, in opposition to what the Lord had said:

"Behold there is none other place appointed than that which I have appointed, [Jackson County, Missouri], neither shall there be any other place appointed than that which I have appointed for the work of the gathering of my Saints, until the day cometh when there is found no more room for them; and then I have other places which I will appoint unto them, and they shall be called stakes, for the curtains, or the strength of Zion."—Sec. 98: 4.

Although this statement is so plain, yet the people in Utah have been so blind, that until this day they are teaching that Utah is a gathering place. It never could become such until after all the regions round about Missouri are full of the Saints, and after that, not until God had appointed it as a gathering place. As all the different factions into which the church divided, have ceased to exist, except that of which Brigham Young became president, we will only examine that body.

A REORGANIZATION.

After being driven from Nauvoo the broken quorum of the "Twelve" held a council near Council Bluffs, Iowa, December 5th, 1847, to consider their condition and the needs of the Church, and they there spoke concerning the necessity of reorganizing the Church, with a First Presidency, and a Patriarch.—Millennial Star, Vol. 10, 114, 115. And these of the "Twelve" then sent forth a "General Epistle," signed by B. Young as President, and Willard Richards, clerk, saying that they had in "contemplation soon to reorganize the Church according to the original pattern; and they claim that they there did "reorganize the Church."—Saints' Advocate, Vol. 4, p. 195.

This shows they were disorganized, and so we find them after Joseph and Hyrum were taken away—after they were rejected. So we follow them to Utah, a Reorganized Church. Reorganized according to the wisdom of man, but rejected according to the wisdom of God. This may seem severe, but alas it is true. Soon after reaching Utah we find them showing how far they had wandered from God. They there publicly teach the doctrine of Polygamy, (1852), as emanating from the Lord. They there teach the doctrine of blood-atonement, and that Adam is our God. They there pervert the law of tithing, and thereby terribly oppress the poor. And then to make the rejection more complete, they then institute what they called the "Reformation," 1856.

REBAPTISM.

During this reformation all the members were commanded to repent and be rebaptized, ("do their first works over again"), for the remission of their sins. And they were unwise enough to obey. Those who had once been baptized by the authority of God were commanded to return to repentance and baptism, and do them over again. Who ever heard of such a doctrine? What blindness had come upon the people of God.

But why did they think this necessary? Because they admitted that there were all kinds of wickedness among them. And the people were accused by their leaders, of sins and crimes of almost every description. Then if they admit they were in such a condition as to require them to "do their first works over again," it proves they had broken off from what they had once embraced. Had they continued firm in the faith, and in well-doing, there would have been no need of this returning, hence they did not endure in those doctrines. Now I can find no promise of salvation in the kingdom of God, for any, only those who continue to the end, in serving him. I can find no provision for those who break off, to return and begin again with repentance and baptism; but they must continue from the first, as the following shows:

"As many as repent, and are baptized in my name, which is Jesus Christ, and endure to the end, the same shall be saved."—D. C. sec. 16, (43) 4.

Also,

"If they will not repent and believe in His name, and be baptized in His name, and endure to the end they must be damned."—Book of Mormon, 2 Nephi, 6-9.

"He that endureth to the end, the same shall be saved, * * * unless a man shall endure to the end, in following the example of the son of the living God, he can not be saved * * * if ye shall press forward, feasting upon the word of Christ, and endure to the end, behold, thus saith the Father, ye shall have eternal life."—Ibid, 13: 4, 5. (See also Mosiah, 11: 15).

"And behold he (Alma) preached the word unto your father, * * * and they humbled themselves, and put their trust in the true and living God. And behold, they were faithful until the end; therefore, (because they were faithful until the end), they were saved."—Alma 3: 2.

What does Paul say speaking to the Saints:

"Let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God, of the doctrine of baptisms. * * * For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come. If they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance, seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame."—Heb. 6: 1-6.

Here he says they must "go on," and not lay again the foundation of repentance, faith and baptisms," for it is impossible * * * if they shall fall away, to renew them again," because, if they do so they crucify the Son of God afresh. This great sin is not in the "falling away;" but the great sin is in the attempting to renew the first principles again. Those who "fall away" can repent any time they realize and acknowledge their sin, but they can not make a new start by beginning at the foundation again; if they do they crucify Jesus Christ afresh. Why is this? It is because "so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death. Therefore, we are buried with him by baptism into death: * * * for if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection. Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed."—Rom. 6: 3-6.

This shows clearly what Paul meant: we can be baptized into Christ's death only once, if we try to do it again, we crucify him afresh, "and put him to an open shame." Because we are "baptized into Jesus Christ," and "into his death," and by that means "our old man," "our body of sin," is crucified with him." "Now if we are "baptized into his death" a second time, "our old man is crucified with him" a second time, so we crucify him afresh—hence the great sin. And, further, I will call your attention to the conversation between the Savior and Nicodemus (John 3). The Savior said "except a man be born again he can not see the kingdom of God." Nicodemus could not understand this, and he marveled, and asked, "How can a man be born when he is old?" He knew that was impossible. The Savior replied, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God." Now after we have been born of the water (baptized by God's authority) once, and born of the Spirit, it is just as "impossible" for us to be born of the water a second time, or born of the Spirit a second time, as it is for a mortal man to be born a second time. All must acknowledge the first birth in each instance.

Now in these quotations from Paul, there is no allusion made to the sin against the Holy Ghost. Many of the Saints did "fall away," on account of the evils which have grown up around the Church. But thousands of those who fell away did not commit the sin against the Holy Ghost, never having denied the power thereof. Such as they can return to the Church, by acknowledging their former baptism, and the authority thereof. The Utah Church attempted "to renew them again unto repentance," and baptism. But instead of improving their deplorable condition, they in their blindness made it worse, for in that repentance and re-baptism they did "crucify unto themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame."

THEY DENY THE FAITH.

But says one, they did not fall away from the things Paul speaks of, they always have believed in them, and with all their transgressions they never denied the faith. Let us see what God says. He says, he suffered the Saints to be driven out from the land of their inheritance, because, "there were jarrings, and contentions, and envyings, and strife, and lustful and covetous desires among them."—D. C. 98: 3. Also,

"Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else, and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit, and if he repent not he shall be cast out. Thou shalt not commit adultery; and he that committeth adultery and repenteth not, shall be cast out; but he that has committed adultery and repents with all his heart, and forsake it, and doeth it no more, thou shalt forgive; but if he doeth it again, he shall not be forgiven, but he shall be cast out."—D. C. 42 (13): 7.

Here it is plainly stated that if they did certain things, they should "deny the faith," and God said there was "lustful and covetous desires among them," these things terminated in polygamy as we find it in Utah. And it was through that doctrine that they did "deny the faith." The faith of the Saints was based upon God's promises. He had promised them that if they would keep the laws he had given them, as early as 1832, which was the gospel, they should be saved in the celestial kingdom, where God and Christ dwell. And he said unto them "except ye are sanctified by the law that ye have received, ye can not receive a celestial glory."—D. C. 85 (7): 3. But when the so called Revelation on Polygamy was read to the people, (in 1852), they were told that unless they should receive and obey that, they could not be saved in the celestial kingdom, and they were told that if they did not abide by that, they should be damned. God said the gospel (without polygamy) would save them. They said that without polygamy they could not be saved. Thus did they deny the faith.

EFFECT OF REBAPTISM.

And further that rebaptism had another effect. Under this new command of these authorities (?) all were rebaptized, even those who had been baptized by Joseph Smith himself, even if they had lived upright and in strict accord with the commandments of God. What was that for? Was there any more power in the ordinance under this usurped authority, than there was under the hands of Joseph? And why was it, that every one of the Saints who went to Utah, had to comply with this command, no matter where they had been baptized, nor by whom. It was because they had lost the Spirit, and had become blind, and because this was necessary to make the rejection complete. If that baptism had any virtue in it whatever, it was only to baptize them out of the Church as organized by Joseph Smith, and into the one reorganized by Brigham Young and his companions. And in order to get them all into this new body was why all had to comply with the so-called ordinance, and this was continued until all had yielded to this power; so all must remain under this broken covenant and sin, until they return and acknowledge their transgressions—acknowledge their first baptism, which was by authority of God, and build upon that, not attempting to do it over again, but live a Godly life, and witness by their acts that they have truly repented. Praying to God that he may have compassion upon them and forgive them their sins. They must return and begin again where they broke off, and "endure to the end" on the original baptism which was administered before the Church was rejected, or by the same Divine authority.

A CHANCE TO RETURN.

But how are they to return? Will God ever receive them again? Listen to his words: "Verily, I say unto you, notwithstanding their sins my bowels are filled with compassion toward them; I will not utterly cast them off; and in the day of wrath I will remember mercy, * * * and they who have been scattered, shall be gathered; and all they who have mourned shall be comforted; * * * Therefore, let your hearts be comforted concerning Zion; for all flesh is in my hand; be still and know that I am God. Zion shall not be moved out of her place, notwithstanding her children are scattered, THEY THAT REMAIN, and are pure in heart, shall return and come to their inheritances; they and their children with songs of everlasting joy; to build up the waste places of Zion."—D. C., 98: 4.

As we have before shown the rebellious were to be cut off out of the land of Zion, and God here states that they that remain, those who are not rebellious, and do not follow with those that are cast out, "shall return and come to their inheritance * * * to build up the waste places of Zion." But who did remain? The people were rejected "as a church," but not as individuals; and when some went to Utah, there must have been upwards of 100,000 who remained in the land of Zion, and were "pure in heart." Many of them remained true to the gospel, but not knowing what to do under the circumstances, they stood still and watched for the salvation of God.

WHO REMAINED.

Prominent among those who remained was Joseph Smith's own family, in whom were all the hopes of the Saints, and the promises of God. He had promised great blessings to come through them.

"As I said unto Abraham, concerning the kindred of the earth; even so I say unto my servant Joseph, in thee, and in thy seed shall the kindred of the earth be blessed."—D. C. 107 (103): 18.

And concerning the Melchisedek Priesthood, God said:

"The order of this priesthood was confirmed to be handed down from father to son, and rightly belongs to the literal descendants of the chosen seed, to whom the promises were made."—Ibid 104 (3): 18.

There also remained William Marks, President of the High Council, and of the Nauvoo Stake. He was the highest local presiding officer in the whole Church, after the death of Joseph. Also Z. H. Gurley, president of the quorum of Seventies. Also, some the High Council, many High Priests, a multitude of the Seventies, Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons, and some of the Bishopric. There also remained a branch of the Church at Jeffersonville, Illinois, which was built up by Elder Thomas P. Green, who was sent into that region by Joseph the Martyr. He was there at the time of the death of Joseph and Hyrum, in 1844. He remained there and retained his branch in the truth.

THE CHURCH REORGANIZED

In 1851, God began to feel after those that remained, and to instruct them concerning what they should do. And they were soon commanded to reorganize, which they did according to the revelations God gave to them, and in harmony with his law, as contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and Book of Mormon.

On April 6th, 1860, Joseph Smith, son of Joseph the Martyr, united with the Reorganized Church at their General Conference, claiming he was sent to do so by revelation from God. He was accepted and unanimously chosen President and Prophet of the Church of Jesus Christ, of Latter Day Saints, and successor of his father. And he was ordained to the office of President of the Melchisedeck Priesthood. He was not there ordained to be a Prophet, Seer, etc., for his father had ordained him to this blessing while yet in his boyhood."—Advocate, Vol. 4, p. 142.

From then until now, he has been setting "the house of God in order," and has been calling back those who have been scattered, as his own words here show.

"In the name of the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob, I now call upon all the scattered Saints, upon all the broad earth, to arise and shake off the sleep that hath bound them these many years, take on the armor of the just, calling on the name of the Lord for help, and unite once more for the emancipation of the honest in heart from the power of false doctrines and the shackles of sin.

In the name of bleeding Zion, I call upon all those who have been wandering in by and forbidden paths, and have been led astray by wicked and designing men, to turn from their scenes of wickedness and sins of convenience—to turn from their servitude to Satan in all his seductive devices, from vice in every phase, and from the labor of sin, the wages whereof is ever death—unto their true and delightful allegiance to the principles of the gospel of peace—to the paths of wisdom—to the homage of that God that brought the children of Israel out of bondage; to turn and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon; to lay hold anew upon the rod of iron which surely leads to the tree of life; to remember that those who live to the Lord keep his commandments, and that the promises are unto the faithful, and the reward unto those that endure unto the end.

And in the name of the Lord of Hosts, I call upon all the inhabitants of the earth to repent, believe and be baptized, for the time cometh when the judgments of God are to be poured out upon all nations, and the besom of God's wrath shall smoke through the land; when men shall know that there is a God in Israel, and he is mighty to punish or to save.—Joseph Smith, President of C. of J. C. of L. D. S."

Thus the way is open for all to return again, for God is calling them back! And we unite in the call; therefore, come and receive of the good things of the kingdom. May the Holy Spirit attend all who read this article, that their minds may be enlightened by its power, convincing them of the truth of what we have attempted to set forth, that it may assist them in coming to an understanding of their position, and of their duty to themselves, and to God. That it may call them back "to the old paths," that they may spend the remainder of their day in serving Him aright, and finally be saved in his Holy Kingdom, is the prayer of your humble servant.

PRESIDENT SMITH ON MARRIAGE.

APRIL 12TH.

THROUGHOUT the land there is a misunderstanding of the sacredness of the marriage bond. As a people it behooves us to take strong grounds on this subject. If we are not to kill, we must do all we can to preserve life in its best development. The disregard of the marriage bond produces disregard for life. The law of God is, "Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and cleave unto her and none else." This runs through all the ages, but in the departure from this, man has corrupted the law of his being. When the word "man" is used, it means both sexes,—the race. When man can be brought back to the law of his being, then the Legislature can establish laws to govern this rite and protect it. How is it possible for a man who truly loves her, to torment and annoy his wife? A loving heart can not delight to torment what it loves. I have thought the Catholic Church far wiser in their marriage regulations than the Protestant, for they do not admit of divorce. Incompatibility of temper is the disposition to ignore the rights of each other. There are men who have a kind word for all but their families. On the other hand, I have known women who had a smile for every one but their husbands; yet she says she loves him. It is claimed that "marriage is only a civil contract," and can bind the parties only so long as they consent to it. I pray God that he may protect the Church from this mistake. There are marriages of convenience in the world, but the members of the Church should see to it that no cause occurs to break the marriage vow which binds them. Are there no bonds that bind the angelic hosts? I can find no evidence that the law of divorce was made in heaven. Christ referred to Moses' law with a sigh, "It was not so in the beginning, but for the hardness of your hearts Moses wrote this precept." "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder." The criminal husband is as bad as the criminal wife. Any man who tortures his wife is criminal before God, and the same on the other hand. I would rather my wife should openly transgress than to keep up a continual private torture. My opinion is that no marriage should be broken on the ground of incompatibility of temper. I would not want to live with an angel lest she be too high for my sphere, but she can be educated to angelic traits, and so can I. If the gospel does not have its effects upon the heart how can it have any effect upon the household? We must cultivate the spirit of forbearance. If we can not bear with our companions who can we bear with? How can we expect to be borne with? An ancient legend tells how an ancient fireworshipper came to Abraham's tent, he gave him shelter, set meat before him, but when he found he would not worship God Abraham thrust him out. The Lord called to Abraham and said, "I have borne with thee all these years and couldst thou not bear with him one night?" We may hang up our mottoes in every room, but God will not "Bless our homes" unless we bless them ourselves with the spirit of love. The sacred character of the marriage relation should not be marred. If we let the gospel have its effect upon us it will make us better men and women and we can live in harmony with each other. Bishop Rogers once took me to his pasture, his sheep, cattle and horses all seemed as though they would tread us down, but they would not hurt us, they were glad to see their owner. It was his kindness that had brought them to this. Can not we manifest the same spirit in our homes? What business have we to have incompatibility of temper? I should be ashamed to make such a plea in the courts, because it might be said to me you have not cherished the spirit of the gospel. The fountains of the gospel rills are open for all; but no one can drink who does not divest himself of all incompatibility.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH.

APRIL 15TH, 2:30 P. M.

SPOKE in the Temple to a closely packed audience claiming that if the Martyr had declared a doctrine which was in harmony with the Bible, he ought not to have been persecuted; and if his teachings were not in harmony with the Bible, their falsity could be easily shown. The fact of his being persecuted is evidence that his persecutors had not the truth on their side. Visions, dreams and other spiritual gifts were some of the means by which God communicated with man. Jacob in a dream saw a ladder which was a representation of the truth. Mary and Elizabeth saw visions, yet because of the ignorance on the part of the people, these women were declared superstitious. Unless God has changed there must be some means whereby I may know how to fulfill my mission here. Paul said, "I would not have you ignorant concerning spiritual gifts." He said they were all given by the same Spirit. Peter promised the gift of the Holy Ghost. Men now pray for the Holy Ghost, but when we claim the spiritual gifts that it gave anciently, they say, Away with them! God will judge us by his word, but if he deals with us contrary to the way he dealt with them, he has no right to judge us by that word. We have claimed the spiritual blessings and have told men it was their privilege to enjoy them if they obeyed the gospel. Does not the Church need the gift of wisdom? This is one of the gifts of the Spirit. Jesus said, "If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not and it shall be given him." Are we likely to receive that which we do not ask for? How this people have been derided in the past because we have taught that it was in the providence of God to heal the sick. One clergyman said, "The reason Jesus gave the Apostles power to heal the sick was that they might have greater spiritual power than the laity." It is strange that a minister should need greater spiritual power than the flock, seeing both have the same evils to cope with, and the same glory to obtain. The same blessings are promised to all true believers. One M. D. when referring to a certain case of healing said the disease was hysteria. Well, if the evil is cured by the laying on of hands is it not as well as if cured by medicine? We are having a periodical wave of excitement about faith cures. Many are deriding them and others are accepting them as genuine. I trust the age of miracles is not past. Evolutionists deny the doctrine of miracles altogether. Suppose two apples having no life in themselves came together and produced another kind of apple, would not that be a miracle? Yet they cry out against miracles. I prefer the Bible statement of the creation of man. I can not tell how a grain of wheat, a thousand years old when planted, should bring forth other wheat. To me it is a miracle, but it would be stranger still if it produced a different kind of grain. You would take it hard if when you planted a velvet rose it should bring forth a hollyhock. Yet Evolutionists ask us to believe stranger things than these and still they deny the existence of any intelligent miraculous power. The religious world cry out against present revelation and claim that those who believe in it, and now claim to speak in the name of the Lord are false prophets. People would sooner believe an evil story of Joseph Smith than a good one. If you cry false prophet you must be prepared to show us a true one, as a test. If you can not do this, then you have no right to raise the hue and cry of false prophet, etc., unless his own utterances prove him false. I believe there is a means of communication between God and man. Why should there not be prophets to-day? "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him." If we go through the world seeking good we shall find it, and if we seek evil we shall find it. Then let us seek for the good only.

Z. H. GURLEY.

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you."

IF there is one problem of more importance than another, it is the problem of human life. When God created man it was because He desired his creation. Every breath one is born into life, and nearly as fast do they pass away. Some ask, "Why did not God make man so that he must be good and pure?" "Who is responsible if man was not made perfect?" Man was subjected in hope. We can not appreciate the good until we have realized the evil. The object of man's subjection to temptation was that he might learn the law of contrast; know and prize the good. It is God's will to develop the agency of man in all that is laid before him. It is said "Wherever there is a demand in nature there is somewhere an adequate supply." There is a demand in the mind of the race to know God; hence there must be a means by which this knowledge may be obtained. This demand has been made in all the periods of the race. The base of religion is the object of His worship. As God is the creator and the race the creature, the creator is obligated to provide the way for this worship. How else can we know that we worship him aright? And how necessary that we should have a proper understanding of the Being we are called upon to worship. Everything is governed by law, therefore there must be a law giver. The sceptic says, "The force that governs the universe is the great centre." Throughout all the works of God there is a perfect blending of one thing with another producing the most perfect harmony. This is evidence there is not only a law but also a lawgiver. We have seen that there is a demand for a knowledge of this great being. We are told the Bible is the answer to that demand. But I must ask, What was the condition of man before the Bible came? They had no written record to go by, we are told. If the rule that man can not know God until he has revealed himself, be worth anything, it follows that God who revealed himself in the Bible must have made himself known in a prior revelation to those who lived before the Bible was written, or they lived and died without a knowledge of God. James says, "If any man lack wisdom let him ask of God." Again, it is written, "In every nation he that seeketh God and worketh righteousness is accepted of Him." The Book of Mormon says, "Whatsoever leads to do good is of God."

Greenleaf says, "The mind naturally receives the testimony to which it is educated until it learns to discriminate for itself."

Paul says, "God spake to man by his Son." The object of speaking to the race was to lead them to a higher plane of life. Who of all the heavenly host was able to reveal God to man? None but Jesus Christ. Will you accept him as the Divine Ruler? John was sent to prepare the way for Christ who should baptize with fire and the Holy Ghost, that man might be taught of God. Christ called his apostles, and ordained them to preach the gospel that men by obedience thereto might receive the Holy Ghost, and thereby the desire of the race to know God might be answered. He told them "I go away that the Comforter might come unto you." "It shall guide you into all truth." Jesus comprehended the force of his words, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." When the world accepts this condition they will be enabled to know God. It is our duty to declare the whole counsel of God. Also that we must have the love of God in our hearts hence we must have the Spirit of God, or we can not love our enemies. When Paul laid his hands on the Ephesians it was in harmony with the promise made by Jesus, "I will send you another Comforter." We make the promise of the Holy Spirit on the basis of God's word. The Book of Mormon says, They who seek to bring to pass the restoration shall be filled with the Holy Ghost. John says, The anointing which ye have received shall abide in you. The man who goes forth to teach the world in God's way needs not to be taught of man. In Jer. 31 we read that God will establish a new covenant with his people, and all shall know him. This is the gospel which has again been restored. And we affirm the same original truth. The Church of Christ was the pattern. He is the Great Head. Upon his shoulders the government shall be laid." "Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee." Write God and Christ in favor of baptism. Christ submitted to it; God acknowledged the act and ordinance. The organization of this church was just the government God wanted. The same God lives and makes the same demands upon us to-day. He has renewed the same everlasting covenant and the same promise; and it is our business to declare it to the whole world. And until we can do this we can not be like Christ. Whosoever shall do the will of God shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God. Here is knowledge worth receiving. You may rob men of their money and their lives, but you can not rob the human mind of the sweet experience the gospel brings. Christ is the revelation of God. God created man for his glory. The devil will not be permitted to take the majority of the race; he can only claim his own, viz: those who will not be redeemed by Him who gave Himself a sacrifice for all. A good sound heart is better than a sound intellect with a corrupt heart; but we must have a sound intellect to have a sound heart. It is said, "When the smelter can see his own face in the gold, then it is refined." And when we reflect in our lives the image of Christ we shall enter into the glory of God. Let the good work of preparation go on.

It is remarked that the modest deportment of real wise men, when contrasted to the assuming air of the young and ignorant, may be compared to the differences of wheat, which while its ear is empty holds up its head proudly, but as soon as it is filled with grain, bends modestly down, and withdraws from observation.

Conference Minutes.

LITTLE SIOUX DISTRICT.

Conference met at the Saints' Meeting-house in Magnolia, Iowa, at 11:30 o'clock a. m. Saturday, June 2d, 1883. President J. C. Crabb presiding. Phineas Cadwell was elected assistant president and Wm. C. Cadwell secretary of conference.

All visiting brethren were by vote invited to participate with us in the deliberations of the conference. The president then made some well-timed remarks applicable to the opening of conference, when the secretary submitted the following:

Branch Reports.—Little Sioux for three months ending May 26th, 1883. Last report 152, present number 162, including 2 High Priests, 1 Seventy, 5 Elders, 3 Priests, 4 Teachers and 2 Deacons. Changes: 6 baptized, 4 received by certificate of baptism and 1 ordination; D. M. Gamet president. Spring Creek Branch, last report 47, present number 46, including 7 Elders, 1 Priest, 2 Teachers and 1 Deacon. Changes, 1 removed by letter; Wm. Chambers president. Union Center, last report 90, present number 101, including 1 Seventy, 15 Elders, 2 Priests, and 1 Teacher; 4 baptized, 6 received by letter and 1 received by vote; Z. S. Martin president. Elder J. M. Putney reported the spiritual condition of Union Center Branch as fair to good, no difficulty and increasing interest. Elder Phineas Cadwell reported the spiritual condition of Magnolia Branch as generally good. Branch officers had not visited much, but so far as they knew they knew of no difficulty with one or two exceptions, not in keeping with the spirit of the gospel. Elder Wm. Chambers reported the spiritual condition of the Spring Creek Branch as only medium; but a disposition among a majority of the members to strive to do more to let their light shine.

Official Report.—Charles Derry, P. Cadwell and J. C. Crabb, High Priests; J. F. Mintun, (baptized one), John B. Lytle, H. C. Smith of the Seventy; John Chapman, Sr., (by letter), J. M. Putney, J. W. Wight, Richard Farmer, John Pett, John Hawley, E. R. Lanphear, (baptized 2), L. Merchant, S. Mahoney, Wm. C. Cadwell, Wm. Chambers, David Chambers, Geo. Meford, A. W. Lockling, Isaac Shupe, Henry Garner, and Andrew Joneson, Elders; B. M. Green, Wm. S. Fallon, James Emmerson, and J. C. Johnson, Priests; Wm. R. Davison, E. F. Shupe, and R. Chatburn, Teachers; Wm. Prosper and Geo. Blackman, Deacons, reported.

By request Bro. Charles Derry, being the only delegate from this district who attended the late session of Annual Conference at Kirtland reported. Bro. Phineas Cadwell added a few words in reference to the Kirtland Conference.

President Crabb asked to be released from acting as president of the district. Moved and seconded that his request be granted. This motion was quite freely and ably discussed by Brn. Lanphear, Chatburn, Green, Mintun, E. F. Shupe and P. Cadwell, when upon the vote being taken it was declared lost.

On motion the Magnolia Branch was granted the privilege of turning the Magnolia Meeting-house around on the lots now in the enclosure on which it is situated so as to face the west. Carried.

On motion the reunion matter was taken up and referred to a committee of three, consisting of Brn. John Hawley, Charles Derry and J. C. Crabb, with instructions to report this evening.

On motion Bro. E. R. Lanphear was continued in his mission on Willow, and on a separate motion Bro. Richard Farmer was associated with him.

On separate motions both as to two days' meetings and persons in charge, the following appointments were made: At Moorhead School House, Saturday and Sunday, June 23d and 24th, 1883; Bro. Phineas Cadwell in charge. At Patton's School House, Saturday and Sunday, July 7th and 8th, 1883; Bro. J. C. Crabb in charge. At Magnolia, Saturday and Sunday, August 11th and 12th, 1883; Bro. J. C. Crabb in charge. At Twelve Mile Grove, Saturday and Sunday, August 18th and 19th, 1883, Bro. J. M. Putney in charge.

Moved that we support Bro. J. C. Crabb as president of the district, financially as well as spiritually.

On motion the motion now under consideration was referred to a committee of three consisting of Brn. J. W. Wight, J. B. Lytle and E. F. Shupe, with instructions to report this evening.

Case of R. Peasley being called up, Bro. C. Derry stated in answer to an inquiry that he had found no evidence of having ordained the brother. A motion was thereupon made and lost but subsequently reconsidered and carried to the effect that Bro. R. Peasley be granted a license by this conference; the records of the old Morning Star Branch and of the office of the General Church Recorder showing that he had been duly ordained, but as he states, license had never been issued.

The committee on Reunion Meeting reported as follows: "To the brethren and sisters in conference assembled; We your committee appointed on Reunion Meetings, recommend that a committee of one be appointed to request the various districts in this western country, to meet such committee in Council Bluffs or some other place suitable, to confer together with reference to the time and place of holding such a meeting, and authorizing this member of the committee to make such arrangements as may be deemed necessary in harmony with the other members who may be appointed from the other districts. We also further recommend Leland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, as the place, and September 14th, 1883, as the time of holding this Reunion Meeting. John Hawley, Charles Derry and J. C. Crabb, committee.

On motion the report was received, adopted, and committee discharged.

The chair appointed Bro. Charles Derry as the committee of one above provided for.

The committee appointed to confer with Bro. J. C. Crabb reported as follows: To the president and brethren; We your committee appointed to consult with Bro. J. C. Crabb relative to traveling in the district, beg leave to report. After conferring with Bro. Crabb and hearing his statement relative thereto, conclude as follows; That under the circumstances, we feel it would be unjust to call upon him to, at present, leave home, unless greater financial aid be granted than we feel the district would be willing to give; as a committee we suggest that either Bro. C. Derry or David Chambers be requested to travel in the district, and that such measures be adopted as will insure the forthcoming of such financial aid as is necessary. J. W. Wight, J. B. Lytle and E. F. Shup., committee.

On motion the report was received and the committee discharged.

Moved to amend by striking out the words "either C. Derry or." Amendment carried. Report as amended adopted.

On motion a committee of two was appointed consisting of Brn. P. Cadwell and Wm. R. Davison to investigate into the matter of certain members of the old Morning Star Branch having been cut off for dancing, and report at next conference.

Elder Heman C. Smith preached Sunday morning; Elder J. C. Crabb Sunday afternoon, and Elder Charles Derry Sunday evening.

The ordinance of baptism was attended to after the Sunday morning session by Bro. Charles Derry, who conducted two precious souls into the water.

At the opening of the afternoon session a child was blessed and the ordinance of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered.

Minutes of this session of conference read, corrected, and approved.

On motion adjourned to meet at Moorhead School House, on Saturday, September 1st, 1883, and continue over Sunday.

Miscellaneous.

ANNUAL CAMP MEETING.

TO ALL CONCERNED; Beloved in the Lord: The undersigned having been appointed by our respective districts in conference assembled, as committees to represent the wishes of our districts with respect to the Re-union Meeting of the Saints, in the coming Fall, and to confer with Presidents of Missions and Committees of other Districts, to make arrangements as to time and place of such re-union; do hereby request the several districts that are interested in the matter, to meet us on July 3d next, at Council Bluffs, in the Saints' Church, to confer together there and make such arrangements as may be deemed necessary for the success of such re-union meeting. We would respectfully state that our districts have suggested Leland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, as the place, and September 14th next as the time for that meeting.

This suggestion is not made with a view to control the choice, but merely as a suggestion; each delegate, or committee appointed by the several districts, should be instructed by their districts as to the choice of time and place. We would like to have Presidents of the Missions in Iowa and Nebraska to be present at our committee meeting; and if this is not practicable, would request such suggestions as may appear wisdom to them. Presidents of Districts and brethren appointed as committees of conference, please write me (Charles Derry) at Dow City, Iowa, as to willingness to meet at Council Bluffs.

CHARLES DERRY,

DIED.

HALL.—At Addison, Maine, April 16th, 1883, Bro. John B. Hall. Aged 57 years, 11 months, 9 days. His death, though some time looked for, came very suddenly. He died of paralysis, having the first attack three years ago; his second, one year ago, and when his death took place, he was sitting in his chair; and thus his life went out with hardly a struggle, leaving the cares of earth, to awaken in the likeness of his Redeemer, in the resurrection of the just, which we trust he will receive as he was a good, kind brother and friend; always ready to lend a helping hand to all who stood in need. He has held many places of honor, and among the many, has had charge of overseer of the poor for several years, and while occupying this position he suffered none to go uncared for. He was also proprietor of the Addison House, by which he formed many acquaintances and friends both far and near, and here again he will be missed by the many guests that often found a welcome at his home. He leaves a wife, two children a son and daughter, to mourn his loss. But we feel that what is their loss is his gain, as he was a baptized believer in the gospel, and in it had great faith. He was a great Bible reader; and a great exhorter; always contending for the faith once delivered to the saints; even on the morning of the day that his death took place in the afternoon, the writer called to see him he with his brother was conversing on the resurrection, and thus it was with him all along from the first of his hearing the gospel until death. He was Baptized by Brother George W. Eaton, of Dear Isles, Maine, seven years ago last December. His parents were Baptists and they reared their children to the same faith, but he stood as one alone. They tried to persuade him to be baptized, but to no avail; as he said that the way seemed dark and murky to him, that it was nothing but a form of godliness denying the power of God, from such turn away, and he did so; and when he heard the gospel, he thoroughly investigated, believed and obeyed the same. The Elders always found a welcome at his home. His funeral was conducted by J. D. Steele, his discourse was on the resurrection. L.

WILLIAMS.—At Cheltenham, Missouri, May 11th, 1883, of pneumonia, Samuel, infant son of Thomas and Mary Williams aged 4 months.

"There, in the Shepherd's bosom,
White as the drifted snow,
Is the little lamb we missed one morn,
From the household flock below."

BRONSON.—At Plano, Illinois, June 1st, 1883, Amos Alonzo, son of Bro. Wm. D. Bronson; born February 13th, 1855, in the Town of Radnor, Peoria County, Illinois, and was 28 years, 3 months, and 19 days old at the time he was taken away. He was killed at twelve o'clock June 1st, 1883, by the water tank, at which he was watering the team, falling over on him. He lived a short time, but was not able to speak, or recognize any one. Funeral Service at the Saints' Chapel in Plano, Sunday June 3d, 1883, sermon by Bro. Wentworth Vickery.

WILLIAMS.—At Staunton Illinois May 11th, 1883, of inflammation of the bowels; Sister Jane, wife of Lewis Williams, aged 23 years 2 months and 18 days, she leaves a husband and one child, and many friends to mourn her loss. She was baptized August 27th, 1882. "Blessed are they that die in the Lord." Funeral services by Brothers Beard and Thomas.

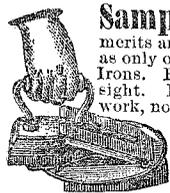

THOMAS.—At Belleville, Illinois May 24th, 1883; of bronchitis, Eleanor, daughter of Thomas and Mary Thomas, aged 1 year 2 months and 3 days.

"This lovely bud, so young, so fair,
Called hence by early doom;
Just came to show how sweet a flower,
In Paradise would bloom."

WEBB.—At Sacramento City, California, April 18th, 1883, Elder E. H. Webb, aged 75 years. He was born in the City of Stroudwater, Gloucester, England, August 16th, 1808. Our beloved brother was converted to the faith through the instrumentality of Elder Glover, one of the missionaries sent to England by the Church in the Martyr's day, at Cheltenham, and was baptized by him on the 7th of March, 1840; was ordained a Priest by Wilford Woodruff and Levi Richards, March 15th, same year, and ordained an Elder by Levi Richards and Thomas Richardson, July 2d, 1841. A perusal of his journal shows how devoted a believer and worker he was in the cause; and is replete with wonderful manifestations given to him as confirmatory of the same. The numerous positions of trust held by him, as shown by the many certificates found with his journal, attest his worthiness, and with what appreciation and esteem his services were held by the authorities and churches in Great Britain. Sharing in the general delusion, he emigrated to Utah, passed through the horrors of famine, and with his family barely escaped death by starvation; obtained a clearer conception of God's works, and finally with them reached the golden land, breathing heartfelt thankfulness to his Father and everlasting friend for the kind providences which had delivered them from a bondage, as he expressed it to the writer, "worse than death." He became identified with the Reorganization from the beginning, I believe; was the first one baptized in California, and in all things that has seemed to trouble him wisely steered clear of all dissimulation, and rejoiced to live and see the day of perfect unity and peace again restored to the Churches. We mourn his present absence, but not as one for whom there is no hope. His whole life was an effort to be found worthy to share in the merits of a Redeemer's blood. He heard! He saw, believed, and obeyed, and to the last was confident that he had made his calling and election sure. Funeral services by Elder J. B. Price. T. J. A.

FLEMING.—In Amador City, California, April 26th, 1883, Joseph Franklin Fleming, aged one day.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 30th June, 1883.

REV. C. T. PHILLIPS, of Stewartville, Missouri, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, states in the Stewartville Independent of June 9th, that he will "for the next six months, more or less, review Mormonism. 1st. By giving the history of Mormonism. 2d. Analysis of the Book of Mormon. 3d. External evidence of the Book of Mormon. 4th. The real origin of the Book of Mormon. In doing this I shall take the statements of men as history gives them, and the inconsistencies as they appear in the Book of Doctrines and Covenants—Mormons' Bible—with its mixed and stolen parts. The Book, if divine will stand. If the author is a fraud the Book goes with the author."

This is the same Rev. Phillips to whom propositions for debate were submitted some time ago; and which had not to December last been accepted, changed or modified. This may be the way he proposes to debate the issues.

THE HERALD has for half a year held its own as a weekly, and may be said to be a success so far. The saints have done nobly in sustaining it, and are deserving of praise. Nearly all of the old subscribers have renewed their subscription, and have in words and acts given the HERALD a hearty endorsement. Some have paid for it away into 1885. Some who had suffered their subscription to run out, have paid arrearages and renewed for the HERALD. Quite a number have ordered the HERALD sent to relatives, or friends and have paid for them. This has been one way used to inform them respecting our faith. One brother recently sent us ten dollars to be expended in sending HERALDS to friends, whose names he gave us, for three months, as an experiment. A number have sympathized with the office for the loss by Secretary Conover, and have sent in sums of money to "help make up the loss" as they term it. For both money and sympathy we are grateful. The HERALD and Office are the property of the people, and whatever is put into it is paid by the donors and patrons to themselves. Hence so few delinquents on our subscription list. Saints can not afford to cheat themselves, neither to defraud others. There are only a few who have not renewed their subscription, but we hope these will yet renew. The remaining six months of the year the HERALD costs the subscribers but thirty-five cents, practically, as they have already had the number for which they formerly paid two dollars.

THE Deseret News for April 24th, 1883, contains a discourse delivered by George Q. Cannon, from which we extract the following bit of information which we commend to the HERALD readers.

"Governor Boggs' order said, if the people did not leave the State of Missouri in a given period they would be exterminated. So the people had to flee in the depth of Winter, and cross the Mississippi into the State of Illinois. Now, whoever heard then of plural marriage? It was not thought of. It was the organization of the people that was objectionable; and so it was afterwards when we were compelled to leave Nauvoo. The mob burned our houses and killed our cattle, and destroyed our grain, not because of any feature of this kind, but because we were 'Mormons,' and believed in a form of religion that they did not believe in. So they were determined that we should leave there."

THE Tuscarora Mining News, published at Tuscarora, Nevada, in its issue for May 29th, contains quite a lengthy notice of the visit of Bro. Albert Haws to that place, and puts us before its readers in the following favorable light.

There is nothing in the tenets of the Josephite Mormon creed which is inconsistent with good morals or with our Republican form of government. It is entirely disconnected with the polygamous and traitorous organization which so long outraged decency and defied the Constitution and laws of the United States under the leadership of Brigham Young and which is continuing its infamous course under the direction of John Taylor. Its members are generally good and law abiding citizens. They are opposed to polygamy and to any interference of the church with the civil government. They simply have their belief and practice it the same as any other Christian denominations. In Utah, they are worse hated and persecuted than the Gentiles by the members of the polygamous and Church and State branch of the Mormon sect. They vote and act with the Gentiles in opposition to the political leaders of the polygamists, who run the Territorial, county and municipal elections in the interest of their church. They withdrew from the Brighamite organization because they did not believe in the polygamy revelation, the union of church and State, or the criminal acts dictated by the leaders in the name of religion. Under these circumstances they are certainly deserving of sympathy, and their doctrinal exponents are entitled to the same respect, courtesy and consideration which are extended to ministers of other denominations.

THE effort in Maryland is thus noticed by a Washington paper, slip sent by Bro. Wm. Miller from the capital.

A MORMON SERVICE AT DEER CREEK, MD.

The Mormons held another meeting yesterday afternoon at the Rocks of Deer Creek, Harford county, Md. There was a large attendance. The meeting took place in the house of Mr. Joseph Eckhart, just at the foot of the rock. Eckhart is a shoemaker and farmer, but he has a large altar in his house that was formerly in a church. Mr. Monterville O. Matthews, of New Park, York county, Pa., was the preacher. He was born in Harford, and said the doctrines of the church are anti-polygamous, and it is fought by the polygamous Mormons, and also by the Christian churches, who confound it with the polygamous Mormons. The headquarters of the church are in Lamoni, Iowa. Other churches are in Illinois; there is a large Mormon district in New Jersey. There is a church in Philadelphia, a branch at New Park, Pa., and members in Baltimore, Frederick City, and Washington, D. C.

BRO. G. T. GRIFFITHS sends us a slip from the Wheeling (W. Va.) Sunday Register.

The Latter Day Saints meeting at Boggs' Run school-house, conducted by Elder G. T. Griffiths is largely attended, and people in the neighborhood seem greatly interested. Four persons were baptized last Sunday and three Wednesday night. A large number have joined the church. Elder Griffiths has a very extensive knowledge of the Scriptures, and preaches some eloquent and logical sermons. He cordially invites every person to come and hear him, especially those who are not familiar with his doctrine, and are inclined to oppose him because some prejudiced and unprincipled persons have falsified his preaching. I am deeply sensible that his worth does not need my insignificant testimony, but write this with a view that professors of other churches will go and hear for themselves before they condemn him. Ye are not complete in wisdom. Perfect love does not imply knowledge, but perfect humility and perfect readiness to receive instructions. Remember, therefore, that if ever ye show that ye are above being instructed even by a fisherman who teaches according to the divine anointing, ye will show that ye are fallen from a perfection of humility into a perfection of pride. The Elder takes the Bible for his creed, and bases his argument on it alone. He asserts nothing but what he can prove by the Scriptures. He invites any minister or member from other churches who may differ with him to meet in a friendly discussion. "Come now and let us reason together," says the Lord. His discourse for this even will be on "the abode of departed spirits."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—What is meant in the Scriptures by "Neighbor." Have heard different opinions; "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Ans.—Any one who may need aid and favor from us, which it is possible and proper for us to grant, is our "neighbor." This is what the Scripture means.

Bro. Edward W. Tullidge, of Salt Lake, Utah, has been appointed by the city council of Salt Lake City, to write the History of the City. His bond has been filed with conditions for the faithful performance of his duty; and access to the city archives has been given him.

We have a lot of letters on hand that we must allow to lie over, we can not get them all in.

Elder Thomas W. Chatburn, baptized two at Edna Grove, Iowa, June 3d, making eight at that place. Bro. D. H. Bays and himself had good audiences and fair prospects at that point. Bro. Chatburn states that Bro. Bays has the gospel armor on again, and is anxious to push the labor while the day lasts.

Bro. L. D. Devore baptized three at Nuttallburg, West Virginia, June 10th, all heads of families, John, Alice and David Hodges.

Bro. J. D. Bennett writes from Cuba, Kansas, earnestly thanking Sr. Wood, of Pittsburg, Pa., and the Weston, Iowa, Branch, for Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, Harp and HERALD, ordered for him and sent him by the office.

Elder Nathan A. Morris, presided over the Dry Creek Branch, in Jefferson county, Illinois, from 1842 till 1864. This branch was ministered to by Elder Thomas P. Green, during all the dark and cloudy day, having been sent in there to labor, by Joseph the Martyr, with instructions to stay there until he was properly directed to come away. He never received such command; and was there when in 1860, the branch became a part of the Reorganization.

Independence Branch now numbers over two hundred. Bro. J. C. Foss baptized nine June 10th.

Bro. A. J. Hinkle, of Green Ridge, Manitoba, arrived at Lamoni, June 20th, in search of a location.

The Willoughby Independent's correspondent at Kirtland, writes that paper, "J. C." withdraws from the controversy with Elder Kelley, thinking, no doubt, that "He who fights and runs away,

Will live to fight (and whip) another day."

On decoration day at Kirtland, John Curtis, Esq., delivered the oration, which was an excellent one. Elder Columbus Scott was called out and gave a fifteen minute talk, which was much applauded. So says the Independent.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS.

Bro. Clarence St. Clair wrote from Omaha.

I arrived here to-night; called on Bro. R. C. Elvin, found him well. Expect to sound the gospel trumpet here as best I can, you may be sure it will not be very ably done, but the best I can is all that I promise to do, and shall not attempt to make myself famous or popular as a preacher. But I am trying to tell the story of our faith, and what we hope to gain by faithful, humble prayer, and obedience to the laws and ordinances of the gospel of Christ Jesus. I have had the pleasure of baptizing two at Nebraska City, yesterday, after preaching seven times.

Bro. Joseph R. Lambert, writes us card from Chicago:

Am about to take up my abode, for a time at least, in the north-west part of the city. Expect to hold meetings there two Sundays out of each month. To hold preaching services in this suburb is made practicable by the kindness of friends. Preached there last Tuesday night. The place is Johnson's Hall, 1668, Milwaukee Avenue.

Sr. Rebecca Dayton, one of the aged sisters, and old time member of the Church wrote from Kirtland, Ohio, June 11th:

I am not feeling very well to-day but am some better than I was at conference. I feel strong in the faith and can truly say that it is my only comfort. I enjoy the meetings and feel blessed. I think brethren Kelley and Scott are two good Saints, and in the right place. There was a lady in my house the other day, and I was telling her that I was not ashamed of the Latter Day Saints and she said, "And neither am I." The people here retain the kindest feelings towards the Saints. I feel that my time is short on earth.

SUCCESS.—Every man must patiently bide his time; not in idleness, in useless pastime, or querulous dejection, but in constantly accomplishing his task, that when occasion comes he may be equal to it. The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, without a thought of fame. If it comes at all it will come because it is deserved—not because it is sought after. It is very indiscreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much what the world says of us; to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say: to be always shouting to hear the echoes of our voices.

In every wise and suitable way the churches ought to encourage sociability as one of the features of their religious work—only taking care that it shall not be a worldly sociability, but the outgrowth of genuine Christian sympathy and good-will.

We may—we should condemn the wrong-doer, but let us reflect what we ourselves might have been or done had we inherited his passions and been subjected to his temptations.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Correspondence.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Wayne Co., Ill.,
June 7th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph: Yours received just before I left home. Have had no time to write before or sooner. I had been so very busy in getting ready to leave, that I could do but little writing. I am here after stopping at Bevier from Friday last till Tuesday of this week. I left Macon at half-past 10 a.m., and reached St. Louis at 6 p.m., and left at 8, and got to Flora at 10.45, and stayed at an hotel till 8 a.m. yesterday, and reached here on the O. & M. R. R. at 10 a.m. I came on at this time to marry sister Mary F. Hilliard and Mr. Dudley D. Davis. The ceremony took place at 4 p.m. yesterday, at the house of the bride's father, Bro. George H. Hilliard. Some fifty people were present, invited guests, and partook of a rich repast after the ceremony.

I preached at Bevier on Friday, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday nights, and Sunday morning, with all the liberty I could wish for, to crowded houses of deeply interested hearers. I ought to have remained till over next Sunday, but I was engaged to be here to attend the marriage, and could not have well broken the engagement. I left several about ready to obey at Bevier. The branch is in much better condition than some time ago—at least so I was told when I arrived there, being more united and peaceful. They could enjoy the preaching, and pray more effectively for the preacher. Bro. George Hicklin is the efficient District President, and I doubt not that by his efforts and those of Bro. Alexander, the improved state of affairs are seen at Bevier. There are many very excellent Saints at Bevier, and I have always enjoyed preaching there, because of the faith, confidence, and prayers of the faithful. I think of spending the Summer in this part of the field, and return home to take care of our crops, and attend the "Re-union" in Western Iowa, and return here and go to the rest of the field after I have secured crops. I do not think that this is a very attractive field; not much beyond strengthening the branches can be done before fall. Please give my address in the Herald: Jeffersonville, Wayne county, Illinois, care of Elder George H. Hilliard. I baptized one before I left—the son of Sr. Jones.

Your brother in Christ,
T. W. SMITH.

SHELBY, Iowa, June 4th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—On Saturday, May 26th, in company with Bro. Bays, went to Edna Grove, Cass county, Iowa, where on Sunday we held services to very large and interested congregations. The day was very propitious and the people flocked together to hear and see for themselves. The seed we have been sowing there for the past year has taken good root, and the fruits thereof are plain to be seen and felt. A better spirit and feeling I have seldom seen manifested in any community; and from the strict attention given with open eyes, ears and mouths, it would seem they are starving for the bread of life. About one year ago, at Edna, I felt to speak on "baptism for the remission of sins;" a large congregation was present, with quite a goodly portion of the M. E. class of that place, together with their minister. At the close of my meeting I gave liberty for any one to speak, for or against. The M. E. brethren looked over towards the minister and the silence seemed to say, "Defend us." Whereupon he rose and endeavored to answer our argument with the old stereotyped one, of "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and you shall be saved." After he sat down I answered quite at length, examining every scripture he had quoted, showing conclusively that it was not sufficient to merely believe. He did not reply, and I understand he never preached a sermon afterwards, but immediately shaped his affairs and went out west, and is now herding cattle. I cite this as a positive evidence that the "leaven" is working. After our three o'clock meeting, I had the pleasure of leading two into the waters of baptism; which makes eight we have baptized at that place, and there are others to follow could the labor be continued. We were earnestly invited to return and hold a basket meeting in the Grove, during this present month.

In justice to Bro. Bays I will just say that he has the gospel harness fully on again, and is battling valiantly for the truth. A more genial, pleasant, and thorough companion is hard to find. I am sorry to say his health is failing very fast. He is very desirous to go to Texas, or some southern climate, in hopes to recuperate his health; could the Church aid him on such a mission it would perhaps prove a blessing to our worthy brother and save to the Church one of her bravest sons. We found Bro. Hudspeth and family, with whom we staid, holding the fort, letting their light shine and boldly defending the truth of the latter days.

Yours in bonds,
T. W. CHATBURN.

WHEELING, West Virginia,
June 5th, 1883

Bro. Joseph:—Our district conference which was to convene June 2d and 3d is ever. Everything passed off pleasantly, and doubtless much good was accomplished by our coming together. There was a goodly number present from abroad, and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The Spirit of the Lord met with us in much power to the comforting and strengthening of his people. Bro. Ells was in attendance and preached one sermon of an hour's length with great force and excellent liberty. Our preaching meetings were largely attended. There was not room sufficient in the house for the people; many were compelled to turn away. The speakers were all blessed in dispensing the word for which we are grateful to the Giver of all good. Wife and I went housekeeping in the city of Wheeling, W. Va.; this being a center place in my mission. When I arrived in this place, May 5th, there were four Saints here; on the 6th I preached two sermons, assisted by Bro. Sutton, in Boggs' Run School-house, to a large audience, the next day Bro. Sutton returned home, I continued preaching for three weeks, speaking nearly every night to a crowded house and with good liberty. As a result of labor thus performed, I had the pleasure of baptizing thirteen persons, and there are as many more nearly ready to obey the gospel. I organized this branch May 31st; we call it the Benwood Branch, and it numbers, including wife and I, about twenty members. The prospects are that we will soon number thirty-five or forty, as the last district conference authorized the members of the West Wheeling, Ohio, Branch to disorganize and unite themselves with Benwood Branch, on account of their having no place to hold meetings, &c. The Saints here are contemplating building a chapel as soon as the building committee can arrange matters satisfactorily with the contractors. Bro. L. D. Ullom, Priest of the branch, who was baptized about three weeks ago, has given one hundred dollars towards it. The Saints of the district at their last conference agreed to aid us with their means, which will be very acceptable. If any one who is not a member of this district has a desire to assist us in erecting the above chapel they can forward the money to my address, G. T. Griffiths, corner Jacob and 48th streets, Wheeling, W. Va. Any aid will be thankfully received. The work is reviving throughout the district. We have calls for preaching from all parts of the mission. Bro. Ells anticipates to visit all the branches in this district this summer. He is feeling better physically than for many months. Bro. James Craig has preached some three or four times in this place; he is intending to unite with this branch, he is an able defender of the truth. Bro. H. Robinson is also at work. Bro. M. S. Sutton has done a good deal, within the last three months, preaching and assisting others. We expect a good work will be done within the year.

Yours in bonds,
G. T. GRIFFITHS.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa,
June 16th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I desire through the Herald to bear my testimony to the work of God, as I have received evidence for myself that this is indeed the Church of God, established by himself, and that he holds his mighty hand over those who by the grace of God have been counted worthy to receive his glorious gospel, and walk in humility before him. I had been sick for a long time and had the doctor many times, but did not get any better. When in the humility of my heart calling upon God in faith, and putting my whole trust in him, I called for one of his servants to pray for me, lay his hands upon my head, and anoint me with oil in the name of the Lord, I (as an evidence to me that God answers the prayers of faith) soon realized the blessing, being at once relieved of my pain. However, having been well a few days, I was taken sick again with a burning fever more severe than before, and I thought that perhaps the time had come when God would take me away from this life, and my prayer to him was that his will might be done, knowing that whether in sickness, health, trials, or temptations, when we put our trust in him, all will be well. It was not so designed by the Almighty that he would take me away, but that he in his goodness would bestow a greater blessing upon me to strengthen me in the faith, as another evidence to me of the worth of the gospel, and that God by his Spirit bestows upon some the gifts of healing; for while in this condition, the Elder was sent for, and had no sooner entered the room before I felt easier, and when he had anointed me with oil and laid his hands upon me, in the same moment I was healed, and have from that time to the present been as well as ever. My desire is that God will keep us steadfast in the faith that we may always walk so as to please him, and that he will bless his servants whom he has called, that they may go forth among the children of men boldly declaring the gospel by the power of his Spirit, that they might not perish but turn unto God and with us receive a crown of life.

May the grace, consolation and love of him who gave his beloved Son for us that through him we might be saved, be with us all in the prayer of your sister,

CHRISTINE SORENSEN.

MOUND VALLEY, Labette Co., Kansas,
June 12th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Our conference at this place came off on the 18th, 19th and 20th of May; and I can assure you that it was a time long to be remembered. The business part was peaceful and harmonious to the need of the work. The preaching, "not in word only, but power," &c., by the different brethren that took part. The "social" part was marked with great outpouring of the Spirit in different gifts and manifestations to the Saints. Two promising young men were called and ordained to the ministry, by the voice of the Spirit; namely, E. A. Davis, of Pleasant View Branch, an Elder, and C. Rayan, of this branch, a Priest. Also we baptized a promising young man of the Columbus Branch, and the head of a fine, rising young family. May the Master bless them.

After conference I went to Cherokee county, and held several meetings at Cross Roads School-house, at which place I was favored with the presence of many of the Saints of the Columbus Branch. I thank them. I also visited some interested friends to the cause, and I think good was done. From thence to Pleasant View to attend a two days' meeting, which conference had ordered to be conducted by W. S. Taylor, R. H. Davis and W. France, on the 2d and 3d of June. And to the credit of the Pleasant View Saints let me here state, that as soon as they heard of the meeting they got together to prepare themselves by humbling themselves before God and praying for the aid of His Spirit; and their effort was not in vain, for they were blessed in a special manner with the gifts of the Spirit. And when the brethren arrived on Thursday they had meeting, and also on Friday preparatory for Saturday and Sunday, which time was devoted to the preaching of the word, with one testimony meeting, on Sunday afternoon, and the organizing of a Sabbath School; and most assuredly we had a good time that shall be long remembered. Here let me remark, that Saturday night we had the pleasure of witnessing our young brother, E. A. Davis, putting forth his first effort for the truth in the capacity of a preacher, to a well crowded house, and was a grand success. In glancing over that congregation we could see the tears of joy coming freely from both old and young, and when the meeting was over you could hear the remarks from old veterans, fathers and mothers and all, "How powerful, how pure and innocent, and yet sublime;" as though we were very near the great fountain of truth, when the Spirit was gushing forth the well defined arguments of that young boy. On the 4th inst, started in company with returning brethren to go into the Indian Territory, and preach that night at the William School-house, and on the night of the 5th at this place to fair audiences. On the 6th started into the Territory in company with D. W. and R. H. Davis, intending to go south among the Delawares, and to start the work by approaching their chief, Journey-Cake, who by the way is a Baptist preacher. I heard him once,—by all appearance a fine and conscientious man, but has not acquired the English language to perfection. They have a church where he resides, which we aimed to procure if possible, to introduce the work to this nation through the sanction of the chief, for they are very suspicious of the white man. After traveling over a vast expanse of country without the first sign of human existence, we struck the head of Cedar Creek and found a good large settlement of the African race, that were the slaves of the Cherokees before the war, and also a Bro. Wilkinson with his family from the State. We held meeting with them on the night of the 7th with good effect; they want us to come again and prolong our stay among them. At the mean time the rain descended so fast that the streams were flooded and we could go no farther, hence returned and have labored here since.

Permit me here to acknowledge the receipt of Bro. H. C. Smith's kind letter concerning the branch on Grand River, Indian Territory. If ever I travel within visiting distance of it I will gladly do my best, Bro. H., and I thank you for your kindness in writing to me; I lost your address. Will Bro. Oscar Ferguson, of western Kansas, tell us where the settlement of the Bickertonites is? We have been having some talk with them before their removal west. Any one else that knows where I could do any good within the field of my labor, Missouri, Kansas, or Indian Territory, will please address: Weir City, Cherokee county, Kansas. We had the pleasure since we are here to hear our other young brother, C. Rayan, in his first effort of preaching, and as the other, it was good and a wonder to us and others; "God bless them.

Your brother,

J. T. DAVIS.

CARSON, Pottawattamie Co., Iowa,
June 6th, 1883.

Dear Brethren of the Mission in Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin:—Trusting that all favors may be yours, I desire to address a few lines to you, hoping that I may only add good to what you have already attained to. The work of Christ needs all the help possible for us to give.

The Reorganization had its rise in our mission in 1851, and held its first General Conference in June the following year. The work was then planted on the Rock, and well tested by the Holy Spirit, as witnessed by those in attendance. The key notes were then sounded upon which our hope now stand for victory over all species of vice that the sons of men are heir to, pertaining to church government on earth, (if there is any virtue in being identified with a church, or kingdom of God among men).

The greatest obstacles in our way, and that that has proven to be the only thing to bring about a rejection of the Church of God in any age that is passed as an organization, has been the failure on the part of ministers to carry out the instructions of the law. Hence the sayings: "That ye may know how to govern my Church, and have all things right before me;" "The leaders of this people cause them to err; and they that are led of them are destroyed." It is our mission, first to correct the evils sought to be fastened upon the good name of the Church. Second, To preach the gospel of Christ as the only means of salvation.

The things that have brought discredit on us ought never to be mentioned in our Saints, or prayer meetings; and only when we are put in defence by those who attack us; in other words, prayer meetings should never be interrupted by a recital of things that disturbs the spirit of the assembly, and the peace of the mind; but our hope should then be cheered and strengthened by reference to all good things, without any bad or evil things being mentioned.

Our field is a large one, and I expect to visit as many places as possible during the year. I hope every officer will work with his might, and not be discouraged in well doing. Your ordination so indicates your duty, and it is not necessary for me to call upon you to so work. I desire to hear from you, how much you can do and of the prospects of the work in your several local fields; also of the demand for urgent work because of special interest manifest in hearing the word. There has never been a time when Saints could do more effectual work than now. Let us be one, and be strong in the battle for Christ our Master. The good name of the Church is surely brightening before the world, and we have every reason to be thankful that our lot is cast among Saints; but let us be very careful that Christ is our theme all the day, and not ourselves or our fellow men.

If the Lord will, I will labor in Western Iowa a short time, and then visit other parts of our mission. Bro. Etzenhouser wrote us an interesting and cheering letter of his labors, and so may we hear from all who are in the vineyard of the Lord, and may God be with and bless your every effort in his cause.

BYESVILLE, Guernsey Co., Ohio,
May 26th, 1883.

Dear Bro. Joseph:—I am very happy to inform you that through the grace of God, I have become a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to God be the praise. It is now nearly five years since I left Salt Lake City, and the Brighamite Church for the States, for it was there that I first got my eyes opened in seeing the deception that was practiced upon the people by their leaders. With a sorrowful heart I left my sick wife and family with no means of support, and came to Ohio. Under these trying circumstances I made up my mind to have nothing more to do with religion of any kind. But in three months from that time several copies of the Herald with other books belonging to the Reorganized Church was sent me from Salt Lake City, and from these light did spring forth, with joyous relief to one in despair. Ever since, I have been a constant reader of the Herald, and many a happy hour did I enjoy, reading its pages, desiring God to hasten the time when I would be one with his Church.

Dear Herald, as we as a people believe in dreams and visions, I feel like relating a dream I had about two months before I joined the Church. Our youngest child was exactly two years of age on the sixteenth day of last December, about four o'clock in the morning; and at that hour I dreamed that my child had died and my sorrow was very great. Two days more and the people gathered into my house for the funeral. After some delay the people enquired of me who was going to perform the services. I told them I did not know for no one was engaged. It was just midday then, and the sun was shining beautiful in the heavens—when a man came into my house dressed in black. He came close to me, for he saw that my sorrow was very great, and he began to pray for us as a family; but more especially for me. He prayed as I never heard man pray before. God through the prayer took all my sorrow away. He then went into the next room where my child was and raised the child to life again. My joy then was very great; so great that I cried out with great feeling O God, now merciful and kind thou hast been to me; and I, so very undeserving. All the people saw the miracle, and praised and glorified God. I then saw this good man preparing to leave me; but I flung my arms around him and asked as one having authority. "Who are you, and where are you from?" Looking upon me, he said, "I am sent to you from the Reorganized Church." With my arms around him still, I begged him not to leave me. He said, "Let me go, there are others yet that I must go and see, and the Spirit told me they lived near by." The good man went away and I awoke.

Elder G. T. Griffiths came to my house some time after. This was the first time I had seen him, and he seemed like the man in my dream. After preaching six nights successively with great liberty, in the Second Advent Church, the Rev. McBroom shut him out. Bro. Griffiths baptized me, then my son. He then went in search of others, and prayed with them. God heard his prayer and softened their hearts; and they said, "We are ready for baptism." Bro. Griffiths went to Kirtland Conference, came back and baptized five more, and organized a branch, calling it Byesville Branch, ordaining two Priests and one Teacher, putting me in charge. Now we are holding meetings in my house, and God is blessing us with a rich abundance of his Spirit, making our hearts to rejoice and give praise to his holy name, and the healing power is felt amongst us, increasing our faith in the great latter day work. I sincerely pray God, our heavenly Father, that he will bless us as a little branch. Brothers and sisters remember us.

Yours in the gospel bonds,

LUKE SHARP.

Great excitement at Llano, Tex., prevails over the approaching trials of thirty murderers. The court is now in session, and these thirty cases are on the docket. Many desperadoes, friends of the murderers, have come here from the surrounding country, and the inhabitants are fearful lest attempts will be made to rescue the prisoners. In compliance with a request to the town authorities a small body of state troops has been sent to preserve the peace.

Beebetown, Iowa, a small village was almost completely blown away by a tornado last night. Only one house was left standing, and that, singularly enough, was on a hill. No loss of life is reported.

June 18th.—At 8:30 o'clock last evening, Thomas McGuire cut the throat of Mrs. Mary Little in such a manner that she died within fifteen minutes after receiving her death wound. The murderer then cut his own throat, and will most probably die. The affair took place on the sidewalk in front of 578 North Wells street, Chicago.

At nine o'clock last evening an old man fifty years of age, was struck down and mortally wounded in front of a vacant house at 211 Southport avenue, Chicago. His assailant was the seducer of the old man's daughter.

A brutal assault took place last evening at the place of George Hurley, 3530 Emerald avenue, Chicago, and the victim may die of his wounds. George Purcell quarrelled with James Reilly, and picked up a large carving knife, made a brutal assault upon Reilly, inflicting five gashes upon his head, and also cutting off the thumb of his left hand.

Bridgeport, Conn., has nine quartet church choirs, one double quartet and three chorus choirs.

Malignant measles is increasingly epidemic in Boston, Mass. There were 141 deaths from it last week, which exceeds all former records for years.

A terrible calamity, involving the death of 178 children, occurred in the town of Sunderland, in the County of Durham England, June 16th, an entertainment had been given in Victoria Hall by a conjuror, which was attended almost altogether by children. The accident occurred at the close of the performance. The body of the hall been entirely cleared of its occupants, when some 1200 of the little ones came rushing down stairs from the gallery. At the top of the first flight of stairs there was a door which opened only twenty inches. At this point, while the mass of children were pushing forward, several of them fell and were unable to rise, owing to the others crowding on. The result was that a great number were pushed down, trampled on and suffocated. The scene was terrible, and no effort could stop the mad rush of the affrighted children. They came on pell-mell, though, strangely, without much shouting, and soon 178 of them were knocked down and killed by others trampling upon them. The bodies, which were badly mangled from the trampling, lay seven or eight deep. Many of the victims and others who were not killed had their clothing torn off, and this, together with the bleeding bodies of the unfortunates, shows the terrible nature of the struggle. The ages of the children known to have been killed ranges from four to fourteen years. The excitement in the town when the news of the disaster spread was terrific. Great crowds of people rushed to the scene, until at least 20,000 persons surrounded the hall. The feeling was so intense that the authorities ordered out the 68th Infantry to preserve order. The work of getting out the bodies of the victims was begun immediately. They were laid out in the hall, and the parents of those killed were admitted for the purpose of identifying the bodies of their children. Most heart-rending scenes transpired while the work of identification was in progress. The mothers of the dead children constantly uttering piercing shrieks, and many of them fainted on discovering the bodies of their little ones.

Two German boys were drowned at Chicago whilst bathing in the river.

The Musselman villagers have been aroused to such a pitch by the recent visit of the French Consul to Hauran, and have been so violent, that it has been necessary to send troops into both Northern and Southern Syria. Measures of the most vigorous character are being taken. The French have endowed Druses fellowships in several colleges, but the local governments refused the French the privilege of opening Jesuit schools in Hauran. The Bedouins are also giving much trouble, and the immunity with which they have recently met has made them very bold. Yesterday they attacked a Turkish detachment at Kariatien, and their aggressions are becoming daily greater since they know that the Porte has lost power in Egypt, and they pay slight regard to threats that come from Constantinople.

June 19th.—The Rev. F. H. Burdick, pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C., was yesterday suspended by the Presbytery for heresy. He maintained that there should be no denominations, but that all should combine in one universal church and that all sacraments should be given as the several pastors thought proper.

None of the persons who were wounded during the reign of terror in Chicago on Sunday night have yet died. James Reilly, who was cut in the head by George Purcell, is at the County Hospital, and is doing quite well. The superintendent at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital reports that Thomas McGuire, the man who murdered his mistress, is improving. He has ceased to be delirious. No signs of remorse are shown by him, and he says that he intended to kill the woman, and is only sorry that he did not finish himself. He will probably recover.

The dam at the headwaters of the Middle Yuba River, forty-three miles from Nevada City, Cal., broke this morning, and the Freeman toll bridge was swept away. It belonged to the Milton Mining Company, was built twenty years ago, and cost $75,000. Loss of life is feared. The dam contained 650,000,000 cubic feet.

Last evening a whirlwind struck the northern part of Steubenville, Pa. At first it seemed to formed of two currents, both moving to eastward. Trees were uprooted along the track. Uniting the combined current struck the house of Widow Reynolds, unroofing it. Thence on eastward it went, blowing down trees, unroofing houses, destroying fences and outbuildings, until it reached the Ohio River, the waters of which it lifted into the air. The damage in the town will reach about $15,000.

The rapidly rising river is doing great damage to the crops between Cairo and St. Louis. Good judges estimate that 15,000 acres of wheat and corn bordering on the river are now submerged, to say nothing of the overflowed country further back.

Harrisburg, Pa., was visited by a hurricane last night which lasted about half an hour, and was accompanied by vivid lightning and heavy thunder. The rain came down in torrents and considerable damage was inflicted. Many houses were unroofed, trees uprooted, telegraph wires prostrated and the electric lights in Capital Park extinguished. Among the houses unroofed was the parsonage of the German Catholic Church.

The heaviest thunderstorm of the season passed over Rochester, N. Y., last night. There was one life lost near the city. The barn of Russell A. Hawley, of South Gates, was struck by lightning. Fifty-six thousand cocoanuts have been planted this season in Monroe county, Florida.

June 20th.—The Turkish government announces that the Albanian insurrections have been quelled by the troops, although there has been very severe fighting in the mountains, and that the tribes are now suing for pardon and clemency.

An encounter took place at Morrope, Peru, on the 13th, between 200 Prefectoral troops and 300 Monteneros, a large number of whom were unarmed. The fight lasted five hours. The Prefectoral troops were victorious. The Monteneros lost two officers and twenty-five men. The fectoral side had fourteen killed, including Major Correa. The Monteneros are being pursued.

A small cyclone struck Colfax, Iowa, Monday evening, prostrating a tent in which a religious meeting was in progress, and seriously, but not fatally hurting several persons.

The latest dispatches from the French fleet at Madagascar are to the effect that on the refusal of the government of that island to comply with the terms of the ultimatum the French forces at once began operations. Since the last reports the French troops have captured Tamatave and destroyed the ports of Toulpointe, Commeniohambo, and Tenerive. They have firmly established themselves at Tamatave, where Admiral Pierre has placed his headquarters. The Admiral reports that operations have ended, the natives offering no resistance to the French. The people are greatly excited, and to prevent any outbreaks a state of siege has been proclaimed.

Miss Frank Chambers, the eccentric female who has insisted upon wearing men's clothes and doing men's work for the last three years, was fined $50, in Chicago, Ills., and went to the Bridewell in default of payment.

June 21st.—Many of the towns and villages of Eastern Germany and of the mountain bordered provinces of Austria are suffering terribly from losses by floods and rains. In some districts water spouts have made great havoc, cutting out the fields with growing crops, destroying buildings, and involving loss of life.

An extensive fire occurred yesterday morning in the Royal dockyard at Amsterdam, Holland. The man-of-war Hoggerbank was destroyed, and the man-of-war Kertener was considerably damaged. The loss is between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 florins. The origin of the fire is unknown. A fireman was killed while trying to subdue the flames, and three others were injured.

The Russian Nihilists have issued a manifesto in which they acknowledge their temporary loss of power to keep up the policy of terrorism. They acknowledge that they have lost their leaders, and have been reduced to inactivity by the exhaustion of their moneys. They say, however, that they shall persist in their fight for their country and liberty. They charge that Russia is drifting into war with Germany, which must, in the end, result in Russia's defeat.

By a switchman leaving his switch open near College Place, four miles from St. Paul, on the Chicago and Minneapolis Road, yesterday afternoon, an express train was ditched, and three persons killed outright and eight or ten others badly injured. The engine turned over and the tender was thrown fifty feet from it, while the baggage cars and two of the passenger coaches left the track and went tearing along to a roadbed and into the ditch, making a fearful wreck and piling the people in the two passenger cars immediately following into an indiscriminate heap, maiming and crippling several, and causing a heartrending scene generally. Of the 300 or more passengers on the train, all who escaped unhurt were terribly shaken up.

Yesterday detectives unearthed in the cellar at 2243 North Fifth street, Philadelphia, Pa., the skeletons of twenty-one infants, and at the same time brought to light what promises to be one of the greatest scandals that has been exposed for a long time. The house was occupied by respectable people, and has within a year been the abode of Dr. Isaac J. Hathaway. It is stated by neighbors that Hathaway kept several savage dogs in his cellar, and there seems to be no doubt that, after killing the newborn babes, he threw them into the cellar to the dogs, and then covered the skeletons with earth.

Yesterday afternoon two boys aged about fourteen years, were drowned while bathing in the river a short distance below Racine street bridge, Milwaukee, Wis. The boys were in shallow water near the shore, when in some manner one of them was carried beyond his depth, and was drawn under by the powerful current. The elder, seeing the danger of his companion, plunged in to rescue him, and he also was drawn below the surface, in their struggles they became locked in each others arms, and, after a few moments' struggle, sank in the deep water twenty feet from shore.

Mate Dunham and six or eight of the crew of the whaling schooner Ellen Rizpah were lost on the whaling voyage. The captain and mate struck a whale at the same time, and the mate's line becoming fouled, his boat was dragged under and never seen afterward.

A few days ago four men were fatally injured at Cincinnati by the falling of a roof which they were attempting to raise over a new building.

Water-spouts and a cyclone seriously damaged crops in Northern Arkansas on the 13th.

A convert from Catholicism, Rev. J. C. Bracq, was ordained to the ministry in the First Baptist Church at Burlington, Vt., on the 15th.

Mrs. Bertha Blechen's remains were cremated in Lemoyne's furnace at Washington, Pa.

A colored man named Jordan Corbin went into the house of a peaceful citizen, Benjamin Carden, at Rockford, Ala., on the 13th, and shot him while lying upon his bed. His wife jumped up and the negro shot her down. The son started to give the alarm and he was also shot. All were instantly killed. The daughter, aged fourteen years, escaped and gave the alarm. There was no provocation for the murders.

For the murder of Vaughn Hilton, six men at Mt. Sterling, Ky., were on the 14th sentenced to imprisonment for life.

The latest proposition is to build a maritime canal through Palestine, and an English company, with the Duke of Marlborough at its head, has been formed for the purpose of making investigations and preliminary surveys. So far as at present proposed, the work will include, in the first instance, a canal twenty-five miles in length, from Haifa, in the Bay of Acre through the plain of Asdracion to the valley of the river Jordan. The depth of the proposed canal is to be forty feet, and its width 200 feet. This work will bring the Mediterranean into the heart of Palestine, and go far toward making a seaport of Jerusalem. It is further proposed to construct a canal twenty miles in length from the head of the Gulf of Akaboah to the Dead Sea, and thus unite the waters of the latter with the Red Sea. If these things were successfully performed it is expected that an inland sea about 300 miles long, varying in width from three to ten miles, and deep enough to float vessels of the largest size, would extend from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea. There are some matters besides engineering difficulties which may hinder the execution of this project.

The consent of the Porte is indispensable, and certain European Powers would undoubtedly oppose the granting of a firman conferring upon England the exclusive right of way by water through Palestine. The Holy Land also has sacred associations for Christians throughout the world, and a wide-spread sentiment among all churches and sects would doubtless be raised in opposition to the innovation. Speaking of this particular project, the London Times says: "It is possible that the new enterprise may be proved to the satisfaction of many devout men and women to be the fulfillment of the prophecy of Ezekiel, to the effect that there is to be a broad sea in the desert, and that the fishers shall stand upon it from Ebedi even unto En-eglaim."

It is announced that China is purchasing munitions of war in the United States upon a large scale, presumably in view of the probability of war with France growing out of the Tonquin difficulty.

The General Synod of the Reformed Church sitting at Albany, N. Y., on the 12th, passed resolutions denunciatory of the Masonic and other secret orders.

The Archbishops of the Catholic Church in the United States have received orders to appear at Rome in September to receive instructions relative to the Plenary Council to be held subsequent in New York, for the purpose of reorganizing the church here and framing new articles of discipline.

The town of Hempstead, L. I., was visited by a tornado on the afternoon of the 13th, which did great damage to structures. Ten or twelve persons were injured, but none fatally.

A mob took Aaron Harris, a colored boy who murdered a white peddler at Enterprise, Miss., from jail the other night and hanged him. He had confessed his guilt.

Fire-damp in a coal-mine at Creded Butte, Col., a few mornings ago, suffocated three men.

Five men are committed for trial at Trale, Ireland, for murdering Walsh in May.

CHARACTER OF CHRIST.

If we attempt to discover what it is in the personal character of Jesus Christ, as shown in his life, that thus attracts such permanent admiration, it is not difficult to do so. In an age when the ideal of the religious life was realized in the Baptist's withdrawing from men, and burying himself in the ascetic solitudes of the deserts, Christ came, bringing religion into the haunts and homes and every-day life of men. For the mortifications of the hermit, he substituted the labors of active benevolence; for the fears and gloom which shrank from men, he brought the light of cheerful piety, which made every act of daily life religious. He found the domain of religion fenced off as something distinct from common duties, and He threw down the wall of separation, and consecrated the whole sweep of existence. He lived a man among men, sharing alike their joys and their sorrows, dignifying the humblest details of life by making them subordinate to the single aim of His Father's glory. Henceforth, the grand revolution was inaugurated, which taught that religion does not lie in selfish or morbid devotion to personal interests, whether in the desert or in the temple, but in loving work and self-sacrifice for others.

The absolute unselfishness of Christ's character is indeed, its unique charm. His own life is self-denial throughout, and He makes a similiar spirit the test of all healthy religious life. It is He who said "It is more blessed to give than to receive;" who reminds us that life, like the wheat, yields fruit only by its own dying; who gave us the ideal of life in His own absolute self-oblivion. We feel instinctively that this Gospel of Love alone is Divine, and that we can not withhold our homage from the only perfectly unselfish Life ever seen on earth.

SERMON BY ELDER H. A. STEBBINS,
OF LAMONI, IOWA,

AT THE SAINTS' CHAPPEL, LAMONI,
DECEMBER 30, 1882.

So far was I from expecting to preach to-day that I did not even intend to be here until five minutes before I came; for I thought there would be so many here that the place I would occupy would be better than my presence here; and it is not a fault of mine that, as one brother has refused to speak to-day, I have been requested to occupy the time. I realize that I am even at the best but an indifferent speaker, and I ask your prayers and kindly thoughts while I shall attempt to speak upon things that are near to our hearts as Latter Day Saints, for we are brethren and sisters, and friends and neighbors, who come together to hear what may be said, and I trust I may have your attention this morning.

I have thought, since I was asked to speak, of a certain text that I heard when I first became acquainted with this work. It came to me as one of the most striking texts that could be found in the Bible, and which I marveled I had never before seen or considered. It is this: "For after that in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." I say that to me this was a marvelous text, when I first heard the voice of the preacher, Bro. Samuel Powers, declared it to me. It seemed so strange, so marvelous, that such a declaration should be given to the world, "that it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." A peculiar statement, a wonderful statement, given in a day and at a time when a people dwelt upon the earth who were supposed to be the chief and special watch-care of God, and unto whom were committed the oracles of God. A people who for a thousand years had been under that special watch-care, and partakers of the mercy and kindness of God; even whose fathers God had led up out of the wilderness; whose fathers had built a temple at Jerusalem; who as a people had come down through the ages as being God's people, and who still considered themselves as the special keepers of the law of God, as being under his special care, and holding all the ordinances and privileges which might pertain unto the people of God. These people claimed to have Moses for their lawgiver and Abraham for their father. The declaration of the Scriptures is: "For, after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased him by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

That Jewish world thought itself already in accord with God's will; they believed themselves to be in perfect harmony with his law, and they proclaimed that, having the law of God, there was nothing which others might bring that would be superior. Hence they thought they needed not the special revelation of this man who came to them as the son of Joseph the carpenter; they needed not that which might come to them fresh from heaven; for had they not the law for their guidance? Had not there been given to their fathers a long time ago that which had led them, that which had guided them, that which had been unto them indeed the law of God, and that which had made them the special favorites of heaven, and the special receivers of his blessings from on high? But Paul says: "After that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased him by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

And we find the people in those days to whom Paul spoke, to whom Christ and the Apostles preached, we find them pious, devoted, and zealous for God as believers are to-day. And what did they lack? The result of all this piety and zeal and devotedness, the strange result of all this was that there were many ways and no certainty. There was nothing upon which the mind could depend as being that which came from God, that is not among their doctrines. When Jesus came into the world he came saying that he came forth from the Father into the world, and that the works and the words which he taught were directly from God. He came as the special advocate of a revealed religion, of a religion which could be demonstrated, and without which he said that all their piety, all their zeal, all their devotedness to the traditions of their fathers was in vain. For they were without the knowledge of God; they had departed from him, and their ways were not his ways; and there came of necessity a time when God should be revealed from heaven to them. Then Christ came declaring him, and, as it was written, "He whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God," not the tradition of the fathers, not alone the things which had been written aforetime, whether upon tables of stone or upon parchment, or whether they had come down to them from the traditions of their fathers, which they themselves admitted. In fact Jesus declared unto them that they had made the law of God void through their traditions, and that, notwithstanding all their piety, their zeal, their devotedness, their energy, their service of God in the temple which Solomon had built, yet it was necessary that God should restore unto them the truth, from heaven; because they had departed from that plan, and all their ways were devious ways, as multiplied then as they are to-day, one a Saducee, another a Pharisee, another an Essene, and another an Herodian. All these dogmas, all these theories were the result of lacking that which should have come from heaven to them, but which they had failed to receive any more. Therefore, as Jesus came to them teaching the law of God, he said to them that God had rejected them, and that their ways were not the ways of God, but that the ways of God were greater than their ways, and that he had again declared himself unto them by the revelation of his Spirit.

The result was, as I have said, that there were many ways and no certainty, no standard, no criterion. They had the law, and claimed to hold this book in reverence, and they said that it was given as their instructor, but Jesus told them that they made vain the law of God that they might keep their own traditions. They trampled it under their feet and threw it aside from them. They kept that which was pleasing unto them to keep, because it was in accordance with the feelings of their own hearts, because it agreed with their own interests, their own creeds, their own views, and their own ways. But when Jesus came he presented to them that which came as the criterion of truth, for without this there could have been no judgment upon them, if this criterion had not been presented to them from heaven. He came unto them declaring that he brought light into the world. "If I had not come unto you, ye had not had sin; but now ye have no cloak for your sin," because he came to teach them even as God had sent him. The Scriptures tell us what his truths and doctrines were, and that he taught them as one having authority, and not as the Scribes. How did the Scribes teach? They taught them that any way would do; they taught them that it did not matter about their faith, so that they were conscientious, so that they were devoted, so that they were satisfied, it did not matter. The same position is taken to-day. If you are satisfied you may do this or you may do that. But Jesus came revealing to them from heaven that which was the Father's will, declaring unto them, "I came not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me;" that whatsoever the Father had commanded him those were the things which he did, and those were the things which he spoke, declaring to them that he came as a present revelator from God, as an instructor sent down from heaven, and that therefore they had no cloak for their sins; but, as God having revealed himself to them again, they were therefore to be judged by the law that the Son brought unto them.

In the thirteenth chapter of Acts, Peter tells us that "They that dwelt at Jerusalem, and their rulers, because they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which are read every Sabbath day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him." The truth taught us by this text is this: That they were devoid of that Spirit from on high, through whose power those things were written by the prophets aforetime, and that without the presence of that Spirit in those who read, those things were dead to them, they had no life in them; that, as the Apostle says, though they were read every Sabbath day, they fulfilled those words in condemning him. Because they had not the light of the Spirit by which those things were written, therefore they passed them by and knew them not. They understood not the voices of the prophets which were read every Sabbath day in the synagogue, but they fulfilled them in condemning him and putting him to death, even putting to death the Son of God. This agrees with the text which we read at the beginning, that, "When in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased him by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." Because that text tells us, that somewhere there is wisdom, knowledge and understanding that is not to be gained by the wisdom of the world; that somewhere, within some one's power, there is something greater than that which man can gain by his own wisdom. Now the folly of the world, as so largely expressed both in that day and in this, is that if a man is morally good, if he is a wise man, if he is a great man, whether he professes to know God or not, or to have this faith or that faith or some other one, as it may be among the community; if he keeps himself obedient to the laws of man and the moral law that governs us all, or that should govern us all, that man is all right.

But the text shows plainly that there is something beyond this, something that can not be obtained by wisdom, though we may take the tube of Herschel, or the tube of Ross, and may gaze into the heavens afar, and may measure the planets, and weigh them, and tell their distances; though we may be wise enough to tell that the transit of Venus shall occur here on next Wednesday, the 6th of December. Men can tell this, and they can tell when an eclipse will take place, and can calculate that another like it will not again take place till after our day. They can foretell that a transit of Venus will not again take place during the generation that now lives, and they say that all these things come to pass at certain times and in fulfillment of certain laws which men look into, and thereby they see a portion of God's work. They have by their wisdom, by their divinely given faculties, been able to discern some wonderful laws governing man and the universe. And their connection and association together show that there must have been some lawgiver, the working of whose laws brings to pass these wonderful results. We can gaze a little into the plans of the Almighty but know comparatively nothing concerning the grand and beautiful whole that God has organized and framed to govern the great universe. We know but little in fact concerning this system in which our earth has its orbit. The great astronomers on the 17th day of November last, during the time of what was called the great magnetic storm, gazed into the sun, seeing those spots there which Jesus evidently referred to when he said that in the last days there should be signs in the sun. These men tell us there was a chasm in the great outer heated surface of the sun, eighty-seven thousand miles across it. They say that there was a great cyclone in the sun, and they saw, through their telescopes, masses of flame rising up many thousands of miles, from the surface of the sun. They saw a mighty chasm, and altogether they counted over one hundred dark spots upon the sun, fulfilling the saying of Jesus that he spoke concerning there being seen in the latter days "signs in the sun and in the moon." They have shown these things by their inventive powers; but they can not trace what influence there is between the sun and the earth; they can not tell why that storm in the sun influenced this earth, until there was what was called a magnetic storm over the earth, in consequence of which the telegraphic instruments of the earth would not work, and by which fire was seen to flash forth, and the power of man was vain to accomplish anything in the government of this influence, it was so much greater than usual, more than ever known before. So men can see a little ways into the workings of the laws of God, but they can not find him out by their own wisdom; they have no power in themselves to gain the knowledge of God. They can gaze but just a little way into the workings of his will and of his laws, but, unaided by him, can go no further. Yet a great many people deny the existence of a God. They see the working of his law; they see the beauty, the method, the harmony and the accuracy of the grand and beautiful order of God, until, as we have said, they can calculate for years ahead the eclipses, or the conjunctions, or the transits, and tell these to the very hour, to the very minute, and yet there are some who deny the existence of the great master mind, the personal intelligence that framed and formed and ordained these very laws. They tell us that these things come by chance, forgetting in their unbelief, that a blind God can not make a seeing man; forgetting the existence of him of whom it is declared, "He that hath formed the eye, shall he not see? and he that hath framed the ear, shall he not hear." Forgetting that that which has no mind, which has no power in itself, can not make something that can see and hear and comprehend.

I marvel, I wonder, to think that men will tell us that a lawyer so trained as Ingersoll, and that others, great and leading minds yet sceptics, will tell us that matter is eternal, that force is eternal, that even law itself is eternal, and there they stop and are not willing to admit the existence of a God, the giver of this eternal law, the embodiment of eternal force, the organizer of eternal matter. Yet we see around us personal beings, and personal beings are common objects, those having intelligence and power, with wonderful faculties and inventive skill, endowed with such ability as alone a master mind could have given to them. An intelligent mind placed within a body, having such ability, such power, and such thoughts and desires, these indicate the existence of a mightier being than man.

And while people deny the existence of a God, of a Maker, we all know that no law can exist or be in force except it is by the power of the mind of some one who framed it. When we look upon the laws around us we say that if the law is lame, or foolish, or vain, that it was not a broad mind that made it; but if we look upon some law where there is infinite order, bringing to pass exactly that for which it was framed and intended, we say, "It was a master mind that made that law." We look upon the universe and see these laws in the heavens above and in the earth beneath, and to say that these needed no mind, needed no intellect, needed no power to form the laws by which these things are ordered and brought to pass, would be absurd. This shows to us that man needs to understand the things of God, and to turn with his whole heart to that which is greater and mightier than himself. Man looks up to a higher than himself, whose grace he lives by; upon which he depends for every breath that he breathes, and every particle of food that he eats, and for the clothes that he wears, for all the comforts and necessities and luxuries of life; a being who is greater than himself, one who has made the law by which he exists and lives upon the earth, and through whom the life to come is to be revealed, and its laws and blessings made known.

It is plain that a God is possible. A personal being can be. Is it not possible that there is a greater personal being than ourselves, who declares himself to be God, even as the beginning of the Bible says, "In the beginning, God." While man seeks to trace back by inductive reasoning from the present to the past, and to find a cause, the Bible begins with the statement, "In the beginning, God." It does not trace it back; it does not do as Darwin does, declare that all life and animation began with an existing protoplasm from which all life has sprung, with all its variations and forms; but it begins with the grand statement, "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." When there was no man to declare what was to be declared, except by the revelations of God, when man could not find it out by his own wisdom, it was given of God unto man, and men wrote it, and the science of man but proves it.

To us, then, there is reason to believe the word here spoken: "When in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased him by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."

So, when we return back again to a consideration of the people of whom we spoke, as the people that had a law from God, we find that they had such a law before the oracles of God had ceased to them, but their interpretation was a vain interpretation. Joseph tell us that for upwards of two hundred years before the time when Jesus came into the world the Urim and Thummim had ceased to shine, and God had ceased to reveal himself to the world. They had so far departed from him, that he no longer spoke unto them as he had done unto their fathers and from that time they had been without revelation from God. We read this in history. We know that when Jesus came they had no prophets, they had no teachers from God, and he came into the world to declare unto them a restoration of that which they had before forfeited, if they would receive it.

The text that I have quoted conveys to us the idea of knowledge existing with God and not in the mind of man, except it was given by divine aid, and this was heavenly knowledge, having power to save from all evil. Hence Christ came to bear witness to that truth; and when Jesus was standing before Pilate he declared that he came to bear witness to the truth; but Pilate asked the question, "What is truth?" as though he might have said to him, "Where is truth? Here are the professed followers of God; here are the Pharisees and the Saducees of your own people, for you are a Jew; here are these people professing to have the oracles of God, all divided, and one man's truth is not the truth of another man, and one man does not follow the same theory that another man does." It is no wonder that he asked him the question, as if in derision, "What is truth?" Jesus said that he came to bear witness to the truth. Was it not time, high time that some one should come into the world who could bear witness to the truth as coming directly from heaven, when they were so divided and subdivided, that even Pilate could ask, "What is truth?"

What was Pilate? He belonged to a people who were led according to the superstitions of their Roman mythology. They worshiped different gods, as Jupiter, Mercurius, and others. There was nothing truth to them but that which the judgment of each might set up. And we may go to a similar time in the history of Greece, when the Stoics, the Sceptics, the Sophists, the Electics, and the School of Anaxagorus, and the other schools of philosophers taught each their own theories, and each in its own way and manner, and there was no security, no certainty, and they themselves declared that they could not know the truth. What did the sceptic state in ancient Greece? He declared, "We can never know the truth of anything, not even the truth of this assertion itself." Was not this the climax of absurdity? "We can never know the truth of anything, not even the truth of this assertion itself." Was not this the climax of worldly wisdom? What did the Sophists say? The Sophists "denied that reason had thus far succeeded in ascertaining, anything," and affirmed that it is "incapable of determining the truth at all;" that even the thoughts in our possession we can not recognize as being truth, and the "terms right and wrong are mere fictions." The Electics said that "It is impossible for us to be certain even when we utter the truth." Anaxagoras asserted that snow is black, not white; for it is composed of water which is not white. He said, "Nothing can be known, nothing can be learned, nothing can be certain." Now these were the theories of the great leading schools of ancient Greece. They had arrived at this point, that which was spoken by one of their wisest men, fulfills his own thought: "O that there would one come from God and teach us the truth." They had arrived at that condition in which they denied the existence of anything, and declared that they could not prove the existence of even themselves, and that snow was not white but black; though it appeared to be white, it was really black, for the water that came from it was dark. These were the theories and ideas of these ancient people. It shows that there came a time, a necessary time, when if there was any truth (Pilate asked Jesus, What is truth?) that it should be revealed from heaven; as Jesus declares, "I came forth from the Father, and came into the world, and the words that I speak, he gave me a commandment what I should say and what I should speak."

There came a necessary time; and I claim to-day in preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ, that no man can know the truth except it be revealed to him individually, not to his forefathers, not to some one else, but he must know the truth for himself, for as Job declared in ancient time, "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and in the latter days he shall stand upon the earth; I shall see him and my eyes shall behold him." He knew for himself.

If we have the light of God we shall not walk in darkness, but we shall have the light of life; and the light of heaven will instruct us, if we are prepared ourselves to receive it and walk in it. These are the words that this man used in ancient times, this is what he expressed and if we live in subjection to the law of God this light from heaven shall be with us wherever we go. We declare always that we must live in subjection to the law of God, to the light of eternal truth; the light that is from him, and thus we will be made acquainted with the ways of eternal life; we shall be acquainted with the King of that country and then we shall receive from him the knowledge that will give us life eternal. They could not go by the theories or the will of men; but as the text which I have quoted says, "When in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching, to save them that believe." Is it the foolishness of preaching to God? No it is the foolishness to man, who is willing to cast it aside, and call it non-essential; who is willing to scorn it from the height of his knowledge and wisdom; is willing to scorn the theory that there is anything that he has not power within himself to obtain.

We read with wonder some of the sayings of Colonel Ingersoll, expressed with all that power and force of language, sarcasm, ridicule, and we might say blasphemy, we wonder, I say, that a man with such intellectual power can declare such scurrilous things to the people, and seemingly simply for notoriety and fame and money; strange that he can stand up and say such things in the face of the fact that his own ability and power, must have come from some one greater than himself. I marvel to think that men are willing to declare themselves without subjection to God's law, and yet they know within themselves that they could not subsist without the rule of that law, made by some being greater than themselves. They deny the existence of that Being who is indeed the great keeper of the law, and the great giver of the law; and yet themselves expect to depend upon that very law for the breath that they breathe, and the life and blessings that they enjoy and have.

So we do not wonder that Pilate asked the question, "What is truth?" He saw division and skepticism among the receivers of the oracles of God. No manifestations of the power of God. It was "lo here," and "lo there." I believe it was much in that day as it has been in this day, when I heard a minister preach a sermon in which he declared, "that the Bible was a hundred books to a hundred persons, and one man can see one part of the truth, that no other of them can see;" and he argued that one man can be saved by that one hundredth part of the truth. But Jesus declared that he would send his Spirit, and that "It shall guide you into all truth," not into the hundredth part of it. I marvel that men stand up and declare these things, ministers for God, ambassadors for Christ can declare, that "the Bible is a hundred books to a hundred persons; and one man can see one part of the truth that no other man can see," when Jesus hath declared that the Spirit shall guide them that receive it, "into all truth; it shall take of the things of God and show it unto them and shall show you things to come."

I do not wonder at what Professor Swing said in Chicago, in February, 1875, when he stood up to dedicate the Presbyterian Chapel in that City. He then said: "The kingdom of God has, either by accident or design, been broken into a multitude of fragments, and we meet to-day in the name of only one of these numerous and widely scattered parts." I do not wonder that he declared this. Yet he sought to patch up this matter, and said that "Perhaps each one of these fragments in its diversity, was just as pleasing to God as the whole was as it originally existed." Furthermore he said in this language: "The flag that we lift to-day in dedicating this chapel is Presbyterian, not because the kingdom of God is Presbyterian, but because our form of thought was cast in the Presbyterian mould."

When was the Presbyterian mould formed? Centuries upon centuries after Jesus came into the world declaring that he came "to bear witness to the truth," and that "whosoever shall do his will, shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself." But here is a man dedicating a church to God, as he declares, a fragment of the once beautiful whole, not because the kingdom of God is Presbyterian, but because "our form of thought" was cast in the Presbyterian mould.

Is there not then a necessity now for a return to the mould and the form that Jesus taught, that Jesus Christ himself presented to man? If this is the case, "that the kingdom of God has been broken into a multitude of fragments," as confessed by this great preacher of the latter days, must it not be revealed from heaven to earth again, and thereby the word be fulfilled that, "When in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased him by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe?"

Let him call it foolishness who will. Let him despise it and call it foolishness who will, and scorn the word of God. The matter stands between himself and his God. It is not between us and you, it is between you and your God.

And, if the truth is declared again, it may be revealed to the shepherds upon the plain, or to some poor old Anna or Simeon, and not to the Sanhedrim, or to the mighty men among Jews or Gentiles.

Was it hard that the gospel should come to the shepherds upon the plains of Bethlehem, or the poor and the aged and the needy? That the gospel should be preached to them was the very desire of Jesus Christ when he was in the world.

Knowledge of this world comes by exploration. Science comes to us by study. Man may climb to heaven by the things he has invented; he may tell us that there are eighteen millions of suns in the milky way although we can see but six thousand, with the naked eye on the fairest of nights; he may reveal the wonders of the sun, moon and planets of the divers systems; he may tell us the center of the systems and measure their distances; he may tell us these things, but if he undertakes to climb to that heaven which is beyond, and take knowledge of it, he can not do it except as revealed by the word of God. He may perform all these wonderful things; he may do all these wonders, yet he fails to pierce the unknown.

There are upon the other hand those who have claimed to find him out through the ministrations of those who are dead; through those who have lived with us and who now return to us in spirit. What is their testimony? I heard one of the great apostles of the Spiritualists some fourteen years ago, and Bro. Jones over there heard him too, and he testified that in the statements made to them by the spirits that eight times out of nine the manifestations were false. He made that statement, and acknowledged that eight times out of every nine the spirits of the dead who came back to earth told falsehoods, either in relation to time, place, or persons. He said: "Some of them take the names of great men to attract attention, and when they reveal certain matters as to time and place, we find they do not always tell the truth, hence there is a necessity for better spiritual mediums. But shall we believe all to be false because some are so? Because some men lie, do we disbelieve all men, and say that all men are liars?" Look at the sophistry! We may submit to be cheated in regard to a piece of land, or in a trade, or about something of this kind, but when it comes to a dependence upon that revealed concerning the world to come, something about the journey to that land where our fathers and mothers have gone; where our dear kindred have gone; when it comes to that which lies before us as an eternity, shall we depend upon that knowledge which has been shown by their own apostles to be falsehoods eight times out of nine? No. Then let us depend upon that word of God which is revealed from heaven, which the apostle says for himself, "I received it not of man, neither was I taught it by man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." Not through some departed dead, but through the revelations of God; and the revelations must agree with the voice of the law and the testimony that have gone before, "For if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." And here comes to us this glad thought, that in the declaration of the truth of God there are three witnesses agreeing in one. The voice of the testimony that has been written in former times by those whom God inspired, and who were moved upon by his Spirit; we have the voice of their testimony. Then comes the voice of the preacher, and his voice must agree with the voices of those who have gone before. Thirdly, there shall come the voice of that which I have spoken of, even of that spirit from heaven, and these three shall agree with each other, and their testimony shall stand in the eternal judgment of God; for, "In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established." Here we have the God given witnesses, and they must agree the one with the other.

I tell you Latter Day Saints that this is a glad thought in my heart always, that these three witnesses agree in one. When the preacher stands up to declare that which is in his heart and mind, weigh it by the word that has been written before; weigh it by the Spirit of truth in your hearts; for these three must agree in one; and they shall stand always. If ye receive yourselves of that light which is promised to enlighten those who receive it, ye shall walk in safety; for the testimony of Jesus is: "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him at the last day." "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye have eternal life, and they are they that testify of me." To his disciples: "Ye are my witnesses, and so also is the Holy Ghost, which God hath given to them that love him."

It is not upon one witness, or upon one testimony, that the Latter Day Saints depend. It is not simply upon the law or the traditions; it is not simply upon the written word, but it depends largely upon the testimony of that Spirit of God with which the others must agree. Not the voice of one out of nine; not the voice where eight times out of nine it is falsehood, and only one remains true, and no one perhaps who can tell us which one of the nine is truth. What a dependence that would be for knowledge! Thank God, he hath made it possible in latter days as well as in former times, for us to have a standard, a criterion; it is possible now; and men shall be judged by that criterion, by that which is given. They shall not be judged by the voice of one witness, but by the voice of two or three. He who believes not the written word of the Lord, there shall come against him the voice of the testimony, as Jesus himself declared: "If ye had believed Moses ye would have believed me." Next comes against him the voice of the preacher, preaching the same doctrine and truth, agreeing with that which was written beforetime. Against him who believes not there comes the voice of these two witnesses. But he who receives the truth, who obeys the gospel, there comes against him if he keeps not the law, if he remains not faithful to the end, there comes against him, in addition, the third great witness, which also bears testimony against him. But if he has been faithful, there shall be three witnesses in his favor, bearing witness that he has kept the law, that he is worthy to enter into the kingdom of God.

Hence we see what cheap communications men would give to us. I do not wonder that they are cheap! I do not wonder that any one can be a writing medium, a Spiritual medium. I do not wonder that those who give themselves up, their bodies and their souls, to the power of that spirit, can receive whatever comes to them. But the knowledge of God is not thus cheap. It shall only be given to those who, with honesty of heart and intent and purpose and motive, bow down before him, not in fear, not as Ingersol says, in dread and awe and blind hope, but because they look up to him as the source of all that is noble, great, good, pure, and true, and worship him because he is all this, and they ask him for the light that comes from heaven, for the light that is sent forth unto them, for their eternal life and blessedness and peace.

It is not cheap. Truth has always been dear. It is that for which men have died, for which they have given their lives, for which the Son of God gave his life, because he came to bear witness to the truth, saying unto them: "If I had come in my own name, ye would have received me; but because I come in my father's name ye receive me not." He came to bear witness of the truth from heaven. He came not in kingly power and royal robes; he did not come to break off the yoke of Roman bondage from the Jews. They expected that he would make them governors of the world. But because they were not yet rulers over themselves, he came to bring the law from heavens, the law by which they should become rulers over themselves. He came to bring from heaven the law by which they might be sanctified and purified, and be fitted for usefulness, so that when they should be able to see that grander truth that "Greater is he that ruleth his own spirit than he that taketh a city," that when they should have found the truth that came from heaven, that then they should be fitted for that which is greater and mightier in God's own time.

I will not keep you longer this morning save to say this: To exhort you to remember that these men who are kings, emperors and rulers, have laws which govern their dominions, and they make rules and orders which we must be subject to. If we would journey to Russia or Austria, or anywhere else upon the earth, we must learn the laws, rules and customs of that country, if it is possible, so that when we go there we shall not transgress the laws and be cast into prison, as some Americans have been in foreign countries. They were without purpose of transgressing the law, but were cast into Austrian prisons, as I have read, because they were ignorant of the laws. They had failed to prepare themselves with the knowledge of the laws and rules, with the customs and manners of that country to which they were journeying. We have not denied the right of the emperor, or of the king, or of the powers that be, to make such laws. So God hath made laws to rule and govern his kingdom, which law is before us; and shall we not be willing to say that we will submit ourselves to that law, which he has given and revealed to men? Shall we not be willing to submit ourselves to him who is greater and mightier than any earthly potentate? Then when we shall stand in his presence there will be one, even the Son of God, who will say, "Here is my brother, here is my sister, they have kept my law, even as I have kept thy law; and they are worthy to sit down with me in my kingdom, even as I was worthy to sit down with my Father in his kingdom!" Shall we not then be willing to believe in his kingdom, and that he has the right and the authority, as much as any earthly ruler, to make the laws and rules that shall govern the subjects that shall dwell there? And will we not be also willing to admit that we shall dwell in a place that we shall be fitted for, and for which we shall be worthy?

Take this home to your thoughts and your minds, and remember that you are journeying to a kingdom that is beyond, a kingdom that is to come. Whether we have faith that this shall be so or not, still it is true as the sun shines yonder that these spirits of ours shall live, and they shall live in that society for which they shall be fitted. We shall dwell in that society that we shall be fitted for, even as Jesus told his disciples: "I go away to prepare a place for you, that where I am, there ye may be also."

And the wicked, those who had not received his law, he said unto them: "I go away, and whither I go ye know not. Ye shall seek me and shall not find me. Ye shall die in your sins, and where I am ye can not come." Why? Not because God wished to take from them the right, or to take from them salvation, but because they were not fitted for that society; they had not prepared to enter in and to have happiness there, with God.

So we say that God has revealed from Heaven the law of God in latter days. In answer to the other statement made by Professor Swing, "That the Kingdom of God has been broken into a multitude of fragments, and we meet to day in the name of only one of these numerous and widely scattered parts," we say God has in his own time and in his own way, proposed to establish that kingdom as a whole, and that he has started that work upon the earth. It is not yet perfect, far from it; but we say that the work is of God, and the time shall come when the kingdom that Professor Swing says "has been broken into fragments," shall again be established, and the Lord shall be king over all the earth; "and the kingdom, and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heavens, shall be given to the Saints of the Most High, and they shall possess it forever and ever; whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all nations shall serve and obey him."

It is but the beginning, but the end shall come, even as Daniel was told, "thou shalt stand in thy lot," and "at the end of days" he was to receive reward, glory and honor. Therefore we suffer reproach because we believe in God, and in the revelations that have come to us in the latter days. We may receive contumely and suffer scorn, and be set aside, but remember that the foolishness of God is greater than the wisdom of man, and the Lord God is mightier than man, and the poor and the meek God has made the earth for, and the meek of the earth shall dwell upon it.

We say unto you this has come from God. These words are true, however feeble men may be—and God knows that I tremble many times when I think how poor and frail is mortal man, in his weak and sinful and erring condition. But we say, lifting up holy hands to God, his work is true; and his word endureth forever. And there shall be some who shall be established in the time to come, who shall enjoy the fruits of their labors, who have lived lives of righteousness here; they shall enter into that which shall come to them as the reward of God, if they are faithful. This we must do for ourselves, feeling as we go along the path of life that we are poor and feeble, frail and erring. But may God grant to us light divine that it may indeed be "a light to our feet and a lamp to our path; so that when he shall come we may be among the wise virgins and ready to enter in, is my prayer for myself, and for all the Israel of God, in Jesus name. Amen.

FINANCE AND EDUCATION.

Editor Herald:—The last report of the Church Recorder shows a total membership of something over sixteen thousand. Examination of the last reports of the Bishop and his Agents will show that exclusive of the proceeds of the sale of church property and dividend of Order of Enoch, there has been paid into the general church fund about seven thousand dollars within the last six months. Of this amount about twenty-five hundred dollars was paid by six persons and the remainder, in sums ranging from one cent to ninety dollars, by about eight hundred persons. These amounts may not be absolutely, but are approximately correct; nearly enough so for the purpose in view. It may be said that the large amounts given by the few are exceptional and not to be expected every six months, and that the number of contributors is perhaps too small. Well, throwing out the twenty-five hundred dollars and calling the number of donors one thousand, and we have four thousand dollars as the amount paid into the general church treasury during the six months ending March 31st, 1883, by these thousand people.

Now it may be fairly assumed that since this thousand contributions come from all classes and from all parts of the world; from the city and from the country, from the professional man, from the merchant, from the mechanic, the farmer and the laborer, from men, women and children, that what any one thousand has done, any other thousand in the church, selected in the same manner, is equally able to do.

Granting that of the total membership there are a thousand who are members of the church in name only, and who take no interest in her welfare, we have the right to believe that there ought to be at least fifteen times four thousand, or sixty thou-and dollars, received by the Bishop and his Agents in each six months.

That this result could be very closely approximated by earnest, energetic and systematic exertion there can be little, if any doubt. Sixteen cents a week from each of the fifteen thousand members of the church would more than accomplish it; and while there are undoubtedly some who could give nothing, there are others who could give many times that amount, some without inconvenience, and others by the exercise of more or less self-denial. The value of the food saved by a day's fasting; for the denizen of the city, a box or two of berries or a peck of peas the less in the week, or an occasional "dinner of herbs;" (minus the accustomed meat); in the village or on the farm, a pound of butter from the weekly churning, or a couple of hens with their eggs and chickens, or a load of corn or a corner of the big corn-field, would easily supply the required amount. With very few exceptions, and with the aid of those who can and will give comparatively large amounts, we can, each and every one of us, contribute our quota if we will, and it would seem that all that should be needed to accomplish it is that the subject be, in each branch and district, properly and persistently presented. There is no reason why the people should not be as urgently and as forcibly reminded of their duty in this part of the work of the church as in any other. It is probable that to the want of such teaching, more than to any other cause, is to be attributed the small amount of funds in the treasury as compared with the membership in the church.

For it is not that the people are unwilling to give; it is that they do not appreciate the necessity for giving. They see the elder comfortably clad and his personal wants provided for, they listen to and are comforted and instructed by his teachings, but they forget, sometimes, to enquire if he and others like him have not families for whose comfortable maintainance they are in part responsible. They read that the apostles and elders of old went forth, on foot, on their mission of love, and they do not consider that God has, in his infinite wisdom, provided the railroad and the steamboat as means whereby the gospel may be carried to the ends of the earth with a rapidity and ease unattainable in any other way. They concede the necessity for the preaching of the gospel and regret that we can not have more elders in the field, but they forget how important, and indeed, indispensable, is the aid of the press in the rapid, wide and effective dissemination of gospel truths. They have not learned how great would be the influence of one or more good schools or colleges under the control of the church, where, in addition to the acquisition of that education which would fit them for usefulness in the world, the youth of the church would be taught daily, the truth as we believe it and the arguments whereby to defend it, and so be prepared, not only to fight more successfully the battle of life, but be better able to combat error and prejudice and teach to others the lessons they have learned.

We do not think that the man who is unwilling to afford his children greater facilities for education than he himself enjoyed, does not love his children, but only that he does not love wisely; convince him that education is of more value than money, and that the age demands improvement in all that pertains to education as much as in the implements and methods employed in the cultivation of his farm, or in his daily labor, and he will usually be as willing as his neighbors to pay the highest tax that the law can impose. And so we must believe it to be with the thousands who might but who do not contribute to the general fund of the church. It can not be supposed that they do not love the cause in which they have enlisted, or that they are indifferent to its success. Let them be aroused to a realization of the fact that the facilities for the rapid, widespread, and effectual dissemination of gospel truth afforded by the inventions of modern civilization are multiform and great, and that it is the duty of the church to avail itself to the utmost of all these advantages which God in his mercy and wisdom has placed at our disposal; but that this can not be done without considerable expenditure of money, and it must be believed that they would gladly contribute their full quota for this purpose.

It may be that to reach this result much methodical, energetic, and persistent effort may be required; but if we believe that the hearts of the people are in this work, that they earnestly desire that the gospel should be preached to every nation,—not to the few, here and there, but to the masses of the people, everywhere,—then we must believe that such effort will be blessed by God, and that it will be successful. Let us then do our duty in this respect, not only by giving as we may be able, but by also trying to impress upon others the necessity for doing our full duty in this as well as in all other matters pertaining to the service of God.

BE CHEERFUL

There is much in a look. There is a world of influence in a face; and a bright, sunny countenance will bring cheer and sunshine into the most rainy day, and ease the pain of the sick room. There are faces that rest us to watch them, and there are honest, open faces we would trust anywhere. Then let us be careful of our frowns and fretful expressions; they will leave their mark if allowed often to visit our faces. Let us feel that bright looks and cheery words together are a powerful influence for good.

Standing near a coffin, a few days ago, as the mourning friends passed slowly by, taking their last look at a beloved form, I heard one say: "How beautiful she was!" I looked at the pale face of the dead woman and thought—What made her beautiful? The features were not all regular, and no artist would have chosen her for a model beauty. It was the love for God and man that had beamed from her eyes: their sunshine lighting up her whole life and making her a comfort to all who knew her, and the light of a home.

God has given us our faces to aid our hands in doing his work, and we should remember that they have their ministry.

"Beautiful faces are those that wear
The charm of a happy spirit there;
It matters nothing if dark or fair."

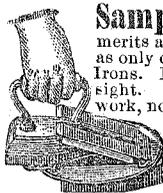

You never get to the end of Christ's words. There is something in them always behind. They pass into proverbs; they pass into laws; they pass into doctrines; they pass into consolations; but they never pass away, and after all the use that is made of them they are still not exhausted.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 7th July, 1883.

REV. L. L. LUSE has taken umbrage at Bro. R. M. Elvin's letter in Herald, and has written bitterly, as will be seen in his communication. Of the truthfulness of the statements made by Bro. Elvin we can not write from personal knowledge; but our acquaintance with him warrants the belief that he has not wilfully misstated anything. The language used by Rev. Luse is reprehensible. His allusions to Joseph Smith, senior, are very disrespectful, and lacking in courtesy to a great degree. We know nothing about the reverend gentleman, only what appears from his letter. But from that one can easily gather that in the event of a debate he would depend more upon invective and ridicule than upon any real strength there might be in his cause. We trust that Bro. Elvin will be careful to maintain the courteous treatment of those engaged in this controversy that men of gentle minds should demand of each other. Invective, ridicule and scurrility are not argument. They are weapons of forensic warfare that are singularly two edged and sharp. If handled unskillfully they wound the user and the user's cause more than those they are purposely used against. They ought never to be resorted to by him who feels that "Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just."

THE Congregational Church Record for 1883 states that there are in the United States 1,025 ministers unemployed, and 1,003 churches without pastors. Rather a melancholy showing for Congregationalism. If the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad had 1,003 stations wanting occupants it could easily find 1,025 qualified men to fill them. If the cattle kings of California, Arizona and Texas knew where there were 1,003 markets where fat cattle were needed, there would soon be 1,025 beeves on hand at those places to supply the demand. What is the matter with the Congregational law of demand and supply? It evidently needs overhauling and adjusting. Has it been Beecherized?

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE congregation of the Nebraska City, Nebraska, branch, has been increased by thirteen baptisms quite recently.

Bro. G. A. Blakeslee, President of the Board of Publication, visited Lamoni from June 22d to 26th, on business connected with the Office. He reports that there is no news of the defaulting secretary.

Monday, June 25th, was general visiting day at the Herald Office, there having been twenty-one visitors received that day. This does not include Brn. G. A. Blakeslee and E. Banta, present on business, but is simply the number of casual sight seers of that day.

Bro. T. W. Smith baptized three, June 23d, at Springerton, White county, Illinois, one of them a Disciple preacher, D. W. Stone by name, a man of fair repute as a preacher and debater.

If you have not read the sermon in the HERALD for June 30th, hunt it up and read it, by all means. It is an excellent one; full of thought and good points.

Bro. Heman C. Smith was at Nebraska City quite lately. Bro. J. W. Waldsmith writes that "Our little church came near being too small last Sunday night. It was crowded full." That is good. Fill up the pews with people and the preacher with the Spirit, and the Lord's name will be glorified.

Bro. R. M. Elvin has sent us several copies of the Opposition, a newspaper published at Wilber, Nebraska, containing letters between Eld. L. L. Luse and himself respecting a controversial discussion, which was (or is) to be held at Wilber, between a representative of the M. E. Church and the Latter Day Saints. Each seems to have a poor opinion of the other's good qualities for telling the matter of difficulty straight. We have printed a letter from each of them.

Bro. Joseph Seddon wrote June 25th from Persia, Iowa, that as Administrator of the Leland estate, he tendered the use of Leland's Grove, to the committee on the Saints' Reunion, to be held this fall, if it should be found suitable and available by the committee at their meeting for the deciding place and arranging the details of the meeting.

Henry Ward Beecher is contemplating retiring from the active ministry of Plymouth Church. From a late statement by him we gather that he is impressed that after him, Plymouth Church will fall into decay. He says that if in the Divine economy Plymouth Church has filled the mission of its creation, he could almost wish that the same bolt of divine destruction should fall on building and congregation. Then he would go up, or down town, and build a much smaller building, and there end his ministerial career in quiet usefulness. He thinks that he would not like to continue to minister in the great church until some one of his considerate friends should need to tell him, for his and the church's good to stop. He evidently fears his dotage.

IN our review of the Deseret News we omitted the name of Lyman Wight in connection with John E. Page and William Smith, as of those who were driven from the original twelve because they could not endorse the views of Pres. Brigham Young. Our attention was called to this omission by a brother who has spent much thought on the position occupied by the Reorganization; and who has evidently come to some of the conclusions presented in our review. His presentation of it adds strength to the argument. Three were removed by defection and three taken out by creating of the Presidency by Pres. Young, viz: John E. Page, Wm. Smith and Lyman Wight, by defection from Pres. Young's rule; Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards, taken out to form the Presidency in 1847. This left the twelve without a quorum, so far as the original twelve were concerned. This leaves the matter open to question; could such a reforming be done without a command by revelation? It is thought not by some, and there are quite good grounds for believing that it could not properly be done. The command to reorganize did not come to Pres. Young, or to that people; but it did come to those who had remained in the original faith. We thank Bro. Heman C. Smith for calling our attention to the point named.

THE CHRISTIAN ERA.

Prof. Sattler, of Munich, claims the distinction of having solved the problem as to the year in which Christ was born and of having demonstrated the fact that the current year is probably 1888 instead of 1883. He bases his proofs mainly on three coins which were struck in the reign of Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, and which date, consequently, from the first half of the first century of the current era. Madden admits the genuineness of these coins, and other numismatic writers do the same. The evidence they offer is said to coincide with the narrative of the Gospels, and with astronomical calculations. The following are the results at which Prof. Sattler has arrived: Jesus was born on the 25th of December, 749 years after the founding of Rome, and commenced his public career on the 17th of November, 780 years after the founding of Rome. He was then 30 years, 10 months and 22 days old. The date on which he commenced his career fell in the fifteenth year of the Emperor Tiberius, and in the forty-sixth year after the building of Herod's Temple. This is in accordance with St. Luke 3:1, and St. John 2:20. Jesus died on the 7th of April, 783 of the Roman era—that is to say, on the Friday before the Passover; for it has been ascertained by exact calculation that Passover fell that year on 7th of April, 783; and as the latter year was a Jewish leap-year, and consisted, accordingly, of thirteen months. His public career lasted two years and seven months. According to Prof. Sattler, the Christian reckoning is at fault by five years, and we are now, therefore, in 1888, and not in 1883.

The foregoing is sent us by Bro. John S. Patterson, of Sandwich, Illinois, who remarks, in regard to it, that he thinks April 6th is the date of the Savior's death. Bro. Isaac Sheen was, after a great amount of research, impressed also with the conviction that the day that the Savior was crucified was the 6th of April, and that the organization of the Church April 6th, 1830, was the result of a divine purpose. To what intent it was so done, he could not say, other than that it was connected with other grand events in their places, as parts of a great and continuous plan of procedure, by which the redemption and glorification of man were to be brought about.

Forgetfulness is one of the broad ways of sin. A ship can be lost by carelessness as well as by design. The evils of life come mainly through inattention.

THE Ministers' Alliance, of St. Louis, Mo., we presume, met in that city lately. The following, sent us by Bro. T. W. Smith, will show the subject under consideration, and the extent of Bible knowledge among these ministers upon it. To those who believe that "God set some in the church" it will seem strange that men should agree that there was no form of church organization and government provided for in the New Testament. With the added light of the revelations given to the church it seems quite clear to us that there is such provision for church government as makes it easy to carry on the work.

THE MINISTERS' ALLIANCE.

The ministers' alliance met as usual yesterday morning at the Christian church, Rev. C. C. Woods, president; Rev. J. W. Johnson, secretary pro tem. The members present were Revs. Bell, Brown, Ewing, Hanna, Hull, Hopkins, Johnson, Rogers, Schaff, Woods and Williams.

Rev. J. E. Godfrey, of St. Louis; Rev. J. M. L. Hoyle, of Carbondale, and Rev. D. G. Stouffer, of Illinois, being present, were invited to sit with the alliance.

A motion to adjourn from the last Monday in June until the last Monday in September prevailed, the alliance during those three months to meet only subject to the call of the president.

An invitation from Rev. Mr. Hull to eat strawberries at his house at 3 o'clock next Friday was accepted.

Rev. Dr. Bell, of the committee on the Bible cause, reported arrangements for holding mass meetings soon in the interest of the Bible society.

The hour for the regular discussion having arrived, the secretary announced the question, as follows: "Do the New Testament scriptures teach any specific form of church government?"

Rev. C. C. Woods opened the discussion by reading a paper, in which he spoke first of the importance of knowing what the Lord reveals and then said that whoever approached the investigation of the subject with the hope or expectation of finding not only constitutional provisions, but statutory enactments as well would be disappointed, as it would be impossible to find any rule, which seems intended to apply to all times and places, the provisions being general and anything approaching particularity being after a local character so that the Divine idea of church government must be taken from hints, suggestions and incidents. He held that the position that there were two orders in the ministry taught was unanswerable. He next adduced history to show that from the beginning much had been left to the sanctified wisdom of the church, and that they had been left free to adopt such measures as might seem to them best in carrying out the work of the church, and argued that if they were free to adopt one method or another, and to change methods as experience might dictate, so were the ministry of the present day, and if the former must learn in the school of experience, so must the latter, and in neither case was it necessary to suppose any moral obliquity. As to whether the connectional or congregational idea was revealed, he answered unhesitatingly "no," in the sense in which those terms were now used. He closed by asserting that the force of this democratic age is dangerous to the church.

Rev. Mr. Hull said the church was as old as Christianity, yet he did not believe there was any specific forms taught in the New Testament. Had there been, considering the character of the early converts there would have been endless disputations, but there was no form nor even any creed until the year 225 A. D., except perhaps. "I believe in Christ as the only son of God."

Rev. Mr. Brown believed there was scriptural authority for pastors and deacons but for no other officers in the church and that the New Testament did give enough law by which to govern the church.

Rev. Mr. Rogers thought there were certain general principles taught but nothing very specific.

Rev. Mr. Hanna said the New Testament church had a form of government, but whatever it might have been, he did not believe it was to be the law throughout all ages. He thought the Jewish synagogue government was that in use in the early Christian church.

Rev. Mr. Hopkins believed the Lord came to establish a religion that should be universal, and that the charter of the church was his words: "Where there are two or three gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them." He believed that ministers had the right to use any form suitable to the wants of the people ministered to. As an illustration, he spoke of the fact that on the evening before he had organized a church of thirty members near the packing houses, in the bottom, and that the members of the new organization had passed a resolution placing themselves under the pastoral care of the First Congregational church.

Rev. Bell believed a three minutes' discussion of such a question a mere farce. He believed a government was found in the New Testament scriptures, though not necessarily a cast iron one. He believed there was liberty to act within certain limits.

Rev. Mr. Stouffer did not think the form of government of the early Christian church was any criterion for people in this day and age of the world.

Rev. Mr. Godfrey was of the opinion that the ministry was the only permanent authority in the church. The ministers were to lay down the law and rules for the church and yet at the same time they were not to assume to be above God's spirit.

Rev. Dr. Woods closed the discussion by speaking of the tendency of the age to disregard the divine authority of the ministry.

Upon motion it was decided to appoint a representative from each denomination to present their views upon the subject discussed in papers, eight minutes in length, to be made the order for two weeks. The following were appointed: Rev. Mr. Hanna, Presbyterian; Rev. Mr. Williams, Congregational; Rev. Mr. Beggs, Methodist; Rev. Dr. Haley, Christian; Rev. Mr. Roberts, Baptist; Rev. Mr. Waltz, Lutheran; Rev. Mr. Hull, Universalist.

The benediction was then pronounced by Rev. Mr. Hoyle, and the alliance adjourned.

Question for one week: "Is the tendency of the teachings of the higher institutions of learning in America toward Christianity or infidelity?"

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Correspondence.

SANDWICH, Illinois,

June 25th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—After my return home, I commenced making garden. I preached twice while at home, and went twice to Leland, once to administer to, and subsequently to preach the funeral sermon of Grandma Thomason. Left home on a mission tour May 4th, going first to Cortland, where I preached three times and baptized and confirmed one. Left the Saints there feeling better for my visit. On May 12th went to Chicago, and on the morning of the 13th by request of Bro. Lambert, occupied the stand; and in the evening had the pleasure of listening to Bro. Lambert.

On the 16th took passage for Janesville, Wisconsin, where I was met by Bro. O. N. Dutton, who took me to his home, five miles out. We immediately set about making arrangements for holding meetings. Sent a notice to Indian Ford, Rock county, six miles from Bro. Dutton's, informing them of our intended coming the following Sunday, which we did; and I had the privilege of speaking twice that day in a new school-house, erected recently by the inhabitants of the village. I met a kind reception from the people, among whom were an uncle and aunt of Bro. F. P. Scarecliff's; also a Mr. Johnson through whose influence the use of the school-house was obtained, and a Mr. Call, all of whom entertained me in a kindly spirit. I remained in that neighborhood by request eight days, preaching in all seven times to good audiences, and was blessed with good liberty. When I left, I was urgently requested to come again. I believe that several were favorably impressed with the doctrine. While there I made a visit to Sr. Gibbs in the town of Porter, found her in feeble health, being far advanced in years, but with those of her family belonging to the Church strong in the faith and hope of the gospel.

On May 27th returned with Bro. Dutton to his house after preaching twice, and on the 29th was taken by him in his buggy to the residence of Bro. Chester Bass, some eighteen or twenty miles, where I learned that an appointment was out for me that evening at the town house, six miles south-west, this place is within five miles of Beloit, and the place where the Briggs brothers spent their boyhood days. While here the weather was wet and stormy, preventing us from doing much. I remained six days and preached four times, twice at the town-house and twice at a school-house near Bro. Bass's. Audiences small but attentive. I also blessed two children belonging to Bro. Chester Bass. Was kindly entertained by him and his father and the family while there, and invited to return again. On the 4th of June I left Beloit by rail for Lyons, near Burlington, Wisconsin, and sojourned at the house of our respected sister, Ann Davis, one of the old time Saints that was driven from Missouri, and was a resident of Nauvoo in the turbulent days, before and subsequent to the death of Joseph and Hyrum. I was interested in hearing her relate much that came under her notice in those early days, and also of the history of Strangism, which once flourished for a short time near to her present residence. I also had a short but pleasant visit with Sr. Aldrich, who lives in that neighborhood. She was just convalescing from a long and severe spell of sickness, and was much pleased to see us. We took a drive over the ground where Voree once was. It has a rather dilapidated appearance to a stranger. A few houses still remain, among others the stone house once the residence of James J. Strang, in which I was informed the phosphorescent endowment was had, also the stone school-house where they used to hold their meetings, at present it is without a roof. The town hall was rented for meetings at Lyons, but the weather proved so wet that we only occupied it once, on Sunday, June 10th. On the 11th I left for home to attend Northern Illinois District Conference, going by way of Racine; and having three hours to wait for the train to Chicago I walked over the ground where the cyclone had previously swept, dealing out death and destruction. The sight was terrible and beyond the power of my pen to describe; but as I stood gazing at the desolation on every hand, the word of the Lord through the Palmyra Seer, came forcibly to my mind, "After your testimony comes the testimony of storm, tempest, fierce and vivid lightning, &c." This as well as other revelations of God are having a speedy and complete fulfillment. On June 16th I attended our district conference where I led two more to the waters of baptism, they are doubtless the fruit of the labors of others. We had a pleasant time at conference. We were favored with the presence and assistance of Bro. Joseph R. Lambert and others from Chicago. I shall remain at home a few days more and shall again take the field, going as wisdom may direct. Kind regards to all in the office and at Lamoni.

As ever yours in bonds,

JOHN S. PATTERSON.

DECATUR, Ill., June 23d, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I have just arrived from Blue Mound, Christian county, where I had a singular reception and experience. I was there on business and the weather being warm, after supper, at the hotel, the guests took their seats outside. I had scarcely looked at the daily paper when I heard an animated discussion which attracted my attention. I found that one party was too many for the other; my natural sympathy for the "under dog in the fight" got the better of me, and I sent a shot at the successful disputant that caused a flutter, and drew his eloquence upon me. He was a soul-sleeper Advent, sharp as a tack, and posted. We commenced about 7 p. m., and wound up at 11 p. m. All the town seemed to have got word, for a large company of men and women gathered round. Occasionally I would receive a stray shot from some excited party, but that was all. The best of order prevailed. About ten I had the soul-sleeping champion downed. What troubled them was to find out what I was. This I did not propose to let them know at that time. When I had laid my traps and my opponent had stepped squarely on, so he could not go farther, then I told them who I was, what church I had the honor of representing; and preached to them on the divinity of the latter day work for an hour, so that for four hours I had the pleasure of preaching to a large concourse of thinkers; men and women stood for three and a half hours listening. I was invited to preach. I had made arrangements to be in town all day and leave on the 10 p. m. train Friday, so I promised that I would if they wished it. At the post office, in the stores, every where the Mormon preacher was discussed. The Christian minister, Mr. Foster, called on me, offering his church. We saw the Elders and it was granted with pleasure. Notice was given of the meeting. I spent three hours and took supper with Mr. Foster, which time was well filled in examining our claims to being the Church of Christ. A large congregation gathered. Men who had not been inside of a church for five years were there. The Christian minister opened my meeting, read the lesson, prayed; and for an hour and a half, with good liberty, I preached the plan of salvation to those people. Imagine my surprise after I got out to hear, "Well that was the best Campbellite sermon I ever heard."

Preachers took notes, but told me at the close they could not object to our position; and yet faith, repentance, baptisms, laying on of hands, and the signs following the believer, was the theme; with this for the text, "Stand ye in the ways and see; and ask for the old paths," &c. It was told me that never was such an interested congregation in that Church. I did not spare any of the sects; yet I kindly showed the errors. O, could we have men that could follow up after I had thus removed the reproach of polygamy, the stumbling block of this generation, such places might be flourishing with a good branch of the Church.

Yours fraternally,

J. A. ROBINSON.

Bro. Joseph:—The Herald comes to hand very regular, and is a very welcome messenger. Its contents are most precious, as we have no preaching up here. I see, however, that some who contribute to its pages have views and ideas that I have not; and for which I will give some in exchange, as I believe it is mutually beneficial to exchange views with one another, hoping that ultimately all will come to the unity of the faith. Here are some of my views which I believe are strictly Scriptural. With a few questions I would like to present to Bro. T. F. Stafford, author of "Men's Hearts Failing them for Fear," in the last Herald. God is love, He is also a just God and can not look upon sin with the least degree of allowance. He has been warning the nations over fifty years, and his arm is stretched out still in love and mercy to the inhabitants of the earth. But he has declared that he will arise and shake terribly the earth; and the powers of heaven shall be shaken; the nations shall be as the chaff of the mountains before the wind, and as a rolling thing before the whirlwind. He is a providential God; a God at hand and not afar off. The devil goeth about as a roaring lion seeking whom he may (not whom he may not) devour; subject to a higher power, as in the case of Job. You may go so far, but no farther, not even to destroy a herd of swine without permission. (See Luke).

Questions. Are the calamities and disasters that are daily transpiring, taking life and property, the judgments of God, or mere frolics of the devil?

Does God know that they are going to transpire before hand, or must he remain ignorant of the calamities till the mischief is done, and he get a telegraph dispatch?

Where is the power obtained by which they are accomplished?

Is God every where present?

Is any life destroyed, or person killed, without his knowledge or notice, even to a sparrow?

Who holds all power in heaven and on earth?

Who is judge of all the earth, and has the right and the power to mete out punishment or reward in justice and mercy.

Please answer these questions, and see if the result will not be that the judgments of God are abroad in the earth, that the inhabitants thereof may learn righteousness.

Yours in the faith of the gospel of Jesus Christ,

RICHARD PREATOR.

Bro. Joseph:—Reading the letters from the dear sisters and brothers from different parts of the world I thought I would like to write something also. I thank and praise God that I have the privilege of reading those beautiful letters; and praise his holy name he ever counted me worthy to become one of his Saints.

I was baptized by Bro. James McDowell, in Waynesbury, Stark county, Ohio. He also baptized my mother and two sisters. Dear brother McDowell, how I would love to hear the sound of his voice once again. I have listened to him preaching some powerful sermons.

We have not the privilege of meeting with the Saints as there don't seem to be any around here, I being the only one. My husband has never heard one of our Elders preach yet. I hope he may and become one too. He likes me to read the Herald to him. I did not know it had become a weekly when I subscribed for it, and how glad I was to see it. May it continue to be a weekly, is my prayer.

Your sister in Christ,

SARAH E. OLSON.

FONTANELLE, Adair Co., Iowa,

Dear Herald:—I see to my mind and understanding some queer sayings or expressions carrying the idea to raw hands or new beginners that the Lord never chastens nor rebukes his Saints, or does any thing to chasten the nations; but allows the devil to do all (shall I say the mischief he pleases). True, I am informed that he has come, or will soon come down to earth having great power, because he knoweth his time is short; yet must I submit to the idea that the Lord never exercises and uses his right to destroy as well as to create? How came it to be written, "Is there evil in the city and the Lord hath not done it?" How came Esdras to say, "Scourges are sent for amendment, yet they heed it not." Will the Lord send or allow the devil to do the destroying; or will he exercise and use his own rights, and thereby prove himself to be a God of love; for I hold and believe that love has a better, or a greater and stronger right to chasten, or correct its own creation than any evil power known on earth. And I believe also, that all the wise and unwise Saints who are permitted to see a few more years will have this fact proved to them so firmly and strongly, that they will acknowledge God and Christ as ever and all right. I would like to ask if it was the devil that overflowed or drowned the Egyptians in the Red sea. Then read the 13th and 14th chapter of Isaiah; see how he founded Zion. Then read 32d and 33d chapter four verses of 34th, then tell me whether the Lord tears things or nations to pieces, or Satan. But I believe this, the more we mix with the old deceiver and follow the customs and fashions of the old mother of harlots, the more power Satan will have over us, and the more calamities we shall see and feel.

Bro. Herald, why do you justify disputation? Do you think you are justified in this dispensation in so doing because they found fault with Peter after he had preached the gospel to the Gentiles? But they had to succumb to Peter's testimony on the point. Does the dispute between Paul and Barnabas justify contradiction even among the wise ones of this day. I think not. Paul taught the Saints in his day, "Let there be no disputations among you;" Jesus, the Lord, said when he was instructing the disciples on this continent, with full force, "Blessed are ye when you have no disputations among you." If it was good or wise for them to do so, then is it not so to-day? My reply is, yea; the less we dispute and contradict the more we honor Him who is author of all things that are good and lovely.

"Love and union is Zion's basis,
Sweet as summer's mornings are;
No affliction, time nor places,
Can the blessings from us tear."

B. ALDEN.

GLENWOOD, Iowa, June 24th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—On receipt of your letter I started on my way for West Point, on Saturday, May 26th, stopped at Omaha; saw Sister Bevins and she said her sister was to be in Omaha on Monday, so I went to the Saints' meeting on Sunday at 2:30, and at 7:30 was asked to preach; did so with good liberty. On Monday Sister Garrison arrived, and being asked by her sister, Mrs. Serev, to come and visit with them, had a talk with her on the gospel, tried to show her the light and was blessed in so doing; received a letter from her to her brother-in-law to aid me in getting a house to preach in at West Point. I went to Fremont, after seeing Bro. Wm. Rumel, president of district, and not getting any train on my arrival, I stayed over night, and the Saints and branch authorities gave out word that there would be meeting at Bro. and Sr. Scofield's house, so I stayed and preached for them Thursday and Friday nights, and on Sunday morning; then went to Bro. Ogard's Branch with Bro. and Sr. Anderson. By Bro. James Ogard's invitation I assisted in the ministrations of the sacrament; than Bro. Johnson said his brother and wife wanted to be baptized, and Bro. Ogard asked me if I would attend to the ordinance; they consulted in the matter and appointed a meeting on Monday at 2 p. m., at Bro. Ogard's house. I filled my appointment at Fremont at Bro. Sampson's house to a full house; felt blessed. On the 4th of June baptized Neils Johnson and his wife Bertha, in Rawhide Creek, Dodge Co., Nebraska, confirmed them, blessed two children. They wanted preaching in the school-house, so I preached three times for them; and this by the request of the president of the branch, Bro. James Ogard. Bro. Sinamark said he and Bro. Anderson would take me to Bro. Dan. Jones, on Saturday the 9th. Word was sent Bro. Jones and an appointment made for Sunday in the Webster School-house; so I filled the bill. Tuesday Bro. Jones took me to Scribner on my way to Joseph Backus, and finding he lived about seven miles on the road to West Point we went there. I stayed, Bro. Jones returned home. On Wednesday Mr. Backus and I went to West Point; saw Mrs. Jackson. Mr. Eugene Krause let me have his hall for Friday night; he asked five dollars, the lowest he ever let it go for. I spoke on Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Krause being present. He let me have the hall on Sunday at 11 a. m., and at 3 p. m., free; so I found disciples in West Point. At the close of meeting went to Horse Shoe Lake, baptized Elizabeth Jackson and Arcilla Cooper, and confirmed them, blessed two children for Sister Cooper. On Monday, June 18th, went to see Mr. Eugene Krause. As I was going to leave for home I offered him the money for the use of the hall; he said it was all right, and to come and see him and he would do the same by me again. I thanked him for his kindness, and now pray the Lord to bless him for the same. Came to Fremont, had to wait four hours for a freight train, came to Omaha at 9 a. m., stayed at Bro. and Sr. Bertleson's. On Tuesday saw Sr. Agenstine and Bro. Larsen; and the branch officers asked me to preach at Bro. Larsen's house in the evening; did so, felt good liberty; house full. Bro. Anderson said they had heard the gospel preached, if any wanted to be baptized they could make it known. Mrs. Emma Smith arose and said she wanted to be baptized, so Bro. Anderson said, Bro. Deuel, you will attend to it, and I will go with you. And so it was done; she was confirmed by G. E. Deuel and Bro. Anderson. I have been blessed of the Lord in ministering to the sick; shall try to keep the faith, and endure all for Christ.

Yours for truth,

GORDON E. DEUEL.

FAIR PLAY, Ruby, Valley
Elko Co., Nevada.

Bro. Joseph:—Myself and husband came to this country last March, from Newton county, Mo. There are no members of the Church here that I know of. I see through the Herald that there is a branch at Elko, the county seat of this county. Would like to know who is their Teacher. [E. Penrod, Island Mountain, or Elko.—Ed.] Husband and self united with the church two years ago, near Joplin, Jasper county, Mo.; were baptized by Bro. M. T. Short. Have not heard an Elder preach for over a year. The Herald is our only comfort. We have never had any church privileges, but I hope the time may come when I may be enabled to live where I can hear the gospel preached in its purity. I never knew of the Church of Latter Day Saints until about three years ago; our dear sainted Bro. C. W. Short came to our house and pointed out to us the way of life. He was a stranger to us, but I believe we entertained an angel unawares. He has passed away, but his memory liveth. I rejoice at the prosperity of Zion. Dear brothers and sisters, let us gird on our armor, fight the good fight and receive the welcome plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

I remain your sister in the one hope of a blessed immortality,

SUE HAYS.

TABOR, Iowa,

June 23d, 1883.

Dear Herald:—The work in this district is on the improve, the branches seem to be in a better condition than heretofore. The prospect for preaching was never better; plenty of opportunities to open up new places, the cry is everywhere "Come and preach for us." Truly I have felt the spirit of my calling resting upon me, in trying to present the word in my weak way, God has blessed me in very deed. The Saints and friends have treated me very kindly in every place that I have been. Some have expressed themselves about ready for baptism.

The weather has been bad. Heavy rains having done considerable damage to roads and bridges. We held our conference on the 16th and 17th, at the Rose School-house. A good spirit prevailed. All felt blessed of God. We had a severe rain storm on Saturday night, which took out bridges, thereby preventing many of the brethren from attending the meetings on Sunday. I shall start out again in a few days. Ever praying for the welfare of the work of our God; that it may prosper in every place where his servants may go.

I remain your brother in bonds,

HENRY KEMP.

Dr. Herald:—Please whisper softly in the ear of Bro. R. M. Elvin that our report to conference, as our subsequent letter are silent as death, mute as the grave, as it regards chances for, or to blistered feet being had in Colorado. We accepted our representative position whether our lot is cast in Colorado or elsewhere, for better or worse. Our reports are rather to let the body know our whereabouts and what doing (or trying to do), than a detail of obstacles met in seeking to accomplish that in view. My remarks in letter touching circling around branches, etc., were ironically (or so intended) and perhaps out of place; I ask pardon.

Reviews and criticisms are good,
If reviewer knows where the other stood;
And every turn he makes a mark,
Shows he's not struggling in the dark.
That's all. Amen.

JAS. CAFFALL.

OAKDALE, Neb., June 22d, 1883.

Dear Herald:—After nearly two months' residence in this place, we are of the opinion that Nebraska is an excellent country, and also that Oakdale is a very pretty, quiet town and most desirable as a place of habitation. Although this part of the state is new, compared with the eastern and southern portions, yet there is, remaining in Antelope county very little government land, and that only the poorest to be found. But claims can be purchased for moderate prices.

Here at Oakdale, although the bluffs skirting the river present occasionally a sand hill, which is mainly available only for grazing purpose,—the surrounding country seems rich and fertile, well adapted to any kind of agricultural productions. The town is beautifully situated, mostly on the south bank of Cedar Creek, a deep, swift, never failing stream which sweeps around and joins the Elkhorn River a short distance east. The river comes in from the northwest, passing within about a mile of town, its line of hill bluffs bordering the vision from the extreme north-east along the north till the valley view bears north-west and bring the village of Neligh in sight, nestling among the green trees that margin the river below the undulating hills that limit the eye in that direction. Neligh—pronounced, we can not tell why, Nely,—is the next station up the railroad and the river, about five miles distant. But in consequence of some difference in the atmosphere, one is enabled to see much farther here than in Iowa, or Illinois; or in fact, anywhere we have been. The air is very pure and fresh, and though it is said to be subject to high winds here, yet we fail, as yet, to notice that Oakdale is more visited in that way than was Lamoni. There is no rock here, and lumber and brick are higher than they are there, and yet the buildings are good and substantial, usually on solid foundations, and wells are plenty. Rent is no higher than in Lamoni. Living, save fuel, is, we think fully as cheap, if not cheaper. We do have such excellent flour. Not the highest grade, either; but just the nicest, whitest, flakiest bread, ever since we have been here. And potatoes, late as it is, are as good as the best were there, last fall. Only 30 to 35 cents per bushel, either.

On a beautiful eminence commanding an almost complete view of the town which lies below and northward, stands a large school building, with plenty of green, flower dotted prairie surrounding. A splendid, graded school is now in session. Only one house further south than the school-house, and that is our present domicile, about fifty yards distant. Across a small draw, and about a fourth of a mile south of the school, is the cemetery, which has the best of care, though but few graves. And still south and west of this, half a mile or more is the residence of Professor Wilson, not yet completed, a grand and imposing structure standing on the highest point of land in the vicinity. The carpenter who took the contract is to receive $4,000 for building and furnishing material. This mansion is to be heated from a furnace in the cellar, hot air pipes connecting with registers in the various apartments above. A well has just been bored for the Professor, which is 155 feet deep. This same professor teaches a seminary in town. On another point, west, and also overlooking town, a large academy building is going up. So you see the people of Oakdale are determined to educate. The wild flowers are beautiful, varied and abundant, notwithstanding the amount of stock nipping away at the rapid growing native herbage. Horses and cattle are picketed out in all directions on the vacant land immediately surrounding town. Tied to a rope 50 to 75 feet long, which is fastened to an iron or wooden 'picket pin,' driven firmly into the ground, these animals have the radius they can describe with the length of their ropes for their pasture, their position being changed as often as necessary. There is, besides, a town herd. For no stock is allowed to run at large.

We saw a genuine mirage, a few weeks ago. It was shortly after a shower of rain. It seemed to be in the horizon touching the earth. The reflection of a portion of a city with large buildings and spires, clearly outlined against the dark sky behind. There is no large town in that direction nearer than thirty or forty miles. The view faded and came again several times and then disappeared. Another strange sight to us, at least—was a rainbow in the middle of the night. It was a few nights ago, soon after a shower of course, and the moon did not seem to shine unusually bright, either. It was a veritable rainbow, the whole half circle complete, only the colors were a little less vivid than by daylight, and the area within the limits of the bow looked white as if hung with a veil of mist.

With the kindest of wishes for all the friends we have left behind we will close.

C. P. W.

COLDWATER, Michigan,

June 20th, 1883.

Editor Herald:—Our district conference closed on the 11th instant, after two and a half days' session. The representation was not large, but there was a sufficient number present to do business and render the meeting interesting. Quite a full report was had from the branches indicating increasing interest wherever the work is planted. Individual reports, verbal and written, breathed a good spirit and encouragement. Business was transacted with commendable unity and satisfaction to all. It was noticed that members took more of a direct interest, showing more of a disposition to sift matters than has usually been exhibited at our conferences with the same number present. This is commendable, where facts and the right are the things sought for. Whatever pride we may take in the thought of possessing the spirit of love and unity, it is very difficult for brethren to come together and quietly sit with demure looks (which some mistake for piety) and covered heads in mute silence, and by magic, or some other unaccountable moving force, come suddenly to a unity on all questions of interest and business. The expression of views is all essential and necessary, which may be as varied and widely different as the understandings, capabilities and opportunities of those speaking. But common consent must be obtained and business done. It seems then right and proper to have opinions, likes and dislikes, preferences, &c.; and a place to meet to express them; and if some one should not hit the mark every time on all subjects, the old ship of Zion will move along just the same. Almost any kind of disease and death are preferable before stagnation and suffocation!

There was no danger from fires during our session, nor need of any one going thirsty, for there was water there; all the time and more coming. The preaching services were well attended and a lively interest manifested by all present. Preaching by Brn. Campbell, Bond and Kelley. We clasred it good. But things are better seen and appreciated by comparison, and our efforts had been preceded by some loud appeals by Bro. A. H. Smith, that people don't grow weary of telling about; this followed by Bro. E. C. Briggs and then Uncle William. Putting our efforts alongside of these we don't know how heavily they do weigh. But if we succeeded in doing half as well as either of them, from reports, we shall say we are not unprofitable servants. Any way, Bro. Campbell and I have all summer to preach against some of those rousing efforts and will beat them if we can. Why not? Come again brethren.

The Bishop was present and made a good plea in the way of encouraging the brethren to be especially interested in helping to feed and clothe his numerous family of children, husbands and wives. Guess all will take the hint. We think the Bishop is improving in his ability to make his wants known; almost equaling, now, the most astute presiding elder of the Methodist fraternity. A diversity of gifts is necessary.

We were glad to see Bro. D. Campbell on this side of the lines again and ready for the battle. His many friends here gave him a cordial greeting. He possesses the faculty, or gift, of making friends, at least, or else, like Topsey they "just grow." Bro. E. H. Gurley and others laboring in the district, send encouraging reports. Will hear more of them by and by as they are growing noisy of late—out taking a stand. The spirit of our conference was all that could be desired, and the best at the last; so much so, that it was difficult to find a point at which to adjourn—so many wanted just "one more word." The Lord confirmed us. We parted with renewed courage and strength to— toil on.

Please tell our Colorado sympathizing friend that a letter has just returned to us addressed to him at Denver. Where art thou?

Good news continues from Ohio. A sable exposor of the faith charged on E. L. one night and he refused to answer his thunder. This is our first defeat; but Ed. rallied next evening and took the fort. I guess all there was about it, these two gentlemen refused to both occupy the stand at the same time. No danger of dying with monotony this year.

What a cold backward spring. Some are planting corn here yet. Grasses and small grain good.

As usual,
WM. H. KELLEY.

NORTH OGDEN, Utah,
June 20th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—When I read in the Saints' Herald, the proceedings of last April Conference at Kirtland, and also your Uncle's letter, it fills my heart with emotion. It carries me back to the time I heard his, and your father's voices, in that Temple. It is forty-seven years, last April, since I was confirmed a member in the Church of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in that Temple, built not by blood stained hands. No guards in the basement, or on the portals of that Temple, with revolver and bowie knife in hand, as at Nauvoo. No swearing by the throat in the endowments of that Temple; but love to God and to their fellow man was shed abroad in their hearts. Hence the following beautiful lines were sung, frequently in their meetings.

"We'll wash and be washed, and with oil be anointed;
Withal not omitting the washing of feet;
For he that receiveth his penny anointed,
Must surely be clean at the harvest of wheat."

My father, and brother worked on that Temple and my father went through the endowment there. I will relate an incident that comes in vivid recollection to my mind now. One evening when around the family circle my father stated that in that Temple, while consecrating a bottle of oil and setting it apart for holy purposes, the prayer offered up on the occasion that the "Lord would touch the bottle with his finger." An invisible finger touched the bottle and disappeared. After that he doubted and was out in the woods a day or so afterward and was pondering on it. He asked the Lord in earnest prayer for a testimony if it was so or not and was filled with the spirit of love, such as he had never felt before, and also received one of the gifts promised by the gospel of Christ.

May I further relate a dream; I dreamed on the night of 5th of February, 1883. It appeared that I was in conversation with four or five middle aged men; and the word of the Lord came unto me and them saying, "Let my Saints in the old country and scattered throughout the land, gather into the northern states of the United States, of North America, and let them seek counsel and advice of the sons of the martyred prophets; for unto them have I the Lord dispensed my gospel, and the words of eternal life. Great judgments, calamities and distress of nations, are at the door; such as has not been known; therefore feel after God, and seek no more for counsel of rulers whose money is their god, and whose god is their belly and whose mouths are open sepulchres spuing forth damning, soul destroying doctrine to the children of men." The above is a short extract. It pressed so heavily on my mind for some days after, that I wrote it, and for some time past I have been impressed to write and contribute it to the Herald, if you think it worthy a place in its valuable columns. I am not much of a writer but I feel, and have the great latter day work at heart.

Yours in the bonds of the gospel of Christ.

S. S. THORNTON.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb.,
June 27th, 1883.

Dear Herald: I am water bound here, and waiting to get on my way south; but just when the way will be open I can not tell. There are no trains going south at present. There has been so much rain of late that the trains, some of them, are abandoned entirely. I am getting quite anxious to be at my post; but I am in good hands here, and am quite thankful that I am not thrown among strangers to while the time away. As anticipated I accompanied Bro. Derry to Deloit, where we attended Galland's Grove Conference. We had a pleasant session, large attendance at preaching services, and one was baptized. From conference Bro. Derry returned home, and I went to Galland's Grove and tarried for a week, during which time I preached six times, and notwithstanding the busy times I had good attendance. Rested a day or two at Bro. Pett's; preached once at Dow City; called and stayed one night with Bro. W. C. Cadwell at "The Cliffs," and arrived in Omaha the 21st inst., where I called upon Bro. David Jenkins and wife of Galland's Grove, who have been united but a few weeks, and are staying temporarily in the city. They seem happy and comfortable. At night I accompanied Bro. David to prayer meeting, where I met Bro. Brand and quite a congregation of the local saints, I was requested to speak, and in so doing I was blessed.

The 22d I arrived here and have spoken in the Saints' chapel four times, and baptized two. Here I met letters which brought the sad intelligence of the death of Sr. Hay, of Bandera, and Sr. McMains, of Elmwood, Texas. The first has been in the Church but a few months, but seemed devoted and earnest. This is Bro. Alexander Hay's second bereavement of a wife, each dying in a few months after marriage. May God comfort him in this sad loss. Sr. McMains was secretary of Elmwood Branch, also of Texas Central District. In her duties she was efficient, neat and orderly. She was a woman of more than common intelligence. She will be missed in the church where she has lent a helping hand since the organization of both district and branch Her place will be hard to fill. To her husband and five children her loss is irreparable, and my heart goes out in sympathy for them. It was with her estimable husband, herself and family that I made my home in Texas; and often, when weary and oppressed, I sought their peaceful home, where all that kind hearts could suggest, or willing hands could perform was done to make my pilgrimage pleasant. My heart rejoices in the thought that our sisters were prepared for the change, and will be welcomed to their reward.

Hoping soon to be in field of labor battling for the right, I subscribe myself a co-worker for Zion's weal.

HEMAN C. SMITH.

Summary of News.

June 20th.—Medicine Lodge, Kansas, 250 miles south-west of Kansas City, was visited with the severest hail-storm ever known in that section last night. Meagre reports indicate that many young calves were killed and herds stampeded.

The number of deaths from the catastrophe at Victoria Hall, Sunderland, England, has reached 202. The streets were crowded with sympathetic people during the funerals. One hundred free graves were prepared in one cemetery for the reception of the victims, exclusive of those for which the parents of children who lost their lives will pay. Fifty-four bodies were interred in this cemetery and thirty-one in a smaller cemetery. Numbers of subscriptions are arriving to pay the funeral expenses of the unfortunate children. Among the subscriptions is £100 from Andrew Carnegie, of Pittsburg, Pa. The balance of the fund, after the funeral expenses have been defrayed, will be devoted to the Children's Convalescent Home.

During the flood at Seneca, Kan., Sunday morning, John Gribb attempted to leave his house with his wife and four children. The wagon was overturned by the current, and Mrs. Gribb and all her children drowned. This makes twelve lives lost Sunday.

June 21st.—A young woman named Kessler, returning with her husband from the minister's, at Campbellford, Ont., where they had just been married, was pitched out of the buggy by the horses running away, and killed instantly.

The death of Bishop Colenso, of Natal, South Africa, is announced. His "Critical Examination of the Pentateuch and the Book of Joshua" appeared in 1862. It was condemned by the Province of Canterbury and its author deposed by the Bishop of Cape Town. Bishop Colenso appealed to the Privy Council, and the deposition was annulled. Nine years ago he returned to England for a short visit, and was inhibited from preaching in the Dioceses of Oxford, Lincoln, and London.

Wesley Warren, a colored man, who was in jail at Prospect, Tenn., on the charge of having murdered James Trice, was forcibly seized by a mob, hurried half a mile out of town, and hung. Two other colored men were taken into custody as accomplices, but subsequently released.

June 22d.—A tornado struck the south part of Livingstone county, Mo., about fifteen miles southeast of Chillicothe, last night, in what is known as the Low-gap country, and swept away twenty-five or thirty farm-houses, spreading havoc in its track. Two men were killed and fifteen or twenty injured. Owing to communication being cut off by the flood, it is impossible to get particulars.

At about 11 o'clock last night, a heavy wind-storm came up, accompanied by a drenching rain, at Jerseyville, Ills. This latter storm was so severe that almost every family in the city got up and awaited with dread the horrors of a cyclone, many taking refuge in their cellars, and others gathering together in one room to meet a dreaded destiny. The actual damage, however, was light, branches of trees being blown off, one or two roofs stripped, and some fences blown down. Chester, Illinois, was similarly visited, which aroused all from their beds, and several families took refuge in their cellars. Like reports come from Jacksonville, Mount Vernon and Litchfield, detailing great loss to outbuildings and damage to crops.

Salt Lake City was the victim of a serious conflagration yesterday. The old Council House and Clawson's wagon depot were among the properties destroyed. A large amount of powder stored in one of the buildings destroyed was exploded. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

The Crown Prince of Sweden recently made an application for an increased allowance of 50,000 kroner, and it was rejected by the Storting by a vote of over two to one.

From various points in Germany disastrous floods are announced. Those in Silesia are attended by waterspouts. A large part of Hirschberg is under water. The River Neisse has reached the highest point known in over fifty years.

June 23d.—Lewis Carter, colored, was hanged at Jerusalem, Va., at noon, for murdering his wife last February. The gallows was erected on the west bank of the Notaway River. Three thousand people witnessed the execution. He confessed the crime.

Kyle Walker and Harry Reid, colored, who were arrested for supposed implication in the murder of young Trice at Veto, Ala., were re-arrested and lynched.

At Clarksville, Ark., yesterday, Gove and Jim Johnson, McDonald, and Herndon, who last March murdered Conductor Cain while robbing the Little Rock & Ft. Smith train, near Mulberry Station, were hanged in the presence of a large crowd, thousands of persons from several counties being present. In the same newspaper column are accounts of the respite of an Ohio wife murderer; the conviction of a Kentucky murderer; a North Carolina burglar's sentence to hang changed to life imprisonment; a North Carolina villain's hanging delayed a few weeks; and a New York murderer of his brother to be hung August 10th.

The tornado which visited the section some thirty miles west of Kansas City Tuesday night proved very destructive. Two persons were killed outright, five others were fatally injured, and a large number were more or less injured. The obliteration of farm-houses, barns, and orchards was very complete.

A telegram from Shanghai says that France and China have reached an amicable adjustment of the difficulties which for some time have seriously disturbed the diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Eight men were badly injured, three of them fatally, by a series of explosions at the South Chicago Rolling-Mill. Some thirty-five tons of molten iron in the interior of a furnace forced its way into the iron water tank at the base. A terrific explosion followed, and the molten iron and the debris were hurled in every direction. The eight men were burned and scalded.

Last evening, during the heavy storm, a man named Frank West and two horses were killed by lightning in Arrow Rock, Mo.

Last night Pierre, Dakotah, experienced the severest wind and rain storm of the year, destroying several partly-completed buildings.

High wind accompanied by torrents of rain visited Columbia, Mo., yesterday. The storm partially unroofed the university, the court house, Christian College, and several residences.

A murder trial now in progress at Nyireghy-haza, Hungary, promises to furnish a "cause celebre" more famous than any to be found in the Newgate calendar. A number of Israelites are charged with having cruelly murdered a Christian girl so that they could mix her blood with the Passover bread. The principal witness for the prosecution is Moritz Scharf, the son of one of the men charged with the horrible crime. The Judophobists all over Europe are much interested in the outcome of the case, and are straining every nerve to secure a conviction. To this end they have proselyted the young Israelite, who claims to have witnessed the tragedy.

The American Consul has gone to Tiflis, in Asiatic Turkey, to inquire into the case of two American missionaries attacked and nearly killed by Kurds near that place.

A protest was recently sent by the Pope to President Grevy regarding church matters in France, couched in an amicable though firm tone. His Holiness points out the painful position of the church in France because of the policy of the Republic during the last few years, and says laws hostile to the church are now being prepared. He hopes the pacific assurances made by France at various times really signify a desire to avoid a painful conflict which would be equally disastrous to both church and state, and requests President Grevy to use his high influence to prevent such a conflict.

Placards were posted Thursday night in different parts of Athens by Anarchists which contain a threat to destroy the royal Palace and ancient monuments by explosives.

Serious riots against the Jews have occurred here. A number of Jewish shops were pillaged and the police stoned while endeavoring to stop the excesses. The soldiers were summoned to quell the disturbance.

June 25th.—Heavy rains have prevailed in Southern Nebraska during the last three or four days, and the streams in consequence have in some places overflowed, doing much damage to farm and railroad property and greatly impeding travel and traffic, particularly in the vicinity of Lincoln, in Johnson and Richardson counties. Loss of life is reported from Tecumseh and Falls City.

The people along the line of the Mississippi River in the Southern part of Illinois are again the victims of flood and disaster. Nearly a hundred thousand acres of rich land are under water, hundreds of families are driven from their homes, and the labor of thousands of men during the year has been swept away in a day. It is a frightful experience, the nature and extent of which can scarcely be understood by those who are removed from similar dangers. The actual loss in crops and personal property is stated to be fully a million dollars, but that does not represent the discouragement to effort and the retardation of progress. It requires great courage, and patience, and endurance to fight the battle of life in the face of periodical visitations of flood and destruction.

From Europe we learn that seventy persons were drowned by the floods in Silesia.

Another ocean disaster is reported this morning. Two vessels, the Hurumi and the Waitara, came into collision off Portland, England, Friday night. The Waitara went down two minutes afterwards, with all the second-class and steerage passengers. Some of the first-class passengers and most of the crew were saved. Twenty-five in all perished. The boats of the Hurumi, which were launched immediately after the collision, rescued sixteen persons.

June 26th.—At midnight a conflagration was raging among the warehouses and factories at the mouth of the Neva, near St. Petersburg. Property valued at 1,500,000 rubles was destroyed.

We learn from Elberton, Ga., that a cyclone passed over that place Sunday evening, killing Bynam Bell, colored, and blowing down sixteen buildings, including three churches.

A collision yesterday on the Havana & Matanzas Railroad caused the death of eight persons and the injury of many.

The cable brings the news of a terrible calamity in the little village of Dervio, on Lake Como. An audience of ninety persons was assembled in a hall over a saloon to witness a "Punch-and-Judy" show. Bengal lights were used and a spark set fire to a mass of rubbish in a room back of the stage. The spectators on hearing the cry of fire thought an affray had arisen in the street, and barricaded the door with a heavy table. When the flames burst into the hall, the people made frantic efforts to escape, but less than half of them succeeded. Forty-seven charred corpses were found near the table when the flames were extinguished.

This evening at Vandalia, Ill., as Sheriff Cox was going into the jail to lock the prisoners into their cells six of them overpowered him and made their escape. This is the second delivery within the last six months.

June 27th.—Advices from Vera Cruz via Galveston report a melancholy state of affairs. The yellow-fever has become epidemic and the reported deaths average fifteen a day, though persons claiming to be well posted place the figure higher. So virulent is the poisonous disease that it results fatally in every six cases out of seven.

A dispatch from Cardiff, England, states that an explosion occurred in the colliery near there. Two persons were killed and twelve injured.

There was a violent thunder-storm in England yesterday. Four soldiers were reported killed by lightning at Chatham.

Two ear-loads of Georgia watermelons, the first of the season, passed through Cairo Sunday, destined to St. Louis and St. Paul.

Of forty-two deaths yesterday at Damietta, twenty-eight are known to be from cholera. The rest, it is suspected, were from the same malady. The doctors refuse to inform the foreign Consul of the number of deaths there. The steamers from Alexandria Tuesday were crowded with refugees from Damietta. All steamer berths for a week to come are engaged.

At Trepassy, N. F., a large fishing boat went down, and out of a crew of seven, six were drowned.

The band of desperadoes who have been terrorizing the citizens at Little Missouri, Dakotah, on the Northern Pacific, was effectually broken up yesterday. In a fight which ensued between the sheriff's posse and outlaws the leader of the band, Frank O'Donnell, was captured and one Lufficey killed. Two horses were killed under the desperadoes. O'Donnell and a companion named Wannigan, who was also captured will be brought here and jailed.

At Vernon, Wisconsin, two men were killed by lightning.

June 28th.—Another pest has come to light to worry the farmer. It is a slim gray bug about one-third of an inch in length, and feeds on the corn leaves. One field near Elgin, Illinois, is reported to be practically alive with the insect, each blade of corn showing from fifteen to twenty.

Intense alarm exists in Alexandria, Egypt, over the breaking out of the cholera; there were forty-seven deaths yesterday, thirty-seven of which were known to have been from cholera. In Mamsurah thus far there have been seven cases, two of which proved fatal. Two cases at Port Said,—one of them fatal. At Constantinople a rigid quarantine has been ordered against vessels from Egypt. Should the spread of the dread disease materially increase, there must inevitably be a complete cessation of commerce via the Red Sea and the Suez Canal.

In the trial at Nyireghyhazi, yesterday, Police Commissary Bariza, of Debreezin, deposed that Moritz Scharf had confessed to him that he had seen nothing; that he had made the statement that he saw the girl murdered in the synagogue because he feared he would be imprisoned for life. Bariza repelled the inuendo of the President that he had been bribed. Moritz was again confronted by his father and mother. The boy adhered to his former statement, but he used terms which showed that he still feared imprisonment.

Russia has satisfactorily concluded negotiations with the Vatican for the protection of the rights of Catholics throughout the empire.

The Young Men's Catholic Union, now in session in Brooklyn, yesterday received a cablegram from Bishop Keene, who is now in Rome, announcing that the Pope had specially blessed the union.

At Lockport, N. Y., yesterday a young girl died in convulsions from blood poisoning, caused by a prick of a tack in her forehead received one week ago.

Over $50,000 was paid in yesterday at Cincinnati for liquor licenses.

James Carey, the informer left Kilmainham Jail, Ireland, this morning. He was quietly taken to Queenstown and placed on board a government steamer. Her destination is not known, but it is believed he will be landed at Bermuda.

In the House of Commons to-day Joseph Cowen, Radical, gave notice that he would submit the question whether it was true that Irish paupers had been sent to America with the knowledge and consent of the government.

In a boarding house row at Hyde Park, Chicago, Ill., two men were shot and fatally wounded by the keeper of the house.

Dr. Hathaway, of Philadelphia, Pa., in whose cellar the remains of a large number of infants were found, has been fined $500 and imprisoned for seven years. The doctor is 83 years of age, and has practiced 59 years.

The Kansas farmers are in luck. The wheat crops not only promise well, but in addition to that they hold over 5,000,000 bushels of old wheat and over 17,000,000 bushels of old corn.

Some fifteen or twenty head of cattle died on the cars recently while in transit from the West to Fort Worth, Tex., from drinking too much alkaline water, and not, as was at first supposed, from Spanish fever.

Over 400 coal-mines are in operation in Keokuk, Mahaska, Jasper, Polk, Boone, and Webster counties, Iowa, with a total capacity of 18,000 tons a day. The operators employ 9,520 men, and have invested $14,000,000 in mines and machinery.

The Michigan wool clip is larger than last year, but the quality of the staple is not as fine. A Kalamazoo firm has thus far bought 100,000 pounds, the highest price for which was 30 cents. This seems to be the outside price throughout the State, and the prospects for an immediate advance are not very encouraging.

Late last night a column of about 150 horsemen suddenly galloped up and surrounded the jail at Jefferson, Texas, containing the negro Douglass, guilty of assaulting a white woman, Mrs. Rogers, for which his companion, a negro named Lacey, was lynched yesterday morning. The Deputy Sheriff, with the guards, attempted resistance, but were instantly covered by assailants and secured, the cell unlocked, and Douglass pinioned and placed on a horse. The band then disappeared as quickly and mysteriously as it had arrived. This morning two miles from the city the body of Douglass was found hanging from a tree, with four bullet-holes through his head.

VENTILATION.

When the air of a room is maintained as nearly as possible at the purity of the external atmosphere, it is well ventilated. In so far as it falls short of this standard it becomes detrimental to health.

The contaminating ingredient of indoor air is carbonic acid gas, which is poured from the lungs at each expiration, each breath intensifying the impurity, so that the atmosphere of a crowded room or railway car soon becomes nauseating, particularly to a person who enters it from the outside. The occupants themselves seldom notice the change that has taken place and generally seem unconscious of the risk to health they are subjecting themselves to.

There are emanations of effete matters from the entire surface of the body, and without which life could not be maintained; these add their impurities to the already vitiated air of a close room, thus forming a compound that acts insidiously on the system, contaminating the blood and lessening the power to resist disease. No human being can be subjected to these influences an hour without injury, whether he is conscious of it at the time or not. It is the source from which fevers come; and no doubt other diseases have been conveyed from one person to others under these conditions. If the germs of disease are still active after traveling for a considerable distance through the outer air, how much more potent must they be when they are inhaled at a short distance, warm and fresh from the seat of disease? It is now a well-determined fact that a person with no predisposition to consumption is quite liable to contract the disease when exposed to it for some time in an illy-ventilated house.

During three years we daily visited some of the hospitals of Paris. Sufferers from small-pox occupied the same wards with other fever patients, and no one ever dreamed of taking the disease; but then the ventilation was simply perfect.

The first essential to health is a constant supply of pure, fresh air. It promotes combustion in the system as a draught of pure air promotes combustion of fuel in a furnace. Carbonic acid gas destroys life; and it will quench a fire sooner than water.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Nor long since, Mr. Clemens, alias Mark Twain, attended a private lecture in Boston, at the house of one of the most learned of all the learned ones of this good town. The subject treated by the able lecturer was the Pythagorean hypothesis of the transmigration of the soul. The audience listened intently, but none of them was more absorbed in the discourse than was the distinguished author from Hartford, who bent his brow and concentrated his keen gaze on the lecturer. At the conclusion of the paper Mark Twain left the house in company with the friend who had invited him to be present. The great man was silent, and his friend, for some moments respecting the deep study in which he had fallen, refrained from asking him his opinion on the lecture. Finally, however, he ventured to ask how Mr. Clemens had enjoyed the occasion. "O, very much, indeed," was the reply. "I have never been more interested in my life; it has explained a mystery that has all my life haunted me, and which I have never been able to fathom. Now all is clear to my unclouded eyes.

Now the enigma is solved, the clouds have rolled away, the mists of doubt have been dispelled, my shuddering consciousness grasps the truth, and I know myself as I am. The doubts, confusions, impalpable but insidious, are at an end, and I at last understand the great fact which accounts for all my troubles, every untoward complication in my life."

He waxed enthusiastic and spoke loud and excitedly. His friend, grasping him by the arm, cried: "And what—what is this secret that you have learned?"

"I have learned that I have had an old second-hand soul palmed off on me, and I never knew it till now," replied Twain, composedly, and proceeded to talk of the dangerous condition of the Boston sidewalk.

The boys now growing up seem to be too nice for real work and they seek positions as clerks and book-keepers and such light places, where they seem to care little for the pay so long as the work doesn't muss their hair and soil their clothes.

Self-examination is a wise use of our time if we are honest in it, but it is the height of folly if we grow morbid and blue, or if we be puffed up and exalted by it. It must be merely as a safeguard, just as the General has his fortification examined to be certain there are no weak places.

WHAT'S THE NEWS.

Where e'er we meet, you often say,
What's the news? What's the news?
Pray what's the order of the day?
What's the news? What's the news?
O, I have come with tidings rare,
The gospel's sacred sound to bear,
That all men might salvation share.
That's the news! That's the news!

O tell us what new thing is this!
What's the news? What's the news?
Can we obtain eternal bliss?
What's the news? What's the news?
Yes; I am authorized to say,
Believe in Christ, his law obey,
And you shall dwell in endless day.
That's the news! That's the news!

If this be so, what shall we do?
What's the news? What's the news?
The law to us is strangely new,
What's the news? What's the news?
O, be baptized, but first repent
Of all your sins with full intent,
And then the Holy Ghost is sent.
That's the news! That's the news!

O, tell what profit this will be;
What's the news? What's the news?
Make all things plain that we may see.
What's the news? What's the news?
By this the gospel gifts are brought,
Tongues, healings, prophecies, when sought,
And many miracles are wrought.
That's the news! That's the news!

O, glad are we to learn the way!
Glorious news! Glorious news!
Make haste and we'll the law obey.
Don't refuse! Don't refuse!
For we believe with all the heart,
And will from sin strive to depart,
And God will surely do His part.
Glorious news! Glorious news!

CHRIST IN THE INTERMEDIATE STATE.

AN article with this caption, written by J. I. Swander, was published in the April Microcosm. The doctrine of the descent of Christ into hell, though taught in the Apostolic age, was not made a part of the Apostles' creed until after the year 600. As early as the third century the apocryphal book of Nicodemus consisted of a dramatic representation of the event, in which David, Israel, Simeon, John the Baptist, the penitent thief, and Habbakuk, are made to repeat, in hell, at Christ's entrance, the testimonies concerning it they had uttered and written when on earth. David repeats (Psalm 24:7, 10), and Isaiah repeats his, (chap. 26:19). These interpretations seem to be some of the "plain and precious things," that "the great and abominable church" "kept back," and in place of which purgatory and priestly intercession were substituted. The protestant reformers abolished purgatory, and with it the intermediate state. Universalists and rationalists have all along objected to the alternative of full subscription or immediate damnation. Swedenborg taught six final states and none intermediate. The Book of Mormon teaches two intermediate states—paradise and the prison. The vision in the Doctrine and Covenants describes four future states. One of them—the terrestrial, includes those "who are the spirits of men kept in prison, whom the Son visited and preached the gospel unto them, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, who received not the testimony of Jesus in the flesh, but afterward received it." Below this state is another intermediate state, where those remain "who shall not be redeemed from the devil, until the last resurrection; until the Lord, even Christ the Lamb, shall have finished his work."

For fifty years the Elders of Israel have been preaching the doctrine of the intermediate states, and like leaven it has affected the thought of the age. Mr. Swander recognizes this fact of a modified Christology, but of course does not know its source nor that it is a part of the promised "restitution." He gives much praise to Wilford Hall for having demonstrated, scientifically, that the spirit of man is an independent entity, and thus aiding in solving the problem of the intermediate state. The latter half of Mr. Swander's article is as follows:

"But science alone, with all the possibilities of its progress, can never open the apocalyptic book of seven seals, and bring to light the hidden contents of the intermediate state. This power is vested in Him who liveth and was dead. The Lion of the tribe of Judah prevails to open the book; and true science joins the four and twenty Elders as they bow before the Lamb to sing the 'new song': 'Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, —Rev. 5:9. Christ's person is the key to the enigma of the universe, and His death the solution of all the problems within the veil. The entrance of sin into the world, and the entailment of its mortuary consequences upon the world, made it necessary for Christ to pass, in a real historical way, under the dominion of death in order to unseal that great book of futurity whose most interesting contents are to be found immediately over the border of this present life.

"This view is taken from the truly Scriptural and scientific standpoint of organic redemption. It centers in, and flows forward, with the entire history of the Christ, on a line parallel with the forces at work in the history of abnormal humanity, until both powers meet in the realm of death, where death is swallowed up victoriously. Otherwise there would have been no 'path of life' leading to 'fulness of joy;' neither could our God have 'gone up with a shout.' The Bible is full of this Christocentric theology. The logic of any opposite theory holds its premises and conclusions within the mechanical compass of dry abstractions. However plausible it may appear, its syllogisms are full of fallacy, and its pious platitudes full of emptiness. Divine consistency is not the key to the atonement. Neither does God save the world for the sake of the mere agony of His suffering Son. His death involves more than the tragedy of the Cross. Golgotha was the gate-way to the Satanic citadel beyond. The last scene in the dark drama was executed behind the sombrous curtain. Christ's heel was bruised on Calvary, but the serpent's head was not effectually crushed until the promised 'seed' had passed 'from Edom with dyed garments from Bozrah,' to invade the serpent's headquarters. Thus did He wrest 'the keys of death and hell' from him who had the power of death (Heb. 2:14). Thus, too, was the Gospel preached to them that are dead, making it possible for all the sainted 'spirits in prison' to 'pass the crystal ports of light, and dwell in endless bliss.'

"This is not "another Gospel," but the faith delivered already to Old Testament Saints. The twilight prophecy of such a coming Conqueror tinged the horizon of the patriarchal age. Abraham foresaw the day of Messianic triumph, and was glad. David embraced the primitive promise, and expressed his hope of deliverance from the power of death (Ps. 16). Peter was able, under the baptism of Pentecost, to draw more meaning from David's language than what was clear and distinct in the inspired faith of the Psalmist at the time of its poetic utterance. Neither did St. Peter embrace this great truth at once in all its plenary significance. He continued to advance beyond himself, or, rather, was carried forward by the objective power of the concrete truth, until his higher inspiration and his consequent deeper penetration enabled him to see David's Lord and Son invade the mystic realm of mortality and preach deliverance to the captives (1 Peter 3:19).

"Thus did the concrete and objective Gospel start with the development of the race, and move forward in the central channel of human history. The panorama of its successive and inseparable scenes passes continually before the restless audience of fallen humanity, revealing a supernatural power for the very purpose of generating and developing, in each obedient individual, the supernatural organ of faith, through which its saving benefits may be apprehended, its proportions surveyed, its beauties admired, and the personal Fountain of its excellencies adored. Such an exhibition leaves neither room nor relish for the unsavory hash of disjointed abstractions. Faith requires 'that which every joint supplieth' in an organic way. If legitimately begotten, it will seek a comprehensive view of all the sections in the past, present, and future of one grand, progressive mystery, until, before its raptured vision, 'hell shall open its dolorous portals to the peering day,' and the ransomed 'spirits in prison' march forth to swell the old triumphal shout of prophecy: 'Lift up your heads, ye gates; and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors, and the King of Glory shall come in.'

"What a solemn, sacred enigma confronts us in the 'three days' of transition from the cross to the Redeemer's resurrection! Christ was really dead—His soul was separated from His body. This state of separation was His intermediate state. The 'corn of wheat' had fallen into the ground that 'the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus' might germinate the promised 'seed' into a glorified humanity, 'free from the law of sin and death.' This involved the conflict with principalities and powers. What a significant and far-reaching victory. A dead Christ had more commanding influence over the elements of His abode than had a living Jonah when he 'cried out of the belly of hell.' Jonah prayed; Jesus preached. His preaching was not so much a proclamation of a power beyond Himself as a demonstration of the power He had in Himself—the Lord, strong and mighty in battle.' The sermon in the sanctuary of hades, on that last significant Sabbath in the calendar of Judaism, was nothing less than the power of His personal presence in the intermediate state. Its eloquence was 'in the demonstration of the Spirit,' and told powerfully in breaking the bands of captivity for the pious dead. Neither were its effects confined to the abode of spirits: 'The graves were opened, and many of the bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after His resurrection' (Matt. 27:52). This was a prophetic result of the descent into hades. It points both to the law and the fact of a general resurrection.

"Under this view of Christ's mission 'into the lower parts of the earth,' His resurrection appears as the fruit rather than the achievement of His victory. When Jesus cried with a loud voice it indicated 'the greatness of His strength.' In that strength He entered the realm, extracted the sting, and exhausted the power of death. Having thus 'abolished death,' He reached that turning point in His eventful history when 'death had no more dominion over Him.' Having captured captivity, He led it captive. 'Having spoiled principalities and powers, He made a show of them openly' (Col. 2:15). Having been confined as a willing captive in the city of the dead, He arose in the midnight hour of human history, and, with more than Samsonian might, plucked up the pillars and carried away the gates of the hadean metropolis. No wonder that 'our God has gone up with a shout!' No wonder that the apostles preached Jesus and the resurrection with such enthusiastic emphasis! 'It is Christ that died; yea, rather, is risen again.' The reunion of His soul and body, and His reappearance as 'the first fruits of them that sleep,' are facts which furnish a strong consolation. This view of the Gospel reveals the firmest foundation for the unwavering confidence of Christian faith, the finest philosophy for the soaring aspirations of Christian hope, and a more immortal realm for the superlative powers and charms of Christian charity." #### FALSE GODS.

"WHERE are the Gods that thou hast made thee." With feelings of sadness I have again read of the murder of a child, by a father, inspired by religious fanaticism, and ask the question, Who is to blame for such fanaticism? I answer; every religious teacher who creates false Gods, or misrepresents the true one. If that man ever was a Utah Mormon, his crime was the legitimate result of the blood atonement doctrine as taught by them. The case of Freeman was the legitimate result of the offering of Isaac as usually construed. The roasting of Servetus, and every other case of Christians burning each other, are the legitimate result of the construction usually placed upon Deut. 13:6-9. If God commanded Abraham to offer up his son, in the sense of actually killing him, by what kind of logic will we prove that he did not so command Freeman; that he will not command another to kill his father, mother, wife, husband, neighbor, friend, or foe; another to steal, swear, lie, covet, marry many wives, or husbands, or do any thing else absurd or wrong. I answer this in the Apostle's words, "Present your bodies a living, (not dead), sacrifice, * * * which is your reasonable, (not unreasonable), service." Doctor Thomas took the right position that "truth and right being eternal, even God can not make wrong right."—Isaiah 5:20. "That no whisper, dream, or revelation, can make it right for a father to slay his child." We hold this as a self-evident truth, that what was good and true in the past is good and true to-day, and what is false and wrong to-day always was and always will be false and wrong. Did God command Abraham to offer up his child? All the circumstances attending it, together with the fact that inspired writers of the present and former times seemingly prove that he did; and we are just as clearly told that if we are Abraham's seed we must do the works of Abraham. Do we understand what this means? Abraham understood that he should offer his son just as he would offer a lamb, i. e. slay him and burn him on the altar. He did err, and so do we all, when we think that God requires an unreasonable service or a blind faith. That which is inhuman can not be divine. But he was to offer up his son, not by killing him, but by laying him on the altar, and thenceforth every first born son was offered up, not by killing him, but by bringing him to the altar and redeeming him with a lamb; a type of the son who was made an offering upon Calvary for us all; the Son who is the end of the (ritual) law for righteousness to them that believe; who broke down the partition between Jew and Gentile, male and female, bond and free, and now all children male and female, first born and last born, should be offered up to God; not by killing them but by laying them on the altar. Not the altar of wood and stone, but of faith, of personal righteousness and a willingness to die for truth and right, rather than live to serve the purposes of wrong. The parents of Elizabeth Thaden Estaugh, offered her up in as high and pure a sense as ever child was offered up to God, when with their consent she crossed the ocean and braved the dangers of the wilderness and devoted her life and fortune to found an asylum for the oppressed, a home for the wanderer, and the Christ-like work of lifting men up to God and making one little spot of earth better for her having lived in it.

Did God command Freeman to offer up his child? As I know none of the circumstances I am not a competent judge; but I believe he did not. I am certain he did not in the sense Freeman understood it. If he did at all, it was in the same sense that all of us are required to offer up ours, i. e., by laying her upon the altar. I deprecate the act, but think him more to be pitied than blamed. No more deserving the name of murderer, or crank than every religious teacher who teaches that God has, or ever had a right to command a father to slay his child, and that such command made it right to do it. As long as religious teachers teach that doctrine there will occasionally arise a fanatic who will practice it. A skeptic once said to me, "The reason you Christians are not all insane is, not because you believe what your preachers tell you, but because you do not." I smiled and thought that was absurd. But when I have heard the patriarchs and prophets discussed I have thought, do I believe the construction that preacher puts upon the text, and what would he think of me if I should do exactly as he says. There never was but one perfect teacher, all others know in part and prophesy in part. He alone knew the whole counsel of God. He raised the dead, but killed no one; he healed the sick, but afflicted none; he blessed all, but cursed none. We know that God spake unto Moses, but Jesus taught us something better. We know that Elijah was a true prophet, but Jesus told those who wished to call down fire from heaven as he did, they did not know the spirit they were of. By what spirit did Elijah call down fire to destroy men? James tells us that sin when it is finished bringeth forth death. I think however Elijah was right and can show reasons satisfactory to myself for my faith. Why, or in what sense he was right I will not now discuss, but only say Jesus would have done differently.

If none but the Almighty could, or did inspire men it would be always safe to follow the promptings of the Spirit; but the world's history proves that it is the most dangerous thing men can do to throw aside reason and the written law and follow whisperings of unseen leaders. Indeed, it is better to discard revelation, entirely unless there is some rule to determine which is true and which is false. Is there such a rule? I think there is. God is good, then every thing that leadeth to do good is of God. We read the ten commandments, and the moral sense of every one, Theist, or Atheist says, "This is right." The world would be wiser, better and happier if every one would obey them. It needs no argument to prove it, it is self evident. It is certainly of God. And one of the commandments is, "Thou shalt not kill." It is said that every law has an exception, but the only exception we can make to this is where a man by crimes that outrage humanity has forfeited his own right to life. Lest any should accuse me of semi-infidelity, let me say, I endorse Deut. 13: 6-9. And nearly every thing else that "Moses wrote to us," but I construe it differently from those who roasted Servetus; and who would, if they could, call down fire from heaven to destroy all who "follow not us" (them). I am not a radical believer in the value of human life. Some men's lives are very precious and some are of no more value than the life of a snake.

MORMONIA.

THE SACRAMENT.

THE Sacrament is, or should be, regarded as a solemn and sacred ceremony. And before partaking every soul should try to rid itself of malice, and to have a conscience void of offense. It should be administered as the Scripture directs, accompanied with that humility and solemnity to make it impressive and characteristic of what it represents. The question is, is our conscience void of offense? We all drink of one cup and that has its meaning. We are admonished from time to time to keep our hearts clean from every sin, vice and deception. All this is essential to salvation, but still there are some things of importance unmentioned; and to my mind some of them are among the following. I have administered the sacrament a great many times, and as a rule present it to the person I may be assisting first; and vice versa; then the president, then the person sitting next, and so on until it has been presented to all. Now, if I should administer the emblems to fifty persons, the tenth person has a canker sore mouth with sore lips. Of course the person so afflicted can not help it. Every brother and sister should feel sorry for such; but should forty persons drink of that cup their lips necessarily come in contact with some part or portion that the lips of those so afflicted do. Those so afflicted are not the only parties to whom I may refer; there are some that chew tobacco, and once in a while you can see traces of it upon their lips. High tide of tobacco spit has left its marks; the latter is not entitled to sympathy but rebuke. I have actually seen some of the sisters turn the cup and drink from some part where they thought those parties had not touched with their lips. Now think of it, partaking of the sacrament with such a feeling, it is mortifying to all concerned. I have known but one person that has asked the person administering to be administered after all others had partaken in consequence of having a sore mouth; I think others should follow the example.

Again: I think it wrong to pour the wine that is left after administering, back to the keg, or jug that holds the wine for future use, after being breathed upon by a hundred or more persons, some suffering with consumption, others with catarrh, &c. If the person administering or officiating will use judgment, so as to not fill the glasses or cups with more wine than will be used then, or nearly so, there will be but little need of pouring any back.

Again: it is hardly prudent in any person called upon to break the bread, to wipe his fingers on his pocket handkerchief, unless it be strictly clean; better take the towel, or cloth that is used to cover the emblems with during service.

I hope the above will give no offense; but let us live to learn, and learn to live in peace with God, hence with each other. Let us remember there is no ordinance or ceremony that should be treated with greater respect than that commemorating the death and suffering of our Lord Jesus Christ, looking forward to the time when he will drink anew with his saints in his Father's kingdom.

REPLY TO BOB. ELVIN'S LIES IN "SAINTS' HERALD."

EDITOR Opposition:

Dear Sir:—Wishing to get his epistle before the "Saints" at large, and away from where the facts are known, Robt. Elvin writes a letter from Wilber to the "Saints' Herald," in which he rehashes the falsehoods published in the Opposition two weeks ago,—touching up the lights and shades a little, just to give them zest with the "Saints,"—with some additional ones. I reply to this slander on some of the people of Wilber in the columns of your paper, first, because it is a local matter, second because I believe the Opposition to have a higher moral tone than the Herald, third, because I believe the editor of the Opposition a fairer man, and decidedly much more religious.

In glancing over this epistle I jotted down the lies with the pencil on the margin, and when done, I counted up and had a round dozen—a baker's dozen at that, besides a large number of false insinuations.

Now why is it that this man Elvin will tell such "whoppers," when he must know that he is detected in his prevarications? It must be he has been very intemperate sometime,—perhaps a saloon keeper, as reported,—and his mind has not fully recuperated from the terrible rack it then received.

Why is it he will continue to repeat these falsehoods after abundant evidence has been given to show him his error or wilful prevarications. Why is it? Is he proof against all testimony? Is his sensibility so blunted, his conscience so benumbed, that his moral constitution is impenetrable? No, not exactly that. I find a solution of the problem in Prov. 27:22. "*Though thou shouldst bray a fool in a mortar * * * with a pestle, yet will not his foolishness depart from him.*"

In this epistle from Wilber, by Robt. Elvin, I find the following sweet morsel for a large and respectable class of citizens of that place: "About four years ago the first of our faith was represented, and the reception that Rev. R. J. Anthony received, was that some of the leading church members wanted to hang him. The leading Protestant organizations at that time were the Christians and United Brethren." How is that! I but speak the sentiment of the entire community, when I say with emphasis, let the character and moral standing of the members of the above named churches, throw the groundless imputation back in Elvin's face with redoubled force,—back to him from whom it came through Robt. Elvin,—"the father of lies." But I presume Elvin will say, it is a revelation and must not be disputed. Let me suggest for Robt. Elvin's candid consideration—if he can be candid—the following: Rev. 21. 8. "But the fearful, and unbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and ALL LIARS, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone."

In conclusion I add, that the sole purpose of all this fillibustering and nonsense on the part of Robt. Elvin, is to disgust Everybody,—in which he has succeeded most admirably—and thus defeat the proposed debate. Already persons have entreated me to have nothing to do with it. They say, "if Robt. Elvin is a specimen of the "Saints" champions, do not dirty your fingers with them." But I insist, they have honorable men; men of talent, and invariably refer them to Rev. Kelley, who is preserved in "cold water," and will be forth coming when the time comes.—L. L. LUSE in Opposition, Wilber, Nebraska.

It was my intention at first not to ask any hearing in the Herald, in reply to Elvin's long letter from Wilber, but to keep the matter at home, and the correspondence in the local paper, where it belongs. But as some of my friends have asserted that the Herald would not publish my replies to Elvin's lies, and as some of the saints have declared that it would, and that I dare not reply, in the Herald, I submit the following, in connection with what was published in the Opposition, two weeks ago, asking that all I send be published or not any. There are many minor things, and many insinuations that are misleading, to which I make no reply at this time; but I will make one or two selections from his letter as specimens, to show the way this man Elvin misstates and prevaricates.

He says: "Our membership has been mostly recruits from protestants. And this has caused some ill feeling toward us."

The first part of this statement is correct, but the facts connected therewith will prove the last part false by logical sequence. The Mormon organization near Wilber, (they never had any in Wilber, and have but few members in town), is made up of defective, disaffected and defunct members of the Evangelical churches in this community. To use a homely expression, the Mormon Church here is a short of slop tub for all other churches. They have not taken a single member from any of the churches here, who was in good and regular standing; not a live, active man or woman, "contending earnestly for the faith once delivered to the Saints." But they have been successful, quite successful, yes, very successful in picking up the refuse and rejected of all other churches. They have not been careful to observe the Apostle's injunction, "marking them that cause divisions."

Again, he says:—"This (meaning the Mormon Church in this place, which does not exist) is the only body that manifests a steady growth." How this comports with facts, we will see. Five years ago, the date Elvin claims the first of the Mormon faith was presented here, the M. E. Church had no building and only a few members, perhaps, a half dozen. To-day they have a nice, commodious church worth three thousand dollars, and a large, growing membership, sufficiently promising, that it is proposed, I understand, to ask the next Annual Conference, which meets in October, for a minister to spend his whole time at this point. The Mormon Church have no organization in Wilber, never had, and never will have, allowing me to turn prophet; and I have as good a right too as Elvin or Jo. Smith. But notwithstanding all these facts, that man Elvin would boldly assert that the Mormon Church is "the only body manifesting a healthy growth." They meet occasionally in a school house a few miles south of town; but their coming together is so little thought of by the people, that they have no power either for good or evil.

If the Saints at large could once look on this community, and see the exact situation, and then read Elvin's statements, I think there is honor enough left with most of them, to think of him as he is thought of where known as a wilful prevaricator; a deceiver of the people; a religious humbug, with emphasis on the "bug."

The United Brethren Church is as strong and influential to-day as ever, and are having increased prosperity. They have no organization in town, but meet in the same school house south of town, occupied by the Mormons. They have a membership of excellent people, and are taught and led by an able minister and devoted Christian. True, the Christian Church building was sold. Their organization was effected on the heels of a meeting conducted by an Evangelist, and the result was the erection of a church building which was only enclosed. They never had a settled pastor. But of that church there are many left, true and loyal Christians, who have grace and sense enough to mind their own business.

The Baptists have an organization, but no church building. In their society there are men and women working nobly for the cause of Christ.

With these facts before him, Robert Elvin would jeopardize his reputation as a truthful man by stating with considerable of a religious air, that the Mormons are "the only body showing a healthy growth." If in every community the Mormon Church had no more standing or influence than they have here, no reply would be necessary. Or if in every community their preachers, so called, had as little influence as Elvin has here, no reply would be necessary. But, I am sorry to say—and it is with inexpressible feelings of sympathy, for poor delusion humanity—they have not.

The most damaging parts of Elvin's letter, are the half truths, told in bundles and labelled, "all wool and a yard wide." These are the worst kind of falsehoods. He mixes into his statements just enough of truth to make them dangerous, as a wolf in sheep's clothing—just enough of truth to make them take with the people, like the street tattler. A candid reader, however, has only to examine the fleecy wool, to detect the deception,

Respectfully,

L. L. LUSE.

WILBER, Neb., June 16th, 1883.

BEING less annoyed at the defects of others is one of the best proofs that we are approaching freedom from defects ourselves.

UNCONSCIOUS INFLUENCE.

WHO is able to estimate the amount of good or evil that may result from the unconscious acts of one individual, or even one act of that individual? It may shape the destiny of not only one person, but many who may be thrown under its influence. An unconscious act is the result of habit, and habit is the result of the first act of its kind, and that first act perhaps was the result of some other person's unconscious influence. Thus we might trace it back to that first act in the garden; but bear in mind that that act was a conscious one, yet not fully understood. When we are once habituated to a practice we are liable to unconsciously exhibit it, whether it is to our shame or honor.

For illustration: a thief may be detected by the stealthy movements of his hand, or the sly searching expression of his eye. One who indulges in vulgar, obscene, or profane language, may affect purity of speech, yet in an unguarded moment unconsciously expose his debasing indulgence. So on the other hand, he who strives to keep himself free from evil habits, will unconsciously exhibit his genuine traits of character and his associates will follow in his train. It is just as natural as it is for every seed to yield after its kind. "Thus the iniquities of the fathers are visited upon the children, unto the third and fourth generations;" for truly the unconscious influence at the fireside leaves its impressions as indelibly on the children as the potter's instruments do on his vessels. A teacher too, has an unlimited influence in this respect. The first children in a family may have habits of which they are unconscious, and they may be unconsciously indulged in by the juveniles who are under their immediate influence. We may know to what family a person belongs, whom we never met before, because we recognize in him a peculiarity of speech, of gesture which we have seen manifested by other members of his family; this is as plainly seen as a similarity of form or features. Our position in standing or sitting, may be acquired in the same way, consequently a person's whole appearance may be made to change very much by his changing associates. This shows the necessity of choosing proper associates; that is, those whose influence will tend to elevate our habits. Youth is the time to do this work, as a twig is more easily bent than a tree. "A man is known by the company he keeps," for two reasons; first, like seeks like, and second, he can not possibly continue in any one kind of society without becoming adapted to that society, consequently he must grow more like the company he keeps—according to the determination of his purpose. Again, we occasionally meet a young couple who have chosen each other for life, who are of opposite complexion, temperament, habits, principles, etc., but in process of time their hair becomes of a similar shade, their temperament more alike, their habits and language almost the same, their principles as one. Such is the case if love has been the ruling element of their lives, or in other words, if their highest aim has been to please each other—such is the result of unconscious influence. How great then is the necessity of every person's establishing himself in good habits of every kind, that his influence which is endless, may meet the approval of his Master. Dear Saints let us bear these things in mind.

Your sister

A. M. SNOW.

 THAT GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

FOR some years there has been considerable agitation in regard to this question, and a resolution has been passed by General Conference asking the president to call such assembly as early as practicable. A few have gone so far as to say he was afraid to call for the assembly lest the result would not be satisfactory. Whether this charge is true or not the writer thinks that good grounds for fear exist. There are several questions now pending which seem to demand the meeting of an assembly. In fact, this assembly has become a kind of pigeon hole into which all "vexed questions" are thrown for present settlement, a disposal. After some examination I have come to certain conclusions in regard to this matter, and I will give expression to them. If they are correct they may serve to allay the excitement; if not correct I may be corrected.

The main conclusion I have come to is that no General Assembly can be called, according to law, under existing circumstances, and not until disputed points have been placed before certain quorums for their decision; and then only by an appeal from their decision. Nor can those quorums act lawfully until at least a majority of them can be assembled; nor can a majority form a quorum unless "circumstances render it impossible to be otherwise." If these conclusions are correct we can readily see why the President has said that no intimation of the Spirit to him has indicated that the time for calling such assembly had come. But here is the law: "Of necessity, there are presidents, or presiding offices, growing out of, or appointed of, or from among those who are ordained to the several offices in these two priesthoods. Of the Melchisedec priesthood three presiding High Priests, chosen by the body, appointed and ordained to that office, and upheld by the confidence, faith and prayer of the church, form a quorum of the presidency of the church.

"The twelve traveling counselors are called to be the Twelve Apostles, or special witnesses of the name of Christ, in all the world; thus differing from other officers in the church in the duties of their calling, and they form a quorum equal in authority and power to the three presidents previously mentioned.

"The Seventy are also called to preach the gospel, and to be especial witnesses unto the Gentiles, and in all the world—thus differing from other officers in the church in the duties of their calling; and they form a quorum equal in authority to that of the twelve especial witnesses, or Apostles just named.

"And every decision made by either of these quorums must be by the unanimous voice of the same; that is, every member in each quorum must be agreed to its decisions, in order to make their decisions of the same power or validity one with the other. (A majority may form a quorum, when circumstances render it impossible to be otherwise). Unless this is the case their decisions are not entitled to the same blessings which the decision of a quorum of three presidents were anciently, who were ordained after the order of Melchisedec, and were righteous and holy men. The decisions of these quorums, or either of them, are to be made in all righteousness, in holiness and lowliness of heart, meekness and long suffering, and in faith and virtue and knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity, because the promise is, if these things abound in them, they shall not be unfruitful in the knowledge of the Lord. And in case that any decision of these quorums is made in unrighteousness, it may be brought before a General Assembly of the several quorums which constitute the spiritual authorities of the church, otherwise there can be no appeal from their decision."—D. C. 104: 11

Now it seems, to the mind of the writer, that no provision has been made for a General Assembly only in case that these three quorums shall render a decision in unrighteousness. The crippled condition of the quorums render it impossible for them to act in these matters, and consequently we must wait until the quorums are in working order and until they have rendered a decision, and that in unrighteousness ere a general assembly of the quorums can be called to decide points of doctrine. It is the opinion of the writer that should such assembly be called now that it would be permature and result in confusion.

If the church will go to work with their might, and loosen the hands of these quorums, and they step forward in the duties of their calling; and then call upon the Lord to fill up the quorums he will not answer "it is not expedient;" but the quorums will be placed in working order, and points of doctrine will be passed upon by those whose especial duty it is to preach them to the world, and then in case of unrighteousness upon their part a General Assembly may take the matter under consideration. There is beauty and consistency in this, and, it is the opinion of the writer, that the proper course for the church to pursue, is to humble themselves before God, and earnestly pray for a more complete and perfect organization, and cease to continually harp upon the calling of a General Assembly thereby disturbing the peace in Zion.

The way the matter now stands many of the church refuse to support the quorums until certain points of doctrine are decided, and said points of doctrine can never be settled until the quorums are supported and sustained. This is the dilemma we are in, and the sooner we extricate ourselves by wise and upright conduct, together with humility and prayer the better it will be for us and the cause entrusted to our care. I submit this for investigation and will hold myself in readiness to be corrected if wrong.

I am very respectfully,

INVESTIGATOR.

DIED.

HARTSHORN.—Near Sioux Rapids, Iowa, June 5th, 1883, after an illness of three months of enlargement of the heart, Sr. Charlotte, wife of Bro. Wm. H. Hartshorn, aged 78 years, 3 months and 17 days. She joined the church thirty years ago, and always held to the faith. On her death bed she requested her sons to unite with the church. She expressed the wish many times to die near the saints, she was ready and willing to go. She leaves a husband, four children, and several grand children to mourn and miss her.

SMITH.—Chester Smith was born in Stanford, Bennington Co., Vermont, May 14th, 1795, when about two years of age removed with his parents to Rome, N. Y.; about 1814 moved to Genese county; was married in 1829 to Abigail R. Bostwick, and in the fall of 1834 moved to Clarendon, Calhoun Co., Mich. Soon after they united with the Free Will Baptist Church. In 1844 or 1845, they joined the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons. In the Spring of 1846 moved to Wisconsin, (Lyons, Walworth county), where he resided until his death. His wife died April 11th, 1868. His health had been remarkably good until within a few weeks of his death, which was caused by dropsy. He was a firm believer in the latter day work, and died peacefully and quietly; his death occurred on May 30th, 1883. His funeral was largely attended by his old neighbors and friends; services were conducted by Rev. J. H. Brooks, the Methodist clergyman of this place, who paid a glowing tribute to his memory as a neighbor, friend, and a consistent worthy christian man.

LUFF.—At Independence, Missouri, May 28th, 1883, Sr. Agnes, beloved wife of Bro. John Luff. Deceased was born April 8th, 1853, at Falkirk, Shropshire, Scotland; baptized in Kansas City, Missouri, December 3d, 1882, by Elder T. H. Humes, confirmed by Elder Glaud Rodger. Funeral services were conducted by Elder A. H. Smith, and the sermon preached by him on the 10th June. A husband and five small children are left to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother. Though but a few months connected with the Church, yet in that brief period, and especially during the five weeks of her prostration, did she surely realize the truth of that promise, "ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." At times she informed those around her that she received an over-flow of the Spirit of God. She was conscious that death was approaching, even weeks before it really removed her, and yet the prospect was in no wise gloomy to her. She expressed her joy over being spared to obey the gospel, and commended her husband and children to God—exhorting her oldest boy to be baptized and live well. In his severe trial, her husband finds consolation—the assurance of her triumph. He desires also to express gratitude to all who so kindly ministered to them in their affliction.

Agnes sleeps, nor shall the ebb and flow
Of earthly tides henceforth disturb her rest—
One voice alone her slumbering ear shall know,
And soon its utterance shall inspire her breast.
Triumphant then—forth from the tomb—
(Mid thrilling splendor, furnished from the skies),
Angel attended—shall our sister come
And quick to immortality arise.

SHERWOOD.—At Lamoni, Iowa, June 15th, 1883, of congestion or inflammation of the bowels, the infant son of Bro. and Sr. John V. L. Sherwood, aged four months and one day. It had been a great sufferer almost from its birth, but seemed on the road to recovery when the disease attacked it which ended its life. Funeral sermon by Elder Henry A. Stebbins.

MORGAN.—At Fairfield, Utah, June 3d, 1883, Sr. Hannah Turner-Morgan, aged 69 years, 2 months, 21 days. She was born in Sidkeley parish, England; emigrated to Utah in 1862, and united with the Reorganized Church in 1881. She was faithful to the last, and full of the hope of life eternal.

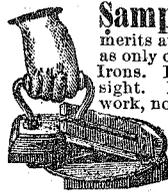

PROBERT.—In Eldorado county, California, March 22d, 1883, Anne Probert, aged 65 years and 10 months. She was the wife of W. C. Probert, and was baptized near the time that Joseph and Hyrum Smith were martyred. Not long after she received a revelation concerning them which she always prized very highly. She received it in a Saints' meeting, in the Victoria Branch of the Church, in South Wales. She emigrated to the United States in 1850, crossed the plains in 1853 to Salt Lake; became so disgusted with polygamy and bondage, that in 1854 she came to California; she was baptized by Alexander H. Smith in the Volcano Branch, December 22d, 1866.

NELSON.—In Nebraska City, Neb., June 6th, 1883, after eight days' sickness of croup, Fannie, only and beloved child of our widowed sister, Anna K. Nelson; aged 8 years, 6 months, and 4 days. Funeral sermon by Elder Henry Kemp, who spoke comforting words to the bereaved mother, who keenly feels the great loss of her only comfort. Brethren Frank Faunce, K. Johnson, N. Jensen, J. Armstrong, bore her to the grave June 7th.

We have laid her away in deep sadness,
But not without hope in our breast,
For again we shall join her with gladness,
And enter the heavenly rest.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 14th July, 1883.

BRO. E. L. KELLEY sent us the Willoughby (Ohio) Independent, with an article marked, calling our attention to it. It is given below, and tells its own story.

Last Thursday afternoon some twenty ladies and a number of gentlemen met at the Hotel, the object of the meeting being to give Elders E. L. Kelley and C. Scott, and Mrs. Kelly a friendly greeting, and welcome to a residence and prolonged sojourn in our village. Mr. N. Makepeace delivered a friendly and welcoming address, and responses were made by Elders Kelly and Scott. After which the company sat down to a bounteous repast, which the visiting ladies had provided. Mrs. Kelly was made the recipient of several presents, for which she returned thanks to the donors in appropriate terms. Z.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

It has been fair weather at Lamoni for more than a week to date, (July 3d), and the farmers have been very busy in their cornfields.

Bro. O. A. Ritchie arrived at Lamoni, from North Platte, Nebraska, July 2d. He expects to settle in the "regions" somewhere.

Bro. Samuel C. Andes wrote from Elmira, Kansas, June 27th, 1883, that "The Saints are getting along as usual; having very good prayer meetings, no preaching. Infidelity is raging in these parts, but not so strong as awhile back. Crops are doing well; plenty of rain this season. Hope it may continue."

Bro. Jobe Brown was to labor at Riceford, July 8th, where he has been once or twice before. We hope for his great success.

Bro. John Gilbert wrote from Plymouth, Massachusetts, that at Boston, Sunday, June 24th, one arose for baptism, and one at Plymouth, whence he wrote, June 29th. Bro. Frank M. Sheehy had gone into Maine, and Bro. Gilbert would follow him in a few days.

Sr. Caroline Wayt, of Glen Easton, West Virginia, desires the prayers of the Saints.

Numbers 1 and 4, of volume 1, of the Morning Light of Zion, published by W. H. Doughty and L. E. Pendleton, at North Searsport, Maine, have been sent us by Sr. E. Mansfield, for which please accept our thanks, sister in bonds. The paper is trine immersionist in sentiment, and Advent in tone.

BRO. JOSEPH F. BURTON sends us a clipping from a Nova Scotia paper, which indicates that he is at work doing what he can for the Master.

MORMONISM.—Mormonism appears to be getting a foothold in this county. Capt. Burton, a retired sea captain, and son of the late Rev. Mr. Burton, of Hantsport, has visited various parts of the county during the past year, preaching the doctrine of the Latter Day Saints, and is said to have numerous followers.

ELDER John T. Alexander, a missionary from Utah, traveling in Georgia, was June 1st past, waylaid on the highway, as he was passing from one settlement to another, by three men armed, and was by them compelled to go into the woods away from the road, where they beat and kicked him, winding up by shooting him nearly to death. Accident alone prevented his death, as it was evidently the intent of his assailants to kill him.

Elder Alexander is a preacher of the Mormonism of Utah, and was in Georgia, near to Adairsville, pursuing the object of his mission when thus waylaid and injured. It was a most dastardly outrage, and unworthy any community. But, like it was with young Strandring of the same church, some months ago; our own brethren John Thomas in Tennessee, and Charles Wickes in Texas, two years and a little over ago, those who can not and will not grant free speech and a fair showing to men differing from themselves, will resort to violence to prevent truth and freedom from prevailing. We have no fellowship with Elder Alexander's religion, or a great part of it, but have sympathy for him as a man who has been shamefully entreated; and have most unqualified hatred to the principle and spirit that injured him. When will men learn that mob violence is of the devil, and of him only.

THAT the principles of Republicanism are at work as an underlying force in British politics will be seen by a perusal of the subjoined speech of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, President of the Board of Trade in the British Cabinet—the Gladstone Cabinet. Mr. Chamberlain, is a young and rising Liberal in politics, and is evidently shrewd enough to see that he who would be near the people in the storm and struggle pending in the political atmosphere of Great Britain, must be willing now to show his sympathy with the people during the gloom and distress of their political night. The fact that the speaker was frequently and vociferously cheered, and his sentences followed by the "Hear, Hear," which characterizes the English audience, points to the unmistakable sympathy of the people with the sentiments of disestablishment of the church and the modification of the suffrage and election laws now prevailing in England.

It ought not to be a startling thought to any one not a royalist in feeling that at the death of Queen Victoria, it is possible for such an upheaving of republicanism, as to disrupt the Guelph dynasty, and place a President chosen by the people over a Republic similar to that of the United States, with a form of Government instituted "by the people for the people." It is already thought by some over the water, that such revolution will come at the end of the reign of the Prince of Wales, the immediate heir of Queen Victoria at her death, so that the children of the Prince would be the victims of royalty from whom the appendages of rule should be taken. But there must be some who can scarcely fail to see that the rapidity with which events are transpiring in the physical, mental, moral and political world, may not permit so long delay in what seems to be inevitable.

Americans ought to be willing to welcome the extension of the idea of freedom that gave rise to the experiment of the American Government, nor should it be thought strange if even so old and proud a monarchy as that of England should go down before the onward march of political liberty.

CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH.

THE STARTLING UTTERANCES OF THE GREAT RADICAL—A COMPREHENSIVE PROGRAMME.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham the 13th of June, on the occasion of the celebration in honor of John Bright has attracted very great attention on account of its bold pronouncement and because it is believed to be an outline of the English Radical programme. The following are the principal passages:

COSTLY ROYALTY.

Contrasting the demonstration at Birmingham in honor of the great Commonor with the pomp and ceremonies at Moscow a few weeks before he said:

I have been told that more than a million sterling of public money was expended on these ceremonies and festivities. But I do not doubt that over and above the hired enthusiasm and the official display which is common on such occasions there was a real and genuine expression of the will and of the opinions of the people, because the Czar of Russia represents the greatness and the unity of the Russian people, and he would be regarded by them with superstitious reverence as the head of their church and their religion. Your demonstration Monday lacked nearly all the elements which constituted the great pageant of the Russian coronation. Pomp and circumstance were wanting; no public money was expended; no military display accompanied Mr. Bright. The brilliant uniforms, the crowds of high officials, the representatives of royalty were absent and nobody missed them, for yours was essentially a demonstration of the people and by the people, in honor of the man whom the people delighted to honor, and the hero of that demonstration had no offices to bestow, no ribbands, or rank, or court titles to confer. He was only the plain citizen—one of ourselves, commended to you by his transparent honesty and singlemindedness, and by the devotion of a life to the service of the people from whom he sprung. Such a tribute so offered seems to me to be no slight compensation for the exacting toil of public life. And it will be a great encouragement to all who may be tempted, in however less a degree, to follow in his steps, to enter upon a service which is largely and generously acknowledged just in proportion as it is freely and unselfishly rendered.

WORK FOR RADICALS.

Mr. Chamberlain then paid a warm tribute to Mr. Bright, recounting his public services and public sacrifices, and went on to say:

We are grateful to him for what has been accomplished: we hope that his life may yet be spared to witness and to share in victories as great as any of those which he has won in the past: and we assure him that in all the efforts which he may make in the great causes of civil liberty and religious equality the people of Birmingham will follow him with undoubting loyalty and with unwavering trust. I do not know that we could show in any other tangible way than that which we have adopted our sense of the obligations which we have contracted: but, after all, our gratitude will best be expressed by our fidelity to the principles which our great leader has laid down for us, and by endeavoring to carry out and complete the work he has so well commenced. And now I hope it will not be thought inappropriate if I turn from the encouraging past to consider for a few minutes our immediate task in the future. Every day the country is becoming more radical and more democratic. We have heard that the present House of Commons is the best, the most earnest, and the most capable that has ever sat at Westminster, and I believe that is the opinion of the House of Commons. I do not doubt that on the whole and to the best of its ability it has fulfilled the expectations of those who returned it to power. But I believe that the great majority in the constituencies is more radical than the majority in the House of Commons. It may not be more radical than the Government; I doubt if it is; but Governments can only work through the machinery which the Constitution provides, and they cannot in any case go further than the average opinion of the House of Commons. Now, does the average opinion of the House of Commons accurately represent the mind and the temper of the people?

BRADLAUGH.

Well, let us test it by a few illustrations. Within the last three years a duly-elected representative of the people thrice returned to Parliament, has been, as we think, illegally and unconstitutionally prevented from fulfilling his duties, and in the end expelled by main force from the precincts of the House. Just thirty years ago Mr. Bright was pleading in the House of Commons against the exclusion of the Jews. He has lived to see one of that nation squeeze himself through the portals of the Constitution and now doing his best to close the doors upon others; but on the occasion to which I refer Mr. Bright demanded that the Commons' House should be open to the Commons of England, and that every man, be his creed what it might, if elected by the free voice of his countrymen, should sit in that House, and should take part in all matter of legislation affecting the United Kingdom. The plea in favor of the Jews has been successful; but the principle laid down is wider than the application which has been given to it, and it covers the right of every citizen to perform his civic duties, irrespective of his opinions upon religious faith and doctrine, however obnoxious they might be, however wrong the majority might deem them. I believe the great majority of the English people have long ago come to the conclusion to abandon the last shred of religious intolerance. And to seek no longer to protect religious faith by religious persecution.

CHURCH AND STATE—DISESTABLISHMENT.

In the same speech to which I have already referred, Mr. Bright traced the gradual relief of Roman Catholics and Unitarians and other classes of Nonconformists from the tests and disabilities which have been imposed upon them, and he showed that the spirit of exclusion which had dictated these tests and disabilities was due to that appetite for supremacy which was fostered by a dominant church in connection with a powerful ruling class, and from which each section of the people in turn had step by step had to win the equal rights which they enjoyed. That was twenty years ago. The connection between church and State still subsists in all its force and vigor, but I will undertake to say that if to-morrow you could poll the constituencies of this Kingdom that the vast majority of Liberal electors in the boroughs of the United Kingdom and the great majority of Liberals in the counties would be in favor of disestablishment. And yet I suppose that if a resolution to that effect were moved to-morrow only a small majority would be found to vote for it.

PARLIAMENTARY REFORM.

I do not often agree with Lord Salisbury, but I did agree with him when he said at Birmingham, and again at Southwark, that social reform was the great problem of our time, and that two of the most important branches of that reform are the better provision of dwellings for the working classes in large towns, and an improvement in the condition of the agricultural laborers in the counties. But those two reforms are out of the question until we can rise to an altogether higher conception of the so-called rights of property; until we can limit those rights by regard to the duties of property. That is impossible so long as property, and especially landed property, is able to enjoy a great majority in the House of Commons, and a practical monopoly in the House of Lords; and, therefore, I come to the conclusion that the first business of the Liberals is now, as it was twenty-five years ago, when Mr. Bright was chosen to represent us, to secure a further installment of Parliamentary reform, and to bring the House of Commons into closer accord with the opinions, and the wishes, and the interests of the people. In 1858 Mr. Bright told us that five out of six of the adult males of this kingdom had no votes. How do you think the matter stands now? Five out of eight are still in that position. Four millions of men at the least, called upon to perform all the duties of citizenship, called upon to bear all its burdens, these men are excluded from all participation in the political rights of freedom. This wrong is greatest, of course, in the counties. In the boroughs, out of a population of 15,000,000, 1,850,000 are electors; in the counties, out of a population of 20,000,000, only 1,200,000 have votes. In the boroughs the proportion is one in eight; in the counties it is one in seventeen. Now why is this distinction made? Can it be pretended that the population of the counties is more turbulent and dangerous to society and the State than we are in the towns? All experience, I think, points to an opposite conclusion. When revolutions do come they begin in the towns, and not in the villages. But we have another test of the sentiments by which this great body of our fellow countrymen are animated. Within the last ten or fifteen years the laborers had a great organization, led by the man whom you saw just now on this platform—Joseph Arch—a man of undoubted honesty and force of purpose, of great eloquence, whom I believe it would be a public benefit to have in the House of Commons, where I hope yet to see him, advocating within those walls the rights which he has known so well how to advocate outside.

I say there can by no possibility be any ground for the supposition that the admission of such men as these to the franchise would be a subject of alarm or anxiety, although I will not say that their continued exclusion may not be a source of danger. There was a poet of the laborers nearly a generation ago whose words are as applicable now as when he wrote them, and this man might say, as their forefathers did—

"God is our guide. No swords we draw;
We seek to light no battle fires.
By union, reason, justice, law,
We claim the birthright of our sires."

Gentlemen, it is not the agricultural laborers who are alone or even chiefly concerned in this reform. In every county town which is not a Parliamentary borough, and in the suburbs of our large towns which are admitted to the franchise, there is a vast population of orderly industrious men who are totally unrepresented. They are the same in character, in class, in social condition as the men who are enfranchised. Why are they excluded? By a geographical accident they are refused the rights which are conceded to their fellows. As I go home tonight from this hall I shall pass through crowded streets and lanes of houses extending almost to my own door. They are inhabited by an energetic and intelligent class, some tradesmen and some artisans. There is nothing in the building, there is nothing in the faces of the population to indicate that at some point in this continuous line of street I shall pass an invisible line where political rights cease and political exclusion begins. The men are practically the same as those who vote in this borough. Why should they be still excluded from a participation in making the laws which they are expected to obey? Consider the absurd anomalies to which such a state of things gives rise. A man lives in Birmingham in an £8 house. He has a vote, but in order to be nearer his work or because his house is required for an improvement, or for any other reason, he changes his residence and he goes across the line which separates Birmingham from Aston or Balsall-heath or harbor. He loses his vote. He is the same man: he has gained no immunity by crossing this imaginary border. He is still expected to obey the law, he is still required to pay taxes, but he is no longer allowed a vote for their application.

EQUAL ELECTORAL DISTRICTS.

But there is a more important matter before us, which is the extension of the franchise. We have to see that an equal value is given to the vote. It is no use increasing the number of votes if you minimize the political influence which the political vote confers. It is no use putting 1,000,000 in the place of 100,000 if the 1,000,000 has no greater power than the 100,000 had before. Now, let us see how this point stands. In 1858 Mr. Bright told us that one-sixth of the electors returned half the House of Commons. At this moment, in 1883, one-fifth of the electors do the same. A population of 6,000,000 in the United Kingdom in eighty-five counties returns 136 members, and a similar population of exactly the same number in 217 boroughs returns 290 members, and a third population also of 6,000,000, but residing in sixteen great constituencies, only returns thirty-six members. The last of these 6,000,000 has only one-eighth of the political power which is conferred upon the 6,000,000 in the other boroughs; it has only about one-fourth of the political power which is conferred upon the 6,000,000 in the counties, and why is this last population singled out and its representation minimized in this way? You know that it is the most active, the most intelligent part of the whole population of the Kingdom. The people who live in these great centers of the population enjoy an active political life which is not known elsewhere. They manage their own affairs with singular aptitude, discretion, and fairness. Why should not they be allowed to have their proportionate share in managing the affairs of the nation? Well; do you not think that the time has come when we should strive to substitute a real and honest representation of the people for this fraudulent thing which is called representation now? I will give you only one more illustration. Warwick has a population of under 12,000 souls, less than the population of any one of the wards of this great borough. Warwick returns two members to Parliament, and if strict proportion were observed there are enough people in this hall to return six members to Parliament. As for Birmingham, our population is 400,000, and the annual increment of that population is so great that every two years we add another Warwick to our number. We return three members, and lest you should be surfeited with this generous distribution of political power you are only permitted to give two votes apiece, and so it happens that an elector of Warwick has thirty-four times the political power of every elector of Birmingham.

SUMMING UP.

I need not dwell further upon these anomalies. If they were only anomalies I should not much care, but they are real obstacles to the legislation that is required in the interests of the people. Now, just let me sum up the situation: What does our Constitution do for us? First, it excludes from all political rights more than half the adult male population: and remember the class which is excluded in the most numerous class; but it is all one class, and every other class is represented to its last man. Well, then, in the next place, of the remainder four-fifths are outvoted by one-fifth, and so it happens that one-twelfth of what ought to be the whole constituency of the Kingdom returns a majority of the House of Commons. If the one-twelfth really represented the free voice of the people, it would not be of so much consequence; but you know in many cases at all events it only represents the influence of some great territorial family or some local magnate. Do you wonder that in an arrangement like this every vested interest, every time-worn privilege, every ancient abuse, finds its account?

"Now, ain't this a system worth pains in preserving?
When the people finds joints and their friends do the carving."

I say, it is time to make an effort to put the representation of the people upon a purer basis and a safer foundation. Now, shall we put the dots on i's? What do we want? We want, in the first place, a suffrage from which no man who is not disqualified by crime, or the receipt of relief, who is expected to fulfill the obligations of a citizen, shall be excluded. We want equal electoral districts, in order that every vote may have an equal value, and we want, I think, the payment of members, in order that every man who has the capacity to serve his country, who has honesty, intelligence, and who is selected for that purpose by his fellow-countrymen shall not be excluded for want of means. That is what we want; what we shall get is a different thing.

We may have once more to take a composition. But mind, under my new bill (the Bankruptcy bill) we will not give the debtor his discharge. This is a question in which Birmingham ought to take a foremost part. If we are true to the principles which we have inherited we shall never cease nor turn from the plow until we have completed the task which our forefathers commenced, until we have associated the whole people in the work of Government, and until we have secured equal rights and privileges to every one who obeys the law and who contributes by his industry, his toil, or his intelligence to the true greatness and prosperity of the Empire.

REUNION MEETING.

Report of committee on Reunion, meetings held at Council Bluffs, on the third day of July, 1883. The following districts were represented: Little Sioux, Galland's Grove, Pottawattamie, Fremont, Northern Nebraska, and Central Nebraska. Meeting organized in the upper room of Bro. Beebe's store, by calling Charles Derry to the chair.

After hearing the wishes of the several districts represented, as to the time and place of holding the Reunion Meeting in the Fall, it was unanimously resolved, that the place of such meeting be Leland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, and the time September 15th next, at eleven a.m., and to continue over Sunday the 23d.

Committee further resolved, that there should be no Saloons, Shows, Swings, or any other profane amusements allowed on the grounds, nor within the distance as prescribed by law. But the committee advise the brethren in the vicinity of the meeting, or the Salem Branch, to establish a place or places for boarding, and to furnish such refreshments as may be necessary. The Salem Spring Creek and Six Mile Grove Branches will furnish Wood and Hay free.

The committee extend a cordial invitation to all who may desire to participate in that meeting, and as cordially accept the promise of our beloved president to be present with a corps of Elders to break the Bread of Life on that occasion. The committee further invite all our brethren who may so desire, to be present with us on that occasion.

It was resolved to request the Presidency and Bishopric to obtain, if possible, special rates from all points to the towns of Portsmouth and Persia, situated on the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad. Leland's Grove is about thirty-five miles from Council Bluffs, and Persia is the station nearest the camp grounds on the road from Council Bluffs; and Portsmouth is the name of the last station as you come on that road from the east. Visitors from the east may take their choice; but the Presidency and Bishopric are requested to secure, if possible, the privilege of the trains carrying passengers, to stop and let the passengers going to the meeting get off at Leland's Grove Bridge. If such privilege is secured, the people need not stop either at Persia on the one side, or Portsmouth on the other.

For the success of the meeting, and the welfare of the work, we shall ever pray.

EXAMINE.

The word of the Lord to Enoch concerning the Saints in the last days:

"In the earth are many evils and tribulations, and the people are afflicted and distressed and destroyed thereby; and these things will increase as the wickedness of men increases, and their evil desires and ungodly works prevail over the things that are good and righteous.

"I created the world and the things that are therein; even all that thou seest, where Satan has not marred the beauty and excellence of my works. All these I made that man might enjoy length of days and continual peace and happiness in this world, and life everlasting in the world to come; if they would obey my words and not transgress the laws that I gave unto them for their own good. But Satan tempted him, and he chose to obey Satan who sought destruction, rather than to keep my commandments. For this cause came all those evils that fill the earth, and have wasted the riches and abundance thereof; yet the wickedness of the people will continue to increase until all the transgressors of my law are destroyed by the waters of the great deep, which shall sweep away all mine enemies. But the end of sin shall not be then; for after this they will go on in transgression until they become worse than those whom you now see.

"Many nations shall arise by whom my people shall be despised and persecuted until all men have forsaken the right way; except a few who shall be found amongst those that are afflicted and cast out by their enemies.

33. "Then shall my gospel be established upon the earth by the Savior of all that come unto him truly repenting of all their sins and transgressions. These shall be baptized of water, and then shall they receive my Spirit which shall be poured out upon all those that will repent and obey my commandments.

"This gospel shall be proclaimed to all the kindreds and nations of the earth; many shall receive and obey my words and shall rejoice therein

70. "Then shall Satan stir up all his servants to fight against my people who are scattered abroad amongst the nations that have rejected the testimony of those who proclaimed unto them the words of truth; then shall they make war upon the Saints and prevail against them even until few shall be found that obey the law of righteousness and execute justice and practice holiness before me.

1830. "Then will I cause a work to be brought forth upon the land of Joseph; and my gospel shall again be proclaimed to the inhabitants of the earth. But by those who seek to rule over the people shall my work be set aside and the imagination of their own hearts shall be taught as my words, until nearly all my people have turned aside from the right way.

1860. "Then will I again commence my work anew amongst the people that were gathered in my name. It shall be commenced and established upon the same foundation. For my work is the same at all times and among all people; I change not, neither is my law and my commandments, except it be by the unbelief and wickedness of the children of men.

"My gospel remaineth the same and in the last days when the time has come for righteousness to prevail and for the Saints to possess the kingdom; then shall the gospel again be preached to prepare the way for the establishment of that kingdom of righteousness, the order and glory of which thou hast already seen; from that time the Saints shall continue to increase; and the kingdoms of this world, with all the powers and glories thereof, shall fade and vanish away and be found no more forever.

"Then shall all things be restored unto my people that hath been withheld from them, because of the unbelief and transgressions of those who were called by my name. Therefore, give heed diligently unto those things that are given for the instruction of all my Saints; even all those who desire to walk uprightly and to fulfill all the law of righteousness, for my gospel is not changed, neither can it be changed by any power, or authority. I have given unto my Saints all instruction and understanding concerning the true and the right way that they need not err; neither will they, if they desire righteousness; and seek not to pervert the truth."

Brother Joseph, will you give this a place in the Saints' Herald and oblige, JAS. COMPTON.

CHEROKEE, Kansas, June 8th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—I have often thought of writing a few lines, that I might through your columns, bear my testimony with those of others, of the truth of this work that is now being presented to the world. This morning my heart is filled with love and gratitude to the dear Father who has said in his word, "Whosoever doeth" his will "shall know of the doctrine." That he is not a respecter of persons we all find to our joy, to be true when we have obeyed his commands. As I write, my mind wanders back five years ago, when I first heard this gospel. I was of the Methodist faith, and I would here add I believed that all the different churches were right, but was more favorable to my own of course. I had read in the Bible, time and again, what constituted the Church of Christ in the Apostles' time, but it never came to my mind that there could be but one church and that it must be after the pattern Christ presented to the world. "Judge of my surprise and wonder," when I heard a people get up and say that the gospel had again been restored to earth as in days of old, and that they as a people represented the Church of Christ with all that constituted that church when it was organized by Christ himself. I thought this a strange people; a deluded people. But I thought I must see what foundation they have for their belief, so I began to investigate and found it not so strange after all, as it was Bible doctrine, and if I believed the Bible it was true, for there it was so plain a child could understand it. I read where there should be a departure from the faith. On account of the wickedness of the people the gospel would be taken from the earth, with all its gifts and blessings. And then in Revelations, when John "saw an angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, kindred, tongue and people." I knew then if the gospel was going to be restored, that it had been taken away, and that the gospel had been perverted, all I had to do, was to look at the different churches, all claiming to be the Church of Christ, having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof. I had read and heard the word preached, was convinced it was true, now what was I to do? My friends opposed it, and I already knew what the world would say. "No, no," I said to myself, "although I know if this is not true, there is no truth. I will stop right here. I will go no farther." Did I stop there? These few remaining lines will tell you. I knew I had just enough light to condemn me in the last day, and I dared not reject it; I cared not then what people might say, or that friends might oppose. My desire now was to be baptized, and have hands laid on me for the gift of the Holy Spirit that I might know for myself; as to this knowledge I am a witness, as are all others that have obeyed this gospel. Now that I have found the way, my heart goes out in sympathy to all others that are as I was once, in darkness. And how great the darkness they will never know until they receive the light that God gives to those that are earnestly seeking after truth. May God help them to see, and understand, and obey this truth, is my humble prayer.

Your sister in the one faith,

ELIZA SHEEHAN.

CHATFIELD, Minn., June 29th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I noticed in a letter signed by M. Eaton, something about women wishing to be called by a man's name to take away their reproach. "No respectable woman is reproached because she is not called by a man's name."

I agree with her; neither do I think a respectable woman should be reproached because she is called by a man's name, that is if the man is her husband; and surely no respectable woman would wish to be called by a man's name who is not her husband. I think it is right and proper, and very often more convenient for a woman to write her own in her husband's name; especially if the woman has a long name as many of them do. Besides, we learned in our grammars when we were in school, that Mrs. meant "wife of." If it does, then I can not see anything wrong about it, when placed before a man's name. I am sure it is easier for me to write Mrs. O. C. Merrill than

MARY MATILDA MERRILL.

BLUE RAPIDS, Marshall Co., Kan.,
June 30th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—We have meetings here Wednesday night, Sunday at eleven and at three. Brethren Kinnaman and Hinderks have been here, and we have enjoyed their presence very much, and feel to thank them for the sacrifice they have made in leaving their homes to preach the word of God to us. Sometimes I think if I only could go and preach to the people that are starving for the gospel; I am a sister, and can not; but I do not feel like complaining, for sisters are needed in the Church. Sisters, that when husbands are called to preach, their prayers will ascend to God's throne in behalf of them. Sisters, let us not fret because our husbands are called to preach the everlasting gospel, but let us rejoice that they are accounted worthy to become messengers of the Lord. Let us encourage them, even though they are called far from us to preach this the only true gospel. Let us be cheerful and happy when they are at home, for they meet with trials and temptations abroad. Let them find peace and harmony at home, that when they are permitted to turn from the sneers of the world, they may think with joy of meeting with their loved ones around their own fireside. There, free from the world, he can enjoy his rest, feeling that nought but the presence of the Spirit of God dwells in his family. Hoping that this will find a place in the Herald, as it is the first I have written, and that it may help to encourage some, I close, asking the prayers of the Saints.

I remain your sister in the gospel,

EMMA A. PAYND.

SOUTH RAWDON, Hants Co., Nova Scotia,
June 21st, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—On May 29th I received the letter of appointment—please accept my thanks for it. On April 4th, Emma and I left here for a tour in King's county again. We found the people of Delhaven still tied up by priestcraft and traditions, and not willing to hear. On the 22d I baptized Emma's sister, Mrs. Eliza Beach. May 18th we were glad in making the acquaintance of Bro. Joseph Lakeman, of Grand Manan, who preached for us Sunday in Bro. Robert Newcomb's house. In the evening I assisted him in ordaining Bro. R. Newcomb to the office of Priest. We could not get a hall in Canning or Hantsport; but Bro. Lakeman preached at the R. R. Station at Hantsport, to quite a good congregation. From there we went to the Upper Newport Branch. Bro. Holmes J. Davison and wife accompanying us. Sunday Bro. Lakeman and Davison preached for us, morning and afternoon, to good congregations of brethren and friends. The next day Bro. Holmes had to go home and Bro. Joseph Lakeman preached in the evening at South Rawdon, Tuesday at Middle Rawdon, and Wednesday at Lakeland, at Bro. Burgess' house; and Thursday he started for home, leaving us somewhat lonely, but refreshed and encouraged for our work by his presence, counsel and instruction while with us. The people of these places were much pleased with him, both in preaching and conversation. Some think if he had staid a few weeks we would have had quite a revival. They noticed that he preached the same doctrine I had taught; and I was gratified to find that he did not deem it necessary to undo any of my work, or teach differently from what they had been taught. Although the continent of America had separated us while receiving instruction, when we met we agreed in word, in doctrine, in testimony. We might answer, yes to the poet in 1116 of Harp, 2d verse. The pure testimony:

"Is not the time come for the Church to be gathered Into the one Spirit of God?

Baptized by one Spirit into the one body,
Partaking Christ's flesh and his blood?

They drink in one Spirit, which makes them all see They're one in Christ Jesus wherever they be;
The Jew and the Gentile, the bond and the free."

There seems to be more of an earnest inquiry for truth here than ever before; we are quite hopeful and think the outlook for an ingathering after awhile good. As for the future I never could forecast much; but at present, Bro. Burgess and I have in view a trip around the shore of "Minas Basin;" and after that my mind is again reached out to Cape Breton; after which, unless I can make some satisfactory arrangements for my little girl in California, I shall have to return in the fall. I would prefer for my own sake and for the work's sake to remain until Spring. The Baptist minister, D. Freeman replied in Western Chronicle to Bro. H. J. Davison's challenge, in a lengthy article of abuse and foolishness. We were permitted the same space in the Chronicle to reply. We tried to improve the opportunity as much as possible in presenting our faith. We sent you copies of the paper. I enclose dream for Herald if you deem it worthy.

Yours in Christ,

JOS. F. BURTON.

Bro. J. W. Dimock dreamed the following: "He was walking on a road near a muddy place, across which he saw an old, hewed-square, long stick, upon which people were passing over. It had sunken in the mud so much, that it was of very little benefit in keeping people out of the mud. Directly a man came along and lifted the stick out of the mud, and laid down three sticks crosswise and laid the long stick on them; one cross stick at each end, and one in the middle; thus keeping the long stick out of the mud. A person then told Bro. Dimock that this represents the world; and also the Christian or Saint; and if your brother or neighbor gets down you should help him up.

"He then saw in his dream a man planting a small twig, or tree, on the side of a mountain. He said to him, "That little tree can not live, it is too dry there." He answered, "Yes, it will; for I will water it every day." And he said, this is like the Christian, or Saint; for as I water this to keep it alive, so must they pray, for prayer is to the Saint as water is to this plant on this dry soil."

Comment.—As Bro. Dimock related the dream I had the following interpretation; for evidently the dream is two fold in meaning; for he was told in the first part that it represented the world (i. e. the roadway) as well as that interpretation given. The hewed stick which seemed to have been used before, represented the first organization. The cross sticks having been taken out, it sank into the mud, (apostacy). But being lifted up by a strong man, and the sticks (of Judah, Ephraim, and Joseph) placed under it again, men could cross safely and clean—this representing the Reorganization resting on the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants. The little twig is the "Upper Newport" Branch, of Nova Scotia, planted on the side of Mount Zion, (all America is Zion), which will be watered with the dews of heaven and live; and by prayer they will grow "for the prayer of faith brings the Spirit of God." Amen.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I am a poor man, but nevertheless I feel it my duty to do all I possibly can in bringing salvation to the souls of men; and especially do I feel it a duty resting upon me as well as upon others to do all we can to show the people of Utah their awful position—apostasy and rejection as a church—and I think the article of Bro. George S. Lincoln in the last Herald will accomplish that end, and would suggest the idea of raising a subscription and have a few thousand copies printed in pamphlet form, and distributed among that people. I think it would be the means of showing them their error and they would forsake it and return to God. For I do know that there are many good; honest souls in that place that have received this latter day work for the love of the truth; and many of them have made great sacrifices to roll it forth to the ends of the earth. I will contribute five dollars to such an enterprise.

I remain your brother in the covenant of peace and love,

WM. HART.

BUFFALO, Iowa,

June 28th, 1883.

Brother Smith:—H. C. Bronson and self have concluded a short series of meetings near Andalusia, Illinois. The interest was good and one was baptized, while others were almost persuaded. David Holmes and Isaac Larew introduced the work into those parts and sowed with a liberal hand, hence the fruit begins to appear. We are to hold forth the rest of this week here, in the Christian Church; and Sunday in the Baptist Chapel at Andalusia. Catholicism and Episcopalianism hold sway here, while Spiritualism and sectism obtain across the river.

M. T. SHORT.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Illinois,
July 1st, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—We are having the word and ordinances administered very acceptably among us, by Bro. T. W. Smith. He has zealously entered into his mission here. He is said by many to be the best reasoner we have had here. He had baptized four a week ago. One of them Rev. J. W. Stone, (of the Christian Church), with whom we held discussion some years ago. Bro. Blair will remember seeing him in Southern Indiana.

I think it would certainly be a benefit to our sisters here if Sr. Smith could have been here with T. W. to encourage them to take part in the meetings, and many are anxious that she shall come. This is not a very encouraging field to labor in. In many respects we are very far behind, but there are many good Saints here and we hope to make some advancement in the right direction, God helping us. Hope to have more good news to send you by and by.

As ever yours in bonds of love.

G. H. HILLIARD.

CAMBRIA, Mich., July 2d, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. B. W. Sparks has helped me to get two places to preach where there has been no preaching done before; one, a hall in this village where I have preached twice; and the other a school house two miles farther east. Audiences ranged from thirty to fifty; for the most part good attention was paid. Prejudice however runs very high as shown by the fact that at my first meeting there were no ladies present, excepting those of Bro. Sparks' family. At my next meeting there were several ladies present. The people are astonished that we don't preach Mormon doctrine. I can see by their looks how surprised they are when I read or quote from the New Testament. They have evidently expected that our whole stock in trade would consist of inducements to beguile their fair wives and daughters away from their pleasant homes and firesides to some valley of the west; and I think some of them were actually chagrined that I did not talk in a way that would give color to such an idea. Quite a number, however, have listened with that eager attention which betokens an interest in what is said for its own sake; and it is hoped that some future day they will evince a desire to learn the way of God more perfectly. This is a beautiful region of country, and the people appear to be in too comfortable circumstances to take a deep interest in religion. I feel determined to persist in presenting the claims of Christ and his gospel upon the attention of the people.

In bonds,

DUNCAN CAMPBELL.

BURNETT, Neb., June 26th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Since I last wrote for your columns I have passed through a trying ordeal, which is prospective of only the beginning of sorrows. The readers of your pages are familiar with trials, hence not worth the while to mention its nature. What is a trial to one is not so much so to others. I praise God through Jesus Christ for strength to endure. My faith in the gospel's power to save is increased and the work of sacrifice being better understood. Since the Sixth of June have endeavored to keep the glorious banner of freedom floating in the breeze; and where it has been trailing in the dust and filth of negligence and evil, I have endeavored to sprinkle it with purity and wash it of its stains, to what effect God knows. Much labor is now being done in the Northern Nebraska District in the way of "setting in order" and "regulating." God has called one to the watchcare in that district who is a shepherd indeed. He is seeking to repair the breaches in the fold, and to care for the sheep, by burying the dead that the rest may be healthy and not die, and administering the healing balm to the diseased. I have just been in attendance at the conference of the Central Nebraska District. Not many in attendance on account of storms, and the busy time of the year. Those who were in attendance seemed to be in earnest, desiring to know Christ and him crucified.

I have been blessed with the kind association and good instruction of Brn. Brand and Derry, which has been a source of good to me; Bro. Derry still being with me.

May the God of Israel purify your pages from all that is erroneous or hurtful, and cause truth to shine on every page to the instruction of man in the "one faith," and to God be glory forever. Amen.

Brethren and Sisters:—Being deprived of meeting with the Saints so much, I feel like writing often. I am thankful that there are preparations being made for Reunion Meetings in the west, for there are many who will go to a meeting of that kind that otherwise would not hear preaching from our Elders. Hoping that the Saints may have wisdom to guide in all things.

I remain as ever,

The Evangelist says that there are now between three and four hundred Christian schools in China, containing over six thousand pupils. A Presbyterian lady missionary, mentioning this phase of Christian work, claims that through the agency of these schools, before many years, if the Church be faithful to her trust, the whole Chinese Empire will be full of light.

Summary of News.

June 29th.—The question of the deportation of paupers from Ireland to the United States at the expense of Great Britain was brought up in the House of Commons yesterday. Trevelyan, Chief Secretary of Ireland, was interrogated by Mr. Cowen, and entered a general denial.

Twenty-three collieries near Ashland, Pa., were flooded by yesterday's storm. Colliery work is suspended, and it will take considerable time to make the necessary repairs.

The damage in the vicinity of Bangor, Pa., by yesterday's storm to private individuals and the State quarries is $75,000. Seven bridges were swept away.

It was reported at Queenstown, Ireland, yesterday, that Carey, the informer, had sailed for this country.

Placards have appeared at Warsaw, Russia, inciting the people to general revolt and to alliance with the Nihilists.

The value of the wool-clip in Osborne county, Kas., this year is about $28,700, as against $14,000 last year.

Montana will not only build about a dozen new school-houses this summer, but has also fallen in with the Teacher's Institute idea.

In the difficulty at Collinsville, Ala., between A. B. and Thomas Hall, father and son, and Thos. and William Mullen, brothers, both the Halls and Thomas Mullen were killed. They quarreled about the location of a fence on a farm.

The sawmill at Whittlesey, Wis., was the scene of a boiler explosion yesterday afternoon, resulting in the death of three men. The mill was almost totally destroyed.

A dock at Muskegon, Wis., on which was piled 800,000 feet of lumber gave way and twenty men were thrown into the lake, and two or three are believed to be drowned, and one man was crushed under 40,000 feet of lumber.

At Elk Creek, Montana, a mile and a half east of Heron Siding, a Northern Pacific gravel-train backing down was run into by a wood-train, instantly killing eighteen Chinamen, and wounding from twenty to twenty-five others. The engineer of the gravel-train was killed and the fireman seriously wounded. No one was hurt on the wood-train.

June 30th.—For the past few days many cases of cholera have been reported from Damietta, Egypt, and during the last twenty-four hours 107 cases were reported.

Fifteen cases of cholera and seven deaths were reported at Mansurah Thursday. It is said that the Italian Vice-Consul and a European lady are among the dead. Two thousand persons have already fled from this city in consequence of the outbreak.

The glass factories in the neighborhood of Wheeling, W. Va., closed yesterday for a six weeks' rest. This involves the idleness of some 1,200 men, 2,000 boys, and 800 girls.

The wheat-growers of Berks county, Pennsylvania, report the Hessian fly is manipulating one portion of the wheat plants and a small green worm is devastating the grain at the head. Old farmers say a similar worm played havoc with the crop a quarter of a century ago.

Eight bodies of drowned persons have been found along the shores of Staten Island, N. Y., during the last eight days.

Upwards of twenty men were more or less injured, and ten of the leading shops on Main and other streets of Winnipeg, Manitoba, had plate-glass and other glass smashed to atoms, by the explosion of gunpowder in a hardware store which was on fire and destroyed. The report shocked the whole city to its centre as if by an earthquake. The side-walks in many places were covered with glass as if after a hail-storm.

Distressing reports come from the far-away diamond fields of South Africa. In parts of the country there has been no rain for three years, and the people are starving. To add to the sorrowful condition of affairs produced by the failure of the crops the Kimberley diamond mine, which is 380 feet deep, has met with a serious disaster. The soft debris has fallen back into the mine in such quantities that eighteen months will be required to repair the excavations.

During the recent high water in Nebraska, Mrs. Grubb and three children were drowned while attempting to cross the river in a skiff. A tornado of great violence is reported from Wisconsin this time, spreading consternation and terror in the hearts of the people, besides the great damage done. New Cassel, Fond du Lac county, Wis., was struck by a tornado coming from the North-west and sweeping away almost everything for a distance of about a mile. The Catholic Church, as well as the priest's residence, was unroofed, and the mother of the Rev. Mr. Berthram was seriously hurt. The roof and tower of the German Reformed Church were completely destroyed. The residence of Jacob Degenhart was entirely swept away. Numerous trees were uprooted and many fences demolished.

At Belgium the wind increased in its force until it assumed a velocity of at least eighty miles an hour, leaving its path strewn with the debris of demolished buildings, fences, and trees. The stone steeple of the Catholic Church at Holy Cross, with two bells, was blown down. One dwelling and a number of barns were swept away; two horses were killed.

At Ripon the storm covered a strip of country about ten miles wide. More than twenty barns are reported entirely destroyed and many unroofed.

At Brandon, sheds and light buildings all through the village were blown down or moved. Several box-cars near the depot were moved away, and one was lifted from the track.

Port Washington was just in the southern limit of the storm, and escaped with the loss of shade and orchard trees, several chimneys, and some small buildings. July 4th.—The volcano of Ometepe, Lake Nicaragua, is in eruption. When the crater first broke forth the people fled to the churches, feeling that the whole island would be destroyed. The Valley of the Atrato, in the State of Cauca, continues the centre of volcanic activity. At Rio Sudio, forty miles from the Atlantic, the earth opened in many places, throwing out very fine sand in a heated state, whilst a subterranean noise was heard resembling that made by boiling water. At Turbo, on the Gulf of Uraba, the crath opened, and the water issued, flooding the streets to the depth of two feet. Many houses were shaken down. At Glasgow, Scotland, another memorable disaster has been added to the appalling record of 1883. The steamer Daphne, in process of construction, was run off her stays into the river. Faith in the architect had been such that hundreds of workmen were busy in every part of the wretched craft when she was launched. No sooner was the water reached than the vessel rolled from side to side, and finally half sank. All the men below stairs were drowned. The Clyde, though the home of a colossal shipbuilding industry, is a narrow and very rapid stream, and serious launching accidents have preceded the horrible event of yesterday. It is not exactly known how many persons were drowned, but it is feared the number will reach over 100.

KEWANEE CONFERENCE MEETING.

Brethren; "this" a solemn meeting,
Zion's royal little band;
In true love each other greeting
With the grasp of friendship's hand.
From the hill side and the prairie,
From the vale, the old grist mill;
From the coal mine, dark and dreary,
Come to do the Master's will;
From the business desk and counter,
From the farmer's spade and plow;
Fearless of the demon vaunter,
Met to gain refreshment now.

Laying by the pick and hand-drill;
And the saw and smoothing plane,
While the music ringing anvil
Silent waits the hammer-strain;
All unite in prayer, and singing
Praises to their gracious Lord,
And the spirit's power attending
To the preaching of the Word.
Gifts of tongues, and prophesying;
Sickness flees at God's command;
Pain and sorrow, grief and sighing
Chasing from Christ's little band.

Wisdom at the close, dictating,
Bids us say, "Good bye" to all;
Here and there our district dotting,
Heralding the "last days" call."
Man from sin and lasting ruin;
To the Savior's loving fold;
Priestcraft's fettered knots undoing
By the Spirit's grace of old.
Father; at the close in meekness
We would still unto Thee pray,
Us to bless in all our weakness,
That thy truth may win its way.
And when foes may frown upon us,
Treating light the tale we tell;
Let thy Spirit e'er brood o'er us;
Then we'll shout, "all, all, is well."

SERMON BY ELDER J. M. HARVEY, OF MAGNOLIA, IOWA,
AT THE OLD CHURCH, LAMONI, IOWA,
JUNE 5TH, 1881.

BELOVED SAINTS, I will call your attention to a passage of Scripture found in the Apostle's letter to the Ephesian, first chapter, ninth and tenth verses: "Having made known unto us the mystery of His will, according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself; that in the dispensation of the fullness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are on earth; even in him." You have heard read by our brother a production of the latter times which agrees perfectly with what the Apostle is here speaking about. He tells us it was a mystery before God revealed it, and he terms it a gathering dispensation, that God would gather together all things both in heaven and on the earth; even in him. He says this mystery was revealed unto them. That theirs was not a gathering dispensation is evident from the teachings of Jesus Christ himself. When men gather together there must be a place of gathering, and we have recorded in God's word clearly and distinctly, when and where this gathering shall take place, and it presents the same idea that the Apostle had in view. Joel, in his second chapter, speaking of the Lord's coming says, "The sun shall be darkened and the moon turned into blood before the great and terrible day of the Lord come, [exactly the same scenes that shall precede the coming of the Son of Man as recorded in Matthew], and all that call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." We stop to enquire who will call upon the name of the Lord? Only those who have faith in the promises that the Father hath given to the children of men. There is another class will call upon the mountains to fall upon them and hide them from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the face of the Lamb. I thank the Lord with all my soul that it has been clearly and unmistakeably pointed out where this deliverance shall take place, viz: that it shall be in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and in the remnant whom the Lord our God shall call.

Now let us go back to the text. The Lord shall gather all things in heaven and on earth in him. It is certain that Jerusalem was not a place of deliverance to those at that day, for they were admonished by the Lord and Master, that their city was doomed, that it should be trodden down of the Gentiles until their fullness had come in; and he warned them to flee from it lest sudden destruction should come upon them. Peter, speaking to those men who had crucified the Lord of life and glory, who said let his blood be upon us and upon our children, says, Repent and be converted that your sins may be blotted out when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and this time will be when all things spoken by the mouths of all God's holy prophets since the world began are fulfilled. Paul calls it the dispensation of the fullness of times, and Peter calls it the times of the restoration of all things spoken by the prophets. We find that in the Jewish economy, in the mouths of two or three witnesses every word was established, and we also find that in the new covenant the same thing obtained. We will now go back to the teachings of the Lord Jesus. We invite your attention to the 14th chapter of Luke, and here the Lord tells us that a certain person made a great supper, and he sent his servants at supper time to invite those whom he had bidden to come to the supper. We invite your attention to the fact that this was supper time. We expect to be able to show that there was also a dinner time spoken of. We will turn to the word and we shall be better able to tell what the Savior was talking about. We apprehend that this dinner time was spoken of by the Master himself and we need not be mistaken about it. Turn to the 22d chapter of Matthew. "And Jesus answered the people and spake unto them in parables and said, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a certain king who made a marriage for his son, and when the marriage was ready he sent forth his servants to call them which were bidden to the wedding, and they would not come. Again he sent forth his servants saying, tell them that are bidden, Behold I have prepared my oxen, and my fatlings have been killed, and my dinner is ready and all things are prepared; therefore come unto the marriage." We apprehend that this with the other scripture considered points out two distinct lines of invitation, and the context points out so clearly when this dinner time occurred. "But they made light of the servants and went their ways; one to his farm and another to his merchandize. And the remnant took his servants and entreated them spitefully, and slew them. But when the king heard that his servants were dead, he was wroth and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers and burned their city." We find that those chosen messengers that Jesus sent to preach the gospel to the nations of the earth, who were to begin their message at Jerusalem, were, many of them, ill treated and slain by the Jewish people, and this is the reason why he sent his armies under Titus to destroy them and burn up their city. This evinces the fact that the dinner time was when the Lord and Savior came to make the offering to the house of Judah. This had been promised long ago.

Ezekiel in his twenty-first chapter, speaking about the house of Israel says, "I will overturn, overturn, overturn it, and it shall be no more until he comes whose right it is; and I will give it him." After the fulfillment of the prophecy when Titus went forth and executed the fierce vengeance of the Lord upon the nation, they became a hiss and a byword, among all the nations, and had no place to call their home; they were denied citizenship,—until they obtained it in "the land of the free and the home of the brave,"—but that is changed now. We now call your attention to the 3d chapter of Malachi: "Behold I will send my messenger before my face, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant whom ye delight in; behold he shall come, saith the Lord." We find there are two messengers spoken of in the first verse. The messenger that shall prepare the way, and the Lord Jesus Christ himself. I know it is said that the first messenger was John the Baptist, and that he did not fulfill all his work the first time coming. We have nothing to say in this matter. But that he should fulfill that spoken of in the latter part of the verse we can not endorse. When the Lord Jesus came to earth He was born in a stable, cradled in a manger, and we have it from his own lips that the foxes had holes and the birds of the air nests, but the Son of Man had not where to lay his head. But when he comes as this messenger, it says who shall stand when he appears for he is like a refiner's fire and like fuller's soap, &c., and this messenger is to perform a mighty work which the brother was reading about in the Book of Covenants. "And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and shall purge them as gold and silver that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, And I will come near to you to judgment and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerer," &c. Now I submit to the intelligence of this congregation if it had its fulfillment when the Savior made his appearance on earth as recorded by Luke when the angels announced unto the shepherds "This day in the city of David is born a Savior who is Christ the Lord." The offering of Judah and Jerusalem was not pleasant to him when he stood before the bar of Pilate and they cried out, "Crucify him, crucify him," and when they said, "His blood be upon our heads." But when this messenger comes in the latter days when deliverance has to be performed, it will be a very different work than that performed by John the Baptist. Prior to Christ's coming as a swift witness against the sorcerer, &c., &c., another messenger shall come to prepare the way before him. Here we are met with the objection that the Savior says that Elias was John the Baptist. Let us examine this a moment. Elias and Elijah are one and the same person. The Old Testament written in Hebrew and translated in our language gives the name of Elijah to the person in question. The New Testament written in Greek and translated gives the name of Elias to the same person. Then in what sense was John the Elias? You recollect that the old prophet was translated in a chariot of fire, that his body did not become food for worms, for the Lord took him. I understand that the word Elias means a restorer who came to restore something that was lost.

Here I may make a divergence. We are informed in history that in the government of the house of Israel, that there was a High Priest who went once a year into the holy place to offer sacrifices for the people and when those sacrifices were accepted of the Lord he caused his Spirit to shine upon them; but when the Roman Government obtained possession of the Jewish territory, corruption obtained among them, and the man that could bring the most money obtained the High Priesthood, and Josephus informs us that, one hundred years before the ushering in of the Jewish dispensation that the Lord's Spirit refused to shine, to acknowledge their offering, and hence they needed a restorer. John the Baptist was a restorer and he came preaching the doctrine of baptism for the remission of sins in Judea, and Mark tells us it was the beginning of the gospel of Christ. Then we apprehend, as the Savior says, that John was the Elias that should come clothed with the authority to act in the Spirit and power of Elias, as a restorer to restore that which was lost and bring the people back to the old paths. If he could do it eighteen hundred years ago, is there any great wonder that a man should do it in these days? We have the fact right with God's words before us, that apostasy had become complete, and there needs to be a restoration again, and this restitution shall be brought about by this individual that was spoken about in this chapter, (3 Mal.), "And the Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant whom ye delight in, but who shall abide the day of his coming?"

We apprehend that the Apostle Peter spoke about the same thing when speaking about the restitution of all things. And has the Lord in his mercy left us no landmarks to show us when this should transpire? We think he has in the matter that concerns our salvation, as it seems to me that a loving father would not leave his children in darkness. The Savior tells us to watch the signs of the times. He tells the Jewish people they can not discern the signs of the times, but tells them to watch and pray lest these things should come upon them unawares. I refer you now to a passage of scripture found in Zechariah 2d chapter, commencing at the first verse, "I lifted up mine eyes again and behold a man with a measuring line in his hand. Then said I, whither goest thou? And he said unto me, to measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length thereof. And behold the angel that talked with me went forth, and another angel went forth to meet him. And said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, Jerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without walls for the multitude of men and cattle therein." We find a man in these latter times who claims that an angel made exactly this declaration to him, claims that an angel from the courts of glory visited him, and made him an instrument in the hands of God to bring about his righteous purposes, and described to him many things connected with the great work before him, and one of the things he described was, that the house of Israel, the descendants of Abraham, should be gathered from their long dispersion to their inheritances, and that their land should be brought back to its fertility. Let me say, that this was told fifty years ago among the churches of this proud land, and they laughed to scorn the thought that the people of Israel should assemble as a nation upon the land that God gave to their fathers. Whence this inspiration?

Last Tuesday evening I had the opportunity of being in company with one of the witnesses to this work? I asked him what the claims for an education were, of this young man who claimed this inspiration. He said he did not find out by his own study that Israel should again become a nation upon the mountains of the Lord. I asked him what his attainments were. He answered that when he was translating he would have to spell out letter by letter, and the scribe would make it out. God has told us that he would take of the foolish things of this world to confound the wise. The prophet declares that the message should be told this young man, and he comes at the right time and declares its fulfillment to the very letter. Now then for the signs of the times in the day in which we live, Nahum 2d chapter. I commence to read at the third verse, "The shield of his mighty men is made red, the valient men are in scarlet; the chariots shall be with flaming torches in the day of his preparation, and the fir trees shall be terribly shaken."

Here we have a preparation spoken of, a graphic description of something, and the prophet calls them chariots, he says they shall be with flaming torches, and they shall run like lightning. With all the wisdom man is endowed with in this age; with all the education he could acquire, I doubt if a man could give a more graphic description of the things that are now taking place upon these prairies. He calls them chariots, cars, passenger cars, he says they shall jostle together in the broadways, (that is on the prairies), they shall run like lightning, and he calls it the day of the Lord's preparation. Behold, says the prophet, "I will send my messenger and he shall prepare the way before me."

When Christ made his first appearance on earth he came to give himself a sacrifice for the sins of men. He came that you and I as well as all the house of Israel might be brought back into the household of God, brought back to where we were when the morning stars sang together and the sons of God shouted for joy. He will not come this time as a man of grief, but to execute his vengeance as the Great King. In that day the chariots shall seem like torches, they shall run like lightning. Let us stop to make enquiry, I see some old heads here to-night, can you tell us when the first passenger cars were propelled by steam? It was first in Great Britain and it took place on the 15th September in the year 1830. The Lord had then sent his messenger. The dispensation of the fullness of times was ushered in, in which he was to gather all things in one in him. We turn to something that will more clearly point out to us when these things shall transpire, so that we may not be mistaken. Isaiah 29th chapter 13th verse, "Forasmuch as this people draw near unto me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precepts of men, therefore I will proceed to do a marvellous work among the people; yea, a marvellous work and a wonder; for the wisdom of their wise and learned shall perish, and the understanding of the prudent shall be hid."

In the 17th verse we find this passage, "Is it not yet a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field; and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest." It is yet a little while before the Lord proceeds to do his marvellous work and a wonder, giving his revelations to man, by which we understand that he has raised up a servant, a weak one, that the witness to the Book of Mormon, we spoke about, said could not read his own name. Ah! my friends, it was a marvellous work and a wonder. Lebanon, the land that God gave to his people; for seventeen hundred years had laid a barren waste from the time it was captured by the Roman army; the land that was once all that could be desired had become a barren waste and only supplied a few wandering Arabs. But the Lord by his angel when he came to this illiterate young man, told him that not only was the time at hand for Israel to be gathered to the land of Palestine, but that it was also but a little while before Lebanon should become a fruitful field. A few years after this the Lord sent the early and latter rain, and excellent crops are raised making it profitable for the agriculturists of the east, and the time will soon come my dear brethren when kings shall become nursing fathers and queens nursing mothers unto the Lord's people. There is another thing that goes along with this and that is, that Jacob's face shall no more wax pale. Fifty years ago none of the hated race, none of the offscouring of the earth could serve in any official capacity in any nation, or enjoy the right of franchise, the rights of citizenship in any one of the European countries, and the only place they could obtain the right of franchise was our own beloved country. Fifty-one years after the angel made the declaration that Jerusalem should be inhabited and become a fruitful field, we find that a man born without wealth, discarded by the nobility of the land, the son of an Italian Jew, raised himself by the force of his own energy to the dignity of Prime Minister of Great Britain. Jacob's face begins now not to wax pale.

The speaker here grew eloquent, and in glowing terms depicted the rise of men of Jewish origin to fill the most eminent official position among the nations of the earth, where they had the power to wield a mighty influence in shaping, under God, the destinies of the nations, and then he brought in with great force and applied the fulfilling of the prophecy, "Jacob's face shall no more wax pale." He then read the 23d verse of the 8th chapter of Zechariah, which reads, "Thus saith the Lord of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you; for we have heard that God is with you."

He then in conclusion said, We have presented these things before you in order that you might know what God is doing in the earth, and blind indeed must be the eye that can not see the facts that God is bringing about. And now my dear friends let me admonish you while you have time and opportunity, while you have the privilege of making yourselves citizens of the kingdom of God, avail yourselves of the opportunity offered, and may God inspire your hearts to yield obedience to this plan that was devised in the heavens for the salvation of the children of men, and that you may be saved in the celestial kingdom of our God is my prayer. Amen.

TRIPLE TESTIMONY;

OR,

DOES THE ALMIGHTY CHANGE?

THE Church of Christ has committed herself to the acceptance as authoritative of the teachings of the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants; and particularly those subjects whereupon their voice is harmonious, and their language clear and definite.

Their declarations on the query, "Does the Almighty Change," are positive and unmistakable.

The Bible voice is: "God is not man that he should lie; neither the son of man that he should repent; hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?"—Num. 23: 19. "For I am the Lord, I change not," &c., Mal. 3: 6. "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—James 1: 17.

The Book of Mormon declares: "Now the decrees of God are unalterable; therefore the way is prepared; that whosoever will, may walk therein, and be saved."—Alma 19: 8. "God is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever; and in him is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—Mormon 4: 6. "And behold I say unto you, He changeth not; if so, he would cease to be God."—Mormon 4: 7.

The Book of Covenants and Commandments asserts that: "The works and the designs, and the purposes of God, can not be frustrated, neither can they come to nought; for God doth not walk in crooked paths; neither doth he turn to the right hand, nor to the left; neither doth he vary from that which he hath said; therefore his paths are straight, and his course is one eternal round."—Revelation of July, 1828. Sec. 2: 1. "Search these commandments, for they are true and faithful, and the prophecies and promises which are in them, shall all be fulfilled. What I the Lord have spoken, I have spoken, and I excuse not myself; and though the heavens and the earth pass away, my word shall not pass away, but shall all be fulfilled, whether by mine own voice, or by the voice of my servants, it is the same."—Sec. 1: 7, 8.

We are asked by the people called Mormons, who are found chiefly in the land of Utah, to believe that they are authorized to practice polygamy, by virtue of a revelation given, (they say), of God through Joseph Smith, in July, 1843. But they also say, that God gave a revelation in 1831, in the month of February a little over twelve years previous, and in that revelation, the Lord says: "Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else; and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit, and if he repents not, he shall be cast out." Orson Pratt, one of their chief men, but now dead, called this commandment, "the holy law of God," or "God's holy law." In the Book of Mormon, God said, "There shall no man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none."—page 116. But they say, that further on the Lord declares, that if he will "raise up seed" unto himself, he would command his people, but otherwise they should hearken to these things, i. e., to this commandment to have but one wife, &c., and that he did command them "otherwise" to this prohibition of polygamy in the revelation named, (July 1843.) But not only does the whole connection justify the interpretation, that if God did not command, or rule his people, and they would turn away from his laws, that they would hearken unto and practice "these things," written of David and Solomon, that is, having "many wives and concubines." This prophecy the Mormons of Utah have literally fulfilled. They did not keep the commands of God, —and have hearkened unto, and practiced the same things as David and Solomon; but not only this, the doctrine of the Book of Mormon shows that God can not command his people otherwise, or contrary to the commandment that no man "shall have save it be one wife;" for if he changes, it affirms that he ceases to be God; and if he has so radically changed, as they affirm, then there is no God; and they may be justified after all, in adopting Adam in his stead. But if he has changed in regard to the law against polygamy, he has doubtless changed in regard to the reason that he had for giving the law, namely, his delight "in the chastity of women," and hence his Zion, which was once the "pure in heart," is now the corrupt in heart, and consequently practice, and he, the God who can not look upon sin with the least degree of allowance, smiles complacently upon adulterers and adulteresses; female impurity is his special delight. A change is needed in the doctrine of Christ, where he says: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God." But again: The Lord says that he brought the family of Lehi out from the land of Jerusalem to this land in order to raise up a "righteous branch," or people, from the fruit of the loins of Joseph; and he gave to this end, i. e., that they might be a "righteous seed," the commandment against polygamy was given. How could an unchangeable God, in order to raise up some more "righteous seed," command that which he once forbade, and what he called an "abomination" and a "grosser crime," (than some others named), and said that he forbade it, because he delighted in woman's chastity, which polygamy violated? How can impurity, or vice, become purity, or virtue, in the judgment of a pure and holy being, and one who, if he changes, ceases to be God, as the Book of Mormon positively declares. But, we are told that this prohibition of polygamy was given to a people, who lived over two thousand years ago, and who lived under different circumstances. True, but the unchangeable character of God is seen in this fact, that he has forbidden it in this day, and to the very people who practice it, and they confess that the prohibition was the law of God, his "holy law" to them—till 1843. Why did he change so radically, for in twelve years in 1831 he forbade polygamy and bigamy? To raise up "righteous seed." Then under the "holy law" of 1831 the seed raised up were unrighteous, sinners, and condemned of God. No, not exactly that, not to raise up purer, holier children, but to raise up a church; and, that it might grow faster, &c. Why God had already raised up a fully organized, well developed church, that had in fourteen years increased from six members to one hundred and fifty thousand. And what has polygamy done in thirty years? And why until within a few years was polygamy not only not publicly taught, but denied being a doctrine of the church? And yet it claimed to be a sine qua non of salvation, in fact the ne plus ultra of the gospel plan, and unlike Paul's manner, who "kept back nothing that was profitable" to the Saints in former days. But not only does the so called revelation authorizing polygamy, contradict that of twelve years previous, but it proves the falsity of that of 1828, in which God said, that he does not "vary from that which he hath said." And if this be false in sentiment and fact, the same doctrine falls to the ground in the Bible and Book of Mormon and "God ceaseth to be God," and is as fallible and uncertain, or unstable, as man; and no more confidence can be placed in his promises, or satisfaction in doing his will; for he may fail to perform the one and deny to-morrow that which is his will to-day; and a person may be found doing to-morrow exactly contrary to his will, being ignorant of the change made in his plans, and may find himself finally damned, for doing what he had once been commanded to do in order to be saved. In fact, every body would stand still and do nothing, and believe nothing, for fear of doing wrong and believing wrongly; for a God who could forbid polygamy in 1831, and call it a "false and corrupt doctrine" through his chosen prophet in February, 1844, and thus change from disapproval of the doctrine in twelve years, or from 1831 till 1843, and then favor it, and in seven months after repudiate it again is certainly a very fickle being. And if it be claimed that when, in February, 1844, Joseph Smith, called polygamy a "false and corrupt doctrine," he knew that polygamy was approved and commanded of God, and was in that very hour in force as the order of heaven then he was nothing less than a hypocrite, and it was decidedly an unjust, and unrighteous act, to silence a preacher, and cut him off from the church for obeying the behests of the Almighty. And if a hypocrite and a deceiver in this, may he not in his claim that he was called of God, and ordained of him, to be a Prophet, Seer, and Revelator; and inspired of him to translate the Book of Mormon, &c.? May he not be indeed an impostor throughout, if dishonest in the above case? But if honest, as he very likely was in this case, we can not believe that God ever gave him commandment to teach and practice polygamy; or that he ever claimed that God did so command.

But the so-called revelation proves its own refutation in several ways, but particularly in two. 1st, according to a scripture rule—the failure of a prophecy proves that God is not the author or inspirer, nor indeed could be, as several of our texts show plainly. In the revelation is a prediction that Emma Smith, Joseph's wife, should be destroyed from off the face of the earth, if she did not approve of polygamy, and receive those women whom the document says, God had already given to Joseph. Now, it so happened, that she lived in peace and prosperity for over thirty years after, and opposed polygamy to the last hour of her life. 2d, the "revelation" (?) affirms that God had already given Joseph Smith several women for wives; or concubines, i. e., prior to the giving of the revelation (which nullified all previous teachings of God on the subject, and established his fickleness and fallibility forever). Now, it so happens that the apologists for polygamy contend now, and have for years, that God's "holy law," i. e., the command that a man shall "love his one wife" and "to cleave unto her and none else" was in full force till July 12th, 1843; and they declare that a violation of, or a varying from that law, would bring a person under "the curse and condemnation of God's holy law." Now what was the "curse and condemnation" attached to a violation of that law? This: "He shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit, and if he repents not he shall be cast out." That is, he will become an apostate, be forsaken of God, and rejected from membership in the Church, and cease to be a disciple of Christ; "For if any man has not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Now as Joseph Smith is said to be (in the so-called revelation) in possession of other women, or wives, than "his wife" Emma, before such a thing was approved of God, but at a time when positively forbidden of God, what conclusion is inevitable, but that he was at that time (July 12th, 1843) "under the curse and condemnation of God;" was an apostate; had lost "the Spirit," &c. Yet we are asked to believe that such a man, or the man who was in this deplorable state, (forsaken of God), received nevertheless from God a revelation approving his course (which was that of a transgressor of "God's holy law"), and unfolding "a new and everlasting covenant," which of course supercedes the old, or the gospel system, and all this and much more by the "Spirit" which he had lost by his transgression, and in which he was living at that time! Is it possible that the polygamists themselves can take this unreasonable and silly ground? Joseph Smith taught, or at least the Spirit of God through him taught, that God had given the Church a "new and everlasting covenant," and that among other things it makes polygamy a crime, and utterly contrary to God's will and mind, or character; and yet here comes another, which makes the Almighty, so to speak, eat his own words, turn a complete somersault, and go back on his own doctrine, and contradict himself squarely; and for which there was no reason or necessity, morally, religiously, physiologically, or statistically speaking, and which has not in practice improved its adherents, mentally, morally, spiritually or physically. Not if a tree is to be known by its fruits. But on the other hand, if Joseph Smith was a prophet of God, and the Utah Church, dare not deny that, and yet claim God gave their doctrine par excellence, their summum bonum of religious tenets, through that channel; if, I repeat, he was a prophet of God, then we must conclude, that the Utah Church is in an apostate condition, and does not possess the Spirit of God. If they are not apostate and are enjoying the Holy Spirit, while in the practice of polygamy, then God did not speak through Joseph Smith, and did not give, as Orson Pratt claimed, his "holy law" against adultery alias polygamy, through him, and if this revelation is bogus, or a fraud, why may not all be, including that of 1843?

If we are to accept those, however, that harmonize with the teachings of the Spirit in the Bible, or particularly the New Testament, and the Book of Mormon, we must reject the so called revelation of 1843, and accept those which are contrary to it, or which teach a different and opposite doctrine; and right here, I would inquire whether our friends of other churches can not at least admit the purity and correctness, or orthodoxy of the teachings of Joseph Smith, and the faith of the early church, when it is undeniable that they were in harmony with the doctrine of Christ as taught by himself, and the Apostles of that day? The Utah Church does not represent the doctrine of the Church as established by Joseph Smith and others, A. D., 1830.

The Book of Mormon as an authority in doctrinal matters, was emphatically presented in a revelation given in February 1831, wherein the Elders and other officers of the Church were required to teach the principles of the gospel, which are contained in "the Bible and Book of Mormon." And in a revelation given in 1832, (Sept.), the Lord said: "And your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received, which vanity and unbelief hath brought the whole church under condemnation. And this condemnation resteth upon the children of Zion, even all; and they shall remain under this condemnation, until they repent and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon, and the former commandments which I have given them, not only to say, but to do according to that which I have written, that they may bring forth fruit meet for their Father's kingdom; otherwise there remaineth a scourge, and a judgment, to be poured out upon the children of Zion; for shall the children of the kingdom pollute my holy land?

Verily, I say unto you, nay." Did they repent and return to, or remember the Book of Mormon, and the former commandments? The answer is found in the history of their expulsion from the land, and the scourge and judgments poured out upon them. They were driven from the land of Zion for the reasons given in a revelation received over a year after, or in December, 1833. "Verily I say unto you, concerning your brethren, who have been afflicted, and persecuted, and cast out from the land of their inheritance, I, the Lord, have suffered the affliction to come upon them, wherewith they have been afflicted in consequence of their transgressions." "Again. Behold, I say unto you, there were jarrings and contentions, and envyings and strife, and lustful and covetous desires among them; therefore by these things they polluted their inheritances." Many of these same people are now in Utah; have they remembered the Book of Mormon. Nay, for they declare through their official organs, that they are not to be governed by laws given to another people, in another age, but by revelations given directly to them. Their leaders have openly repudiated the "books," counting them of as little worth as the "ashes of a rye straw." Do they remember the "former commandments" i. e. those given in February 1831, and others. Nay; for they have substituted rules and practices utterly subversive of those commanded of God then. Compare the different items of law found in the forty-second section of Doctrine and Covenants, with the teachings of Brigham Young and others and the practices of the church there, which I have not space to enumerate. If the prophecy has proven true as relates to their being scourged, and not left upon the land to pollute it, does not the other apply with equal truth; i. e. that they are under, and should remain under condemnation? Yea, and the Reorganized Church presents the history of the various drivings, and persecutions, and sufferings of the first or original Church, and the apostasy and spiritual blindness of those who are now leaders in Utah, as a strong and indisputable evidence that Joseph Smith in the various revelations that threatened these expulsions from city to city, or from their different settling places, and from their purchased homes or inheritances, spake by the Spirit of God, and that he thus, as in many other instances is proven to be a prophet of God. But if "God is no respecter of persons," and if we are as we claim to be, a continuation of, and successor to the Church to whom the warning above quoted was given, the significant question may be asked, Does the Book of Mormon receive that respect and consideration due it, and which the "former commandments" require should be given it? Again, Does the Church observe the "former commandments," particularly "the law" given in February, 1831, under the circumstances revealed in sections 41 and 42, Doctrine and Covenants; particularly does it observe the "covenants and church articles," including the "word of wisdom," the law concerning "consecrations," "supporting the ministry," "remembering the poor," &c. How about the latter part of the 14th paragraph, which reads: "And if thou obtainest more than that which would be for thy support, thou shalt give it unto my storehouse, that all things may be done according to that which I have said." How about the 12th paragraph, concerning pride, and plainness of apparel? What about those "former commandments" which speak against lightmindedness, loud and excessive laughter, and many more reproofs, or admonitions, on different subjects. If God condemned the Church in 1832 for treating lightly, i. e., as being of little or no worth, and not binding on the Church, "the things" which they had received, and is so unchangeable in his thoughts, and words, and plans, or purposes, as our several texts affirm, how can he be otherwise than displeased with any or all, who do not observe the "covenants and church articles," or the "former commandments?" The command is, that man shall live "by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God;" that is, that he shall keep all the commandments. If God said, "Break not my commandments to save your lives," as the Inspired Translation declares, how much less will he excuse a person for violating them upon the flimsy grounds that many offer for disobedience? Would it not be well to ponder the full import of that declaration of the Almighty: "Break not my commandments to save your lives." That is, Suffer death rather than disobey. "This is a hard saying, who can bear it?"

In 1873, the Lord said: "Let contentions and quarrelings among you cease." This applies to quorums and individuals, members of quorums; it applies to strifes for the mastery, to angry words, and sharp, stinging words, in heated debate in General Conference, as well as to contentions in branches, or quarrelings among members. It was because of contentions and jealousies, and lustful and covetous desires, that God said he had suffered his people to be afflicted, and persecuted in 1833. If he should deal with us in 1883, after the same manner, would it not only prove our texts? But where there is need, can not there be a reformation? A study of the commandments that God has given, and a close observance of the "covenants and church articles" on the part of officers and members, and a doing, instead of a saying merely of the things that are taught as duty to God and man, will ward off the blow, and bring instead prosperity, temporal and spiritual, or shall we "learn wisdom by the things we suffer?"

"Is God unchangeable? If so, behold, the Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind, and the willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land of Zion in these last days; and the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land; for verily, I say that the rebellious are not of the blood of Ephraim, wherefore they shall be plucked out." If God did not require his Elders to teach the principles of the gospel, and to teach and to observe the covenants and church articles. If the watchman who saw the sword coming and did not warn the people, would not to have to answer for their blood, it would be almost labor in vain to exhort and entreat, and warn and admonish, for as God said of Israel of old, so he could say now, "My people do not consider." The majority who read and are made to see their remissness in many things concerning the latter day work, are like the man who gives a passing glance at his face in the glass, straightway forgets what manner of man he is. But God does not forget our shortcomings, or sins of omission or commission. And as a man sows, so shall he reap. What shall the harvest be?

"ANSWERED AT LAST."

I HAVE often thought that John's heavenly vision of golden vials filled with incense, the prayers of the Saints, would contain many hundred thousands of prayers of parents for their ungodly children; for amongst the millions of earnest petitions that daily ascend to the throne, many of them come from hearts made sad by those they love the dearest, grieving them the most. And how many of such parents have prayed and waited, and have at last gone down to the grave without seeing their heart breaking request answered; have died before their dearest hopes were realized. How is it that some truly consistent and earnest religious parents have wicked children? We know it is so, but we also know it is the exception, and not the rule. A large majority of our ministers, officers, and members of our christian churches, are children of pious parents; and the rule is, that pious parents have pious children; and when we find the exception we are surprised and pained, and wonder how it is. The sons of the good old patriarch, Jacob, almost broke his heart. David was a good man, and one whose recorded experiences have been a blessing to millions, yet he had great trouble with his children. Good old Eli loved and served his God; yet he had two bad sons. And many good parents, since their day, have had to mourn and weep, and pray over their undutiful offspring, through many long years, and themselves go to heaven, before their prayers have been answered. But their requests are treasured up in golden vials before the throne, and who knows how many of them will be heard? Many of them have already been answered. Strange tales from humble life.

HANDWRITING OF FAMOUS MEN.

SOMETIMES half a dozen engravers are engaged in rendering an artist's drawing of a single subject, which, when finished, presents to the unpracticed eye one uniform style. Nevertheless, a practiced eye can discover where each individual engraver's work leaves off, and where that of every one of the rest begins. In handwriting, as in other arts and in literature, "the style is the man." For all that, the evidence of handwriting, as of style generally, is not to be relied on when men's lives and liberty are at stake. Still less can character be judged from handwriting. Brave men may perpetrate a timid scrawl, generous and high-minded men may write a mean hand, and cowards produce a bold and flowing script. Porson, the great Greek scholar, among the untidiest of students, wrote neatly and elegantly. Cromwell's writing, though large, is shaky. Shakspeare's signature is not particularly clear. Napoleon Bonaparte wrote illegibly, it is said purposely, to hide his bad spelling. The handwriting of the tortuous-minded Charles I is as clear and striking as that of Thomas Carlyle is crabbed and indistinct. On the other hand Queen Elizabeth's writing is magnificent. Edgar Allen Poe wrote beautifully, and with scarcely an erasure; whereas the manuscripts of Charles Dickens, to be seen in the Forster collection at South Kensington, are rugged and full of alterations and emendations. Many men write large or small, in characters boldly or weakly formed, according to their humor of the moment. Again, handwriting depends for its style on the school in which it is taught and the purpose to which it is applied. The manuscript of Byron, Thomas Campbell, and Thackeray may be called the literary hand. It is uniform in color, small, and fairly legible, but without a superabundant flourish. The great mass of "copy" which passes through the hands of a modern printer is more or less of the same character. A commercial hand as it is called, is something quite different. Give an envelope addressed by a city clerk, and one from the hand of a university Professor, and it is well nigh certain that the former will be more distinguished for elegance and clearness than the latter. Again, the writing of the rustic and uncultured class is so much alike as to defy differentiation. All this goes to prove that the evidence of experts must be taken with the proverbial grain of salt.

EASTERN DISTRICT.

Conference for South Wales was held at Merthyr Tydvil, June 10th, 1883; Elder Wm. Morris, president; T. E. Jenkins, clerk pro tem.

At 10:30, after singing and prayer, Elder J. R. Gibbs spoke very impressibly, on the necessity of faithfulness in the great work of the Lord, he also stated his reasons for resigning the charge of the mission, and said that Elder T. E. Jenkins was now in charge, and he hoped that every one in the mission would uphold him, and do this by living an honorable life.

T. E. Jenkins read the certificate of his appointment and also read a statement as Bishop's Agent. Which showed that the financial affairs are brighter in 1883, than 1882.

Branches Reported.—Aberaman, Merthyr, Ogmore, and Rhondda.

Elders John Morgans, John Lewis, Daniel Meredith, Thomas Smith, Dan Davies, John O.

Evans, John Jones, James Griffiths, Rees Price, T. Davies, and Wm. Morris reported. All promising to be diligent.

At 2 p. m. the authorities of the Church in America were upheld. Elders T. Taylor in charge of the English Mission, T. E. Jenkins the Welch Mission, and Wm. Morris this district. The meeting then was opened for testimony and the exercise of spiritual gifts. The gifts were manifested very powerfully. At 6 p. m. Elder J. R. Gibbs preached a good sermon.

Adjourned to meet at Aberaman, September 9th, 1883.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS DISTRICT.

Conference was held at Plano, Kendall county, Illinois, June 16th and 17th, 1883. Bro. John S. Patterson was chosen president, and W. Vickery clerk.

On motion visiting brethren were invited to take part in the deliberations of the conference. After singing, prayer was offered by Bro. Joseph R. Lambert, of Chicago, after which some very good and interesting remarks were made by Bro. Patterson in regard to the duties of Saints in such meetings as these.

Minutes of last conference read and corrected, so as to read Bishop's Agent's report, instead of financial clerk's report.

Branch Reports.—Sandwich 78, present number; no change. Plano 166, 2 removed by letter. Mission last report 109, present 107; 2 removed by letter. Janesville, Wisconsin, number last report 27, died 1. Bro. Patterson referred to the petition of Saints at Cortland, DeKalb county, Illinois, desiring to be organized into a branch, and as the matter had been left to him by the last conference (which should have appeared in minutes of last conference, but did not) he had not thought it wisdom to so organize.

Bro. Joseph R. Lambert favored us with some remarks in regard to conference work very spiritual and encouraging.

Met at 2 p. m. Bro. Patterson reported as delegate to General Conference, and also his labors as district president.

Bro. Vickery reported having received one hundred and two dollars and fifty cents and having paid Bro. Patterson, and Bro. F. G. Pitt thirty dollars each, for the purpose of defraying their expense to the General Conference held at Kirtland, Ohio, April 6th, 1883, leaving a balance of forty-two dollars and fifty cents on hand.

Resolved that we release Bro. Pitt in view of his resignation, and recommend Bro. Thomas Hougas to the Bishop to be appointed as his agent in this district.

Bro. Patterson was chosen as president of the district for the next four months.

Resolved, that we will abide by the decision of General Conference in regard to the Chicago Branch not being a part of the Northern Illinois District.

Resolved, that the moneys in the hands of Bro. Vickery be turned over to Bishop's Agent, when his nomination shall have been confirmed by the Bishop, subject to the call of the district.

In the evening there was preaching by Bro. George Shadeiker assisted by Bro. S. H. Whitaker. Sunday morning preaching by Bro. J. S. Patterson, assisted by Bro. Joseph R. Lambert of Chicago. At 2:30 in the afternoon the Saints met for social and sacrament meeting in charge of the officers of Plano Branch. Two were confirmed under the hands of Brn. Patterson and Lambert, that had been baptized at the close of the morning service, by Bro. Patterson. A good degree of the Spirit was present and all seemed to enjoy themselves. Sunday evening preaching by Bro. J. R. Lambert of Chicago, on the prophecies of Joseph Smith.

Adjourned to meet at Mission, LaSalle county, Illinois, October 13th and 14th, 1883.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, 21st July, 1883.

WHEN any one uses the expression "the sneers of the world," it would be well to determine what the term means; just to picture in the mind what class of men the one who uses it would have it apply to. As for instance, when the Herald says "our elders have to bear the sneers and jibes of a gainsaying world," what world does the Herald mean.

It is not now a very large class nor a very respectable one, who having no form of religion of their own take the pains to sneer at those who have. Nearly all classes of business and professional men, together with the intelligent workers, while they may not accept any existent form of worship, hold to no creed, do not even believe the Bible as so called Christians profess to believe it, and who will not stop to argue with the worshiper, nor go out of their way to hear the preacher, have still enough of honorable goodwill to man, and respect for toleration and themselves, not to grant the fullest and freest latitude to them that believe; nor do they publicly laugh at, deride, or scorn the frank, and faithful minister of the Word, whatever his company or church name may be. They simply do not believe, nor do they care who does.

There is a class of those who believe in God and Christ, who really strive to be good and true men as they understand the Word. They are honest in deed, between man and man, are kind hearted and tolerant; but do not choose to investigate any other view than their own; preferring not to change, and willing that every one else shall believe as they please. This class seldom go to hear, or listen when they do hear, but they never deride those who differ from them.

There is really but one class of so-called believers that sneer and scoff at others who differ from them in belief. This class is found in all churches (except ours, of course?) and may be said to be of two sorts, those who are really narrow minded, and bigoted, full of zeal and persuaded that those of other faiths have no faith, and are unworthy of consideration and toleration, and ought to be suppressed as heretics; and those who are conscious of the weakness of their own belief, and think all others as weak as their own; but because of the greater local popularity and supposed respectability of their own fellowship, will not give countenance or sanction to others, and are jealous when others are prospered. From this class so made up come the army of scoffers. But are they the world? The term "the world" as used by believers usually means the unbelieving. But it is a common thing in our own experience and that of others, to find the most toleration and willingness to hear the word, among the so-called unbelieving. And the elders of the church when preaching through the country find the most scorn, intolerance and hatred among the so-called believers—in the churches. Who then is the world? "Then cometh the end of the world, or the destruction of the wicked."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

LELAND'S GROVE, Shelby county, Iowa, has been selected as the Camp Ground for Israel at their Reunion this fall. It is early to begin to urge a big meeting; but any thing not started till too late, may not grow to a good size in time. September 15th is set as the opening day, meeting to continue till over the 23d. Let every one who wishes for a pleasant time get ready in good season, and go prepared to do good as well as to receive good. There will be time and opportunity for enjoyment in spiritual exercises.

Read Bro. William Hart's letter in last HERALD. He preposes a contribution, the aggregation of which should be spent in printing a few thousands of the article written by Bro. George S. Lincoln, and to be distributed in Utah as a tract. We suggest to Bro. Hart and others who may think it well to adopt and act upon Bro. Hart's idea, that the object sought by them might be secured, and good done as well, by the raising of such a fund, and the sending it to Bro. W. W. Blair in support of the Advocate, with the request that he make a special number of that paper out of Bro. Lincoln's article, and print some hundreds or thousands extra for distribution in Utah, the object of the Advocate being to advance the truth in that Territory. Of course this is advisory on our part, and may not meet with favor from those who may approve of Bro. Hart's notion.

Bro. S. Meddowcroft writes from Mendigo, Ontario, and sends a letter or two from good saints at Picton, which for want of room are left out of print.

Bro. W. W. Blair returned to Salt Lake City from Malad and Soda Springs, on the 3d instant. He states that Bro. Joseph Luff's health is a little improved of late. The heat has been extraordinary in that region, the mercury showing as high as 85 to 105 in the shade. The water supply of Salt Lake was likely to be short this season. Fruit short; crops good.

Sr. Mary Prettyman writes from Knox, Stark county, Indiana, July 8th, that her husband was to preach at Knox that evening.

It is Bro. J. L. Richey, not O. A. Richey, who has removed to Lamoni from North Platte.

Four were baptized at Lamoni, Sunday July 8th.

THE people in the mountains have long been congratulating themselves on being free from electrical storms, fierce winds, &c., but the following shows the vanity of their boast.

WIND AND THUNDER IN SANPETE.

Editor of the Deseret News:—Yesterday there was a strong blow of wind, then a subsidence as if to gather strength, for presently, as if with renewed force, it played havoc on my house. We are shelterless. The family were in the house—Mrs. C. quite sick—yet all escaped unhurt. While viewing the ravages of the storm of wind, I wondered how all escaped. The wind visited some adjoining places and though by no means friendly, was not so disastrous. The beautiful meeting house at Moroni, now in course of erection, suffered some damage from the vibration caused by the heavy thunder, the beautiful door cap over the main entrance will have to be removed, being split in the centre. Some window caps are also split. We had imagined ourselves so fully mountain-locked as to think no heavy winds could visit us, but this storm of wind and the one recently, convince us that we are not safe from the wind's fury.

D. CANDLAND.

CHESTER, July 1st, 1883.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. S. S. Givens wrote from Sinnett's Mills, West Virginia, as follows:

We are still striving for the faith once delivered to the Saints. I baptized five on the 12th day of April last. The devil is arousing here, but I hope it is for the better. The work of the Lord has been trampled under foot here. When I came here the Gentiles would not come to our meetings, and of the members only a few would attend; but they all are trying to do their duty now, and the Gentiles come now, so that we hold our meetings in the grove. Some of them say that they have been wrongly informed about us.

A COPY of the State Centre, Iowa, Enterprise, for June 28th, sent us by White Bros., of Edenville, contains an excellent notice of the Des Moines District Conference, held at Edenville. Four were baptized. In the same paper is the notice given below:

Mr. Etzenhouser, a promising young minister of the Latter Day Saints' Church, has returned to Edenville. His many friends were glad to see him. Also I. N. White is again at home hale hearty, and reports a good interest manifested in the cause he represents—the gospel.

THE Fayette Monitor, published at Connelville, Pa., in its issue for July 5th, has a letter written from Rhoades, Iowa, which we give below. It will be encouraging to the Saints abroad to read it.

RHOADES, IOWA, June 30.

Editor Monitor:—It has been some time since my last, but I have been so busy attending to business, that I hardly had time to peruse the columns of your valuable paper. I have almost forgotten too, where I left off, or what I was writing about, but, whatever it may have been, I shall now tell you something concerning the "Mormons," who have just concluded their quarterly conference here. They are not the original Mormons, for they denounce Brigham Young and his doings in the most bitter terms, and claim (as you will observe hereafter,) that Brigham fell from grace, and practiced something that God never told him, viz: "Polygamy." They believe that one woman is sufficient for a man, and I know that they, here, put into practice what they profess, and are doing all they can, by honorable means to suppress and put down polygamy, and four fifths of what is told concerning them, and what they profess are lies, of the blackest character. I have lived among them for some time, and am intimately acquainted with them, and I have never as a general thing, met or dealt with a more honest and honorable person. And besides, I know, that they can get with any other sectarian minister that ever attacked them, and can prove all they assert, with the Bible. The following will serve to inform the readers of your paper, what they believe: They believe that through the atonement of Christ all men may be saved, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel. They believe that these ordinances are: 1st. Faith in God and the Lord Jesus Christ. 2d. Repentance. 3d. Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins. 4th. Laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. 5th. They believe in the Resurrection of the body; that the dead in Christ will rise first, and the rest of the dead will not live again until the thousand years are expired. 6th. And in the doctrine of Eternal Judgment, which provides that men shall be judged, rewarded, or punished, according to the degree of good, or evil, they shall have done. And that a man must be called of God, and ordained by the laying on of hands of those who are in authority, to entitle him to preach the Gospel, and administer in the ordinances thereof. They are really not "Mormons" for they do not follow Brigham, but Joseph Smith, Sen. They are known by the name of Latter Day Saints, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, and simply followed the teachings of the Bible, in every respect. I have on several occasions witnessed the laying on of hands to cure a disease, and must say that they were cured; not instantly, but in a few hours, at most. I have witnessed it on a young woman, whom I know would not say she was benefitted, if she were not. Perhaps you will say I am a Mormon, or almost as good as one, but I am not, and am only giving you facts, as I know I have seen them. I merely state these things in justice to them, for they are so often misrepresented. Any one wishing more information concerning them, can have it by addressing me at Rhoades Station, Edenville P. O., Iowa. More anon. B.

THE Palm Tree, evidently a Pseudo religious paper, spreads the following lie in its columnar branches in its issue for June 20th, rather singular fruit for a Palm to bear.

The Mormons have but few if any schools, and no public school system, and their children grow up in ignorance. They know that their principles can only grow in the soil of ignorance. If it were possible to educate Mormon children, the curse of Mormonism would soon disappear.

Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness altogether past calculation its powers of endurance. Efforts, to be permanently useful, must be uniformly joyous—a spirit all sunshine, graceful from very gladness, beautiful because bright.

Good nature is more agreeable in conversation than wit, and gives a certain air to the countenance which is far more suitable than beauty.

There is room for the exercise of charity everywhere—in business, in society, and in church; but first and chiefest is the need for it at home.

TUNNEL HILL, Johnson Co., Ill.,
July 9th, 1883.

Dear Bro. Joseph:—Since I last wrote I preached twice in the school house at Tunnel Hill, Thursday and Friday nights, to full houses, and good liberty, and Saturday night and Sunday twice, and this morning in the Saints' church. Quite a number believing, but for some reason they fail to obey. I preach during the day, when it rains in the afternoon or night before so that the farmers can not work. I expect to speak in town to-night, and go to Springerton to-morrow or next day. Here is the neighborhood where Brn. W. H. and E. L. Kelley were born, and where an uncle and aunt and a number of their cousins live. Many would be glad to see them here, and for my part they are cordially invited to come and visit and labor.

Yours fraternally,

T. W. SMITH.

P. S.—The Herald was excellent last week.

North Street, Stone Road,
STAFFORD, England,
June 23d, 1883.

Dear Bro. Joseph Smith and readers of the Herald:—It is with feelings of pleasure that I write to you, inasmuch as I rejoice in the latter day work. I always watch with interest the progress of the work in America. I should dearly have liked to have been one in the gathering at the Kirtland Conference as it must have been a very great pleasure to have gathered to that time honored spot, linked as it is with so many pleasant recollections of the past. I feel pleased that your assembling there has done good. Indeed I am always pleased to see and hear of the advancement of the work of God, and I may say that I am of the opinion that if we are only faithful and do our duty it will progress, both in your land and also in England. Indeed in this country the signs are most promising. Notwithstanding the great tide of unbelief that exists here, I am convinced that ere long many will see the light of the gospel and obey it. The greatest difficulty we have to meet is from those who profess to be Christians. They will keep telling us that these gospel blessings have ceased, thereby acknowledging that the power is not in the gospel as it once was. But thank God for revelation's holy light, which dispels the darkness and brings in view a loving, merciful, and unchangeable God and Father, who is no "respector of persons, but in every nation he that worketh righteousness and feareth him is accepted of him." Well, although men dishonor God with their infidelity, yet will we hold up the banner of truth and righteousness as the standard of mankind, knowing that there is a grand test offered to all men whereby they may know the true church and kingdom of Jesus Christ. "If any man will do his will he shall know," (not believe, not guess, not think, but know) "of the doctrine whether it be of God." And I often think when I hear our friends fighting this work, how easy their doubtings and fears could be put at rest, simply by obeying the gospel in the love thereof; but as long as they go on saying "I don't believe this and I don't the other" they never will know, and I invariably ask them if they ever knew any one receive anything from God in unbelief, why no, and it is no argument to say I don't believe, because the weight of evidence lies with those who have done the will of the Father, as the Lord Jesus asks every one to do, and those who neglect to obey the gospel and remain in unbelief, are not a competent jury to give a verdict in a matter of such importance and with such immense issues as the work in which we are engaged. Praying for your welfare and likewise all the readers of the Herald.

I remain your brother in bonds of gospel brotherhood.

Bro. Joseph:—We held our conference in the Platte Valley Branch, 29 and 30 ult., and I inst; and we should judge from the reports of the district president and the traveling ministry that the labor performed during the last quarter will bring about changes among the Saints that will be fraught with good. We could not all "see eye to eye" in all that we did in the business meetings; but viewing it from my standpoint, I think when we all calmly review it, after the storm of passion has passed by, the verdict will be favorable to what has been done. The reports showed fifteen baptized, and several were not reported. Only two conferences each year will be held hereafter, and the intervening time will be made pleasant with two days' meetings. Brethren C. Derry, E. C. Brand and J. F. Mintun were with us; the two former preached, on Sunday.

Bro. Joseph:—According to promise, I visited Bro. Burton; and in company with him, called on and preached with the Saints where he had been laboring. I am well pleased with Bro. and Sr. Burton, and their work. I found many kind friends, and notwithstanding the bitter opposition that has to be met, we found many who are honest, and seemingly desirous to learn the truth. It is almost fifteen years since I commenced to preach, and I have never had to preach outside of a house until I went to Nova Scotia. I felt that it was hard to be denied by professed Christians, the use of a house, dedicated to God for Christian worship—and worse than all, to be told by a professed Christian, Baptist minister, that we (the Mormons) "Ought to be hooted out of the place." This occurred in Hantsport; but instead of being endorsed by the people, many came out to the railway station to hear me, and show themselves to be our friends.

After having been home about one week I left for conference, visited Jonesport, Mason's Bay and Addison Point before going to West Machias where we assembled. It was new ground, and many were doubtful as to the wisdom of holding it there being that so few of the brethren were living in Machias; but it proved to be all right, for we enjoyed the blessings attending the faithful. Bro. Joseph, I have passed through the "furnace;" and at the time it seemed hard, but I am able now to say, "Blessed be the name of the Lord." After conference I returned to Addison, and on Monday went to Mason's Bay to attend the funeral of Bro. McCaleb.

I am greatly pleased with the outlook on our island. I feel that the prospect for the cause of truth has never been so promising. I expect to preach in Lubec, Maine, next Sunday. I am not as strong as I was before my sickness, but hope to gain my strength. Pray for me and the success of the work in these parts.

Yours in bonds,

JOS. LAKEMAN.

CORINTH, Ontario,

July 4th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—As I was to-day looking over the letters in the Herald for June 23d, I saw one from our much esteemed Bro. Lake. I see that "Ye Editor" has misunderstood him, or he has made a mistake in a statement about the congregation at our late district conference. He is made to say that there was near as many outsiders as Saints, when it should read there was near as many on the outside of the building as there were inside; for that was the true state. Every available place on the outside of the church was filled. Our conference was a success, and I hope there may be many such enjoyable times in our neat little church. The good Spirit so filled the house that we felt that angels must be present, and one sister felt their presence so strong that in her testimony she said she was constrained to look up expecting to see them. O Joseph, my heart is made glad with the glorious hope of gospel light and intelligence. Thank God for the gospel of his dear Son. When I contemplate the greatness of the work and the progress that it is slowly but surely making, I long for the day of its final triumph. I take great comfort in reading the news from the width and breath of our land, that the gospel is winning its way through all the opposing powers brought to bear against it. When I think of the Herald in 1860, and what it is now, it seems to me I should rejoice to read one every day. But I thank the Good Master, that I can read one every week. It is food to my hungry spirit.

Yours in hope of eternal life,

JANET PEARSON.

SHENANDOAH, July 6th, 1883.

Bro. J. Smith:—I wish to inform you that we are still trying to hold fast to the faith and I to discharge the obligation of my calling in the Church. We are lacking of help in our branch, which places more on me than I am able to accomplish as it should be done. I have had to fill the office of president and deacon, besides assisting the teacher. We hold two meetings on the Sabbath, and Sabbath School, which I am aiding and working; so that I have the day well occupied; especially as I have to look after the sick and afflicted. The Master has blessed me with a desire to be diligent, and with a measure of his Spirit, also with good health. I have no desire to be an idler. I wish to aid all I can to forward the cause we love so much. I wish to show my love by my works, yet I feel my inability to do what is required at times. I look for help from Him who has promised help to those who will try. Brother Deuel has been with us a few days, preached some, had a good spirit, done the Saints some good. We also had Bro. St. Clair a few days; preach some for us; seems to be very much interested in the cause; left a good impression. Bro. Uselus Autin is going to move to Independence, Missouri, soon, and his mother goes with him. We are all in usual health in the branch. We have not had our church dedicated yet, because it is not paid for. We are two hundred dollars behind on it. As soon as we can get it paid we want it dedicated. Accept our kind regards and love.

Yours truly,

S. S. WILCOX.

LOUISVILLE, Ont., July 2d, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—Two months to-morrow since I bid good bye to loved ones at home, and you will please excuse me for stating that this leaving home is by no means agreeable and I have seriously thought that about the next time, I would conclude to stay at home, as my second experience was far worse than the first. I have a good deal of sympathy for those who have gone a good many times, for an entire Summer's or year's trip. However, taking passage on one of, to me, Nahum's chariots, went eastward, stopping one day in Peoria with a sick niece, who has since died. Passing on towards Chicago, in changing cars at Forest I met and had just a few moments' chat with Bro. I. L. Rogers. He invited me to go with him to his Bro. Silas', but I deemed it necessary to pass on direct, according to previous arrangement, so Saturday eve I arrived at Galien; I was made welcome at Bro. Blakeslee's. Met with Saints at 10:30 in social meeting, and in the evening I spoke to good sized audience. Monday I passed on to Bro. Scott's, congratulating myself of great pleasure and profit to me, to travel a few weeks with him; but alas! "The best laid plans of mice and men gang aft aglee." As you have learned before, we had to separate. I passed on north to Hersey, visiting a few days at S. I. Smith's. I found Saints of Hersey Branch in a prosperous condition, and ably presided over by Bro. Joseph Shippy. I spoke here a few times enjoying fair liberty; Bro. Shippy's method of branch government met my hearty approval. I will drop one point as I know of some in another branch who do not think a teacher ought to visit the houses of members, etc.; will they please show how a teacher can fulfill the law which says they "shall be with and strengthen them" if they are not allowed to visit. All members do not attend all meetings, and the teacher can not attend to that part effectively in a public manner, not knowing what may trouble them. I spoke twice in Chase, but interest poor, and too expensive to continue longer. I visited and spoke a few times on the "Plains" seven miles west of Chase. Four Saints reside there. At Hersey I met Bro. George Cleveland and Bro. Joseph Emmett. Both are doing some little work, as their circumstances will admit, no doubt. Both could do well in the active ministry, and I felt specially interested in the latter. From here I went to Reese, finding a small branch with Bro. E. DeLong in charge. The people here remember W. H. Kelley and C. Scott, on the Sabbath question debate. I held forth seven times here with an increasing interest. I was urged to stay, but my mission was Canada and I must be onward. I trust the Saints there will pull strongly on the two oars—faith and works—as also in other branches visited. We visited Vassar Branch; here are a few humble souls pulling away, holding regular meetings;

Bro. Hocknell presiding priest, and Bro. Barnes teacher. With Bro. DeLong we left on the 4th of June, stopping a few days near Columbiaville, where Bro. John Cox resides; not much interest and our time was too short to work it up if we were at all capable of doing so. So on we went to Goodland. Here we met a number of Saints, with whom we tarried six days, speaking six times. We were again obliged to leave a seemingly interested community; here our last meetings were quite largely attended, and requests to stay were urged. The Spirit of the Master tarried with us, and we felt, that we were blessed in presenting the word. Here as also at Reese we delivered a lecture on the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints v.s. Utahism." And at these two places we were satisfied that good would result from the efforts; we also spoke on this subject at two other places, but not so satisfactorily to us.

Old Bro. Hemingway took team and buggy and carried Bro. DeLong and self up into Sanilac county. We stopped all night with Bro. John Bailey, near Brown's City. Here is a small branch; as to its prosperity I can not speak, not meeting with them. We passed on to Bro. A. Barr's. In this section we remained eleven days, speaking in Deckerville, Barr's School-house, in Bro. Kidd's house, then over in what I called Mosquito Swamp, Annis' School-house, Leech's School-house, also north of Richmondville, where reside a number of Saints comparatively young, and where they propose to build a house for worship. We met Bro. A. Barr and Bro. J. J. Cornish. The latter lives in Deckerville and holds forth there every Sabbath; the former presides over the Forester Branch and preaches when his work will permit him. There are quite a number of members in this part of the county, not far from one hundred and fifty. Some in Forester Branch, some in Lebanon, and some in St. Johns; the latter is presided over by Bro. H. Campbell, a priest; he speaks occasionally; but quite a large number are not associated with any branch. I found a host of warm hearted Saints, but in all my travels in Tuscola, Lapeer and Sanilac counties, I did not find the work in as prosperous condition as I could wish. Church officials ought to know their duty from the law and the spirit thereof, so as to not give any occasion, or permit a member to arise and tell them what to do. I believe in counseling and learning from every source, but I discard any manifesto telling this one to do this, and that one to do that, and so on, when the law governs. So, if we study the word, also the minutes of conferences, we may get better understanding. I by no means wish to reflect, or to discourage, but I wish to encourage and build up. And there are too many in the Church who seem to want to fill the Teacher's place, i.e. "Watch over the Church;" and some going a little farther than that, and in public charging this, or that one with being unfaithful, etc. This to me is bosh. Not of God by any means. I found lots of kind Saints throughout my travels, and I hope we will all grow wiser, and learn to be content and be exceedingly slow to think God is going to do something wonderful with some young brother. If he is blessed of God, give God the glory, and be sure and remember that flattering and puffing will do him no good but great harm. I stopped somewhat with Bro. Barr and found him a strong believer in the latter day work. I can not speak of those with whom I am not so intimate. Bro. E. DeLong had to go home last week; I regretted to separate with him.

I came to Canada June 28th. Met with Brn. Lake, Leverton, Brown, and Evans, in two days' meeting, Saturday and Sunday. I never found such a demand for labor as Michigan makes. In Tuscola, Lapeer, and Sanilac counties, I found a grand field and also in the western part of the State. It ought to be prosecuted. Often times I felt, "Lord, send forth laborers," the field is certainly ripe, and you know, if it is not harvested it will go to waste. Bro. J. A. Carpenter is battling away and has awakened an interest north-east of his home. We had a very pleasant visit with them, and his wife's mother and father. I trust Bro. Kelley will follow up and revive the Saints along the line.

At the services yesterday, Brn. Lake and Leverton felt well, but your correspondent had poor liberty. I can not tell what we will do next. As it was expected and so expressed that Bro. E. DeLong was to go into Ontario, I would say that he based his not going on account of his financial condition, i. e., he could not afford to lose harvesting etc. If there is any other cause I am not informed. I found such a demand for labor that I had just all the preaching I wanted and a little more. No Elder need run astray of work in that State. More anon,

Your brother,

E. H. GURLEY.

EDENVILLE, IOWA, July 9th, 1883.

ELDER JOSEPH SMITH, Lamoni, Iowa;

Dear Brother:—The Des Moines District Conference was held at Edenville, June 22d, 23d, and 24th. A fair representation was present; an excellent time throughout the entire session. Four were baptized by Elder Roth. Preaching by Brn. Roth, Nirk, Etzenhouser and Isaac N. White. The conference seemed to be of that nature to give the Saints new life to work the coming quarter with their mite, mind, and strength. Bro. Isaac White and myself went to Cambridge, June 30th: Bro. White spoke Saturday eve and Sabbath at 11 a. m. In the afternoon we went to the river about sixty rods from the place of holding our meeting, and baptized two ladies, both promising members for the Church. I spoke in the evening; good liberty. Crops look well here; our business is good.

Your brother,

D. C. WHITE.

WILBER, Nebraska, July 8th, 1883.

Dear Herald:—Bro. R. M. Elvin of Nebraska City has been laboring with us here, and at Mount Hope, eighteen miles west and north, during the latter part of June. Bro. Robert White secured the use of the Congregational Church building here for the services during his stay; prejudice was evidently removed to some extent while at Mount Hope, a comparatively new opening (opened by Bro. E. C. Brand last Fall) there was as we learn, an unusual interest manifested. Some of the "Holiness People" seemed filled with overflowing joy at a sermon preached by Bro. Elvin, text, "The law of the Lord is perfect," &c. Our district president is making all effort in his power to keep the work moving onward, leaving a good practice in medicine for the good of the cause he has espoused. All of the Saints seem to be rooted and grounded in the faith here, (at Wilber), and I am informed that a better condition than has for some time existed is realized throughout the district. What we need is more laborers, as the harvest is indeed great and laborers few. The time is at hand when the Church should pray earnestly that the Lord of the vineyard send us more laborers and that our prayers be not hindered we should endeavor to accumulate means to assist in supporting the laborer in Zion and also his dependent ones. It would surely not be unreasonable for us to give one tenth of our surplus to the work when the ministerial laborers are required to give all. Let us prove the Lord as suggested in Malachi, and we shall not be disappointed surely.

Yours for the triumph of truth,

N. A. BAKER.

LAGUNA, California,

June 28th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph:—I would like to give my testimony to the truth of what is called the latter day work, and the reason why I united with the Church of Christ. I had been brought up from my youth by a mother that believed if we had faith in God and kept his commandments he would hear and answer the prayers of his people. I believed that, and I looked for the time when such a church would be established. Although I did not live as a Christian, I had respect for those that did, and I was far from being a praying man. But I had a chance to try my faith and learn to pray. In the year 1871, in April, my wife was taken very sick; so bad that the doctor staid with her day and night. Her suffering was intense, so much so that she became insensible. When she had been that way four days, one of the watchers came to me and said that my wife was dying. The doctor was lying down. We called him at once, he examined her, and said she was dying and was struck with mortification; and said to me, "I have done all I can." Then he returned to bed. My grief was great. I knew that God was able to heal her, and raise her up though she was dead; but what could I do. I had not heard of sending for elders, nor the faith of this Church; and I did not know how to pray; but I thought I would try, so I went out and lifted my heart to God in prayer; and promised him, in the name of his Son, if he would heal my wife, that I would obey his commandments; live as I should, and bring my family up to love and serve him. That night my heart was lifted to God in prayer. The morning came, the doctor again looked at her, and said he, "I must have been mistaken. For she is getting better." Any one can think as they please, only let me give God the praise. In a few days, she was up tending to her business; and one of my cousins a lady, said, as she noticed the change, "A dead woman doing her own business." In a few days she rode thirty miles with me in a heavy wagon. Now for the covenant. She was well, I dare not say, "She would get well," Nor I dare not tell any one for fear of being ridiculed. Where was the Church, or what must I do. I went to the different churches; and I even stood up for prayer, that I might be converted; for I felt I had entered into covenant with God, and he had done what I desired; so I wanted to do my part. The more I looked for anything in the churches, the more I felt it was a farce; but I still looked for a church to be established that would teach the gospel. Years rolled on, and I came to California and finally found a home in a Mormon settlement in Laguna Canyon. Bro. Burton used to come and hold meetings here. I would get the family to go, but thought I could find something better to do than attend Mormon meetings. One night I stood by the road a wagon came along and the man driving said, they would preach in the school-house; and asked me if I would attend. I said, Yes; and asked him who was going to preach. I was informed that it was Elder Gillen, who was on his way to Australia. I went. He took his text "If any one preach any other gospel let him be accursed." His sermon struck me. If there was any gospel on earth then the Mormons had it. Bro. Burton continued to come. I didn't stay at home any more. I talked with him on the authority, the gifts and powers of the gospel and found a man that I dare tell my covenant to, still I did not fully believe that I would receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, if I was baptized; but took him at his word. Myself and wife were baptized. I before this had asked God in the name of Christ, if he recognized it, that I might know my sins was forgiven; for I did not want to go to anything blind; and after I had done my part, not knowing whether it was accepted of God or not. After we were baptized, we retired to the school-house for confirmation. I commenced to think that perhaps I was deceived, for I felt no change, which I thought was necessary. He talked awhile then ordained some, and organized what is called the Laguna Branch. He then confirmed us. When he laid his hands on my head that I might receive the Spirit which Christ promised, it came on me in such away as to convey the knowledge that my sins were forgiven, and I said then I felt that my sins were forgiven. We had a time long to be remembered; for the Spirit was poured out in great power on all of us. I borrowed some of the Church books to read; one was the Doctrine and Covenants. After reading it awhile, I lent it to one of my neighbors. When he returned it, I asked him what he thought of it. He said the Lectures on Faith were good; but the others too common and he didn't like the style. The more I read the more I thought I didn't like the style; so I felt miserable, and was afraid they were not from God. But that was soon gone, for one day as I was ploughing in the field, the Spirit came on me, and filling me with knowledge, said, "If Joseph and Oliver had of had their way, they would not have liked the style either." I was afterwards shown Joseph Smith and his work here on the earth; that it was not finished, but as far as he did it was done right, and that the whole world, or the people of the world, were trying to stop his work; and that there was a power given him that the world could not overcome; and that the present Joseph and his brother Alexander were on the track that would lead them safely over the great river, that lies between us and the promised land.

I have seen the power of God manifested in many ways. One I will mention. Bro. Rodger and I were out holding meeting. We stopped at Sister Redrich. She met me at the door, said to me, "Bro. Thompson, I am going to die." I said, "I guess not." She said she was, for she was failing fast and could not stand it long. That evening we prayed that the Lord would help her, and she said in the night that an angel came and said he was Moroni, and had come to bless her because she was keeping the brethren. Since that time she has been well. If I should write all I have seen and know to be so, one sheet of paper could not contain it.

May God continue to bless his people, is in prayer,
A. W. THOMPSON.

RESIGNATION.

If disappointment meet me,
Or sorrow be my lot;
I trust that duties calling
Shall never be forgot.

If flowers bloom around me
To wither and decay;
I hope, through storm and tempest,
To keep the narrow way.

If friends prove false and fickle,
And wound my heart with grief;
I'd look beyond the struggle,
And hope for sure relief.

If cold and dark my pathway,
Nor sympathy I find;
I can not fret, nor murmur,
If peaceful be my mind.

I'd have that calm reliance
Upon the truth and right,
That looks upon the tempest,
Nor ever takes affright;

That holds the banner higher
And presseth on to victory,
While all is calm within.

That suffers self-denial;
(Or sorrow, grief and pain);
And though the heart be bleeding,
At fate will not complain.

Oh, could I have this courage,
No harm could me befall;
But I would rise triumphant
And nobly conquer all.

THE BAPTISM OF JOHN.

"Was it from heaven, or of Men."—Christ. Evidently the question is of paramount importance, as it involves the salvation of souls. Who but the Infinite can fully comprehend its magnitude. The finite mind, however, may readily discern, that consequences of the most serious character are here pending. If it was "of men," John was an imposter, his disciples deceived, and a train of difficulties arise too dreadful to contemplate. If from heaven, then it is binding upon humanity, unless it has been abrogated by Divine command. Let one quotation suffice in answer to the question. "There was a man sent from God, whose name was John."—(See John 1st chapter.) Without hesitancy then, the baptism of John is from heaven, and hence its requirements must be adhered to, unless it has run its course, having fully accomplished the object for which it was given.

ITS NATURE AND DESIGN

may be comprehended in part by understanding the mission of John. Zacharias (John's father) prophesied: "And thou child, shall be called the prophet of the Highest, for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare His ways; then it follows that whatever John taught and practiced, were "the ways" of the Lord who succeeded him. "And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." "Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins." By these texts we are informed of two things at least: first, that John's baptism is for the remission of sins; and second, that it was administered in Jordan, or some other body of water affording like facility for baptism. Enon seemed to be a suitable place by reason of there being "much water there."

WHAT RELATION DOES IT BEAR TO THE GOSPEL?

Read Mark 1st. "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ. . . . John did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." The authoritative proclamation of John, as he stood upon the banks of Jordan, saying, "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," was the introduction, or "beginning" of the gospel dispensation, of which Peter, James, Paul and Christ the head, were made "able ministers," and hence John's baptism is shown to be an important factor in the gospel economy.

JOHN'S BAPTISM IS A CHRISTIAN BAPTISM.

This is proven in various ways: First, the fact that the gospel is "everlasting," and dates back to John, evinces the truthfulness of the statement. Second, the Savior gave sanction to John's preparation of his ways, by rendering obedience to them. "Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him; but John forbade him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me? And Jesus answering, said unto him, Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness. Then he suffered him. And Jesus when he was baptized, went up straight way out of the water: and lo the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: and lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."—Matt. 3: 13-17. Third, Jesus and his disciples taught and practiced John's baptism. "After these things came Jesus, and his disciples, into the land of Judea, and there he tarried with them and baptized."—John 3: 22.

The next verse shows how the ordinance was performed. "And John also was baptizing in Enon, near to Salem, because there was much water there; and they came and were baptized." John baptized in Enon, Jordan, and doubtless many other places, affording equal facilities for immersion, and the word "also," as it occurs in the text, signifies that Christ and John baptized in the same manner. (See Webster for definition.) John introduced His ways. The Savior did not change them. Some may think that Christ did not administer water baptism himself, only authorizing others so to do. This would not affect the issue in the least. The fact that John and the disciples of Christ were all baptizing at the same time, and in the same manner, shows conclusively that the ordinance is decidedly "Christian." In regard to the scripture, "Though Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples," another translation renders it, "Though he himself baptized not so many as his disciples," which makes it harmonize with the preceding verses.

We pass over the mingled scene of sorrow and joy, to the event of the glorified Savior's appearing to his disciples to commission them. Matthew 28th commands our attention first. Now hearken, O ye ministers of the earth, who claim to be laboring under this commission. Let all men "fear God and give glory to him." Listen to the voice of the Eternal, and learn to walk in his ways. Cease to oppose his truth by the vain imaginations of your own hearts. Remember, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death;" "for to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." How much better for us to choose God's "ways" of "life and peace," than to persist in seeking to establish our own righteousness, and at last meet bitter disappointment and death. "And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me, in heaven and on earth. Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." In love and respect, but in great earnestness, I desire to ask every minister who perchance may read this, (and let the saints circulate their Heralds, Hopes, Advocates, and Tracts), if baptism is here presented as a non-essential,—something to be observed or ignored, at the option of the creature; or are the servants of Christ commanded to teach it; together with "all things" pertaining to the Kingdom of God? And if they do not do it, are they not in sin? "Sin is a transgression of the law," and the gospel is "the perfect law of liberty;" then "so speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty," for "to whom much is given much is required," and whether our authority be regal, or assumed, God will hold us responsible. "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches." In the commission as given both by Matthew and Mark, baptism is made an important factor in the gospel economy, and it affords no promise to ministers who do not teach it, nor to laity who will not receive it; and who but the foolish and worldly wise will allow their teachings and practices to stand in diametrical opposition to the command of Him to whom "all power is given." There can be no mistake relative to the nature of the baptism referred to, as it is to be administered by men, and none but God can baptize with the Spirit.

We now pass along to a later period, and observe the preaching and practices of those who labored under the commission concerning whom it is written, "And the Lord was with them, confirming the word with signs following."

JOHN'S BAPTISM WAS TAUGHT AT PENTECOST.

This was a notable day, worthy to be chronicled in the history of our blessed Lord. Four years, more or less, prior to this, John had said to the people, "I indeed have baptized you with water, but He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost." The Savior followed him teaching "Except a man be born of water, and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God." John, the Savior, and his disciples, all baptized with water, and to all true candidates the conditional promise was made, "If ye love me keep my commandments, and I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another comforter, that he may abide with you forever. Even the spirit of truth." "It is expedient for you that I go away, for if I go not away, the comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart, I will send him unto you." This promise was fully realized at Pentecost, "and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the spirit gave them utterance." Some mocked, others were converted, who said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" And Peter said unto them, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and you shall (future tense) receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." This is identical with the baptism of John. By recapitulation the matter is presented thus: John prepares "the ways" of the Lord by preaching faith in Jesus Christ, repentance, and baptism for the remission of sins; the Savior and his disciples, while the former was incarnate, taught the same prerequisites, and baptized in the same manner; after the passion and resurrection, and simultaneous with the spiritual endowment, Peter, as mouthpiece to the assembly, and laboring under the commission specifying what must be taught as the plan of salvation, and in direct answer to the question, "what shall we do?" declares the unvarying plan of faith, (their faith was manifest), repentance, and baptism for the remission of sins. And again: John baptized with [in] water, and promised the Holy Spirit, which was to be received "not many days hence." Christ and his disciples baptize in the same manner, and extend the same promise. Peter in turn, after the resurrection, by the authority of his appointment, and the fulfillment of the glorious promise, heralds the "everlasting gospel" to be preached to "all nations," "to every creature," and for a witness withal, before "the end" shall come, by "teaching them to observe "the things" introduced by the harbingers John, and upon these conditions and promises the Holy Ghost, as if to silence every gainsaying tongue, adds, "for the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call," thus showing the perpetuity of the gospel plan.

It is argued by some that because three thousand souls were added to the Church on Pentecost day, that baptism was not administered by immersion. In answer we ask, Why should plain statements, relative to the mode of baptism, be ignored, and a convenient theory be built upon mere supposition, virtually contradicting both the precepts and examples of Christ, and his acknowledged disciples? The argument that sprinkling or pouring will do as well as immersion, is built—upon what? The teachings of John? No. The examples or precepts of either Christ or one of his disciples? No. Upon a single statement of God's word in relation to this ordinance? Certainly not. Then upon what? Why, sprinkling or pouring are more expeditious modes of baptizing than immersion, and whereas, three thousand people were baptized at Pentecost, one of the former modes must have been observed. This reminds me of a crooked house, built upon a sandy hill. It is pseudology, reared upon a false basis. First, the writer of "The Acts" does not say that these were all baptized that particular day. Why should not as much latitude be allowed for the statement, "and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls," as many give themselves. If three or ten thousand penitent souls gave their names for baptism then, it is reasonable to suppose that if that day was not sufficient for all to be immersed, time would overcome the difficulty. And second, "seeing it was but the third hour of the day" the twelve and the "other seventy" might, by an equal distribution of labor have buried with Jesus in baptism, "in the likeness of his death," burial, and resurrection, the entire number, long ere the shining sun kissed the western horizon. Paul, who received the gospel "by the revelation of Jesus Christ," told his brethren that they were "buried with him by baptism," and argued that by being "planted together in the likeness of his death," they had hope of a glorious resurrection. Phillip "preached Christ" to the Samaritans who "gave heed to those words which he spake," by being "baptized, both men and women." The eunuch followed their example by going down into the water with Philip, who administered the sacred rite. All these "walked worthy of the vocation wherewith they were called," "endeavoring to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace," being members of the "one body," and animated by "one spirit," teaching "One Lord, one faith, and one baptism," and "unto every one of them was given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ." But a few hundred years have passed, and the Bible has become an infallible guide by which men are authorized (?) to ignore its precedents. The Holy Spirit (?) has become a medium by which all may "get religion" and be "happy," without obeying a single command of the gospel! Revelation is "done away, but by some incomprehensible means many lords, many faiths, and many baptisms have become lawful (?) to those who are "Sincere in their belief;" and withal infidelity is a "horrid thing," but to be a christian is glorious, whether you are a follower of Christ or not! In behalf of the Church of Christ we desire to state that "This is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that 'God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.'" "If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." See 1 John 1:5, 7. "And why call ye me [Christ] Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say;" to wit: "Except a man be born of water, and of the Spirit he can not enter into the kingdom of God;" for "as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also."

THE BAPTISM OF JOHN IS ESSENTIAL TO SALVATION.

What! says one, do you assert that all who are not immersed are lost? What becomes of the heathen nations, imbeciles, and those who die in infancy? We answer, the gospel is an authoritative message, proclaimed to the children of men by the chosen servants of God. It is addressed only to those who hear, or have the privilege of hearing it, while those whom "times and seasons" do not so highly favor, are not subject to its requirements. No law is given to the infantile world, who are gratuitously saved by the universal atonement. "As in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive," "but every man in his own order." The Savior expiates all that Adam did. So far as the disobedience of one affects us to injury, the righteousness of the other applies for our good. By individual transgressions we are alienated from God. The gospel is the law of adoption, of which water baptism is a constituent element, instituted for the remission of sins; and hence it is, that those who hear and will not obey, remain in their sins, and are "damned" or condemned. The blood of Christ cleanses the accountable from sin, provided they walk in the light, as presented in the gospel. "And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil," is in the past tense, and refers to those who will have fully rejected the gospel. Paul told the Athenians that "The times of past ignorance" God winked at, but now "commandeth all men everywhere to repent." By virtue of the restoration and renewal of the gospel covenant, all men are commanded to repent of sin,—the transgression of law, and conform to the righteousness of God. And remember we shall not be judged by the creeds of men, but by "the perfect law of liberty." The minister, no matter how popular or eloquent he may be, can not save us. Let all men be regarded according to their moral worth. God accepts no man's person. Every man shall be judged as his work shall be. "I speak as to wise men, judge ye what I say." G. S. HYDE.

Selected Poetry.

WHO WILL GO AND WORK TO-DAY.

Hark! the voice of Jesus crying,—“Who will go and work to-day?
Fields are white and harvest waiting; who will bear the sheaves away?”
Loud and strong the Master calleth, rich reward He offers thee;
Who will answer, gladly saying, “Here am I; send me, send me?”

If you can not cross the ocean, and the heathen lands explore;
You can find the heathen nearer—you can find them at your door.

If you can not give your thousands, you can give the widow's mite;

And the least you do for Jesus, will be precious in His sight.

If you can not speak like angels; if you can not preach like Paul,

You can tell the love of Jesus, you can say “He died for all.”

If you can not rouse the wicked with the judgments' dread alarms,

You can lead the little children, to the Savior's waiting arms.

If you can not be the watchman, standing high on Zion's wall,

Pointing out the path to heaven, offering life and peace to all;

With your prayers and with your bounties, you can do what heaven demands,

You can be like faithful Aaron, holding up the prophet's hands.

If among the older people, you may not be apt to teach;
“Feed my lambs,” said Christ our Shepherd, “Place the food within their reach.”

And it may be that the children you have led with trembling hand,

Will be found among your jewels, when you reach the better land.

Let none hear you idly saying, “There is nothing I can do,”

While the souls of men are dying, and the Master calls for you.

Take the task He gives you gladly; let His work your pleasure be;

Answer quickly when He calleth, “Here am I; send me, send me!”

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 1883.

LETTER FROM ELDER KELLY.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, June 25th, 1883.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—

I have been intending and resolving to write you a letter for the past four weeks, but on account of pressure of work here, and attendance at meetings in this and Portage county, have allowed the hours to slip by; not however, without trying to improve them at other duties and of thinking of you, and the labors you give,—unselfishly too, for no reward appears nigh—to the gospel work. Well, there is a moments' consolation in the thought of such an opportunity being graciously offered to one to go forward and do his best, for his own and fellows' good, both for the present and hereafter. The fact seems very patent too, that the giver of all good in the distribution of opportunities has not only so allotted in life that one individual may undertake the accomplishment of so much, but that every one shall have opportunity to use to the full, his utmost powers, and in this light it seems to have been said to the prophet, “Whosoever will, let him thrust in his sickle and reap.” And although the trials and perplexities of life are often severe, the silver thread runs through the line of the whole, bearing the truth that Deity makes no mistakes, and requires no more of any of His creations than they can well and properly perform. A life not yet fully budded may be seared, and by the hoar frosts turned backward to be renewed and brought forth in strength 'neath a proper sun and more genial clime; so in the Eden of life, under the work and careful solicitude of the “Sun of righteousness,” tender life will spring with delight, and until the time when these buds shall come forth to bear a testimony to him and his work, man will have but a meager conception of the stupendous work and boundless love toward the human family by Jesus of Nazareth.

“God so loved the world that He gave His Son, that the world might not perish but have everlasting life.” And this, in my conception, was not a vain gift—was no experiment—but done in the unchangeable love of accomplishment; and not until the work shall have been done, the kingdom delivered to the Father, with every person standing in his own order, will this love be answered in the person of the Anointed. Just how much man may aid in this work of beneficence, and thus, withal, perform his perfect work, as the Master, (the great exemplar), doeth His, is only told in the acts of the greatest lives—greatest for good—and it is quite evident that the “littles” when well done are important factors which enter into the crowning of all. With this hope of trying to perform my own work I have labored in this section of country since the conference; during the week looking after the work of repairing the Temple, and on the Sabbath and occasionally week day evenings talking to the people at various places. Elder Columbus Scott returned to his work soon after his appointment, and has faithfully labored here and elsewhere. At two places in North Mentor and one in Portage county regular appointments have been held with good audiences and good interest, and we are now urged to go to Chester, Chardon and Deerfield, where we are promised fair play and good audiences. This is all we ask anywhere. Bro. Scott gave two lectures in this place, aside from the regular services, on the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith the martyr, which were generally appreciated. His lectures upon this subject are able and unanswerable by the most gifted critic, whether infidel or professed christian.

At Diamond, Portage county, the work was opened up by Bro. C. D. Seeley, a long, lean yankee from Maine, and who remained in Kirtland sometime after the conference. He has a good, modest, innocent blundering way, that leads to success, and just such a person as might have been found a century ago turning somebody else's tea chests into Boston harbor. He is now settled permanently in the capital city, Columbus, and since his arrival there the State Supreme Court has affirmed the constitutionality of the Scott anti-liquor law. He called me over to Diamond just in time to divide with him the honor of a visit from a reverend gentleman from Alliance, who came down to "nip mormyism in the bud." He was on the war path, a self made man, (most all of these reverends are, I find), one of the smartest men in the state, (so he said), very highly colored, and required a full pint of whisky to put him in motion, he had more than a pint aboard however. Well, I survive, so does our Yankee, and the darkey too I hope, and we continue there with large and attentive audiences, I just give you these points so you may see what kind of warfare is made against the faith. Bro. and Sr. James Stewart do all they can for the faith at Diamond.

At North Mentor, this county, was another little experience; the Campbellite man from Mentor charged on us there full tilt in his afternoon's sermon. Wanted to mix a dose of poison for us as a sure test, or have us raise the dead, or calm the stormy lake. These Campbellites are the worst sign seekers I ever struck; and from the history, I judge that the old Pharisees were nowhere in comparison with them. I happened to be present, and when he was through, invited him to be present that evening at my meeting and hear the other side, as I desired to notice some points in his discourse, but did not wish to do so in his absence. He could not, nor could he think of any time when he possibly could, and after he had had ample time to think over the matter and failed, I fixed the time for him; and announced that I was ready to prove my mission, firmly resolved to raise the dead if necessary to establish the fact. And, singular too, that after his demand, and I had walked right up and offered to prove my calling, the reverend(?) slid out. His members told me that he said if it had been Joseph Smith himself he would have met him, but thought he could not come down to hold a controversy with Elder Scott or myself; thought we would not be able to handle our side. How very considerate that was. It would have looked better however, if he had thought of it before making the bitter and uncalled for attack on us. The sequel is, the friends stand by us and we continue meetings with good interest.

I called attention in my review to the statement made in the "History of the Disciples on the Western Reserve," "That in the contact with the Mormon" (early Latter Day Saints) "they never would meet the Disciples in an open investigation of their faith;" and told the audience it was a deliberate falsehood, told by the Disciples to injure our people, and we would prove it a lie in every county in the state from the Ohio river to Lake Erie. And so I expect to see it done.

This section is a grand place to meet with all the slanders and lies that were ever told against the Saints. Why they can name persons as glibly as Littlefield does to prove to us Joseph Smith practiced polygamy in 1832-3, and when we trace them out they are just about such kind of lies as the Utah polygamists hold to. Astonishing how hard those who evilly treated and finally murdered Joseph Smith, and the Salt Lake polygamists, will work to prove Mr. Smith to have had more than one wife. How is it that these Salt Lakers can so heartily join hands with the old and inveterate enemies of the early Saints and make an attack upon this same faith they so bitterly attacked when your father was a preacher of it? And these fellows have just as much proof, and no more, as the Salt Lakers. And yet I am called upon by the Salt Lake crew to believe their stories in the matter, in the face of the written evidence I have to the contrary, and the absence of all proofs of their stories. Now, it makes no difference to me so far as my faith is concerned, whether Joseph Smith had more wives than one or not, but I don't propose to lie and say he had, when I have no evidence of it. And so far, in my examination I have found all the proof on the other side—and all the stories and lies on the side of those claiming that he had more than one wife. If those Utah fellows have any evidence let them come forward and produce it, and we will be content. Let them remember also that the first evidence in this matter is that of the records of the marriage, if there was more than one wife, that they have, or claim to have those records. Let us first have the records submitted to a competent committee for examination, and after that it will be time enough to listen to the ipse dixit of persons who say they were secretly practicing these things, contrary to the laws of the Church and of the land, and knew others were, prior to going to Utah.

If they were, and lying about it, how do we know but they are practicing some other crime now and lying about it, to the rest of their brethren. My father in 1844, and afterwards was the presiding Elder in the church near Vienna, Illinois, and preaching and practicing the laws endorsed by the Church of monogamy, and holding forth to the world the faith of the Church as publicly accepted by it; and the President and Elders at Nauvoo claimed publicly, this was the correct belief of the Church; and now while he and hosts of others were doing this, is it possible that Littlefield, Taylor, the Huntingtons, Eliza R. and others, were in Nauvoo practicing and preaching secretly the reverse, and causing the Elders everywhere to hold forth falsehood and deception? Great God! with such a record as this, who can guess what Littlefield, Taylor, & Co., are not doing now in secret and which they have to spring upon the world as the faith of their followers (and who have never heard of it) in a few years to come. For a man to take this position of professing to be with a people and then secretly teaching and practicing a doctrine which the people know nothing of, as Littlefield now comes out and says he did, he takes the place at once of having been a contemptible liar and hypocrite—practicing his arts of deception against his own brethren—and before he could be believed either in court or out, would necessarily have to repent and turn from his great wickedness. Now, you may think this is plain talk, but just turn and read the charges of lying made against us as a people by those Salt Lake fellows on a matter which they claim to have proof upon in their own hands, and when we have time and again demanded that proof, and they have only given us their secret lying and whoredoms.

When the martyr lay in Nauvoo, pierced with the assassins' bullets, only one wife, one set of children, came to mourn the husband and father. The inheritance went to Emma and her children only. No one else came forward and said I will divide the estate with you. No children have since come forward from any source and claimed they were his children, except those of his wife Emma. No woman ever faced this wife (Emma) and said I was also his wife, I mourn with you. And now nearly forty years after his death I am cited to some persons who their friends say, they say, (and they are all polygamists), that while Joseph Smith was teaching monogamy in Nauvoo and held out to the world his wife as the only true and lawful one, not only to the world but his brethren in the faith also, they were secretly cuckling with him on the sly; and all of this to urge others of Utah into the same practice of polygamy as themselves. Now, before they cram such doubtful stuff as that down my neck I claim the small privilege of at least cross examining the witnesses. Suffice it to say that I shall not be found slandering the dead and trying to bring his great character into the dirt with those of Utah polygamists. Neither shall I cease to uphold and sustain as true and upright the character of the great Seer unless the evidences are furnished to the contrary. And I am ready to meet and examine such evidences with any person and in any part of the United States; and I trust that persons will be gentlemanly enough not to again publish, "You lie," until they have submitted their evidences for consideration at least. I have read carefully the "Open letter" of L. O. Littlefield in the Utah Journal, also your answer, and his, and Joseph F. Smith's reply. Your answer is good and so high above their petty assertions of crimination that they will never be able to meet it, although they should live and try for another century.

When men who claim to be ministers of Christ will descend to the trick of trying to meet a man's quotation of a public speaker which he took in writing at the time, by summoning themselves and their women several years afterwards to say that if it was said they never heard it, or did not remember it, it becomes high time to deal with them as they are, and not as you would like to have them. The remarks of Orson Pratt which you use in your answer, I remember you read to me in your office at Plano a few years ago, as having been taken by you at the time, and now, when the time arrives and an issue has been made, they come in and want me to believe through their witnesses "who did not hear," that you prepared this, that long before hand, for to meet this issue. Well, from their side of the controversy they ought to believe you a prophet. And these same fellows who try in such a questionable way to meet an open and fair argument, want me also to believe that when the great body of the Church were doing right, and keeping its laws, prior to its disorganization in 1844, they were in Nauvoo, and did in "Secret creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts," and that Joseph Smith, a man who had fearlessly faced mob after mob, the Congress and President of the United States, in the urgency of his rights, and finally met coolly and resolutely death itself,—in secret met them on a dark corner in Nauvoo, and with knowing wink and whispered breath endorsed this as the great celestial law. Now, all can drink this down who wish to, but as for myself I would like these knowing ones to, for once, condescend to a public cross examination, and until such time as they do, I shall think they are now publicly lying, as they admit they were then doing in secret.

One thing here I find to be an absolute fact, and that is, that what is left of the old enemies of Joseph Smith and the early church at Kirtland, are the very ones who are against us now, and who work hand in hand with the polygamists to break down the character of Joseph Smith; while the friends of Mr. Smith and the Saints when he was here, and their children, are the friends of the Saints to-day, and maintain that Mr. Smith was an honest, honorable and upright man. Will the Utah people please explain this? And if they will take the trouble to send a representative here I will go with him and prove that the statement is only moderately made.

Day by day now, some part of the Temple is refitted; but the work is of greater magnitude than I had at all thought at first. The tower and roof are now solid and new. This time the shingling is a number one job, done by George Manley and Charles Metcalf of Kirtland. After much trouble and perplexity we have for painters two young men from Geneva, Ohio, Dyer E. Stone, and Will Wright, who do their work well and are straightforward and honorable. The building looks much better than before repairs were made, and there is a symmetry and beauty about it that were entirely unobserved before. I am well pleased with Kirtland and its people in many ways, and the longer I remain the better satisfied I am with the surroundings. Now, dressed in nature's freshest and loveliest adornment, the streets, fields and hills present a far more favorable impression than under the storms of April during your visit, while the Temple under the retouched beauty of chisel and brush, with more excellent splendor also, brings anew the admiration of the visitor, and attracts, not only for its solid strength and construction, but in its dress of snowy whiteness for singularity and beauty. The same, or greater interest is still had among visitors from all parts of the United States. To-day I have shown through the building nine persons, among the number, H. J. Blackwell, Rev. Mrs. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, and Mrs. Lucy Stone, of Boston, and this is only an average day for the past two weeks. The faith we try to properly represent to each one, and feel confident we do, for the reason that we don't have any Littlefield, Taylor and their girls, up at headquarters to change it, without the knowledge, or consent of the body, and to be secretly practicing something else.

We want a good picture of your father to place in the registry room. Also of your mother and Hyrum; can you send them. Be sure and send the former and if any of the friends there wish to contribute toward a proper frame send that along too and I will procure the frame at Cleveland. Visitors wish to see it, the Saints will be glad and it ought to be there anyway. Also, I wish the Board of Publication would put on sale here Hymn Books and Books of Mormon, and if you could send us a number of copies of David's "Hesperis;" they would sell to visitors and do good. We need also for gratuitous distribution suitable tracts. How very few are our demands? Please do the best you can and so will we.

Elder Scott, Mrs. Kelley and myself were last week happily surprised by the citizens of Kirtland, who kindly came in, bringing with them their provisions, and many other little extras; and at six o'clock when I came to supper the long table at the hotel, so well known to our Conference people, was handsomely spread, decorated and filled with the choicest of the caterer's good things. Before the lifting of the covers, Mr. Makepeace, on behalf of the assembled citizens offered the following welcome and toast:

"To Mr. and Mrs. Kelley and Elder Columbus Scott: The citizens of Kirtland who have met at this social gathering, welcome you back to the place of worship, and home of your fathers; and may your every effort be blessed in doing good, and to this end do we extend our sincere sympathy and warmest congratulations."

To this Elder Scott and I responded, for ourselves and in behalf of the Church, for which the welcome had been extended, and assured them that from an extended acquaintance with our people, we could truly say that from their known character, whatever they did, or undertook in Kirtland, would be for the highest good of all its citizens and be in keeping with the highest acts, so far as religion and morality were concerned, to be found in the world anywhere. Then passed an enjoyable time seemingly to all. So the world moves and Kirtland with the rest of it.

July 5th.—Since writing the above I have made another visit to Diamond and held three meetings. I find many good people over there. This is the county in which Joseph and Sidney were at one time dragged from their beds and tarred and feathered. There is a new and better class of people here now however; and those old religious fanatics who flourished in your father's day are now either lost to all knowledge of the world, or they and their children are ashamed to own their intolerant work. When I compare their outcome with the prominent part, and the great work the sons of Joseph Smith are now taking in the affairs of the world, it is very evident that the real success of his enemies was of short duration after all. So may "the righteous not be forsaken nor his seed found begging bread."

Bro. Scott had to return home on account of sickness in his family. A letter from him states they are better.

I am in bonds, faithfully yours,
E. L. KELLEY.

SERMONS OUT OF CHURCH.
KOLOB.

"THE heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament (empyrean) his handiwork."

"Jehovah hath prepared his throne in the heavens, and his kingdom ruleth over all."

"Behold the heaven of heavens (universe of universes) can not contain him."

Astronomy teaches us that we are moving around the sun in an almost circular orbit, and that all the other planets of our system are doing the same. It also teaches us that the sun itself is moving around some other vast body to which it bears the same relation as our planet does to it; in other words our sun is but a planet attached to a larger and more glorious sun, just as our earth is attached to it. Astronomy also teaches that the fixed stars are suns, around which are revolving planetary worlds attended by their satellites or moons; and moreover these are such glorious and grand systems visible through the greater telescopes, that they have been termed "systems of suns;" and wonderful to relate, the whole of the heavenly host, telescopic or otherwise, is circulating round one grand central point.

Imagine the cycles, the enormous cycles of time which must elapse ere this enormous circle is completed. Let us suppose that the nearest fixed star, distant twenty billions of miles, is the center point of our system, which it is not, we must seek further still for it, but this will serve as an illustration. Then twenty billions plus two equals forty billions of miles, the diameter of the sun's orbit, and so increasing with geometrical ratio, where are we in view of this magnificence! Stunned, absolutely stunned, and with bated breath and folded hands, can only whisper, "Lord, what is man that thou art mindful of him."

It is of this vast central sun the inspired writer is speaking when he declares that "Jehovah hath prepared (established) his throne in the heavens (empyrean), and his kingdom ruleth over all." How does his kingdom rule over all? We do not mean how does he rule over all, but how does his dominion, the globe upon which he dwells, rule over all other suns and systems? Science teaches us that there can be no circular or orbital motion except there be a fixed point whence proceeds two powers—centrifugal and centripetal. Hence the great central sun is the fixed point of the universe around which all suns and systems of suns revolve. We say that this vast central sun, this enormous globe is fixed, and of necessity it must be so. Having no orbital motion, and occupying the same point in the empyrean throughout all eternity, for the fact of orbital motion demonstrates the existence of a fixed center from whence the motion is derived, and around which the thing moved revolves in an orbit, circular or elliptical, according to the amount of disturbing forces it meets with in its journey around its central point. Now, as this great universe of all the universes is the point around which they move, and whence they derive their motions, it follows that it must ever retain the same position in space. But though this must be so as regards orbital motion, yet it is evident that it must have a rotary motion; for this is the only way by which it can communicate motion to and govern it in the others. This then is one of the ways by which the kingdom—throne—of Jehovah ruleth over all.

But again: Light is a reflected principle. The moon and planets shine with a light reflected from the sun. And it may be, judging by analogy it is a fact, that our sun itself shines with the light it receives from another sun. Reasoning by induction it certainly does. All theories are opposed to this; but as the theory of light, which has been accepted by all the philosophers and taught in all the colleges in Europe and America for two centuries, has lately been proven very shakey indeed, if not absolutely false. So, as the ages progress, it may be discovered that light has but one source, and is in every instance a reflected entity. It has been said that "Order is heaven's first law," and certainly this system of things obtaining would declare the establishment of order and regularity in the highest degree. And the writer most assuredly believes that this system does obtain. It is but a theory; but all sciences were but theories until demonstrated to be true. So we understand that all light is transmitted from the Throne of Jehovah, which is eternally shining, for there is no night there. He, the high and mighty one who inhabits eternity; He dwells in the light unapproachable and full of glory.

What is the size of this glorious kingdom, this ruling orb? If the whole of our planetary system was merged into one, the sun would exceed it in size by five hundred times. Thus, securing by analogy and the inductive method, we would conclude that if the whole of the starry host was massed into one vast body the throne of Jehovah would exceed it as five hundred to one. With this view of the majesty on high, how can we avoid bowing the head and reverently exclaiming "High and mighty is the Lord God dwelling in the midst of eternity." "All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord, and thy Saints shall bless thee. They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power to make known to the sons of men thy mighty acts and the glorious majesty of thy kingdom." "Thine understanding is infinite and the limits of thy dominion are past finding out." Is it not glorious, this "Kolob," this throne of the Most High. This dwelling place of the Eternal, around which all the suns and systems of suns revolve, and where thousand thousands of bright intelligences minister to him that sitteth upon the throne, and ten thousand times ten thousands stand before him. O man, frail man, proud in the mite of knowledge you possess, bow in reverence before Him who rules in the heavens and understandeth the circle orbit of the earth, and in whose sight the inhabitants thereof (in their wisdom) are as grasshoppers."

And now are we to consider this vast central universe as having nought but beautiful beings inhabiting it and they employed incessantly day and night in singing the praise of him that sitteth upon the throne? Far from it, scripture plainly teaches that the eternal life of God's people will be passed among beautiful vegetable organizations, not alone of those with which they are familiar on earth but of myriads of others of which we are now ignorant. There will be the tree of life bearing twelve manner of fruits, and shedding its leaves every month, in order to produce fruit meet for the season; aye, the season. And of flowers we may safely conclude that there will not be any left out, but that all are performing their part in adorning and beautifying the kingdom of the living God. And just as we know that there are many, many orbs with systems far more complex than ours; Saturn, with his rings and seven moons and his year consisting of nearly thirty of ours. If with his four moons and giant proportions and year equal to twelve of ours, so we may reasonably conclude that there are planets and animals upon the different systems of which we have not the faintest idea, and just as some worlds exceed ours in grandeur and complexity of system, so may their fauna and flora exceed ours in grandeur and complexity. Indeed, reasoning inductively, this must be the case, for even on our own planet we have evidence of this. Who would have, ere Australia was discovered, imagined the wonderful fauna and flora of that continent, or who before the geological discoveries of the last hundred years would have conceived any idea of the wonderful birds, beasts, and reptiles, that lived, moved and had their being "in the days when earth was young." Says the beloved apostle—he to whom was vouchsafed a glimpse of the future home of the Saints: "I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the former things were passed away," that is, the heavens we now behold were seen no more, not that they were burnt up; but that the regenerated earth was then, after its purification by fire, removed from its present position in space and annexed to the great central sun, the throne of God. And thus will the redeemed of the Lord see a new heaven, even that wondrous system which circles first in order around "Kolob," the city of the Great King. The Savior intimates this when he says, "I will no more drink of the fruit of the vine with you until I drink it anew with you in the kingdom of my Father." Then, when the regenerated earth is annexed to and forms part of the dominion of the great God, we can understand how those words will be fulfilled. Again, the Savior said to his disciples, "In my Father's house are many mansion (worlds redeemed) I go to prepare a place for you, (yours), that where I am ye may be also." Where is Christ? Stephen saw the heavens opened and the Savior sitting on the right hand of God. Again, the Savior said to the Apostles: "As my Father hath appointed unto me a kingdom, so also I appoint one unto you." What is Christ's kingdom? All the redeemed worlds brought to his Father's dominions, and the Apostles will have their dominions for, "In the regeneration they will sit upon twelve thrones judging the tribes of Israel." Who will the house of Israel, or twelve tribes be? "So then they which are of the same faith, the same are also the children of Abraham." Viewed from this standpoint we now begin to comprehend the words of holy writ, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Prince of Peace, the Everlasting Father, and of the measure of his kingdom and dominion there shall be no end." Wonderful words—how comprehend them but by the light of revelation, aided by science.

Astronomy declares to us that suns and systems of suns are in existence deep sunk in space; so deep that the nearest fixed star is distant from us twenty billions of miles. Grasp the distance who can. And it is highly probable that the distances of the stars go on increasing in a certain definite ratio, and it is but reasonable to believe that they are all of them "which career in the heavens so broad," the abode of living, thinking, acting men and women, all of them destined to be saved and brought into and annexed to the dominion of the Great King; each and every one of them saved by the "very same Savior and the very same powers." Though not necessarily by the shedding of blood; but by the same means as was Enoch and his city. This then is how that of the increase of the kingdom and dominions of the "Wonderful Counsellor" there shall be no end. For even when all these are saved and exalted in the mansions of the Father, we have no idea that the work of creation will cease. But to the contrary, it is declared that his works are endless, and we may safely assume that just as one world is taken up to the glorious dominions of the Great King another one fully prepared and thoroughly developed, by undergoing exactly the same processes, as geology declares ours to have undergone will take its place. Or it may be, that the nucleus (nebulous) of another world will then take its position, occupying the same celestial longitude of which the presiding orb the dominions of the Eternal is the fixed point from which all celestial motion is calculated, and from whence is dated the equinoxes and solstices of the whole of the heavenly host; which, circling in marvelous grandeur around the city of the Great King, are ever hymning forth his praise in one grand symphony of life and glory; a veritable "psalm of life," "the music of the spheres," hymning unceasingly the praises, grandeur, glory and loving kindness of Him who sitteth upon the throne of this vast, this overpowering, this unutterable glory, and yet heedeth the fall of the sparrow to the ground.

JAMES J. STAFFORD.

MY RELIGION.

Its foundation is Love. Christ and Love are one. I believe we were all created pure spirits, and that this is our second conscious state. That we had a free agency in our pre-existent state, but of that life we do not have any remembrance; but we who reach that great white throne, will then be conscious of our sometime having been familiar with the surrounding places, and conditions. But this is not of vital importance, although to me a help. I believe that the climate, or atmosphere of this earth, had such a tendency to develop the animal part of our nature to the almost utter exclusion of the spiritual nature, that it was necessary to send highly endowed spiritual beings into this earth, (called prophets), to try and turn the hearts of the people from the animal to the spiritual; but alas, it seems that the animal tendencies of the things of this earth, were so soon developed in these prophets, that they too went far astray. Then in bold relief is set forth Christ. What a contrast to his predecessors. All love, purity, without spot or blemish, truly a son of God. Certain it is that Christ represented God faithfully, as no one did before him or since. This I believe was his mission. That God, knowing the tendency of mankind to sin in the circumstances and spiritual darkness in which man was placed, sent his son Jesus to direct those who would hear, that they might regain that condition that was once theirs, namely, purity, including a place and condition. In this sense I believe that Christ was the gift of God unto us. Not that God must have innocent blood shed to appease his anger toward his children, or that any justice demanded the shedding of innocent blood; but simply that man might have a God on earth to follow, who would lead him to the God in heaven, to your father and my father, to your God and my God. The doctrines and forms taught by the Reorganized Church, I believe are the same as were taught by Christ in establishing a church on the earth. But as existing conditions show they were not followed; the crucifixion of self was too high for the masses, they would not suffer it; for as Christ was crucified, so was it ordained that man should crucify the lusts and selfishness of self. Although in a short time Christ when nailed to the cross, said it is finished, man has to suffer the crucifixion of self for many years on this earth. Then we ask the question, Who shall be found worthy, for it is suffering indeed, with all the tendencies of sin to crucify one's self, and prove faithful to the example of Christ. Well, I believe that every man can be saved without any of the forms of baptism, or anything else according as he lives faithful to the example of Christ. I believe as death finds a man here, so is his condition in another sphere, or as the tree falls, so it lies. I also believe that as Christ taught baptism, that a man who complies with these ordinances can live a better life, and come into nearer relations with God than any other person; for all these forms have the tendency to impress and keep a man in the condition to receive divine help. So I believe that if a man so awakened, and kept alive to his obligations and duty to God, by any forms such as baptism, it is his duty to comply, and if he does not, it is his own loss. And I furthermore believe that every man should depend on God for inspiration, or revelation, strictly in a personal sense, although to receive a prophecy or revelation through another if the same is confirmed by the Spirit of God, and to depend entirely on God as this salvation is a personal matter, between God and man, he should receive all his directions from God. In fact not to trust in man at all in relation to divine guidance. I do not believe any man should be ordained to any office without being ordained by the Spirit of God. In fact, I believe it should be God all the way through in all things; the opinion of man left out and then the Lord's will will begin to be done on earth as it is done in heaven.

There are a great many "I believes" in this, but it is my belief. I have tried to think differently on the subject of blood and baptism, but can not. So I would like to know from you if these beliefs debar me from continuing in the Reorganized Church. I have heard all manner of arguments against my beliefs, but still I am not changed, nor think I ever will be, as I have tried faithfully to understand the truth. If you will kindly answer this, you will greatly relieve

Yours in love,
