Bro. Blair:—Since writing about the disturbance at Caseville, I went with two of the brethren to the Prosecuting Attorney at Bad Axe to see what could be done to protect us from mob violence, and he gave us a letter to a constable at Caseville instructing him to protect us; but the latter positively refused to assist us. I went there on Friday last in company with Bro. F. C. Smith and as our meeting was at the house of Bro. Burwell, he put up board shutters to his windows to protect those assembled from being injured by bricks or stones which were thrown by our enemies. When we were closing our meeting a mob came and began to stone the house and a window that the brother had neglected to cover was broken; and when we attempted to go outside we were greeted with stones. On Sunday morning we met at Bro. Adam's house for meeting and we were blessed with the Spirit in power, and the testimonies of those who have only been in the church a few days were truly encouraging. I came to this place yesterday and preached last evening. I expect to labor here until next week, then I intend to go to Ubly, unless otherwise directed.

Yours in Christ.

LEVI PHELPS.

TABOR, Iowa, March 20th.

Bro. Blair:—Since you were in this part of the country I have been kept very close at home, expecting that my father might be taken at any moment, but he has passed the third year on his bed the fifteenth of this month, and was eighty seven years old the 19th. Mother is also declining fast. Her eyesight seems to be failing fast. She can't see to read any more.

Notwithstanding we have been called to pass through these trying ordeals—and the end is not yet—still our faith is unshaken in the latter day work. For we know that we have been blessed and upheld by God's grace. At times when we have felt discouraged there would be a whisper "you will get your reward;" so we are encoured to press on in the good fight. We know the prize is at the end of the race.

The work is onward in these parts, and there is a good feeling among the Saints. Our branch meets every two weeks, but the members are scattered, so the meetings are not very well attended. We shall strive for victory and battle for Zion's triumph.

S. ORTON-

AMBER, Iowa, March 1st.

Bro. Blair:—For several years I have been wanting to give you a short history of my life by way of testimony to the latter day work.

I was born in 1805, and my wife in 1815, in England-Fringstone, Leicestershire-and I belonged to the M. E Church for seven years. At that time Elder Hais preached the true gospel to us for the first time; and after I heard the third sermon I was baptized by Elder Asker, in August, 1846. In 1849 we came to this country with the intention of going to Utah. We landed at New Orleans, in company with five hundred Saints, and all came to St. Louis. Above two hundred went on to Utah, with Orson Spencer. We had to stop there for want of means, and there we heard, for the first time, that the Saints in Utah advocated polygamy. We then told Elder Phelps, president of the St. Louis branch, that we would not go to Utah, for we could not endorse that doctrine. The answer he gave me was, If we didn't want to go to Utah we might go to h---. We stopped there about a year and then moved to Elk Grove, Wisconsin, and lived there about five years, when Elder J. G. Adams preached Latter Day Saintism again. In 1862 we moved to Amber, Iowa, and-I think-in 1865 H. P. Brown came here and we were baptized by him into the Reorganized Church.

From the first on we have passed through seas of troubles. While we were in St. Louis for months we wept bitter tears of sorrow to see where the church was going, for Elder Mitchel borrowed ten pounds of us when we had but one penny left; and when I asked him for it he told me to sell my clothes and get money. But the Lord is not mocked for Mitchel was killed by accident soon after going to Utah.

I can truly tell you that if we had not had unmistakable evidence of the truth of this work as it was organized by Joseph the Martyr we could never have endured what we have. But we rejoice in our old days when we look back over forty-three years of our lives and see how our heavenly Father has watched over us. And as our days must be short in this life our desire is to do nothing but our Father's will, and fight on till the Master shall say, "It is enough; come and receive your reward."

For the last few years Bro. J. S. Roth has called upon us frequently and cheered and edified us by his counsel. Our prayer is that the work may prosper, for we know it is true.

Your brother in bonds,

JAMES BRADLEY.

BELOIT, Kansas, March 23d.

Dear Herald:-We have rejoiced in the coming to our place of a Latter Day Saint, Elder Charles Duncan. He preached twenty times, seven in our school-house and thirteen in the adjoining district. Bro. Duncan is a young man of fine abilities, capable of doing much good. We rejoice in the work he did here as there has never been any preaching here (only through the books and Herald that I have loaned) since we lived here, and that is ten years. There was good attendance all the time, and a world of prejudice removed. He left some near the kingdom, and all more or less interested. I hope he or some one else will come back soon as I think there could be a branch raised up in time. My husband and myself are old-time Saints and would be glad to welcome any that would come. Your sister in Christ,

M. C. KNAPP.

WILSONBURGH, Ill, March 12th.

Dear Herald: - Bro. Isaac M. Smith and I had the promise of the Freedom school-house and I gave out meeting for an evening, but as our Baptist brethren had just began a protracted meeting (those favorable to us said, purposely, to prevent us), and when we went that evening the doors were locked and the windows nailed down. But an old gentleman who had the largest share in a Christian (Disciple) church got the keys from the other trustees and opened that church. We held ten meetings there, when our old friend had to give up the keys to the other two, who would not come and hear, but said they heard some were going to join and they could not suffer that in their church. They have had no preaching or any other meeting in it for over a year, till the 3d inst., when those two shepherds, with a few of the faithful who did not come out to hear us, held a prayer meeting to remove the "desecration." Our friends then turned out and seated an old dwelling house, which had large fire-place, and thus amid plain, solid comfort, unostentatiously we tried to set the plan of salvation before the people.

We had the pleasure of baptizing the Postmistress of Wilsonburgh on the 27th ult. She is a worthy lady and will make a good advocate for our cause. Many more are believing and I think will obey soon. Bro. Smith is an able defender of the faith, and we all hope he will be continued in this district and will visit us again this year.

Yours in bonds,

JASPER M. TOUSLEY.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ill., March 23d. Bro. Blair: - Our quarterly conference closed last Sunday night. Harmony prevailed throughout the sessions and I believe it will prove beneficial to the district. The brethren seem determined to do something for the cause, and I think it is the intention of many to observe the law of tithing. There are a few who are not satisfied with their own refusal to observe it, but try to keep others from it, telling them "the time has not come yet," etc. But on the whole, the outlook is better than heretofore. Bro. I. M. Smith has been doing a good work this winter in Crawford, Richland and Macoupin counties. I am booked for a discussion in Macoupin county at McVey, to begin the 9th of April, on the divinity of the Book of Mormon and the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith. I hope it may result in good to the truth.

Strange that E. Robinson should change now and leave the church for that which occurred before 1835, when he publicly bore testimony at Kirtland six years ago that God acknowledged the church and temple abundantly at the dedication of the temple in that year. With perfect confidence in the final triumph of this work, I hope to labor on.

G. H. HILLIARD.

BUFFALO, Iowa, March 7th.

Bro. Blair:—Have just returned from a trip to the interior of our Eastern Iowa district, where, with that efficient worker, wise counsellor and pleasant companion, Elder J. S. Roth, I spent five weeks preaching among Saints, friends to the cause of truth and others.

We were guests of the members of the Fulton branch the most of the time, every one of whom gave proof that the love of God dwelt in their hearts, therefore they wished their neighbors to hear the truth and have an opportunity to enlist in the same glorious cause.

The Fulton branch is the result of Bro. William T. Maitland's preaching there. He was the pioneer of the faith among that people, and he may well feel proud of his children in the gospel. Bro. Maitland's labors were supplemented by Elder Roth, and after he had baptized a number, the branch was organized. Priest John Heide presides, and Bro. John W. Sutton is teacher. The spoken testimonies of those dear Saints gave no uncertain sound, while their manner of life merits emulation of all men. The experiences of Elder Roth and myself among those Saints and their neighbors were very pleasant, and our preaching was well received by the people. I feel sure there are honest hearts in the vicinity of Fulton, and that they will be with the "little few" in the near future.

On my way home I met with the Saints at Davenport. The occasion was sacrament service, and a pleasant mingling was ours. Priest D. W. Clow has the watchcare of the Davenport branch; he, howeveer, has been absent most of the year, being employed at Kansas City. He leaves the branch in the care of priest F. G Dungee of Rock Island, who has the confidence of those with whom he labors. The Davenport Saints are alive to the work, and are a warmhearted and generous people.

Bro. Maitland, of Tipton, Iowa, had just closed three weeks labors at Davenport, Rock Island and Buffalo. At the latter place his success was not flattering. This is an Infidel and Methodist stronghold, and Bro. Maitland's severe castigation of M. T. Lamb here last year was so blistering that the M. E's are still smarting; hence they shun the Maitland fire. The seed is sown, and there will come a reaping time.

On the 6th inst. I was called by telegram to Moline, Illinois, to a three-year-old child of Bro. and Sr. Comley. It was suffering with croup. Left it much better.

The conference year approaches its close with brightening prospects for the work in our home district. May the rich blessings of our heavenly Father's love brighten the lives of our brethren, and this chapter tell them they are not forgotten.

Yours in gospel bonds,

JEROME RUBY.

Massilon, Iowa.

Bro. Blair:—On the 19th I left Clinton to fill my appointment at this place. On the 20th I found Bro. J. S. Roth here. Bro. and Sr. Hardy are the only Saints here, and we have found a home with them and have been kindly cared for. We commenced holding meetings. Sunday the 20th, and have continued every night to the present time. The interest increases and our invitations to visit at the homes of the good people of this place show that prejudice is giving away before the truth of the gospel of Christ. Bro. Roth has had great liberty in presenting the word and has made it so plain that all are satisfied that it is the truth.

A number here have already said that they were ready for baptism but wish to wait until the ice is out of the river. We have appointments until Tuesday the 29th, and should the interest warrant shall continue the meeting.

There is some opposition but it is growing weak. One man said he could shut Bro. Roth up in three minutes, to which another replied that he would give him five dollars; another offered ten; another twenty, and so it went on until about seventy-five or a hundred dollars was offered him; but to this day he has not found three minutes time to silence Bro. Roth, and the gentlemen are very sure that they will not be called on for their money. In bonds,

WARREN TURNER.

NEWCASTLE, N. S. W., Feb. 14th.

Dear Herald:—The Saints of the Hamilton branch met last evening to hold their usual weekly prayer-meeting, and bid farewell to Bro. and Sr. T. W. Smith who leave here to night at eleven o'clock for Sydney via. New Zealand, thence for Tahiti.

While listening to the testimonies borne by the Saints, our memory was taken back to the past some twelve years ago, when our dear brother Glaud Rodger was with us in the flesh. His prophetic words were, "When Bro. T. W. Smith comes he will put all things right." Now while looking over the work and remembering the instructions we have received from him since he came amongst us, we are led to exclaim, truly he has put all things right and has taught us more perfectly the law and order of the church, which has brought us more in unity one with the other. We have been wonderfully blessed since he and Sr. Smith have been with us. We have received the word of the Lord to us individually through Sr. Smith which has caused us to rejoice and to resolve to be more faithful in the future.

The work in Australia is in a better condition now than ever before and it will now depend on us as Saints to assist to carry it on or stand aside and let others do so, for we feel that the time has come to favor Zion, and if we do not keep pace with it we shall surely be left behind. For the work must progress and none can hinder, for the word of the Lord has spoken it that many will yet obey the gospel in this land. True, Australia has been highly favored when the Master has sent such to us as Brn. C. W. Wandell and Glaud Rodger-men who died in the harness, battling for the truth to the last, who could say as St. Paul, "We have fought the good fight" etc.,-Bro. J. W. Gillen, Bro and Sr. Burton and Sr. Addie, who were Saints indeed, whom all the Saints loved and were sorry when the time came to part with. Such was the feeling when we parted with the latter at Hamilton Station that Saints can only understand, looking forward to the time when we shall meet to part no more.

Bro. Wight and wife spent a few days with us. He is on his way to Forster to conference. They will be a blessing to the Saints wherever they go. He is a powerful speaker, full of spirit and zeal for the work. They will leave good impressions behind them. At Wallsend, while speaking to the people in the open air one evenening, he felt as he had never done before; without the least exertion on his part the Spirit spoke through him to the people. The people seemed spell-bound. He silenced all opposition. Bro. Butterworth is in Victoria traveling and preaching with one of the local elders, a good young man, loved by all the Saints. Bro. Wight says he will be a preacher of great power. May all the Saints here and elsewhere endeavor to live up to their high and holy calling that they may be found worthy of an inheritance.

Your brother in Christ,

C. A. Davis.

THE NEED OF HELP.

I shall never forget the feeling I had when once climbing one of the pyramids of Egypt, when half way up, my strength failing, I feared I should never be able to reach the summit or get back again. I well remember the help given by Arab hands, drawing me on farther; and the step I could not quite make myself, because too great for my wearied frame—the little help given me, sometimes more sometimes less-enabled me to go up, step by step, until at last I reached the top, and breathed the pure air, and had a grand lookout from that lofty height. So in life's journey, we are climbing. We are feeble. Every one of Every one of us, now and then, needs a little help; and if we have risen a step higher than some other, let us reach down for our brother's hand, and help him stand beside us. And thus, joined hand in hand, we shall go on conquering, step by step, until the glorious eminence shall be gained .- Bishop Simp-

It is well we should feel as life's a reckoning, we can't make twice over; there's no real making amends in this world, any more, nor can you mend a wrong subtraction by doing your addition right.

Original Poetry.

THE GOSPEL LIGHT RESTORED.

As when creation from chaotic night Emerged resplendently and all was light, Tho' myriad years of gloom had settled fast Upon the earth, all was dispelled at last By the grand fiat of the King supreme; Honor and all dominion be to Him!

E'en so had @rkness settled o'er the world Of Christian preceptors till God unfurled The glorious banner of Redemption's sign, And o'er the horizon rose truth's star divine; As when at first God said, "Let there be light;" And lo! fair earth emerged from out Egyptian night.

The Gospel taught by Christ on earth to sinful men Was simple, the wayfarer could not err therein. "Repent ye from your sins and be baptized For their remission,"—was the Gospel prize Which Jesus taught, while gifts miraculous Mark'd everywhere that Gospel's conq'ring course.

Healing of sick, the blind restor'd to sight,
E'en dead ones raised proclaimed its wondrons might,
While unknown tongues, interpreted and given,
With prophecy, by the one Lord of heaven,
All testified to this one Gospel's truth,
In every land and clime, to age and youth.

But soon a darkness settled o'er the scene Which once was radiant in its truth serene, For, ere three centuries had fully passed, since he who of the apostles died the last, When men whose love to Jesus had grown cold, Began to barter sacred truth for sordid gold.

Since then from errors great to greater men have passed.

Churches of various creeds meanwhile heap treasures vast

Of earthly store, but lost are all the signs Which ever followed the true Gospel's lines: And gathering earth's vain treasures in their hand, Have lost the treasures of the Spirit grand.

But God in pity to our lost estate,
Hath once again declared in mercy great,—
Let there be light among the sons of men,
And my true gospel shine on earth again;"—
'Tis done;—for he who spake the everlasting word,
Himself hath both the Gospel and its gifts restored.

Composed by Elder F. R. Tubb.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE BOOK OF MORMON ON APPAREL. BOOK OF ALMA, CHAPTER I.

ALMA, a great reformer among the Nephites, of whom the angel said to Amulek, "He is a holy prophet of the Lord," says of the true church, "They did not wear costly apparel, but were neat and comely, and were liberal to all, having no respect of persons; but those that did not belong to the church did indulge in wearing costly apparel, and in idleness and babbling and strife."

In chapter two, some of the church in transgression were proud because of their fine silks. They were costly apparel and persecuted those that did not believe according to their will. They did not impart to the poor and needy, and there was great contention and malice among them, which caused Alma much sorrow.

In chapter sixteen Alma describes the Zoramites, a fallen people, wearing costly apparel, ringlets bracelets, and ornaments of gold. They thought the poor unworthy of their company, and drove them out of their church, because of the coarseness of their apparel. These gold ornamented people were very righteous in their own eyes, regular church goers once a week, worshipping in an ostentatious manner, but they discarded humble prayer meetings as not needed.

In the last chapter of the last Nephi, after the Savior had visited this land, in the two hundred and first year, some were proud, wearing costly apparel and all manner of fine pearls and fine things of the world. In a short time they began to deny the true church of Christ; an awful and darkened condition!

This world is a dreaty wilderness without the light of the true church to solace our grief, and teach us faith and knowledge of how to gain a better state of happiness. We are made in the image of God, and taught in all divine books to dress plain, neat and comely. When I see professedly religious people wearing deforming and uncomely fashions, I am reminded of those that "say in their hearts, there is no God," or, in other words, they do not revere his holy law.

Isaiah, in his twenty-ninth chapter, said that when the Book of Mormon should come, "the meek shall increase; their joy shall be in the Lord, and the poor shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel." In these promises we will rejoice. Christ says, "Blessed are the poor in spirit, who come unto me, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 5:5.

M. EATON.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo.

THE GOLDEN BIBLE.

Our enemies do us too much honor when they say "Joe Smith invented the Book of Mormon." If he, a poor ignorant youth, could have invented a system of facts as found in the records of the various books of what has sometimes been called the "Golden Bible" (and well does it merit the name!), which after sixty years of the most bitter opposition that any work has ever had to encounter—if he, I say, could invent a book that has not only stood the test of time and every opposing force, even to the martyrdom of its (supposed) author, and stands to-day upon a firmer basis than ever before, surely this was a work that was worthy of a God!

But we do not believe in Polytheism, hence we are not prepared to exalt our brother (Joseph the Seer) as high as our enemies do by denying the inspiration of the Book of Mormon, and thereby condemn themselves as guilty of a most heinous crime in putting to death a being who could do so mighty a work that even their persecution could not obliterate it, or even hinder, materially, its progress in the work it has been set to do.

But what does this book contain that is so terrible and degrading or demoralizing that it should meet with such bitter and unrelenting opposition as it has had to encounter? What impure principle has ever been found within its doctrine. What institution of good society, or righteous government has it ever been known to subvert?

Come now, ye who are bitterly denouncing this work, if it is really what you say it is, bring forth your strong reasons and condemn it. If it is such a bad thing as it has been pronounced, it does not deserve to live. Nay more, I say it will not live; for he whom this nation is willing to recognize as the Son of God has said: "Every plant that my beavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up."

Right here it might be pertinent to remind the people of this country of the saying of one Gamaliel in ancient times (at whose feet Paul was wont to sit in his youthful days, and drink in the words of wisdom that fell from his lips), "If this work be of man it will come to nought; but if it be of God, ye can not overthrow it, lest haply ye be found even to fight against God."

Let us consider for a moment the internal evidence of the Book of Mormon, and see if it is worthy of our consideration. Not only, as has been intimated, are its moral teachings irreproachable in character, but the nature of the facts therein set set forth are such that intelligent unprejudiced minds can not but see therein a remarkable evidence of genuineness and divine authenticity which can not be accounted for upon the hypothesis of its being of human origin.

Take, for instance, the statement of prehistoric American civilization. When the unlettered youth of Palmyra brought forth the remarkable statements of the Book of Mormon in this particular, the whole world was against him, and hooted at and ridiculed the idea to their hearts' content. But how is it to-day? Who would dare lift up his voice and declare that the Seer of Palmyra did not tell the truth when he said this continent had been inhabited by a civilized people before it was discovered by Columbus? Surely, no one who thinks anything of his reputation as an intelligent, well-informed person would venture to deny a fact so so well established; for the most learned and eminently posted antiquarians agree in their testimony that America was inhabited many centuries ago by a highly civilized people, who have left their monuments in undying characters as firm as the everlasting hills, and as intelligible to to the well-informed student of archaeology as the pages of a familiar book.

This work is bound to prevail; there is no question about that. The only question is whether we, like the beloved John, will hang upon the words of the Master, and inherit the greater blessing pronounced upon those who receive the word from his mouth, through his servant, or whether we, like Thomas, shall require greater demonstration of the truth before we will consent to receive it as such.

There is a blessing for even the doubting Thomases; and when the truth shall have finally conquered all opposition and overcome its last enemy, those who have stood manfully in its defense in the hottest of the fight, yea, and have laid down their lives in its defense, will be rewarded, every man according to his works. They will each receive their penny (everlasting life). But oh, how much more one man's penny will be to him, than the same amount received by another! Does not a dollar for which you have toiled hard and labored diligently seem more precions than one you have come by in any other way, no matter how honestly? Take an example of the poor widow who (though she contributed but two mites) threw more into the treasury of the Lord than all the rich Pharisees who had cast in of their abundance!

May the Lord give us faith that we may stand by the truth while it is unpopular, and endure to the end, that when the victory comes we may have it to say, that in the hour of trial and temptation we were not ashamed to be called its adherents, and now in the hour of its triumph we ask to be called its friends.

A. J. DENNIS.

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

IN THE sixteenth chapter of Acts we read a memorable story of Paul and Silas, who for preaching the gospel, were cast by magistrates into the prison and after having received many stripes, were committed to the jailor with a strict charge to keep them safely. Accordingly he thrust them into the inner prison, and made their feet fast in the stocks. At midnight Paul and Silas supported by a good testimony and also by a good conscience sang praises to their God, and the prisoners heard them; and suddenly there was a great earthquake. so that the foundations of the prison were shaken and immediately all the doors were opened and every one's chains were loosed. The keeper of the prison awakening out of his sleep and seeing the prison doors open, in the greatest distress, as might be imagined, drew his sword and would have killed himself, supposing that the prisoners had all been fled. But Paul cried with a loud voice, Do thyself no harm for we are all here. The keeper calling for a light and finding the prisoners thus freed from their bonds by the imperceptible agency of divine power, was irresistibly convinced that these men were not offenders against the law, but were martyrs for the truth. He sprang into the prison therefore and came trembling and fell down before Paul and Silas, and brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved? This text has been preached from, no doubt, from the pulpits of christendom more than any other, and ninety per cent of them are ignorant of its answer, as to what the inquiry suggests. In fact ninety nine out of every hundred will reply to the question, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved:" and then, like the grandfather's clock we read of in song, they stop there and go no

We are told that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation—Romans 1: 16—and that salvation is promised to all nations, kindred, tongues and people on condition that they become obedient to the plan laid down, viz., faith, repentance, baptism by immersion for the remission of sins and the laying on of hands for the receiving of the Holy Ghost, which is promised by the Promiser to all who become obedient to the gospel. Faith is the foundation of all Christian virtues. It is that without which it is impossible to please God. It is a full and undoubting confidence in God's word; a sincere reception of the Holy Scriptures as taught by our Savior.—John 2:9; James 2:17, 20, 24, 26.

Repentance is a sorrow for sin—a resolution to forsake sin by ceasing to do evil and learning, by God's help, to do well, and to do unto others as you would like to be done by, and living for others as well as yourselves.

By being baptized you follow the example laid down by your blessed Master, and by being buried under the liquid wave you have a remission of your sins, and retain that remission by doing your duty and trying to live properly.—Matt. 3: 6; Acts 8: 38, 39; Matt. 28: 19, 20; Mark 16: 15, 16; Acts 2: 37, 38.

Reader please accept the plan of salvation on God's terms: the scriptural plan. For if the voice of the servants of Jesus Christ, if the voice of calamities, of angels, of reason and mercy will not call men to repentance, I greatly fear that the voice of God will bring them to judgment when the chances of reformation are beyond their nower.

Earthquakes are sounding their voices in divers places. Rumors of wars are heard on every hand. The Lord Jesus with His mighty angels will shorely come in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.—2 Thess. 1:8. "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the Kingdom of God."—John 3:

It is said by some that the gospel is not adapted to the nineteenth century; that people are different now than they were in other centuries. People are different in some respects we all know, but they are not different essentially; they are just the same. The gospel was not made especially for one century, but I firmly believe that the people of the nineteenth century should be adapted to the gospel. It is not an apostle's work to fit the word of God to every nook, corner or theory of men and their beliefs; but to press the truth and teachings of Christ with such force and plainness that men's lives will be conformed to His will. Apostles are to stamp, not to overlay, or gild, or mold, but to simply preach the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. There may be times when vou will have to talk at the door of a house, or at the corner of the street, but when you preach the truth we shall be glad of the work you will do, and when you are scattered in the field we shall be glad to hear from you at all times. We shall sympathize with you in all your trials, and rejoice with you in all your successes, and our highest wish will go with you that you will be efficient teachers of the Master. It is not what we say or what we do of ourselves, but what God has said in His word that will startle sinners and console Saints. It is said of John B. Gough that he discovered that a diamond in his ring upon his hand attracted more attention from his audience than his words, and he pulled it off. Never let the truth or the cross be hidden from view by anything you wear, or do, or say. Our talents are the means, not the end of living. We can be the means of conveving the truth, and the Spirit of Truth will bear witness with our spirits when we exhort and spread the truth; and so long as the spiritual growth of the church is desirable, the spreading of the truth will be necessary. If you rattle an empty can against the trough the sheep may come expecting to eat, but they will soon learn to know that a great deal of noise does not mean turnips. Israel's sheep must be fed, and the injunction of the Master is, "Feed my sheep;" "Feed my lambs."

There is no better way of feeding than with the truth. And, depend upon it, the time is coming when the people will hunger and thirst after righteousness and the gospel truths taught by Joseph Smith the servant of the living God, and they will have to be fed.

WILLIAM STREET.

THE "SEALED BOOK."-No. v.

BY ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

HEBRAIC CIVILIZATION .- CONTINUED. "THE following chant reveals the Indians? idea of the primordial waters, above which dwelt the creative power. It is from the painted records of the Lenni-lenape."-Ibid, p. 393: "At the first there were great waters above all the land, and above the waters were thick clouds, and there was God the creator, He created vast waters, great lands, and much air and heaven. He created the sun, the moon, and stars. He caused them all to move well. By his power he made the winds to blow, purifying, and the deep waters to run off. All was made bright, and the islands were brought into being. Then again God, the creator, made the great spirits. He made also the first beings, angels and souls. Then made he a man being, the father of men. He gave him the first mother, the mother of the early born. Fishes gave he him, turtles, beasts and birds. But the evil spirit created evil beings snakes and monsters. He created vermin and annoying insects. Then were all beings friends. There being a good god, all spirits were good. The beings, the first men, mothers, wives, little spirits also. Fat fruits were the food of the beings and the little spirits. All were then happy, easy in mind, and pleased. But then came secretly on earth the snake god, the snake priest, and snake worship. Came wickedness, came unhappiness. Came then bad weather, disease and death. This was all very long ago, at our early home."—Ibid, p. 397-8.

It would be wholly improbable that the rude savages of America should have coined the above traditions without a knowledge of the Bible and the old world. The conclusion seems forced upon us to accept the relationship of the ancient people of this continent, and those of Asia

Priest says: "The Americans were equal in antiquity, civilization, and sciences, to the nations of Europe and Africa; like them the children of the Asiatic nations."—Antiquities, p, 305.

I again cull from the valuable works of Bancroft who says: "We have seen how according to the common version of the flood-myth, Coxcox and his wife Xochiquetzal were the only human beings who escaped from the great deluge which covered the face of the earth in the age of water. How, when the waters went down the ark in which they had saved themselves-the hollow trunk of a bald cypress - rested upon the peak of Culhuacan; and how the dumb children that were born to the rescued pair were taught many languages by a dove. We have also read the reputed Tarasco legend of Tezpi, which so closely resembles the biblical legend of the deluge that it can not be discussed as a native tradition at all. but must be regarded simply as the invention of some Spanish Monk who thought it his mission to show that the Hebrew traditions were familiar to the Americans. In Gautepala among the Miztecs, in Nicaraugua also there were traditions of great and destructive deluges. The Papagos tell of a mighty flood that destroyed all life upon the earth, except the hero god Montezuma and his friend the coyote, who had foretold the deluge." "The Thlinkeets relate that many persons escaped the great deluge by taking refuge in a great floating building, which, when the waters fell, grounded upon a rock, and was split in twain. From this moment men spoke in various tongues." "The Chipewyan deluge covered all the earth except the high mountain tops." "The Isthmins believed that the world was peopled by a man, who with his wife and children escaped the great flood. The Peruvians had several flood myths. One of them relates that the whole face of the earth was changed by a great deluge. All living things were destroyed except one man, a shepherd with his family and flocks."-Nat. Rac. of Pac. States, vol. 5, р. 13-16.

Ignatius Donnelly quotes from the learned Abbe, Brasseur de Bourbourg, who translated from the Aztec languages of the "Codex Chimalpopoca" the following flood legend: "This is the sun called Nahui-atl, 'four water.' Now the water was tranquil for forty years, plus twelve, and men lived for the third and fourth times. When the sun Nahui-atl came there had passed away tour hundred years, plus two ages, plus seventy years. Then all mankind was lost and drowned and found themselves changed into fish. The sky came nearer the water. In a single day all was lost, and the day Nahuixochitl, 'four flower,' destroyed all our flesh. And that year was that of ce-calli, 'one house,' and the day Nahui-atl all was lost. Even the mountains sunk into the water, and the water remained tranquil for fifty-two springs. Now at the end of the year the god Titlacahun had warned Nata and his spouse Nena, saying, 'Make no more wine of Agave, but begin to hollow out a great cypress, and you will enter into it when in the month Tozontli the water approaches the sky.' Then they entered in, and when the god had closed the door, he said, 'Thou shalt eat but one ear of maize, and thy wife one also.' But as soon as they had finished they went out, and the water remained calm, for the wood no longer moved, and, on opening it, they began to see fish. Then they lit a fire, by rubbing together pieces of wood, and they roasted fish. The gods citlallinicue and citlalatonac, instantly looking down said: 'Divine Lord, what is that fire that is making there? Why do they thus smoke the sky? At once Titlacahuan-Tezcatlipoca descended. He began to chide, saying, Who has made this fire And, seizing hold of the fish, he shaped their loins and heads, and they were transformed into dogs (chichime)." —Atlantis, p. 100-1.

Lord Kingsborough in tracing the history and tradition of the ancient dwellers of this continent, cites the native Mexican historian, who gave this as the Toltec legend of the flood: "It is found in the histories of the Toltecs that this age and first world, as they call it, lasted 1716 years; that men were destroyed by tremenduous rains and lightning from the sky, and even all the land, without the exception of anything, and the highest mountains, were covered up and submerged in water fifteen cubits (caxtolmolatli); and here they added other fables of how men came to multiply from the few who escaped from this destruction in a 'toptlipetlocali;' and this word nearly signifies a close chest; and how, after men had multiplied, they erected a very high 'zacuali,' which is to-day a tower of great height, in order to take refuge in it should the second world (age) be destroyed. Presently their languages were confused, and, not being able to understand each other, they went to different parts of The Toltecs, consisting of the earth. seven friends, with their wives, who understood the same language, came to these parts, having first passed great land and seas, having lived in caves, and having endured great hardships in order to reach this land. They wandered one hundred and four years through different parts of the world before they reached Hue Hue Tlapalan, which was in Ce Tecpatl, five hundred and twenty years after the flood."-Ixtlilxochitl Relacions, in Kingsborough's Mex. Ant., vol 9., p. 321-2.

Ixtlilxochitl was an Indian, a native of Tezcuco, a son of the queen, and the facts of his history were drawn from the archives of his family and the ancient writings of his nation. Lord Kingsborough says: "The Peruvians were acquainted with the deluge, and believed that the rainbow was the sign that the earth would not again be destroyed by water."—Mex.

Ant. vol. 8, p. 25.
And speaking of the Peruvians, Bancroft says: "They believed the rainbow was not only a passive sign that the earth would not be destroyed by a second deluge, but an active instrument to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe."-

Nat. Rac., vol. 5., p. 17.
Again he says: "Many of these flood myths are supplemented with an account of an attempt to provide against a second deluge, by building a tower of refuge, resembling more or less closely the Biblical legend of the tower of Babel."-Ibid.

p. 17.

He extends his remarks as follows: "These myths have led many writers to believe that the Americans had a knowledge of the tower of Babel, while some think that they are the direct descendants of the builders of that tower, who, after the confusion of tongues, wandered over the earth until they reached America."-

Ibid, p. 18.

Here is another tradition he gives: "The Yucatecs are said to have had a tradition that they came originally from the far east, passing through the sea, which God made dry for them. An Okanagan myth relates that they were descended from a white couple who had been sent adrift from an island in the eastern ocean, and who floated ashore on this land. The Chepewyans have a tradition that they came from a distant land where a bad people lived, and had to cross a large narrow lake filled with islands. The Algonquins preserve a tradition of a foreign origin and a sea voyage. For a long time they offered an annual thank-offering in honor of their happy arrival in America. According to Careri, the Olmec traditions relate that they came by sea from the east."-Ibid, p. 22.

Delafield says: "These quotations we consider very positive evidence of an early identity between the aboriginal race of America and the southern Asiatic and Egyptian family."—Antiquities, p. 33.

Short says of aboriginal Americans: "Believed in the flood and had traces of the tower of Babel."-North Americans of Antiquity, p. 263.

Delafield says: "A tradition exists among the native Mexicans bearing close analogy to the Semitic account of the flood, the building of the tower of Babel and its destruction."—Antiquities, p. 33.

And still more important from the same author: "Still farther and more important evidence, however, renders the point conclusive that southern Asia was the birth-place of this people, as we detect among them actual traditions of the flood. the building of Babel and the death of Abel; and from their cosmogony we think we trace farther traditions of the famine and the destruction of the cities of the plain. These historical facts stamp their origin conclusively, as they are peculiar to those who have been once residents of the country where the transactions occurred."-Ibid, p. 41.

Caleb Atwater says: "Let the reader examine similar piles of stone on the waters of the Licking, near Newark, and in the counties of Perry, Pickaway and Ross, and then ask himself whether those who raised our monuments were not originally from Asia."—See page 107 of his

In describing a manner of burial like that of the Mound Builders in Ohio, Dr. Clark says: "If there exists anything of former times which may afford evidence of antediluvian manners, it is this mode of burial which seems to mark the progress of population in the first ages after the dispersion, occasioned by the confusion of languages at Babel."-American Antiquities, p. 197.

Wood says: "The reader must first be told that among the Mandans there survived the legend of a flood which covered the earth, and from which only one man escaped in a canoe."--Uncivilized Races,

p. 1301.

On the same page he says: "The Mandans possess the legend of the bird flying to the big canoe with a leaf in its mouth, only with them the leaf is that of the willow, and not of the olive."—Ibid, p. 1301.

Hear what Mr. Cronise says: "We could furnish an almost endless number of facts to support the belief that the Indians whom the Spaniards found in California were of Asiatic origin."-Wealth of California, p. 31.

I next bring something from Ellen Russel Emerson, who says: "There is a Hindoo picture of a serpent with a human head, which accords with a traditional serpent, and perhaps with the account of the serpent of Eden."-Indian Myths, p. 41.

Tradition of Winnebago Indians in regard to creation: "Having created the earth and the grass and the trees, the Great Spirit took a piece out of his heart near which had been taken the earth and formed the fragment into a man. woman then was made, but a piece of flesh sufficed for her."—Ibid, p. 128.

"In Nicaraugua, a country where the principal language was a Mexican dialect, it was believed that ages ago the world was destroyed by a flood in which the most part of mankind perished."-Ibid, p.

A Papago myth is thus given: "The Great Spirit made the earth and living things before he made man." He is then represented as making man out of the clay of the earth. "Those first days of the world were happy and peaceful days. But an awful destruction ended this happy age. A great flood destroyed all flesh wherein was the breath of life." The account then gives the saving of two creatures by means of a boat; then the repeopling of the earth, and then says: "The Montezuma hardened his heart, and collecting all his tribes to aid him, set about building a house that should reach up to heaven itself." The account then proceeds to say that the projected enterprise was carried on until the building reached a great height, and then the Almighty launched forth his thunders and lightnings and destroyed it."—Ibid, pp.

75-77. Concerning that wonderful character, Votan, Bancroft says: "Votan, another mysterious personage closely resembling Quetzalcoatl in many points, was the supposed founder of the Maya civilization. He is said to have been a descendant of Noah, and to have assisted at the building of the tower of Babel. After the confusion of tongues he led a portion of the dispersed people to America."-Nat. Rac., vol. 5, p. 27.

From the religious idea of the Quiches of Guatemala, Bancroft gives the following: "And the heaven was framed and all the signs therof set in their angle and alignment, and its boundaries fixed toward the four winds by the Creator and Former, and Mother and Father of life and existence-he by whom all move and breathe, the Father and Cherisher of the peace of nations, and of the civilization of his people—he whose wisdom has projected the excellence of all that is on the earth, or in the lakes or in the sea. Behold the first word and the first discourse. was as yet no man, nor any animal, nor bird, nor fish nor crawfish, nor any pit, nor ravine, nor green herb, nor any tree; nothing was but the firmament. The face of the earth had not yet appeared. Only the peaceful sea and all the face of the heaven. There was nothing yet joined together, nothing that clung to anything else; nothing that balanced itself and made the least rustling, that made a sound in the heaven. There was nothing that stood up; nothing but the quiet water, but the sea, calm and alone in its boundaries; nothing existed; nothing but immobility and silence in the darkness, in the night."—Ibid, vol. 3. p. 44.

Bancroft gives the following as one of the Mexican traditions: "When the sun, or Age, Nahui-Atle came, there had passed already four hundred years; then came two hundred years, then seventy and six, and then mankind were lost and drowned and turned into fishes. The waters and the sky drew near each other; in a single day all was lost. But before the flood began, Titlacahuan had warned the man Nata and his wife Nena, saying: "Make now no more pulque, but hollow out to yourselves a great cypress into which ye shall enter, when, in the month Tozoztli, the waters shall near the sky. Then they entered into it; and when Titlacahuan had shut them in, he said to to the man: "Thou shalt eat but a single ear of maize and thy wife but one also."—Ibid, p. 70.

"It is a very remarkable fact," says Alfred Maury, "that we find in America traditions of the deluge coming infinitely nearer to that of the Bible and the Chaldean religion than among many people of the Old World. It is difficult to suppose that the emigration that certainly took place from Asia into North Ameica by the Kourile and Aleutian islands, and still does so in our day, should have brought in these memories, since no trace is found of them among those Mongol or Siberian populations which were fused with the natives of the New World. The attempts that have been made to trace the origin of Mexican civilization to Asia, have not as yet led to any sufficiently conclusive facts. Besides, had Buddhism, which we doubt, made its way into America, it could not have introduced a myth

not found in its own scriptures. The cause of these similarities between the diluvian traditions of the nations of the New World and that of the Bible remains therefore unexplained."—Atlantis, p. 98.

I am not so over particular as to how the tradition of the flood was transmitted to the tribes of America, but have an anxiety to prove by these strange traditions the Asiatic origin of the wide spread Indian nations of both North and South America. As to the great value of tradition, it may be proper here to quote the following. Bancroft says: "Of the value of mythology it is unnecessary here to speak. Never was there a time in the history of philosophy when the character, customs, and beliefs of aboriginal man, and everything pertaining to him, were held in such high esteem by scholars as at present. As the ultimate of human knowledge is approached, the inquirer is thrown back upon the past; and more and more the fact becomes apparent, that what is, is but a reproduction of what has been; that in the earlier stages of human developement may be found the counterpart of every phase of modern social life. Higher and more heterogeneous as are our present systems of politics and philosophy, every principle when tracked to its beginning, proves to have been evolved-not originated. As there never yet was found a people without a language, so every nation has its mythology, some popular and attractive form for preserving historical tradition and presenting ethical maxims; and as by the range of their vocabularies we may follow men through all the stages of their progress in government, domestic affairs and mechanical arts, so by beliefs expressed we may determine at any given epoch in the history of a race their ideal and intellectual condition. Without the substance there can be no shadow, without the object there can be no name for it; therefore when we find 'anguage without a word to denote property or chastity, we may be sure that the wealth and women of the tribe are held in common; and when in a system of mythology certain important metaphysical or æsthetic ideas and attributes are wanting, it is evident that the intellect of its composers has not yet reached beyond a certain low point of conception. It is now a recognized principle of philosophy, that no religious belief, however crude, nor any historical tradition, however absurd, can be held by the majority of a people for any considerable time as true, without having in the beginning some foundation in fact. Something there must have been in every legend, in every tradition, in every belief, which has ever been entertained by the majority of a people, to recommend it to minds of men in the first instance. Error absolute can not exist. False doctrine, without an amalgam of verity, speedily crumbles; and the more monstrous the falsity, the more rapid its decomposition. Therefore we may be sure that there never was a myth without a meaning; that mythology is not a bundle of ridiculous fancies invented for vulgar amusement; that there is not one of these stories, no matter how absurd, which was not founded in fact, which did not once hold a significance."—Nat. Rac., vol. 3, pp. 15-17.

Some of the above statements are worthy of more than a passing notice or consideration, and might be retained in memory to good advantage upon more than one subject. Lord Bacon said, nearly three centuries ago: "And though I have well weighed and considered all this, and thoroughly seen into the levity which the mind indulges for allegories and illusions, yet I can not but retain a high value for the ancient mythology."

To be continued.

Selections.

PAGAN LEGEND OF JESUS.

Publius Lentulus, assumed by some to have been proconsul of Judea prior to Herod, is reported to have seen the Saviour, and to have written the following letter to the Roman Senate:

At this time appeared a man who is still living and endowed with might and power, his name is Jesus Christ. His disciples call him the Son of God, others regard him as a powerful Prophet, he raises the dead to life and heals the sick of every description of infirmity and disease. This man is of lofty stature and well proportioned, his countenance severe and virtuous so that he inspires beholders with feelings of both fear and love. The hair of his head is of the color of wine, and without radiance, but it descends from the ears to shoulders in shining curls. From the shoulders the hair flows down the back divided into two portions, after the manner of Nazarenes. His forehead is clear and without wrinkle, his face from blemish and slightly tinged with red, his physiognomy noble and gracious. The nose and mouth are faultless. His beard is abundant, the same color as his hair and forked. His eyes are blue and brilliant. In reproving or chastening he is awe inspiring; in exhorting and teaching his speech is gentle and caressing. His countenance is maryelous in seriousness and grace. He has never once been seen to laugh, but many have seen him weep. He is slender in person, his hands are straight and long, his arms beautiful. Grave and solemn in his discourse, his language is simple and quiet. In appearence he is the most beautiful of the children of men.

THE SUN AS A CURATIVE AGENT.

Court the sun, if you are one of the unhappy ones who lie awake o' nights. The very worst soporfic is laudanum, and the very best sunshine. Therefore it is very plain that poor sleepers should pass as many hours as possible in the sunshine, and as few as possible in the shade. Many women are martyrs, and yet they do not know it. They shut the sunshine out of their houses and their hearts, they wear vails, they carry parasols, they do all that is possible to keep off the subtlest and yet most potent influence which is intended to give them strength and beauty and cheerfulness. Is it not time to change this, and so get color and roses in their pale cheeks, strength in their weak backs and courage in their timid souls?

Conserence Minutes.

VICTORIA.

The above conference was held at the Saints' church, January 5th and 6th, at Hastings, Victoria, Australia. Called to order by Elder Jones. Moved that Bro. T. W. Smith preside at conference, assisted by Bro. J. W. Wight. Moved that Brn. McGurk and Trembath act as secretaries in absence of district secretary. The duties of those assembled in conference was stated by Elder T. W. Smith. Statistical reports: Queens-ferry, no change. Leopold, no change. Hastreport: Balance last report, £61 6s. 6d. Received since, £9 19s. 6d. Expenditures, £5 12s. 11d. Balance £65 13s. 1d. Reports from the various branches and other officers convey a favorable impression of the work being done. Moved that Elder W. J. Trembath's name be submitted to General Conference for appointment in the Australian mission, and that he be financially sustained meantime. Moved that Bro. J. F. Burton be appointed delegate to General Conference to represent this district. Movement ed that in future, conference be held every four months, viz., May, September and January. Vote of thanks was given to Bro. Rennie for erecting platform in church. District officers, president of mission and all church authorities were sustained. Dedicatory services, conducted by Brn. Smith and Wight, were held on Sunday afternoon, after which Elder McGurk, president of building committee gave a short history of the rise and progress of the church in Victoria. Officers present, I apostle, I seventy, 7 elders, 3 priests, I teacher. Adjourned to Queensferry, Saturday, May 4th, at 10 a. m.

[To this may be added some items reported by Elder T. W. Smith as follows: "Minutes of previous conference read and corrected in regard to sustaining Elder Trembath in the field, financially, also in the appointment of Elders E. G. Jones and E. McGurk as circumstances permit; that the president of conference be requested to write to the Minister of Public Instruction for permission to use the State Schools by the ministry of the church."—Ed.]

CENTRAL TEXAS.

Conference convened with the Elmwood branch, March 16th, E. W. Nunley president. Branch reports: Elkhart no change, Elmwood 30. 5 baptized, 10 removed, 7 expelled, 2 died; Texas Central 30. 14 removed, 4 expelled; Lone Pine 20, 1 baptized; Cooks Point (new) 26 Elders reported: J. W. Bryan, I. N. Roberts, L. H. Ezzell, H. L. Thompson, S. W. Simmons, E. W. Nunley baptized 11. Priests: C. C. Holcombe, F. C. Gough. Bishop's agent's report: Due agent last report $2 15, received since $131 50, paid out $140 60, due agent $9 10. District officers were sustained. I. N. Roberts was elected delegate to General Conference. A petition was sent to General Conference to send A. J. Moore back to this mission the coming year also as many others as they may see proper. Adjourned to meet with the Elkhart branch, August 9th. A motion carried that a Reunion be held at Cook's Point, beginning July 5th. 1889 Preaching by Elders I. N. Roberts, L. H. Ezzell and E. W. Nunley. Adjourned.

POTTAWATTAMIE.

Conference convened at Council Bluffs, Iowa, February 23d, H. N. Hansen presiding. T. Scott secretarv. Branch reports: Council Bluffs 178; North Star 76, I baptized, I received; Hazeldell 39, I died, I removed, I marriage; Crescent City 79, 2 ordinations. I marriage. Reports of Elders: J. A. Davis baptized 2, W. E. Peak, H. N. Hansen baptized 3. J. P. Carlisle, J. Carlisle baptized I, A. Hall has acted as Bishop's agent, C. A. Beebe, F. Peterson baptized 4, W. Gess, J. Evans, Bro. Loomis baptized 3, Bro. Casterson, Bro. Jones, R. McKinzie, Bro. Duel. Moved and seconded that we proceed to elect delegates for the April Conference. The following were elected for delegates to General Conference: C. A. Beebe, H. N. Hansen, Robert McKinzie, W. E. Peak, D. K. Dodson. H. N. Hansen was sustained district president. Andrew Hall was sustained Bishop's agent and Thos. Scott secretary. Bishop's agent's report: On hand October 25th when last reported $1930, receipts $539.62, disbursed $516 25, on hand $23.37. Adjourned to Council Bluffs, Saturday, June 29th.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Conference called by A. H. Parsons March 9th, at South Rawdon chapel. The president announced the conference open for business. Bro. Robinson was invited to take part. Sr. Elmira Wood was elected clerk pro. tem. Reports were read as follows: H. H. Robinson had labored in Port Greville, Parrsboro, Lakeland, Canning, Delhaven, Lockhartville, Hillsdale, Ashdale and Mt. Uniack Mines; baptized 3; assisted to confirm 4; blessed I child; administered to several, etc. fred Wood, teacher, visited all the Saints in this branch except two, and found them, in most ca-ses, in good working order. Felt well in the work and wishes to continue. A. H. Parsons reported having labored in all the above named places (except Parrsboro,) and four others. This branch was in better working order than when he came; still there is good opportunity for im-provement. Report of South Rawdon branch read and approved: 20 members, 2 received by letter, I dead, I expelled. H. H. Robinson was chosen president of the district, and Sr. E. Wood secretary. General church authorities were sustained. Conference reaffirmed that E. C. Briggs represent them at the General Conference; if not, conference to appoint a delegate for this mission. Conference instructs the delegate to vote for the adoption of the epistle of the twelve. Preaching by A. H. Parsons. Dedication services at 11a. m; sermon delivered by H. H. Robinson, prayer by A. H. Parsons. Preaching at 7 p. m. by A. H. Parsons. Adjourned to call of president.

WELSH MISSION.

Conference of the above mission convened at Aberaman, Wales. October 28th, 1888, at 10 a.m., J. T. Davis president, D. Lewis clerk. The minutes of last conference were read and approved. Eastern district was reported: Branches 6, seventies 1, elders 17, priests 8, teachers 1, deacons 2, died 1, emigrated 1. members 55, total 84, W. Morris president. Western district: Branches 2, elders 11, priests 4, deacons 2, baptized 3, members 50, total 70; D. Lewis president. Bishop's agent's account was reported: Balance last report £1 7s, received since £5 14s 0½d, paid out £6 10s 0½d, in hand 11s. Book account was £6 10s 0½d, in hand 11s. reported: In hand when last reported £14 9s 10½d, received since £1 184 11½d, paid out £8 os 71/2d, in hand £8 8s 21/2d. Proposed and passed that brethren J. T. Davis, J. R. Gibbs and D. Lewis would form a board of publication for At 2 p.m. address by the president. The authorities of the church were sustained; also J. T. Davis president of the Welsh mission, W. Morris president of Eastern district. D. Lewis president of the Western district, J. E. Hughes for North Wales, and all the elders, priests, dea-cons and members. The gifts of the Spirit were enjoyed. At 6 p.m. preaching by J. Jenkins and E. A Davis. Adjourned to meet at Llanelly, Whitsunday and Whitmonday.

SOUTHERN INDIANA.

Conference convened March 9th at the Pleasant Ridge branch, M. R. Scott president, V. D. Baggerly secretary. Branches: West Fork; Olive; Union i death; Amanda; Byrnville 10: 3 bap tized; Raceville; Eden; New Trenton and Pleasant Ridge not reported. Elders: M. R. Scott (baptized 5), L. F. Daniels (baptized 1), V. D. Baggerly Priests: S. Grover and J. Hyde. D. Baggerly. Priests: S. Grover and J. Hyde. Teachers: G. Jenkins, I. Sandage. Resolved that the branches of this district be represented by delegate vote to the district conference, and that each branch shall have a vote for every 6 members or fraction thereof. Resolved that Wheeler and G. Jenkins labor in Harrison and Floyd countles; that S. Grover and S. Hyde labor in Crawford and Perry counties; that J. Fisher and W. Marshall labor in Jefferson and Ripley counties; J. Chappelow in Johnson county, L. F. Daniels in Davis and adjoining counties and that all elders, priests, teachers and deacons report either in person or by letter to next conference. Resolved that we request General Conference to continue Elders V. D. Baggerly and M. R. Scott in this district and as many more as they can. General authorities of the church were sustained; also M. R. Scott as president of the district and V. D. Baggerly as secretary until next conference. Adjourned to Olive branch, near New Marion, Ripley county, Indiana, June 8th, at 10 a.m.

PHILADELPHIA.

Conference convened at Brooklyn, N. Y., Saturday February 23rd, J. Squire president, H. H. Bacon secretary. Branches: Brooklyn 53, 2 baptized, 1 removed; Philadelphia 47, 1 died; Hornerstown and New Park not reported. Bishop's agent, A. Cameron reported: Balance last report $130.08, received since $68.55, total $198.63 credited, by W. H. Kelley $116.00, postage $1.00, total $117.00, balance $81.63. Audited and found correct. District treasurer, H. H. Bacon reported balance last conference $1.67, received from Brooklyn branch 65 cents, received from Philadelphia branch $2.05, expenses to conference $4.00, balance 37 cents. The report of the committee on reunion the coming summer in Brooklyn was received and committee continued with power to act. Elders reported: S. Stone, G. Potts, Joseph Squire. Priest J. Potts reported his labors as acting deacon of Brooklyn branch, and H. H. Bacon as president of the Philadelphia branch. A letter of testimony was read from sister Vincent of Bridgeport, Connecticutt. On motion Bro Joseph Squire was sustained as president, H. H. Bacon as secretary and treasurer, and A. Cameron as Bishop's agent. On motion Brn. W. H. Kelley and E. L. Kelley were re-quested to represent this district at the General It was the unanimous wish of the Conference. Saints that Bro. W. H. Kelley be returned to this mission. On motion the secretary was instructed to notify the members residing in the district holding letters of removal to deposit them with the nearest branch or they would be placed on the list of scattered members. Resolved that we sustain all the authorities of the church. Preaching by W. H. Kelley. Adjourned to meet at Brooklyn, Saturday, August 24th. The New Park statistical report was received by the secretary after conference showing an increase of two by baptism.

Miscellaneous.

DIED.

Joy.—At Dennisport, Mass., after a painful illness, March 15th, 1889 Sadie F. Joy, the only and loving child of Bro. Frank and sister Lydia D. Joy; aged 24 years, 6 months and 17 days. Funeral Sunday, March 17th, in the Saints' chapel, with sermon by Elder John Smith. Every available seat and all the standing room in the chapel were occupied, and many were unable to gain admittance and were forced to return home or stand out in a driving rain storm. The speaker was favored by one of those special feasts of liberty which the Lord alone bestows.

BULLARD.—At her son in-law's home, Bro J. A. Smith, near Lenox, Iowa, March 18th, 1889, Sr. Elizabeth Bullard, of consumption. She was born in Leeds county. Upper Canada, in 1810, and was 78 years, 9 months and 10 days old. She was married to Daniel Bullard November 14th, 1827, in Leeds county, Canada; was baptized into the Church of Latter Day Saints January 1st, 1837, by Elder John E. Page, and since has always borne a strong testimony to the truth of the work. For three years she has been a sufferer, and for the last seven months was confined to her bed, bearing all with Christian forti-In her last hours she testified it was well with her, and that she would come forth in the resurrection of the just, and besought us all to meet her. None of her faith being present to preach her funeral sermon, she requested it should be preached in the Des Moines Valley branch by Bro. William Nirk, or some one appointed by him. Not knowing his address I put her request in the Herald. A friend of hers, a Methodist brother, by request read and prayed at the house. She was laid in the Creston Cemetery where one son and a number of grandchildren rest. There we were met by a number of mourning friends with a Congregationalist minister who with a few appropriate remarks repeated a portion of the fourteenth chapter of St. John and offered prayer. We left her to await the resurrection of the just.

HART.-Near Angola, Kansas, May Belle Hart, March 2d, 1889, aged 23 years 5 months 27 days. She was baptized by brother J. T. Davis, March 23d, 1884 She leaves her companion, three tender children, a loving father and mother, a sister, seven brothers and many friends to mourn her death. Although she was backward in public worship, she was a strong believer in secret devotion; a faithful wife and true saint. The example she set before her household and companions assures us that her spirit is with the saints immortal.

Plucked like a tender blossom in the spring of life, She has filled her mission in this world of strife. And her life being a model to almost all, She was ready and answered to our Master's call.

BISHOP'S APPOINTMENT.

In accordance with the recommendation of the recent conference, held in Tennessee and Kentucky district, recommending Bro. Peter B. Seaton as my agent for said district, I therefore appoint him as such for said district and recommend him to the Saints that they may aid him by their prayers and means.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Presiding Bishop.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

Be it known that Elder J. L. Pride is not a licensed minister of the Reorganized Church, but is now under serious charge for unchristian-W. W. BLAIR, like conduct. Of the First Presidency.
LAMONI, Iowa, March 26th, 1889.

NOTICE.

Information wanted that will help us to find Sister Jennie Peat, formerly of Fall River, Mass. When last heard from she was in Rhode Island. Any one knowing where she is located will confer a favor by corresponding with John Smith, 773 Purchase street, New Bedford, Massachusetts.

BLUE GRASS LEAGUE.

As provided in articles of association the annual meeting of the League will be held on the second Wednesday of April. 1889, it being the 10th day of April next. Place of meeting, Superior Court Room, Creston, Iowa; time, ten o'clock a. m. Every city, town or township having an organization such as a "Business Men's Association," "Farmers' Club," "Board of Trade," or like organization, having for its object the material up-building of its locality, and having paid into the treasury of the League $25, and $15 additional for each 500 of its inhabitants (excluding first 500 according to state census of 1885) and consented to the rules and regulations of the League, is entitled to send two delegates to the annual meeting. At this date the membership consists of Corning, Villisca, Red Oak and Creston. Assurances have been received from Clarinda, Shenandoah, Leon, Osceola, Murray. Afton, Glenwood, Fontanelle, Farragut, Greenfield, Mt. Ayr, Conway, Lenox and Bedford, that before the annual meeting their quota of money will be in the hands of W. W. Ellis treasurer of Villisca. There is still time for towns that have not organized to do so if action is promptly taken. It now seems probable that many villages and towns will organize and select delegates who will bring the membership fee to the meeting. For benefit of those who have not seen the articles of association it is stated that they provide for an executive committee composed of one person from each county joining the league. The committee as it now stands is as follows: W. S. Johnson of Decatur county, C. A. Lisle, Page; W. W. Ellis, Montgomery; A. M. Beymer, Adams; M. A. Raney, Adair, and J. B. Harsh, Union. Where there are two or more towns in a county which join the League the organizations of such towns should League the organizations of such towns should meet together and select a vice president for the county who by virtue of his said office becomes a member of the executive committee. All the towns and counties of Southwest Iowa are earnestly invited to join the League. The question may be asked what counties are considered as embraced in the blue grass region of Southwest-ern Iowa. The answer is, any county that can furnish evidence that by the use of the tame grasses, for early spring, summer, fall and winter pastures the feeding season for live stock can be profitably reduced to 65 days, or less, in said county. The following counties are specially invited to be present at the approaching meeting: Adams, Adair, Appanoose, Clark, Cass, Decatur, Adams, Adair, Appanoose, Clark, Cass, Decatur, Fremont, Madison, Lucas, Montgomery, Mills, Page, Pottawattamie, Taylor, Union, Ringgold, Warren and Wayne. The design of the League is to advertise to the world the unexcelled advantages of soil, climate, water, natural resources and productions of Southwest Iowa to the end that amigration from the older states may be a source. that emigration from the older states may be attracted to this region. The organization was effected on February 26th, 1889, and already much has been done, but it is confidently expected that at the April meeting the whole of the territory to be benefitted by the movement will be enlisted in the enterprise. It is hoped that work will begin right after the annual meeting. Come and help organize, remembering the plan is to advertise Southwest Towa as a whole, and unless each locality does its share the project will be abandoned. We have the best country under the sun—let's let folks know it. C. A. Lisle, of Clarinda, secretary, J. B. Harsh, of Creston, president.

PATRIOT AT GENERAL CONFERENCE.

We have secured Elder R. M. Elvin to represent the Patriot at the April Conference. He will furnish all with sample copies and bills, and will take subscriptions. The design of the Patri of is the reflection of truth, the commendation of virtue and patriotism.—in short, to do good.

LAMBERT BRO'S, Pub's...

6apr2t

LAMONI, Iowa.

---: A Family Newspaper :---THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT Provides its readers weekly with 56 COLUMNS

Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thoroughly acquainted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per vear.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.

TO ELDERS, PRIESTS, AND OTHERS.

TO all persons sending us the names of two PERSONS as subscribers to the INDEPENDENCE GAZETTE for one year, with the cash, we will send, prepaid, a copy of the "Elders" Diary." The subscription price of the Gazette is $1 a year.

We want Agents everywhere, male and female, and will pay good cash commission. Write us for particulars LUFF & CRICK.

36jan LUFF & CRICK.

Independence, Mo.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

ESTATE AGENTS,

West Lexington Street.

INDEPENDENCE, - MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

SABBATH SC !OOL BOOKS.

Compendium of Faith, for higher classes, bound in sprinkled Leather, each	$1.00
Question Book, for intermediate classes, each 25c.,	75
per dozen	2.50

D. F. NICHOLSON, Cashier. ROBERT WINNING. Pres't. FARMERS' BANK of LAMONI Will attend to any Business for Non-Residents entrusted to our care. Interest Allowed on Time Deposits. A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM: Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible. BY A. J. MAPES. Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo. AUTUMN LEAVES. Published monthly for the Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Price per year - - -M. Walker, Editor and Publisher. ADDRESSES.
J. W. Wight, Queensferry, Victoria, Australia.
T. W. Smith, Papetee, Tahiti, via San Francisco. PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE -) by the (-Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA, And sent Free of Postage at prices named. HOLY SCRIPTURES. (Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.) BOOK OF MORMON. DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.
 Sprinkled sheep, or library
 1 25

 Imitation Morocco
 1 50
 SAINTS' HARP-HYMN BOOK. Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges ...... 25 Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 1 50 JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET: History of the Reorganized Church, and Autobiography of Joseph Smith. This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith. A complete history of the church up to 1880. JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND HIS PROGENITORS. Leather binding...... 1 00 HESPERIS. Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy VOICE OF WARNING And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the latter day work. In paper covers; twelve for $1.....each 10 Limp cloth covers, each ..... JOSEPH THE SEER: His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the TRACTS.

No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen per hundred	20
per hundred	50
No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; dozen	05
per hundred	40
No 4 - Pritomo of Poith and Doding - Pal-	20
No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.
dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000.1	75
No. 5.—The Gospelprice the same as No	. 4.
No. 5.—The Gospelprice the same as No No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Sub-lects. Fre-requisites and Design—and Who Shall Administer: 250 per dog por 100 1	75
Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100.1 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz.
with their can be baved; per doz.	05
per hundred	40
No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; per doz.	25
per hundred1	75
No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Script-
ural Standpoint; per doz. 30c., per 1002 No. 10.—The Narrow Way; doz. 15c., 1001	25
No. 10.—The Narrow Way: doz 15c 100 1	10
No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz	30
nor hundred
per hundred	25
No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy
per dozen 25c., per hundred1	65
No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen.	25
per hundred1	75
No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen	05
per hundred	40
per hundred No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Te-	20
net of the Church - non do- 900 100	An
net of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001 No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-	40
10. 11.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-nce and Presidency of the Church; doz	25
per hundred1	75
No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz.	15
per hundred1	10
per hundred
Christ, under the Apostleship, and under the American mor dozon 200 mar 100 1	110
the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen	40
10. 21. Titum by three witnesses; dozen	03
per hundred	15
No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen	15
per hundred1	10
No. 23.—Baptism: per dozen 20c. 1001	25
No. 24.—The Kingdom of God: doz.5c., 100	40
I No. 29.—Laving on of Hands: doz. bc., itsl.	40
No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House;
1 1 1 1	40
l per dozen ac. per annarea	43.17
per dozen 5c., per hundred No. 27—The Sabbath Question: per doz	40 25
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz	25
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz. per hundred	25 40 40
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz. per hundred	25 40 40
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per dozper hundred	25 40 40
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25 50
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz. per hundred 11. 1  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. per dozen 15c., per hundred. 1  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit. same price No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred. 1  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen. Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25 50
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz. per hundred 11.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. per dozen 15c., per hundred. 12.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit. same price No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred. 12.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen. Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100. An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents. COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25 50
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz. per hundred 11.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. per dozen 15c., per hundred. 12.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit. same price No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred. 12.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen. Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100. An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents. COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25 50 15
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred1  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25 50
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 . 4. 40 25 50 15
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4. 40 25 50 15
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4. 40 25 50 15
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4. 40 25 50 15
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4. 40 25 50 15
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred	25 40 10 10 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 10 10 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 10 10 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4. 40 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4.40 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4.40 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4.40 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 .4.40 25 50 15 75 the and the
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 50 50
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 50 00 50
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 50 00 50
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz  per hundred	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 75 50 00 00 00
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  same price No.  No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen.  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100.  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in.  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen.  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen.  MISCELLANEOUS.  The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages.  I Josephus, complete, library leather.  Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes.  Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols.  Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated). 1	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 50 00 50 00 80
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen  MISCELLANEOUS.  The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 50 00 50 00 80
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  some price No.  No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen.  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100.  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in.  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen.  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen.  MISCELLANEOUS.  The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages.  I Universalism Against Itself; 336 pages.  I Josephus, complete, library leather.  3 Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes.  4 Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols.  4 Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one.  4 The Koran, library leather.  Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from a. D.  1 till 1854. cloth boards, 5 vols.  10	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  some price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen.  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in.  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery a Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen.  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen.  MISCELLANEOUS.  The Problem of Human Life Here and Here- after, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages.  I Universalism Against Itself; 336 pages.  I Josephus, complete, library leather.  3 Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Em- pire, cloth boards, 5 volumes.  4 Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols. in one.  4 The Koran, library leather.  Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from a. D.  1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols.  10 The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pam-	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the and the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred	25 40 40 10 25 50 15 75 the third the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz. per hundred 1	25 40 40 10 .4.40 25 50 15 75 the dathe 50 00 00 00 00 00 75
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  same price No.  No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection  5c. each, per dozen.  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100.  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in.  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 3c. each, per dozen.  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen.  MISCELLANEOUS.  The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages.  Josephus, complete, library leather.  Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes.  Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols.  Hollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one.  4 Baldwin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one.  1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols.  1 The Ecclesiastical History, from a. D.  1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols.  10 The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Cassarea and Palestine.  Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1  Bible Text Book.	25 40 40 10 4.40 25 50 15 75 the end the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  same price No.  No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen.  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100.  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in.  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 3c. each, per dozen.  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen.  MISCELLANEOUS.  The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages.  Josephus, complete, library leather.  Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes.  Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols.  Baldwin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one.  4 Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one.  4 The Koran, library leather.  Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from a. D.  1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols.  10 The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Casarea and Palestine.  Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1  Apocryphal New Testament.	25 40 40 10 .4.40 25 50 15 75 the end the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 75 00 65
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon.  per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred	25 40 40 10 4.40 25 50 15 75 the tind the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 75 00 65 60
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz.  per hundred.  No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100  No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. per dozen 15c., per hundred.  No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  so, Kirtland Temple Suit.  same price No.  No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred.  Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen.  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100.  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in.  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 3c. each, per dozen.  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen.  MISCELLANEOUS.  The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages.  Josephus, complete, library leather.  Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes.  Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols.  Baldwin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one.  4 Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one.  4 The Koran, library leather.  Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from a. D.  1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols.  10 The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Casarea and Palestine.  Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1  Apocryphal New Testament.	25 40 40 10 .4.40 25 50 15 75 the end the 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 75 00 65

THE SAINTS' HERALI

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord: for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One Wife nd Concubines HE SHALL HAVE None."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEE. WHEN EITHER IS AT LIEBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 830, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36. - Whole No. 830

Lamoni, Iowa, April 13, 1889

No. 15.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,
Every Saturday, Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express. Entered as second class matter at Lagnoni Post Office.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Lamoni, Iowa, April 13, 1880

GOOD THINGS IN UTAH.

Now that so much is being said and done against the evils of the Utah Mormons, it is time to stop and enquire after the good things found among them; for certain it is that there are many excellencies to be noted in their history ever since, and even before, they entered upon the "salt land and not inhabited."

Their devotion to their religious convictions equals in intensity that of the ancient Jews and Christians, and is a repetition of that seen among the Vaudois of Piedmont, the Huguenots of France, the Covenanters of Scotland, the Quakers, the early Methodists and other bodies of ardent spirited dissenters and reformers.

No one at all acquainted with their history will deny that the rank and file. (whatever else may be said of their leaders), are heartily sincere in their religious and social sentiments and think they are doing God's service in any and all their ministrations and practices.

A poor people as they were from 1846 to 1860, would not have braved the hardships and dangers incident to crossing sea and land in the most humble and forbidding manner, making a thousand miles' journey over an almost rainless, treeless desert, if they were not actuated by a high moral purpose and sustained by sentiments bordering upon divine inspiration. Nor is it the work of base, ignorant, and vicious hearted people to build up hamlets, towns, and cities such as are found throughout Utah, and make at least tolerable provision for the poor among them.

The Utah Mormons have done not a little in the way of education, yet had they built fewer temples, and more numerous and extended institutions of learning, it would have been more to their credit and real profit. But this temple building speaks volumes for the zeal and integrity of those who furnish the means, even if it is fanatical and founded in the craft of bad bly industrious and persevering. Their high order. They are comparatively a temperate people so far as using intoxicants and narcotics (such as spiritous liquors and tobacco), are concerned. Even tea and coffee find no place with some, on religious grounds. And yet, not a few among them give a loose rein to their appetites in this direction.

As a body the Utan Mon....

There is a fair and commendable measure of civil and social order among the people. And aside from their evasion and resistance of the law against plural marriage and its outgrowths, a comparison between the Utah Mormons and the citizens of other territories results largely in their favor.

Brigham Young's was an iron ruleeverything had to bend to his will, in a general way, till about 1869. After that he rapidly lost power over the masses.

It was to his personal interest, every way, to have the people industrious, frugal, temperate, and orderly. His teachings ran largely in this direction, instead of on religious matters as set forth in the sacred records, and it is claimed by those who lived there from the first settlement of the territory that, at times, he and his co-adjutors used very arbitrary and lawless methods to enforce his will and make it sovereign. It was said and sung that,

"Brigham Young, he is the lion of the Lord He rules his people by the power of his word."

While this kind of rule resulted in a forced quietness and submission on the part of the masses, it robbed them at the same time of their individuality, agency, and inherent manhood, and made them the blind followers of a selfish dictator, whose personal will was their supreme law.

The Utah Mormons have accomplished much good throughout all their mountain country; but when one stops to think what more might have been done had Brigham and his followers kept clear of polygamy and its like, used the means put in temples in building up educational and manufacturing interests after having first sent out the gospel as found in the sacred books of the church to all quarters, what has been accomplished for good seems comparatively insignificant. No one could ask for better opportunities than Brigham and his followers had to found and build up a community, notwithstanding the country in which they located was new: for no sooner had they got fairly located in Utah than they were largely aided by the gold seekers and emigrants to the Pacific coast, Montana and other western and northern localities. Then came the Mormon war, then the late civil war and Indian wars, then railroad building from the Missouri River to the Golden Gate with branches running north through Utah, Idaho and Montana, also south and east through Utah and Colorado, all bringing wealth to Utah. To this add To this add the opening out of mines in Utah, Nevada, Idaho and Montana, including the various coal fields in Utah, Wyoming and Colorado and it will be readily seen that the Utah Mormons have had rare opportunities to increase in worldly wealth and become rich in temporal matters. So that, however hard and unpromising their beginnings were in Utah, splendid opportunities came to them in good time and wealth poured in upon them in great abundance. It is true that this wealth lodged, largely, in the hands of Brigham Young and a few others, yet the most of the rank and file of the people, by their industry, temperance, frugality and perseverance have wrought nobly and well and secured homes, some attaining a competency. Had the money squandered in building temples, fighting Congress and United States officials in the interest of polygamy, etc., etc., and in various speculations of Brigham Young which met with disaster, been spent in building up genuine gospel work. education and manufacturing interests, Utah to-day would be far superior to what it now is, her people far more prosperous, united and happy, and her influence for good a mighty pow-We should readily credit er in the land. the Utah Mormons for all the good they have done and treat their short-comings with due forbearance and moderation.

EBENEZER ROBINSON.

In A late Return Mr. Robinson insinuates that the writer of an editorial in the HER-ALD for the 9th ult., entitled "Ehenezer Robinson" was not actuated by a good spirit when writing it, and he expresses the opinion that Joseph Smith was not the writer of the document. In the latter he is correct, and as to the spirit which prompted said editorial, all must judge for themselves. We regret having occasion to write of these matters again.

If Mr. Robinson has not yet learned that the church as a whole, and especially some of its leading men, have suffered in reputation over his railroad experiments, it is well he should know it now; for it is a fact patent to hundreds both in the church and outside of it, and has caused no little reproach which the Saints-and especially the elders-have had to meet and explain as best they could. We do not propose to discuss the methods he used in that unfortunate venture—it is a dead issue, a thing of the past—but we are anxious the Saints and all other interested parties should know that the church, nor its leading men had anything to do with that scheme, either in its inception, its conduct, or its failure, though some had been led, by certain representations, to hope it would succeed.

The HERALD has not revived these matters, for they are still being discussed both by letters and in personal conversations, and the HERALD has simply undertaken to say to all, and for all time, that the Reorganized Church is not now, and never was, a party to that venture, and was not and is not now responsible for its failure and the consequent losses and disappointments falling upon many in and outside of the church. We seek to defend the church from blame in the matter. Let the lightning fall on those who merit it, and let the innocent go free.

We have said, and still say, that we do not believe Mr. Robinson's motives were bad when he engaged in railroad building; but we always thought, and now think his judgment badly at fault.

All do not look upon these matters as charitably as we have done, but are free to express their utter condemnation of the project from its inception to the present time, both as to motives and methods in originating it, conducting it, and especially in the ending up of the concern. And when our own members complain over their losses to us, what else could we do, in all honesty and fairness, but refer them to the laws of the land for redress as our church covenants enjoin?

The Reorganized Church had no more to do with that railroad movement than Melchizedek had with the building of the tower of Babel.

S. F. WALKER.

In our obituary column will be found the particulars of the life, public services and death of Bro. Samuel F. Walker, who recently died at Lamoni. In his death the church loses the services of a good and able worker; one whose interests were ever those of the church. We shall miss Bro. Walker in the office, for association with him was always pleasant and profitable. The church will also miss his literary contributions in support of the latter day work. A tried and true one has gone to rest.

A REPORT comes to us from an apparently reliable source that Bro. W. W. Blair claimed once to have had a vision in which it was shown him that Christ would come in 1896 or before. This is to say that W. W. Blair never claimed anything of the kind. He has ever believed that the Jews would be gathered to Judea, their commonwealth be established, and the nations, led by Russia, would go up to overthrow and spoil Israel as is set forth in Ezekiel chapters 38 and 39, also in Zechariah 14, etc., etc. He has also ever held that Zion will be redeemed and built up before the second advent, and that this will not take place till the Saints, gathered largely into the regions near Zion, have found merited "favor and grace" with the people, their numbers become "very great" and are "sanctified" before the Lord, that their "banners may be terrible unto all nations" by reason of their righteousness and goodly influence, so that these very nations "may be constrained to acknowledge that the kingdom of Zion is in very deed the kingdom of our God and his Christ," as is so plainly set forth in the revelation of June 22d, 1834, in Doctrine and Covenants and reaffirmed in the revelation of March 3d, 1873, Doctrine and Covenants 117:11. Whoever will read these Scriptures faithfully and wisely and believe what is taught therein will not look for the second coming of Christ nor the building up of Zion till the contingent and proceeding conditions are had. The error of some people lies in construing the word of God to suit their personal theories, personal interests, or personal desires, all of which is deceptive and dangerous, perverting the judgment and leading into error, disappointment and disaster. Do not believe all the rumors abroad till they are found true—and then judge wisely and with caution.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE Saints of the St. Louis, Missouri, branch have presented the editorial department of the Herald Office with a nice and neatly framed large photographic view of their new chapel, situated No. 2518 Elliot avenue. We accept it as an evidence of their zeal and devotion to the cause of truth, and shall place it where the traveling ministry passing through Lamoni may see it and know where to sound the gospel trump in the Missouri metropolis.

We are officially notified that the late Little Sioux conference recommended Bro. J. C. Crabb for appointment by General Conference to labor in that district the coming conference year, and that the clerk, by mistake, omitted to mention it.

We learn by late letter from Bro. R. Winning, of St. Joseph, that the Unity Society of that city has tendered the use of its Church to our people during our coming General Conference there. This kindness we trust will be duly appreciated by our people and all lovers of religious freedom and liberal thought. The action is Christian—doing by others as we would wish to be done by.

Brethren J. H. Peters and M. H. Fors-

Brethren J. H. Peters and M. H. Forscutt came the 28th ult., and immediately set to work auditing the accounts of the Board of Publication.

Brethren J. H. Lake and R. C. Evans of the Canada mission visited Lamoni, en route for General Conference. The brethren were in good spirits and their visit and preaching were edifying to the Lamoni Saints. Bro. I. L. Rogers also reached Lamoni on the 2d inst.

Bro. A. McKenzie, of Merlin, Ontario, wishes us to say to those expecting him to preach among them, that he can not do so at present.

Sr. Mary A. Wilcox of Blake's Mills, Ohio, writes to order the HERALD and say she thanks God for bringing her into the fold of Christ.

In a letter of late, Bro. Asahel Armstrong, of Grand Blanc, Michigan, says he has been healed of rheumatism of late and that he knows the gifts and blessings of God are in the Reorganized Church.

Bro. Frank Sawley wrote from Valley Junction, Wisconsin, saying: "The work is rolling onward here. Four more have been baptized since I last wrote, six others are ready, and others are nearly so."

Sr. Lettie Chivington, of Manitou Park, Colorado, thinks a faithful Elder could do good work in that place. There are five members of the Church there now.

Bro. S. C. Smith of Wheeler's Grove, Iowa, asks us to say in the HERALD that the Camp-meeting to be held at that place next fall will begin August 31st and hold over two Sundays, to the 9th of September, and that the committee having it in charge is composed of D. Hougas, H. Smith and Samuel Wood.

Some time in February a Bro. L. B. Merrill of Des Moines, Iowa, sent us an obituary notice of Sr. Rebecca A. Cracraft but no items of birth or place of death, interment or any referring to the funeral were given. If Bro. Merrill or any of the relatives or friends of Sr. Cracraft will furnish us with these items we will gladly publish them.

Bro. J. G. Depue of Big Springs, West Virginia, wrote March 24th, stating that they had a large branch at that place and that prospects are good for more uniting when the traveling ministry returned. He mentions an article which appeared in a Georgia paper, which was sent to Big Springs to hinder the progress of the work there. We have not yet received said paper but we wish to inform all concerned that we have no connection with the Georgia parties reffered to, if indeed those parties have any existence outside of some one's imagination.

The Forum, a monthly magazine of 114 pages of superior reading matter, comes regularly to our table. Its contributors are among the leading writers of the times and treat of living issues in an attractive and thorough manner. It is published at 253, Fifth Avenue, New York, at $5 a year.

Bro. Nicholas Stamm writes from Des Moines, Iowa, that his name was omitted from the reports of the preaching services in the Des Moines district conference. Whether by mistake or not he did not know. We trust it was through an oversight as we have heard the Saints of that district speak appreciatingly of Bro. Stamm's labors, and we see that they also mention them in making their yearly report to the general church secretary.

Our aged brother and sister, John and Christina Landers, who have been visiting at Blue Rapids. Kansas, write April 1st from that point as follows: "We are all well and have had one of the best conferences ever held in this district. Seven were baptized—two men and their wives, one man the head of a family, and two others. The preaching was grand. Brn. Brand, Shute, Kent and Beebe were present, and a good representation of the district was had."

Bro. E. DeLong wrote April 1st from Tawas City, Michigan, "Am preaching in this place every night to large audiences. I baptized four yesterday."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

I SHALL FIND REST.

A little further on—
There will be little time—I shall find rest soon;
Thus do we say, while eager youth invites Young hope to try her wings in wanton flights,
And nimble fancy builds the soul a nest

On some far crag; but soon youth's flame is gone—Burned lightly out—while we repeat the jest With smiling confidence—I shall find rest.

A little further on.

A little further on I shall find rest; half fiercely we avow When noon beats on the dusty field and care Threats to unjoint our armor, and the glare Throbs with the pulse of battle, while life's best Flies with the flitting stars; the frenzied brow Pains for the laurel more than for the breast Where love soft nestling waits. Not now, not now, With feverish breath we cry, I shall find rest A little further on.

A little further on I shall find rest; half sad, at last, we say, When sorrow's setting cloud blurs out the gleam

When sorrow's setting cloud blurs out the gleam Of glory's torch, and to a vanished dream Love's palace hath been turned, then—all depressed, Despairing, sick at heart—we may not stay

Our weary feet, so lonely then doth seem

This shadow haunted world. We, so unblest,
Weep not to see the grave which waits its guest;
And feeling round our feet the cool, sweet clay,
We speak the fading world farewell and say:
Not on this side—alas!—I shall find rest

A little further on.

—Robert Burns Wilson in "The Century."

SILENCE TO THE LORD.

Art thou tired, oh, so tired,
Thou would'st beneath the green turf lie?
Art thou so weary of this life
And all its cares, thou wilt not try
To let the heav'nly light shine through?

Dost thou not know of that sweet rest,
That perfect "silence to the Lord,"
Which asks of thee no strength of thine,
Not e'en to frame a single word,
Yet will thy fainting heart renew?

'Tis not "the last;" God ne'er forsakes
The sonl which, trembling rests on him;
He only asks for faith and love;
Christ took the burden, care, and sin
And brought this "rest" for you.

- Churchman.

PRAYER UNION.

Special Requests for Prayer.
Sister Mary Britain requests the prayers of the Union in behalf of herself, that she may be restored to health. She has been afflicted for nearly two years.

Your prayers are requested in behalf of Sr. Cynthia Graham, of Henderson, Iowa.

Deloit, Iowa, March 19th, 1889.

Dear Sister Walker:—As our president requested me I will try and write of what we have done in our Mite Society at Deloit. It is improving, and we have a good attendance. We meet every Saturday afternoon from house to house. Our work is piecing and quilting quilts, and also sewing carpet rags and making carpets. These we sell to get means for the good of the cause.

SR. JANE GOFF, President,

SR. SENA A. DOBSON, Sec.

February 20th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—I feel that It is my duty to write to you and bear my testimony to this work, that I know it is of God. I have had many testimonies concerning it. My prayers have been answered many times; although I have passed through some very severe trials, the Lord has stood by me, and he promised me in a dream that he would be with me in all my troubles, and I for one greatly feel the need of his help, especially in raising my children. I have six children, five girls, and one little boy. Pray for me that I may bring them up in the way they should go-

We have no preaching here now, but we expect Bro. Moler back next month some time. He came here last October, and preached at Liberty Hall and two other points about twelve miles from here. His stay with us was near four months, in which time he baptized sixteen; among them my husband, my eldest daughter, my sister and my niece. I yet have a father and mother that are not in the faith with us. I ask an interest in the prayers of all the Saints in their behalf, that they may yet see the light of the everlasting gospel, and may be obedient to the same, that my joy may be full.

Bro. G. T. Griffiths also paid us a short visit, and gave us some excellent sermons, and baptized one, and reorganized our branch. We are scattered very much so that we can not all get together; but a few of us meet once a week and have prayer meeting. But most of us are very young in the cause and feel our weakness. Pray for us, that we may be strengthend by the Spirit and may be found faithful unto the end, is my prayer. Your sister in Christ,

F. MONEYMAKER.

NEWARK, Dakota, Feb. 22d.

Dear Sisters:-As we are still here on the wild prairie I thought a word from this part of God's moral vineyard would be of some interest, also interesting to the many readers of the Column. There are countries that God has blessed more abundantly with trees and rivers to please the eye, also to please the soul; but, if this country is destitute of the many beautiful groves and pleasant sceneries, he has also something here to make the soul rejoice exceedingly; for besides the beautiful prairie extending for miles and miles, it has its surface covered with the golden grain in the harvest time, which is most beautiful to behold, especially when we hear the busy hum of the great harvesters as they plunge boldly through the grain, leaving it behind them all in bundles ready to be thrashed. Often when I see those great harvesters, two and three in one field of golden grain, and the handsome work done, I think of the vast harvest of souls to be gathered in and the scant supply of reapers, oh, dear sisters, my neart yearns for the dear ones. Oh, that the church could send two or three reapers into one field! how soon could our ministry say to the workmen, "well done." But some fields have to be entirely untouched for want of means. Let us pray for God to bless the Saints with good crops, that they may be more able to send reapers out. Now let us see to it, after the grain of the Lord's harvest is cut and bound by the respers, that it is all set up in good shape, that none of the bundles get knocked down by the tempest and left to perish before it can be brought to the garner. What I mean is this, after the elders have gone out and preached the word and have baptized a goodly number and perhaps organized a branch, let us as faithful handmaidens follow up the work of the elders in prayer, and if one of us should be the wife of an elder, and are near where we can handily besides our home duties let us help in the work as opportunity offers. Let us organize a Prayer Union among the sisters if possible, and by so doing we may save many a bundle of good wheat which might otherwise be lost.

Night before last I dreamed that I saw a large field of grain, and my husband had a self-binder and was to cut the grain and I was to go behind and set up the bundles; and as there is a branch here and my husband is the presiding elder, and there are those that he has reaped, I intend to see to it, if possible, that we do what we can.

Your sister,

AMANDA M. OEHRING

LAMONI, Iowa, March 12th:

Dear Sisters of the Home Column: - I have never before attempted to write any for the Home Column. I have often thought of doing so, and can not tell why I have not, unless it was my inability, and when asked a week or two ago why I did not write some for the Herald, I only answered, "If I could write anything that would do anybody any good, I would." But in thinking on it afterwards, I could not help but think how, if my mother had lived, she would have enjoyed writing to the Home Column, and I noticed that the impossibility of my doing any good would lay in my not trying. I have never thought strongly about writing without an almost uncontrollable desire to tell the sisters about my mother and the habits of my parents, and the training of our childhood; and I have just as often thought that I might be using the space in not just the right way, and have let the time pass along. But as we have to have something to write about, and the Home Column is to benefit our homes, it might not be amiss to write some about the teaching of our youth and the life's example we had set before us. As we are likely to write on the subject uppermost in our minds, so this is to me; and as I begin to write there are so many things that come to me that I already fear that my letter may be too long.

It was a practice in the household since I was old enough to remember, to have reading and prayer each morning, and prayer, with often a hymn sung, in the evening. And never upon more than two or three occasions in my life can I remember of prayer being missed; and so sincere were they in the belief, that the result of this practice was that we were preserved from danger and accidents, that as my father came in to dinner one day, (after mother died), having forgotten prayer that morning, he said, "My children, in our being called so suddenly from the table this morning, just as we were finishing breakfast, I forgot to return to the house for prayer, let us not fail to ask the Lord in secret to watch over us during the remainder of the day, and we will not forget it again." My mother led the prayer in the evening. She also, after her work was done in the morning, spent a few moments reading, and had prayer to herself in her bed-room. Although she did not compel us to do the same, she reminded us of it very often, and wished us to put ourselves in a way to perform the duty of our own accord.

She often spoke of the prophet Daniel who prayed regularly three times a day, and told us that the command even went farther than that; and that was to "pray always" or "pray without ceasing." And the beauty of her teaching was that in everything her example never digressed from her precept. We so often noticed when she was at her work, he lips moving silently as though talking, that we grew to always think that her heart was ascending to God in silent prayer. How did we know but that it was for us she was praying, and oh! how our hearts swelled with love for her as we watched, and would not break in upon her silence, we were so sure that we were not mistaken in our thoughts. I never asked her what her thoughts were at any time. for I think it was her teaching made me think so. And I have said to myself, Surely she comes as close to keeping the command to "pray always," (that she has quoted to us so often), as one could possibly come, as she told me once that she did not know as she had ever seen one of us go from our home for a longer or shorter time without committing that one to the care of God. Was it any wonder then that her family were all spared to be a comfort to her and be with her as long as she was spared?

This is a bare beginning of her life, lived in the presence of her children. Is it strange that we feel to day that in following her life's example also, and that as my oldest brother has expressed himself to me several times, that as he thinks of mother he can feel her presence ministering peace and comfort to his soul, and he firmly believes that she is one of the "ministering angels."

When she was taken away we felt that her's was the blessing, though ours was the loss, and felt to say: "Lord, take her home, 'twill not be so hard as to see her suffer longer." I did not realize the many days, months, and years, and the pain that would be tugging away at my heart, the longing to set my eyes on her dear face again, until I could almost think I could see her coming to my room. I do not know as I have received any comfort, for the wound has grown deeper and deeper to me, and I can not say that I feel resigned as I did when she was taken away. I may not have sought diligently enough for comfort and strength to Him who alone is able to heal. I may be all to blame.

We two girls were fifteen years old when she died, and we had one brother eighteen and one seven. The only word she left us was to remember all she had taught us. She did not need to teach us then, she had not waited until the eleventh hour. "She had done what she could." If we do not prepare ourselves to meet her at the great day of rejoicing it will not be her fault.

I am afraid I have written too long, and that this may not be as interesting as it ought to be; but 'tis scarcely a beginning of her teaching. But notwithstanding this great trial, if I could know that some day my children will feel with regard to me as I do of her I should be more than content. Can I estimate her worth too highly? More than one sister living around here will say with me that "undoubtedly I could not."

Sister Frances, this is worth printing, and the sisters will consider that this my first trial and that I am perhaps younger than any who have written, I will try again.

May God's blessing rest upon us all, and let us remember that the time left us is growing shorter.

A sister in the only true gospel,

MABEL GAULTER.

Dear Mabel: Let us hear from you again, and let this one thought give you courage if tempted by timidity. "Whom though she be dead yet speaketh." Fathers and mothers often live their lives over again in their children. Your dear mother was called early to her rest. It should be yours to rejoice that she has entered into that rest, and to take up the battle of life with a brave, strong heart, putting your entire trust in God who is able to bring you off more than conqueror. Thus will your mother live to us again in the child of her love.—ED.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—After so long silence I again take up my pen to communicate with you. Why this long silence I can hardly tell. The change from the active, public life of the past few years, to one so retired, and, I might say, secluded, as were the first few months after our arrival in America, was so great, that it produced a reaction, or a spiritual stagnation, and really I had nothing to write except personal affairs, and for such I had no right to occupy space in the Column to the exclusion of better matter. But I did not lose my interest in the Column; neither has it suffered because of my silence, though I may.

I have found much spiritual cheer and encouragement and I hope I have been benefitted by the practical instruction. And though I have never publicly expressed my thoughts concerning the "Prayer Union," I feel that it is, or was, the first step toward bringing to pass much good: how much, perhaps may never be known until the great day of reckoning; yet many will realize blessings, and I believe the whole church will feel its influence.

Prior to the promulgation of the "Prayer League," the sisters of Forster, Australia, met every Monday afternoon for an hour of prayer, and called it the "Mother's prayer meeting;" and from there comes the first testimony of healing in answer to their prayers. It was brought by the last Australian mail, and was one that made my heart to rejoice. It was that of the complete recovery of little Ada Taylor. The child—about five years old—had been sick for some months previous to our last visit to Forster, and for weeks she seemed just lingering between life and death. She had been administered to frequently, and always seemed to revive after it, but never received the desired blessing.

Then there came an inward abscess in her left side, or something of that nature. Whether it broke of itself, or was lanced, I do not know, but I learned that she then had medical assistance, and large quantities of materation were pumped from her side; after which she revived, but gave no promise of recovery. This operation took place some weeks before our last visit to Forster, and from that time she did not seem to suffer much pain, but just wasted away.

When I saw her there was no outward swelling or inflamation, but a constant discharge of a white watery substance oozing from a small round hole the size of a pea, between the ribs. This continued for such a length of time that it was feared her liver, in fact the whole inward side was consuming away; for the afflicted side was much shrunken, causing her right shoulder to be higher than the left.

She was still administered to from time to time, but her recovery was very doubtful, and the mother, fearing lest she should be charged with neglect if the child died, as well as to satisfy herself that nothing more could be done for her, once more consulted a physician, but was told they could "do nothing for her, as they did not know the nature of the case and could not ascertain without an operation, and she was too weak to undergo anything of the kind;" besides, her mother would not consent to it.

One day, at the mother's prayer meeting, the writer suggested that the child be made an especial suject of prayer in the meetings, that if it was consistent with the will of the Father, he would spare her. For a time it seemed like hoping against hope; though when we came away she was much better so much so that when the day was warm she could walk out of doors a little, while holding to the hands of her little brothers. But she was far from being well, for the discharge was still coming from her side, and she looked so frail that a puff of wind might almost take her away. Her mother-Sister Emily Taylor—is a praying woman, and all the family are lovers of the latter day work, and I know their hearts are overflowing with graititude to God, that he has seen fit to spare the little child in answer to the many prayers offered up in her behalf. Sister Taylor writes me that she is now as well and strong as ever she was, for which I also feel to thank God; and may she live to be a blessing and comfort to her family, that none may have reason to regret that they contended so earnestly for her recovery.

I hope, in every instance where an especial blessing has been received, testimony concerning it will be given, that the faith of the members of the Union may be strengthened, and thereby they may increase their diligence.

There has been a subject on my mind for some time concerning which I think prayer should be made. The case is urgent enough to demand attention; I hope to speak of it at no distant day. May we each be true and faithful, and prove ourselves worthy of the blessings of God, and so live that we may have power with God to draw near unto him and receive every needed blessing.

SISTER EMMA.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

ŝ	SIGNATURA CONTINUES
	Sr. Mary Despain, Galesburg, Ill.,$0.7
1	Sr. Alice Harbottle, Newman's Grove, Neb. 1.7
1	Br. Chas. Curtis, Salt Lake City, Utah 2.7
-	Sr. Susan Green, Onslow, Iowa 20	Ó
	Sr. J. M. Moldrup, Norman, Neb 1.0	o
	Sr. Anjean Vredenburg, Little Sioux, Iowa, 1.0	o
1	Sr. E. McDorald, Ayershire, Iowa, 0.50	o
-	Br J. F. Johnson, Windham, Kan 0.9	o
	Sr. Effie J. Ewins, Woodbine, Iowa 0.2
1	Sr. Christiny Sears, Victor, Mont 1.0
2	Sr. R. Griffith, Vincennes, Iowa 07	8
1	Sr. Malvina Heavener, Piper City, Ill 1.0
1	Sr. Annie D. Howard, Benton Harbor, Mich, 1.0	0
	Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa.
-	Lamoni, Iowa, Apr. 6th.

Pure water, pure air, and simple food, without narcotics, condiments, or stimulants, are best for human health.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Correspondence.

COOK'S POINT, Texas, March 20th.

Brn. Smith and Blair:-I reached Temple, Bell county, on the 6th; thence to Elmwood branch in said county, preaching twice to attentive hearers. I then went to Hill county, about seventy miles north of Elmwood branch, where I preached seven discourses, five in a schoolhouse, to quite a number of attentive hearers and I hope with good effect. I also preached two discourses in Bro M. Field's house and administered the sacrament to the few Saints at that place, which is near Peoria in said county. There was another place near where I preached in that county where people wanted me to preach but I could not on that trip, on account of having to return to Bell county to attend our district conference. It was well attended but was not as pleasant as could have been desired on account of the spirit of selfishness and contention prevailing to some extent; hope it may never be the case again.

I hope to be able to do more in the church this year than ever before. Our district petitioned General Conference to return Amos J. Moore to this mission. In bonds,

E. W. NUNLEY.

San Bernardino, Cal., March 29th.

Bro. Blair: It is now nearly a year since we began to get ready to leave Australia for this land. All through our mission there we found the Saints a very kind, generous, open-hearted people, who loved the work of God and were willing at all times to defend it, and who were striving to shew forth the peaceable fruits of a saintlike life. Of course there were exceptions to this in a very few instances, but in general the Saints of Australia will compare favorably with those of any part of America. The young elders who landed just prior to our leaving will, without doubt, do good work in the colonies. They are able and capable, and although Bro. Butterworth is young in the work he is a young man of sterling value and will aid the work wherever he goes and will make himself needful to the work in positions where integrity, wisdom and faithfulness are needed. He and Bro. Wight are loved by the Saints there and are laboring diligently in the good cause. I hope nothing may arise to in any wise hinder their usefulness, but that they may be amply sustained by the confidence and prayers of all the children of the kingdom. It is certainly a good thing and commendable to see the young men of the Church dedicate themselves to the work of the ministry, and all such, if continuing faithful, need have no fear; for God will be their stay and comfort, and "no weapon that is formed against them shall prosper," and in truth's cause they will always be victors, for God will be with them for they are in His service.

Bro. T. W. Smith is probably at Tahiti by this time, having finished his work in Australia in getting the branches there properly organized into districts and putting the financial affairs of the church in order, etc. The Saints of Australia were much edified and instructed by his preaching and counsel concerning the laws and order of the church and much blessed by Sr. Helen's many testimonies and words of encouragement manifested by the gifts of the gospel; also by her quiet helpful manner among the sisters of the church. May God bless them in their present difficult field.

Since Bro. Joseph's arrival here I have had the pleasure of accompaning him in some of his travels in this district, he having visited and preached in towns and villages through the counties of San Bernardino, San Diego and Los Angeles; encouraging the Saints, strengthening the weak, instructing the churches and officers in their privileges and duties. His lectures on the marriage relation, and on Temperance were excellent and well received, in the town of Santa Ana especially, and have left an impression for good to the cause which will be permanent. His labors in San Bernardino are especially spoken of on the streets of the town by lawyers, doctors etc., and favorably commented upon. We are sorry to add that he has not as good health as the Saints would like to see him enjoy. My voice is improving. Hoping for the speedy triumph of the truth, I am yours,

JOSEPH F. BURTON.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 28th.

Bro. Blair:—I learn since coming to this country that there are Saints contemplating and are actually moving into south-west Missouri and north Arkansas. Some of our people may honestly think that a move into south-west Missouri may be a nice thing simply because they know no better. But ignorance is not always bliss. I have traveled over most of the south-west; saw the old settlers, and if the looks of the people, the character of the outfits seen on the streets of the various towns, is an indication of the civilization and productiveness of the soil, then in the language of the Church of England—"Good Lord deliver us!"

If any are thinking of coming to this country, let them write Brn. Short and Pickering, Springfield, Missouri. Bro. Short knows every foot of land from Colorado to the state of Texas and can give the Saints an intelligent view. He is not in the real estate business, has no ax to grind and is reliable and intelligent. South of this place grain has hard work to find room to get up between the stones. Occasionally there are good farms, but those are not for pre-emption, by a long ways. Good farms in this country are as high as in any part of Missouri. The bench or ridge farms are worse than no farms at all.

If I should be induced to come to this country to farm by representations of cheap farms, I would be induced to curse the ignorance of the parties who induced me to come here. I am acquainted with every point in the state and would advise not to look for cheap land south of the Frisco line. Land about Carthage, Lamar, Nevada, Clinton and through that region sells at from fifeteen to thirty dollars an acre. I can get good farms in northern and central Missouri as far east as Centralia for the same. At Webb City. Joplin and other south-western points zinc and lead ore are being taken out in large quantities. Miners who understand that kind of mining can do well at any those points. But, Saints, do not pack np and move into the south-west until you first have gone and given it an intelligent investigation.

Not long ago I could have bought good farms in Harrison, Nodaway and other counties on down to Centralia, for fifteen, twenty to twentyfive dollars per acre, where you have good soil and good markets.

Should any of the Saints contemplate farming in Missouri I could get them farms for four or five families in a community where they can organize a branch, enjoy social companionship and be a nucleus for preaching the gospel to the community.

I am not in the land business, but as my business takes me to all parts of the state, I would gladly help a company to locate in that way and thereby be a blessing to themselves and the church. My address is Box 578, Independence, Missouri.

J. A. Robinson.

ALILA, Cal., March 23d.

Dear Herald:—The conference of this district has just closed, the occasion being a very pleasant one, for good feeling seemed to prevail. It was largely attended by the Saints, and the indications are that it would have been by others if the weather had been favorable. Two were added by baptism during the session. The seed sown here in the past and present by Bro. J. H. Lawn, Brn. Brown, Cook, and others, seems to be yielding increase. This part of the district seems to be a favorable place to labor. I go in company with Bro E. Burton to-morrow to fill some appointments, after which I will go directly home. Yours,

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 28th.

Bro. Blair:—The Saints of this branch have been cheered and comforted for the last few days by the preaching of brother M. H. Bond of Providence, Rhode Island, who called on us on the way west to attend General Conference; also brother Pierce of Attleboro, Massachusetts, a young and promising man in the work. We say, brethren call again, as you pass through New York. The prospects are brighter with us than they have been for a long time.

Yours in gospel bonds,
Joseph Squire.

WINDOM, Kansas, March 26th.

Bro. D. Dancer: I take the Saints Herald and Autumn Leaves, and I enjoy reading them. I think they are the best papers any one will read. I can't see why some of the Saints do not care to read those papers. I think every one ought to, and should read them; and after reading them hand them or send them to their neighbors and friends, or to any one whom they know wants to read them. I rejoice to see the marvelous work of God spreading wider-more and more among the children of men; and I for one believe that the time is very near when the knowledge of God shall cover the earth as the waters do the sea! Then all shall know the Lord from the least to the greatest. O, if all the children of God could realize now how they will feel then if they have any duty undone that they could have performed before that glorious time! They would surely now, before it is forever too late, waken up to a sense of their duty and with double zeal and energy do all they could in every way and at all times. I for one always feel that I could have done more than I have done and am doing. I need to ask for forgiveness of sins and shortcoming every day, and praise the Lord, he is merciful to sinners. Yours,

J. T. JOHNSON.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Mar. 28th.

Brother Blair:—I returned yesterday from Spanish Fork where I baptized J. Y. Mason and wife. Bro. Mason is the best informed man in a general way upon the church and in history, I have met in this country. He has been investigating the Reorganization for over a year. I furnished him what information I could. He had been in the Brighamite church a little over two years. I ordained him an elder and set him to work, and believe he will make a useful man. I am sure he will make an able defender of the faith if he keeps humble and prayerful.

I baptized three at Camp Floyd last Saturday, Mr. McLane and two girls. I expect to start home April 1st. Bro. John Weston will be with me. All goes fairly with us. Bro. Peter Anderson reports good prospects in Cache Valley, J. R. Evans reports good from Malad, and J. C. Clapp the same from Montana. J. H. Condit thinks there is a glimmering of light in Cass county, Idaho, and that region.

Yours in Christ,

R. J. Anthony.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 26th.

Editors Herald:—I have been connected with this work ten years the coming July, and the reason of my coming into this church was because I had a vision and it is as follows:

I thought I stood in an open field; and all at once there was a personage stood before me. He spake and told me to follow him. I did, and all at once there was a narrow passage with doors about ten feet apart, and my guide was about twenty feet before me, beckoning me to come after him. There was also Satan, telling me not to go any further. I thought I had to squeeze myself to get through this narrow passage, but I would follow my guide. Finally we got to the end of this passage and my guide went up six steps and I followed him. He opened a large folding door and I saw a host of people partaking of bread and wine, and my guide said, "These are they who have come up out of much tribulation." My guide also said that if I would obey the gospel of Jesus Christ that I would be able to enter into that beautiful room, for it was most glorious to behold. I hope and pray that I may live as a Saint of God. My desire is to do all I can for the work. I thank my God that I am a Latter Day Saint. I desire the prayers of the Saints. Your brother.

GEORGE EDWARDS.

IONE, Cal., March 21st.

Bro. Dancer:—The winter has been dry, cold and hard on poor people and stock, but we prayed for rain, the Lord has sent it and the crops are now looking well, for which I am thankful. My dear baby was standing up on the lounge and fell and broke her arm. The doctor set it and we prayed for her and the arm is now getting along well. I can do without any paper better than the Herald, though my eyes are too weak to read half its contents. I read many things that give me joy. I am thankful of Bro. Joseph's success in California, in baptizing the young people of Santa Ana. It seems to bring me greater joy to see young folks, perhaps because when a boy in the church I was for a long time without young company. I am also thankful to read of Bro. Daley's success in Nevada and for many other things. The Hevald is full of interesting news of all kinds. I also read some things that cause me to weep, such as the death of Bro. Moler's wife and others; the sickness of Bro. Garner; the poor health of Bro. J. R. Lambert; the news of Bro. Blakeslee's son and the misfortunes of others. I shall pray for General Conference, that the Holy Spirit may be E. T. DAWSON. with them.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., March 25th.

Brn. Smith and Blair:-Being impressed by the Spirit to write you I wish to bear my testimony to the truth of the great latter day work. It has done all for me it has ever claimed to do for any one who received it with an humble heart. I can testify that all the promises held out in the gospel of God's dear Son have been verified to me inasmuch as I have lived to follow them. It is with thankfulness in my heart when I consider the great blessings and mercies that my heavenly Father has bestowed on me in my weakness. I can truly say that I have never enjoyed such happiness as I have in the last four years since I have embraced the great latter day work. My desire is that my character may be moulded and beautified by the principles held out in the glorious gospel, and I hope and pray to stand by the work to the final redemption of

I wish to call your attention to the branch in Aalborg, Denmark, which has been neglected since the death of Bro. Brix. I have put myself in correspondence with the Saints in Aalborg and they have written several letters wherein they have told me of their sad condition. There are six persons in that place who have desired to unite with the church in baptism, but there is no one to perform the ordinance, or administer the sacrament. For three years there has been no one there to administer to those dear brethren these blessed ordinances. Dear brethren, in the name of our blessed Redeemer, I urgently request, in humility before God and his church in General Conference assembled, that it be taken into consideration; that some one be sent to plant in the broken ground. I know by the Spirit's testimony that there are many true and upright people in that country who desire to hear and receive the truth, and my prayer to my heavenly Father is that in his own time he will send laborers to those poor, forsaken people. Just think of it, dear brethren, that that poor people have hired a hall and paid for it those three years past and have had no one to break to them the bread of life, but have only been able to make use of it for prayer and testimony. I have laid the case before Brn. Kelley and Briggs and they answered that the church had no one to send.

I am very sorry to see so little interest manifested by the Danish brethren in this great rerepublic; that they have not more love and sympathy for our mother country to bring her people from darkness into the marvelous light. I wish to say if it would be consistent with the will of God and the church that I will be willing to make sacrifice of all the comfort and of all I own to go there and try, by the help of the great God, to build up His church and kingdom in that part of the moral vineyard. I hope and trust that our heavenly Father will inspire your hearts and minds concerning those poor Saints, is the humble prayer of your brother in Christ,

M. P. HANSEN.

BYRNVILLE, Ind., April 1st.

Dear Editors Herald—The work is fast spreading here; new places are being opened up, and the calls are many for preaching. I am glad to say that this is the work of God, and that I have evidence of the work from time to time.

We can see plainly that the work of restoration has begun, and the gospel of the kingdom is preached; Palestine is returning to its fertility, and the Jews ase now going back there as predicted in Ezekiel 36: 33, 34: "Thus saith the Lord God: In the day that I shall have cleansed you from all your iniquities, I will also cause you to dwell in the cities, and the wastes shall be builded. And the desolate land shall be tilled, whereas it lay desolate in the sight of all that passed by."

And again, we find in Zechariah 14:11, where it is said; "And men shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more utter destruction; but Jerusulem shall be safely inhabited. Then in that day they shall know that I am the Lord that doeth this, saith the Lord."

The Lord is not stack concerning his promises. We are persecuted, but let those persecutions be falsely and for the truth. Men will revile us and say all manner of evil against us falsely for Christ's sake.

One of the leading ministers of the United Brethren Church said he was coming up here to "skin the skunks," having reference to the Saints. He came yesterday and had meeting, and last night Bro. M. R. Scott preached the gospel to all who were present. This man was here, but did not come out to hear. I guess he thought it was best to stay away. Bro. Scott reviewed his sermon. He needed some correction. I hope he will come back again, for it shows the contrast and causes the people to see the errors in their preaching.

Your's in Christ,

G. JENKINS.

Don't be afraid of cold weather. If you are not a hopeless consumptive, a cronic asthmatic, or some other sort of cripple, or a generally used up invalid, we say, by all means stick to your native land, with its snow, its ice, its blusters, and its blizzards. Better freeze to death than die from inanition. Better yet, make a friend of the cold. Get on good terms with Jack Frost. Fortify yourself against the harmful influences of cold air by taking daily doses of it, and be assured you will unfailingly discover that the ice-storms, piercing winds, and zero temperature of the winter season, are really blessings which we can not afford to miss.—Good Health.

Knowledge is like current coin. A man may have some right to be proud of possessing it, if he has worked for the gold of it, and assayed it, and stamped it, so that it may be received of all men as true; or earned it fairly, being already assayed. Be assured there is no part of the furniture of a man's mind, which he has a right to exult in, but that which he has hewn and fashioned for himself.—Ruskin.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been baid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Communications.

Arricles under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

FAITH AND OPINION.

A DISTINCTION AND A DIFFERENCE.

I THINK, that I believe, that I have faith, to know that there is such a thing as truth. Or, as I understand it, I thought, and then I believed, and then I had faith, and I afterward knew some things to be true. I thought for instance that there was a God, I reasoned on the matter, I could not account for the existence of many things, or explain the operations of others unless there was a Creator of infinite wisdom. and omniscient, and omnipotent, who not only created, but controlled and preserved the works of his hands. I believed through my reasoning faculties that there was a God, but nature animate and inanimate could lead me no farther. Where this Creator lived, what his form, and his will and purposes, I learned by what he had himself revealed to man and then I had faith in him. My faith came by hearing his word, which word revealed his location, his form, his attributes, his will, his plans and purposes concerning the world, and of course concerning myself as a part of the general whole. I could not believe that he is, i. e. that he exists, without some quite definite idea of where, and how he exists. If he exists at all he must exist some where, in some form, and in some surroundings. Long before I knew of this Church I was compelled by my reason alone to reject the dogma of the churches, that God was "without body, parts, or passions," "whose circumferance was everywhere and his center nowhere." I was forced to see that a God of this sort was a God of no sort. The heathen Athenians were worshipping "an unknown God." But modern Christians (?) were worshipping not an unknown God only, but an unknowable God; one that could not be known by men, angels, or devils, either in time or eternity. For he could not be seen, heard or smelt, neither could he be tasted or felt. "But he is a Spirit, the Bible says so." True, but does the Bible tell us what a Spirit is? It tells us this much, that angels are spirits, and gives us to understand that angels have bodies, parts, and passions. That they can eat, drink, sleep, walk, talk, hear and feel. And so does the Bible tell us that God has a body, has parts, has passions, that he can hear, see, speak, smell, feel and walk. But while all this is a subject of faith, the sectarians have an opinion only, and in their opinion God is simply a spirit, and this is their opinion of a spirit: "A spirit is an indivisible, indissoluble, immaterial, uncompounded simple essence, that has neither weight, shape size or color, and has neither interior or exterior surface, and can in no wise come in contact with matter."—Lutlier Lee Meth. Commentator.

Well, that is just what I would call NOTHING. And that is just what God is, i. e. NOTHING, for he is a spirit and a spirit is as just described; at least so many think.

David said that in his day "The fool has said in his heart there is no God," but had he lived to-day, he would say that he has said it in a book; what was of course in his heart. At this point I should retract what I said before about the modern Christian worshipping the unknowable god, for I perceive that they can't do it, for no one can worship NOTHING. It can not be done. Therefore they do not worship; because (unlike the heathen) they have no god to worship. What a farce! Millions of dollars and years of time have been spent, and a number of human lives lost, in sending missionaries to pagan nations in order to turn them from the worship of idols, or the sun, or a cow or some other animal, to the pretended worship of-nothing.

"O no, you wrong us," say our friends, "we want them to worship the only true and living God." But nothing can not live, it can not be true. A truth is a fact, and a principle exists. "Yes, but we believe God exists." But how? "Why as 'an uncompounded simple essence.'" But what "simple essence" is indivisible, or if indivisible, indissoluble, or if indissoluble, immaterial? And what "simple essence" is without weight, shape, size, or color. And even if indivisible, indissoluble and immaterial, and even "without weight, shape, size, or color," what "simple essence" that has "neither interior nor exterior surface" but suppose all this is true of a "simple essence," what "simple essence" is it that "can in in no wise come in contact with matter"? If God is such a "simple essence" as this, he is not the God that "walked" in the Garden of Eden in the cool of the day, and whose voice Adam heard, and from whose presence he hid. The idea of a "simple essence" walking in a garden in the cool of the day, and of Adam hearing its voice, hiding himself from a "simple essence." This "simple essence" Abraham talked with face to face as with a friend. Moses was told by this "simple essence" that it would put him in the cleft of the rock, and put his "hand" over him, and he could see its "back parts." The angels behold the face of this "simple essence" in heaven. Jesus is the "express image" of the "person" of this "simple essence," and being in the "form" of this "simple essence," he "thought it not robbery to be equal with" it. And this "simple essence" which has neither weight, shape, size, or color, without interior or exterior surface, made Adam and you and I in its "own image," and in its "own likeness," and of course we are all "simple essences." And after this "simple essence" is coming down from heaven to dwell on the earth, it will "wipe tears from all faces" and the pure in heart shall see it. And Stephen in vision saw Jesus, even the express image of the "simple essence," standing on the right hand of the "simple essence" in heaven. Now plainly the "simple essenee" idea is simply nonsense, and those who believe it (if such a thing was possible to do) are simple enough to believe that heaven is beyond the bounds of time and space, which is simply nowhere. And now what is their faith? And what is This: at the death of the their hope? body, the spirit, that is, nothing, goes off to nowhere; to see nobody, who of course is also nowhere. Now is that faith? Nay it is blank Atheism. Is it an opinion even? Nay, it can not claim to be an opinion, for it is not a judgment of the mind; it is not a sentiment. It can not be dignified by the term thought, for that is reason; and certainly it is not a matter of revelation. Such a God no one ever can know; no one can have faith in him, no one can believe in him, no one can think or reason about him, and if God is a "simple essence" then personality can not be ascribed to it, and therefore it is folly to speak of him, for a simple essence is neither him or her. But having faith in God, believing with implicit confidence, and having an assurance that God is, "and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him," I may form an opinion as to his appearance, his form, his surroundings, and I may form an opinion of some or all of his attributes, and I may be correct in whole or in part, or I may be intirely mistaken; but I have no need to form an opinion on what is clearly and plainly revealed. What has been clearly revealed and explained to us concerning God is a subject of faith, and some matters here, and all things hereafter may become matters of knowledge. What we now imagine or form an opinion of, we may know hereafter.

We surely will not form an opinion of the size, or appearance of the Almighty when we shall see him. When we know the Lord even as we are known of the Lord, opinions and even faith itself ends. There are many things concerning the Christian religion, or the doctrine of Christ rather, which are so plainly revealed, and taught in such express and unequivocal, or unambiguous terms that, as it appears to me, there is no place, or ground, or reason, or right even for the exercise of opinion. They must be either squarely believed or fully denied. But there are questions, on the other hand, upon which there can be opinion formed and opinion only. There are others where the teaching is not entirely clear, but surrounding circumstances help greatly to determine the case. In the last class of questions, liberty to exercise different opinions should be granted. In the second class, liberty must be granted and taken to exercise opinion, or else expunge the subject from the record as useless and unprofitable. In the first class, opinion ought not to be allowed to those who acknowledge the divine authority and authenticity of the record. To those who confess the divinity of the New Testament as also the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants, on the subject of baptism for instance, can have no opinion, because baptism is called a burial and a birth in the former book, which with the fact of going down into and coming up out of the water, plainly indicate immersion, while the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants positively state that it must be by immersion and that only, while all teach that it is for remission of Will the Church allow an opinion upon this question so that one may teach sprinkling, and another pouring, and another immersion, and another that sins are forgiven before and independent of baptism? No, for there is no cause nor room for opinions. And so in regard to predictions or prophecies. Can there be a difference of opinion as to the fact of Christ's personal return to earth, and his personal reign on the earth? Or as to the fact of the living and resurrected Saints going up to meet Christ in the air? Nay, but connected with that truth men may lawfully differ as to the length of time Christ may remain in the air before he comes with the returning Saints from the air.

Should the Church withdraw the hand of fellowship from a member who will insist on teaching that sprinkling or pouring is equally valid and proper with immersion? Or that baptism is not essential? Yes, I answer, for such teaching is a direct assault on the faith and practice of the Church, and would cause discord and division every where. Just so in regard to any other subject of revelation. Now to illustrate my idea, take for another instance the law of tithing; is baptism enjoined any more emphatically? Is baptism, as to the mode any more clearly defined than tithing? Nay, yet perhaps I would be called an extremist, or accused of taking too bold a ground, or an unwarranted position if I should say, that a man or woman could be lawfully expelled not only for preaching against the law, but for refusing to obey it when it was in his power to do so.

Tithing may not apply as universally as baptism but is it a command of God? If so then, being a law of God, disobedience to it is transgression of the law which is sin. But is it really a sin to not observe the law, says one? Yes, just as sure as it is a law of God. Is it a sin to rob, I would inquire? "Why certainly," is the cry from every man, woman, and child in the Church. Again, Does it make any differ ence as to the party or the person robbed, providing they are truly robbed? "No, the answer comes "robbery is robbery." Well, it would not palliate the case in the least would it, if the Almighty should happen to be the party (reverently speaking) who is robbed? Certainly not, is the reply. Well, are we not told plainly by Malachi, that neglect or refusal to pay the tithing was simply robbing God. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and in offerings," Was the law of tithing the law of God then? And is it the law of God now? And is God an unchangeable God? If these questions are answered affirmatively what then? Simply that disobedience to the law of tithing is a twofold sin; 1st, It is transgression of law, which is sin; 2d, It is robbery, which is also sin even a crime. If God has given a law that is binding on us, then disobedience to that law is sin, and sin is punishable both in the Church and in the world to come if not repented of.

There is but one way that I can see, that disobedience to the law of tithing can not be called a sin; and that is to assume the ground and maintain it, that it is not a law of God. Of course this is my opinion, but it comes so near being a matter of faith, that I want the church to hear it; I do not ask the First Presidency, nor anybody else, to endorse it, neither do I care who objects to it-I am willing to face it in the day of judgment, and risk being censured for teaching that disobedience to any and every law of God is sin, that sin is punishable in the church, and in the world to come. There are no temporal laws, they are all spiritual, although they may relate to temporal matters.

What profit is it to us who teach, or for those who are taught, that we should be so tender-footed, or fear to offend the rich or penurious, as "to shun to declare the whole counsel of God." Did we make these laws, which we call the laws of God? and have we been deceiving the people by calling them God's laws? or are they really what we sav they are, "the commandments of God?"

If they are the latter let us teach them and enforce them as such. What right have we to temporize in these things, or to apologize for their introduction, or hesitate to stand by them if we honestly have faith in them. But if they are not God's laws, but merely our opinions, let us say so, and let everybody accept or reject them as they may elect, and have no further disputation on the subject.

What right has any member of the church to object to any law being enforced upon him that he acknowledges to be the law of God? If a man does not receive the decision of the church, when made according to be the rules governing in the matter, he has the right to quietly, (or even noisily) withdraw from the church. But if he wishes to remain, he must submit to its rules. The church has no right to inflict physical or corporeal punishment for disobedience to its laws, but it has a right to make any of its laws a test of fellowship. If it is the executor of the laws of heaven, it must do its simple duty. If it is the designer or author of its laws, it can, of course decide whether much or little, or no punishment at all shall attach to their disobedience. Now, what sense is there for the Lord to say that he will hold the Twelve and Bishopric to an account in the day of judgment for the manner in which they act in regard to the law of tithing, and then for any of that number to teach, by word or act that, the standing of any member of the church can not be affected by his willful disregard of the law. And if God has put the responsibility of executing that law upon their shoulders, their voice should be heard, and be considered more weighty than that of anybody else in the church.

The conjoint bodies have spoken more than once, and they have defined the law, and have taught how it is to be observed, and who are to observe it, and my individual contention is that the law of tithing is a matter of faith, and is not an opinion merely; and that no one in the church has any more liberty or license for disregarding it, than they have the laws of God requiring faith, repentance, confession, baptism, prayer, the observance of the Lord's Supper, or any other duty specifically and positively enjoined. What I simply wish to impress upon the minds of the Saints is, that the words of the Son of God, or what is the same thing, the words of God, shall judge us at the last day, and that we shall be "judged out of the things written in the books." Do we realize the fact in all of its naked and startling simplicity and plainness, that it is the eternal God, the Almighty One, who has spoken, or do we in our hearts believe that what we, in our blindess and folly have labelled THE LAWS OF GOD are, after all, only Joseph Smith's, or Paul's, or Malachi's opinion, or the mere ipse dixit of some other poor erring mortal? How is it brethren and sisters? Are we truly honest and sincere in our professions, or are we only deceiving ourselves and others? Which of two courses is the most consistent? one wherein a man or a woman who does not believe that certain laws or doctrines of the church are divine, but are merely human, or at least non-essential and inapplicable to the church today; and because of their unwillingness to teach and practice what they believe to be an error, or, at least, not a duty to them, withdraw from the church; or the course of others, who by voice and vote affirm that these laws are divine, and are applicable now, and are binding on the church, yet by careless disregard, or willful disobedience to these laws, show that they at heart do not believe that they are of God, and are a law to them? The former course is consistent, the latter hypocritical.

But the effect is the same in both cases; and the devil is suited by both courses, while God is insulted and is displeased, for neither party do his will; and of neither can it be said in the day of judgment "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter ye into the joy of thy Lord."

Profession of faith, and voting to uphold the laws of God, are all very good, but those who "enter into the kingdom of heaven," are not professors only, but are they who "do the will of my Father which is in heaven," said Jesus; and that will is revealed in the form of divers laws and commandments given by his Son—and through apostles and prophets, both in former and latter days.

In conclusion, my opinion is, that the church should permit no persistent or repeated disregard of any of its laws which form essential parts of its faith; but should allow the exercise of opinion on subjects not clearly revealed and which are not matters of faith and obedience. For instance, as to what the "little horn" in Daniel 7, may represent, or the "woman" in Revelation 12 and 17, and much more of the same kind. We can form opinions, and opinions only on such matters.

THOMAS W. SMITH.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Dec. 28d, 1886.

and dialects; 6, their manner of counting

Torob

THE "SEALED BOOK."-No. vi.

BY ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

LANGUAGE.

As to the evidence which language furnishes I offer the following: "The inquiry may be made: 'What number of words found to resemble one another in different languages will warrant our concluding them to be of common origin?' The learned Dr. Young applied to this the mathematical test of the calculus of probabilities, and says: 'It would appear therefrom that nothing could be inferred with respect to the relation of any two languages, from the coincidence of sense of any single word in both of them; the odds would be three to one against the agreement of any two words; but if three words appear to be identical, it would be then more than ten to one that they must be derived in both cases from some parent language, or introduced in some other manner; six words would give more than seventeen hundred chances to one; and eight, near one hundred thousandr so that in these cases the evidence would be little short of absolute certainity."-Delafield, p.

Under the above rule to test the origin of language, I introduce the concise deduction of Elijah M. Haines, who says: "Many writers have given special attention to an inquiry into the subject of the American aboriginies, with reference to discovering an affinity of this people with the Tews, or people of Israel. Among the class of writers aforesaid is Mr. James Adair, who resided forty years among the American tribes, and who wrote a book on the subject, which was published about the year 1775, in which he without hesitation declares that the American aborigines are descendants from the Israelites, and so complete is the conviction on this head that he declares he finds a perfect and undisputable similitude in each. He says: 'From the most accurate observations I could make in the long time I traded among the Indians of America, I was forced to believe them lineally descended tribes of Israel.' Among the early authorities cited to show that the American Indians are descendants from the Israelites, Mr. Adair seems to be the principal one, and since his time all writers who have favored his views, refer with unreserved confidence to the evidence furnished by him to this end. One of the earnest writers in support of this theory in later times, is Rev. Ethan Smith of Poultney, Vermont, as shown in his book entitled 'View of the Hebrew, or the Tribes of Israel in America,' published in 1825, wherein he undertakes to prove,-citing Mr. Adair and others-, that the American Indians are descendants from the Lost Tribes of Israel. Smith sums up the arguments of Mr. Adair that the natives of this continent are of the ten tribes of Israel to the following effect: 1, their division into tribes; 2, their worship of Jehovah; 3, their notions of a theocracy; 4, their belief in the administration of angels; 5, their language time; 7, their prophets and high priests; 8, their festivals, fasts and religious rites; 9, their daily sacrifice; 10, their ablutions and anointings; 11, their laws of uncleanliness; 12, their abstinence from unclean things; 13, their marriage, divorces and punishments of adultery; 14, their several punishments; 15, their cities of refuge: 16. their purifications and preparatory ceremonies; 17, their ornaments; 18, their manner of curing the sick; 19, their burial of the dead; 20, their mourning for the dead; 21, their raising seed to a deceased brother; 22, their change of names adapted to their circumstances and times; 23, their own traditions; the account of English writers, and the testimonies given by Spaniards and other writers of the primitive inhabitants of Mexico and Peru. Many of those who contend for Jewish origin of the American Indian insist that evidence of this fact is found in the languages of the Indians, which appear clearly to have been derived from the Hebrew. This is the opinion expressed by Mr. Adair, in which Dr. Edwards, having a good knowledge of some of the Indian languages, concurs and gives his reasons for believing this people to have been originally Hebrew. The languages of the Indians and of the Hebrews, he remarks, are both found without prepositions, and are formd with prefixes and suffixes, a thing not common to other languages; and he says that not only the words, but the construction of phrases in both are essentially the same. The Indian pronoun, as well as other nouns, he remarks, are manifestly from the Hebrews. The Indian laconic, bold, and commanding figures of speech, Mr. Adair notes as exactly agreeing with the genius of the Hebrew language. Relative to the Hebraism of their figure, Mr. Adair gives the following instance from an address of a captian to his warriors, on going to battle: "I know that your guns are burning in your hands; your tomahawks are thirsting to drink the blood of your enemies; your trusty arrows are impatient to be on the wing; and lest delay should burn your hearts any longer, I give you the cool re-freshing words: Join the holy ark; and away to cut off the devoted enemy.'

A table of words and phrases is furnished by Dr. Boudinot, Adair and others, to show the similarity, in some of the Indian languages, to the Hebrew, and that the former must have been derived from the latter. The following is an example afforded from the sources quoted:

words. English. INDIAN. HEBBAIC, OR CHALDAIC. Jehovah, Yohewah, Jahoveh. God, Ale, Aleim. Ale, Yah or Wah. Jah, Jah. Shilosh. Shilu. Shiloh. Chemim, Heavens. Shemim. Father, Abba, Abba. Ish, Ishie, Man, Ish. Woman, Ishto, Ishto. Wife. Awah, Ewah, Eve. Thou, Keah, Ka. His wife. Liani. Libene. This man. Uwoh. Huah. Nichiri, Neheri. Roof of a house. Taubans-ora, Debonaou.

winter,		Kora,	Koran.
		Canaai,	Canaan.
1 7 7 7		Phale,	Phalace.
Now,		Na,	Na.
Hind part,		Kesh,	Kish.
		Jennais,	Jannon.
To blow,		Phaubac,	Phauhe.
	Rushing wind,	Rowah,	Ruach.
١	Ararat, or high	l
		Ararat,	Ararat.
		Kurbet,	Grabit.
My skin,		Nors,	Ourni.
Man of God,		Ashto Allo,	Ishda Alloa.
l	Waiter of the high	ı
l	priest, S	agan, S	agan.
ļ	PAl	RTS OF SENTEN	CES.
ļ	English.	INDIAN.	HEBREW.
İ	Very hot,	Heru hara or hala,	Hara hara.
-	Praise to the first cause,	Hallehuwah,	Hallelujah.
-	Give me food,	Natoni boman,	Natoni bamen.
Go thy way,		Bayon boorkaa,	Bona bonak.
Good be with you,		Halea tibon,	Ye hali ettonboa.
My necklace,		Yene kali,	Vongali.
I am sick,		Nane guale,	Nance heti.
ı

Winter

Rev. Jedediah Morse, in his tour among the Western Indians, says of the Indians' language: "It was highly metaphorical; and in this and other respects they resemble the Hebrew." "This resemblance in their language," he adds, "and the similarity of many of their religious customs to those of the Hebrews, certainly give plausibility to the ingenious theory of Dr. Boudinot, exhibited in his interesting work, the Star in the West."

Dr. Boudinot speaks of some Indians in a place called Cohocks, who called the high mountains at the west Ararat. He says that the Penobscot Indians called a high mountain by the same name; that he himself attended an Indian religious dance, concerning which he remarks: "They dance one round; and then a second, singing hal-hal-hal, till they finished the round. They then gave us a third round, striking the words le-le-le. On the next round it was the words lu-lu-lu, dancing with all their might. During the fifth round was yah-yah-yah. Then all joined in a lively and joyful chorus, and sung halleluyah; dwelling on each syllable with a very long breath, in a most pleasing manner." And he says, "there could be no deception in all this. Their pronunciation was very guttural and sonorous, but distinct and clear."

Rev. Ethan Smith, in his book before mentioned, remarking on this circumstance says: "How could it be possible that the wild native Americans, in different parts of the continent, should be found singing this phrase of praise to the Great First Cause, or to Jah-exclusively Hebrew,without having brought it down by tradition from ancient Israel? The positive testimonies of such men as Boudinot and Adair are not to be dispensed with nor doubted. They testify what they have seen and heard. And I can conceive of no rational way to account for this Indian song, but that they brought it down from ancient Israel, their ancestors.

Dr. Boudinot further says of the Indians: "Their languages in their roots, idioms and particular construction, appear to have the whole genius of the Hebrew; and what is very remarkable have most of the peculiarities of that language especially those in which it differs from most other languages."

It is also insisted by many, as further evidence showing the Jewish origin of the American Indian, that they have had their imitation of the ark of the covenant in ancient Israel. Rev. Ethan Smith says that the different travelers, and from different regions unite in this, and refers to the fact that Mr. Adair is full in his account of it. He describes it as a small square box, made convenient to carry on the back; that the Indians never set it on the ground, but on rocks in low ground where stones were not to be had, and on stones where they are to be found."—The American Indians, pp. 98–101.

I will not attempt to add to the forceful deduction in the arguments of the authors here cited in favor that the native red man of America is a descendant of the Jew.

William Penn said of the Indians of Pennsylvania, in his letter of August, 1683: "The natives . . . are generally tall, straight, well-built, and of singular proportion; they tread strong and clever, and mostly walk with a lofty chin. . . . Their eye is little and black, not unlike a straight-looked Jew. . . . I have seen among them as comely European-like faces of both sexes as on your side of the sea; and truly an Italian complexion hath not much more of the white, and the noses of several of them have as much of the Roman. . . . For their original, I am ready to believe them to be of the Tewish race—I mean of the stock of the ten tribes -and for the following reasons: First, ... in the next place, I find them to be of the like countenance, and their children of so lively a resemblance that a man would think himself in Duke's Place or Berry Street in London when he seeth them. But this is not all. They agree in rites, they reckon by moons, they offer their first-fruits, they have a kind of feast of tabernacles, they are said to lay their altars upon twelve stones, their mourning a year, customs of women, with many other things that do not now occur."-Atlantis, p. 185.

Delafield says: "It is proper here to remark, that although there is such a variety of dialects in America, an accurate examination of their structure has left no room to doubt that they are all from one individual family, closely knitted together in all its parts, by grammatical analogy, not of a vague indefinite kind, but complex in the extreme, affecting the most necessary and elementary parts of grammar.' "—Delafield, p. 23.

Baron Humboldt says of the Mexican languages: "They bear analogy in their whole organization, particularly in the complication of grammatical forms, in the modification of the verb according to its syntax, and in the number of its additive particles affixa and suffixa."—Ibid, p. 23.

Bancroft says: "The researches of the few philologists who have given American languages their study have brought to light the following facts: First, that a relationship exists among all the tongues of the Northern and Southern continents; and that while certain characteristics are found in common throughout all the languages of America, these languages are as a whole sufficiently peculiar to be distinguishable from the speech of all the other races of the world. Although some of these characteristics, as a matter of course, are found in some of the languages of the old world, more of them in the Turanian family than any other, yet nowhere on the globe are uniformities of speech carried over vast areas and through innumerable and diversified races with such persistency, as in America; nowhere are tongues so dissimilar and yet so alike as here."-Nat. Rac., vol. 3. p. 553.

He says again: The multiplicity of tongues, even within comparatively narrow areas, rendered the adoption of some sort of universal language absolutely necessary. This international language in America is for the most part confined to gestures, and nowhere has gesture language attained a higher degree of perfection than here; and what is most remarkable, the same representatives are employed from Alaska to Mexico, and even in South America."—Ibid, p. 556.

Ellen Russell Emerson says: "The fact of the Indians having a complete system of signs, by which they made communications among all tribes on the continent is interesting."—Indian Myths, p.

270.

Professor Benjamin Smith Barton, was the first to collect and classify American words. After him followed Vater, who in his Mithridates, published in Leipsic in 1810, carried out the subject in an extended form. The result of their labors is thus stated: "In eighty-three American languages, one hundred and seventy words have been found, the roots of which have been the same in both continents: and it is easy to perceive that this analogy is not accidental, since it does not rest merely on imitative harmony, or on that conformity of organs which produces almost an identity in the first sounds articulated by children. Of these three-fifths resemble the Mantchou, Tongouse, Mongul, and Samoide languages; and twofifths the Celtic, Tchoud, Biscayan, Coptic and Congo languages."—American Antiquities, p. 23.

"Ethnography, then, has furnished conclusive evidence that the family of American languages had a common origin with that of Asia. A lexical comparison has established an identity in one hundred and seventy words, though this study is yet in its infancy; and this, relying on the correctness of Dr. Young's mathematical calculation, is an argument which can not be controverted."—Ibid, p. 24.

ISRAELITISH ORIGIN.

I will now inquire into the Israelitish origin of the Central Americans and their brethren of the same race, the American Indians, and upon this direct investigation Viscount Kingsborough says: "It is impossible when reading what Mexican mythology records of the war in heaven, and of the fall of Zontomonque and the other rebellious spirits; of the creation of light by the word of Tonacatecutli and the division of the waters; of the sin of Yztlacolinhqui and his blindness and nakedness; of the temptation of Suchiquecal and her disobedience in gathering roses from a tree and the consequent misery and disgrace of herselfand all her posterity, not to recognize Scriptural analogies. But the Mexican tradition of the deluge is that which bears the most unequivocal marks of having been derived from a Hebrew source."—Mex. Ant., vol. 6, p. 401.

Bancroft says: "The theory that the Americans are of Jewish descent has been discussed more minutely and at greater length than any other. Its advocates, or at least those of them who have made original researches, are comparatively few; but the extent of their investigations and the multitude of parallelisms they adduce in support of their hypothesis, exceed by far anything we have yet encountered. Of the earlier writers on this subject, Garcia is the most voluminous. Of modern theorists, Lord Kingsborough stands preeminently first, as far as bulky volumes are concerned, though Adair, who devotes half of a thick quarto to the subject, is by no means second to him in enthusiasmor rather fanaticism-and wild speculation. Mrs. Simon's volume, though pretentious enough to be original, is neither more nor less than a rehash of Kingborough's labors."-Nat. Rac., vol. 5, pps.

Upon the analogies that by no means should be ignored, I present these: "The more prominent of the analogies adduced by Lord Kingsborough may be enumerated as follows: The religion of the Mexicans strongly resembled that of the Jews in many minor details as will be presently seen, and the two were practically alike, to a certain extent, in their very foundation; for, as the Jews acknowledged a number of angels, archangels, principalities, thrones, dominions and powers, as the subordinate personages of their heirarchy, so did the Mexicans acknowledge the unity of the deity in the person of Tezcatlipoca and at the same time worship a great number of other imaginary beings. Both believed in a plurality of devils, subordinate to one head, who was called by the Mexicans Mictlantecutli, and by the Jews Satan. Indeed, it seems that the Jews actually worshipped and made offerings to Satan, as the Mexicans did to their 'God of hell.' It is probable that the Toltecs were acquainted with the sin of the first man, committed at the suggestion of the woman, herself deceived by the serpent who tempted her with the fruit of the forbidden tree, who was the origin of all our calamities and by whom death came into all the world. We have seen in this chapter that Kingsborough supposed the Messiah and his story to have been familiar to the Mexicans. There is reason to believe that the Mexicans like the Jews offered meat and drink There are striking offerings to stones. similiarities between the Babel, flood and creation myths of the Hebrews and Americans. Both Jews and Mexicans were fond of appealing in their adjurations to the heaven and the earth. Both were extremely superstitious and firm believers in prodigies. The character and history of Christ and Huitzilopochtli present certain analogies, It is very probable that the seventh day was known in some parts of America. The Mexicans applied the blood of sacrifices to the same uses as the Jew; they poured it upon the earth, they sprinkled it, they marked persons with it, and they smeared it upon the walls and other inanimate things. No one but the Jewish High Priest might enter the Holy of Holies.

A similar custom obtained in Peru. Both Mexicans and Jews regarded certain animals as unclean and unfit for food. Some of the Americans believed with some of the Talmudists in a plurality of souls. That man was created in the image of God, was a part of the Mexican belief. It was customary among the Mexicans to eat the flesh of sacrifices of atonement. There are many points of resemblance between the Tezcatlipoca and Jehovah. Ablutions formed an essential part of the ceremonial law of the Jews and Mexicans. The opinions of the Mexicans with regard to the resurrection of the body accorded with those of the Jews. The Mexican temple like the Tewish faced the east. As amongst the Tews the Ark was in a sort of portable temple in which the Deity was supposed to be continually present, and which was accordingly borne on the shoulders of the priests as a sure refuge and defense from their enemies; so amongst the Mexicans and the Indians of Michoacan and Honduras an ark was held in the highest veneration, and was considered an object too sacred to be touched by any but the priests. The same religious reverence for the ark is stated by Adair to have existed among the Cherokee and other Indian tribes inhabiting the banks of the Mississippi, and his testimony is corroborated by the accounts of Spanish authors of the greatest veracity. The nature and use of the ark having been explained, it is useless to observe that its form might have been various, although Scripture declares that the Hebrew Ark was of the simplest construction.

And again: 'It would appear from many passages of the Old Testament that the Jews believed in the real presence of God in the Ark, as the Roman Catholics believe in the real presence of Christ in the sacrament, from whom it is probable the Mexicans borrowed the notion that he, whom the heaven of heavens can not contain, and whose glory fills all space could be confined within the precincts of a narrow ark, and be borne by a set of weak and frail priests. If the belief of the Mexicans had not been analogous to that of the ancient Jews, the early Spanish missionaries would certainly have expressed their indignation of the absurd credulity of those who believed that their omnipresent god, Huitzilopochtli, was carried in an ark on priests shoulders; but of the ark of the Mexicans they say but little, fearing, as it would appear, to tread too boldly on the burning ashes of Mount Sinai.

The Yucatec conception of a trinity resembles the Hebrew. It is probable that Quetzalcoatl, whose proper name signifies 'feathered serpent,' was so called after the brazen serpent which Moses lifted up in the wilderness, the teathers perhaps alluding to the rabbinical tradition that the fiery serpents which God sent against the Israelites were of a winged species. Mexicans, like the Jews, saluted the four cardinal points in their worship. There was much in connection with sacrifices that was common to Mexicans and Jews. It is possible that the myth relating to Quetzalcoatl's disappearance in the sea, indicates a knowledge of the book of the prophet Jonah. The Mexicans say that at times they wrestled with Quetzalcoatl even as Jacob wrestled with God. In various religious rites and observances, such as circumcision, confession and communion, there was much similarity. Salt was an article highly esteemed by the Mexicans, and the Jews always offered it in their oblations. . . . The spectacle of a king performing a dance as an act of religion, was witnessed by the Jews as well as by the Mexicans. As the Israelites were conducted from Egypt by Moses, and Aaron, who were accompanied by their sister Miriam, so the Aztecs departed from Aztlan under the guidance of Huitziton and Tecpatzin, the former of whom is named by Acostan and Herrera, Mexi, attended likewise by their sister Quilaztli, or as she is otherwise named Chimalman or Malinalli, both of which latter names have some resemlances to Miriam, as Mexi has to Moses. In the Mexican language amoxtli signifies flags or bulrushes, the derivation of which name, from atl, water, and moxtli, might allude to the flags by which Moses had been preserved. The painting of Boutrini seems actually to represent Huitzilopochtli appearing in a burning bush in the mountain of Teoculhuacan to the Aztecs. The same writer also relates that when the Mexicans in the course of their migration had arrived at Apanco, the people of the province were inclined to oppose their further progress, but that Huitzilopochtli aided the Mexicans by causing a brook that ran in the neighborhood to overflow its banks. This reminds us of what is said in the third chapter of Joshua of the Jordan overflowing its banks and dividing, to let the priests who bore the ark pass through. As Moses and Aaron died in the wilderness without reaching the land of Caanan, so Huitziton and Tecpatzin died before the Mexicans arrived in the land of Anahuac. The Mexicans hung up the heads of their sacrificed enemies; and this also appears to have been a Jewish practice, as the following quotation from the twenty-fifth chapter of Numbers will show: 'And the Lord said unto Moses, take all the heads of the people and hang them up before the Lord against the sun, that the fierce anger of the Lord may be turned away from Israel.' . . . They were fond of wearing dresses of scarlet and showing colors, as were also the Tews. The exclamation of the prophet, 'Who is this that cometh from Bozrah,' and many other passages of the Old Testament might be cited to show that the Jews entertained a great predilection for scarlet. Lord Kingsborough finds other Hebrew analogies in America, in the dress, insignia and duties of priests; in innumerable superstitions concerning dreams; apparitions, eclipses, and other more common-place events; in festivals for rain; in burial and mourning ceremonies; in the diseases most common amongst the people; in certain regularly observed festivals; in the dress of certain nations; in established laws, in physical features; in architecture; in various minor observances; such as offering water to a stranger that he might wash his feet; eating dust in token of humility; anointing with oil, and so forth; in the sacrifice of prisoners; in manner and style of oratory; in the stories of giants; in the respect paid to God's name; in games of chance; in marriage relations; in child-birth ceremonies, in religious ideas of all sorts; in respect paid to kings; in use of metals; in treatment of criminals, and punishment of crimes; in charitable practices; in social customs; and in a vast number of other particulars."-Nat. Rac. of Pac. States, vol. 5, p. 84-91.

(To be continued.)

Selections.

CHRISTIANITY AND MAHOMETANISM.

At the closing session of the Church Congress on Friday an interesting paper on Christianity and Mahometanism was read by Canon Isaac Taylor. He said: Over a large portion of the world Islamism as a missionary religion is more successful than Christianity. (Sensation.) Not only are the Moslem converts from paganism more numerous than the Christian converts, but Christianity in some regions is actually receeding before Islam, while attempts to proselytise Mahometan nations are notoriously unsuccessful. We not only do not gain ground, but even fail to hold our own. The faith of Islam already extends from Morocco to Java, from Zanzibar to China, and is spreading across Africa with giant strides. It has acquired a footing on the Congo and the Zambesi, while Uganda, the most powerful of the negro States, has just become Mahometan. In India Western civilization, which is sapping Hindooism, only prepares the way for Islam. Of the 255 millions in India, 50 millions are already Moslems, and of the whole population of Africa more than half. It is not the first propagation of Islam that has to be explained; but it is the permanency with which it retains its hold upon its converts. Christianity is less tenacious in its grasp. An African tribe once converted to Islam never reverts to paganism, and never embraces Chris-Though quite unfitted for the tianity. higher races, it is eminently adapted to be a civilizing and elevating religion for barbarous tribes. Christianity is too spiritual. too lofty. Islam has done for civilization more than Christianity. ("Oh, oh.") Take, e. g., the statements of English officials or of lay travellers as to the practical results of Islam.

When Mahometanism is embraced by a negro tribe, paganism, devil worship, fetishism, cannibalism, human sacrifice, infanticide, witchcraft, at once disappear. The natives begin to dress, filth is replaced by cleanliness, and they acquire personal dignity and self-respect. Hospitality becomes a religious duty, drunkenness becomes rare, gambling is forbidden, immodest dances and the promiscuous intercourse of the sexes cease, female chastity is regarded as a virtue, industry replaces idleness, license gives place to law, order and sobriety prevail, blood feuds, cruelty to animals and to slaves are forbidden. A feeling of humanity, benevolence, and brotherhood is inculcated. Polygamy and slavery are regulated, and their evils are restrained. Islam, above all, is the most powerful total abstinence association in the world, whereas the extension of European trade means the extension of drunkenness and vice and the degradation of the people; while Islam introduces a civilization of no low order, including a knowledge of reading and writing, decent clothing, personal eleanliness, veracity, and self-respect. Its restraining and civilizing effects are marvellous. How little have we to show for the vast sums of money and all the precious lives lavished upon Africa! Christian converts are reckoned by thousands, Moslem converts by millions. These are the stern facts we have to face. They are extremely unpleasant facts; it is folly to ignore them. We ought to begin by recognizing the fact that Islam is not an anti-Christian faith, but a half Christian faith-an imperfect Christianity. (Oh.) Islam was a replica of the faith of Abraham and Moses, with Christian elements. Tudaism was exclusive. Islam is cosmopolitan—not like Judaism, confined to one race, but extended to the whole world. Moslems acknowledge four great teachers-Abraham, the friend of God; Moses, the prophet of God; the Lord Jesus, the work of God; and Mahomet, the apostle of God. In the creed of Islam the Lord Jesus stands the highest of the four. Though the teaching of Mahomet falls grievously short of the teaching of St. Paul, there is nothing in it antagonistic to Christianity. It is midway between Judaism and Christianity. It is better than Judaism, inasmuch as it recognises the miracles and the Messiahship of Jesus Christ. This reformed Judaism swept so swiftly over Africa and Asia because the African and Syrian doctors had substituted abstruse metaphysical dogmas for the religion of Christ. tried to combat licentiousness by celibacy and virginity. Seclusion from the world was the road to holiness, and dirt was the characteristic of monkish sanctity. The people were pratically polytheists, worshipping a crowd of martyrs, saints, angels. Islam swept away this mass of corruption and superstition. It was a revolt against empty theological polemics; it was a masculine protest against the exaltation of celibacy as the crown of piety. It brought out the fundamental dogma of religion—the unity and greatness of God. It replaced monkliness by manliness. It gave hope to the slave, brotherhood to mankind, and recognition to the fundamental facts of human nature.

The higher Christian virtues—humanity, purity of heart, forgiveness of injuries, sacrifice of self—these are not the virtues of Islam. The Christian ideal is unintelligible to savages; but the lower virtues which Islam inculcates are what the lower races can be brought to understand-temperance, cleanliness, chastity, justice, fortitude, courage, benevolonce, hospitality, veracity, and resignation. They can be taught to cultivate the four cardinal virtues, and to abjure the seven deadly sins. The Christian ideal of the brotherhood of man is the highest; but Islam preaches a practical brotherhood—the social equality of all Moslems. This is the great bribe which Islam offers. The convert is admitted at once to an exclusive social cast; he becomes a member of a vast confraternity of 150,000,000. A Christian convert is not regarded as a social equal, but the Moslem brotherhood is a reality. have over much "dearly beloved brethren" in the reading desk, but over little in daily life. (Laughter). True, the Koran offered a material paradise, but the social privileges attained in this world are a more potent motive. The Jews, of all races the most susceptible to lofty religious ideas, needed, nevertheless, a training of two thousand years before they were fitted for the higher teaching of Christ. Can we expect the negro, with a low moral and cerebral development, with centuries of fetishism and savagery behind him, to receive at once that lofty Christian morality for which even the prophets and heroes of Hebrew history were not prepared? The teaching of Islam is not too spiritual or too exalted, but it is the school which may educate the African into fitness for a higher faith. The Church of England has not been able to make any permanent impression on the African. Islam, with its material paradise, or the Salvation Army, with its kettledrums-(laughter), or the Church of Rome, with its black madonnas, may be able to descend to the level of the negro, but the Church of England, with its Thirty-nine Articles, will not be the Church of equatorial Africa for many generations. The two great practical difficulties in the way of the conversion of Africa are polygamy and domestic slavery. Mahomet, like Moses, did not prohibit them; that would have been impossible; but he endeavored to mitigate their evils. Slavery is no part of the creed of Islam. It was tolerated as a necessary evil by Mohamet as it was by Moses and St. Paul. In the hands of the Moslem it is a very mild institution, far milder than negro slavery in the United States. Polygamy is a more difficult question. Moses did not prohibit it. It was practiced by David, and it is not directly forbidden in the New Testament, though contrary to its spirit. Mahomet limited the unbounded license of polygamy; it is the rule rather than the exception in the most civilized Moslem lands, European Turkey, Algiers, and Egypt. The more intelligent Moslems are of opinion that the time is coming for its restraint or abolition as unsuited to the times.

The Bishop of Lahore, among others, has made a courageous protest for the admission of polygamous converts to baptism, though not to holy orders. It is unreasonable and cruel to expect a convert to put away a wife to whom he has been lawfully married by the law of Islam. Are these women, the mothers of a man's children, to be turned adrift to a life of No man fit to become a ignominy? Christian would be capable of such an unnatural and cruel act. Polygamy, with all its evils, has its counterbalancing advantages. It has abolished female infanticide, and gives every woman a legal protector. Owing to polygamy Mohametan countries are free from professional outcasts, a greater reproach to Christendom than polygamy is to Islam. strictly regulated polygamy of Moslem lands is infinitely less degrading to women and less injurious to men than the promiscuous polyandry which is the curse of Christian cities and which is absolutely unknown to Islam. The polyandrous English are not entitled to cast stones at polygamous Moslems. (Hear, hear.) Let us first pluck out the beam from our own eve before we meddle with the mote in our brother's eye. The four chief evils of Mahometan lands-polygamy, slavery, servile concubines, and license of divorce are no exclusive reproach to Islams. Within our own memory, if not now, they have all prevailed in aggravated forms in the United States—a land nominally Christian and peopled by a race of English brotherhood. If Christian missions are to make any way in Africa we must change our tactics. European teachers will never Christianise Africa-the experiment has been tried and has failed. climate alone is a fatal obstacle and the social gulf is too wide. The heathen tribes can only be converted by bringing over from the United States, civilized Christian negroes in large numbers. With regard to Moslems, can we not attack the fortress of Islam from within, rather than from without? Instead of raising antagonism by denouncing Mahomet as a false prophet and Moslems as Infidels, let us begin by showing, not how much Christianity differs from Islam, but how much it resembles it. Let us remember that in some respects Moslem morality is better than our own. In resignation to God's will, in temperance, charity, veracity, and in the brotherhood of believers, they set us a pattern we should do well to follow. Islam has abolished drunkenness, gambling, and prostitution—the three curses of Christian lands. Islam is the closest approach to Christianity which has been able to take hold of eastern or southern nations. It is superior to the groveling superstition of the Coptic and Abyssian Churches. Moslems are already imperfect Christians; let us try to perfect their religion rather than vainly endeavor to destroy it, and we may possibly transform Islam into Christianity. Thus we may find that in God's scheme Mahomet has been preparing the way for Christ. (Cheers.)—Manchester Times, October 11th, 1887.

LIFE OF JOHN GARNER.

To George Lord, Sr., President, and to the Officers and Members of the San Bernardino Society of California Pioneers.

BROTHERS:-Your committee consisting of Pioneers W. F. Holcomb, B. B. Harris and John Brown, Jr., appointed to prepare a memorial of the life of Pioneer John Garner, beg leave to report that they have endeavored to gather as much of the family history of deceased as possible with a view to cary out the wishes of this society in its desire to preserve and transmit the memory of its members to their children. We find that Pioneer John Garner is the fourth member called away from earthly scenes during the past year. Pioneer Benj. F. Matthews was the first to break our circle; then followed Pioneers Peter A. Forsee, Hardin Yager and now, John Garner.

Having all along the journey of life dealt honorably with his fellow man, and sincerely and devotedly pursued his religious convictions until death, Pioneer John Garner expressed a willingness to close his eyes on the scenes of this world, and trust for his reward in heaven. With patience he bore his last illness, and was conscious until the last. When the last hour was nigh he called his children to his bedside, and with a father's admonition. shook hands and bid them all an affectionate farewell. While he disliked to leave them he stated to them that he wanted to see his mother and also his wife. He was prepared to go, and

> By an unfaltering trust approached the grave, Like one that draws the drapery of his couch About him and lies down to pleasant dreams.

Pioneer John Garner was born in Davidson county, North Carolina, May 1st, 1820, and died at his home in Newport, Los Angeles county, California, February 26th, 1889, lacking two months of reaching his 70th year. His father's name was David Garner. He died in Harrison county, Iowa, at the remarkable age of 105 years. His mother's name was Elizabeth Jane Garner, her maiden name being Rawson. She died in San Bernardino, April 3d, 1868, at the advanced age of 81 years.

David and Elizabeth Jane Garner raised a large family, six sons, John, George, Henry, William, David and Philip; and five daughters, Nancy, Myranda, Sarah, Eliza, and Elizabeth. All of the above died except William, who lives at Council Bluffs, Iowa; Henry, who lives at Magnolia, Harrison county, Iowa; David, who resides at Ogden, Utah; Sarah, residing in Harrison county, Iowa; and Eliza, in the Missouri Valley.

David came to visit his brother John during his last sickness and started on his return home on his seventy-first birth-

Like many of our Pioneers, John left his home in Davidson county when a boy, and went to Lima, on Bear Creek in Hancock county, Illinois, where his brother George lived. Here he worked on the farm, and when of age married Mary Ann Rawson and removed to Nauvoo, where he lived about five years. when in 1846 he crossed the plains to Council Bluffs where he remained two years, and where his two children, Syrinda and Rebecca, died of diphtheria. From here he continued his journey westward across the plains to Salt Lake, where he arrived in 1849. On March 1st, 1851, he started for San Bernardino with three wagon trains in charge of David Seely, captain, Jefferson Hunt and Andrew Lytle, arriving at Sycamore Grove, south of Martin's old station, near the Cajon Pass, on June 20th, 1851, where a camp was made until arrangements could be made for the settlers to locate in the valley, after which negotiations were made for the purchase of San Bernardino Rancho from the Lugo family, and thus began the settlement of the San Bernardino valley. Among the number who came with these trains were Pioneers Edward Daley, Sheldon Stoddard, James Coburn, Harley and Nathan Swartout and Jerry McElvain, the latter drove one of the ox teams for Mr. Garner. The western part of the valley was selected by Mr. Garner as his home, and Garner's Grove will ever be remembered as the the spot where some of the happiest Fourth of July and May day celebrations have been held. Twice Mr. Garner was elected as supervisor of the county, and discharged the duties of such office faithfully and honorably, his associates on the board being such men as David Seely, James W. Waters, Sr., James Stewart and C. Jensen.

In 1874, after living in San Bernardino continuously for twenty-one years, Mr. Garner moved to Newport with his family, where he continued his favorite occupation of farming and stock raising. His wife died December 11th, 1880, and was brought to San Bernardino, where she was buried by the side of his mother. Since then he has led a quiet life, and through his long sickness suffered without a murmur, being attended by the members of his family.

Mr. Garner has been blessed with the following children: William, John, Mary Ann, Daniel, George, Agnes, David and Sylvester, all residing in Newport, except John who lives at Santa Ana.

At his request his remains were brought to San Bernardino by his family to be laid away by the side of his mother and kindred, by the hands of his old friends, and the pioneers with whom he crossed the plains, and lived happily so many years. The funeral was held on February 28th, and was largely attended, the pall-bearers being selected from the Pioneer Society. A most appropriate and impressive sermon was delivered by Joseph Smith, Jr., President of the Church of Latter Day Saints, and the spiritual adviser of Mr. Garner, in which he paid a merited tribute to the noble life and many virtues of the deceased.

And when we shall enter that narrow valley, through which he has passed before us, and which leads to the Judgment seat of God, may we be able to say, through faith and good works, in the language of the beautiful hymn of the dying Christian—dying but ever living and triumphant:

"The world recedes, it disappears!
Heaven opens on my eyes; my ears
With sounds seraphic ring;
Lend, lend, your wings, I mount, I fly!
Oh grave, where is thy victory?
Oh death, where is thy sting?"
San Bernardino, Cal., March 16th, 1889.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

To the President, Officers and Members of the San Bernardino Society of California Pioneers:

Your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of Pioneer John Garner would most respectfully submit the following:

WHEREAS, Death has again invaded our Society of California Pioneers, and taken from us our dearly beloved brother John Garner; and

WHEREAS, We deeply deplore the loss of one whose honorable and upright life has greatly endeared him to this Society, as well as to all who knew him; thererfore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of our brother Pioneer John Garner our society has lost a most true and upright member, and the community a most honorable, kind and exemplary citizen.

Resolved, that while we mourn in common for the loss of our revered brother, we would extend our most profound sympathy to his bereaved family and relatives; and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the newspapers of this city, and spread in full upon the minutes of our Society, and a copy of the same be presented to the family of the deceased.

Done in friendship and love.

W. F. HOLCOMB, JOHN BROWN, Jr., B. B. HARRIS.

—San Bernardino Courier.

IN JERUSALEM.

We have just passed through one of the most severe and trying storms ever known in this country. The gale commenced on Thursday, December 13th, with heavy thunder, rain, hail and snow to the depth of one foot, which remained on the ground for twenty-four hours. Then the rain commenced to pour down in torrents, and continued till the pools were filled to the top, giving them the appearance of miniature lakes, and the cisterns overflowed.

To-day the sun is shining brightly, and all nature assumes a cheerful aspect. Of course, there is great rejoicing over the almost unprecendented rainfall at this sea-

I learned to-day from a reliable source that more rain has fallen this season, than all through the rainy season of last winter. There were in all, last season, twenty-one inches, and we are only a little past the middle of December. The Kedron is flowing rapidly, and next Sunday thousands will visit our old picnic gounds near Job's well.

The grand topic of interest is the Rail-road. Mr. Frutigar, I believe, is in Paris, in the interest of this road. It will be a rejoicing day for Jerusalem when the screeching, puffing engine shall roll its freight of human beings into the city of the Great King.

Another important item of news I have just learned. A concession has been granted to the Jews to return to this country; but not in large numbers at one time, lest it should cause suffering. This seems to be a wise consideration on the part of the Turkish government.

I can cheerfully say to the friends that the prospect is very encouraging. I have no doubt that much suffering must be endured for a while, in the gathering process. But who are not willing to suffer for the kingdom of God that they may share in its glory.

The markets are full of oranges for six cents a dozen, and fresh vegetables in abundance and in good order.

We learn from Mr. Frutigar's family that he has met with the most wonderful, even almost incredible success in Constantinople and Paris. The Sultan received him with marked attention, invited him to dine, and decorated him with a badge of honor.

In Paris he met Baron Hirsch, and he and Baron Rothschild have taken hold of the railroad scheme in good earnest. Of course it must be a success.

January 4th. On New Year's eve we went to Mr. Joseph's to watch the old year out and the new year in. It is similar to a watch meeting in New England.

Mr. Joseph has told me that he expects to issue his paper, The Witness, from Jerusalem next month. He has brought with him a press and type, and will soon have his office ready for work. He has also opened a reading room where the poor Jews can have the privilege of reading.

Travelers continue to arrive from America and Europe, and the prospect is good for a busy season. The fields are robed in beautiful green, and the soft, gray tint of the olives, supported by the mountain drapery in the back-ground, make a charming picture as I view it from my window.

I am told that Baron Hirsh has proposed to build one-half of the railroad from Jaffa to Jerusalem. I understand he has no heirs, except one nephew. This nephew was here last spring on a visit. He looked quite young, with a delicate constitution. It seems to be the opinion of all, that the building of this railroad, to enter Jerusalem from the sea, by steam, is an opening wedge for greater things to follow. It is very healthy in the city now; business is brisk, especially in the Russian quarters. The price of land is rising, this January 24th, 1889.—Age to Come Herald.

Mads P. Hanson, box 512, Plymouth. Mass.
John T. Davies, 5 Park avenue, Llanelly, Carmarthen shire, Wales.
G. A. Blakeslee, presiding Bishop, Galien, Michigan.
J. H. Peters, Coleman, Midland Co., Michigan.

Conserence Minutes.

KEWANEE

Conference was held at Millersburg, Illinois, March 16th. J. W. Terry president, J. D. Jones secretary. Branches: Kewanee 75. Henderson Grove 45. Rock Island 16. Millersburg 43, t died. Buffalo Prairie 65, 4 removed. Elders M. T. Short, J. D. Jones, D. S. Holmes, J. W. Terry, J. F. Adams. Priest W. P. Terry, and teacher E. Epperly reported. J. W. Terry was reappointed as presididg elder for one year, and J. D. Jones secretary. J. W. Terry was chosen delegate to General Conference. Resolved that we request our delegate to make an appeal to Conference to appoint a missionary (two if possible) to labor in our district and that our worthy district president be one of the number, as our choice, as the state and condition of our district so demand such an urgent request. Resolved that when we adjourn we do so to meet at Henderson Grove branch, June 15th, at 10 a. m. The word was preached by M. T. Short, J. D. Jones and D. S. Holmes. Church authorities upheld by vote unanimously.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Conference convened at Dennisport, Massachuseets, Saturday, January 26th. Bro. W. H. Kelley was chosen to preside, John Smith assistant; F. M. Sheehy and G. H. Gates clerks; M. Gondolf and H. Downe ushers; Susie R. Gates organist; J. N. Ames chorister; R. C. Eldredge, E. L. Kelley and W. Bearse auditors. The district clerk was authorized to act as clerk when he arrived at the conference. Brn. J. N. Ames R. C. Eldrige and H. Downe appointed committee on branch reports. Branch reports from Boston, Providence, Cranston, Plainville, Little Compton, Dennisport, North Plymouth and Brocton were read and referred to committee. Elders present and reporting: W. H. Kelley, J. Smith, F. M. Sheehv, E. L. Kelley, M. H. Bond, R. C. Eldredge, W. Bearse, G. S. Linnell and W. Eldredge. Priests: J. Halstead and H. C. Downe. Deacons: A. B. Pearce and M. Gondolf. Farnsworth reported by proxy. Reported by letter: Elders E. N. Webster, N. R. Nickerson. G. S. Yerrington. Priests: T. C. Moore, A. W. Glover. Teachers; R. J. Searle and W. B. Seland. Deacon: H. C. Hemmerly. Voted that E. O. Toombs be granted an elder's licence; that in the cases of R. Searle and W. Fenner, they be referred to district president and if advisable, to give them licenses as required by them. Smith reported as district president and Bishop's agent. Reports read and Reports read and referred to auditing committe. Additional reports: Elders T. Whiting and J. B. Pierce; Teacher S. S. Wilber. Bro. J. Smith tendered his resignation as district president. Voted to accept the same with the following: Resolved. That we appreciate the labors of Bro. Smith during the many years he has acceptably served us as district president and hereby give expression thereto by tendering him a vote of thanks. Bro. T. Whiting offered his resignation as district clerk. It was voted not to accept and he was urged to continue the office which he had filled with credit, but as he refused to serve G. H. Gates was chosen clerk. that the presidency of the district be lodged with the president of the mission. Amended that Bro. M. H. Bond serve as district 'president. Voted to lay the substitute on the table, also the amendment. Auditing committee reported finding district accounts correct. Report of committee on Reunion was read and approved and committee continued. A petition on Sabbath School Union was presented and endorsed and a committee appointed to act on the matter, consisting of F. M. Sheehy, M. H. Bond and T. Whiting. The resolution discussed at last con-Whiting. ference relating to the Herald was taken up and passed, Resolved, That in our opinion the publication of so much matter in regard to Utahism is harmful to the interests of our church paper. Brn. A. B. Pierce, F. M. Sheehy, M. H. Bond and J. Smith were appointed delegates to General Conference. The matter of district president was taken from the table and an informal ballot was taken by which Brn. M. H. Bond and T. Whiting were selected as candidates. Bro. M. H. Bond was chosen and made the unanimous choice. The following resolution was passed: Inasmuch as several officers in the district have been holding meetings without proper authority, it is hereby resolved that the district president be requested to, under the law, demand the licences of such persons, and if they fail to comply, the conference be requested to not sustain them. Voted to sustain Bro. W. H. Kelley as president of mission with request that he be returned; to sustain J. Smith as Bishop's agent, and all the church authorities. That the next conference be held in Boston, Saturday, May 11th, at 2:30 p. m. Adjourned. Good preaching services and social meetings throughout.

Miscellaneous.

MARRIED.

THOMPSON.—LEONARD.—On March 19th, 1889, Sr. Nancy G. Leonard, (with her child about 6 years of age), arrived in the city of San Bernardino, California, and were escorted by Bro. A. W. Thompson to the residence of Elder J. F. Burton on Fifth Street. About four p. m. the Elder was called upon and married the couple in order sub rosa. The happy couple tarried all night at the parsonage, and at 7: 30 a. m. next day took the cars for the suburban villa of "Laguna Canyon," the place of the now happy and smiling groom's residence on Grand Canyon avenue.

EVANS.—BIRCH.—At the residence of John R. Evans, Cleveland, Iowa, March 25th, 1889, John H. Evans to Sarah Birch, both of Cleveland, John Watkins officiating. Many of the young friends of the codtracting parties were present to witness the ceremony and had a very enjoyable time and many valuable and useful gifts were presented to the happy couple.

DIED.

WALKER.—Elder S. F. Walker was born in New Richmond, Ohio, about twenty miles above Cincinnati, December 23d, 1831, and died at his home in Lamoni, near 7 o'clock, on the morning of April 1st, 1889, after an illness of about fourteen days, caused by pneumonia and heart disease.

His parents settled in Cincinnati when that city had but one brick house, and his father founded the town of New Richmond, where he was born. He received a fair education in the common shools of his vicinity, and also attended Clermont Academy. In 1850 he came west to where Kansas City now is. At that time the Indians were there, the only inhabitants. In 1850-1 he attended Central College at McGrowville, New York. In 1851 he was engaged in engineering on the Mississippi River, and in 1852 he was a student at Wesley University, Ohio, after which he taught school for a time near Richmond.

In the Spring of 1853 he went to California by the Isthmus of Panama, and for seven years was engaged in mining in Sierra county. He was a candidate for the Legislature on the first Republican ticket nominated in that county. He continued in mining matters up to 1859, and helped to start Methodism in Virginia City, Nevada. In 1861 he returned east overland, and called at Salt Lake City. He soon returned to the west, went to Montana, Idaho, Oregon, and thence to California again. In 1864 he located in Smoky Valley, near Austin, and engaged in stock raising, and in 1869 he visited Plano, Illinois, and the same year was united in marriage to Sr. Marietta Faulconer, who, with two daughters and a step-daughter now survive him. After his marriage, himself and family settled at Blue Springs Ranch near Austin, Nevada, where they resided till 1878. In 1876 he attended the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, and in 1878 he removed to where now is Lamoni, and engaged in farming till, in 1884, himself and family moved into the town. In the fall of 1885 he engaged in publishing the Gazette-now Independent Patriot. Not long since he gave to the world his "Ruins Revisited," a book of very considerable merit and that was intended to be the first of a series of its kind, and other germain subjects.

A lover of books, a man of active brain and penetrative thought, his chief delight was in exploring every promising avenue in quest of valuable knowledge. This tended to keep him largely from the ordinary aclive business pursuits of life and make him appear reserved and retiring in his manners. But he was a man of warm and tender heart, of high and worthy purpose, a lover of justice and all right things—a lover of God and man-a deeply devoted lover of Christ and his gospel. Religiously inclined and educated by religious parents amid favoring religious surroundings, he early united with the Methodist Church, of which his father was a minister. In California, in the mining camp, he for the first time heard the religious principles of the Latter Day Saints explained, and he at once perceived they were in harmony with the Holy Scriptures in a most eminent degree. He prosecuted his investigations of them thoroughly, and in time accepted them heartily and became of member of that church and in due time a minister. His soul thirsted after the things of God; and as a consequence he grew in grace and in the knowledge of God, and gave promise of great usefulnese in building up the work of God among men. But our hopes in this direction were doomed; he has been called home by the Master, and we are left to hope that he has passed on to wider fields of duty and progress; to higher joys and honors; to purer, holler conditions of life and being in the society of redeemed and exalted personages who have passed on before, with Christ Jesus the Captain of our salvation.

"After life's fitful fever he sleeps well." He sleeps in Jesus, who said, "I am the resurection and the life;" and, "where I am, there shall my disciple be also."

Young.—Near Lamoni, Iowa, March 28th, 1889, of spinal fever, Tilitha Ellen Young, daughter of Bro. Francis D. and Sr. Grace A. Young, aged 10 years, 1 month and 16 days. She was a good child, an obedient daughter, and much beloved. Funeral sermon by Elder H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Elder Samuel Ackerley.

OBRIEN.-At Ubley, Huron county, Michigan, March 21st, 1889, Whitney S., son of Thomas H. and Anna E. O'brien, aged 3 years, 1 month and 21 days. Funeral sermon by elder Levi Phelps.

KINSEY .-- At Harlan, Shelby county, Iowa, on the 4th day of February, 1889, of spinal disease, Sr. Sarah Elizabeth Kinsey, wife of Mr B. I. Kinsey and daughter of Bro. and Sr. J. B. Swain. Funeral on the 5th inst., under the direction of Elder J. W. Chatburn. A large number of friends and neighbors were in attendance. Sr. Kinsev leaves a husband and seven children to mourn their loss. She was born in Dallas county, Iowa, September 4th, 1854; was baptized July 15th. 1888, at Harlan, lowa, by Charles E. Butter worth. She died in the full faith of the promises of God held forth in the gospel of Christ.

WALKER .- Near Tulare City, Tulare Co., Cal., March 8th, 1889, after ten days sickness of pneumonia and congestion of the brain, Bro. John Walker, aged 52 years, less 3 days. He was born March 11th, 1817, in Oswego Co., New York. His mother died when he was five years old, after which he, with others of his father's family, lived in the house of Joseph the Seer, as a part of his family; and he beheld the mangled bodies of the two martyrs after they were brought from Carthage, their place of slaughter, to Nau-voo, Illinios. He came to this state in 1860, and was married to Sarepta Pate, October 4th, 1866. There have been born to them eleven children, of which ten are still living, six boys and four girls. He and wife and four children were baptized by the writer the nineteenth of last January, and another son by the same on the 18th of this month. They are all now in the church and firm in faith, although tried by troubles and affiiction. Bro. Walker ever bore a faithful testimony to the truth. Three days after he was taken sick, he told his wife that he was not to be healed; and at one time asked his wife to shut the door and place her hands upon his eyes and close them, and then pray that he might go to sleep in peace.

He was a member of the church just seven weeks to a day from his confirmation to his funeral, which was preached at his residence on the 10th inst., from Rev. 20: 12, by Elder J. H.

CHURCH LIBRARY.

We extend thanks to Bro. R. C. Elvin, Nebraska City, for the gift of five books to the library, namely: "The Friends' Intelligencer," 1838: "The Harmony of the Divine Attributes,"

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The North-East Missouri conference will be held at Bevier, Macon county, Mo., April 20 and 21, 1889. Business will convene Saturday, 20th, JOHN TAYLOR, Dist. Pres. at 3 o'clock.

NOTICE.

To whom it may concern: - Officials of North-West Kansas district will please send me their licenses to be renewed according to resolution passed by last district conference held at Blue Rapids, March 30th. Address, H. P. Curtis, District Secretary, Fact, Clay county, Kansas.

FOR THE PUBLIC.

ONE FARE FOR THE ROUND TRIP.

The G. A. R. State Encampment will be held at Burlington, Iowa, April 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th, and round trip tickets will be sold from all C., B. & Q stations to Burlington and return at one fare for round trip. Good going on April 8th, 9th, 10th and 11th, and good to return up to and including April 13th. Here is a chance for all old soldiers to meet their comrades and all others to see the grand parade on April 10th. Go everybody. Tickets can be obtained of C., B. & Q. agents.

JEFFERSON ON MARRIAGE.

Thomas Jefferson, venerated for his wisdom as a statesman, wrote what follows, as true to-day as when his pen traced the words many years ago:

"Harmony in the married state is the first thing to be arrived at. Nothing can preserve the affections uninterrupted but a firm resolution never to differ in will, and a determination in each other to consider the love of each other of more value than any other object whatever on which the wish had been fixed. How light, in fact, is the sacrifice of any other wish when weighed against the affections of one with whom we are to pass our whole life. And no opposition in a single instance, will hardly in itself produce alienations, yet every one has his pouch into which all these little oppositions are put, and while that is filling the alienation is insensibly going on, and when filled it is complete. It would puzzle either to say why, because no one difference of opinion has been marked enough to produce a serious effeet by itself. But he or she finds his or her affections wearied out by a constant stream of little checks and obstacles.

"Other sources of discontent, very common, indeed, are the little cross purposes of the husband and wife in common conversation; a disposition either to criticise or question whatever the other says; a desire always to demonstrate and make him feel himself in the wrong, especially in sympathy. Nothing is so goading on the part of either. Much better, therefore, if our companion views a thing in a light different from what we do, to leave him in quiet possession of his view. What is the use of rectifying him, if the thing be unimportant? and if important, let it pass for the present, and wait for a softer moment and more conciliatory occasion of revising the subject together."-Sel.

NOT A NEW QUESTION.

The question of human liberty is an old one, but our fathers planted the seed of the irrepressible conflict when they framed the Declaration of Independence, and it will go on to its legitimate end. William Lloyd Garrison most truly says:

It seems anomalous that in a nation founded by human beings, long after its centennial, the fundamental principle of its constitution should be still the topic of discussion. Still, such is the case—the question of human rights is up for settlement. Nothing is more trying every year than to be obliged to present old and trite principles as new ones. While every one will admit these general principles, he will deny their application. Does a woman pay taxes, and thus contribute directly to the support of public institutions? To school she has more time to devote than the father. She has a special aptitude for caring for charitable institutions. She would also be a reformer in the direction of maintaining public order, since she is the greatest sufferer from disorder. Yet most people, while acknowledging the truth of these propositions, will say that they do not believe in woman's voting. Woman is crippled in the present condition, and in that proportion dwarfs her husband. We demand the ballot for woman, first, in order that she may defend her own rights. In the present jury system she is tried by another sex. No class of men ever legislated properly for another class. Why are women unreasonable in demanding a voice respecting the expenditure of money that is paid by them for public taxes? "Women must not talk politics," said Napoleon to Mme. de Stael. "Yes, but in a country where women are beheaded, they wish to know the reason why," she said; and the women are going to know the reason why .- Woman's Standard.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one.

EBENEZER MILLEE, Senior,

SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

PATRIOT AT GENERAL CONFERENCE.

We have secured Elder R. M. Elvin to represent the Patriot at the April Conference. will furnish all with sample copies and bills, and will take subscriptions. The design of the Patriot is the reflection of truth, the commendation of virtue and patriotism,—in short, to do good.

LAMBERT BRO'S, Pub's.,

LAMONI, Iowa.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't.

D. F. NICHOLSON, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK of LAMONI

Will attend to any Business for Non-Residents entrusted to our care.

Interest Allowed on Time Deposits.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

West Lexington Street.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

: A Family Newspaper :	TRACTS.	"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."
THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT	No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen 20 per hundred	In cloth 25cts., ten or more, each 20
Provides its readers weekly with	No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; dozen 05	In paper 15 cts., ten or more, each 13 This is the notorious "Manuscript Found,"
56 COLUMNS	per hundred	written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which
Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News,	No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.	so much has been said in connection with the
Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thorough-	dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000,1 75	theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and mate-
Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Per- sonal departments, and aims to keep its readers thorough- ly acquainted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy	No. 5.—The Gospelprice the same as No. 4.	rial from which to write the Book of Mormon.
free. One dollar per year.	No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who	REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.
free. One dollar per year.  LAMBERT BROTHERS, Publishers, 25ang Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.	Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100. 1 75	In paper 10 cts., per dozen
	No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 05	This is the "Reply of President Joseph Smith
TO ELDERS, PRIESTS, AND OTHERS.	per hundred	to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of Plural Marriage."
TO all persons sending us the names of Two PERSONS as subscribers to the INDEPENDENCE GAZETTE	per hundred	BRADEN - KELLEY DEBATE.
for one year, with the cash, we will send, prepaid, a copy of the "Elders' Diary." The subscription price of the	No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Script-	Cloth Boards, 396 pages
Gazette is $1 a year.	ural Standpoint; per doz. 30c., per 1002 25	Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of
We want Agents everywhere, male and female, and will pay good cash commission. Write us for particulars	No. 10.—The Narrow Way; doz. 15c., 1001 10 No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz 30	divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to
LUFF & CRICK.	per hundred	the respect and belief of all Christian people? (2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden am
36jan Independence, Mo.	No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy	a member, the Church of Christ, and identical
SABBATH SC 100L BOOKS.	per dozen 25c., per hundred 1 65 No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen. 25	in faith, organization, ordinances, worship and
Compendium of Faith, for higher classes, bound in sprinkled Leather, each $1.00	per hundred	practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the
The same bound in Cloth	No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen 05	Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter per dozen	per hundred	Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and ac-
PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE	net of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001 40	cepted with Him?
——————————————————————————————————————	No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-	FORSCUTT—SHINN DISCUSSION.
Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in	fice and Presidency of the Church; doz. 25 per hundred	Paper covers, 194 pages
LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,	No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz. 15	ing of Christ to Judge the world is now past."
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.	per hundred 10	M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible teaches the
	No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of Christ, under the Apostleship, and under	Literal Resurrection of the body from the grave."
HOLY SCRIPTURES.	the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 40	VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.
(Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.)	No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen 03	Discoveries of Ancient American Records and
Sheep or Library binding	per hundred	Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew.
New Testament, inspired	per hundred 1 10	Paper covers, 43 pages 10
BOOK OF MORMON.	No. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 100	CONCORDANCE TO DOCTRINE AND
Roan, sprinkled edges 25	No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; doz. 5c., 100 40 No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100 40	COVENANTS.
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House;	An enlarged edition, 32 pages, paper covers. 10
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.	per dozen 5c., per hundred 40	BRANCH RECORDS.
Sprinkled sheep, or library 25	No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz	Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; print-
Imitation Morocco	No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from	ed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages . 2 00
SAINTS' HARP-HYMN BOOK.	the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 40	DISTRICT RECORDS.
Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges	No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred1 10	Printed and bound similar to Brane' Rec-
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 1 50	No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Ortho-	ords
JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET:	doxy? and an Evangelical Church? Al-	LICENCES, NOTICES, &c.
History of the Reorganized Church, and Auto-	so, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 4. No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 40	Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Li-biography of Joseph Smith.  In Cloth, gilt finished	No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined	censes, each per dozen 12
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear	per dozen 20c., per hundred1 25	Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books 25 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred 40
reading matter; also, three very fine Steel En-	Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen 50
gravings, and a fac simile of the autograph of Jo-	Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 15	CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.
seph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith.	An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.	Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen 40
A complete history of the church up to 1880.	COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.	Annual Statistical Reports, two for 05 Certificates of Baptism and Membership,
JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND	Bound in Limp Cloth turned in 75	per dozen
HIS PROGENITORS.	COWDERY LETTERS.	Certificates of Removal, per dozen
Muslin boards, 312 pages	Containing valuable matter in relation to the Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and	, ,
Leather binding 1 00	Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the	SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.
HESPERIS.	Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.	Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. 50 Prompt Attendance Tickets, 100 for 15
Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy	In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen	" " 1,000 for1 00 cloth, gilt edges	MISCELLANEOUS.	Good Behavior TicketsSame price.
VOICE OF WARNING	The Problem of Human Life Here and Here-	A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:
And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the latter day work.	after, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages 1 50
In paper covers; twelve for $1each 10	Universalism Against Itself; 836 pages 1 00 Josephus, complete, library leather 3 50	Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.
Limp cloth covers, each	Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Em-	BY A. J. MAPES.
JOSEPH THE SEER:	pire, cloth boards, 5 volumes4 00	Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by
His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the	Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols 4 00   Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated) 1 80	Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.
Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon	Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one 4 00	ATTERNA I E A VIC
Defended and Maintained. Paper covers, 200 pages	The Koran, library leather	AUTUMN LEAVES,
This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder	Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols10 00	Published monthly for the
William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society,	The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pam-	Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the church; and it is a most ex-	philus, Bishop of Casarea and Palestine .2 00	Price per year $1.50.
cellent one to be circulated both in the church	Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible 1 75 Bible Text Book	M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.
and among those without, abounding in proofs	Apocryphal New Testament 1 65	ADDRESSES.
never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.	Brown's Concordance of Bible	J. W. Wight, Queensferry, Victoria, Australia. T. W. Smith, Papetee, Tahiti, via San Francisco.
	WATER OF THE THE PROPERTY OF T	r. w. omite, raposee, rantel, via oan francisco.

THE SAINTS' HERA

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE AND CONC. HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN E IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.-Whole No. 831.

Lamoni, Iowa, April 20, 1889

No. 16.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents. are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express,
Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, April 20, 1889

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

In this issue we begin the republication of a series of editorials, written by President Joseph Smith in 1871, on the subject of duty, in which the duties of Deacons, Teachers Priests and Elders are ably and clearly defined.

They will be found of great value to all the ministry, and of especial interest to those who have not heretofore had opportunity of studying them. The one in this issue discussed sets forth the duties of Deacons, and will be followed-as our space permits-by three others, in which the duties of Teachers, Priests and Elders are respectively considered.

"Let every man learn his duty" is the divine injunction, and we give good opportunity for so doing:

Most men are willing to do what the law of the land requires of them, what association with their fellow-men in the social compact makes necessary, and what is clearly pointed out in the church cove-There seems to be, however, a lack of performance in some parts of the church organization; which lack is by some attributed to the want of desire to do what appears to be plain duty.

We have occasionally been asked to point out what the duties of the several officers were. We have from time to time attempted to do this. But from the peculiar condition of mind into which the Saints have naturally fallen, or at least a great number of them, which seems to have induced them to believe that they are to be teachers and not to be taught, we have found the defining of duties a very difficult task.

When, in the presentation of an article in which the duty of an officer is defined, we quote from the Doctrine and Covenants, it is abundantly criticised; and one of the criticisms to which it is subjected, is that "We all know what the language of the law is, can read it at any time; but what are our duties under that law?'

When, to comply with the foregoing inquiry, we essay to point out one by one what we believe to be the duties appertaining to certain officers, that essay meets with the very characteristic rebuff. "Where's your law for that?"

So, whether we quote the law, or attempt to define its unwritten provisions respecting the active performance of duties under our church organization, as contrasted with the unpraiseworthy desire to passively receive the favors of a kind Father, unblest by the faithful endeavor to merit them fully, we are met with what we think to be unfair repulsion.

Were our desire for the general good of the cause less than it is, we should be willing to let the matter rest upon the plain statement of the law itself, suffering every man to demean himself in accordance with his especial predilections, those predilections being created and governed by the circumstances without, and the spiritual increase within the man.

But our desire for the general good is of that sort that we are quite ready to give our opinion of the proper construction to be put upon the declarations of law not sufficiently plain of themselves; and also the proper applications of those constructions, and that law, to the actual life, temporal and spiritual, of those professing the light of the Latter Day Work.

There is but little written in the Book of Covenants specifically defining the duty, or duties of a Deacon; yet everybody supposes that there are duties properly belonging to the office of a Deacon; those which are peculiarly and specifically to be performed by a Deacon, by virtue of his calling; those which may be performed by men holding another office, but should be the special province of a Deacon.

The office of Deacon must be of some importance in the economy of the church, or it would not have been provided for; and the duties of the man ordained to that office must be necessary, or there would have been no appointing him, or any consideration of him or his duties had, in the history of the church.

Of what the duties of the Deacon may consist, may be properly considered; and we shall present a few thoughts upon the subject of the duties of the Deacon.

In a Bible Dictionary published in 1811, the word "Deacon" is said to signify chiefly, "An officer in the church, whose business it is to serve in distributing the elements at the Lord's table, and to provide for, and duly distribute provisions to ministers and to the poor." '

Dr. Buck says that "The office of Deacons originally was to serve tables, the Lord's table, the minister's table, and the poor's table. They took care of the secular affairs of the church, received and disbursed moneys, kept the church accounts, and provided everything necessary for its temporal good. Thus, while the bishop attended to the souls, the Deacons attended to the bodies of the people: the pastor to the spirifual, and the Deacons to the temporal inverests of the church." Acts vi. †

The Scriptures have not much from which to draw instruction upon this point. Paul and Timotheus addressed an epistle to the Saints at Philippi, including the Bishops and Deacons; but nothing is stated about the duties of either Bishops or Deacons. †

In Paul's letter to Timothy, he gives a sort of general sketch of the qualifications necessary for the office of Deacon, but as before does not specify their official du-

There is frequent mention made of High Priests, Elders, Priests and Teachers in the Book of Mormon; but it appears that there was either no necessity for the Deacon, or the office was not of such a character that it would be mentioned in such a history. We can not draw conclusions from this record as to what Deacon's duties are.

Deacons, as officers, and the office of Deacon are referred to in the Book of Covenants, pages 96, 97, 225, 231, 243, 294, and 296 of the present edition; and from the statements found in that book we may possibly derive some instruction.

There are certain duties expressly stated in paragraph 11, section 17, page 94, as attaching to the office of the Dercon, if occasion requires. The duties are "To watch over the church always, to be with and strengthen them, and see that there is no iniquity in the church, neither hardness with each other; neither lying, backbiting, nor evil speaking: and see that the church meet together often, and also see that all the members do their duty, . . . and take the lead of meetings in the absence of the Elder or Priest." They are also "To warn, expound, exhort and teach, and invite all to come to Christ."

It will not defeat the foregoing statement for any to say, "Those are the duties of the Teacher." This is true, but the declara-tion, "if occasion requires," and the closing sentence quite definitely determines it.
The offices of Teacher and Deacon are necessary to the full enjoyment of the Aaronic line of ministry; and from the further teaching found in paragraph 10, section 104, page 291, one of the prerogatives of this ministry was the administration in "Outward ordinances—the letter of the gospel."

* Bible Dictionary, by Brown, page 385.

† Buck's Dictionary, page 110.

‡ Phil. i. 1.

The church need good, kind and watchful ministers, to be with them constantly; to do whatever may be necessary for their benefit, welfare, and spiritual advancement; so far as their especial ministrations may secure this. To provide for this urgent and always increasing want, it is declared that Deacons should be appointed. Our law for this will be found on page 331, section 83, paragraph 22, Doctrine and Covenants.

Deacons must learn their various duties by being instructed therein; and this instruction may be derived from inspiration direct, from the teachings of other Deacons, Teachers, Priests, or Elders, in preaching and in conversion upon the word; or from the actual necessities of the condition of the church, (congregation, association of Saints, or branch of the church), of which he is a enrolled member, and of which he is a chosen officer, called to minister unto and for the church.

Deacons are also expected to act at times as presiding officers, to sit in council, direct, control, and guide the deliberations of that council, and teach the members of it their duty, the duties of their office as Deacons being clearly understood by this. (Doctrine and Covenants, section 104, paragraphs 31 and 38, pages 294 and 296.

We have now gone through, very briefly, what is written, so far as we are at present informed, respecting the duty of a Deacon in the Church of Christ. All the duties spoken of or specified, thus far, are of a general character, and apparently no provision is made for many things necessarily to be done, and which must therefore be considered in the inquiry, "Who shall do them?"

In order that every branch of the church, having a membership of six or more, may receive and enjoy the fullest benefit from their church fellowship and association, it is absolutely necessary that they have and control a place where meetings for worship, fellowship, and business, may be held.

This place of meeting must be kept clean, must be warmed during the season of cold, whenever meetings are held, and must be lighted during all evening meetings. To do all this requires the outlay of time, labor, and money, even under the most favorable circumstances. This outlay of money, labor, and time, must be met, and to meet it "somebody" must act, must in a word "do something."

We begun this article ""

We begun this article with the statement that most men are willing to do what the church covenants pointed out as duties; but this must be qualified to some extent. Many, if not quite all of the duties specifically named in the covenants are of what we may justly call an honorary character. By this we mean that they are those duties more immediately connected with public administrations, preaching, baptizing, laying on of hands, blessing children, and administering the sacrament; duties upon the discharge of which it is supposed there attends the conferring, or the receiving of some special spiritual power; duties to which there attaches, from their nature, some special privilege or prerogative. These are the duties to which the statement of willingness was intended to apply.

The duties just enumerated do not comprise the whole list of things necessary to be done, to secure a healthy spiritual condition in a church, an association of members of a church, called a branch.

We have no written law commanding the appointing of Deacons other than the one cited from section eighty-three of the Covenants. Notwithstanding this lack of positive commandment, the whole body of spiritual authorities of the church, from its earliest history, have considered them necessary; and the custom of appointing them has grown by usage to be a law. If the custom was founded upon a misconception of the law of the church, and has been continued in error by reason of false precedent, it should be abandoned. If on the contrary, the custom was founded upon a wise and just conception of the law by which the church should exist, and has been continued by reason of wise yielding to true prededent, then should the law, made so by custom and use, be sustained and honored.

The unwritten duties of the office of Deacon are not less binding than those specifically defined. The fact of their being unwritten in the Covenants, is not a defence against a charge for their not being fulfilled; the reasons why they should be faithfully discharged more than counterbalancing such defence when it is urged.

These unwritten duties are the ones; which however necessary their performance, or however much the association of church members may suffer because they are not performed, few are willing to perform; their willingness being judged by their failing to do.

We have elsewhere written that every branch must have a place of meeting. This place of meeting, if a public building, hall, or meeting house or church, must be in the actual possession of the association of the church members worshiping there, at least during its occupancy while worshiping; and if the property is owned by the church, some one must have constructive possession at all times. What particular officer of the church has precedence of right to this constructive possession? right to carry the keys: open the doors; conduct visitors, either those belonging or not belonging to the church; to see that the floors, doors, windows pulpit or stand, seats, table or stand, lamps and other fixtures are clean and in good order; to open the doors at the hours of gathering for preaching, fellowship, prayer or business meetings; to see that the lamps or candles are trimmed, lighted and burning in time for all evening meetings; to see that the members coming in find seats; to keep watch over the Saints during the meetings, repressing loud talking, whispering and laughing; reproving the thoughtless and rebuking the giddy; putting a prompt stop to rude, indecent and boisterous acts, by which the propriety, solemnity and peace of the meetings may be disturbed; to exercise kind and diligent supervision over the health and comfort of the Saints while in meeting, by securing a proper ventilation of the room; to light and keep burning the fires by which the room is kept warm; to have charge of the treasury; to receive, disburse and account for the contributions of the Saints intended for the necessary and incidental expenses of the association of members; to keep, preserve from damage, and account for all the personal effects of the association; to visit the poor, ascertain their needs and report the same to the church; and in fact, to perform any and all of those necessary duties by which the welfare of the Saints is secured through a careful administration of the outward ordinances, a faithful employment of the talents entrusted to that man? We repeat the question, Whose prerogative, privilege, right or duty is it, by reason of official standing, to do all these things?

It is not the Elder, for his is the dnty to administer in word, in doctrine, and in spirit; to preach, expound and exhort in spiritual things.

It is not the Priest, for to him pertains a duty to visit the members at their houses; to exhort them to attend to spiritual duties.

It is not the Teacher, for it is made his prerogative to act as a sort of spiritual constable, a kind of general conservator of the peace among the Saints.

It follows then of a necessity that the right, the duty of performing these acts—these unwritten but essential things of the law devolves upon the office of Deacon.

Some portions of the law which may be cited in support of the opinions expressed in this article have been already given, to wit: The general understanding long since obtaining concerning the institution of the office of Deacon, and the duties of that office as cited at the beginning of this article.

The acquiesence of the church, by its constant practice, hitherto, in that construction of the duties of a Deacon.

The actual necessity for the performance of those duties.

The positive declaration that the Deacon shall be a standing minister to the church; and the fair presumption as to what some of the absolute requirements from a standing ministry would be.

The specific appointment of other duties to other officers, and these unprovided for.

What we have here written was not intended to deny the right of any one holding the higher Priesthood from acting as a Deacon; or to deny his privilege to do any and all of the things specified as duties of the Deacon, if he shall so choose and there is a necessity therefor. Nor will the fact of there being good, kind, true and noble men holding the office of Elder, who are willing to perform those duties without a murmur, if they can thereby serve the church, secure unity and provoke some to the emulation of good works, make the law any less void, or detract from the dignity, prerogative and efficiency of the Deacon's office. On the contrary it goes to show that any duty which may be performed by an Elder that comes within the province of a Deacon, that does not sully nor detract from the spiritual efficiency of that Elder, may be far more profitably, honorably and properly done by a Deacon.

Many Elders have thought so lightly of the offices of Priest, Teacher and Deacon, that it has been thought to be somewhat disdainful to suggest that men of any talent should receive the office of Deacon. It has been thought, by far too many, that an Eldership was the lowest position or grade of office which it was honorable to aspire to, or to offer another.

Let every man be esteemed according to the integrity and faithfulness with which he fills the office whereunto he is called; not according to the peculiar honor which is supposed to attach to the office itself. Honor him who honors God by honoring the office ordained of him.

"For there is no power in the church but of God; the powers that be are ordained of God."—Rom. 13:1.

"Nay, much more the members of the body which seem to be more feeble are necessay."—1 Cor. 12:22.

"Let every man stand in his own office, and labor in his own calling."—Doc. & Cov. sec. 83, par. 21.

"Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence."—Ibid, 105:44.

MISSION SAN GABRIEL.

On the way from Los Angeles, by buggy, to San Bernardino, California, we passed through the town of San Gabriel (the angel Gabriel). It is a Spanish town, and a relic of the old Spanish Castilian Catholic supremacy in California. We did not learn when the town was founded, nor by whom. It is some ten or twelve miles east of Los Angeles, and located on a small mountain stream which serves to irrigate the gardens and vineyards of the small town. There are very extensive vineyards all round, and a few miles west is a great winery called the "San Gabriel." (The angel Gabriel "Wine Company" occupies it).

The principal attraction of the town in the way of buildings is the old mission church, which stands at a crossing of the principal street with the Valley thoroughfare leading eastward. The front is a few feet from the road and is enclosed by a dilapidated paling fence, which has been painted a dull white, or whitewashed with lime. The front entrance, seeming not to be used now, has two large doors, gothic in style, hung on curiously wrought iron hinges and closing in the center. One of them appears to be broken at the lower corner. They are massively framed and must have been strong when first made.

The church is of adode, sun dried brick, and is perhaps thirty feet wide and seventy or seventy-five in length, walls twenty or twenty five feet in height to the eaves. It fronts south; but has an entrance on the west side about one third of the way from the front.

The day was warm, and as we drove up to the open door of this old church two carriage loads of visitors were just leaving. The sun glistened against the white walls, in almost a dazzling way; and as we passed into the cool shade afforded by the inside, we pause for a moment to remove our hats, and accept the awe in which one should feel when visiting the shrines where men of the past have worshiped, and men now bow in reverence.

A few Mexican, or Spanish women were seated on the wooden benches, two rows of which lined the sides of an aisle some four or five feet wide, running from the altar rail to the door upon one side and nearly to the wall of the vestibule at the front; the room being some fifty-five or sixty feet long. We, Bro. Joseph F. Burton and self, were met near the door by a priest, or sacristan, wearing the black dress of the Catholic orders, tall, middleaged, spare and bare headed. His manner was easy, deferential and devoted. We explained to him that we were passing and called to take at the church in his charge. He was pleasantly talkative, and conducted us to the space in front of the altar, where we paused while he in careful language explained what was to be

The altar was cut off from the rest of the building by a railing some thirty inches The altar was some two or in height. three feet higher than this railing and was covered with the cloths, candlesticks and candles, and other paraphernalia of the Catholic worship. Above the altar a statue representing the angel Gabriel. having wings, stands with raised hands as if watchful of and blessing the room and all in it. The legend "San Gabriel," in Latin, tells who the figure is. To the left of the altar, looking toward it, occupying separate pedestals one above the other, stand San Augustin, (St. Augustine), the founder of the Order of the Monks of St Augustine, or Augustinian Order of Monks; above him, San Antonio, (St. Anthony), the Patron Saint, and warrior defender of the church. To the right of the altar arranged as upon the left, stand San Francesca (St. Francis) the tounder of the Order of Saint Frances, or Franciscan Order of Monks; below him stand San Dominicus, (St. Dominick), the founder of the Dominican Order of Monks. These statues are not large, but appear to be of small, light men, are well executed, and the attendant priest said were good like-

Ranged upon the side walls beginning at the altar rail, are pictures, full length. Upon the left, looking forward from the altar, Mary, the mother of Jesus, which we were assured was a most excellent like ness of the Sainted Virgin; next to her, San Juan, (St. John); then Santiago, Menor. (St. James, the Less); Santiago, Major, (St. James, the Great); San Luca, (St. Luke). Of this portrait the priest remarked: "Ah! what depth, what wisdom, what power, what fire! Truely, he was a wonderful man."

We could but concede in our minds that the face of St. Luke, as it glowed upon the canvas, justified his expressions of praise. Personally, the writer thought that it was well that the man whose pictured face we saw "as in a glass, darkly," had been by destiny the historian of the New Testament Scriptures. San Pablo, (St. Paul), hung somewhere on this eastern wall, but memory fails to place him exactly. The face of this picture was not nearly so striking as that of St. Luke. On the opposite, western wall, beginning at the altar rail, was the picture of the architect of the church, whose name we failed to catch; then followed San Bartolomi, (St. Bartholomew); San Mateo, (St. Matthew); and we think San Filipe, (St. Phillip), and San Andreas, (St. Andrew). Of the last we are not so sure, as we made no note at the time.

In front of the altar rail, and reached by steps from it, was the pulpit, a round structure raised some feet from the floor, in which the preacher could stand, look down upon and address the congregation seated below. This pulpit was placed against the eastern wall. On the western side and behind the open door, against the wall was a small curtain enclosed cabinet that we took to be the confessional; the spot where, kneeling before the hidden priest, the devotee might wail forth his sorrow, or despair, confess his wrongs of thought, or word, or deed; and receive from the man behind the vail, comfort, admonition, reproof, censure, condemnation, or absolution; as the case might demand, or the mood of the hidden priest dictate. In the light of the noon-day sun shining in at the door and window, that small confessional looked innocent enough. but memory recalled the long contest and bitter warfare so fiercely urged against "auricular confession," and the assumption of power to "forgive sin;" which was there embodied. If the Catholic Church has been falsely accused by the fierceness of Protestant hate, and auricular confession is as innocent as that small cabinet looked, an august rekoning awaits some.

The floor of this old time church is paved with cement; except where the seats were placed, which seats are only wooden benches of very primitive pattern. The pavement looked hard enough and cold enough, we thought, to satisfy any devoted Catholic to kneel upon in worship or penance, without the addition of anything to hurt the knees.

The roof is supported by a framed work of massive timber, unpainted, but smooth and oiled till it has a finished and polished appearance. In contrast with the whitened walls, the dark surface of the timbered ceiling has a pleasant effect upon the eye, and gives relief from the glare of the sun outside.

The labored accent of the priest, as he talked to us in our own tongue, indicated that he was either German, French, or Italian, we could only guess which. He was evidently a scholar, for the words he used were well chosen, the result of good taste and judgment on his part. He was a little above medium height, slender and compact; his face was not large, his head was high and with his hair brushed straight up and back from his forehead. showed the student and scientious religionist, pleased with his calling and anxious to do it well.

We saw one of the visitors, a lady, return from her company, down the ailse and drop a coin of the realm into the opened hand of the priest furtively extended to receive it. It was a suggestive action, and recalled us from the reverential mood in which popes, cardinals, prelates, monks, friars, nuns, Jesuits, monasteries, nunneries, cowls, stoles, mitres and image and display in worship were all commingled to the level of every day life in money getting, money juggling California-and, taking the suggestion, we replenished the little store in the sacristan's hand a dime or two, being careful not to let our left hand know what the right hand did.

It was a mean thing to do, so it seemed for a moment of time, and the writer at least felt shamed; but the matter of fact way in which the coin was received showed that if it was unusual for us, it was not a surprise to the receiver. Out in the open air, and a look at the few remaining tokens of Castilian occupation under the old time Catholic supremacy, reconciled us to the tribute, as it must be needed.

It is not a pleasant thought, that as Spanish greed subdued the Indian tribes of this sunny land, and erecting the cross, the emblem of Catholic Church supremacy, overrode opposition, slew heretics. imposed penalties and gathered from impeverished communities the shekels which enriched Imperial Rome; so in its turn, that splendid phase of physical existence in which to breathe and eat, with trust upon the priests for future welfare, was a luxury enjoyed by the faithful in this then pleasant land, is fast being pushed into the realm of things which have been, by a race of money hunters, money getting men, who get not for God, not for the church, not for the future glory of a universal mother of all faiths, but for self and its interests alone.

While we thought of the long night of oppression under which the existence and fame of Fernandez and Cortez had been possible, and thought of the cruelties inflicted by them in the Spanish conquests, for gold, it was painful to think that so few relics of the Spanish occupation along the western shores of America were left: and that all too soon the last vestige now remaining would be erased, or worse still, be covered by some greedy money grasper as a show exhibited to pleasure hunters at a dime a head.

The old church at San Gabriel was begun in 1771 and was finished in 1778. It is crumbling into decay, and he who traverses the dusty, sandy lanes of southern California a few decades from now, may not be able to find it, lost as it may be in some modern, garish settlement of pleasure loving, time serving men of this last dispensation; "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God."

These Catholic fathers, Jesuitical though they may have been, were wonderfully devoted to the showy worship and the legendary supremacy of the church which they represented. Faith, hardihood, energy unbounded, marked the progress made by them. There were good men, grand men among them, who did all they could to lift the Indian from his squalor and teach him of God. True, many of them ruled wickedly and oppressed them over whom they were placed; but the onward march of what the white man is pleased to call a higher civilization has been more cruel, if possible, for it is a civilization that exterminates.

VERY ENCOURAGING, INDEED.

IT appears that the ministers of the Presbyterian Church are moving along in the lines of human inquiry, until the extreme deadness of the churches from spiritual life demands an answer from them as to its causes; and, following the bent of human nature, by which the cause of our not having what we should have is not sought for within ourselves, but in some others; by which the blame for our shortcomings is thrown upon everything else rather than upon our own failure to obey divine commands; these spiritual teachers are groping in the darkness round them for their "great enemy."

From the San Francisco, California, Examiner for March 26th, we clip the following:

"CHRISTIANITY'S ENEMIES.

"Chaplin Blake presided at the weekly meeting of Presbyterian Ministers in Calvary Church yesterday morning.

"Rev. Dr. S. B. Bell opened the discussion of the question, "What is the Greatest Enemy of Christianity at the Present Day?" The answer to this question he considered to be the natural disinclination of the human heart to receive religious truth.

"Dr. Alexander thought the greatest enemy to be rationalism; Rev. Dr. Kerr materialism; Dr. Dobbins intemperance; Bishop Vladimir disunity and too many church denominations differing in doctrine and creed.

"Rev. Dr. Fraser thought there was too little preaching of faith and repentance and Rev. Dr. Carrington expressed as his opinion that false morality, intemperance and selfishness lay at the bottom of most opposition to Christianity."

In this we have the following formulated thoughts:

- 1. Pre yterian ministers have concluded that their Christianity has enemies, and that one enemy is greater than another.
- 2. That these ministers are anxious to find out what this greater enemy is.
- That they can not agree in regard to

If we should be permitted to suggest to these disagreeing gentlemen anything to help them to find their enemy we should do so about this way:

1. What is Christianity?

2. Is the Christianity of Presbyterianism the Christianity of Jesus, the Christ, and of the New Testament?

- 3. Is not disobedience the sin of the world?
- 4. Does not the command of God through Jesus require obedience?

5. Is there any promise of light or life except upon obedience?

6. If disobedience is the sin of the world, and there is no promise except it is based on obedience, is not the real enemy whom these ministers seek the sin of disobedience to God's commands? We think so.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Elder J. R. Cook, writing from Sacramento, California, March 31st, says:

"I have lately baptized seven noble ones-two mothers, two young ladies, and one promising young school-master, who desires to preach the gospel. And a goodly number are investigating, and four have declared their intention of obeying the gospel."

In a business letter to the office, Bro. Nicholas Trook writes from The Dalles, Wasco county, Oregon:

"Tell the Editor of the Herald to let the Saints know where we are, that the traveling ministry may find us. We would like to know if any live near this place, so we could correspond with them. The people seem kind and hospitable."

IMMORTALITY.

Selected.

A well-known English essayist, a member of the ethical cult to which George Elliott belonged visited Stratford-on-Avon lately, in company with a professor of natural science from one of the great colleges. They were discussing the question of immortality.

"I believe in a God," said the essayist. "I believe that I have a soul, and that my relations to God require that I should keep it pure and should try to benefit my fellow-creatures while I am in the world; but I do not believe that my soul exists after the dissolution of my body."

"For my part," replied the scientific man, "I know it to be a fact that every atom of matter which was in the world at its creation is in it now. Now, if the God in whom you believe thought it worth while to preserve matter for countless ages to make that lump of mud on your shoe, why should He allow the mind of Shakespeare or the soul of holy Jeremy Taylor to perish after a few years' service in the world? That would be but poor economy, to my thinking."

As forcible as this remark, though less rhetorical in expression, was the reply of the old negro in Richmond, when a flippant young fellow tried to convince him that there was no life here-

"Dahs lots of wohk, sah, which I was made fit to do, dat I neber had de chance to do in dis worl', I got de powers in my head for it, neber used. Jess like when young mahs go on jouhney he pack all de cloes he spects to use. De good Lohd pack my trunk. He no fool. He pack no cloes but what I kin use-sometime. De time'll come to use dem. shuah."

John Stuart Mill, standing by his brother's dead body, said: "Here reason ends and faith begins." But reason as well as faith teaches us that there must be a life beyond the grave in which the problems of this are solved, and seeming wrongs are shown to be truth and justice.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Oh, for the death the righteous die! An end like Autumn's day declining, On human hearts, as on the sky, With holier, tenderer beauty shining; As to the parting soul were given The radiance of an opening Heaven?"

BEYOND!

Beyond life's toils and cares.

Its hopes and joys, its weariness and sorrow; No sleepless nights, its days of smiles and tears, Will be a long sweet life, unmarked by years, One bright unending morrow.

Beyond time's troubled stream, Beyond the chilling waves of death's dark river, Beyond life's hovering clouds and fitful gleams, Its dark realities and brighter dreams, A beautiful forever.

No aching hearts are there,

No tear dim'd eye, no form by sickness wasted, No cheek grown pale through penury or care, No spirits crushed beneath the woes they bear, No sighs for bliss untasted.

No sad farewell is heard,

No lonely wail for loving ones departed, No dark remorse is there o'er memories stirred, No smile of scorn, no harsh or cruel word, To grieve the broken hearted.

No long dark night is there,

No light from sun or silvery moon is given. But Christ the Lamb of God, all bright and fair, Illumes the City, with effiulgence rare, The glorious light of heaven!

No mortal eye hath seen

The glories of that land beyond the river; Its crystal lakes, its fields of living green, Its fadeless flowers, and the unchanging sheen, Around the throne forever.

PRAYER UNION.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR MAY.

rst Thursday-1 Peter 2: 12; 2 John 9; Rev. 2:7. 2d Thursday—Hebrews 10: 22-25.

3d Thursday-Matt. 9:41-44; D. & C. chapter

4th Thursday-D. & C. chapter 3; Romans 1: 16; 1 Cor. 4: 20.

5th Thursday-Ezek. 36: 33-35.

ELEANOR.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Sr. E. June Hampton, of Dumas, Missouri, requests your prayers that she may be restored to health.

Sr. Mary E. Weeks of Grimes, Iowa, desires your prayers in her behalf, that her life may be spared to her husband and five small children.

Sr. Anna Robertson, Hartford, Michigan, desires your prayers that God may restore her health. Her life has been spared in answer to prayer when the Doctor said she could not live an hour, and she desires, for the sake of her husband and children to be entirely restored if it be God's will.

Sr. Harriet C. Tesler, of Deep Water, Missouri, requests your prayers in behalf of her sister, that her health may be restored.

THE following letter should have appeared sooner, but was mislaid by mistake.-Ed.

NORTH PLATTE, Feb. 13th.

Dear Sisters:- I have just been reading the Herald letters in issue for February 9th, and when I came to Sr. Anna Phelps' letter it awakened a train of thought which I can not well shake off, and I feel constrained to write a few words.

"Forty Saints in one place! What possibilities are theirs. What a power for this great work. What immense results for the good of the cause they have espoused, both by tearing down the high walls of prejudice, and interesting those who fight against this work and doctrine and leading many into the Church of Christ Jesus, if they were alive enough to do it."

As those words meet my eye, I feel like crying aloud, "Awake, awake, put on thy strength, oh Zion; put on thy beautiful garment, oh Jerusalem;" and "Arise and shine for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

How can you wonder that prejudice rules the minds of the unbelievers when those who claim so much more light than any other people can become so careless as to sit idly down with folded arms and let things take their course? God expects each one of us to labor with our might as we have opportunity, by word and deed, and our daily life to show forth the principles of his truth; and surely we should never give the people of the world occasion to scoff at this latter day work by anything we do or fail to do; but we should strive each day to adorn our profession by a Godly walk and conversation, and be alive in Christ Jesus, for it is better to "not sow, than to sow and not pray."

Would it not be a good thing to set apart a day to pray especially for the dead branches of this great tree, that we may all bear fruit for the Master?

Sr. Richards was alone as far as she knew. when she first reached North Platte, but when people asked her what church she belonged to she looked them in the eye and said: "I belong to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." She has been alive and scattered tracts until one M. E. minister said to her: "Mrs. Richards, I wish you would stop scattering your trashy literature around among the people." If every one who has entered into this covenant with God would go forth in his strength and do likewise, it would open the way many times for our elders who have such great burdens to bear. Oh, sisters, wake up, for the night soon cometh when no man can work. Let it besaid of us each: "She hath done what she could." God will surely bless each faithful, earnest worker. In love and faith, Sr. Johnson.

Correspondence.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 31st. Bro. W. W. Blair: - I send you the Tribune giving a very favorable sketch of a sociable held in our chapel, on the evening of the 28th inst.; but it only gives a faint idea of it. To me it was one of the pleasantest affairs of the kind I ever attended. It was gotten up almost entirely by the sisters. When first mooted, the intention was to have a reception for Bro. Joseph. The whole thing was well arranged. A band of little "Hopes" were selected and drilled with great care, and each one was prepared to render their part so perfectly as to reflect credit upon themselves and their teachers-yes, and credit to the church. No pains, labor or time was spared to make the entertainment pleasant to all; and when we learned that Bro. Joseph could not visit us, the good sisters, to make glad the hearts of the little ones, concluded to give the entertainment on the eve of my departure to attend the General Conference, S. H. B. Smith's family joined with us and rendered most efficient aid. Many friends were with us, and the chappel was filled. Noticeable among the friends were the wife and daughter of Patriarch John Smith of the Utah Church. The article in the Tribune does credit to the rendition of the different exercises. There were at least one hundred and thirty who partook of the repast.

The work throughout was well done, and the universal verdict was that the whole affair was a complete success. Many hearts were made glad. None were slighted. If any were not invited who may read this, they may know there was no intention to slight them.

The table was beautifully decorated with flowers by most skillful hands, and everything was tastefally arranged. Fifty persons at a time occupied seats at the table. The food was plain and of the best quality. Many were heard to say it was the grandest spread they had ever seen of the kind. It was no "Boston Baked Beans" or "Pumpkin pie" festival at twenty-five cents per head, but a fine sociable. Only those present can realize the kind, lovable spirit that prevailed. The Saints in this manifested to all the spirit of the Master. The aged and infirm, together with the needy, all were remembered and kindly cared for. There were no reserved seats for high or low, rich or poor. All were cared for as it should be in the household of faith. That one sociable has done a world of good, showing to all that the Saints desire to do good to all. The sisters can do wonders in gospel work. I trust this is only a beginning in Salt Lake City.

R. J. Anthony.

TABOR, Iowa, April 4th.

Bro. Blair: - Everything goes along very nicely; we have made quite a stir in the Richard's settlement, below Sidney, five were baptized, all adults; many others believing. I think if matters can be wisely managed several others will come shortly. We have some sickness to contend with, and a few deaths. Saints generally are feeling well spiritually. Preparations are being made to start our new church.

Yours in Christ,

HENRY KEMP.

LONDON, England, Feb. 14th.

Bro. Blair: Like those mighty ocean liners which come from your country laden with the valuable products of the three kingdoms-animal, vegetable and mineral-the Herald comes weekly, laden with rich stores of untold treasures, spiritual, physical and mental.

After a long, and-as it has seemed to meunavoidable silence, I take my pen to acquaint my beloved American and Australian brethren and sisters of the progress of their Father's work in this, the mighty and wealthy Babylon of the eastern hemisphere.

Not having made Botany an especial study, I know not whether it is a physical law, that those branches, or rather twigs, at the gteatest distance from the parent stem are the first to suffer from frost-bite, mildew, or any adverse influence that may attack the tree, and the last to recover from any such attack; but whether it is a physical law or not, I am tolerably certain that it is a spiritual one of which we, at this distance have, to our sorrow, felt and realized the full force and application.

There is a sense, dear brethren and sisters, in which the soul is more absolutely alone and isolated in a dense crowd, than in the most dense and impenetrable prairies of the far west; and in this sense of the word, our little branch in London has been long in a condition of total and complete isolation from the parent stem. But Jehovah, the merciful, who always knows how to pour forth the benignant shower in the moment of the earth's utmost need, has been mercifully pleased to regard the prayer of the humble and the cry of the contrite, in sending unto us, from the City of Kansas, America, our beloved and faithful brother, Elder William Newton.

You at the headquarters of the great land of freedom and liberty, will forgive me when I confess with tears that we had begun to cry unto our God and to say, "Do they indeed know and regard our lonely and lowly condition? And will the God appointed heads of his church there, compassionate us and send us spiritual aid ere we do fall forever into the grasp of him who, especially in this great and mighty city, goeth about as a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour.

I do assure you that if Almighty God our heavenly Father had spoken verbally to his servant Joseph and said, "Send help unto my children even in London, for they need it," the welcome aid and counsel could not possibly have come at a more opportune time. Personally, I know not who sent us Bro. Newton, but I bear record that both he and they who sent him are the sons of God, for they are led by the Spirit of God.-(Rom. 8: 14.) During this last visit he hasbaptized ten precious souls into the kingdom of the Lamb, in this city, and at Ponder's end alone; but you will understand me when I say that this is but an infinitesimal portion of the real good he has under God effected. The deep and lasting gratiude in the hearts of those who had begun to despair of ever seeing the face of an American brother; the blessed answer of peace to them who, in the depth of their poverty of spirit had begun to exclaim, "Hath God forgotten to be gracious? hath he in anger shut up his tender mercies?"—baffle my feeble powers of description to portray. Now do we know of a surety that our beloved brethren and sisters in the great land of freedom love us, sympathize with us, and pray for us.

The eternal Spirit of prophecy, in a message to Bro. Newton during last Wednesday's meeting testified that he had "sent him to this land to lift up the feeble in heart, and to revive the spirit of the contrite ones;" and blessed be God, he has done it. The message went on to say, "Although thine own brother hath cast out thy name as evil, and persecuted thee, yet I, even I, am he that sticketh closer than a brother."

This, with the rest of the message, was a testimony to me, not only by the Spirit's witnessing power which accompanied the word, but by the additional fact that it was not until the following Sunday that Bro Newton told me that it was a literal fact that at Broadclist, in Devonshire, prior to his coming to London, his own brother in the flesh had persecuted him, and cast him out as evil for the truth's sake and the gospel's. Not knowing till then a syllable of that circumstance, it was an additional proof to me, that to the humble and meek before him, will God reveal things that are secret, yea, and that which is done in darkness shall be shown forth and revealed in and by prophetic light.

To those beloved brethren and sisters from whom I have by epistle received kindly and unmerited words of appreciation of my humble essays on the Planetary and Cometary bodies, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, etc., I return my sincerest gratitude, seeking their forgiveness for the fact that my hands being tied as to temporal things, I have hitherto been unable to respond to their kind and sympathetic inquiries. It is truly kind of them, and I will shortly reply to them all, God helping me.

To sister M. Walker I feel that I, and, (in a sense too, the whole church, and particularly the young of the church.) are under a deep and lasting obligation. Though I have been and still am unable to purchase Autumn Leaves, the epitome of its contents which appears from time to time in the Herald is sufficient to cause my heart to arise in prayer that our heavenly Father may vouchsafe her, for her own consolation, just a glimpse of the good she is doing by its means; and may it yet spread over the civilized world hand in hand with the thrice-blessed Herald.

It may, perhaps, yield a crumb of comfort if I mention that many sisters in our London branch read and highly prize her words of sisterly sympathy and advice in the pages of the Mothers' Home Column; though they have not hitherto written to say so.

I have just risen from perusing a most excellent article by Bro. J. W. Wight on Triune Baptism; (Herald No. 3, p. 40, 41) Without insiduous commendation, I can truthfully say that the entire essay blazes with scintillating rays of spiritual light and intelligence. At the close of his essay the worthy brother halts, and in a partially apologetic tone, desires to be "shown his error, if wrong." This, although exhibiting in a most forcible and favorable manner the writer's humility, seems to almost imply that the brother hesitated in presenting the line of thought, on the ground that it had not been taught before in the church. To my mind, this is simply a stronger argument for its universal acceptance; for if a truth has not been taught before, there is all the more reason it should be taught now. Seeing we, as a church, believe in that divine afflatus which "leadeth into all truth," it follows in the most natural sequence imaginable, that that position, or any position, of the eternal realms of truth, which has not been revealed to me before, will appear not only new, but startling; whereas in point of fact it is as old as the eternities; for all truth is really eternal. Every Saint who is in any degree living his religion has an "unction from the Holy One;" a celestial and (in reality,) supernatural "Shekinah" within his own breast, which, (like that in the ancient Holy of Holies,) glows and burns at the presence of God or the Divine Spirit, and any truth which emanates or emanated from Him; while it utterly refuses to acknowledge any doctrine from whatever source save that of the Deity alone. In other words, when a subject or doctrine is presented in the Herald or elsewhere, we can pray with fervor unto our Father in heaven concerning it; and if we are faithful, the Holy Spirit will burn, as it were, within our bosoms, to confirm the same if it is of God, and is truth; while, if not of Him, the Spirit will utterly refuse to witness with or testify to it.

We should expect to read and to receive from our Father's hand (line upon line and precept upon precept.) truth which at present is not only new to us, but immeasurably beyond our finite comprehension. "Wisdom is justified of all her children." In this light, I say most sincerely and heartily, Write again, Bro. Wight; and those other brethren and sisters who have been visited by the Spirit of truth and have hitherto resisted the promptings of that Spirit, let them send on their teaching or their testimony to the Herald, that others, too, may be blessed and edified.

While looking round upon the well-filled bookshelves of the great library of the Corporation of the City of London, (London, E. C.), I am struck with the thought, what a mighty impetus to the Lord's work in this land would be created, if you, Bro. Joseph, were to send the Curator of the Library a copy of the Church History, and, if you could spare it also, a Book of Mormon; and one of each, also to the great Library of the British Museum, London, W. These two vast buildings containing, the one fifty thousand, * and the other, one million, six hundred thousand volumes, are frequented by authors, journalists, philosophers, astronomers, archæologists, and men of science and learning throughout the known world; not to speak of the ladies and gentlemen of title who may almost at any time be seen there. The volumes would, I am sure, be highly appreciated, particularly if containing the autograph of our beloved president in the title page. The books might also contain, in either a written or printed form, the name of our London place of worship, and the hour of divine service, as follows: "Emmanuel Hall, 275, Old Ford Road, Victoria Park, London, E. Sunday mornings at 11 o'clock, a. m., preaching service; 3:30, p. m., testimony and prayer; 6:30, p. m., the gospel; Thursdays 8, p. m., prayer and testimony.

The press are now beginning, in some quarters at least, to own the sway of truth and justice to the extent of acknowledging that the Reorganized Church is a separate and distinct body to that of Utah, and wholly irresponsible for the introduction and dissemination of the doctrine of polygamy.

I send you a copy of the Star, a new radical paper of a guaranteed circulation of 292,000, devoted largely to the wrongs of Ireland, in which you will find an extract of a letter I sent them in defense of our cause, under the signature of "Proverbs 18:13," and enclosing my card. The editor himself has selected for it a most beautiful and appropriate heading, as you will see by reading it through, "Not unto one of the least of these."

I send also another Star, in which, being Saturday's issue, our meetings are announced under the caption of "Where to go to morrow," announcing also an able and appropriate sermon by Elder Wm. Kendrick, of Stepney, on the "Descent of the Holy Ghost."—Acts 2: 1-4.

I also enclose you a local paper of considerable circulation, entitled the Eastern Argus and Hackney Times, in which you will find a public notice in defense of our cause from the foul stigma of Utahism and polygamy, which, at the desire of Bro. John Briggs of this branch I composed and wrote, and which Bro. Briggs caused to be inserted in three weekly editions. While I read many and exhilarating testimonies received both by brethren and sisters, I can add my humble testimony that not only can Jehovah supply Spirit and matter to his sent servants, but he can also at one stroke deprive our opponents of both. I was at one time preaching alone on the highway at Stoke Newington, (one of the northern suburbs of this great city,) when a gentleman named Squires came up among the crowd, and began putting a number of enquiries the tendency of which were neither to minister grace to the speaker nor good to the hearer. This same gentleman if I am rightly informed, held at one time, (probably at Salt Lake City) the exalted and dignified position of barber to Brigham Young, but has since developed into a full-blown unsectarian minister. I don't know what it was, I am sure, but I suppose it must have been a sudden attack of his old shaving propensities, for he wanted to shave the gifts of the Spirit right off the gospel I was humbly endeavoring to preach. Not because he and his people do not have the gifts themselves, oh, no! he was opposing me on purely disinterested grounds; so purely disinterested was he, that under the guise of being of a fatherly disposition, and old enough, as he said, to be my father, he was advising me in such a fatherly manner, that I could plainly see that if he kept on "advising" in that strain much longer, very little of the good seed I had been humbly endeavoring to sow would remain any longer in the hearts of my hearers. I accordingly lifted up my heart to the Father of all light and wisdom for a brief moment in secret silence, when suddenly he clapped his hand over his eyes in the midst of his cross-examination of me, and after trying in vain to frame the question which had been in his mind, he was obliged to confess that the very words he was going to speak had been taken entirely from him, nor could he think of any single thing he had intended to ask me questions upon. He stood thus motionless for nearly two minutes, with his hand over his eyes and at last rushed out of the crowd without saying another word. I had then all my work to silence the angry feeling of the mob who wanted to bring him back and make him apologize to me for his language, but I begged them to forbear, as I knew that his anguish of mind to be thus confounded before a large number of his own congregation and others who knew him well, without my having said anything which could by any possibility have had such an effect upon him, was quite punishment enough.

*The librarians of the Guildhall and British Museum libraries wrote me that these numbers, viz., Guildhall 50.000, and British Museum 1.600,000, were bound and printed volumes only; exclusive of large numbers of manuscripts and written books,

Bro. Kendrick and myself have both seen marked interpositions of divine providence in the very same locality. On one occasion a man who had been persistently opposing us for a long time, was accidently run over by an undertaker's vehicle, under the wheels of which he and his confreres had endeavored to push Bro. Kendrick. A few minutes previous to the sad occurrence the Spirit said to me, "Behold, unless this man cease to fight against my word, saith the Lord, he shall be sorely punished, and that speedily." No sooner had the words been given to me, as I stood there in silence, than Bro. William uttered the very same words in a loud and warning voice. When the man was being carried away in a bruised and helpless condition by his friends, Bro. Kendrick solemnly warned the bystanders against persistently attempting as that man had done to overthrow and hinder the true and only gospel of God.

On other occasions men have been the Lord's instruments to chastise and silence the opposers of truth and righteousness, as in the following instance, which has a ludicrous side to it; and which, however solemnly I try to think of it, I can never recall without a hearty smile at the strange and surrounding circumstances of the case. Adjoining one of our out door preaching stations at Kingsland, London, is the wood yard of a certain Mr. Causley, who is also the leader of a mission in the immediate neighborhood; and who, (according to the confession of the man himself of whom I just now spoke as having been run over), was the instigator of our persecutions in the neighborhood; for the man alluded to admitted that he was paid by Mr. Causley to follow us up to Shacklewell Lane and Summerford Grove, and endeavor to destroy and disturb our meetings there also. Well, this Mr. Causley with the object and intention of frustrating our success with the people at Kingsland Road, had brought out the harmonium and choir of the mission hall under his control and had taken up a position in the rear of Bro. Kendrick and myself at a distance of about four yards, so as to drown our voices by the combined exertions of choir and harmonium. On the occasion in question, I was standing side by side with Bro. Kendrick, who after our opening hymn generally preaches first, when some men in front said "Oh, there's a go; come and see the preacher fighting." Naturally I turned around to where the men were hastening, when to my extreme astanishment, Mr. Causley was in the midst of a pugilistic encounter with a laboring man who had ventured to call in question one of his (the preacher's) assertions. It was a fall indeed! for only a moment before Mr. Causley was mounted on his oratorical throne, (consisting of a flour barrel) declaiming in loud and grandiloquent terms on the wickedness of mankind in general. Now he was getting decidedly the worst of the encounter with what he had very likely been describing as a "poor ignorant navvy," and, rushing past Bro. Kendrick and I, tore down the next street, followed not only by the aforesaid "ignorant navvy," but by a whole crowd of excited and amused spectators, who certainly did not seem to feel much for him; while his choir, so far from rendering him the slightest assistance, stuck round the harmonium with the energy of despair, singing "There'll be joy, There'll be joy, when we all meet at home in the morning." In spite of "foes without and fears within," the Lord is graciously adding to our numbers from time to time "such as should be saved." (Acts 2:47.)

I was exceedingly pleased with the letter of Sister Emma Lawn in the Home Column of Herald No. 7. The visions were both truly beautiful and deeply edifying. The second one (that in which the attractive serpent was beheld) seems to me to imply in addition to the interpretation already given, that her sister will be exposed to greater temptations than herself, she being nearer the dreaded serpent,—ergo—more under its fascinating influence and power; but sister Emma Lawn, if humble and faithful, will be the Lord's chosen instrument of her sister's rescue and deliverance from evil. She does not say if that sister is a member of the church or not, but if not, I think it in the highest degree probable that Sr. Emma will bring her in. Some most excellent writing on both sides of the "dress" question has been and still is being put in by the sisters. Being a man I perhaps ought to hold my tongue on such a subject, but it seems to me that the character of the dress is of infinitely less importance than that of the wearer. A good and true woman looks, in my opinion, graceful and beautiful in any dress dictated by her individual taste; for if the mind is pure the taste will unquestionably be pure also; for I have unfailingly found it to be a true phrenological principle, that a pure mind not only produces purity of taste, but will infallibly ward its owner against an unclassical and therefore untasteful extravagance or exuberance of attire in any direction.

My mind, for what reason I know not, has for some considerable time been exercised upon the subject of "Boat joggling." I only hope there is not a deliberate intention on the part of some brethren to joggle the boat at the approaching conference. It is a great physical law that the disturbance of the center of gravity of any large body (organic or inorganic) is always attended with considerable danger. Witness the case of the frequent upsetting of the most gigantic icebergs in the Atlantic ocean, and the consequent fearful destruction of life and property to ships and seamen. * Pray, brethren don't try to upset the equilibrium of the boat; or, to use the American phrase which appeared some time ago in the Herald, DON'T JOGGLE THE BOAT. Having been baptized once by proper authority I am quite satisfied. I therefore beg to enter my humble and respectful but emphatic protest against a second immersion at the hands of boat jogglers, whether professional or amateur.

I have received most conclusive testimony of the Spirit that the helmsman God has placed in charge of the Latter-day boat is the right man in the right place, and there the Lord of all will keep him If the jogglers only keep on long enough they will joggle themselves completely into the water, where it is to be hoped they will be baptized into a more peacable and humble spirit; and when, by the great and benificient kindness of our Chief Captain, they are rescued pale and breathless from a watery grave, they will doubtless be glad enough to sit still in that particular portion of the boat where it has pleased a God of unerring and unimpeachable wisdom to place them. I trust that no brother will feel hurt by these humble observations, for I know of no brother personally who is of that disposition, indeed I do not, and I humbly pray that my remarks may only be needed in the sense of a warning against what might be; for I am a firm believer in the truth of the old adage that "prevention is better

I enclose a few verses I composed shortly after joining the Church, now nearly nine years ago. I have not sent them before, not deeming them worthy; and but for Bro. Newton's kind suggestion should not have sent them even now. They are entitled "The Gospel Light Restored."

* Owing to the great inequality of temperature between atmospheric air and water in the Arctic regions, that portion of the iceberg which is submerged is slowly but surely being thawed by contact with the water at a great depth, being far less cold than that at the surface. But that portion of the iceberg remaining still in a hard and frozen condition which lies above water, soon overbalances the submerged portion, owing to the removal of its center of gravity; the consequence being that the huge iceberg turns completely up side down, and weo bettide any vessel, even of the largest tonnage, which happens to be any where in the vicinity.

May the lamp of eternal truth increase in us unto the "perfect day," is the prayer of your brother in truth, F. R. Tubb.

Official.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The fifty-first Annual Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ, being also the thirty-seventh since its reorganization, convened at St. Joseph, Missouri, at ten o'clock on Saturday, April 6th, 1889.

President W. W. Blair called the assembly to order, and on separate motions Alexander H. Smith was chosen as president, pro tem., and Robert M. Elvin as secretary pro tem.

The hymn "All hail the power of Jesus' name" was sung and prayer was offered by Pres. Blair.

By motion a committee on credentials was called for, and the following brethren were selected as said committee; namely, E. L. Kelley of Ohio, F. M. Sheehy of Maine, Charles Derry of Iowa, M. H. Bond of Rhode Island, and E. C. Brand of Kansas.

A committee on permanent organization was chosen, consisting of W. H. Kelley of Ohio, R. J. Anthony of Nebraska, and J. H. Peters of Michigan.

Upon call of the president the following brethren made brief addresses concerning the past and present standing and future prospects of the work of God in the latter days, namely W. W. Blair, of the First Presidency; A. H. Smith, president pro tem. of the quorum of the Twelve; Charles Derry, president of the High Priest's quorum; E. C. Brand, president of the quorum of Seventy; E. L. Kelley, of the Bishopric; and H. A. Stebbins, Secretary and Recorder of the church.

After that the assembly adjourned to meet at two o'clock; benediction by A.

H. Smith.

At two o'clock the hymn, "Nearer, my God, to Thee," was sung and Hiram Rathbun offered prayer.

While waiting for the committees to perfect and present their reports, the president cal'ed upon John H. Lake and Joseph Luff, of the quorum of Twelve, and these brethren responded with a few remarks in relation to the position that we occupy as a people and the work that is being done.

The committee on permanent organization presented their report, recommending as follows:

That Elders Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair preside over the sessions of this conference.

2. That Elders H A. Stebbins, F. M. Sheehy and T. W. Williams act as secretaries
3. That Elder J. T. Kinneman act as chorister.
4. That Sister Aggie Thompson act as organ-4 ist.

That Elders R. S. Salyards, T. E. Lloyd, R. Smith and L. W. Powell, act as reporters to furnish copy for the newspapers and to confer with reporters who may be present representing any literary department abroad.

6. That the daily order of the meetings be: Prayer-meeting at nine o'clock, preaching at ten o'clock, business meetings from half-past one to five o'clock, and preaching at half past

7. That the president of the St. Joseph branch be requested to provide ushers seven o'clock.

8. That the presidents of the conference appoint the ones to occupy the stand at the preaching and prayer services, themselves being requested to be the speakers as often as thought Respectfully submitted. wise by them.

W. H. KELLEY, Committee. R J ANTHONY, { J. H. PETERS,

The report was adopted and the officers chosen took their places.

Pres. Blair said that as Pres. Smith has not yet arrived he would suggest that the body choose two brethren to assist him in his duties as presiding officer; and he would further suggest that one of these brethren be from the quorum of the Twelve and the other from the High Priest's quorum. In accordance with this request A. H. Smith of the Twelve and M. H. Forscutt of the High Priests were chosen to assist Pres. Blair.

The committee on credentials made a partial report, and it was read and amended, and the committee was continued. The report as added to and corrected will be found later in the minutes.

The report of H. A. Stebbins as Church Secretary and Recorder was read:

REPORT OF THE GENERAL CHURCH SEC-RETARY AND RECORDER

The following is an epitomized statement of the labor performed upon the Church Records during the past vear:

I have recorded in all two thousand, six hundred and fifty names, with the items of when and where born, and when, where and by whom baptized and confirmed, and also when, where and by whom the officials among them were ordained

Of these two thousand six hundred and fifty names, one thousand seven hundred and forty-three (1,743) are the names of those baptized during the past year, or previously, and not before reported and recorded; and the other nine hundred and seven (907) were received by letter into the various branches from other branches, or by vote on evidence of previous membership in the church.

During the year I have also recorded the removal of eight hundred (800) members by letter from the various branches to other branches, or of names changed from the record of scattering members to branches with which these have united. A loss of two hundred and seventy-two (272) by death and ninety-three (93) by expulsion has also been recorded. These ninety-three were expelled for having transgressed the law of the land or of the church, or for departure from the faith.

These losses taken from the aggregate gain leaves a net gain of one thousand, four hundred and eighty-five (1,485) for the year. This number added to the total shown in my last Annual Report brings the present aggregate of names upon the General Church Records up to twenty-two thousand, one hundred and sixtythree (22.163), as my books show. There has been a net gain of nearly three thousand during the past two

All parts of the church have been quite fully reported (where labor has been performed) excepting the Alabama, Florida, Eastern Maine, Massachusetts, and the Nodaway (Missouri) districts, and I might add the Society Islands, from none of which districts or missions have reports come that include any part of the past conference year. Since Elder T. W Smith left the Islands no statistics have been received from there. The appended tabular form shows the gain and loss by countries and states:

I have recorded two hundred and eighty-six (286) ordinations, one hundred and sixty-nine (169) of which are new ordinations, as shown also in the annexed table, and one hundred and fifty-three (153) marriages (or changes of name by marriage). A record of each organized quorm is kept by me, and out of the eleven quorums now existing, containing an aggregate of seven hundred men, there have been but ten deaths during the year, a fact worthy of note.

There have been twenty-nine (29) new branches placed on the Church Records, as follows: Leopold, Australia; Breadelist, England; Garafraxa, Windham, Monmouth, Irondale and Waterford, Canada; Lower Lake and Diamond Valley, California; Seneca, Illinois; Woodbine and Kingsley, Iowa; Bay City, Juniata, Free Soil and Pigeon River, Michigan; Kingston, Stanberry and Edgerton, Missouri; Evergreen, Nebraska; Maumee, Ohio; Mount Vernon, Oregon; Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania; Evergreen, New Bandera and Lone Pine, Texas; Rockwalnut, Virginia; Mount Zion and Washington, West Virginia.

There has been an increase in the number of careful and painstaking men appointed as branch and district clerks, which is encouraging, but there is still need of great improvement in the spelling of names of persons and places, and in making out correct reports of gains, losses, and the necessary items, with the correct balance remaining at time of report. A little attention to these details would save a great deal of time and expense in writing to learn the facts.

ELDERS, PRIESTS, TEACHERS, AND DEACONS FOR OHORUM ENROLLMENT.

Of those who have applied during the past three years to be enrolled in quorums the following named brethren yet remain outside of quorum organizations, but they desire to be received and I will present their names to those bodies that have vacancies to be filled. There are in all fifteen vacancies in the five quorums of Elders, four in the two quorums of Priests, but none in the quorum of Teachers, as yet.

ELDERS:-Samuel Ackerly, James H. Adair, Levi Atkinson, N. L. Blakely, E. Day Bennett, Andrew Barr, Henry Broadway, Charles H. Burr, Thomas Burt, T. D. P. Cheeney, David Crow, Jacob Double, L. F. Daniels, Edward Delong, E. W. Depue, Philip C. Fisher, Ulysses W. Green, J L. Goodrich, Wm. M. Gibson, Henry Grim, John Harris, Charles W. Hawkins, David Hopkins, John H. Hunt, William Jaques, Thomas Jenkins, Ebenezer Keeler, John W. Kent. A. B. Kirkendall, A. W. Kriebel, Ekin Lovell, Joseph S. Lee, Edward McGurk, Thos J. Martin, Nathaniel Miller, J. L. Mortimer, A. E. Mortimer, E. W. Nunley, Edward Rannie, Jun., J. A Read, J. E. Rogerson, Peter B. Seaton, S. P. Sherrill, Mitchell Stephens, Andrew Tabbut, Owen Thomas, James Thomas, David Thomas, W. H. Vincent, Henry Way, Thomas Wellington, Lloyd W. Wells, John Wilson-John L. Williams, C. M. Bootman, J. G. Dickenson, Nicholas Rumel, George Shimel, John McKenzie, (Ontario).-59

PRIESTS:-Andrew Anderson, Parley Batten, A. W. Buchanan, Robert O. Grant, A. D. Greer, John Heide, C. N. Hutchins, Andrew Jensen, J. L. Kahler, David E. Lander, Nephi Lovell, Samuel Lovett, Thomas H. Moore, Cyrus H. Myers, D. L. Palsgrove, G. W. Parks, W. P. Pickering, L. W. Powell, W. H. Rhoads, John Shields, H. B. Sterrett, John H. Taylor

T. E. Thompson, C. R. Duncan, Abram Jones.—25.

Teachers:—A. K. Anderson, William Birk, John Coiner, Silas D. Condit, Isaac Cramer, Edward M. Davis, Morgan Davis, J. W. Dumbauld, Pearl Dutcher, Charles W. Earl, Geo. W. Hobart, Lyman Little, J. F. McKenna, J. M. Mills, C. C. Nelson, F. W. J. Ode, W. J. Rainey, J. T. Richards, J. T. Roberts, Thomas Shepherd, E. F. Shupe, William Talbot, W. B. Thatcher, Amasa R. Wilcox, Samuel D. Wilson.—25.

DEACONS:—J. M. Bass, D. S. Bowen, R. R. Gaither, C. J. Nethercott, Thomas M. Parr, A. B. Pierce, Thos. D. Raper, B. F. Renfrow, James H. Smith, L. D. Sperry—10.

I again call the attention of the brethren to the ruling of the General Conference that requires every man to make his own application if he wishes to be enrolled in a quorum, and that he send it to the Secretary and Recorder of the church.

REPORTS OF DISTRICTS.

The following summary of the progress and present condition of missions and districts is taken from the reports of presidents and clerks, as sent to this Conference. Only about one-half of them have reported up to this writing:

English Mission. - Elder C. H. Caton, secretary of the misson writes as follows: "The mission generally, from every point of view, is in good condition. I believe that no opportunity for preaching is left unimproved. Bro. William Newton in doing a good work among his friends, and also in Devonshire and in London, and by letters received seems to be liked. We have only seen him once in Birmingham. We have to encounter obstacles in this country which. I venture to think, are unknown to our brethren in America. This little island may almost be regarded as one city, whose every nook and corner is infested by enticing allurements to encourage people to prefer the broad path of sin and pleasure to the narrow path of life and bliss. What is worse is that the so-called religion of the sects and parties panders to the desires of the peo-Their minds are filled with continued exciteple. ment, and the generality of men do not let their thoughts dwell long on one subject. You may talk with them on politics, the drama, the last murder the latest song, or on any other transient theme, but broach the question of the plan of eternal salvation and they vanish. However, amidst this excitement we labor and faint not, and now and again we add one or two to the people of God. We have a good army of workers, and we can only wish that we had more chances for preaching.

"At our last annual conference Bro. Thomas Taylor was sustained as president of this mission, and I am requested to say that the express desire of the brethren is that he be sustained at the forth-coming Annual Conference in America, in charge of the English Mission. We understand the man and the mission, and long and close experience has proved to us that no better man can be had. Last year I wrote to the quorum of Twelve to this same effect."

Welsh Mission. — Contains 9 branches, with a total of 154 members, including 1 of the Seventy, 31 elders, 11 priests, 1 teacher, 5 deacons; 4 persons baptized, 6 removed by letter, 1 expelled, 5 died; net loss of 8 members. J. T. Davis, president; D. C. Lewis, clerk.

London Canada:—Contains 19 branches, 762 members, including 65 officials. Five new branches have been organized (named in Church Secretary's report), 161 persons baptized, 19 received by letter and vote, 11 expelled, 2 died, leaving a net gain of 167 members. Branches are prosperous, and local elders, priests and teachers are keeping the work along. Of the traveling ministry J. H. Lake, B. C. Evans, W. J. Smith,

J. A. McIntosh, Samuel Brown and John Shields have devoted much time to preaching the gospel. Calls are numerous and from all parts of the district. John Shields, clerk

Nova Scotia. — Contains 2 branches, 36 members, including 7 officials. A gain of 10 by baptism, 2 by letter, and a loss of one by expulsion and 1 by death. Since the arrival of brethren Parsons and Robinson the work has greatly brightened. They have labored constantly since July 1st, 1888, and the prospects are now very favorable. A chapel has been built at Upper Newport, where one branch is located. Aside from erecting this house they have not been able to do much financially. J. C Burgess, president; H. J. Davison, clerk.

Northern Illinois.—Contains 16 branches and 6 fragments, total 792 members, including 75 officials. During the year 27 persons have been baptized, 25 have been received, 29 have removed, and 3 have died, leaving a net gain of 20 members. The work is in fair condition, though local troubles have caused it to languish in some places. Some branches have not reported for a long time. In other parts the cause flourishes. Brethren Short, Foss, Cooper and Pender have labored acceptably. F. M. Cooper, president; W. Vickery, clerk.

Kewanee.—Eight branches, 265 members, including 39 officials. Five persons baptized, 4 received and 4 removed by letter, 2 died; net gain 3 members. The work prospers in some places, while in others it does not. They desire the appointment of J. W. Terry for constant labor there. He is now district president; J. D Jones, clerk.

Nauvoo and String Prairie.—Five branches, 294 members, including 27 officials. Six persons baptized, 5 received and 9 removed by letter, 3 died, leaving net loss of 1 member. Of the General Conference appointees A. H. Smith, M. T. Short, James McKiernan and Thomas Wellington have done ministry work in the district. Bro. McKiernan, president, has held several series of meetings in the various branches, and at other points. G. P. Lambert, Cerk.

Southern Indiana — Nine branches, 208 members, including 30 officials. Gain of 36 by baptism, 10 by letter; loss of 13 by letter, 4 expelled, 4 died. M. R. Scott, president; V. D. Baggerly, clerk.

Decatur, Iowa — Eight branches and 3 fragments, 1251 members. Gain of 87 by baptism, 48 by letter; loss of 47 by letter, 20 by death, 3 by expulsion, net gain 65 members. All of the branches are doing well, and local officers are generally faithful. Of the ministry appointed by General Conference, brethren Lambert, Campbell, Turpen, Elvin, Stebbins, Wellington and Forscutt have done considerable preaching, while brethren Blair, Salyards, Shippy, C. H. Jones, J. S. Snively, H. N. Snively, T. J. Bell, John Johnston, J. W. Johnson, Frank Izatt, L. W. Powell and T. W. Williams, have labored more or less outside of their respective branches. The presiding elder and others expect to continue their labors the coming year. H. A. Stebbins, president; S. D. Shippy, clerk.

Des Moines.—Nine branches, 481 members, including 67 officials. There have been 26 baptisms, and 16 received and 5 removed by letter, 2 have died and 2 been expelled; net gain 33 members. Brethren Bozarth and Roth of the traveling ministry have labored in the district; also brethren Stamm and Nirk have devoted the most of their time to preaching, and brethren Shimel and Wm. Thompson have done considerable. There are twenty-six counties in the district, so there is a large field for ministry work. Geo. Shimel, president; H. A. McCoy, Clerk

Eastern Iowa.—Six branches, 167 members, including 14 officials. Gain of 15 by baptism; 1 expelled,

2 died; net gain 12 members. District in good condition, and prospects for the work are excellent. Brethren J. S. Roth, Warren Turner and Jerome Ruby have done faithful labor, and the first named has devoted all his time to this and the Des Moines districts, as appointed to do. One new branch organized. J. S. Roth, president; J. W. Sutton, clerk.

Fremont.—Six branches, 389 members, including 42 officials. Gain of 30 by baptism, 5 received and 4 removed by letter, 5 died; net gain 26 members. Henry Kemp, president; W. C. Matthews, clerk.

Galland's Grove.—Nine branches, 743 members, including 45 who are not enrolled in branches. Gain of 23 by baptism, 17 by letter; loss of 13 by letter, 5 by death, 2 by expulsion; net gain 20 members. The work is in fair condition. Bible students' societies exist in two branches, and Sabbath Schools in seven branches. Besides the regular labor of branch officers and local elders there has been missionary work by Brn. Derry, Butterworth, Wedlock, J. T. Turner, Ford, Whiting, Chambers, Seddon, McDowell, Pett, Crabb and McIntosh. W. W Whiting, president, John Pett, clerk.

Little Sioux.—Ten branches, 786 members, including 94 officials. Gain of 27 by baptism, 72 by letter and vote, 4 by previous error; loss 29 by letter, 8 by death; net gain 66 members. Two branches organized the past year. The cause prospers in the main, and both the local and the general ministry have done good work. J. C. Crabb, president, A. M. Fyrando, clerk.

Central Kansas.—Five branches, 159 members, including 24 officials. Gain of 17 by baptism, 8 received; loss of 6 by letter, 1 expelled, 3 died; net gain 15 members. Condition of the district is said to have materially improved, and previous difficulties have been settled. Preaching has been done by Brn. Brand, Jarvis, Adamson, Harder, Lofty, Keeler, Menzies, Munns and David Williams. William Hopkins, president: E. C. Brand, clerk pro tem.

Spring River.—Eight branches, 331 members, including 54 officials. Gain and loss unknown to district officers, but Church Recorder's books show 36 baptized, 23 received, 25 removed, 1 expelled, 5 died, leaving net gain of 28 members. Peace characterizes the district. D. S. Crawley has been a constant laborer, and others preach as they can. J. M. Richards, clerk.

Western Maine — Five branches, 156 members, including 21 officials. Gain of 2 by baptism; loss of 1 by expulsion, 2 by death; net loss 1 member. The interest among the people is said to be good, and the prospects are better than in recent years. U. W. Green, Thomas Whiting, F. M. Sheehy and W. H. Kelley have labored in the district and new fields have been opened. W. G. Pert, president; E. H. Pert, clerk.

Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana.—Ten branches, 360 members, including 22 officials. Gain of 35 by baptism and 18 by letter and vote. A loss of 3 by death, leaving net gain 50 members. No statement of the spiritual condition. Hiram Rathbun, president; D. B. Teeters, clerk.

Northern Munnesota.—Three branches, 144 members, including 14 officials Total gain 31, total loss 22, leaving net gain 9 members. The state of the work is said to be good. T. J. Martin, president; Wm. Barnhard, clerk.

Independence, Missouri.—Eight branches, 1014 members, including 127 officials Gain of 101 by baptism, 54 by letter; loss of 11 by letter, 7 by death, 1 by expulsion; net gain 136 members District is said to be flourishing, I. N. White, Alfred White and Emsley Curtis have spent all their time in the work, and Brn. St. Clair, Lloyd, Swenson, Tucker, May, Kelley and others have done what they could. There are many calls for preaching. Other Elders are willing to labor but circumstances will not permit. I. N. White, president; Samuel Crum. clerk.

North East Missouri.—Four branches, 184 members; 2 baptized, 2 removed, 1 died. The strike of the coal miners has hindered the cause much, and the prospect is poor for future work. John Taylor, president; J. T. Richards, clerk.

Central Nebraska — Four branches, 129 members, including 24 officials. Gain of 7 by baptism, 7 by letter; loss of 1 by letter, 4 by expulsion. 2 by death; net gain 7 members. Condition of district is fair. Preaching has been done by W. M. Rumel, H. O. Smith, James Caffall, Levi Gamet, J. E. Rogerson and Wm. Culbertson. L. Gamet, president; J. H. Jackson clerk

Southern Nebraska.—Seven branches, 424 members; 38 baptized, 11 received, 3 removed, 3 expelled, 7 died; net gain 36 members. State of the work is good, yet they need more laborers; at least three men to devote their entire time. C. H. Porter has done this the past year, and H. C. Bronson has been there much of his time. Also H. O. Smith, R. J. Anthony, C. Derry, J. Caffall, W. W. Blair and R. M. Elvin have preached some in that district. Local officers have labored in the branches. J. W. Waldsmith, president; C. H. Porter, clerk.

Philadelphia.—Four branches, 152, members, including 25 officials; 15 persons baptized, I received, I removed, 2 died; net gain 13 members. The Philadelphia branch does not flourish as it would if the members lived closer together in the city, but those who can gather do so, and they enjoy the Spirit of God. The spirituality of the Brooklyn branch is fair, and the local ministers are doing well. The New Park branch lives by the efforts of its local ministry. They need visiting by the travelling Elders. The Hornerstown (N. J.) branch is practically disorganized, most of the Saints having moved away. W. H. and E. L. Kelley have labored some in the district, but there is great need of at least one travelling minister in that district. Joseph Squire, president; H. H. Bacon, clerk.

Pittsburgh and Kirtland.—Twelve branches, 426 members, including 41 officials; 41 baptized, 6 received, 3 died; nef gain 44 members. James Brown has labored constantly, and Brn. Griffiths, Lake, W. H. Kelley and Leonard Scott a portion of the time. There are plenty of open doors, and laborers are needed Every available officer is said to be doing good work, locally, yet several of the branches have no one to preach for them, unless the general ministry attend to them. Bro. Briggs has done great good in Pittsburgh and Bro. Griffiths in other parts. W. H. Garrett, president; W. C. H. Noble, clerk

Kentucky and Tennessee.—Four branches, 82 members including 18 officials 17 members received by letter, 1 expelled. The president preaches regularly in three of the branches monthly, and Brn. Griffin and Adair labor faithfully Bro Gillen visited them and did them good. Peter B. Seaton, president; S. L. Cooper, clerk.

Western Texas.—Three branches, 90 members, including 12 officials; 21 baptized, 1 died; net gain 20 members. Branches all in good working order and moving forward. I. N. Roberts and J. A. Currie, jun., have been the chief laborers. Branch officials have done well locally. The prospects are bright for the future. J. A. Currie, jun., president; O. D. Johnson, clerk.

Pettawattamie, Iowa.—Five branches, 452 members, including 60 officials. 32 baptized, 8 received, 3 removed, 1 expelled, 4 died; net gain 32 members. District prospering, all the branches being alive and active Besides the labors of local ministry, W. E. Peak and J. A. Davis of the general ministry have helped the cause much. Calls for preaching are many. H. N. Hansen, president; Thos. Scott, clerk.

Far West, Missonri.—Eight branches, 546 members; net gain 17 members. Spiritual condition of the branches is good and the local ministry are laboring as best they can President J. T. Kinneman has been in the field almost constantly. Of the traveling ministry J. R. Lambert, W. T. Bozarth, H. C. Bronson, R. L. Ware and J. F. McDowell have labored some in the district. Charles P. Faul, clerk

Respectfully submitted,

Henry A. Stebbins.

General Church Secretary and Recorder.

Elder W. W. Blair of the First Presidency, present, reports:

I have to report that, besides attending upon my duties in the First Presidency of the Church, and as Associate Editor of the Herald, I have labored in the ministry at St. Joseph, Clarksdale, High Point, Missouri; at Nebraska City, Omaha and Wilber, Nebraska; at Lamoni, Plum Hollow, Elm Creek, Henderson, Wheeler's Grove, Persia, Galland's Grove, Deloit, Dow City, Harlan, Salem, Missouri Valley, Council Bluffs, Crescent City, Weston, Underwood, Lucas, Pleasanton, etc., in Iowa. I have also prepared and am preparing pamphlet work for the church, to be published in due time.

ANNUAL STATISTICAL TABLE.

	1		1		1					,
	Totals, 1888.	Baptized.	Received.	Removed.	Expelled.	Died.	Net Gain.	Net Loss.	New Ordina- tions.	Marriages.	Totals, 1889.
Australia Society Islands Denmark England Scotland	233 732 21 611 15	47 106	38	3 42	8	10	48	-	10	8	281 732 21 695
Switzerland Wales Canada Manitoba	27 187 1,028	4 236	1 13	9 36 1	1 2	5	205	10	20	9	27 177 1,233 6
Nova Scotia Alabama Arkansas California Colorado	26 398 39 1,132 61	10 2 6 67 16	77	20 4	1 1 1	1 4 1 23 2	10 5 100 14	4	6 4	1 1 10	36 394 44 1,232 75
ConnecticutDakotaFloridaIdaho	8 39 258 125	22	3	3		1 2	21		4	1	8 60 258 131
Illinois	1,808 272 37 4,506	42 36 286	10 181	67 21 201	1 4 13	19 8 51	2 13 202		2 30	6 32	1,810 285 37 4,708
Kansas Kentucky Maine Maryland	906 24 373 16	58	54	70	3	14 4	25	3	8	3	931 24 370 16
Massachusetts. Michigan Minnesota Mississippi Missouri	450 969 196 55 2,413	197 31 165	59 17 213	2 50 14 153	5 4 5	5 20 36	181 30 184	1	24 12	3 5 33	1,150 226 55 2,597
Montana Nebraska Nevada New Jersey	76 917 114 21	15 81 3	11 30	1 1 13 2	17	20 3	25 61	2	1 1 12	3 7	101 978 112 21
New York Ohio	70 519 81 329	16 84 7 22	1 42 11 6	1 23 8 5	16 5	1 6 4	15 81 10 14		11	5	85 600 91 343
Rhode Island Tennessee Texas Utah	221 40 331 507	3 69 14	1 21 28	2 25 12	3	7 10	55 20	,	10	1 6 7	221 40 386 527
Virginia	238 221 15	17 3 50 11 2	23 23	1 3	2	3 4	17 3 44 27 4		1		23 3 282 248 19
Totals	20,678	1,743 907	907	800 272 93	93	272	1,506	21	169	153	22,163
		2,650		1,165			1,485

Gross Gain, 2,650.

Gross Loss, 1,165.

Net Gain, 1,485.

After adding one item the report was adopted.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

The following reports of the ministry were read by the Secretary:

The general prospects, so far as I can discern, both near and far, are full of excellent promise.

Elder A. H. Smith, president pro. tem. of the Twelve, present, reports:

In reporting my labors I regret that I can not state more actual work done; but am glad that I can report so much done, and the good condition of the work so far as reported to me by my colaborers. My field is far too wide for so few laborers, be they ever so active, and call after call had to be neglected, because I had no one to fill them.

In accord with instructions from the First Presidency, I sought to make judicious division of the vast territory placed in my charge, but soon found the number of available ministers at my call were far too few.

I deemed it wise, however, to give Bro. M. T. Short charge of the state of Wisconsin, and his reports to me indicate a fair amount of work done in that field; a rough and hard field to make rapid progress in, and many difficulties to meet.

Bro. W. S. Pender was also assigned to that field, it being understood that he was to labor in connection with Bro. Short.

These two excellent ministers have reported from time to time the progress of their labors, and no doubt will report in full, both to their respective quorums, and to your honorable body.

E. M. Wildermuth, of the Seventy, was also given Southern Wisconsin as a field, and for some months labored with more or less success, reporting his labors to me, until cirumstances seemed to make a change in the residence of his family necessary. He reported the circumstances also to me, and, asking counsel in the matter, acting upon what he deemed to be the direction of the Spirit, left the field of appointment, removing his family to Arkansas. I reported him for labor to the missionary in charge of that field.

Bro. J. C. Foss appointed to labor under my direction, was early in the field and did good service, as his report will show. I esteem him a faithful, energetic and worthy minister for Christ; a loving and kind co-laborer. His field, by my direction, in the summer months, was north-west Minnesota, and later, or during the winter, in northern Illinois. In both fields he has given good satisfaction. He will no dout report to you.

Bro. Robt. Oehring, referred by you to missionory in charge of Dakota, and the Bishop, was by me appointed in charge of Dakota, and as reported to me, has done nobly in his charge. Has had to meet many difficulties not found in other fields, but his labors show a steady growth, and a marked degree of success. He reports himself ready, if needed, for the German mission.

Bro. E. E. Wheeler, west Minnesota, and southeast Dakota, reports labor done in Dakota and good prospects for the future.

Bro. Hans N. Hansen being referred to missionary in charge of Minnesota, as there seemed a grand opening among the Scandinavians in north-west Minnesota, and a strong appeal made to me by the Saints there, to send them one who could speak the Danish and Swedish language, I advised Bro. Hansen to take that field. He entered upon it, and labored diligently, but prejudice was too great among those peoples to obtain a firm footing among them; yet I am satisfied his labor was not lost, and a strong desire is now manifest for his return, to renew and extend the labors so well begun. His report will no doubt explain more fully the nature of the work in that quarter.

Bro. T. J. Martin, North West Minnesota district, reports very interesting labor in that field, with bright prospects in the near future.

Bro. F. M. Cooper, Nothern Illinois district, reports labor in southern Wisconsin, and northern Illinois. Has done a good work, and reports for missionary appointment.

Bro. E. A. Steadman reports work done in Minneapolis, and southern Minnesota, and that the way seems to be opening for a great work in that field. Desires appointment, preferring Ohio as a field

Bro. Thomas Wellington, appointed to western Illinois, entered upon his duties, and did good service for a season in Hancock and McDonough counties, but in consequece of sickness of self and family, returned to his home in Missouri, but has done much labor in Missouri and Iowa, opening up new fields, laboring earnestly in his calling and awakening an active interest in places hitherto unvisited which bids fair to yield much fruit in the good work.

Bro. Sol. J. Salisbury, although not under appointment, has wrought a very acceptable work as an elder in Illinois, and I feel I would not do justice to him did I fail to report his labor.

I also feel to mention Bro. J. Ruby as an efficient aid in the ministerial field. With Bro. James McKiernan whose appointment entered into a portion of my charge. Though not reporting specially to me, I know of his labors, and his report to you will justify my mention of him, and his co-laborer, Bro. Eugene Holt.

My association and communion with the ministry under my charge has been most pleasing and happy, and the only regret I now feel as I look it over, is that we had too large a field, too much to do, and too few to do for so wide a field. My individual labors were confined to northwest Minnesota and Illinois. I have baptized only seven, administered in confirmation of numbers, ministered to the sick blessing of children, etc.

Have been richly blessed in spirit in preaching the word. Have met with the usual reverses and successes of a missionary's life; but am happy in reporting an advance all along the line.

Of Manitoba, in my charge, I have heard nothing during the year. Have been unable, from various causes to visit many interesting fields in my charge; among them the cities of Chicago and Minneapolis. Those cities should be visited and a special effort be made therein, but more funds than were at my command will be needed when such effort is made.

I am hoping, praying and laboring still for Zion, and ask your prayers for my future labors.

Elder T. W. Smith, of the Twelve, writes from Ausralia as follows:

I have not a great deal to report in the matter of labor for the past twelve months. I have not baptized above eight persons, I believe. My work seemed to be that of "regulating the affairs of the church," in this part of the world. I have succeeded in getting every branch in as good order as can be under the circumstances. If there be any officers lacking in any branch, it is because there is not sufficient suitable material, so to speak, or else none can be found willing to fill the offices. However, I believe that all the branches are sufficiently officered except in the case of the Nambucca branch in New South, Wales, and the Queensferry and Leopold branches in Victoria, where deacons are lacking.

I have, in connection with Bro Burton, succeeded in organizing all the branches in Australia into two districts, one called Victoria, which embraces all the colony of Victoria; the other called the Forster district, which includes a portion of New South Wales.

Australia is an island, yet a continent, and as large, if not larger, than the United States. There are three other colonies, South Australia, Western Australia and Queensland, in which our faith has never been preached. The two latter are much larger than any state of the Union. In Victoria, and in New South Wales, there are hundreds of towns, ranging in population from five hundred to five thousand people, besides towns of larger size still, where the doctrine has never been heard. The branches-except Hamilton and Wallsend, are in the country or in small vilages, somewhat obscure. In Melbourne, a large city, we have never had an opening. The trouble has been 'money' to pay for halls. It would cost a couple of elders five dollars a day for board and hall rent, or thirty-five dollars for a week's campaign. Other churches, such as Seventh Day Adventists, Disciples and others of lesser note and influence, can manage to get a foot hold, but we think that we can not afford it. Having no members in these towns or cities who are able to entertain a couple of elders, and the funds not being sufficient to warrant it, no effort has been made as yet to preach in them; and the citizens know nothing of us, only what our enemies write about us. Brn. Wight and Butterworth are fully able to present our faith in these places, and I hope the Saints here will contribute liberally to the treasury, and that as soon as possible, the word may be preached in these cities and towns.

At least one hundred pounds ought to be spent in warning the people in these places, if no more. In fact, not only ought I to remain here, but a dozen more elders should be put in the field here. At least four elders here in Victoria are fully qualified to go into the field, but they can not do so, unless their families are supported. I contend that these men should be put into the field, and no one should be sent from America, unless they are young single men, who have no families to support. But as there are so many worthy, marriageable young women here, it is not likely that any such would be long here before they would have wives to support as well as those I have referred to, Bro. Wight having succumbed to the attractions and fascinations of one of said worthy girls. And his influence and usefulness will not be impaired thereby, as he will have an excellent helper in the work. Bro. Butterworth may hold out a little longer.

A vast field for missionary work is presented in New South Wales, in Queensland and South Australia. I think that the two latter fields would be better than the former. I mean that I think the people are a different class, and would more readily receive the truth.

The Church of Utah has some young elders in Australia, and a host of them in New Zealand. As far as I have seen and have been able to judge, I am confident that they are, as a body, honest and sincere in their belief that polygamy is of God, and that they are the true Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. I feel sorry for them, indeed, I feel deeply for them, because I am confident that they have been greatly deceived by the leaders of the church in Utah in this matter. It would be but a small matter to open their eyes to see that they are mistaken in their claim to successorship in the matter of the presidency of the church, if they could only see that the so-called "Revelation on Celestial Marriage" is a fraud, as it evidently is.

I have frequently been led when preaching to declare, by manifest energy of the Holy Ghost, that the great majority of the people of the Utah Church, were an honest-hearted, sincere and devoted people, but were blinded by the traditions of their leaders, and are in spiritual bondage, out of which they shall yet be led by the man whom God has raised up for that purpose, even Joseph. Ever since I passed through Utah on my way to this field. I have felt a compassionate and a kindly feeling for the masses of the Utah Church, including the majority of the elders whom they send abroad. We have a "hard row to ho;" without polygamy to defend and they must have a still harder one, with that reproach to carry. I hope that people will have our prayers for their enlightenment and deliverance, and not our curses because of their blindness.

In the district above, there are several elders who could do much good if put into the field, and as they ought to be employed, it is evident that all the means that can be raised here, ought to be used in the mission. In fact, the thought that it may be demanded by the Bishopric in America, has deterred some from giving into the hands of Agents here. I would recommend that a rule be made by General Conference, that in distant fields like this, the president of the mission shall be authorized to arrange with the Bishop's Agent in each district for the sustaining in the field such local elders as may be found capable and willing to labor in the ministry, as far as the funds will admit. Of course should such a rule be adopted, it would result in more tithing and offerings being put into the Agent's hands and some good men would be put into the ministry. It would be wisdom that a Bishop should be appointed over this mission, or over Australia, and that Bro. Wight be empowered to ordain him. The only suitable man, and he is fully qualified, is Bro. John Wright, the present Agent of the Bishop in Australia, outside of Victoria. As he is already such an agent, it seems to me to be wise to have him ordained a Bishop. He will, of course, be subordinate to the Bishop in general, or the Bishop of the whole church. I understand that this would be in harmony with the teachings of the Doctrine and Covenants.

In regard to the South Sea Islands I would say, that it appears to be my duty to go there soon. It is not that I prefer that field, for in truth I would a dozen times over prefer to remain here, and for many reasons. In fact, I would be glad if the Lord would reveal to me that I need not go for awhile, or show me that I am more needed here. But having thought much and prayed much over the matter, I conclude to sacrifice the society of Saints of our own tongue, and the many comforts and conveniences that we have here, for the sake of our brown faced children, who write "We are glad exceedingly that you are coming back again to Tahiti;" but whose habits and customs and mode of thought are so different from that of white people. But they need a white elder to be there all the time, and I hope that the church will find a suitable man to go to that field before I am called to leave it. It would be well to find two or three elders who will be willing to go, and inform me as soon as possible, that I may give my views on the matter, for it is not every man who is adapted for that field, no matter how well qualified for others.

I wish to still urge the propriety of sending a couple of energetic men to New Zealand. I hear that there are over thirty Elders of the Utah Church there, while our church pays no attention to my views and wishes in the matter, the Utah Church sends scores of men who are making every effort in their power to revive their branches and to prepare their members against our advances. Have not the Twelve and Seventy been acting the "Home Guard" role long enough? But I know it is not the fault of many of them, for they have been ready for years to go to any part of the world. If there is any prospect of a general assembly being called inside of a year or two, there may be a reason for them to tarry awhile longer, but if not, some of them had better be sent abroad awhile. For my part, I do not care a penny to return to America; I can stay away five years more, as well as not. But if I am needed at home, I will be ready to go whenever called.

Bro. Butterworth, who when he first came, could talk but little, and was very backward, or fearful, has developed into a good speaker, and an earnest, energetic and fearless defender of the faith; and inasmuch as this field will be pretty much divided between Bro. Wight and himself; and understanding that his usefulness will be greatly impeded, and his influence and authority not sufficiently respected as an elder only, (a fact which Bro. Burton learned to his sorrow,) I recommend as a wise and necessary step, that the Conference consider his ordination to the Seventy, and I hope that the Twelve and Seventy will take it into consideration. If my judgment is of any value I would say that I consider his ordination to be wise and proper, and necessary.

I will appoint Bro. Wight to take charge of this part of the missison, providing I leave it, as I have thought.

I hope that by another year it may be considered wise to hold a general assembly, for I, with many others, desire to see several important questions settled, and, I trust, settled forever, by the direct and unmistakable word of the Lord. I shall be glad to see the time when every man shall understand fully and unequivocally, his true or proper place, his authority, and his lawful work in the church. That the church machinery will be so adjusted that there will be no unnecessary friction or jar. If that machinery is made and adjusted by the Holy Ghost, as we claim, its operations should be, and indeed must be, understood by that Spirit, but as yet it seems that some do not understand it fully. If there be any unnecessary wheel, or band, or pulley, or shaft, we should discover it, and lay it aside as an obstruction, a clog and an incumbrance. If any part is merely out of place, but necessary when in its proper place as is any and all other parts, it ought to be set in its place, and secured there as soon as possible. An appendage may be "added because of transgression," as the Mosaic law was. It would be well to make haste to go slow in adding to the machinery already apparently too complicated, or else not properly adjusted.

In regard to the Patriachal office, my views tare simply these: 1st, I believe that it belongs to the seed of Hyrum Smith.

2d. If none of them are available because of transgression or apostacy, then 1 am opposed to any other man being called, except by revelation through the head the church.

It may be, if the church is not in too much of a hurry, Hyrum's seed may yet come into the church.

If the Conference chooses to sustain me in charge of the Australian and South Sea Islands mission, it will be satisfactory. If I should leave this part, I will leave Bro. Wight in charge.

I trust you may have the spirit of peace, truth, justice and mercy to abide with you in the Conference, and may we have your prayers as heretofore while in this mission.

Elder Heman C. Smith, of the Twelve, writes from San Bernardino, California:

I sincerely regret my inability to meet with you at this annual gathering. After visiting Lamoni, Logan and Galland's Grove, Iowa, I met Bro. R. M. Elvin at Omaha, and accompanied him to Salt Lake City, Utah, where I preached a few times. I thought to meet Bro. Anthony, and according to the instruction of the General Conference, to ordain him a president of Seventy, but not being privileged to meet him, I have to report that I did not perform this duty.

I reached my field of labor on June 7th, stopping first at Elko, Nevada, but openings not being satisfactory, I proceeded to Carson City, and commenced missionary work. Until August 1st, I was kept busy in Nevada and in Alpine county, California, laboring at Dayton, Empire, Genoa, Mottsville, Fairview and Woodford. During this time I baptized several and attended one conference; was much aided by the Spirit of peace.

The months of August and September, also part of October were spent in Northern and Central California, most of the time accompanied by Bro. J. F. Burton, just returned from Australia. Visited and preached at San Francisco, Oakland, Santa Rosa, Guerneville, San Benito, Stockton and Sacramento. In all these places, both in Nevada and California, I left the work in fair or good condition, except in Oakland, where exists the most serious combination of causes producing the most lamentable consequences that it was ever my fortune to investigate. For this I do not feel responsible in any sense, for the local authorities there have never heeded my advice, and my official acts in the past have been overruled by my superiors. What might have been the result had my policy obtained, whether it would have been better or worse, is hard to determine; but certainly no one can be responsible for what results from an overruling of his judgment, or from a failure to comply with his advice. However, I have taken no official action whatever in Oakland matters during the last year, but have been content to let the forces set to work by local authorities take their course without my interference.

I attended conference at San Benito for the Central district, and at Sacramento for the Northern district. Arrived in Southern California in time to attend their conference in October. Since then my time has been devoted to the branches in this district, a part of the time having been kept in the vicinity of home in consequence of sickness in my family. However, I have not been idle, and I have always done that which, in my judgment, was my duty to do under existing circumstances.

The missionary force in this field have, as a rule, done well. Elder H. L. Holt has waged a continuous and persistent warfare against overwhelming odds in Oregon and Washington. His efforts have been commendable and should be appreciated. Elder Thomas Daley has spent about six months in the field in Nevada and Northern California, and has been very successful. Elder Joseph F. Burton, since landing in California, has been hindered by soar throat and failing voice, but the powers at his command have been used to advance the cause of the Master. Elder D. S. Mills has really done more by way of travel and labor than his condition of health would justify. He is a faithful man, and a great comfort to the people of God. Elder William Gibson has labored continuously and faithfully in San Bernardino and San Diego counties, and his labors have not been fruitless. Elder Albert Haws has been constant in his labors, and the good effects of his efforts will doubtless appear in the harvest time. Elder I. H. Lawn has spent a part of the summer and the winter months in Central California and has had good success. Priest David E. Lander labored in Oregon a short time with Elder H. L. Holt. but was not pleased that the conference appointed him, so I took the liberty to release him, and he left the field. No blame should attach to him for ceasing labor, for he did not seek the appointment, and it was given without his knowledge.

All these should be sustained the ensuing year except Bro. Lander.

In addition to the General Conference appointees, there has been some acceptable missionary work done by Elders A. A. Goff and Daniel Brown, also by Priest W. O. Skinner.

I still think it will serve my best interests to labor for and with the Reorganization, for I believe that the position taken is true and that it receives the approval of God.

May peace, love and wisdom attend your consultations.

Elder James Caffall, of the Twelve, writes from Flora Vista, New Mexico:

My travels, the past year have of necessity been more extensive than usual. I have organized two branches, ordained four elders, one priest and one deacon, all of which appeared necessary for the good of the work. Have administered the rite of baptism to twenty-one persons; and believe prejudice has been removed and a better understanding obtained in some new localities. The confirmation meetings I have held have indeed been inspiring, and well calculated to confirm in the great work; for this I feel very thankful to God.

The ministerial labors of Brn. H. C. Bronson, H. O. Smith, C. H. Porter, and W. M. Rumel have been confined to Nebraska, in which state Bro. R. M. Elvin has done some good labor. Their continuance the ensuing year is desirable with a few dozen others if available, and if they should get crowded out of Nebraska there is room in Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming. We, of the Reorganized Church must keep busy and furnish matter for the factions that do, and may exist, or they will have to stop or run short of topics for discussion, as those that exist seem to lack originality or merit of their own, so have to make themselves conspicuous by essaying to show up the awful supposed errors of others. I am quite glad that all can chose what part of life's great drama they please. The remarks on system and order in reference to finance in Herald for March oth were excellent.

A good share of my time has been taken up in what might be called the western wilds where barriers have to be met not known in more refined eastern cities. But whether east or west. new localities can not be penetrated, our faith introduced in contradistinction to modern Babylon's forms and ceremonies and one still escape the vicisitudes incident to the life of a traveling elder. I think less desultory and more effective preaching under the circuit system necessary. I also think city missionary labor necessary by those best adapted, but believe it should be prosecuted under the same order and regulating power as country preaching. Up to date three have been added in New Mexico. It is a comparatively new country; points available for preaching distant, traveling facilities not excellent, but still souls are as precious here as elsewhere, and we should extend and spread out. The blight of polygamy is felt and prejudice runs high. By recent report from Manassa, Colorado, I learn that some are waiting to unite with us in faith. I should go there soon, so if other barriers to my attending conference were removed the present status of the work here and there would forbid. The past success and future prospects I think cheering. But they involve greater caution, discretion and diligence. To this end may we all be blessed by the author and finisher of our faith.

Elder J. H. Lake, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Another year has passed away, carrying with it all the varied events, duties, labors and different experiences. It finds us one year nearer the end, nearer the great realities of the beyond, where we shall have to meet God and answer for life and the actions thereof to him who has given life and light to every man that cometh into the world, for the good or evil done, and for the use of the talents given. If we have added thereto, well; if not, we must suffer loss, and no complaint can be justly made against the giver.

My labors have been mainly in the Canada mission, in directing and advising with my associate laborers as to the work to be done in different parts of the mission and in preaching the gospel and in administering in the ordinances thereof. My labors have met with the divine approval. I have administered to a number of sick and in some cases with marked effects. My colaborers (with few exceptions) have done well. A goodly number have been added to the Church and four new branches have been organized. Many have been added by baptism to some of the old branches. Those who have publically opposed the work have been met, and their folly has been made apparent and the truth has been maintained. As a result much good has been accomplished. The Master has blessed me while caring for his work. I feel firm in the faith of the great latter day work, and I hope to continue so until the pure and the good are all gathered out from the nations of the earth into the kingdom of our God and his Christ. I have baptized eight, ordained four elders, four priests and three teachers, blessed twenty-four children, organized two branches, and have given the best council to officers and members of the mission that I could, instructing them to learn their duty and seek for the Spirit of truth to assist them in doing it, and to obey the injunction to "Come up higher." May peace and joy in the Holy Ghost be with you in all the sessions of the conference. The conference instructed me to ordain Bro. G. H. Graves as an Elder, "if I saw proper to do so." But I did not chance to meet him when he visited Canada, therefore did nothing about it.

Elder W. H. Kelley, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Soon after my appointment to the Eastern mission I began to identify myself more closely with the work of that mission, and have endeavored to serve its interests, and have tried to become familiar with its needs and exigencies. The Saints received me cordially, and we have had many very pleasant, peaceful and spiritual sessions together. There is a large number of excellent Saints in the Eastern mission, scattered over a large territory. How satisfactory, or well I have served them, it is not for me to say, but we have succeeded in getting along without any open conflicts. I am safe in saying that the mission, as a whole, has made some advancement. It is much stronger, however, in some localities than in others. Additions have not been large, but a number have united with the church. There is a constant demand for laborers and opportunities to labor. In point of numbers and wealth it is the seat of empire, and of course Babylon reigns chiefly, religiously. There is a larger number of races than is found in the west, and classes in ascending series from the poorhouse to the men who are worth their millions. It requires more tact and astuteness to fish and hunt than in many other places. Popular pressure and influence are too great for some to brook, although they may confess that the truth is staring them in the face. The Infidel, Atheist, so called, Scientist, &c., have been so successful in showing up the creeds, that they are so chaffy, man made and unreliable that they are fast losing their influence on the reading and thoughtful, and a large class of the people are merely drifting, waiting and watching for something to turn up, while they indulge in fashion and fun. There is an abundant opportunity for gospel work, and there is wheat among the tares.

There has been some very unpleasant things to consider and meet in a few localities, along with the pleasant; but in the main they have been adjusted or are on the way to a permanent solution. These have been of a character that necessarily leaves somebody disappointed and of course offended, as is usual in all similar cases. Well disposed persons often see things widely different, especially where self-interest puts in a claim for consideration. How much censure I may come in for remains to be seen; any way I have pursued a conservative, just and fair course towards all, so far as I know. Bro. E. C. Briggs did us good service during his stay in the mission, where he has many friends and admirers. Brn. F. M. Sheehy, Thomas Whiting, U. W. Greene and M. H. Bond are all of the constant laborers that we have had in the mission. Bro. Whiting only laboring a part of the year, the labors have been so few that we have adjudged it unwise to act upon the suggestion of the presidency and district the mission off, by putting some one in charge. It would have left some localities unattended altogether. proper to remind the conference that there has been an utter lack of ministerial aid in some districts, so that much progress could not consistently be expected. There has not been one constant laborer either in the Wyoming or Philadelphia districts, yet there are as good opportunities for labor as are to be found anywhere. The missionary in charge has done what he could in those districts as opportunity offered. York state has been almost wholly neglected. Bro. C. G. Lanphear is the only one that has labored much there. He did good service for the cause. Brn. A. H. Parsons and H. H. Robinson rendered us material aid while on their way to Nova Scotia. Bro. George Burnham of New Haven, Connecticut, has labored some in the mission and quite acceptably. Bro. John Smith has done what he could-his business matters claiming the greater part of his time. He is a good worker when out.

This gives a full quoto of laborers except those who serve locally in the branches, a number of whom have done excellently. It has been necessary in some instances to put the general missionaries in charge of branches for the time being or abandon the work substantially in those localities. This is contrary to what I esteem a proper policy when it can be avoided; but experience teaches that we must often move as we can; not as we would.

It is necessary to urge the conference to send more laborers into the Eastern mission, especially in the Wyoming and Philadelphia districts. Much good might be done by some localized who could labor in the interest of the branch where residing.

On the whole the Eastern mission is as inviting, perhaps, as any; and as much good to be achieved there by effort as anywhere. But missionary appointment means work, sacrifice, toil amidst opposition in order to success. I have been sustained in a marked and satisfactory way by divine aid, under some circumstances during the year while defending the faith, and I am confident in the faith that God is the author of the latter day work, and although strange and mysterious in its workings and developments, yet in due time it will triumph in some form or other. Men can not do a greater service for the race, or the cause of right, than to labor for its success.

The following was moved by J. A. Robinson and F. G. Pitt:

Resolved, that hereafter during this conference the assistant secretaries reduce the ministry reports to be submitted to conference to numbers—such as of baptisms, sermons preached, confirmations, ordinations, etc.

This was favored by Brn. Robinson and Pitt and was opposed by E. L. Kelley, A. H. Smith, M. T. Short and James Thomas, and upon being put to vote the proposition was defeated.

Another resolution on the subject was moved by Joseph Luff and J. W. Gillen, but the motion to adjourn caused action upon it to be deferred.

Pres. Blair announced the names of the speakers chosen for this evening and for to-morrow's services, and the benediction was pronounced by J. W. Gillen.

The evening sermon was delivered by Duncan Campbell of Pleasanton, Iowa.

He was assisted by I. N. White of Clinton, Missouri. The text was, "This is my beloved Son, hear ye him."

SUNDAY, APRIL 7TH.

The prayer meeting at nine o'clock was in charge of Hiram Rathbun of Lansing, Michigan, and David Chambers of Persia, Iowa.

The morning sermon was by E. L. Kelley of Kirtland, Ohio, from the text, "Except a man be born again he can not see the kingdom of God." F. M. Sheehy of Maine, assisted in the services.

At two o'clock M. H. Forscutt of Nebraska City, Nebraska, preached from the words, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." He was assisted by R. C. Evans of Canada.

In the evening R. S. Salyards of Lamoni, Iowa, had charge of the services. The sermon was by Joseph Luff of Independence, Missouri, from the text, "Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things that he suffered."

MONDAY, APRIL 8TH.

The prayer and testimony meeting was in charge of I. L. Rogers of Sandwich, Illinois, and C. H. Jones of Lone Rock, Missouri.

At ten o'clock E. C. Brand of Tabor, Iowa, preached from the words, "If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love." He was assisted by Emsley Curtis of Missouri.

At half-past one o'clock the assembly sung "Lord of the harvest, hear." Prayer was offered by W. H. Kelley. Secretary Stebbins read the minutes of the 6th and 7th.

The committee on credentials made an additional report.

The following preambles and resolutions that were made by Joseph Luff and J. W. Gillen on Saturday afternoon were taken up:

Whereas, a large portion of time at our General Conferences is occupied in reading lengthy reports from conference appointees, and Whereas, we believe that said time could be

Whereas, we believe that said time could be more profitably employed in other business essential at our general gatherings, therefore be it Resolved, that hereafter all appointees of Gen-

Resolved, that hereafter all appointees of General Conference be required to send their individual reports to the missionary in charge of their various fields, and that said missionary embody the essential features thereof in his report to the conference.

This was discussed by J. A. Robinson, Joseph Luff and John Hawley in favor, and by M. T. Short, M. H. Bond, J. R. Lambert, W. H. Kelley and R. C. Evans in opposition.

Then the following substitute was moved by J. J. Cornish and Frank Hack-ett:

"Resolved, that this conference request all the General Conference appointees to report their labors to the body, and that they be requested to make their reports as brief and concise as practicable.

This was favored by R. Etzenhouser and Charles Derry and opposed by Joseph Luff and E. L. Kelley. Then it was put to vote and declared lost, and following it the original motion was also defeated.

A request from the Quorum of Seventy that the ordination of R. J. Anthony as one the seven presidents of Seventy be attended to was referred to the Quorum of Twelve that they may ordain him as heretofore provided for.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

The secretary read the following from the ministry:

Elder J. R. Lambert, of the Twelve, present, reports:

I herewith offer a brief report of the mission comprising Iowa and Northern Missouri. In a general sense the work has progressed,-and, excepting one district and some portions of others, -the outlook is bright. The missionaries, as a rule, have done well, and I am not prepared to say that any one of them has failed to make a commendable effort to do what he could. testimony of all, so far as I have heard from them on this point is that they have been unusually blessed with light, liberty and power, in presenting the word, and the ministry have felt, perhaps more strongly than before, that this is indeed the work of God. As for myself, I never had better or stronger assurance of the divine origin and final triumph of the work so grandly set forth in the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, than within the last year.

My personal labors have, as you know, been greatly curtailed, the reasons for which have been briefly reported through the Herald. Nevertheless. I thank God that I have been able to do what I have done, and the trials and blessings of the past year, I highly esteem as a manifestation of God's mercy and wisdom. Have preached and labored more or less at Lamoni, Lott school house, Davis City, Jack Wood school house, Pleasanton, New Zion and Hickery school-houses, and at Reger Mineral Springs, in the Decatur district; At Mc Kee church, Pleasant Grove, Clarksdale, and in the Delana branch, in the Far West district, at Plum Hollow, near Villisca and Shenandoah, in the Fremont district. Also at McFall and Stanberry, Missouri, and at the Reunion held at Missouri Valley. The division of the mission into subfields, as suggested by the First Presidency one year ago, works well, and we may look for still better results when its practical workings are more perfectly understood. The demand for unselfish, wise, spiritual laborers is great, and still on the increase. Whence cometh an adequate supply, is still an unsolved problem. Truly, we walk by faith, not by sight." As before, I am willing and anxious to do what I can for the promotion of the Master's cause, but have no assurance that I shall be able to do but little in the field. The church must do (should do) what she deems to be for the best interests of the work.

Elder J. W. Gillen, of the Twelve, present, reports:

During the conference year just closed, I have labored in Southeastern Missouri, Southern Illinois, Southern Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. My labors have been wide spread, with a view to a better understanding of the condition of the work in, and the necessity of this extensive field, which I will now state in as brief a manner as possible.

The St. Louis branch, is in a prosperous condition, and the out-look was never more favorable than at the present time. Yet it is indispensibly necessary that an efficient elder be kept in that district for some time to come, especially as some of the branches need particular attention just now. If some capable man is not sent there, the church will suffer loss.

Southern Illinois has but one conference, appointee, and his work has been hindered by his not receiving proper financial support. More help is needed in that part of the mission.

The ministerial force in Southern Indiana is not sufficient; more laborers are needed, because the work is opening up, and the demand for preaching is on the increase.

There are but three elders in the states of Kentucky and Tennessee, and neither of them have received financial aid, so they can only be regarded as local elders, traveling as their circumstances permit. These brethren ought to be sustained, for their labors are acceptable in that field; and, if possible, others also should be appointed to those states.

Arkansas needs preachers, and several, if the church can supply them. One new branch has been organized in Southern Indiana during the year, and quite a number added to the old branches. I baptized seven there.

One branch has been disorganized in the St. Louis district by the removal of members and another is almost in the same condition from the same cause.

As I look over my work I can not say that I am altogether satisfied, but I did what I thought at the time to be for the best. I see much to be thankful for. Many tokens of God's love for me, and I am assured of the ultimate triumph of the glorious work. I am still willing to labor wherever the church think best to send me.

In accordance with the instruction of the conference, I ordained I. M. Smith to the office of a Seventy.

Elder G. T. Griffiths, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Upon the 27th of April, 1888, I entered upon my mission, Virginia and West Virginia. I have endeavored to the best of my ability, to look after the interests of the same. Notwithstanding the intense prejudice of the people, much good has been accomplished. There has been a large increase of membership, more than any one previous year, and a number of effectual openings have been made. I am confident that if the efforts can be continued, that a grand harvest can be reaped in the near future. The demands of this field are urgent, and very peculiar in some respects. The arm of persecution is keenly felt throughout the mission; the elders are often threatened with personal violence, and in some places mobs have gathered to prevent the preaching of the word. However, the Lord has proven a true friend to his ministry, having afforded them the promised protection. To allay prejudice and to further the cause with greater rapidity it will require that a corps of wise, brave and efficient laborers be assigned to that field.

The work can be prosecuted with less expense and to a better advantage in West Virginia than in Virginia. The people in the former state are more liberal, not being tenaciously bound to any religious creed. In Virginia, superstition and religious bigotry predominate. Hence it is very difficult to get the use of public buildings. We have but one branch in this state, situated at Liberty Hall.

The Saints there are erecting a church edifice. Spring, summer and fall are the most suitable times for extending the work here, for groves can be had. A great many manifest a desire to hear. I think it would be good policy to return Bro. James Moler to that field, and to associate some young man with him. He has proved himself a workman indeed, and the Saints are very anxious for his return. T. Matthews, D. L. Shinn, L. R. Devore, T. J. Beatty and James Brown, have rendered acceptable service. Their labors have been highly appreciated by the Saints and by the writer. These brethren should be continued in their present fields, as they are well acquainted with the peculiarities of the people, and they know what course to pursue to gain their attention.

The Lord has abundantly blessed me when attending to the duties of my calling. I never was more anxious for the welfare of the church, or more desirous of its prosperity, than I am now. Am determined by the grace of God to keep within my calling and to magnify my office. know I have often erred in the past, but I live in constant hopes of being able to cruify every is a bright future ahead of us. Have felt impressed of late that the time is near at hand when there will be many changes wrought by the power of God. I am still willing to serve the church in whatever capacity the Lord may direct through his servants. I have solemnized three marriages, ordained three priests, two teachers, and Bro. E. C. Briggs and myself ordained three seventies. I have baptized and cofirmed some, and blessed a number of children.

Elder Joseph Luff, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Since the last General Assembly I have labored some in Fremont county, Iowa, also in the counties of Ray, Johnson, Bates, St. Clair and Jackson in Missouri.

I divided my mission and appointed Brn. E. C. Brand, I. N. White and G. W. Shute in charge of portions thereof, and from them will come reports as to the fields under their charge. In some parts, especially of Missouri, the work is flourishing. The name of Bro. S. Crum was referred to me, and after consultation with him I advised him to remain out of the field during the year, because of his home cares. The greater portion of the year I have spent at or near home, and have found a field even there, as broad as one man can canvass, but I have directed the labors of all in my field, and results are good. I have baptized thirty-two persons, and have performed much other work in my line. The field is "white unto the harvest."

Elder Charles Derry, of the High Priests, present, reports:

Since last conference my time has been spent as per appointment in the districts of Little Sioux and Galland's Grove, with some labor performed in what is known as the Central Nebraska district. I have also preached some in the Fremont, district, Iowa, and at Wilber in Nebraska. I organized the Evergreen branch in Nebraska, and one in Woodbine, Iowa. Have baptized six persons, and have administered in the ordinances of the Lord's house, wherever and whenever called upon. I have labored faithfully to preach the gospel as an elder, and have presided (agreeable to appointment from J. R. Lambert, minister in charge over the churches in the state of Iowa) over the sub-mission comprising the Galland's Grove and Little Sioux districts, and I believe that the work in those districts is in a fair condition. Presidents Crabb and Whiting have done good work in their respective districts. Elder Charles Butterworth has also proved himself an excellent worker in the cause. Elders McDowell and R. M. Elvin have labored with acceptance, and Warren E. Peak has proved himself a workman that need not be ashamed. The local ministry have been more diligent than in the past, and have contributed largely to the success of the work. But I am sorry to say that in many branches the officers have neglected their duties. This has caused a deadness and coldness in some places. Preaching by even the most talented can not supply the means of grace which God has ordained should be enjoyed through the timely ministrations of the branch officers. God expects every man to do his duty, and the promised blessings will follow.

I have been blessed in my labors and remain at the call of God and his church.

Elder Mark H. Forscutt, of the High Priests, present, reports:

I am not sure that I am entitled to report to your assembly; if not, discard this report. Engaged for and by the church during the past conference year, I have yet done some preaching at Nebraska City, Neb; St. Joseph, Mo; Shenandoah, Lamoni, Davis City and Pleasanton, Iowa, In each place I have labored under direction of the resident local authority. During the year, I have administered and assisted in administering to a goodly number of sick and suffering ones, and although I can not claim any marked manifestation of divine power attended or resultant from my administrations, or the administrations of those whom I assisted, there have not been wanting evidences that the administrations in some cases were pleasing to Him in whose name we administered. In two cases indeed the evidence was peculiarly convincing. So common however are such experiences to the ministry that to particularize would at best be but confirmatory of what others will detail, that it would be unwise for me to use time that could be better employed. I have baptized twenty-three, confirmed and assisted in confirming most of them, received many children at their parent's hands, and presented them as subjects for blessing to the All-wise one, preached, (excepting at Lamoni) everywhere that I have been called upon, if health permitted, and sometimes when prudence dictated otherwise. At Lamoni, which I excepted, the people are so accustomed to hear the silver-tongued orators of the church, and to bask in the rays emitted from our greater and more brilliant luminaries of the church, that I have ever felt a greater or lesser degree of diffidence, and sometimes been so unwilling to hold my lantern up and expose its defective light, that I have either excused myself or declined without excuse. Should the conference and those who regulate or suggest its appointments desire my feeble services, I shall try to respond; should my services be neither accepted nor desired, it will be but a confirmation of a fear that has been gradually gaining strength of late years, the fear that though I may have been of some use to the church in its childhood days, my usefulness is past, and that the church has outgrown the necessities of other days.

With sincere love for the Lord, and a very earnest desire for the triumph of truth and Righteousness.

Conserence Minutes.

NORTH-WEST KANSAS.

Conference held at Blue Rapids, March 30th; president Mahlon Smith in the chair, H. P. Curpresident Mahlon Smith in the chair, H. P. Curtis secretary. Branches reported: Goshen, Blue Rapids, Star Creek. The Elmira branch report was referred back for correction. Elders reporting: E. C. Brand, G. W. Shute, A. Kent, G. W. Beebe, H. Hart. Priests: C. Duncan, V. F. Rogers, Z. Decker. Teachers: W. Scott, S. C. Andes. Motion carried to consider North-West Kansas district, held at Goshen, June 2d, 1888, establishing the west boundary of said district on the west line of Jewel county, and the counties the west line of Jewel county, and the counties south of it. And, whereas, said action has been condemned as being unwise, illegal, and contrary to the prosperity of the church in said district. Therefore, be it resolved, that said action of conference of June 2d, 1888, be hereby rescind-We also hereby extend to the branches and scattered members of the church in western Kansas our congratulations that we are again members together of one united body, and to work more unitedly and zealously for the pros-perity of a great work, until such time as the erection of a new district in our territory becomes necessary. Motion carried to endorse the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, as standard church books. G. W. Shute was elected president and sustained as Bishop's agent; H. P. Curtis elected secretary of district. Motion carried to have all official licenses given in district renewed every two years, commencing at present date. Motion carried that the secretary be authorised to renew Motion all licenses and keep a record of same. Adjourned at such time and place as president may appoint.

Miscellaneous.

ENGLISH MISSION.

Notice.—Be it known that Bro. William Page, member of the Sheffield branch, was by vote of said branch expelled from church fellowship March 25th, 1889, for gross misconduct. The Saints of this mission are warned to have no dealings with him.

HENRY HOOLE, Pres. SAMUEL PLATTS. Sec.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Eastern Iowa district conference will meet with the Jackson branch, at Amber, Jones county, Iowa, on the 31st of May, 1889, at 7:30 p. m. The branch wants all who can to come. p. m. The branch wants all who can to come. The trains will all be met at Amber on the 31st. Send all reports of those who will not be there to James Bradley, Amber, Jones county, Iowa, four or five days before conference.

J. S. Roth, Pres. of Dist.

The Southern Nebraska district conference will be held at Wilber, commencing April 21st. We hope the district will be well represented, and we cordially invite all to attend that can.

CHARLES H. PORTER, Sec.

DIED.

TAYLOR.—At Bartlett, Iowa, March 13th, 1889, James, son of Bro. W. Taylor; born March 16th, 1869. Funeral sermon by Elder H. Kemp to a large audience.

HASSELL.—At his residence, two miles from Elkhart, Texas, after nine days illness of pneumonia, Bro. John Hassell. He was born March 30th, 1822, in Edger county, Illinois; came to Texas with his father's family at an early day, when the Indians made it dangerous living in this country, and has been practicing medicine about thirty years here. He was baptized into the church by Bro. H. C. Smith, February 22d, 1882, and was ordained a priest by Elders Belch er and Thompson, and has ever been a faithful defender of the faith. He will be a loss to the community in which he has so long practiced his profession, and by his large family. has only gone home to await the coming of those who may live as faithful as he by precept and example has taught them. Peacefully rest the departed, and may our Father in heaven shed comfort on those who have been thus suddenly bereaved.

FORNY.—Near Thurman, Iowa, Mrs. Delilah Forny, of Dutch Hollow; born August 2d, 1864, died January 22d, 1889. She leaves a husband and three children. She was a firm believer in the gospel, and intended to have been baptized at our Camp-meeting last fall, but failed. Funeral sermon by Elder Henry Kemp to a large audience of friends and relatives.

WALMSLEY.—At Valley Falls, Rhode Island, March 27th, 1889, Sr. Ellen Walmsley, aged 72 years. She passed away peacefully with full knowledge of her latter end. Her remains were brought to Fall River and buried March 29th, with service by Elder John Smith.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good of roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 man roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one.

EBENEZER MILLER, Senior, SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

PATRIOT AT GENERAL CONFERENCE.

We have secured Elder R. M. Elvin to represent the Patriot at the April Conference. He will furnish all with sample copies and bills, and will take subscriptions. The design of the Patriot is the reflection of truth, the commendation of virtue and patriotism,—in short, to do good. LAMBERT BRO'S., Pub's.,

6apr2t Lamoni, Iowa.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't. D. F. Nicholson, Cashler.

FARMERS' BANK of LAMONI

Will attend to any Business for Non-Residents entrusted to our care

Interest Allowed on Time Deposits.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

REAL ESTATE AGENTS,

West Lexington Street,

INDEPENDENCE. MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

---: A Family Newspaper :---THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT

Provides its readers weekly with 56 COLUMNS

Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thoroughly acquainted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, 25aug Lamoni. Decatur Co., lowa.

TO ELDERS, PRIESTS, AND OTHERS.

TO all persons sending us the names of Two PERSONS as subscribers to the INDEPENDENCE GAZETTE for one year, with the cash, we will send, prepaid, a copy of the "Elders' Diary." The subscription price of the Gazette is $1 a year.

Gazette is $1 a year.

We want Agents everywhere, male and female, and will pay good cash commission. Write us for particulars U F F & C R I C K.

36jan L U F F & Independence, Mo.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPES.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by

Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.

No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen	20
per nundred	50
No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; dozen per hundred	05 40
No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit. dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000-1 No. 5.—The Gospel price the same as No No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects	pay 900
No. 5 The Gernel Price the game, at 37-	10
No 6 The "One Pentiam " its Wede Carb	· the jects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who
Shall Administer: 25c per doz per 100 1	75
Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100.1 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz.	05
per hundred	40
No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; per doz.	25
per hundred1	75
No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Serint.
ural Standpoint; per doz. 30c., per 1002 No. 10.—The Narrow Way; doz. 15c., 1001	25
No. 10.—The Narrow Way; doz. 15c., 1001	10
no. 11.—the figh of daivation; per doz	30
per hundred	25
ner degen 250 nor hundred	02
per dozen 25c., per hundred1 No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen.	65
per hundred1	25 75
No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen	05
per hundred	40
No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001	40
No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church: doz.	25
per hundred	75
No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz.	15
per hundred1	10
No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of Christ, under the Apostleship, and under	An
the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen	40
per hundred	03 15
No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen	15
per hundred1	10
No. 23.—Baptism: per dozen 20c., 1001	25
No. 24 —The Kingdom of God: doz 50, 100	40
No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100.	40
No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House;
per dozen 5c., per hundred	40
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz	25
per hundred	40
the Doctrine and Covenants: dor 50 100	40
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100	40
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Ortho-
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Al-	10
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No.	10
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No.	10
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined	10 . 4. 40
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined	10
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit same price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined  per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection	10 . 4. 40 25
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit same price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 .4. 40 25 50
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined  per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100	10 . 4. 40 25
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100	10 .4. 40 25 50
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 .4. 40 25 50 15
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined  per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 .4. 40 25 50
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 . 4. 40 25 50 15
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in  COWDERY LETTERS.  Containing valuable matter in relation to	10 . 4. 40 25 50 15 75.
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in  COWDERY LETTERS. Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery a	10 . 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 . 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100  COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in  COWDERY LETTERS. Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery a Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen  Without covers 5c. each, per dozen	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen  Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents. COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in COWDERY LETTERS. Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery a Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood. In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen  MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life Here and Here-	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in COWDERY LETTERS. Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery at Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood. In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen  MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages1	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd he 75 50
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in COWDERY LETTERS. Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery at Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood. In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen  MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages1	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents. COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in COWDERY LETTERS. Containing valuable matter in relation to Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery a Translation of the Book of Mormon, and Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood. In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen  MISCELLANEOUS. The Problem of Human Life Here and Here-	10 .4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che 75 50
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd he 75 50 00 50
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 .4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd .he 75 50 00 50 00
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. 50 50 00 50 00 80
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz.5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. 50 50 00 50 00 80
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. 50 50 00 50 00 80
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred1 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che 75 50 00 00 00 00 00
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. 50 50 00 50 00 80
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00 00
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. 50 00 00 00 00 00 00
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00 00
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 65
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. 50 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 00
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	10 4. 40 25 50 15 75. che nd che 75 50 00 00 00 00 00 00 00 65

TRACTS.

E SAINTS' H

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER 18 AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.-Whole No. 832

Lamoni, Iowa, April 27, 1889

No. 17.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication deports. department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Merald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, April 27, 1889

SOURCES OF POWER.

ONE of the most effective clogs thrown into the wheels of progress, in any enterprise, business, social, or religious, is distrust. The fear that co-ordinate branches of the same association are acting unfairly and not in good faith, or are gaining more credit and influence, one more than another, becomes a thorn in the sides of coworkers that rankles and pierces to the great disgust and injury of all. How not to give the adversary the benefit of this coign of vantage is and should be the active effort of the various co-working branches of every order, and especially the church.

If any one co-worker is doing wrong in his office, and knowledge of this wrong comes to other co-workers, the safety of the whole demands that such wrong should be enquired into, if proofs appear to warrant, and if wrong exists the person doing it should be reproved, or excommunicated if the wrong be past redress.

While the foregoing is true, suspected wrong, where proofs do not exist, is productive of evil both to him who is the subject of suspicion and him who suspects; for jealousy and distrust are alike cruel, and torment him who feels them, and injures them against whom they are exercised and allowed to rise.

Honorable minds do not permit the rust of envy and jealousy of compeers and coworkers to gather on the bonds of friend. ship and association. In their regards all associates stand on the level of equality, the measure of usefulness alone being the measure of preference; integrity and faithfulness the standards of honor, and kindness and courtesy the rule of behavior; while friendship and close personal association are reserved for those whom destiny has thrown, or love drawn togeth-

Success in our church work requires personal integrity and diligence. only this, but it requires that personal effort shall be directed with reference to the work of others in our association, those nearest being first in consideration, those farthest away by no means being forgot-The mutual interdependence of the great body of workers being founded upon the fidelity with which each one bears his part, in like manner as the strength of a wall or an arch depends upon the integrity of each brick or stone in place and the bond of the cement used in its construction. A pile of bricks or stones loosely thrown together, no care being observed in their respective bearings, with mortar, or cement of sand or clay having no adhesive qualities would be easily shaken Human organizations, depending upon the intelligence and honesty of their integral parts, must also depend largely upon the power of self-adaptation of each member of it. No matter how skillfully the master workman may arrange and place the members, if these, intelligent, displace themselves, failing to keep the integrity of their bond, disunity is sure to result; the difference between the human organization and the wall or arch used as a comparison being that in one the component parts are inanimate and are solely acted upon, and in the other the members of which it is composed are animate, self-acting, their organization the result of their consent first obtained; without this consent, they can neither become nor continue to be members of the association.

At Independence, Missouri, the Saints are building a church building, using stones of different sizes, in what is called "broken ashlar" style; large ones, small ones, long ones, short ones, thick ones, thin ones, being skillfully and carefully wrought together, one upon another, to make one symmetrical whole. Though the respective stones of which the walls are made may be rough in outward appearance, the bond of their union in the walls is secured by each being properly faced and bedded, and placed where it bears its proportion of the weight of the whole. If these stones were each possessed of the power of separate action, and should neither consent to being placed in the wall, not to keep the places assigned them, no wall could be built; or if it were built it would soon fall to pieces of its own discord (accord).

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." This conversion is the result of an intelligent yielding to the law. If no such yielding takes place there is no conversion, as God, neither by himself, his law nor his ministers of mercy, compels the change of will and purpose which is called conversion. He may and does convict a man by the truths of his appeal; but here he stops, leaving the intelligent being, endowed with power of choice and separate and distinctive action, to the direction of his own will.

If "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," it is as true of God's spiritual rule as of human affairs. For God asks a willing service of those whom he has voluntarily endowed with individuality, responsibility and agency. If they will, they may preserve and glorify what has been conferred upon them, or they may degrade and finally lose what has thus been given into their keeping. The church—human association in spiritual bonds—is offered as one, and we believe the very best if not the only means by which man may preserve and glorify himself and all his powers. In the church, the bond of unity between its members is the bond of unity between its founder, Jesus Christ, and those of which the church the body of Christ is composed; and they may maintain this bond, of their own free will and action, or they may disrupt it; in which case they are not his, and are not "in the vine," being fit only to be "cast out and trodden under feet of men," as the figurative language of Jesus expresses it in the fifteenth of John's gospel.

The Savior bade his disciples to "beware of the leaven of the scribes and Pharisees;" and while in regard to doctrine we may safely apply the injunction, we may in regard to the ruin which may result from its disregard append to the Savior's words, "And beware of distrust and jealousy among the brethren."

Scandal mongering is a reprehensible practice if indulged in by the sisters, it is not commendable among the brethren, lay members; but what shall we say of such a practice indulged in by the elders, any of them, whether they be at home or in the field as ministers of the word? What the elders are led to condemn as reprehensible in the conduct of the members can not be excused in the elders themselves. For this reason elders should not complain of distrust manifested toward them, if they exhibit evidences of want of confidence in each other. More especially should they not complain of the existence of what they by their own disregard of fair and honorable conduct help to sow and foster, by retailing what disparages their co-laborers with those who hear them. "He who sows to the wind" should expect to "reap of the whirlwind."

Official jealousy is incompatible with the true dignity of manhood. How much then it must be unbecoming the dignity of a preacher, a man of God. Discernment of spirits, if it would be harmless to the cause, must be exercised under the direction of the "wisdom that is from above,"

BETRAYED WITH A KISS.

How often it is that men, with honeyed words and loud pretensions of good will, have stealthily, and assassin like, thrust a deadly blow into the very vitals of trusting, confiding ones, either as to their work or reputation! How often we find this class lauding and glorifying others in one moment, and in the next smiting their fame and honor with base insinuations and baser calumnies! How often do these same sanctimonious, self-righteous pharisees, under the guise of holy reformers, rake the purlieus of scandal, or the cesspools of their own vile imaginations, for all manner of uncleanness to cast upon the memory of the dead servants of God, who are not here to rebuke their sin and expose their villainy!

There are men—and some women—whose own rank reputation "smells to heaven," whose chief delight lies in hunting and parading scandal, especially scandal of the dead—who are powerless to defend or explain—and who thereby would divert attention from their own follies and vices and wretched notoriety. He who is foremost in shouting "stop thief," is often found with the stolen goods.

We have in our mind some who have been loud-mouthed until of late in praising and magnifying the calling, work and reputation of Joseph the Seer, who are now only too ready to endorse and herald abroad every vile story that folly or malice or malevolent revenge can invent. In one moment some of these will proclaim him the chosen of God, the "anointed of the Most High," and then lay violent hands-vile hands-upon his reputation and his life work, and hurl them recklessly to the dust and to degradation, humiliating the living, obstructing the work of God, hindering those who would enter the kingdom by casting stumbling blocks in their way, sealing their own condemnation and confusion by their blindness and folly and hate, in the estimation of all reasoning, clean-minded people.

How does it happen that these self-righteous ones remained in the church for twenty, thirty, forty or fifty years and more, bore scores of testimonies in public and in private, by letters and in articles through the press, loudly praising the latter day work and magnifying the worth and work and fame of its chief founder—Joseph the Seer —and now, when their pet theories are rejected, their ambitions are crossed or prove abortive, they all at once discover that the church is basely apostate, its heaven-chosen founder a false revelator, a base falsifier, a false prophet, a very Babel builder, a misleading leader and a "child of the devil" generally! O, Consistency!

God has endorsed the work of the Seer by the gifts and graces of his Holy Spirit. He has endorsed the work of the Reorganized Church from 1851 till today, and has never prospered it so greatly as in the present year. And inasmuch as God endorses its work and seals his approbation of it by the gifts and powers of the Holy Ghost, why need any one fear the murmurings and oppositions of these self-appointed re formers?

When a man tells me he loves and believes in the work brought forth by Joseph the Seer, and then seeks to bring dishonor on his reputation and disbelief in his ministerial work, we are forcibly reminded of him who betrayed his Master with a kiss!

There are those claiming to be Saints who loudly profess to respect and honor Joseph, the son of Joseph the Seer, and yet these same parties press the "gall and vinegar" to his lips for no other reason than that he declines to endorse their views and quietly submit to their theories and surmisings. Their views and feelings are very sacred to themselves; they readily resent and retaliate when any one questions their surmisings their theories and their statements, but when the crown of thorns is thrust with cruel hands down upon the brow of this son of the Seer, they add to the shameful suffering their taunts and jeers and insults.

But compensation and redress will come at last. "Oh, God! how long?"

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

On account of the General Conference minutes requiring most of our space we are compelled to make but a brief mention of the many letters received.

Bro. J. H. and Sr. Mary Hoffman write from Sinnett's Mills, Ritchie county, West Virginia, bearing testimony to the truth and expressing the joy they have realized since entering the fold of Christ. They ask the address of Bro. and Sr. L. R. Devore, stating that they cannot hear from them.

Bro. W. S. Taylor writes from Sherwin Junction, Kansas, making mention of two of the Saints being greatly blessed and instantly healed in answer to prayer and the administration.

Since general conference a letter reaches us from Bro. Cyril E. Brown who reports that in the past year he has done what he could, attended to his Bible class at Sunday School, preached some and baptized one, and attended to general duties. He still desires to move forward.

Elder M. R. Scott wrote from Galena, Indiana, April 3d that he had been greatly blessed in refuting some attacks made upon the faith in his field of labor. He but expresses the sentiments of the general ministry when he mentions a great increase of liberty in preaching the word.

Bro. W. N. Dawson wrote April 3d from Alila, California, that their late district conference was a time of spiritual enjoyment. He reports additions to the branch there through the labors of Brn. Lawn and Brown.

We are requested to announce that Bro. William Nirk will preach grandma Bullard's funeral sermon at the Brockett school-honse in the Des Moines Valley branch on Sunday, May 5th, at 11 a.m. Saints and friends are invited to be present.

Bro. Amasa S. Richardson writes from Council Bluffs, Iowa, indicating a growth in spirituality as a result of heeding the promptings of the Divine Spirit. It is interesting to observe that those who obey the primitive gospel as taught by the Saints receive of the Spirit whose inspiration brings purity of thought and life, love, joy and peace; and a corresponding growth in understanding of the teachings of God's word. How can all these confirming powers of the Holy Spirit be explained away or otherwise accounted for?

Bro. E. T. Bryant writes (without stating where he is located) that he is preparing to make efforts in behalf of the work in the vicinity where he now is. Much opposition exists, but he hoped to overcome it.

We have received, since returning from General Conference, a report to that body from Elder Joseph Lakeman. It came too late for presentation.

Sr. Mrs. E. Butcher of Belvidere, Boone county, Illinois, sends a request for some of the ministry to call and preach there to her relatives and others. Herself and sister were baptized in 1878 at London, England, by Bro. Thomas Bradshaw. Can any one give her his address?

Sr. Lettie A. Dunn of Shellsburg, Iowa, writes stating that herself and little girl compose all the Saints there. She asks prayers in behalf of her husband, desiring him to see the light.

Bro. S. Evison of Wyandotte, Michigan, writes stating that he desired some elder to call and bless his little babe and preach the word. He would like to receive a call from some of the traveling ministry returning from conference.

Bro. J. C. Chrestenson of Rich Hill, Missouri, and Sr. S. Phelps of Basco, Michigan, speak favorably of the Herald. The former expresses surprise that any will use tea, coffee and tobacco, and then fail to take the church publications.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

From a letter dated San Bernardino, California, April 15th, we are pleased to learn that Pres. Joseph Smith's health is improving. He writes:

"It is gratifying to me to state, that I spoke to the Saints here in their little church twice yesterday, and, so far, have had no unwelcome reminders in my throat and face, as has been the case nearly all the past year. I feel very greatly encouraged. My health is in many respects much improved. My appetite is fair; my sleep is good, and I have less pain in my head; it is now mostly local and in the jaw and muscles of the face. If I get over this week without recurrence of neuralgic disturbance, I shall think about 'moving on.'"

Bro. W. C. Morgan writes from Oakland, Iowa, as follows:

"I feel the calling of God awaking me to do His will and shall promptly obey. I was visited by Bro. H. N. Hansen a few weeks ago, but on account of sickness and cold weather I was not baptized. I wrote to him again and am looking for him now. When he comes I will be joined to the family of God. Concerning the Prayer Union, as long as it does no harm it may do good; and any one that would oppose it must certainly think that a woman has no part in the kingdom. One request I wish to make. I have been sick for three years with a cough and other very serious troubles. I desire the Prayer Union and all praying Saints to extend their prayers to the Lord for me. If any of the elders pass through Oakland I would be glad to have them call. I live two miles west of town at the home of K. Walker.

Bro. E. C. Brown writes from Pomona, California:

"This branch has not yet been organized. We have the promise of a hall, chandeliered and seated, at the moderate price of seventy-five cents per day. We have a few friends who belong to other denominations. A straightforward, honest course will gain friends."

Sr. Sybilia Zenor, of Brock, Nebraska, writes as follows:

"We have moved to a new country, where there are no other Saints. Nebraska City, eighteen miles distant is the nearest branch, I believe. Our house is open to any of the ministry who will come and preach. Brock is on the Missouri Pacific Railroad. We will be here for a year at least."

Bro. Walter Menzies, writing from Denver, Colorado, says:

"My lot is cast here for a time. The Saints at this place met Sunday morning, it being their first meeting for a long time. We number seventeen, and have arranged to meet every Sunday."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—To whom does this promise of Jesus refer?—"And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say to those his right hand, 'Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.'"

Ans.—The following is our answer: "But, behold, the righteous, the Saints of the Holy One of Israel, they who have beleved in the Holy One of Israel, they who have endured the crosses of the world and despised the shame of it, they shall inherit the kingdom of God which was prepared from the foundation of the world, and their joy shall be full forever."—2 Nephi 6: 7. Also, "But, behold, verily I say unto you, before the earth shall pass away, Michael, mine archangel, shall sound his trump, and then shall all the dead awake, for their graves shall be opened and they shall come forth; yea, even all; and the righteous shall be gathered on my right hand unto eternal life; and the wicked on my left hand will I be ashamed to own before the Father; wherefore, I say will unto them, depart from me ve cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."-D. & C. 28:7. Similar teaching is found in Mosiah 8:6, and all of this shows that the "redemption" of the Saints and "the kingdom" they are to eternally inherit were "perpared from the foundation of the world."

Two or three things I wish now to impress on your mind, First, you can not learn without your own efforts. All the teachers in the world can not make a scholar out of you if you do not apply yourself with all your might. In the second place, be of good character and good behavior—of strict truth, and honor and conscience in all things, have but one rule and let that be always to act right and fear nothing but wrong doing—Daniel Webster.

Poverty is uncomfortable as I can testify, but nine times out of ten, the best thing that can happen to a young man is to be tossed overboard and compelled to sink or swim for himself; for in all my acquaintance I never knew a man to be drowned who was worth the saving. It is the pride of every American that many cherished names, at whose names our hearts beat with quicker bound, were worn by the sons of poverty who conquered obscurity and became the fixed stars in our firmament.—Gar field.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Sr. Mary E. Gunsolley, requests your prayers in behalf of the wife of Jacob Gunsolley, of Defiance, Iowa; who is afflicted in mind.

Sr. Tryphena E. Case, Campeche, California, requests your prayers in her behalf that her life may be spared to raise her little girls.

Sr. J. R. Chappelow, New Trenton, Indiana, requests your prayers, that God may, if it is his will, restore her eyes that her sight may be retained.

Sr. F. A. Jenkins requests the prayers of the Prayer Union in behalf of her aged, suffering mother, Sr. Drucilla Nipp. Pray that God may grant her release from pain.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sr. Laura V. Neal, Oak Wood, Texas, writes: "We are just getting over the measles here. Seven of my children (all I have) have had them, but I am thankful to God that all have been spared. During the entire time of their sickness I have never been absent from the Sunday School and prayer-meeting but once. We have the Compendium and Question Book and are well pleased with them. We are expecting Bro. J. A. Currie, junior, soon."

Sr. S. A. Graves, Chatham, Ontario, writes:—
"I have not written for a long time, but I am still in the narrow way, striving to keep the faith of the Saints; though it sometimes seems hard to fight through the trials of life in this mortal state. I know this work is of God and not of man. I read the Herald when I can get it, and am encouraged by the many good letters in the Home Column. I ask that the sisters of the Prayer Union will remember me in their prayers that my health may be restored.

Sr. Mary E. Piddington, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes:—"From week to week I read with pleasure the letters from the mothers in Zion and feel that there is a great responsibility resting upon each one of us, with reference to the little babes entrusted to our care to lead and guide aright. I was very anxious to be at the reunion and meet with the Saints, but could not on account of the sickness of my companion. He has passed away and rests in peace. Pray for me that God may sustain me."

Sr. Mary J. Kennell, Montour, Iowa, writes:—
"I was baptized ten years ago by Bro. D. C.
White. I still love the gospel, and have never regretted what I then did. Bro. Roth was with us a few days ago and promised to return soon, if possible. We would like to have Bro. Roth and I. N. White come and preach in the hall a week if possible."

Sr. Harriet C. Fesler, Deepwater, Missouri, writes:—"I feel that I can never be thankful enough for having lived to hear and obey the gospel. The Lord has blessed me far beyond all my expectations, answering my prayers almost miraculously, and sometimes while I was yet speaking. We have scattered some tracts and some copies of the Voice of Warning, and a few seem anxious to hear preaching. I wish to say to Bro. J. H. Peters that I received the books sent, and will try to do the best I can with them."

Sr. E. Jennie Hampton, Dumas, Mo., writes:—"I observed the law of tithing by enumerating all my earthly possessions and paying to the Bishop one-tenth the value of these the first year and afterwards one-tenth of all the increase to my worldly goods. My health is better than it has been. I have had four years' experience as a clerk, and would be glad to get a situation among the Saints, in some branch of the church."

A sister whose name we withhold, writes us, drawing a picture with her pen, which is painful to contemplate and hard to realize the fact of its existence. It is that of a toil-worn weary wife, whose only comforter is God. Are the trials of such a one hard to bear? Yes, God knows how hard, and he only can know. Sickness, weariness, poverty, and the multiplied trials of life press heavily upon woman, even when she may lean upon the strong arm of one who loves her and stands ever ready to help, console, strengthen and cheer her. But if it be hard to bear under conditions such as these, what must it be when all these are wanting, and when unkindness, fault-finding and utter indifference to every need of her weary body and soul, have usurped the place of these? But, dear sister, they can be borne and more, they can be made stepping stones to a higher life; means to the end of obtaining a more complete victory. Lean heavily upon your God; make him your only confidant, and trust him with faith—not faith in name only, but the faith which realizes, yes, which knows, that not a trial which is not of his appointing can reach his faithful children. Your own strength is very weakness; in it you can not endure, but he will strengthen you if you call upon him in faith believing, and enable you to rejoice in that which now seems so hard to endure. Let the Lord carry your burden, for when he appointed it to you he knew you would need his strength, and because of his knowledge he said: "Come unto me, all ye who are weary and heavy laden."

Sr. Lizzie Wickiser, Bell Air, Illinois, writes: -"I united with the church about four years ago. I was raised in, and for a number of years belonged to the Methodist Church. My brother, O. G. Goodin, first presented the gospel to my husband and myself; but through the influence of prejudice we were not prepared to accept it. We ransacked the Bible for proof against its claims, but unfortunately for our object, we found more in its favor than against it. We became convinced of its truth under the preaching of George Montague, of Iowa, and have since then been trying to keep the commandments of God. May God increase our faith and give us wisdom that we may set an example worthy of imitation."

EUREKA, Kans., March 20th.

Sr. Walker:—We still hold to the one true faith, and are the only two who belong to the Saints' Church here in Eureka that we know of, and if any Saints happen to pass through here, we would like to have them call and see us. We live north west of the Fort Scott depot, on Poplar street. If they follow the first street north of the railroad till they come to the main road, then turn north and the second house is ours.

We take the Autumn Leaves and Hevald, and do not see how members of the church can get along without either of them. We have heard but very little preaching, and we hope if the people of Labette county start out with a tent to preach they will come here. We were baptized and confirmed by Bro. Moses Turpen last November, one year ago.

Yours with respect,

Mrs. C. Cato.

MARATHON, Iowa, April 3d.

Dear Sisters:—I have often wished to write you, but a knowledge of my inability held me back, but to-day, I am feeling so lonely, and homesick for the society of the Saints, that I thought I would have a little chat with you.

First let me say how much I enjoy the Home Column. Sr. Frances is a dear friend of bygone days, and when I read her writings it seems that I can see her as of old. I have been one of the "scattered ones," for thirteen years. Bro. J. R. Lambert preached here some ten years ago, since then we have had no preaching by our elders until a year ago last fall, Bro. Alexander Smith came and held a few meetings, since which Brn. Wedlock, Whiting and Ford have held meetings near here. The 19th, Bro. J. F. McDowell came and preached at Marathon in the evening and the evening of the 20th, began a debate with a Restitutionist and although sometimes ill through the day, he was always ready when night came to stand up in defense of the truth, which he did nobly, making many friends for himself and the cause he represents. We have reason to believe if he could have stayed and preached a few times more some would have obeyed. The Restitutionists say they gained the victory. If they did we do not suffer any, for we have not found it

No one only those situated as we are can tell what a blank it leaves when the elders go away.

I have been troubled some time with neuralgia of the stomach. Through laying on of hands in administration I have been much relieved, and I ask the sisters to pray that my faith may be such as will bring an entire cure.

SR. CLARA SMITH.

STRANG, Neb., April 2d.

Dear Sister Frances:-I can not find words to express the good that I have received from the instructions and experiences of the writers of the Column, and the Autumn Leaves are just splendid, as well as our little Hope. The Prayer Union is a great blessing, especially to us scattered ones, if we are only faithful. Let us never cease to pray for the dear sisters who, under God, were the means of starting it. Regarding plain dress, I believe by what I have read in the Scriptures, and by experience, that the more of the worldly fashions we lay aside the more of the Spirit of God we will have, as they take up so much of our thoughts and time, besides the money we spend would do much good to the cause of Christ. This will not hinder us from being neat and tasteful. We have been told it is not good for us to eat so much meat. I can say for myself that I have not tasted any pork for about one year, or since the brother's dream appeared in the Autumn Leaves, and I have been blessed for so abstaining.

I have been trying for about two years to get a place for one of our elders to preach in. Have been lending tracts and books, and have succeeded in getting the promise of the United Brethren church in our little town. I will be glad if the first elder who can come will please write me in time for me to answer his letter. I expect there will be a good amount of prejudice to contend with. There are three churches here. Ever craving your prayers, I remain your sister,

ALICE STRICKLAND.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 7th.

Dear Sr. Walker:—My attention being held by a late article in one of the January Heralds to the revealed fact (see Doc. & Cov., sec. 18,) of the day month and year of our blessed Master's birthday, the thought entered my mind, "Why not get the babies to save their pennies from this time on until April 6th, 1890, and send to the Home Column Missionary Fund, as the baby you wrote of, who sent a "jug of pennies?" That was a grand idea and I thank you for publishing it.

My eldest boy seems to take much interest in saving his money for "Jesus' birth-day present," as he calls it. His own birth-day comes on the same day, April 6th, and he wants Jesus to have a present as well as himself. I hope much good may come from that suggestion, by way of thoughtfulness in them toward their Heavenly Parent.

SR. LOTTIE A. BROWN.

WEBB CITY, Mo., March 24th.

Dear Sisters in Christ:—It is not in the power of pen to express the depth of gratitude I owe for the many blessings I have received since I obeyed the gospel some ten years ago. I have often been healed through the laying on of hands by the elders, and so have my children; and when there was no elder near we have prayed, and our prayers have been answered. The things of God are only discerned by the Spirit of God, and there may be many who will read this who may think that the Lord does not work in these days. To such I would say, Has God changed? or is his power less? No; he is the same yesterday, to day and forever. His course is one eternal round.

Twelve days ago I was run over by a team and wagon. When I knew I was under their feet I said: "Lord, do not let them step on me." The wagon run over my limbs, but as they lay together, but one was hurt. It was bruised very badly, and the small bone was mashed. I was brought home and my limb was swollen so I could hardly get off my stocking; but the first thing I thought of was the elders, and I knew if I was administered to I could get relief. It was three hours before they could come, during which time I suffered very much; but when they anointed the bruised place with oil and laid hands on me, I felt relief, and the swelling began to go go down as if a band had been loosened. I felt that the leaders in my ankle were drawn, and I asked them to anoint my foot and administer again and I would be relieved. It was even so, for I have not suffered any severe pain since. Every one says: "Is not that very painful?" I tell them, "No; because it was healed; although the place is yet black and blue, yet I suffer no pain." None but those who have received like blessings can fully realize the blessing. we not a people who can rejoice that we worship the God of Israel, who is able and willing to give unto his children blessings when they come as he has said, meek and humble, trusting in his love and care! Yes; He is as willing to give good gifts to us as we are to our earthly children, and when we are blessed, dear Saints, do not let us forget to return and give him thanks, for we read where there were ten cleansed, but one only returned and gave Him praise.

Then, sisters in Zion, arise! Together we can cast in our mite. The army will be stronger and brighter if we will gird on our armor and fight. I have let the hour of prayer pass several days, not intentionally, but some way I was thrown off, or hindered. There may be others who have done the same. Do not let this discourage you, but let us pray every day and not depend on the hour alone, and if we pray often we will not be so apt to forget or miss the hour set apart for prayer. I am your sister in gospel bonds,

R. M. BRADLEY.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., March 20th. Sr. Frances:—The Saints of the Nebraska City branch met at the house of Sr. Waldsmith for the purpose of organizing a Prayer Union, and organized, with the following named sisters as officers: Sr. Armstrong president, Sr. R. Faunce secretary.

Yours in the bonds of love and truth,

MARY M. PERREN.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

. Approximation of the control of th
Sr. A. N. Woods, Wilber, Neb$ Sr. Hattie Beechum, Little Sioux, Ia Sr. Eliza Minteer, Millersburg, Ill Elmer, Charlie and Edmund Browne, Prov-	35 25 55
idence, R. I.  Bro. F. R. Jones, St. James, Neb. I Sr. Terena Sears, East Dennis, Mass. Sr. H. Bardsley, West Point, Cal. I Sr. N. E. Talmage, Emerson, Iowa I Sr. Geo. Erwin, Emerson, Iowa I Sr. Minnie Erwin, Emerson, Iowa Sr. Jane Lock, Emerson, Iowa	50 00 75 25 00 00 50
Sr. Mary P. Davis and daughter, Emerson, Iowa	50 50 50 50 50 50 50 50 50 50
Fanning, Kan	00 50 20 00 06 50 00 12 46

A LEAF ON A STREAM.

I saw a fallen leaf float down a stream,
As flowed the current, so it too was borne Far from the stem from which it had been torn
By winds or careless hand. A bright sunbeam Shone on it, as it floated swiftly by;
It seemed so pelpless, on the waves alone,
I wondered where at last 'twould peaceful lie,
When, lo, mid-stream, against a mossy stone,
It settled quietly, as though to rest.
I thought, the stream is like the stream of life,
The leaf a soul, the winds and waves life's strife;
The stone, the Christian's only rock of rest—
The Rock of Ages, where the waves lie still, Obedient to the Everlasting will.—Sel.

Otticial.

GENERAL CONFERENCE. (Continued.)

D. H. BAYS' LETTER.

A report was read from J. R. Lambert in relation to the Galland's Grove branch issuing a letter to D. H. Bays, and it was referred to a committee for them to examine and recommend some course of action. The chair appointed R. M. Elvin, I. N. White and James McKiernan as said committee.

The Quorum of Twelve present the following:

St. Joseph, Mo., April 8th, 1889. To the General Conference assembled:—By vote of the Quorum of Twelve I have been authorized to announce that the Quorum is now ready to consider any business which in your wisdom may be properly referred to it.

JOSEPH LUFF, Sec. of Quorum.

HERALD OFFICE REPORT.

The report of the auditing committee of the Herald Office books was read and placed upon the report subject to call:

We, your committee, or a majority thereof, appointed to audit the books and accounts, and examine plant and material, and management of the Herald Office, at Lamoni, Iowa, under charge of the Board of Publication, respectfully submit the following report:

On March 28th, as per appointment, we met at Lamoni, Iowa, and on the 29th, though one of the committee was absent, we deemed it wise to enter at once upon duties assigned to us at your last session. In examining such accounts as required three persons to properly check them at one time, brother R. M. Elvin assisted us a portion of the first day. Subsequently your committee had to work alone, calling frequently on the secretary of Board for explanations needed. We individually added the accounts as transcribed, and compared the transcripts with the books of original entry wherever we deemed it necessary. The books of the office were all submitted for our inspection, as also all books and other property on hand. The books we audited carefully, counted the bound works, and weighed Heralds, Hopes and Tracts, counting and weighing a quantity, then obtaining the measures of those weighed, measured all on the shelf. Every facility was afforded for a thorough examination.

Neither of your committee subscribing to this being practical printers, we took the statement of auditing committee of 1888 respecting plant and material, adding thereto the purchases of last conference year. We took no account of the amount of deterioration in type and machinery, and hence have allowed nothing for depreciation in value; but are informed that the usual discount is five per cent. per annum. The foreman of the office informs us that Herald and Hope both need new type. This is consequent jointly upon increased demands by reason of increased business, and deterioration from use during over six years past. The new type needed will cost about five hundred dollars. A portion of the old will be available for mailing lists, the rest can be melted and used in the office for stereotyping, and for these purposes will be worth about one hundred dollars. The foreman further states that a new paper cutting machine is needed. This will cost four hundred dollars; but as one hundred dollars will be allowed for the old machine, the net cost will be but three hundred dol-

The changes in service during past conference year, consist in the engagement of an assistant in editorial department, and one boy in mechanical department; one man in compositors room, one man, and one lady less. The engagement of editorial assistant was to make possible the devotion of the Editors to more ministerial work.

The salary of the secretary has been raised $5. per month; the committee of 1888 recommended to the Board that it be raised $15. or to $75 per month, and your committee is of the opinion that less than this is altogether insufficient to remunerate him for the amount of labor done, and responsibility borne by him. The salary of the pressman, who is also stereotyper, has been raised about $2.00 per week.

Still further, in consideration of the fact that the secretary is far behind in his work, books not posted up to date, and that a great difficulty would be experienced in supplying a balance sheet promptly, if necessary, your committee is of the opinion that, in the busy season at least, an intelligent and active young person should be employed to assist him in taking care of stock, mailing, and doing the general work that one of low wages could do almost equally well, if work-ing faithfully under his direction. This would leave the secretary more time for his books and accounts which he now has frequently to do out of office hours and at home.

The cost of binding during the last conference year was $1,112.44. By the expenditure of $300 a necessary plant to enable the employes of the office to bind all our church books in the ordinary styles of binding, could be supplied. The estimate furnished your committee by the foreman is $278.55. Your committee merely make a report of this, accompanied by the foreman's estimate, that should Conference consider the advisability of adding a bindery, a correct basis for judgment may be supplied. If a bindery be added, additional room and force will be necessary

Respecting the Saints' Harmony, your committee regrets the absence of its other member. As one of the committee present is Editor of the Harmony, he would have preferred that the report in reference to this should have been made by the other members of the auditing committee. The plates for the Harmony have not all been received at the Herald Office; but as the bill for those not received arrived last evening, it is presumed that the rest are in transit. The charges as per this bill are.

$656 00
16 00
5.25
	$677.25
ony to date
$501.85
672 00
$1173.85
ght,
	(1971)
866.24
oen-
200.00
	$2283.29
$651.95
	$501.85 $501.85 $1173.85 $1173.85 $ht, $66.24

Sandheden's Banner account of $151.36 is partly carried over from last year, partly this year's account continued from last year with the hope of its editor that it would be collectible, but now by the secretary of the Board is considered noncollectible. Your committee, however, entered it among the assets this year because it appeared there last year, and in their opinion a correct conclusion of gain or loss demanded it.

Balance unpaid . . . . . . 1091 54

$1191.75

Respectfully submitted by auditing committee.

J. H. Peters,
M. H. Forscutt.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 6th, 1889. Being unable to meet with the other brethren of the committee, I have examined the report as written above, and so far as it relates to the printing plant and its inventory, and discount thereon, (which part was to have been assigned me for examination) I endorse the report. balance of the report I have no means of forming an opir ion upon except from the statements contained therein. Joseph Luff,

Of the committee.

Report of cash received and paid from March 16th, 1888, to March 15th, 1889.

RECEIPTS.

Balance on hand last report $438.	55
Publishing Department10,624.
Accounts current18,975	17
Bills payable	oo
Real Estate	00
Bills receivable	47
Sundry accounts	83
Interest, or rent of house and safe 960
Total amount received $31,304.	55
EXPENDITURES.

	EXPENDITURES.
Expense acco	ount	$8,843.47
	ints
Paper		2,117.83
Binding		1,112.44
Bills payable		900.00
Interest		51.38
Books and st	ationery	184.11
Ink		57.20
Printer's mat	erial and supplies	204 14
Tota	l amount expended	$28,819.05
	nce cash on hand	2,485.50
Tota	l expended and in hand	$31,304 55
	UMMARY OF ACCOUNTS	i la paga da /del>

ASSETS.

Bookkeeper's room$1,190.55
Editorial room 271 00	a saile
Press department13,304 84
Plates Saints' Harmony 1,191.75
Store department 2,564 86
Real Estate 5,850.00
Bills receivable 700.00
Order of Enoch 110 00
- 1986 - 1985 - 1985 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 1986 - 19	$25,183.00

Currency and	coin		2.485.50
Accounts recei	lvable		3 468.22
		Total assets	$31,136.72

LIABILITIES.

Bills	payab	le		$ 3,700 00
Acco	unts 1	payabl	e	 5,074 68
					$2

$8,774.68 Net value $22,362.04

ASSETS AND LIABILITIES 1888.

C 20 080 (8)

Inventory 1000, $23,202.40	化对抗性性原则 网络特别
" 1889, 25,183 00	Gain $1,900.52
Acc'ts rec'ble 1888, $3,074.12
" " 1889, 3.468.22	Gain $394.10
Cash on hand 1888, $438 55
	Gain $2,046.95

$4,341.57 Liabilities 1889, $8,774 68 } 1888, 7,654 01 $ $1,120.67 Net gain $3.220.90

MUSIC BOOK.

The report of the editor of music was read, and it was referred to a committee composed of J. T. Kinnaman, E. L. Kelley and W. H. Garrett. It reads as fol-

Appointed by you to edit the "Saint's Harmo-'the appointment being at your last session, I beg leave to report at this session that I arrived at Lamoni, as I promised your committee, within two weeks from the date of my agree-

The Board of Publication having decided to have the work done in Chicago, instead of doing it in the Herald Office, as it was anticipated, and there being no written agreement made between the Board and the electrotyper as to time, that I know of, the work has been delayed from time to time, until the rest of the conference year, subsequent to the agreement with him, had nearly all passed away.

I wrote the electrotyper several times, urging expedition; but probably, and certainly and rightly, if so, concluding that that part of it was "none of my business," he did not reply to any of my urgent appeals. The Bishop made the contract with him, and in my presence he told the Bishop he could do it in two months, if copy was supplied. I knew that he was under-estimating the work, and told him that if he did it in three months, no complaint would be made.

It being my duty to supply him with copy, I think it but right to report that from the time of my sending the first installment, I never left in the electrotypers hands less than, nor as few as, fifty tunes for which no proof had been furnished me. Delay, therefore, could not, in the most remote sense, be charged to the editor. The fact that the work was done in Chicago,

The fact that the work was done in Chicago, while I was at Lamoni, rendered necessary the copying of all, or nearly all the music, so that in case of loss, I might still have, if demanded, the tunes to resupply. Many of the tunes also that could have been set up from the copy-furnished, provided I could have been personally present to point out notes or passages that were not so clearly legible as required, had to be copied carefully when the copy was sent away for publication. Other reasons also contributed to make such copying necessary. Nearly, if not twice the amount of work devolved on me that would have done had it been possible for me to personally attend to

The extra work involved extra time, so that it is barely possible that I could have supplied recopied copy had the work been done as expeditiously as promised us. Allowance being made for the extra time re-copying demanded, there is still a surplus of time. This I improved in re-writing and re-arranging much of the music that was much more faulty in construction than it is now, than it will appear in the printed edition of the Saint's Harmony.

In stating that many of the new compositions possess intrinsic merit, I but repeat the expressed opinion of many competent to judge of the mat-

The bill for the last installment of plates was received while I was on duty in Lamoni last week, so that it is not rash to conclude that ere this conference closes, the plates will all be in the hands of the Board of Publication.

Herewith is presented copy and proofs subject to your order. A committee to examine and report upon them, if you so wish, will have every facility possible afforded for examintion.

Yours very respectfully,

MARK H. FORSCUTT,

Editor of Music.

On motion the time of the morning prayer meeting was extended twenty minutes.

Pres. Blair read a portion of a letter just received from Pres. Joseph Smith which states that his health makes it advisable that he should remain where he is and not try to attend conference. He writes from Los Angeles, California.

The evening sermon was by Charles Derry of Magnolia, Iowa, assisted by C. E. Butterworth of Dow City, Iowa. Bro. Derry spoke from the words contained in Psalms 11: 1-8.

TUESDAY, APRIL 9TH.

The prayer meeting was in charge of J. A. Robinson and F. G. Pitt, both of Independence, Missouri.

The sermon at half-past ten o'clock was by Emsley Curtis of Harrisonville, Missouri, from the text: "I am the door; he that entereth in by me shall be saved." F. G. Pitt assisted in the services.

At half-past one o'clock the hymn, "The morning breaks, the shadows flee," was sung, and Hiram Rathbun offered prayer.

CREDENTIALS.

The committee on credentials made their report as follows:

report as ronows.
Canada, London district: I. H. Lake and R.	Votes.
C. Evans Canada, Kent and Elgin district: John H.	24
Lake	3.4.
Idaho: R. J. Anthony	3
and W. S. Pender	31
Illinois, Kewanee: J. W. Terry	10
Illinois, South-Eastern: J. W. Gillen Illinois, Nauvoo and String Prairie: J. Mc-	- 7
Kiernan and Beni Herrick	11
Iowa, Decatur: L. W. Powell, M. M. Tur- pen, Robt. Johnson, Wm. Anderson, W.
Hudson	. 50
Hudson. Iowa, Des Moines, J. S. Roth. Iowa, Eastern: J. S. Roth, Warren Turner.	. 16
Iowa, Fremont: J. S. Roth, Warren Turner. Iowa, Fremont: Henry Kemp, S. S. Wil-	. 6
cox, D. Hougas, W. M. Gaylord, Wm.
Lecka	. 15
Iowa, Galland's Grove: W. W. Whiting, C	,
E. Butterworth, John Pett, J. T. Turner	1 00
David Rudd	. 29 I
Chambers, Thomas Thomas	31
Iowa, Pottawattamie: D. K. Dodson, C. A
Beebe, R. McKenzie, W. E. Peak Kansas, Central: W. Hopkins, E. C. Brand.	. 18
Kansas, North-Western: G. W. Shute, S. C.	. 6
Andes, C. R. Duncan	. 8
Andes, C. R. Duncan	. 24
Wichigan, Northern: L. L. Cornish, Andrew	7
Barr, J. W. Shippy	. 20
Scott, E. McElhennie, J. B. Prettyman, W
Reynolds	. 14
Winning Wm Lewis Wm Summarfold
J. Burlington	. 21
J. Burlington
fred White, Emsley Curtis, F. G. Pitte Missouri, Nodaway: James Thomas, Wm Woodhead, A. K. Ross, J. Fiory, P. Ras	. 40
Woodhead A K Ross I Flory D Dag	v
mussen, M. P. Madison	. 6
Missouri, St. Louis: 1. W. Gillen, W. ()	).
Thomas, R. Etzenhouser	. 19
Smith	'. . 6
Smith
mel, I. Huff, E. Boulsen, D. Bowen	3.9
Nebraska, Southern: R. C. Elvin, J. W Waldsmith, H. C. Bronson
Ohio and Pennsylvania. Kirtland and Pitts	. 17
burg: E. C. Briggs, G. T. Griffiths, E. L.
Kelley, J. Brown, W. H. Garrett, F. Criley
Pennsylvania, Philadelphia: W. H. Kellev. South-Easter Ohio and West Virginia: E	5
C. Briggs and G. T. Griffiths.	8
Texas Central: I. N. Roberts	. 10
Utah: R. J. Anthony, J. F. Weston, J. C.	4
Jensen
" rocomoni, western. Frank Hackett,	. 4
Total vote	514
The committee finds a certificate from

The committee finds a certificate from Deer Lodge, branch, Montana, of R. J. Anthony, delegate. But this branch being in an organized district is not provided for separately under the Rules of Representation, so we refer the matter to the body for action.

Several of the districts did not report the number of their members, hence these are left to the Church Secretary and Recorder to supply.

M. H. Bond, Sec. of Com.

EX-OFFICIO MEMBERS OF CONFERENCE. OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY: W. W. Blair.

OF THE APOSTLES.

E. C Briggs,
W. H. Kelley,
G. T. Griffiths,
GF THE HIGH PRIESTS.

Charles Derry,
G. A. Blakeslee,
H. A. Stebbins,
S. S. Wilcox.

OF THE APOSTLES.
A. H. Smith,
J. W. Gillen,
J. W. G

OF THE SEVENTY.

E. C. Brand.
W. T. Bozarth,
I. N. Roberts,
W. M. Ramel,
A. J. Moore,

OF THE SEVENTY.

Duncan Campbell, Columbus Scott,
R. J. Anthony,
J. C. Fose,
J. S. Roth,
R. C. Evans,
I. N. White,
F. M. Sheehy,
M. H. Bond,
H. N. Hansen

Henry Kemp,
James McKiernan,
J. Arthur Davis.
Andrew Hall,
J. L. Bear,
J. H. Guorum OF ELDERS.

R. S. Salyards,
M. T. Bays,
M. T. Short,
J. F. McDowell,
W. J. Smith,
M. M. Turpen.

R. M. Elvin, E. L. Kelley, Wm. Anderson, Calvin Beebe, Alfred White, J. W. Terry, Um. Woodhead.

FIRST GUODOM OF BEIDERS.

E. L. Kelley, F. G. Pitt, James Thomas, D. K. Dodson, J. W. Terry, John Johnston, J. D. Bennett, SECOND QUORUM OF ELDERS.

C. E. Butterworth, W. S. Pender,
D. M. Rudd, Wm. Chambers,
Richard Hughes, Thos. E. Lloyd,
E. E. Wheeler, J. Armstrong,
THIRD QUORUM OF ELDERS.

C. W. Shute,
Thomas,
Samnel Alcott.

J. T. Kinnaman, J. M. Terry, Albert Bishop, John Hawley. O. P. Sutherland, J. T. Turner, Daniel Munns, D. J. Powell, E. Rowland, J. W. Waldsmith.

FOURTH QUORUM OF ELDERS.

Joseph Flory, Samuel Crum, R. K. Ross, Wm. Hopkins, John Shippy, J. J. Cornish, W. S. Montgomery.

FIFTH QUORUM OF ELDERS.

R. Etzenhouser, Wm. Williams, W. H. Garrett, Chas. Herzing, Henry Grim.

J. A. Robinson, Emsley Curtis, Frank Hackett, L. L. Babbitt, Nicholas Rumel, ELDERS IN NO QUORUM.

J. Burlington, C. St. Clair, Mitchell Stephens, D. E. Norton, J. C. Jensen, E. R. Lanpher. William Gurwell,

R. J. ANTHONY ORDAINED.

The quorum of the Twelve reported that they had this morning attended to the ordination of R. J Anthony one of presidents of Seventy.

BISHOP'S REPORT.

The report of Geo. A. Blakeslee, Bishop of the church, was read:

Herewith I submit summary and report, showing financial condition of the church for the past fiscal year. It will be observed from the report that there has been an increase in the receipts over the preceding year of eleven thousand four hundred and fifty-four dollars and fifty seven cents. And that there has also been an increase in the expenditures of eighteen thousand six hundred and seventy-two dollars and eighty-eight cents.

This largely increased expenditure is due mainly, if not wholly, to the largely increased number of ministers placed in the field at the last Annual Conference.

The report is incomplete in this; that, about forty-five of the elders sent out by the conference have not made their individual reports of monies received as required by the law, which had they have done so, it would probably have shown an increase in the receipts and expenditures of twelve hundred dollars.

During the year, viz, on the 19th day of March, A. D. 1889, this department was called to part with the services of one of its members, Counsellor Elijah Banta, the decease of whom at said date, it has become my duty to officially report to your body. Bro. Banta, so many years closely connected with the work and duties of the Bishopric, and always eminently wise in counsel and fearless in the advocacy and maintenance of whatever he believed to be right, has, with the upright and faithful of God's children who have finished their allotted work in this life, passed to the other side, to await only, as we feel assured, an abundant reward.

His place here, we trust, will in the wisdom of the Master, soon again be filled; when, and till which, we trust this arm of the service will, under the divine guidance, maintain its increasing prosperity.

Ever praying for the welfare and extension of the work of the Lord, I am, in bonds of fellowship,

G. A. BLAKESLEE,

Presiding Bishop.

SUMMARY OF RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

Total collected for fiscal year ending April 6th, 1889.

By Agents for Tithes and Offerings
By Agents from Bishop 4,245 89 By Elders not otherwise reported
Total collected$40,970 41
EXPENDITURES FOR FISCAL YEAR.
By Rishop to Agents
Bishop to Elders and Incidentals 7,963 94
Agents to poor
Agents to Bishop
By Elders not otherwise reported 4,664 01
Total expended$44.808_07
Amount expended more than received 3.837 66
Cash in Bishop's hands last report $4.401 18
In Agents' hands last report. 5,715 87
In Bishop's and Agents' hands last report$10,117 05 Less amount expended more than received $3,837 66
$3,837 66
Cash in Bishop's and Agents' hands, this report $6.279 39
BISHOP'S INDIVIDUAL REPORT.
Cash on hand last report $4,401 18
Received from Agents6,822 70 Received for Tithes and Offerings
All Management and the Company of th
EXPENDITURES.
Remitted to Agents$4,245 89 Remitted to poor Expended for Elders and Incidentals 7.963 94
Total expended
Balance on hand
AGENTS' RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.
Cash in Agents' hands last report $5,715 87
Received from Bishop 4,245 89
Received from Tithes and Offorings
The state of the s
EXPENDITURES.
Remitted to Bishop
To Elders and Incidentals
Total expended
PRE-desired (Page of the Section of
DUE CHURCH FROM ALL SOURCES NOT INCLUDING BUILDINGS IN WHICH TO WORSHIP. On hands in account last report $4,815 41
Bills receivable last report 2,488 20
Real Estate last report 22,490 00 Bills receivable present report 1,774 81
Real Estate present report 1,650 00
Herald Office present report 219 76
Cash in Bishop's hands present report Cash in Agents' hands present report
Amount
917 83
Amount with liabilities$39,199 74
LIABILITIES.
Due Agents
Bills payable non-interest
Total amount due Church$38,891 20
THE STATE OF THE PROPERTY OF T

On motion that the report be referred to a committee of three, the chair appointed J. A. Robinson, C. A. Beebe and Frank Criley as said committee.

FLORY VS. HERALD EDITORS.

An appeal from Joseph Flory was read and on motion the subject was referred to a committee, the body appointing theron R. Etzenhouser, T. E. Lloyd and S. S. Wilcox.

HIGH PRIESTS.

The special order of the day, as deferred from last conference to the fourth day of this session, was presented, namely that in relation to the ordination of High Priests and the epistle of the Twelve, as found on page 271 of Herald of April 28th, 1888.

It was moved by Joseph Luff and W. H. Kelley that the consideration of that part relating to the ordination of High Priests be deferred till Thursday afternoon of this week.

The deferring was favored by Joseph Luff, W. H. Kelly, Chas. Derry and R. M. Elvin. Then brethren Elvin and Crabb moved to amend that it be deferred, subject to call. This amendment was opposed by E. L. Kelley and J. A. Robinson. Pres. Blair stated that Pres. Smith had written him that it was his wish that the whole matter be laid over till next conference. It was therefore moved by J. A. Robinson and Emsley Curtis that it be deferred till the conference of 1890, and that it be made the special order for the fourth day of the session. This was favored by James Thomas and opposed by E. L. and W. H. Kelley, Joseph Luff, J. R. Lambert and John Hawley. Then the vote being taken the substitute and amendment were both defeated, and the original motion to defer till Thursday prevailed.

EPISTLE OF TWELVE.

E. L. Kelley and F. G. Pitt moved that the portion deferred from last year that relates to the epistle of the Twelve be also deferred till after the other matter is acted upon.

This was opposed by W. H. Kelley, J. W. Gillen and J. R. Lambert, and favored by E. L. Kelley and F. G. Pitt, after which the motion to so defer was adopted.

On motion Wednesday afternoon was set as the time to consider the place for holding the session of 1890.

Pres. Blair appointed I. N. White, W. J. Smith and J. J. Cornish as a special corps of elders to administer to those who are sick, so as not to take up the time of any of the meetings.

TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION.

A resolution was presented and read concerning the Bishop of the church presiding at the temporary organizations of General Conference. It was decided to defer consideration thereof till Friday afternoon. It reads as follows:

Motion as to precedent in the organization of General Conferences:

Whereas, there seems to be no uniform rule established as to the selection of temporary officers in the organization of General Conferences,

Whereas, it is in accordance with the general principles of the kingdom of God that provision should be found and followed in all matters pertaining to its work in the law and a proper organization.

Therefore, be it resolved that in the opinion of this body the Presiding Bishop of the church when present, whose duty it is to preside in the event of obstacles in the way of the First Presi-dency, is the proper one to which the courtesy should be extended.

A resolution was presented by J. T. Kinneman and Robert Winning in relation to the ministry leaving their fields without permission from their superior officers. It was read and deferred subject

At the evening hour M. H. Bond of Providence, Rhode Island, preached. He was assisted by James McKeirnan of Farmington, Iowa.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10TH.

The morning prayer meeting was in charge of J. W. Waldsmith of Nebraska City, Nebraska, and R. Etzenhouser of Independence, Missouri. The sermon that followed was by W. J. Smith of Canada, assisted by E. E. Wheeler of Kansas.

The afternoon session began by singing "Yes, we trust the day is breaking," and prayer was offered by A. H. Smith.

CONFERENCE OF 1890.

The special order of the day was taken up, namely, the choosing of a place wherein to hold the next session. The following places were put in nomination by the brethren named:

Kirtland, Ohio, by E. L. Kelley and W. H. Garrett; Independence, Missouri, by Joseph Luff and F. G. Pitt; Lamoni, Iowa, by J. T. Kinnaman and John Shippy; Plano, Illinois, by G. T. Griffiths, and Council Bluffs, Iowa, by D. K. Dodson. Speeches were made as follows:

For Kirtland: E. L. Kelley, W. H.

Kelley, M. H. Bond.

For Independence: J. Luff, E. C. Brand, R. Etzenhouser, E. Curtis and J. A. Robinson.

For Lamoni: J. T. Kinnaman, William Anderson, W. W. Blair, J. Johnston. For Council Bluffs: D. K. Dodson.

The previous question being ordered, and the yeas and nays being asked for, the secretary called the roll of districts and ex-officios, with the following result:

FOR INDEPENDENCE.

DISTRICT. Pottawattamie, Iowa, 18, Independence, Missouri, 40, —Total 85%. Fremont, Iowa, 15, Central Kansas 6, St. Louis, Missouri, 61/3. EX-OFFICIO.

Joseph Luff,
Emslev Curtis,
S. S. Wilcox.
H. N. Hansen,
Wm. Hopkins,
M. H. Forscutt,
C. E. Butterworth,
E. Rowland,
C. E. Butterworth,
E. C. Brand,
W. E. Peak,
T. E. Lloyd,
Samuel Crum,
Total ex-officio vote 24. Total for Independence 10936.

FOR KIRTLAND.

DISTRICT.

London District, Canada, 24, Northern Michigan 20, Kent and Elgin, Canada, 14, Kirtland and Pittsburgh 17, Massachusetts 24, Philadelphia 5.

—Total district vote 112.

EX-OFFICIO. E. C. Briggs,
Hiram Rathbun,
F. M. Sheehy,
E. Day Bennett,
W. H. Kelley,
W. J. Smith,
Jas. McKlernan.
Total ex-officio vote 18. Total for Kirtland 130. FOR LAMONI,

DISTRICT.

Southern Illinois 7,
Kewanee, Illinois 10,
Nauvoo & String Prairie, 11,
Idaho 3,
Decatur, Iowa, 50,
Des Moires, Iowa, 16,
Eastern Iowa 6.
Galland's Grove, Iowa, 29,
Little Sioux, Iowa, 31,

Southern Michigan 14,
Far West, Missouri, 21,
Nodaway, Missouri, 6,
St. Louis, Missouri, 12%,
Central Nebraska 13,
Southern Nebraska 13,
Central Texas 10,
Utah 21,

West Wisconsin 4,
—Total district vote 295%. North Western Kansas 8,

W. W. Blair,
R. J. Anthony,
J. L. Bear,
Duncan Campbell,
J. Arthur Davis,
G. A. Blakeslee,
R. S. Salyards,
J. W. Gillen,
W. M. Rummel,
J. W. Gillen,
W. M. Rummel,
James Thomas,
Dayid Chambers,
Joseph Flory,
H. C. Brouson,
J. T. K'nanman,
Frank Hackett,
Samuel Alcott,
Frank Hackett,
Samuel Alcott,
J. M. Terry,
John John Johnston,
J. W. O. Thomas,
J. D. Bennett,
J. T. Turner,
Frank Hackett,
Samuel Alcott,
Samuel Alcott,
Samuel Alcott,
H. C. Bruterworth,
J. M. Terry,
John John Johnston,
J. W. Waldsmith,
William Chambers,
John Shippy,
D. K. Dodson,
D. J. Powell,
M. T. Short,
A. J. M. Tore,
J. R. Lambert,
J. R. Lanbert,
J. R. Lambert,
J. R. Lambert,
J. R. Lambert,
J. R. Lanbert,
J. R. Lambert,
J. R. Lambert EX-OFFICIO.

Only two of the three delegates from Northern Illinois were present, and as they were divided in sentiment they could not cast the district vote.

On motion of E. L. Kelley and Joseph Luff the vote was made unanimous for Adjourned with benediction pronounced by M. H. Forscutt. The evening sermon was by Columbus Scott, of Galien, Michigan. He preached from the text, "Behold, I will proceed to do a marvellous work and a wonder." He was assisted in the services by W. H. Garrett, of Greenville, Pennsylvania.

THURSDAY, APRIL 11TH.

At nine o'clock S. S. Wilcox of Shenandoah, Iowa, and David Chambers of Persia, Iowa, had charge of the social meeting.

J. J. Cornish of Michigan preached the morning sermon, from the text: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed." He was assisted by L. W. Powell of Lucas, Iowa.

The afternoon session was opened by singing, "From Greenland's icy mountain," and prayer was offered by James McKier-

The chair gave notice that no new business should be introduced after to-day.

HIGH PRIEST'S QUORUM.

The report of the Quorum of High Priests was read:

The Quorum of High Priests respectfully reports that it has held two meetings during this session of Conference; Charles Derry presiding, H. A. Stebbins secretary.

Brethren Charles Derry, M. H. Forscutt, I. L. Rogers, G. A. Blakeslee, S. S. Wilcox, J. C. Crabb, H. A. Stebbins, George Derry, J. Goodale, T. P. Green, R. C. Elvin, George Sweet, H. J. Hudson, J. W. Chatburn, C. G. McIntosh and C. G. Lanphear reported either in person or by letter.

By act of the quorum the name of Ebenezer Robinson was taken from the records of the quorum, he having been dealt with and expelled from the church by the branch of which he was a member.

From the names of those nominated one year ago for ordination to the office of High Priest that of W. C. Cadwell was by resolution dropped. Respectfully submitted, H. A. STEBBINS, Sec. of Quorum.

SECOND QUORUM OF ELDERS.

The Second Quorum of Elders reported as follows:

Thus far this Quorum has held four meetings.

None of the regular officers being present, Bro. Joshua Armstrong was chosen as president, protem, and C. E. Butterworth and T. E. Lloyd as secretaries, pro tem.

We have received reports from forty of our members, and although many of these do not report the actual number of sermons preached, or any other particulars, yet those so particularizing have preached 1,080 times, baptized 72, confirmed 78, blessed 92 children and administered to 202 sick persons.

Ail express themselves as strong in the faith All express themselves as strong in the rath and as being desirous of doing all they can for the spread of the truth. For reasons, brethren F. C. Warnkey, and Benjamin Kester were dropped from the Quorum, and on separate motions brethren W. S. Pender, Joseph Seddon and D. M. Rudd, were chosen to fill vacancies.

Bro. Stephen Maloney was not sustained as president of the Quorum, and F. C. Warnkey was released from acting as secretary, said re-lease being made before he was dropped from the Quorum. The names of brethren G. W. Shute, J. Armstrong, J. H. Condit, C. E. Butter-worth and D. M. Rudd, are presented to the Quorum of the Twelve and to the conference for appointment to missions. William Chambers of Persia, Iowa, was chosen as president of the Quorum and Joseph Seddon of the same place was chosen as secretary of the Quorum Bro. Chambers has chosen Joshua Armstrong and G. W. Shute as his counsellors, and these brethren are presented to you with the request of the Quorum that they be ordained to these offices.
Yours in behalf of the Quorum,

J. Armstrong, pres. pro. tem. C. E. Butterworth, sec. pro. tem.

On motion the Quorum of Twelve were asked to provide for the ordinations requested.

MUSIC BOOK.

The committee on Report of Editor of Music presented the following:

We, your committee, to whom was referred the report of Bro. M. H. Forscutt, editor of the "Saints Harmony" beg leave to report, That the work in proofs has been submitted to our inspection, with the exception of the Preface, Introduction, Rudiments of Music, a few pieces of music, Index, etc.

The committee further, upon investigation have ascertained the fact that the last Annual Conference authorized the Board of Publication of the church to complete and publish the work, and that there is no official report had as yet from that body upon this work; it further appears before the committee that a matter exists between the Board of Publication, the Stereotyper and the editor which the Board of Publication only, can properly settle and determine, the written contract not being before the committee, neither the report of the Board. It is the opinion of your committee therefore, that the report of the editor should be referred to the Board of Publication and await its action.

It is the judgment of this committee, that the book as proposed will be unnecessarily large and cumbersome, being, when closed, about 9 by 111/2 inches and about I inch in thickness, there being about 570 tunes, besides Preface, Instructions, Index, etc. Your Committee therefore suggest the propriety of publishing the tunes separately, but advise leaving this to the decision and wisdom of the Board of Publication who have the whole matter in charge.

JOHN T. KINNAMAN
E. L. KELLEY Committee. W. H. GARRETT

It was moved by G. T. Griffiths and D. K. Dodson that we adopt the report and discharge the committee. This was favored by W. W. Blair, F. G. Pitt and Joseph Luff, and opposed by E. C. Brand and J. A. Robinson. It was also spoken upon by W. H. Kelley, M. H. Forscutt J. T. Kinnaman, and the motion to adopt prevailed.

The committee on the Bishop's report stated that they found it to be correct. Their report was accepted and the committee was discharged.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

The following communication from the Bishop was read:

As two vacancies have occurred in the Board of Publication since our last session of General Conference, one by the death of our worthy brother Elijah Banta, another by the resignation of brother Phineas Cadwell, I therfore present the following names for your consideration to fill the vacancies occurred: Brn. E. L. Kelley, Kirtland, Ohio; Wm. Anderson, Lamoni, Iowa; Robt. Winning, St Joseph, Missouri; Joseph Smith, Lamoni, Iowa; J. H. Peters, of Michigan.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Presiding Bishop.

On motion E. L. Kelley was chosen to supply one of the vacancies in the Board, and following it the names of Brn. Joseph Smith, William Anderson, Robt. Winning and J. H. Peters were successively placed in nomination. In consideration of the state of Pres. Smith's health and the burdens that he already bears, the general feeling of the conference was that this additional task should not be placed upon him. An informal ballot being taken, the result stood as follows: Robt. Winning 48, J. H. Peters 24, William Anderson 23. The two highest being then presented, a standing vote showed 60 in favor of R. Winning and 39 for J. H. Peters. On motion the choice of Robt. Winning was made unanimous.

HIGH PRIESTS.

The business deferred from the 9th instant was taken up, and on motion, and after a few remarks it was

Resolved, that action on that part of it that relates to the ordination of High Priests be defered till next Conference.

EPISTLE OF TWELVE.

The following was also moved:

Resolved that action upon the Epistle of the Twelve be also deferred till the next Conference.

This was opposed by W. H. Kelly, and favored by brethren Kinnaman, Derry, McDowell, Luff, Lambert and Blair. In reply to a question whether Pres. Smith had expressed any wish in relation to the matter, Pres. Blair read part of a recent letter in which Pres. Smith expressed the hope that the consideration of these important measures would be laid over till the session of 1890. The vote being taken, the motion to defer prevailed.

QUORUM OF SEVENTY.

A report from the Quorum of Seventy was read:

The Quorum of Seventy report that out of a total membership of sixty-four, thirty are present and have met in a number of sessions which have been held; that being the largest represen-tation ever had by the Quorum since its organization.

Reports were received from fifty-nine of our number, showing a total of 521 baptisms during Fifty of our number have announced their readiness for the field and have been endorsed to the Quorum of the Twelve for appointment. The remaining fourteen are not eligible for appointment, some on account of old age, infirmity, etc., but almos tall of those are engaged in local labor. We have transacted a considerable amount of business affecting the Quorum and its usefulness to the church, but so far have nothing of interest to the general body except as

E. C. BRAND, Pres. R. S. SALYARDS, Sec.

MINISTRY FURLOUGHS.

The resolutions adopted at a meeting of the Bishop and his agents during the conference of 1888 were taken up and adoption was moved. They read as follows:

1. Whereas, as agents of the church finances, we have had trouble and complaint in the past by reason of elders under missionary appointment returning home and remaining from their work at great lengths of time; therefore, be it resolved, that in our opinion any general laborer should not be permitted to return home and remain idle except in cases of sickness in his family or of himself, except by written permission from the missionary in charge.

2. That in case of a violation of this rule it is the duty of the agent to deduct from the allowance made to such missionary in proportion to the

Signed by Affred White, J. W. Waldsmith, R. H. Davis, Geo. W. Shute, W. M. Rumel, J. S. Roth, Warren Turner, E. W. Cato, Wm. Lewis, E. L. Kelley, G. A. Blakeslee.

Its adoption was opposed by H. C Bronson, James McKiernan, M. H. Bond, E. C. Brand, R. M. Elvin and J. R. Lambert, and favored by J. T. Kinnaman and E. L. Kelley. Then the following substitute was moved by W. H. Garrett and R. Etzenhouser:

Resolved, that no general missionary, except on account of the sickness of himself or his family, shall leave his field of labor without consent of those in charge; and that upon a violation of this rule those in immediate charge shall report such violation to the quorum of which the offender is a member, for action.

Before any discussion was had it was moved and so ordered that the subject be postponed till next conference.

At half-past seven Pres. Blair, according to previous announcement, made a defense of Joseph Smith, the Seer, and of his work in this dispensation. He was assisted by M. H. Forscutt of Nebraska City.

FRIDAY, APRIL 12TH.

R. C. Evans of London, Canada, and W. M. Rumel of Omaha, Nebraska, had charge of the morning prayer meeting.

The sermon at half-past ten was by F. M. Sheehy of Maine. He was assisted by T. W. Williams of Lucas, Iowa.

The afternoon session was opened by singing, "Let us shake off the coals from our garments." Prayer was offered by M. T. Short.

MISSIONS.

The Apostles' Quorum made the following nominations to the conference for appointment upon missions:

- I. A. H. Smith; Northern Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota and Manitoba, in
- charge.

  2. John H. Lake; Canada, in charge.

  3. W. H. Kelley; New England States, New York, New Jersey, East Pensylvania with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick added, in charge
- 4. James Caffall; Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico, in charge.
- 5. Joseph Luff; Missouri and Kansas, in charge.

6. James W. Gillen; Southern Illinois, Southern Indiana, Eastern Missouri, Arkansas, Ken-

- Inoiana, Eastern Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, in charge.
   Heman C. Smith; Pacific Slope, comprising California, Nevada, Arizona, Oregon and Washington Territory, in charge.
   & 9. Edmund C. Briggs and Gomer T. Griffiths associated; Ohio, Western Pensylvania, Virginia and West Virginia, in charge.
- 10 Joseph R. Lambert; Iowa and Missouri, in charge as his wisdom dictates and his health permits.

  11. Thomas W. Smith; Released from Austra- lia and continued in charge of Society Islands, with Sandwich Islands added.

12. J. W. Wight; Australia and New Zealand, in charge.

13. J. F. Burton; California.

- 14. R. J. Anthony; Rocky Mountain Mission, in charge.
- 15. Thomas Daley; Northern California District and Nevada, as he may be able.

  16. Evan A. Davis; released from Wales.

- 17. B. V. Springer; released.
  18. H. H. Robinson; Kansas and Missouri Mission.
  19. E. M. Wildermuth; released.

20. J. E. Holt; released.

21. Duncan Campbell; Southern Iowa and Northern Missouri.

22. E. C. Brand; Kansas.

- 23. John T. Davies; Wales, in charge. 24. John C. Foss; Eastern Mission.
- 25. Columbus Scott; Michigan and Indiana.26. Willard J. Smith; Michigan, Northern Indiana and Western Canada.

A. H. Parsons; Eastern Mission.

28. John Thomas; Kentucky and Tennessee.

29. M. H. Bond; Eastern Mission.

30. James Moler; Field under Brn. Briggs and Griffiths.

31. I. N. White; Kansas and Missouri. 32. I. M. Smith; Southern Illinois.

33. George H. Hilliard; Southern Illinois for six - months.

  34. F. M. Sheehy; Eastern Mission.
  35. I. N. Roberts; Eastern Missouri and Arkansas.
- 36. T. J. Beatty; Field under Brn. Briggs and Griffiths.
- 37. L. R. Devore; Field under Brn. Briggs and Griffiths.

- 38. R. C. Evans; Canada.
  39. Peter Anderson; Rocky Mountain Mission. J. C. Clapp; Rocky Mountain Mission.
- 41. H. N. Hansen; Pottawattamie District, as circumstances permit.
  42. Henry Kemp; Pottawattamie and Fremont
- Districts. ]. F. McDowell; Little Sioux District.
- 44. James McKiernan; Des Moines District.
- 45. A. J. Moore; Nodaway and Fremont Districts. 46. J. S. Roth; Eastern Iowa and Des Moines
- Districts. W. M. Rumel; Nebraska.

- 47. W. M. Rumel; Nebraska.
  48. M. T. Short; Wisconsin.
  49. John Smith; Eastern Mission, as circumstances permit. W. E. Peak; Field under A. H. Smith.
- 51. M. M. Turpen; Iowa and Northern Missouri. 52. J. A. Carpenter; Northern Michigan.
- 53. Thomas Matthews; Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia.

54. H. L. Holt; as circumstances permit.

- 55. Thomas E. Jenkins; Wales, as circumstances permit.
- 56. Arthur Leverton; Canada, as circumstances permit. C. H. Jones; Decatur and Nodaway Districts,
- as circumstances permit.

  58. W. T. Bozarth; Des Moines District and North West Missouri.
- Thomas Taylor; in charge of English Mis-
- 60. J. Arthur Davis; Field under A. H. Smith.

- 60. J. Arthur Davis; Field under A. H. Smit
  61. George W. Shute; Kansas.
  62. R. Etzenhouser; Field under J. W. Gillen.
  63. M. R. Scott; Field under J. W. Gillen.
  64. J. A. McIntosh; Canada.
  65. V. D. Baggerly; Field under J. W. Gillen.
  66. T. J. Martin; Field under A. H. Smith.
  67. D. J. Shina, Field under B. B. Pringer.
- 67. D. L. Shinn; Field under Brn. Briggs and Griffiths.

- 68. D. S. Crawley; Kansas and Missouri.69. John Shields; Canada.70. P. B. Seaton; Kentucky and Tennessee.
- 71. Alfred White; Independence District.
- 72. Emsley Curtis; Independence District.
  73. Thomas Whiting; Eastern Mission,
  74. William H. Griffin; Kentucky and Tennessee.

- Samuel Brown; Canada. U. W. Greene; Eastern Mission.
- 77. Lorenzo Powell; Pittsburg and Kirtland District.

- District.
  78. T. W. Williams; Pittsburg and Kirtland
  76. Robert Oehring; Field under A. H. Smith.
  80. E. Day Bennett; Field under A. H. Smith.
  81. C. E. Butterworth; Galland's Grove District.
  82. David M. Rudd; Galland's Grove District.
  83. J. G. Scott; Southern Indiana.
  84. Leonard Scott; Michigan and Northern Indiana. Indiana.
- 85. Thomas Wellington; Southern Iowa and Northern Missouri.

86. J. J. Cornish; Northern Michigan.87. F. C. Smith; Northern Michigan, as circumstances permit.

88. J. A. Currie, Jun.; Texas.

- 89. Charles Derry; Little Sioux District.
- 90. C. G. Lanphear; as circumstances permit. 91. H. A. Stebbins; Decatur District, as circumstances permit.

92. R. M. Elvin; Nebraska.

93. E. W. Nunley; Texas.

94. J. C. Crabb; Little Sioux District, as circum-

- stances permit.

  95. W. S. Pender; Wisconsin.
  96. Hiram Rathbun; Michigan and Northern Indiana, as circumstances permit.
- 97. F. P. Scarcliff; South Eastern Mission, as circumstances permit.

- 98. C. R. Duncan; Kansas.
  99. J. D. Erwin; Arkansas.
  100. G. R. Scogin; South Eastern Mission, as cir-
- cumstances permit.

  101. R. L. Ware; Central Missouri District.
- 102. J. H. Lawn; referred to the missionary in charge of California and the Bishopric.

103. James Brown; West Virginia. 104. Roderick May; Independence District, as

- circumstances permit.

  J. T. Kinnaman; Far West District.
- 106. E. E. Wheeler; Kewanee District. 107. C. A. Butterworth, Australian Mission. 108. James Thomas; Nodaway District, as circumstances permit.

109. D. S. Mills; California.

- 110. Daniel Brown; California, as circumstances permit.
- 111. James Lawn; California, as circumstances permit.

  112. J. R. Cook; Pacific Slope Mission, as cir-
- cumstances permit.

  113. William M. Gibson; California.
- 114. Sidney Wright; California, as circumstan-
- ces permit.
  115. Albert Haws; field under H. C. Smith.
- 116. E. A. Steadman; Southern Minnesota. 117. Levi Phelps; Northern Michigan.
- 118. E. DeLong; Northern Michigan. 119. Swen Swenson; field under Joseph Luff.

120. Charles H. Porter; Nebraska. 121. Henry Grim; Texas. 122. Arthur Mortimore; Canada.

- 123. H. O. Smith; Pottawattamie and Little Sioux Districts.
- 124. F. M. Cooper; field under A. H. Smith.
- 1. Resolved that the First Presidency be requested to supply St. Joseph city with a suitable minister in response to the petition of the Far West district.
- 2. Whereas, the present condition of the church treasury forbids the appointment of more laborers than the number above named, therefore, be

Resolved, that those Elders who have applied for and failed to receive an appointment, be referred to the local authorities in their respective districts. 3. Resolved, that we request the First Presidency to supply the Scandinavian mission at as early a time as practicable with one or more laborers

4. Resolved, that Michigan and Indiana be added to the field under Brn. E. C. Briggs and G. T. Griffiths.

5. Resolved, that the moneys known as the "Home Column Fund" be paid by the parties collecting and having it in hand into the hands of the Presiding Bishop of the Church.

The above list of missions and resolutions were adopted by the Quorum of the Twelve and Bishopric, after counseling with the First Presidency and receiving suggestions therefrom, all of which are respectfully submitted to the body for endorsement. Joseph Luff, Secretary of Quorum.

On the second reading it was adopted, after James Thomas (number 108) had stated the necessity of his receiving some aid for his family, and that as to labor as circumstances permit meant without receiving anything from the church he would have to refuse an appointment. motion the matter was referred to the Bishop and Twelve, and by later report he was placed upon the list of those receiving compensation. Also by the later reports numbers 123 and 124 were added, as inserted above, to complete the list.

The appended resolutions were moved in their order, numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, and after some slight discussion were approved, and then the report as a whole was adopted.

FIRST QUORUM OF ELDERS.

The following report from the First Quorum of Elders was presented and read:

Reported in person: F. G. Pitt, John Johnston, J. W. Terry, D. K. Dodson, J. D. Bennett, W. Woodhead, James Thomas, A. White, W. Anderson, C. A. Beebe, R. M. Elvin, E. L. Kelley and H. C. Bronson.

By letter: G. E. Deuel, H. N. Snively, M. H. Gregg, D. L. Harris, A. B. Moore, E. J. French, J. Kemp, James Thomas, P. Devlin, D. Hougas, R. Lyle, H. C. Smith, J. P. Dillon, S. O. Waddell, Mahlon Smith, Stephen Woods, Horace Bartlett, Eph. Thomas, E. F. Hyde, Eli Clothier, C. C. Reynolds, Lehi Ellison, E. Stafford, J. D. Jones, A. W. Moffet, Marcus Shaw, R. Warnock, F. P. Scarcliff, Joseph Boswell, David Williams, Hans Hansen, Jerome Ruby, Alma Kent, S. F. Walker, G. Hulmes, J. S. Snively, J. W. Brack. enbury, Charles Sheen, J. S. Yarrington, J. M. Stubbart, O. J. Bailey, Stephen Butler, T. Whiting, W. Powell, T. Hougas, Andrew Hayer, R. R. Dana C. A. Coombs, D. S. Holmes, V. White, W. Newton, A. S. Cochran, M. McHarness, L. W. Torrence, Geo. Hicklin, John Beaird and J. D. Craven. Total sixty-nine.

Elders Beebe, White and Woodhead were appointed a committee on memoriums.

Seven of the eight vacancies in the quorum were filled by receiving Robert McKenzie, Fred Peterson, Henry Broadway, Samuel Ackerly, T. Wellington, C. W. Hawkins and Edward Rannie, and it was ordered that licenses be sent them by the secretary of quorum. Present number in quorum ninety-five. An indebtedness of sixtyfive cents was reported by the secretary and a collection of two dollars and ten cents was taken up. Bro. John Beaird of Bellville, Illinois, having referred in his report to a seeming misunderstanding between him and the quorum or other parties, a committee of enquiry was appointed, consisting of F. G. Pitt, D. K. Dodson and V. White. The quorum has held three sessions. The members of the quorum have not been careful to keep an account of the number of sermons preached, and of blessings and administrations, for which reason we can only make a partial report of the work performed by its members, but we have an exhibit of 880 sermons, 121 baptisms, 58 confirmations, 5 ordinations, 51 blessings, 156 administrations and 21 marriages performed. The quorum is represented in branch offices (except teacher and deacon), and in the district and missionary labors in all their phases. Energy, peace and good fellowship prevail, and the prosperity of the work seems to actuate every

The following "In Memoriam" was adopted: As an expression of deep regret for the loss of the following named persons and their services in the quorum and church, the First Quorum of Elders, (of which quorum said deceased brethren were members), appointed Elders C. A. Beebe, A. White and W. Woodhead a committee to draft resolutions of respect and condolence. Bro. Woodhead having been unexpectedly called home the remainder of the committee reported the following:
Whereas, In the providence of God, our well beloved brother, James R. Badham, has been removed from our midst by death; and

Whereas, We highly esteemed him for his worth's sake as a co-laborer in Christ, whose godly zeal for the cause of truth was manifest by his works of love in the ministry of the word, and interest in general and special church work;
Therefore, be it resolved, That we hereby tender an expression of condolence and sympathy to the bereaved, praying God to bless them in their loss, which is our loss as well. And furthermore:

Whereas, The strange messenger has called from our midst Bro. Elijah Banta, who was known in the church for his many years of integrity, zeal and work, and who labored extensively in the cause of Christ for the good of souls; having been a true and trusted servant, who gave gener ously to the work of God, and always sought to maintain the honor of the faith he loved so long and well, and who had served as the president of this, the First Quorum of Elders, from its organization till the fall of 1878, and a long term as counselor to the Bishop of the church, and in other trusts committed him by the body, but now having fallen asleep in Jesus,

We do hereby express regret at our loss of so worthy a member and express our condolence and sympathy to his bereft ones, asking God's comfort upon them.

And it further becomes our painful duty to chronicle the decease of our highly esteemed brother, S. F. Walker, who has crossed to the Our brother was known for his many excellent intellectual qualifications as a historian and writer upon religio-scientific questions, being a staunch defender of the faith of the gospel of Jesus Christ which he dearly loved. His work and interest in the faith is widely known and recognized as one which was deeply and systematically rooted in his soul and gave expression thereto in his works; and we hereby tender our sympathy to his wife and family.

R. M. ELVIN, Pres. J. D. BENNETT, Sec., pro. tem.

FOURTH QUORUM OF ELDERS.

The report of the Fourth Quorum of Elders was read. Conference approved and instructed the Twelve to see to the ordinations.

The Fourth Quorum of Elders would submit its report. Ten members present at conference, and the quorum has had four business sessions. Fifty four members have reported. While many do not itemize their reports, yet those that are itemized show an aggregate of 94 baptisms, 107 confirmations, 800 sermons, 2 ordinations, 15 children blessed, and 23 marriages performed Seventeen of our members have acted as branch presidents, and five as district presidents. J. D. Flanders was not sustained as president, but the quorum elected Hiram Rathbun to be its president, and he has selected John J. Cornish as one of his counsellors. Therefore the quorum now requests the conference to attend to the ordinations so provided for. For sufficient cause the names of Elias Land and O. E. Cleveland were dropped from the quorum record, and W. S. Montgomery and John J. Cornish were received in their places. We are in good working order; the best of feeling prevails, and we hope to do more labor in the future.

HIRAM RATHBUN, Pres., SAMUEL CRUM, Sec.

FIFTH QUORUM OF ELDERS.

The Fifth Quorum of Elders reported as follows:

We hereby respectfully report. We have had five sessions, all of which were characterized by the spirit of unity and peace. Thirteen memthe spirit of unity and peace. Thirteen members have been present. Reports were received from seventy-two members, as follows:

A. V. Closson Arnold Neeser L. H. Ezzell Stephen Stone J. M. Tousley A. L. Whitsker Wm. Chapman John G. Smith W. A. McDowell N. Stamm J. A. Carrie, Jun. W. O. Thomas John E. Reese Levi Phelps John Pett A. V. Closson Levi Pheips
John Pett
L. L. Babbit
W. S. Barbee
T. J. Bell
Abner Lloyd
Henry Jones
E. Day Bennett
Thos. Worrell
L. Taylor (Htch) J. Taylor (Utah) Samuel Davis

vo members, as f
Frank Hackett
C. J. Hawkins
W. H. Garrett
Wm. Williams
J. A. McIntosh
Williams
J. A. McIntosh
William Aird
T. Bradshaw
W. G. Pert
E. A. Shelley
A. S. Davison
Gomer Reese
John Larson
Henry Southwick
G. W. Lush
Frank Lofty
J. J. Watkins
R. Etzenhouser
John H. Lee
Samuel Brown
Albert Haws
Nicholas Rumel
R. H. Wight
Emsley Curtis Emsley Curtis W. S. Loar follows:

J. A. Robinson
T. N. Fields
Geo. Gould
W. N. Ray
A. E. Mortimer
Samuel Orton
Wm. Kendrick
Louis Gaulter
Jos. Lampert
Robert Ochring
B. A. Atwell
Jas. Houston
J. H. Lawn
F. E. Anderson
E. A. Steadman
N. A. Baker
V. D. Baggerly
C. G. Gould
G. S. Lincoin
Chas. Herzing
Henry Grim
Wm. Sparling
Paul C. Peterson
I. P. Baggerly I. P. Baggerly

These show a total of 2060 sermons preached, and 226 baptisms. Thirteen members were in the general ministry during the past year, Eighteen of our number have been presented to the Quorum of the Twelve for missions. Nine were dropped from the quorum for not reporting during the last three years. One member has been expelled. To supply the vacancies so occasioned, ten new members have been added, making our present number ninety six. Those casioned, ten new memoers have been added, making our present number ninety six. Those dropped for not reporting were: Dan Davis, Wales, J. A. Gerrard, England, H. S. Gill, Pennsylvania, N. N. Hazelton, Iowa, John D. Jones, Kansas, W. D. Kelley, Montana, Wm. Morris, Wales, Wm. Waterman, Texas, Thomas Galley, Nebraska. By unanimous vote of quorum N. A. Baker of Des Moines, Iowa, was expelled for A. Baker of Des Moines, Iowa, was expelled for conduct unworthy of the fellowship of Saints or ministers. It was ordered that the quorum officers notify railway officials that the said N. A. Baker is no longer a minister of this body Local authorities are requested to take action upon his membership. The following were upon his membership. The following were added to the quorum: A. E. Mortimer, London, Ontario, D. E. Hough, Port Carling, Ontario, John Shields, Grand Valley, Ontario, E. Day Bennett, Santa Clara, Dakota, E. Delong, Vassar, Michigan, Nicholas Rumel, No. 2214 Clark St., Omaha, Nebraska, Joseph Whitaker, Wheatville, Wisconsin, Henry Grim, Milan, Missouri, J. C. Christensen, Rich Hill, Missouri, Thomas Wellington, Lamoni, Iowa. The following resolutions of condignes was adopted by the west statements. olution of condolence was adopted by the quo-

Whereas, it has pleased God to remove from our midst by the hand of death, Bro. Henry Hinderks, one who has ever been faithful to the trust reposed in him in the various relations of husband, father and elder; and while we deeply deplore the loss we have sustained in the departure of our brother, we rejoice to believe, and are assured that he has gone to join the grand hosts who rejoice evermore. We extend our heartfelt sympathy unto the bereaved.

R. ETZENHOUSER, Pres.,

J. A. Robinson, W. H. Garrett. Secretaries pro tom.

FIRST QUORUM OF PRIESTS.

The First Quorum of Priests presented the following report:

The First Quorum of Priests has held two sessions W. H. Kelley in the chair; Charles P. Faul secretary. Reports were heard from Peter Peterson, W. H. Kelley, D. R. Baldwin, Charles P. Faul and R. May. The following brethren reported by letter: W. N. Dawson, L. C. Donaldson, F. M. Dennis. Edward Rannie having been ordained an elder, Bro. Charles R. Duncan was taken into the quorum to fill the vacancy. It was resolved that the secretary shall obtain the names and post-office addresses of the members of the quorum, and that he shall have a circular printed, each member to receive one, so that every one may know the residence of all other members of the quorum. Resolved that the secretary be instructed to procure the items of ordinations so that all may be properly recorded. C. P. FAUL, Sec.

SECOND QUORUM OF PRIESTS.

The report of the Second Quorum of Priests was read as follows:

We met and transacted the following business. Reports were heard from eleven of the members, and those present reported in person. Three vacancies occurred in the Quorum during the past year and the names of Lorenzo W. Powell, Parley Batten and Alexander Greer were presented for membership and accepted.

A preamble was then adopted, as follows: Whereas, In the past those holding the office of Priest have been debarred from the privilege of voting in General Conference, and inasmuch as our licences show that we are duly authorized ministers, therefore be it

Resolved, that we request this conference at its next annual meeting to grant us the privilege and right of ex officio members.

Signed in behalf of Quorum, S. D. SHIPPY, 2d Counsellor, T. W. WILLIAMS, Sec. pro. tem.

FIRST QUORUM OF TEACHERS.

The First Quorum of Teachers reported as follows:

The First Quorum of Teachers respectfully report that it has held no meetings during this conference, there being an insufficient number of the members present to form a Quorum. But we have received reports by letter or by proxy, from the following:

F. W. Barbee, Henry Sparling, J. A. Burnham, Thompson Cochran, Peter Simpson, F. Wiley, J. W. Mooney, B. J. Scott, M. S. Frick, Charles J. Hunt, Joseph Hammer, Fred Gerber, Wm. S. McMullin, John A. Kennedy, J. M. Curtis, John

We are glad that we can report the Quorum in good working order.

Brother Henry Sparling, of Kansas City, has preached 33 times, has acted as Sunday School superintendent, has distributed about two thousand tracts, several copies Voice of Warning, etc.

Others of the Quorum have been busy distributing tracts and otherwise discharging their duty as the word of God directs. All express them-selves as strong in the faith and desire to establish peace and good will among men wherever their lot is cast.

One of our number has been ordained a Priest, but because of no meeting his name will remain on our record until such time as we can meet, (the name being that of Peter Simpson).

B. J. Scott, Pres., GEO. H. HIDY, Sec.

D. H. BAYS' LETTER.

The following was presented, entitled, "Report of the committee on the case of Elder J. R. Lambert vs. the Galland's Grove branch:"

Herewith we submit the result of our labor and findings: Whereas, the General Conference of 1888, did authorize and instruct the missionary, Joseph R. Lambert, in whose field the branch is situated, to see that the branch should comply with the request and decision plainly and intelligently stated in the expressed will of the body, and; Whereas, the missionary has faithfully at-tempted to perform the task entrusted to him;

Whereas, the branch has sought to avoid a compliance with the direct instruction of the body to the branch, wherein they substituted a paper of their own creation, in lieu of the "letter" provided and approved by the church, excusing themselves for so doing by placing a forced interpretation or construction upon a letter written by President Joseph Smith, Therefore, we, your committee, feel the great gravity of the case, and as we believe that the action of the branch indicates that they are in direct conflict with the instructions of the General Conference, and are insubordinate in refusing the wise counsel furnished by the missionary in charge, therefore, we recommend the following:

That the said Galland's Grove branch shall grant unto Elder D. H. Bays a Letter of removal, upon the "form" as provided and printed by the Church, or let said branch stand under censure until they shall faithfully and fully comply with this order of the General Conference; and still further be it ordered and appointed that the minister in charge shall execute this order of the body.

> R. M.ELVIN, Committee. I. N. WHITE, J. McKiernan )

It was moved by J. D. Bennett and D. K. Dodson that the report be adopted and committee discharged. On call of Bro. John Hawley the letter that the branch issued to Bro. Bays was read by the secretary. Then the following amendment was moved by E. L. Kelley and J. T. Turner:

To strike out all after the words in the report "that the branch grant him a letter of removal, and that relates to the censure of the branch, and inserting intsead the words "And that if the said branch fails to comply within thirty days from notice the secretary of the church be authorized to grant Bro. D. H. Bays a letter of membership in good standing.

This was opposed by John Hawley and favored by E. L. Kelley, and then the amendment was adopted, as was also the report as amended.

PRIESTS AS EX-OFFICIOS.

The request of the Second Quorum of Priests that priests be granted ex-officio rights in General Conference was brought up. The like request from the First Quorum of Priests presented last year was read by the secretary, and on motion the subject was laid over till next conference.

FLORY VS. EDITORS.

The committee on the case of Joseph Flory vs. the Editors of the Herald was presented and its adoption was moved, as follows:

The committee to which was referred the matter in appeal by Bro. Joseph Flory, against the editors of the Saints' Herald having concluded its work, do now report: That in the Saints' Herald of June 6th, 1885, there appeared an article written by the aforesaid appellant under the caption of "Tithing and Gathering;" and in the same issue of the Herald appeared an editorial article entitled "The Tem-Temporal Law in Force," which critcised the article aforementioned, which critcism was not in an individual sense, but was for the benefit of all contributors as one item in the process toward education in conformity to the rules avowed as governing the body.

Thereupon appellant wrote another article in reply to the said editorial, and requested its insertion in the Herald, which request was denied. Your committee find that the editors of the *Her*ald were fully authorized to use not only the right usually accorded to all editors, that of rejecting any article proffered for publication, but that the Board of Publication by special act, gave instructions to the editors of the Herald, that they should use their discretion and judgment as to the matter which should be published, making the Herald as near as possible the exponent of the church. And having examined the evidence in this affair, we find that the editors of the Saints' Herald did but exercise the rights reposed in them, and we therefore sustain them in so doing.

Signed R. Etzenhouser. Thos. E. Lloyd. S. S. Wilcox.

This was favored by R. Etzenhouser and T. E. Lloyd, and was opposed by Joseph Flory, and certain portions of it by E. L. Kelley, after which it was adopted.

CINCINNATI CENTENNIAL.

Committee on the Ohio Centennial Exhibition reported as follows:

The committee appointed at the annual session of 1888, to see that the church was not misrepresented at the Cincinnati Centennial, and also to make such showing of the work of the church there as might be deemed wise and practicable would respectfully report, that at the earliest convenience one of their number was sent to Cincinnati and made arrangements to look after the representation of the church by its own committee the same as was done by other religous bodies, and that space was obtained in the department of the Ohio Exhibit where the committee had placed such representation as would show to visitors the work as originally established in Ohio, and continued under the Reorganization in a constitutional and lawful manner, in contradistinction to the various isms represented by the many factions which have started up since the death of the prophet in 1844. Specimens of printed tablets showing the character of the Exhibit as made are herewith furnished and marked Exhibit a, b, c and d. The expenses incident were at the time reported to and settled by the Bishop.

Very respectfully submitted by the committee.

JOSEPH SMITH, W. W. BLAIR, G. A. BLAKESLEE, E. C. BRIGGS, E. L. KELLEY.

MINISTRY FURLOUGHS

The following preambles and resolution deferred from Tuesday were taken up:-

Whereas, The funds at the disposition of the church are comparatively limited, and

Whereas, We are accountable to God and his people for the proper disposition of said funds, however much or little, and should see that when funds are expended as per agreements that the conditions of such agreements are complied with; thereford be it Resolved, That when an officer of the church shall accept an appointment from the General Conference thereof subject to direction of the First Presidency, the Twelve, or other church authority, and shall leave his field of labor without the approval of those presiding over it, or shall neglect to labor faithfully therein while accepting for his family financial support from the church, that such officer shall be declared unfaithful to his trust and shall not be again appointed unless by continued faithfulness he shall show himself J. T. KINNAMAN. worthy. ROBT. WINNING.

On motion of J. Luff it was laid on the table.

ON DANCING.

The following was moved by James McKiernan and M. T. Short, and on motion was tabled:

Resolved, That dancing is an offense against church discipline and should be dealt with as other unchristianlike conduct. And when persisted in by church members after proper labor has been performed by branch officials, such offenders upon conviction may be suspended or disfellowshipped at the discretion of the branch or district where he or she resides.

On successive motions the quorums of the church and officers thereof were sustained, as follows:

The First Presidency, the Quorum of the Twelve, the High Priests Quorum, the Bishopric, the Seventy, all the quorums of Elders, and those of the Priests and Teachers that are organized, also the Deacons and other ministers of the church that are not organized into quorums,

The Board of Publication, the Church Secretary and Recorder, the Church Librarian, the Editors of the Herald, and Editor of Autumn Leaves, were all sustained by vote of Conference.

Thanks were voted to the Saints and citizens of St. Joseph for their hospitality, also to the St. Joseph Herald and to other papers that have published reports of the Conference, to the railroad lines for special rates and to the street car lines for like favors, also to Secretary Stebbins and his assistants, F. M. Sheehy and T. W. Williams, and to the congregation of Unity Church for the use of their house.

The Quorum of Twelve reported the ordination of the officers of the Second and Fourth Quorums of Elders.

Closed by singing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," and with benediction by Joseph Luff.

W. W. BLAIR, President,

A. H. SMITH, M. H. FORSCUTT, Assistant Presidents.

H. A. STEBBINS, Secretary,

F. M. SHEEHY, Assistants.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder J. C. Crabb, of the High Priests, writes from Little Sioux, Iowa:

During the spring and summer my labors were confined mostly to Little Sioux, owing to there being no other elder in this locality who preached in public. By my efforts, in connection with the branch officers, with the occasional assistance of elders from abroad, we have kept the branch in as good condition as it has been for some years.

In connection with Bro. David Chambers, I preached near Kingsley, Plymouth county, and organized a branch on September 23d.

I visited Sioux City, but could do but little for the want of a good place to preach in. However, I held a few meetings. Just how the city people are to be reached is a problem yet unsolved. There is a branch in the city, with a few good members—but with no public place to worship in. Bro. M. P. Berg is in charge.

Since the first of December I have preached nearly every night, and twice on Sunday, in Woodbine, Six Mile Grove, Union Grove, Persia, the Jones School House, the Berry School House, at Moorhead, Little Sioux, Magnolia, and am now in Deloit, all of them in Harrison, Monona and Crawford counties, Iowa.

Have had good attendance and good attention in evey place, except in Sioux City. I was kindly treated both by members and others.

Have felt more encouraged in the work during the last year than ever before. And as to the final triumph of the church I have not the shadow of a doubt.

Both the missionaries appointed by the General Conference, and quite a number of the local ministry have done a good work. For further particulars I refer the conference to the statistical report of the district.

I am still acting as president of the Little Sioux district. May the peace of God the Father, and the love of Jesus Christ the Son, be and abide with the church.

Elder R. C. Elvin, of the High Priests, writes from Nebraska City, Nebraska:

I have been confined to Nebraska City, the last year, and have assisted the presiding officers whenever called to preach the word or to administer in the ordinances. I must say that the work is dearer to me now than it was in 1842. I rejoice in the spiritual light that comes through the gospel of Christ, more and more as I draw near the end, and I am glad to have the privilege of doing my duty as a Saint, and to finish the work given me to do. I have been lately called to preside over the Nebraska City branch and I feel like doing my duty. The branch is not just what it should be, but I hope that a better feeling will come. There are good true Saints here, but there is also a careless spirit at work, which with wisdom may be overcome.

Elder C. G. Lanphear, of the High Priests, writes from Sandwich, Illinois:

My request at the last General Conference, was to labor in Western New York, and I can say that the prospect in that section is fair. Could there be more force supplied from the younger class of elders, much more good could be done, and others be gathered into the Master's fold. There are especially two points of interest in New York, namely, in Allegany and Steuben counties.

I did not attempt to keep up preaching in public last season, not being able to do the traveling necessary to be done in getting back and forth to fill the appointments, so I used most of my time to sustain myself, at the same time conversing with the people on the gospel theme, when occasion presented, also giving and lending out church publications to those interested. I baptized two persons just before coming west. Since my return I have received a letter from Mr. Ioseph Updyke of Allegany county, and he and some of his family desire to be baptized. He wishes an elder to be sent there this spring. In the region of Obi, Allegany county, and Greenwood, Steuben county, also at other places in those parts there are good openings. Since returning to Illinois I have preached some, and administered to the sick.

Should the conference appoint some young elder to labor in these regions with me, I think that I might render considerable aid by being associated with him, that he might more easily obtain a knowledge of the localities and people.

I remain yours in the bonds of the covenant.

Elder Henry A. Stebbins, of the High Priests, present, reports:

Under my appointment last year I have done what preaching I could, though other duties have prevented me from laboring in the ministry as much as I have done in previous years. However I have preached and done other ministerial work at various places in Iowa and Missouri, in my district, and attended to the welfare of the various branches in it. Have baptized fifteen persons and have been sent for upon many occasions to administer to the sick, having in all administered nearly two hundred times to such in the various branches, especially in and near Lamoni, where there has been much sickness. I expect to do more preaching the coming year, if life is spared and health and means permit.

Elder E. C. Brand, president of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have preached 138 times, baptized 12, confirmed 21, blessed 11 children, administered 48 times to the sick, married two couples, attended 5 conferences and traveled 3775 miles. The Central Kansas district has materially improved during the last twelve months. First, numerically: Last year's report showed a net loss of r member. This year shows a gain of fifteen members. Second, financially much improvement. I believe that four-fold more tithing and free-will offerings have been paid than before, and spiritually the district has improved materially.

Times and places of preaching as follows: Iowa; Ross School House 2, Plum Creek S. H. I, Plum Hollow I; Missouri: St. Joseph hall I, Independence church 2; Kansas: Good Intent S. H. 13, Netawaka 15, Fanning 9, Scranton church 26, Fairview S. H. I, Branch Town S. H. 2, Centralia church I, Eureka S. H. 11, Mulberry S. H. 7, Ray S. H. 9, Avoca S. H. 11, Carbondale church 4, Prairie View S. H. 5, Shannon S. H. 2, Whiting church I, Atchison 16, Blue Rapids. 8; total 138 times.

Elder J. T. Davis, of the Seventy, writes from Llanelly, Wales:

After my appointment to the charge of the Welsh Mission I went home to Kansas, to set my affairs in order the best I could. My wife and I left on May 3d, 1888, for Utah, to visit her aged parents and others. For about two months I labored with all my might, attended one conference at Malad, Idaho; preached a great many times, and held five public discussions with Utah Elders.

I left July 1st, and enjoyed the Fourth with the Saints at Crescent City, Iowa. Preached a few times and started off again with my son, E. A. Davis, who had also been appointed to labor in the Welsh Mission. We arrived safely in Liverpool August 5th, and in Wales the next day. We have been engaged ever since, doing the best we could under existing circumstances. We found the work, for various reasons, rather low, many members lost by different causes. The presence of so many Utah elders, and another split off on the other hand, and the want of a regular traveling ministry to counteract their tales and intrigues-all this and more had had a telling effect on the work in this country, but we have the hopes (and some promises) of the return of some to the fold soon. Above that we have not much to encourage us. The belief is broadcast everywhere (with very little exception) that we and the Utah people are all the same; and there is a terrible opposition to Mormonism throughout the principality, more so than I have seen since it was first preached here. And what makes the matter harder is, that we can not have houses to preach in, for either love or money, and our only chance is open air preaching. We intend to commence that as soon as the weather gets warm enough, and continue as long as you think proper to sustain us. That of course we leave to your combined and superior wisdom, and shall try to submit. Remember us in your supplications. Your brother in the gospel.

Elder John C. Foss, of the Seventy, present, reports:

At your last session I was appointed to labor under Alexander H. Smith, in Minnesota and Northern Illinois. Soon after conference I was ordered to march forward to Minnesota and kindle the fire. I was there five months and preached in fourteen places. Found the Saints in good spirits, and battling for the truth. Before I went to Minnesota I visited Holden, Rich Hill, Kansas City and Armstrong. I labored in Northern Illinois during the winter, preaching in four places, in all during the year twenty-three different places and one hundred and twenty nine sermons; baptized sixteen, blessed twelve children. I have administered to the sick with the approval and blessing of God, and have been aided by the good Master in advocating his glorious cause. I wish to be continued in the harvest field.

Elder R. J. Anthony, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have traveled in Utah, Idaho and Montana as circumstances warranted. As a rule, I find the Saints striving to do their duty. They have had a hard struggle in the valleys, surrounded by opposing forces of different kinds; but in the midst of them all, the most of them remain true to the cause and feel hopeful.

There seems to be a gradual gain in the liberal ranks from the power and rule of the Utah church, while the church as a body assumes the the same defiant attitude towards the government as formerly. It is plain to be seen that there is a breaking loose from priestly rule. Ogden, at their February election, went liberal, for the first time in the history of the people. I mention this to show the forces that are working against polygamy and priestly rule.

We have not made as much progress in our mission work as we hoped to have done. While we have not made many additions, we have made friends to the cause. The work is not in as good spiritual condition as it ought to be, and especially in Salt Lake City, where there has been a disposition by some to question the rulings of the church in regard to branch government, but at present the signs are more hopeful, and we look for better times.

I have favorable reports from the missionaries in the different parts of the field. Bro. J. C. Clapp is doing a good work in Montana, and especially at Deer Lodge. An excellent spirit prevails there while Bro. Clapp has kept the gospel before the people. Sister Clapp has been constantly engaged in Sabbath School work. Indeed, the Saints in that part of the field have labored with a commendable zeal to keep up their meetings and the Sabbath School.

Brother Peter Anderson is doing a fine work in Cache Valley and other parts among the Scandinavians. He expects several additions to the church in Logan and other places in Cache Valley in the near future.

Brother J. R. Evans has labored constantly and faithfully in Malad Valley and reports the work in a promising condition there.

Brother J. H. Condit has had a most difficult field in Idaho. He, with S. D. Condit, visited scattering members in the Boise country and other places, and they did considerable labor in Cassia county. He, too, reports favorably.

Brother Gomer Reese has also done good service. He is President of the Montana district, and of the Reese Creek branch. He has kept up the meetings there, also the Sabbath School interest.

Brother R. M. Elvin did good service till he was called home in July on account of sickness at home, leaving the work in the city to local authorities, because of which much of my attention was required there. All have done the best they could.

I have baptized seventeen, and confirmed and ordained and administered, as the work demanded.

Elder M. T. Short, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have toiled almost incessantly in my mission field. The greater part of my labor was done in the state and charge of Wisconsin. My health was good. My colaborer was devoted, wise, dilligent, courageous, studious, indefatigable and cheerful. I baptized a very few, he several; while we both shared in responsibilities, anxieties, joys, kindnesses, generosity and much prosperity and peace in various ways. The field is wide, prejudice great, Saints few and far between, ministers scarce, sectarianism in the road, and foreigners all scattered through, more or less, with their trans-Atlantic faiths. Preached times, numbers, and in localities too numerous to mention, but, withal, felt aided and blessed. Elders Whitaker and McDowell, the president and secretary of Western Wisconsin district, did efficient local service. They are ready to take the field and receive appointment. If the finances of the church will allow I recommend that they be assigned to S. W. Wisconsin. Elder F. Hackett has done well recently and proselyted a number. There are very few branches in the entire state, and only nominally one district, the south east part belonging to the Northern Illinois district. Churches quite generally and school houses most everywhere are denied us owing to the reproach of apostates and the exclusion by a large foreign element. And many other hindering causes are at work. Chicago would love to have a live man to devote his time wholly to the city and suburbs. Northern Illinois is a vast field, while Kewanee district is also extensive and much neglected. The great masses of the upper Mississippi basin know little or nothing of our doctrine, our history, or even of our existence. The river cities are teeming with swarms of people, while the adjacent country is a dense network of unsaved humanity. Can we not go up and occupy the fairest heritage under the throne of the Eternal? It is the granary of the world, while manufacturing, mining, lumbering, commerce and trade contribute to the material wealth. Help us; do us speedy good and we will arise up and call thee blessed.

Elder I. N. Roberts, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since last conference I have worked diligently to advance the cause of Christ. Have been greatly blessed in my labors. Throughout the mission the cause is gaining ground, and most of the Saints are more earnestly engaged in the work than ever before. Branch and district authorities are coming more to the aid of the work than ever before since I have been in the mission. The brethren sent by General Conference last spring have done a good work. Many new places have been opened by them, some of which will bring much fruit in time. We could not labor two and two, on account of the demand for preaching in so many places. Most of the branches that constitute the mission are in good condition, some not so good. The Western Texas district, under the directions of our young and worthy Bro. I. A. Currie, is doing well. Since last conference I have organized one new district, one branch, and assisted in organizing another; baptized twenty souls, blessed nine children, preached two hundred and ten sermons, administered to the sick, most of whom were blessed by the Lord. My faith is strong in the good work. I am still at your disposal.

Elder J. F. McDowell, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since last you convened I have labored in the Far West district, at St. Joseph, Pleasant Grove, Kingston, Hamilton, and Clarksdale. Had planned to labor more than I did, but the neuralgia caused me great distress in face and head for ten weeks, commencing last October. This proved a great trial to me physically and spiritually. Upon special request of friends, and by permission of Elder J. R. Lambert, I went to Iowa in February (on invitation) believing that a change would do me good; when I left home I was blessed and strengthened beyond expectation. Preached at Dow City, Magnolia, Marathon and Little Sioux, and was sustained through it all, my health improving much.

I have done all I could during the year, according to my physical ability, but not as much as I had hoped and desired. I feel desirous of doing more in the cause.

Elder J. H. Thomas, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Being appointed to a mission in Western Kentucky and Tennessee, I landed in Fulton, Kentucky on May 14th, 1888, and have done all that I could under the circumstances. Had some opposition, but generally left a better feeling, and, I think, allayed a good deal of prejudice. Part of the time I was with Brn. Seaton, Griffin, and Adair, but most of the time alone. I visited the branches and scattered members; organized one branch with twelve members; assisted in ordaining two elders, two priests and one teacher: blessed fifteen children; solemnized one marriage; baptized twelve, all heads of families, and administered to a good many sick, both to those in and to those out of the church; I am still willing to labor wherever conference may see fit to send me. Am satisfied with my present field and think that I can do as much good there as elsewhere.

Elder J. F. Burton, of the Seventy, writes from San Bernardino, California:

I was in the Australian Mission until July 11th. under the direction of Pres. T. W. Smith, assisting him in the conferences and branches in the two colonies of Victoria and New South Wales. Brethren Wight and Butterworth arrived in time to assist in organizing the Northern district. I left on July 11th, and on arrival in San Francisco August 4th, I reported to Pres. H. C. Smith as soon as I could, and have since then labored in the Northern, Central and Southern districts of California. I have baptized nine persons, and in company with Pres. Joseph Smith assisted in reorganizing the Laguna branch. Have performed the marriage ceremony once, and attended to such other duties as generally devolves upon the ministry. Have traveled over eight thousand miles by water, and over two thousand miles by land. I have lately accompanied Pres. Joseph Smith in this Southern district and am pleased to say that his timely lectures and sermons have removed much prejudice and created an interest in the work, as well as encouraged the Saints, particularly in Santa Ana, Los Angeles and San Bernardino, all of which will be of lasting benefit to the work in this district.

My voice is improving quite fast, and I think that if I am permitted to labor in this state during the year I will be made permanently well. I therefore ask permission to labor in this part of the vineyard this year, if in your judgment you deem it best.

Elder H. H. Robinson, of the Seventy, writes from South Rawdon, Nova Scotia:

I have labored under those in charge to the best of my ability, preaching in Holden, Missouri, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, visiting Saints in Hornerstown and Long Branch, New Jersey, preaching and performing other labors belonging to the ministry in Providence, Attleboro, Plainville, Rockland, Fall River, Brockton, and Boston, Massachusetts, arriving in Nova Scotia about the last of June. Have labored here in different places in Kings, Hants and Cumberland counties. Have also assisted Bro. Parsons in getting the church here completed and the Saints in better condition spiritually. Have been able to present the gospel to many that never heard it before, distributed tracts, sold the Voice of Warning and other church works. Have baptized six, confirmed seven, blessed four children, administered to the sick with some good results. The people here seem to depend more on the Queen for salvation than on the Lord. The opposition that we have to meet is of a very low, deceitful character. They are not willing to face the truth, but the doctrine of "Stay away from those Mormons," is published everywhere.

Elder A. H. Parsons, of the Seventy, writes from South Rawdon, Nova Scotia:

I have preached in Rice, Barton, Clay and Jewell counties in Kansas, baptized eight, blessed children, and administered to a few. In company with my wife we started eastward May 8th, 1888, stopping off at Independence to preach once; thence to Chicago, where we spent one week and met with the Saints once. Thence to Providence, Rhode Island, having been requested by Bro. Kelley to stop there. I preached at Providence, little Compton, Plainville, Attleboro, Fall River and Boston; also met with the Saints at Fall River in their district conference. Enjoyed myself very much except sitting on an elders' court twenty-five hours, while in that district. We arrived here May 30th. After eight month's labor there is a slight improvement in the branch. Some of the Saints have tried to do all they could to assist in furthering the work, while others could have done more to their own credit and the work; but we trust past experiences will assist each to arise and do more in the future. The church building commenced here some two years ago is just enclosed. We have moved on a lot where a deed could be had, and finished and dedicated it. If the Saints will do their part at this place the work will gradually spread; but present indication bids them "come up higher," or the year's labor will be bestowed in vain in this branch. The work in this mission depends upon the developing of the branch here. If an onward march is had the work will slowly spread; if otherwise, it will die. We have labored for and prayed that the invitation to come up higher might have its effect.

To say I am pleased with the church publications would not be words sufficient. Autumn Leaves is grand, also the Hope and Herald. It seems to me they have grown better each issue.

Bro. Robinson stopped at Delhaven enroute, and commenced the work there and in Cumberland county and finally located at Parrsboro, thinking the work could be established there. Two months ago he gave it up for the want of hearers and came here. We have labored as best we could where we could get a chance. Schoolhouses are not open here for preaching like in the States, and but few free halls. The ministers leave no stone unturned that will make this work look mean and nasty. The "Golden Bible" of M. T. Lamb's has gone the rounds, and it is impossible to get any one of the ministers to come to the front. The discussions held here by brethren Burton and Sheehy were sufficient. They work on a different plan now; it is "freeze them out." These brethren are held in great esteem as defenders of the faith by the Saints and friends. No one could be sent who would be as acceptable as one or both of these brethren. I have baptized four here. I am at the service of the church. Prospects here for the work are gloomy and dark.

Elder Duncan Campbell, of the Seventy, present, reports:

The coming of the time of our annual gathering finds me still desirous to aid in the spread of the principles of the glorious gospel. During the early part of summer I labored at Hickory, Jones, Keller and Toad Valley in Missouri, and at Pleasanton, Eldorado, Vine Oak and Holden in Iowa.

August 1st I went to Sullivan county, Missouri by request of President Smith and advice of I. R. Lambert, Missionary in charge, in answer to a call for help by Elder Henry Grim. Held several grove meetings near Milan, also at Maggart meeting house, Clem Springs and Gose school-house. From the latter place I was called home by the death of my youngest boy, Bro. Grim filling the appointments that were out. Returned after a stay of nine days at home, and after laboring some near Milan, preached at Lindley, also at a place three miles east, and also at the Donohoe school-house three miles south of Humphries at each of which several meetings were held. After that we had meetings near Reger Station, Milan, Wintersville and Buttesville.

I was detained at home some part of the early winter by sickness in my family, but was almost constantly engaged in labor at Pleasanton and vicinity. Later on I was engaged at Terre Haute for some considerable time, and since that time the work at Pleasanton has demanded my attention.

The baptisms were performed by the various brethren who labored with me, and will be duly reported by them.

Elder Columbus Scott, of the Seventy, present, reports:

In accordance with my appointment to labor in and take charge of the Michigan and Northern Indiana mission, I entered upon the duties of the work soon after returning from the conference, endeavoring to prosecute the same to the extent of my ability. The field is quite a large one, and the demand for labor so urgent that we had to be content with doing the best we could in the limited number of places we were able to reach. I am unable to state precisely the status of the work in all parts of the mission, but so far as I know, and from what I am able to learn, either directly or indirectly from the laborers, I think the work is in fair or good condition. I trust this will be confirmed by the reports of the laborers.

During a portion of the winter my health was poor and seemed to forbid other than local labor. I have baptized sixteen, confirmed two and assisted in confirming a number of others, blessed several children, solemnized three marriages, and ordained one person. Brn. H. Rathbun, J. J. Cornish, J. A. Carpenter, E. Delong, A. Barr, L. Phelps and R. Davis have all labored in the mission by General Conference appointment, and so far as we are aware have all labored diligently and unitedly, and have each done a good work. Also Bro. Thomas Horton of Williamston, and other local laborers, have done work that should be noted, recognized and appreciated. I would not forget to mention that Bro. W. J. Smith in passing to and from his mission has labored at some points for us and baptized a number. Bro, Leonard Scott has also done some labor in this mission in passing to and from his field of labor. We trust that all the above named brethren may be continued in their former field, and that it may be found wise to add to their number Brn. W. J. Smith and L. Scott, as we need more laborers. The work with us is slowly but surely going forward, and the demand for labor is increasing. I still have an abiding faith in the triumph of the work, and am still willing to labor for its advancement to the best of my ability.

Elder I. N. White, of the Seventy, present, reports:

The year has been one of the busiest of my life. My labor has been wholly devoted to the Independence, Missouri, district. Have labored as its president under Bro. Joseph Luff, missionary in charge. Preached in fourteen different localities, baptized ten, participated in marriages ordinations, confirmations, blessing of children and administering to the sick. Have had enough disappointments to keep me anxiously looking ahead for the beacon light to "come up higher" that my administrations might be more acceptable to God.

"The field is white!" and while enticing family ties, business, and the marts of trade are inviting fields to engage the mind with desires to have a show of "good things" in this life, the gospel has the pre-eminence above all these; hence my desire is to continue my labor for the Master, if found practicable and in harmony with those having charge of the mission field.

Elder F. M. Sheehy, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since my appointment I have labored constantly, attending to such duties as are common to a missionary. Have preached in Boston, Fall River, Brockton, Attleboro and Dennisport, Massschusetts, and Providence, Rhode Island, Jonesport, Jonesboro, Mason's Bay, Sedgwick, Blue Hill, Orland, Green's Landing, Tenant's Harbor, Martinsville, Hart's Neck, Clark's Island, Long Cove, Lisbon Falls, East Dixfield, Science Hill, Dixfield Common, and Surry Hill, Maine. The last three places are new ones for our district. I was kindly received among the people there, who were also anxious for a continuation of gospel work among them.

During the fall in company with Bro. Bond I went into the state of New Hampshire and held a few meetings in Farmington. It being in the midst of politics, national, Congressional and state elections, our effort did not amount to as much as it otherwise would. I was taken from Maine by orders of missionary in charge to work in the Massachusetts district the latter part of the year. I am now acting as presiding elder over the church in Fall River. I have been cordially received and treated by the clergy of that city as a member of the Minister's Association.

On March 18th I read an essay before the Association on the Book of Mormon, dealing chiefly with the archæological evidences that sustain it. I was surprised to find educated men so poorly informed in regard to our claims; also as to the finding of the Spaulding Manuscript. I would suggest that the church do something towards getting it before the public through the annual issues of the standard encyclopedias. The church in the New England mission is sadly in need of more laborers. The call for preaching is increasing so rapidly that we can not, with present number of men, begin to attend to them. The need of work among branches during the year has greatly retarded our regular missionary work

I am being continually confirmed in the work of the church, that it is of Christ, and hope to remain true to the end.

Elder A. J. Moore, of the Seventy, present, reports:

According to appointment, I have labored in the Southwestern Mission. I have been greatly blessed in my labors. I feel cheerful in saying I am willing to labor on.

Elder J. S. Roth, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since my last report I have been in the field almost the entire time. I labored some in Des-Moines district, but most of the time was in the Eastern Iowa district, where I was assisted by Bro. Turner for two weeks, and by Bro. Ruby five weeks. We opened some new places, and the prospects are good for an ingathering at some of them soon. The district is in good spiritual condition.

I organized one branch. I was assisted by Bro. W. Maitland. I have also learned that he did some preaching in parts of the district last winter.

I have been president of the district since last fall, and if the conference deems me worthy of an appointment another year, I prefer to be returned there, and if possible that another brother or two labor there, for the district is large and ripe. I have baptized twenty one, ordained one priest, married one couple, and performed all such duties as fell to my lot. My desire is to do all I can to forward this great latter day work.

Elder Henry Kemp, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have labored as appointed at last conference, in the Fremont, and some in the Pottowattamie districts. I have done the best I could, and have been abundantly blessed in preaching the word; more so, I think, than in previous years. Have averaged during the year about two hundred and fifty sermons, baptized fourteen, confirmed and assisted in the confirmation of about thirty persons, administered to the sick, blessed children, and attended to the duties of my calling generally with very good results.

Our Camp Meeting, held at Plum Hollow last fall, was a grand success, more so than we would have expected. Twenty-nine were baptized, the hearts of hundreds, both Saints and believers were made glad in the gospel and the hope of eternal life.

There is a brighter prospect for the future in this field of labor. The Saints of the Plum Hollow branch have decided to build a church house and have much of the material already on hand. That people have grit enough with the help and Spirit of God to accomplish this work. Much credit is due the Saints of this district for the faith they have manifested in the work during the past year.

The Saints at Wheeler's Grove, have built them a neat little church this last year; they are but few in number, but they have worked with a will and have completed the work. I am still willing to labor for the cause to the best of my ability. May God speed the plough.

Elder E. A. Davis, of the Seventy, writes from Llanelly, Wales:

Since the conference of 1888, I have been laboring all the time in the harvest of our Master. By the advice of some in authority I remained in America until Bro. J. T. Davis had finished his labors in Utah. This time I spent in America, laboring the most of the time in the Spring River district; the balance of the time at Crescent City, Iowa. It is sufficient to say that this time was spent in the ministry to good advantage, and in as wise a manner as I was able.

About the last week in July I took my leave of friends and home for the field assigned me, and the first week in August was safely landed in Wales. I began to do what I could under the difficult circumstances that seem peculiar to this field. I am not disposed to complain at all but it is of no purpose to cry peace and plenty, when it is famine.

The experience in the time spent here causes me to think that the good cause will be established in Wales only by long years of hard labor wisely spent. I have acted in the different departments of my calling as often as duty demanded. If you see wise to sustain me in this field, I am willing to do all I can for the promotion of the gospel. While I shall be absent in person, I shall be with you in faith and prayer, and I trust that the good Spirit will be with you to assist in the transaction of business and reveal the mind of our common Lord to his chosen people.

Elder L. R. Devore, of the Seventy, writes from Limerick, Ohio:

At your last session I was appointed to labor for the ensuing year in the South-Eastern Ohio and West Virginia district. In Ohio I have labored in Jackson, Vinton, Gallia, Highland, and Hocking counties, and in Richie county, West Virginia. Have delivered 157 discourses, baptized 22, confirmed 21, blessed 8 children, ordained 1 teacher, solemnized 1 marriage, administered to the sick on 30 occasions. Traveled by railroad 586 miles, by wagon 110, on foot 316

Total 1,022. There has been about 75 added to the district by baptism, and the omens are propitious for many more to follow. I have been favored to labor a good part of the winter with Bro. T. J. Beatty. He is a pillar in this district. The Lord has blessed our labors and given liberty in declaring the word. I would be pleased were I favored to be with you during your session, but distance and the lack of means are the only hindering causes. May the good Spirit be with you in all your deliberations, that the work may receive additional strength and be pushed on to victory, is my prayer.

Original Yostry.

IN MEMORY OF MY DEPARTED FRIEND AND BROTHER, SAMUEL FRY WALKER

"I TELL you, Doctor, the time will surely come when the church will be brought out of the wilderness where it has been driven. The scattered ones will be gathered home. The Sabbatic year-as you call itbe ushered in, and God's people will grow up during it from the little stone which they now are, to a great mountain that will fill the whole earth with the brightness of its glory" These words were spoken by Elder Walker in one of the last conversations we had together. I have attempted to put the thought into verse, "in memoriam" of one of whose innermost thoughts I probably knew more than any one outside of his household. And amongst all the ideas and speculations as to what might be in the "sweet bye and bye" which he and I debated upon, with him the ever present thought, the central idea, was always the same, namely, The glory of God and the upbuilding of the Savior's kingdom. Well, he is gone! passed from death unto life! and I miss him.

THE SAINT'S HOPE.

Though now we are wanderers
And are scattered far and wide,
Yet we cherrish still the hope
(To Saints so dear)
That the time is fast approaching
When we'll all be gathered home,
To prepare for the great Sabbatic year.

Sore, sore we have been tried Since the church was led away To sojourn in the wilderness so drear; But we cherish still the hope, And know it will not fail, 'Twill return for the great Sabbatic year,

The Jews will gather home,
And the church will gather in
To the regions round about, from far and near,
For the prophets have foretold it,
And we know it will not fail,
They'll return for the great Sabbatic year.

Then spread the glad tidings
To the earth's remotest bounds,
From India's sunny isles to Greenland drear,
That Jesus Christ is coming,
And we know they will not fail,
For to reign through the great Sabbatic year.

J. J. S.

Lamoni, Iowa, April, 1887.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't. D. F. NICHOLSON, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK of LAMONI

Will attend to any Business for Non-Residents entrusted to our care.

Interest Allowed on Time Deposits.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPES.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.

Miscellaneous.

IOWA AND NORTHERN MISSOURI.

It has seemed proper to those to whom this duty belongs to continue me in charge of this field, with a request that I shall do what I can. With this request I will strive to comply. The work committed to our trust is worthy of our best efforts, and whether we are able to do little or much for its advancement, it should be done, leaving results with God. God is a reasonable being, only requiring us to do what we can; but faithfulness and diligence are demanded. Every one should labor according to his ability without envy or jealousy, and God and eternity can best determine who has accomplished the most good.

Let it be understood that where there are designated fields within my mission, the appointees of General Conference should report to the ones in charge where they are required to labor; and those in charge of these fields are requested to report to me. Bro. C. Derry of Magnolia, Iowa, will remain in charge of Little Sioux and Galland's Grove districts; Henry Kemp of Tabor, Iowa, in charge of Fremont and Pottawattamie districts; W. T. Bozarth of Cameron, Missouri, in charge of Des Moines district; Duncan Campbell of Pleasanton, Decatur county, Iowa, in charge of Decatur district.

Bro. A. J. Moore of Lamoni, Iowa, is requested and appointed to take charge of Nodaway district. Let these brethren be honored in their respective charges and good will result to the cause.

I trust and pray that a good year's work (better than ever before) will be done by the elders, priests, teachers, deacons and members in this field. Remember that righteousness alone will avail with God. It is folly for any man to try to pass for more than he is actually worth. most cunning efforts to build up self, at the sacrifice of those who are better than we are, will finally come to naught, and disaster and disgrace will fall upon the guilty. God is able to do own work, and He will do it in His own way. God is able to do his

How much I wish I could say to all in this field, "come" instead of "go." But I can not, only in a limited degree.

My the peace and blessings of God be with In gospel bonds, JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

LAMONI, Iowa, April 15th, 1889.

MASSACHUSETTS DISTRICT.

Conference of the Massachusetts district will convene Saturday, May 11th, at two P. M. at Boston, in the Knights of Honor Hall, No. 2319, Washington street. From any of the depots take the Washington Street cars, or cars leading on to Washington Street, Roxbury. A committee at the hall will provide for the accommoda-tion of visitors. Bro. W. H. Kelley, who is placed in charge of the mission for the ensuing year, will not be able to be with us. It is hoped that Bro. F. M. Sheehy wil be present. Bro. Hiram Robinson, of Nova Scotia, is expected to be with us. Rates of railroad fare better than a thousand mile ticket, (which can be secured for two-thirds regular rates,) can not be had. These tickets have the advantage, also, of being good till used; and one, or any number of persons, can ride upon them. They can be ordered a few days before conference of the local agents. Tickets from Providence to Boston can be had for 75 cts. over the N. Y. and N. E. R. R. Come all, and let those who do come bring the Spirit of God and of peace with them.

M. H. Bond, President of district.

BORN.

DAVIS.—At St Joseph, Missouri, July 9th, 1888, to Mr. J. I. and Sr. N. E. Davis, a daughter. Blessed April 10th, 1889, by Elders Robert M. Elvin and D. K. Dodson, and named Gracie.

DIED.

CHARLES.—At Bevier, Missouri, March 29th, 1889, of pneumonia, Bro. Thomas Charles. He was born at Prince's End, Staffordshire, England, May 15th, 1828; united with the Reorganization from Brighamism, through the labors of Bro. Joseph Boswell, on the latter's mission to England, August 10th, 1866, and ordained at the same time to the office of an elder. He had his faults like others, but in the main was not only a lover of the plan of salvation, but a true desender of its principles in public and in private. Just before his death he requested those by him to read the last chapter of Malachi, which he confirmed by his testimony. He was brought as he had desired, to Kewanee, and interred in Pleasant View Cemetery, March 31st, 1889. Funeral sermon by Elder John Chisnall. He leaves a son and two daughters to mourn their loss.

We laid him down with gentle hand,
Within his bed of clay,
There to await the Lord's command,
"Arise to endless day.
For me you toiled, for me you bore
The scoffs and frowns of men;
Hail now to live for evermore
With me and mine,—Amen."

SMITH.—At Kilmanagh, Michigan, Mary Ettie, daughter of B. F. and C. M. Smith, aged 14 years, 11 months and 14 days. She was born June 30th, 1873, and was baptized by Elder J. J. Cornieh, at Bay Port, Michigan, October 30th, 1887. She leaves a father and mother, five brothers and two sisters to mourn their loss. They are all Saints but one, and they desire the Saints to pray for him that he may be one with them. They have the hope of meeting her again in the sweet bye and bye. Funeral services by Elder William

REESE.--At Butte, Montana, September 25th, 1888, Sr. Frances P. Reese, aged 28 years 11 months and 27 days. Sister Reese united with the church June 30th, 1881, since which time she passed through many trials. During her darkest days she had the unmistakable evidence of the divinity of the work. Up to the last her faith was unwavering. She fell asleep with the bright hope of a glorious triumph. We have every reason to believe that she sleeps the sleep of the BARREL -James Barrel was born at Hartland, Vermont, September 24th, 1804, and died at his residence in Lamoni, Iowa, April 6th, 1889, leaving a wife and two children. He was baptized September 3d, 1871, by Elder Henry C. Smith. He remained firm and faithful to his covenant and in his life adorned the doctrine which he espoused. He had no fear of death, but expressed himself as ready and willing to pass to the other side whenever the Master called him. The funeral services were conducted by Elder Thomas J. Bell, and the interment was at Rose Hill Cemetery.

HOUSTON.—James Thomas, son of James and Mary Houston, born at Happy Hollow, Macoupin county, Illinois, July 24th, 1883; died at Litchfield, Illinois, of measles, March 24th, 1889. Services at the house by Bro. Houston.

Houston.—John, son of James and Mary Houston, born at Staunton, Macoupin county, Illinois, March 28th, 1886; died at Litchfield, Illinois, of measles, March 24th, 1889.

SEE. The funeral of Mr. Adam See took place at his late residence in Adams Center, on March 18th. He had been long and favorably known as a peaceable citizen and good neighbor, a quiet, unassuming gentleman and Christian. Born in Schoharie county, New York, September 3d, 1812 Married to Miss Eunice Linnell at Brownville, New York, March 24th, 1836. Their union brought to their hearts and home fifteen children, six dying, nine still remain with their worthy mother to mourn the loss of a husband and father.

When about twenty-two years of age he united with the people called Christians; in 1844 with the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons. Ever opposed to all innovations, and true to his Christian instincts, his religious opinions did not at any time change his purpose, his aim being to "fear God and keep his commadments," this being "the whole duty of man." He sojourned among us twenty-five years as a "pilgrim and stranger on earth," respected by all, and dearly loved by those who understood the simplicity and kindness of his heart. At the ripe age of seventy-six years he sleeps after much suffering, yet crowned with a victorious faith in God, our Father.

James H. McChesney in Adams county, Wis-

(Bro. Adam See died of heart disease and asthma. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church, July 17th, 1875, by Elder J. M. Waite.)

PHARMACIST WANTED.

A young man who is registered in Iowa, and can give good references, &c. A member of the church preferred. Address F, M. WELD,

26mar4t

Lamoni, Iowa.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big barrain for some one. bargain for some one.

EBENEZER MILLER, Senior,

SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

ESTATE REAL AGENTS,

West Lexington Street,

INDEPENDENCE, - MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

--: A Family Newspaper :--THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT

Provides its readers weekly with 56 COLUMNS

Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thoroughly acquanted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa.

AUTUMN LEAVES,

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - -M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.

SABBATH SCIOOL BOOKS.

Compendium of Faith, for higher classes, bound in sprinkled Leather, each. $1 00 The same bound in Cloth. 75 Question Book, for intermediate classes, each 25c., per dozen 2.50

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist, Ad-Re-oleiddedig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges

RUINS REVISITED,

AND THE WORLD STORY RETOLD:

The Scientific Defense of the Latter Day Faith. 240 pages, bound in cloth, price $1.

S. F. WALKER, Lamoni, Iowa.

"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."

In cloth 25cts., ten or more, each..... 20 written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon.

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

E SAINTS' F

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord: for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One Wife. HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEAT HER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36. – Whole No. 833.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 4, 1889

No. 18.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

Every Saturday. Price $3.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents. are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express.

Entered as second class matter at Lameni Post Office.

The Saints' Perald

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

EDITOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Lamoni, Iowa, May 4, 1889

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

This work, so long and anxiously looked for, will now be put on sale as soon as possible, and all those desiring copies should order at once, and send money with order,—price per copy, $2.50. The saf-est, best way, is to send by post-office order-not postal note, for that is not safe -or, send draft on Chicago, or cash in registered letter, and send to David Dancer, box 128.

This office requests all to procure what subscribers they can for the Harmony, and the sooner the better, for it needs the money to pay bills due for its publication.

The Harmony will contain all the hymns in the Saints' Harp, also 542 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, 13 full sized pages of music, full instruction on choir and anthem music, the editor's preface and introduction, and publisher's pre-

No reasonable effort will be spared to make the book all it should be, and liberal patronage is earnestly and urgently sought for it.

LAMONI COLLEGE.

Below we give the minutes of a meeting of citizens in the interest of this proposed institution from which it will be seen that vigorous efforts will be made to push the movement to a successful conclusion. All agree that the College is much needed, also that no better place than Lamoni can be found in which to build and maintain it, and the only question that now remains to be settled is as to whether sufficient means can be secured, The solicitors have just began seeking subscriptions, and today (April 25th) one of them reports having secured fifty-one shares, (of twentyfive dollars each), also that one brother promises five thousand dollars. He is confident that he can with this soon work his list up to ten thousand dollars in this place and vicinity. If the other solicitors each reach even half that amount the means will be forthcoming to build.

This movement is in the hands of judicious, experienced, trusty business men who will push it to a successful termination if the needed stock is subscribed. All who can should subscribe what they feel they can, and communicate at once with D. F. Nicholson, Lamoni, Iowa, stating what they can and will do in the matter.

It will prove a perfectly safe investment though it may pay no dividends-at least for some time.

Whoever helps forward the cause of education is a public benefactor, and with such the question will not be as to how much interest his investment will return, but how much good will come to society.

Bear in mind that May 25th is the time when the next meeting is to be held, and that all notices of subscriptions for stock should be in the hands of the solicitors before that day, that an organization may be effected then or soon thereafter:

LAMONI, Iowa, April 18th, 1889. The citizens of Lamoni met at the Herald office to take into consideration the advisability of measures for the furtherance of the building of a college at Lamoni, Iowa. G. A. Blakeslee was chosen chairman, and W. Hudson secretary: a committee consisting of E. L. Kelly, R. Winning and D. Dancer was appointed to arrange, solicit and devise plans to put in operation the plan of the college.

A committee of four was appointed to canvas and solicit means, to procure subscribers to the stock, to work this immediate locality, and work in conjunction with previously appointed committee, W. Hudson, Dr. Hansen, S. V. Bailey and D. F. Nicholson.

All committees were instructed to report to an adjourned meeting appointed for the last Saturday in May, at three o'clock p.m., at the Herald office, in Lamoni, Iowa. All persons are requested to aid with all their might, mind and money. W. Hudson, Secretary.

ONE WIFE, OR MANY.

Such is the title of a new sixteen page tract written by Pres. Joseph Smith, now in press, and will be on sale at this office in a few days.

It is a treatise on marriage, anciently and modernly, from a scriptural and historical standpoint, and sets forth clearly the position the faithful people of God have ever occupied on that matter. Of course, it advocates and defends monogomy and repudiates all other forms. The latter part of the tract contains an explanation and defense of the ministry of the sons of Joseph Smith the Seer, and contains valuable testimony on the point from the private journal of the late apostle Lyman Wight.

We trust this tract will be found timely and effective and prove most beneficial in both defending and advocating the faith of the Saints upon the points treated.

All who desire it should send in their orders at once. Price 25 cents per dozen, or $1.75 per hundred.

All moneys should be sent to David Dancer, box 128. Post office orders, drafts on Chicago, or registered letters are the safest.

THE CONFERENCE.

THE Annual Conference at St. Joseph, Mo., April 6th to 13th, was not a large gathering in respect to delegates and visitors, but we are confident it will prove equal to the average in point of practical value to the church. The preaching was excellent; the subjects treated were timely; the interest taken was all that could be desired, and good results are certain to fol-

All regretted the absence of President Joseph Smith and others, both ministers and laity, but we have long since learned that we can not have all the good things

The editors of the St. Joseph newspapers treated us well, generally, setting forth our sentiments, teachings and church work fairly, and, in the main, correctly.

The St. Joseph Saints, few in number, acquitted themselves nobly in providing for the delegates and visitors, and not a few of the citizens outside the church showed much kindness, some of them becoming deeply interested in the doctrine and work of the church. The conference was as "a city set on a hill," and its light went out forcefully and in many directions.

BRADEN'S BOASTINGS.

Some one has sent us a copy of "Programme and Endorsements of Lectures by Clark Braden, A. M.," etc., etc., a pamphlet of about twenty pages. Looking it over, from head to tail, one is struck with a feeling of disgust at the self-adulation which abounds in it everywhere. A wiser man has said: "Do not sound a trumpet before thee." But Mr. Braden seems utterly heedless of such good advice and rushes into print, thrusting his boasted deeds offensively into public notice, "giving out that himself is some great one," Simon Magus-like. Among hosts of his pompous pretensions he claims to have vanquished "Mormonism" when he debated with Bro. E. L. Kelley in Wilbur, Nebraska, and in Kirtland, Ohio; with J.

W. Gillen in Stewartsville, Missouri, and "backed out" J. R. Lambert in 1885, H. C. Bronson in 1887, and "one Luff and other, Mormon champions, . . . in Plum Hollow, Iowa."

While this top-lofty fellow lays this "flattering unction to his soul," let facts be submitted in these matters, and then Mr. Braden and others may see the fulsome braggart as others see him.

Mr. Braden held a debate with Elder E. L. Kelley in Wilbur, where the Campbellites had a well established congregation and a commodious church. Saints had no church there, but a few members, and prejudice was hard against them. As a result of said debate prejudice gave way, the faith of the Saints was better understood, numbers were added to their church-many from among the Campbellites—and now, aided liberally by the citizens, the Saints are building themselves a suitable church in that city. On the other hand, Mr. Braden's church—the Campbellites-have declined in influence and numbers rapidly, the remnant sold their church to the Roman Catholic society, Mr. Braden fell into such disrepute with the citizens that he was placed under arrest, his books and cloak were attached and sold, and he barely escaped "by the skin of his teeth." So much for actual results at Wilbur. In the debate at Kirtland with E. L. Kelley, Mr. Braden had all the advantages arising from favorable public sentiment, while Bro. Kelley was weighted down with the accumulated prejudices of the uninformed masses. But as the debate progressed from day to day, the irresistible force of truth, wielded meekly, patiently and nobly by Elder Kelley swept back the clouds and mists of error and falsehood with which Mr. Braden waged his unholy warfare, the people saw the light; his corrupt methods, his false statements and flimsy arguments were alike exposed, the sentiments of the masses were won to Bro. Kelley and the views he advocated; Mr. Braden went down and Elder Kelley went up in the estimation of their hearers, and this to such a palpable degree that, smarting under a sense of ignoble defeat, Mr. Braden frequently insulted his hearers for applauding Elder Kelley in his successful efforts. And these favorable conditions toward Elder Kelley and the Saints continue up to the present time.

As for the effort of Mr. Braden against the Saints at Stewartsville and his debate there with Elder J. W. Gillen, the results were good for the Saints, but the contrary with Braden and his fellows. The Saints have now, in and near that town, four churches, and their influence for good with their neighbors has continued to grow from the first.

When Mr. Braden claims that Elders Lambert and Luff "backed out" of discussion with him at Plum Hollow, Iowa, he states what is not true. We have good evidence that the Saints were most willing to put their doctrines and claims against those of the Campbellites at Plum Hollow, and that arrangements were made for Elder Lambert to meet Mr. Braden on those grounds. But Mr. Braden and his friends failed to accept the terms. Afterwards they—some of that society—spared no effort in seeking to tear down the work of the Saints in that place and vicinity, but their efforts have failed thus far, and now our people are building a commodious church in the very place where Mr. Braden and his fellows sought to destroy the doctrine and influence of the Saints.

Another evidence that Mr. Braden was defeated in his attacks upon the faith and doctrine of the Saints is seen in the fact that they buy and circulate the "Braden—Kelley Debate" to build up their faith and expose the errors of Mr. Braden and his fellows. But Mr. Braden advertizes his show—for "there is money in it"—to catch dunces and dollars.

EDITORIAL ITEMS

Bro. J. C. Clapp wrote us from Salt Lake City, Utah, the 15th inst., that love and peace prevail among the members there, and that the work of the church is in fair condition.

Bro. Edward McGurk of Somerville, Victoria, in a late letter expresses confidence in the worth and ability of Brn. Wight and Butterworth, thinks they will do a great and good work in Australia, and says they are well esteemed.

Bro. E. N. Beach, of Flora Vista, New Mexico, writes cheeringly of the labors of Bro. Caffall in that region of late, says he made friends and baptized three persons.

Bro. John G. Dickinson, of New South Wales, Australia, writes appreciatingly of the labors and teachings of Bro. and Sr. T. W. Smith. He mentions the presence of the Holy Spirit in great degree at a prayer meeting, previous to their departure for the Society Islands. They found it hard to part with Bro. and Sr. Smith, whom they had learned to love. Bro. D. requests prayers in behalf of himself and family, some of whom are not with him in faith.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—"Is washing of feet in the church? If not, why not?"

Ans.—The ordinance of washing of feet pertains to the ministry, as was taught by the Savior in the 13th chapter of John. It was also taught anciently and modernly as an ordinance to be observed by the ministry when and where they seek to preach the gospel and are knowingly and persistently rejected.—(See Doc. & Cov. 23;6; 60: 4;83:16; Matt. 10:14; Mark 6:11; Luke 9:5) Washing of feet in this manner, also the washing of hands officially, is an outward sign of the person's innocence and faithfulness in the matter acted upon.—Psalms 26: 6; 73:13; Matt. 27:27.

9.—A brother inquires, "Was Judas Iscariot

2.—A brother inquires, "Was Judas Iscariot predestinated to betray our Lord and Savior?"

A.—Yes, in one sense; No, in another. Judas had his agency in regard to Christ. God foresaw that he, acting upon that agency, would betray Christ; and that fact was revealed to his servants. It therefore, according to the foreknowledge of God, became a prominent feature in the plan of human redemption; and from this standpoint Paul could say, "Whom he did foreknow, them he also did predestinate." Thus it is that predestination, wherever man's moral agency is involved, is based first upon the foreknowledge of God.

Alma treats of predestination, where it relates to the call of the priesthood, in the following manner:

"And this is the manner after which they were ordained: being called and prepared from the foundation of the world, according to the foreknowledge of God, on account of their exceeding faith and good works; in the first place, being left to choose good or evil; therefore they having chosen good, and exercising exceeding great faith, are called with a holy calling, yea, with that holy calling which was prepared with, and according to, a preparatory redemption for such; and thus they have been called to this holy calling on account of their faith, while others would reject the Spirit of God on account of the hardness of their hearts and blindness of their minds, while, if it had not been for this, they might have had as great privilege as their brethren. Or in fine: in the first place they were on the same standing with their brethren; thus this holy calling being prepared from the foundation of the world, for such as would not harden their hearts, being in and through the atonement of the only begotten Son, who was prepared; and thus being called by this holy calling, and ordained unto the high priesthood of the holy order of God, to teach his commandments unto the children of men, that they also might enter into his rest, this high priesthood being after the order of his Son, which order was from the foundation of the world; or in other words, being without beginning of days or end of years, being prepared from eternity to all eternity, according to his foreknowledge of all things."-Alma 9:6.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Unchanged by our changes of spirit and frame,
Past, now and henceforward the Lord is the same;
Though we sink in the darkness, his arms break our fall,
And in death as in life he is Father of all."

Sister Walker:—One bright morning in the spring of 1889 a young girl yet in her teens—a joyous, light-hearted, merry, happy girl; the daughter of an elder well known to nearly all Saints, came into the room where her mother was sitting. She held in her hand a book of Doctrine and Covenants and her face wore a look of soberness not usual to her. Going close to her mother, she drew up a chair and sitting down by her side she said:

"Mamma, will you listen while I read out of this book? I want to have your earnest attention, because I want to examine certain portions which have attracted my notice. I will read and then we will talk about it and see if we can come to a better understanding."

c'A word of wisdom for the benefit of the Council of High Priests, assembled in Kirtland, and church; and also, the Saints in Zion. To be sent greeting, not by commandment or constraint, but by revelation and the word of wisdom; showing forth the order and will of God in the temporal salvation of all Saints in the last days.

Given for a principle, with promise; adapted to the capacity of the weak, and the weakest of all Saints, who are or can be called Saints.

- 1. Behold, verily thus saith the Lord unto you, in consequence of evils and designs which do and will exist in the hearts of conspiring men in the last days, I have warned you, and forewarn you, by giving unto you this word of wisdom by revelation, that inasmuch as any man drinketh wine or strong drink among you, behold, it is not good, neither meet in the sight of your Father, only in assembling yourselves together, to offer up your sacraments before him. And behold, this should be wine; yea, pure wine of the grape of the vine, of your own make. And again, strong drinks are not for the belly, but for the washing of your bodies. And again, tobacco is not for the body, neither for the belly, and is not good for man, but is an herb for bruises and all sick cattle, to be used with judgment and skill. And again, hot drinks are not for the body or belly.
- 2. And again, verily I say unto you, all wholesome herbs God hath ordained for the constitution, nature, and use of man, every herb in the season thereof, and every fruit in the season thereof. All these to be used with prudence and thanksgiving. Yea, flesh, also, of beasts and of the fowls of the air, I, the Lord bath ordained for the use of man, with thanksgiving. Nevertheless, they are to be used sparingly; and it is pleasing unto me that they should not be used only in times of winter, or of cold or famine. All grain is ordained for the use of man and of beasts, to be the staff of life, not only for man, but for the beasts of the field, and the fowls of heaven, and all wild animals that run or creep on the earth; and these bath God made for the use of man only in times of famine and excess of
- 3. All grain is good for the food of man, as also the fruit of the vine, that which yieldeth fruit, whether in the ground or above the ground. Nevertheless, wheat for man, and corn for the ox, and oats for the horse, and rve for the fowls and for swine, and for all beasts of the field, and barley for all useful animals, and for mild drinks, as also other grain. And all saints who remember to keep and do these sayings, walking in obedience to the commandments, shall receive health in their navel, and marrow to their bones, and shall find wisdom and great treasures of knowledge, even hidden treasures; and shall run and not be weary, and shall walk and not faint; and I, the Lord, give unto them a promise that the destroying angel shall pass by them, as the children of Israel, and not slay them. Amen."

After this had been carefully read in the mother's hearing, the child remarked:

"Why, mamma, we as a family do not pretend to keep this 'Word of Wisdom;' and how is it? Papa must certainly know about this and the promise connected with it. Look here, just see the promise! "'And all Saints who remember to keep and do these sayings, walking in obedience to the commandments, shall receive health in their navel and marrow to their bones and shall flud wisdom and great treasures of knowledge, even hidden treasures; and shall run and not be weary, and shall walk and not faint; and I, the Lord, give unto them a promise that the destroying angel shall pass by them, as the children of Israel, and not slay them."

"Papa has been so long and so sorely afflicted and in all this time did you ever call his attention to this promise? You know we eat meat in all seasons of the year, and besides we use hot drinks and that must have reference to tea and coffee, for a clear distinction is made between "strong drinks" and "hot drinks." The first must have reference to intoxicating drinks, while the latter must mean the common custom of drinking tea and coffee, for I notice that if the tea or coffee is not hot it is not considered good. The Lord says plainly that hot drinks are not good for the body."

The mother consented that the Lord ought to know what is for our best good and the daughter continued:

"Poor papa does suffer so much pain, and at times I have almost thought he felt rebellious about his affliction. Many times I have heard him say: 'Oh, why must I suffer this way! What good is there in all this?' When I heard him talk in that way I feared that his trial might become more than he could bear. Now what do you think, mamma, about suggesting to him the observance of the Word of Wisdom? Don't you see the plain promises connected with the keeping of it?"

The poor mother felt somewhat condemned for not having been one to encourage obedience to this wise word, given in due time for the good of all Saints; but, human like, in her weakness made only this answer:

"Why, daughter, papa is himself an elder and of course knows all that is in that book."

But the thoughts of her heart were on this wise; This "Word of Wisdom" was given to all Saints, who are or can be called Saints, then it is for the members as well as for the priesthood, and for the priesthood as well as for the members. Let us profit by what has been written, not forgetting how complete was the salvation of ancient Israel who obeyed the instructions given them concerning the sprinkling of the door posts. This "Word of Wisdom" is given to us in a similar way, as a friendly warning; not by commandment or constraint, but at the same time a revelation from high heaven for us to obey or disobey as we choose. Let us try to learn and obey, for the rising generation will appear against us if we do not instruct our children in the ways of the Lord whom we profess to love and obey. Many of us have to be taught when we ought to have been teachers in Zion. Let us awake from our slumber and be children of the light, even as a city set on a hill, which can not be hid. Your sister,

M---

We commend the above letter to the careful consideration of thoughtful parents, and while we do so, let us assure them that there are forces now at work in the church which will never cease to work until the three standard books of the church are more thoroughly understood and appreciated than ever they have been in the past. The enemies of the Reorganized Church never did the cause of Christ better service than when they attacked these books. The day of ignorance in regard to the foundations of our faith is past, and the time is near when more daughters than the one referred to above will question, "How is it?" and we who have often borne testimony of love to God and his cause will be called upon by our children to manifest this love, by keeping his commandments.-ED.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Bro. Bergensen, of Emington, Illinois, requests your prayers in behalf of his wife who has been afflicted for many years.

Also Sr. Abby Freeman, of Gilmore City, Ioa.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Mary White, Lima, Mo$	25
Bro. Wm. Franklin, Flintville, Wis	50
Prayer League, Nebraska City, Neb6	15
Sr. Eliza Slocum, Nebraska City, Neb1	oo
Sr. Jessie Maxwell, Cadillac, Mich	00
Sr. Susannah Reese, Pleasanton, Iowa1	00
Sr. Alfaretta Lockard, London, OntarioI	00
Bro. Alexander Gaulter, Lamoni, Iowar	00
Sr. Laura Morrison, Buttsville, Mo
Sr. Ellen Cameron, Houghton Lake, Mich 1
Mother and daughter, Reavley, Mo
Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa	h.
LAMONI, Iowa, Apr. 19th.

WEBB CITY, Neb., April 11th.

Dear Sister Frances:—On the 10th day of June fifteen of the sisters of this branch met at the home of Bro. J. W. Waldsmith and organized a Prayer Union. Sr. J. A. Armstrong was elected president and the undersigned secretary and treasurer. Since that time eleven members have joined and two have been called from our midst; one by death and the other by removal to another town. We have held six meetings since beginning and know we enjoy the Spirit of God in our midst.

Your sister in Christ, RUBY C. FAUNCE.

PROTON, Ont., April 14th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I am a young girl of thirteen years, and have been a member of the Church of Christ two years. I have often thought that I would like to write to the Herald. I know this work is true. I have seen the sick healed, and I have been healed myself several times by the prayer of faith.

It makes my heart rejoice when I read the Home Column. Let us not neglect to pray, but let us pray for one another, and live so that when we are called from this world we may praise our Father's name in heaven; and when we stand around the judgment bar to be judged, the Lord may say, "Weil done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord."

I desire to so live that I may have that Spirit that will help me to be a faithful Saint, for I know this church is of Christ.

Your sister in the gospel,
EUPHEMIA JACK.

Tawas, Mich., March 22d.

Sr. Frances:—I'see so many letters of encouragement in the Herald that I thought I would tell you what we are doing here. On the fifth of July we met at Sr. Proper's and organized a society with six members. We elected a president, vice president, clerk and treasurer, and meet every Thursday at two o'clock.

Our meeting was opened by singing, prayer, and reading a portion of Scripture. We then had prayer and testimony, after which we worked till five o'clock. Each one paid in what she could each week, and we used the money to buy material to make up. We made quilts and a few other articles.

We have had many discouragements, but we have done each week what we could. Our president has moved away, and one after another has dropped off, till there are but three left to work. We still meet and do what we can.

In February we held a bazaar and sold what we had on hand. We made $31.60. We have no church here yet, but if one is built we intend to give the money to help build it.

I pray that God may bless all his Saints and that there may be an interest awakened, so that not one may sit idly down with folded hands. Let us be up and doing, working for the Master, so that when he comes to number his jewels, we may not be found wanting.

Your sister in the one faith,

E. Cook.

Correspondence.

CHASE, Kansas, March 21st.

Dear Saints: We are classed among the scattered ones, but wish to bear our testimony to the great latter day work. We are still trying to let our light shine, if it is but small, and are lending our books and papers, and fail to find anything that is an improvement on them in the way of church periodicals. We are favored with quite a variety of different kinds by exchanging ours with friends. We would be much pleased if some of the elders could come here and labor. We have been in no shape to help one to come since Bro. Parsons left, for we had our wheat cut with the hail, and our corn with hot winds, so we have not raised much for two years. If the Lord should bless us this year, then we may be able to pay tithes and help again. If some elder who is passing along on the Santa Fe road could stop, we would make him welcome and care for him while he could remain.

Bro. Parsons opened up the work here, and there was quite a good interest, and we were much disappointed when he was taken from this mission; but we wish to hear from whomsoever the Lord shall appoint over Central Kansas, for we are as near the center as we could get.

With love to all the Saints, I remain yours in gospel bonds, H. J. LUSH.

NORTH FORSTER, N. S. W., February 22d.

Dear Herald:—As my mind goes back to the time when I was to come to this land, and I think of those who asked me to write of the things seen here, I feel that it is but right that I should tell why I have not done so.

Remembering your limited space it was thought best to send such to Autumn Leaves, as that is for the young, and such as might like to read of the things one sees in his travels in far off climes. Since we last wrote both of us have tried to do that which we thought best for the cause. And right here I may say it was deemed wise that we should, for a time at least, cease to go as we had done-"two by two." This, of course, proved a task; and had it not been that there were those with whom we could travel and thus do what the law asks of us, we would not have done as we have. But Bro. Smith and self felt that it would be the only thing we could do for the good of the work; and as all three had prayed to know, and all seemed led that way, we thought it the will of God, and hence felt that we could do as He wished; or at least would try.

Let those who have passed through such as this say as to the task.

For months we had gone as the law has said, and while thus, we had met with all that one meets with in such a life, and had learned to love each other the more. And now to part, myself to go some eight hundred miles north and he to go out where none of our faith had been, all this was sad to think of. Yet when we left home we did so with the thought in mind that we would shrink no task which we should feel we were called to.

One thing that made it still more of a task was, that by some it was not thought right to thus leave Neely: and they went so far as to devise means by which the "heads of the church" might be caused to act. We do not doubt but the thought was in the mind of those who thus moved, that to leave him thus would not be for the best, but as it had been against our own wills, and we had done it from the fact of what we thought God willed,-as we had prayed much-, it pained us to witness such a step. As to myself, I felt that the poor boy had done so well in his new sphere that this blow might have been spared him, as it was sprung right on the eve of his start for a new field. Was the task thus laid on not so much of a load as one could wish to have? Let these same ones leave home while in their youth with all that springs forth from the name and in a land far away be asked to toil as he has done, and then to meet with the added load thus heaped on, and see how they will yearn for the time when the load will be laid down and it shall be the will of Him who has sent to call back to the home to which fond hope has, in the hours of care, held out to the youth that has toiled as few have done. And here I will say-with no fear that it will build him up-that it is safe to keep him in any part of the world. No kind of toil has he yet shrank, but as one who wants to do but that which is for the best good of the work, he has gone on, and so far has borne all with a will we could but wish were seen in all who like him, have gone forth to the call of Him "who spake as never man spake."

The work to be done in this land is of that kind not found at home. That is, that there is so much pleasure here that one can not get them to hear the truth only as that which should for the time engage the mind, to be turned from as soon as the first game shall come; the which is far more apt to draw from them the thought of the brain which should be put to use in search of truth.

Just now that which seems to call forth thought more than all things else, is the issue of protection; as this colony has been, so far, acting in line with the Home government. It makes it all the more a task to get them to hear what we have for them. Since my last I have led four into the fold and one more is to come in on Sunday next. Last month I crossed swords with one that Utah has sent here, on the subject of polygamy; and I trust that good was done for the cause. I learned that some said it was a "put up job;" but let one do what he may, and stand by the truth as he will, there will still be those who will cry out "foul," and all from the fact that they do not want the light to shine. Full well do they know that when it is once turned on the lives they live, that there will be dark spots that they would like to hide from view. Long since I learned that when one tries to keep in the path of life and does but that he knows to be right, he will soon learn that it is the few that are on his side; and hence we must make up our mind to the fact that when we go through the world with the sword of truth in our hands there will be those who will fight with a zeal we would do well to have. And that the path we thus tread is not strewn with roses, but on both sides are found the thorns, the which no doubt seem to keep us from the hope that a rest may be gained ere the toil has ceased.

So far as the mind of man may reach, one could but hope that the time would come when this kind of toil would cease; but when we bring to mind the fact that work is for the good of all, then we should not stop to think or care what the fray may bring forth, but should fix in our minds the thought that, come what will, we shall stay at our posts till all has been done. Then we can feel that we have the right to go forth from the fray, and that God will give us the fruit of our toil. To start out with the thought that naught but ease will be found in such a life is to build false hope in a mind that has not yet learned the rudiments of what is to be met; and to feel that it is nice to go from place to place needs but one such trip to work in the mind a change such as had not been thought of: at least if what I have learned in the past can be a safe rule by which to judge.

Bro, and Sr. Smith left us on the 14th instant, and now we feel what it is to be alone. He felt that he had done all there was for him to do, and hence had the right to go. What he did while here has served to put the work on a firm basis, and I feel that the kind of work he did could not have been done by those now here; while the depth of thought which he gave has brought to the minds of all the work as they had not known it. I trust that those who pray will now think of this field, and that there are but two here now sent by the church; also that they will think with their means that the church may send more here; some who have the age to give to them the kind of wisdom for this mission that it may become more of a success.

The conference for the Forster district was held the 16th and 17th instants, and though there was not much to be done, yet we had a good time. One was baptized, and the next Tuesday one more. Yesterday another followed, being three added in a week. A chat with a young man to-day brought out the fact that he has heard what in his own church he never knew, and that he will not cease till he has learned more. He is a young man of good ability. A man some thirty miles from here has asked us-self and wife-to go up to his place. He told me last night that he was nearly convinced. Himself and wife have been praying for years for the truth. He has asked me to meet his pastor, which of course I shall be but too glad to do. Near him live some who heard Bro. Rodger and since then have felt a wish to join us.

Poor Bro. Rodger! What he went through in this land for the sake of truth would make a chapter. The way he toiled in a strange land and met some of the worst persecutions ever known, would wring tears from the eyes of all who might read. Loved be his memory and rest his reward! From time to time have the tears sprung forth as I have heard what he had to meet with; and when Sr. Marriott told how she first met him and knew him by having known him in her youth, it laid bare the floodgates of grief and I could but wish that when my time shall have come to pass from this life, I may have done as well as he.

As to the work here, I have hopes of but fair progress. As to the Saints, in the main they are as grand as can be found; and as to our length of stay, we do not now see how it can be more than the three years. But should the Lord say "stay," we will do so.

Those who write to me, I trust, will be very careful about the weight of the letter, as the least fraction over the half ounce requires an extra twelve cents, and if not prepaid it means a sixpence from me.

J. W. Wight.

SAN BENITO, Cal, March 28th.

Dear Herald:—I have just returned from the conference of the Central California district, held near Alila, Tulare county on the 15th to the 17th. We were visited by a splendid rain which, although preventing many from attending, was thankfully received. The Holy Spirit was with us and every one was edified and cheered on the the journey of life. Two more precious souls were added by baptism. Dear Saints, time is flying. Let every nerve be strained to full play and let us not waste one moment, for we know not what it is worth. "God doeth his work by the minute,"—Proverbs—and if we do our's by the day, week or month we may get left.

We had some good preaching by Brn. H. L. and E. Holt, J. H. Lawn and E. Burton. Bro. James Lawn was ordained to the office of priest and will be a noble worker in the gospel. Every one went away rejoicing.

H. J. BUTTERFIELD.

Humeston, Iowa, April 23rd.

Editors Herald:—On Friday, March 22d, I left Providence for the purpose of attending the General Conference at St. Joseph, Mo., arriving in New York after a quiet night on the sound.

I went on to Jersey City in quest of Bro. Stillman, but through misdirection failed to find his residence; taking the annex boat for Brooklyn and elevated railway, I found myself soon at the hospitable home of our faithful Bro. and Sr. Squires, where, without reserve, I was made welcome.

Prepared with the correct number, I sought again in the afternoon in Jersey City, and with success, the home of Bro. Stillman and wife; who, though not a member of the church, made me welcome. Tarrying over night with them we went to Brooklyn some eight or ten miles to meet with the band of earnest Saints and spoke to them with liberty. Coming out of the hall at the close of service our attention was attracted by the voice and sight of a man perched upon a pile of boards very earnestly and loudly talking and gesticulating before an assembly of mixed characters and was informed by the brethren that it was Mr. Owen, once nominaly connected with the Reorganized Church, but recently baptized by Mr. Brown-general agent, professedly representing the faith of David Whitmer and the organization known as the "Church of Christ." My observation, however, has led me to conclude that these men who have gone out from us are representing nobody nor anything so much as themselves; that they are no source of serious alarm; but, on the contrary may serve to place the church of Jesus Christ upon its guard, and also as a sort of plaster to draw out the unwholesome, clogging and offensive material which hinders, rather than helps, the natural and legitimate workings of all parts of the body of Christ.

Monday the 25th I made bold to visit Dr. and Madame Le Plongeon, with whose names the Herald readers, as well as the rest of the world in general, have become familiar. Introducing myself and errand I was cordially received and interestingly entertained by the Dr. and Madame concerning their travels all over the uncivilized parts of the world; but more especially with their twelve years of explorations among the prehistoric ruins of Yucatan. Great confirmation of the truth of the "sealed book," and of the "marvelous work and a wonder" which the Great God has commissioned us to explain was had. And since then, and only yesterday, I noticed in a Chicago daily paper that a syndicate had been formed of editors and publishers to enter at once on an expedition of explorations in search of prehistoric ruins in the yet unexplored wilderness of Yucatan. God is moving in the interest of his own work, and of his chosen and elect people.

The Dr. kindly read to me from the MSS. of his forth coming book what he has to say about the "Mormons," in which we suffer nothing; but on the contrary will likely receive favor with thinking men and women. Both the Dr. and Madame are, as near as I could know, agnostics in belief; and of course will probably never be found on a jury that would convict and crucify Christ, or refuse even to give one of his disciples a cup of cold water or a chance for his life.

Tuesday, in company with Bro. Baty, in order to gratify my curiosity and obtain information, we visited in New York city-that great modern babel and metropolis of extremes of human life, high and low-Baxter, Roosevelt and Mott streets; the latter the quarters and home of the Chinese. After inquiry and questioning John Chinaman frequently by mixing a good deal of poor English and a very little of worse Chinese, we found his temple-place of worship-the house of "Joss," located in the third story. We seemed to beand no doubt were-objects of suspicion by the celestials who stood around as we climbed the three or four stories that led to the celestial Temple;-the cause of their inhospitable attitude being explained as we proceeded, by the fumes of opium from the several "bars" or "joints" that seemed to force their way into the corridors. In fact, one or two doors were open so we could see the paraphernalia and the keepers within, apparently waiting for customers-if not already hidden away. It was suggested to us that they might think us police officers in disguise as a reason for their lack of cordiality in our reception, having had trouble from recent raids upon opium dens.

The Temple and its trappings and paraphernalia about the altar and elsewhere were reminders of a Catholic church, far below, however, the American idea of beauty or aesthetics.

Wednesday evening I spoke again to the Saints with liberty and good attendance. Church prospects in Brooklyn are much better than upon my former visit; and it needs attention, help, discrettion and care.

Thursday morning left for Buffalo, arriving at night. The next day, Friday, found me at my native place—Kirtland—and the home of our brethren Kelleys and Grifflths. Spoke to the old friends and neighbors on Sunday, visiting with friends until Thursday following. We left in company with Brn. W. H. and E. L. Kelley and F. M. Sheehy, who had overtaken us the day previous, for the west and General Conference.

Half-fare rates for the party over the Chicago & Rock Island railroad were secured at Chicago the next day. Another all night journey and the morning of the 6th found us at St. Joseph; tired, and glad to quit. Provision for entertainment had been made for myself and Bro. Sheehy by our faithful Sr. Steffe of Boston, who had preceded us, at the home of her son-in-law, Henry Isleib, where we were most kindly and generously cared for.

Of the sessions of the General Conference we can not write. The conference was a short one, and, of course, all were disappointed at the absence of Pres. Joseph Smith. Evidences of God's favor, however, were not wanting. Individually we were blessed and not sorry we undertook the journey.

Conference closing Friday, after just one week's session, we left for Kansas City and Independence. Meeting Bro. Robinson at Kansas City, we were, in company with Bro. Ralph Smith and Sr. Hulmes taken, bag and baggage, to the hospitable, cheery and comfortable home of Bro. R——, where we were made to feel at ease and at home. Time will fail to tell of all the pleasant things we saw and experienced during our stay at Independence.

Sunday morning, though ill and distressed, we felt that we could not afford to lose our only opportunity perhaps of visiting the Saints' Sabbath School at that central place for the gathering of God's Saints. We answered to the call of Bro. Luff to preach at forenoon service. House full and we were physically strengthened and altogether blessed. In the evening Bro. J. J. Cornish of Michigan, gave us one of his unique addresses to a packed house.

Monday evening we listened to Bro. Alexander Smith.

Tuesday evening the writer occupied the stand again, and Bro. M. T. Short did so the following night.

Thursday we reluctantly parted from the friends who made it so hard to say good bye.

Zion is certainly beautiful for situation. Given a people who are able and willing to live by every word that has proceeded from the mouth of the infinite God; to obey the whole law; obedience to just rule and authority, and Zion will arise and shine and be able to show an example to the nations of the power and excellence that a people may attain unto who are willing to become workers together with him, as demonstrated in their physical, moral, intellectual and spiritual development; by which they not only may control themselves, but as an everlasting and unavoidable sequence move toward the final consummation of the dominion and possession promised by the everlasting God to the wise and the pure in heart.

Thursday evening, April 18th, found me at Shenandoah, Iowa, at the homes of my uncle, S. S. Wilcox, and also of Bro. E. C. Briggs, whom I found rapidly recovering from his recent serious illness.

Sunday morning and evening I spoke with liberty to Saints and friends in their neat chapel; also last evening, and was blessed.

Monday morning I visited the Western Normal College at that place. Was introduced and invited to a seat with the "faculty" upon the platform, and requested to conduct the exercises and make a brief speech before the five or six hundred students present.

Several young men and women, members of our church, are here attending school. Their reputation is first class; standing, so the professors say, above the average in intelligence, application and moral deportment. The Reorganized Church is making a reputation in western Iowa.

Here—many years ago—I first put on Christ. Most sad and bitter has been the cup pressed to my lips in the ensuing years, but God is good and his mercy endureth forever. Were it not so all flesh would fail, and His presence none would behold. In him is healing and cure for every truly repentant soul!

The shadows seem to recline and the distance between the line where shadow and sunshine meet is growing less; less, thank God, much less! I am so thankful for the gospel and its ability to demonstrate its saving power.

This morning I reluctantly left my friends and am now penciling these rambling notes on my journey eastward "riding on a rail"—or two rails, I think I had better say—toward Lamoni, where I expect to arrive this evening.

M. H. Bond.

Antonito, Col., April 15th.

Dear Herald:—In the presence of a large crowd, five were baptized into the body on the 14th inst., at Manassa, Colorado. The confirmation meeting held in a private house densely packed, was indeed confirming. It was above the average. The five newly baptized members were joyous and glad. God help them to endure and conquer. Others are believing, but halting.

JAS. CAFFALL.

MIDDLESEX, England

Dear Saints:-- I feel that I should bear my testimony to the world. I was in darkness, but now see great light. How glad I am that I was ever permitted to see the latter day! When I think of how men of old fasted and prayed to see this day, it fills me with joy that I have heard the gospel. My Father has shown me many things in visions by His Spirit. How great His love to one so unworthy of it! I pray that I may be kept humble and faithful. The Herald is a great comfort to me. How glad I am to read the examinations of so-called christian science. O, may it do great good. How little we know the good the Mothers' Column will do far and near. I am so glad that the Christian Science question has come up. I am sure it is necessary to understand such things in this day of error and darkness. Dear Saints, I had been much troubled because of what I have heard of David Whitmer and the inspired records, and the Spirit told me to read it through, and when I commenced to read it, it made me weep for joy. I find it a splendid rendering, especially the Psalms; and it seemed as if the very heavens were opened to me and I saw a number that no man could number. Great was the peace that fell upon me; calm and holy the joy, like a long draught of something to my soul that satisfied my hunger.

When Bro. Newton first came here a bundle of wheat was presented to me in vision. Was ever there such ears of wheat! Then I knew there was some good for me to see. I humbly ask your prayers in my behalf, as I am afflicted with tumors and rheumatism; also on behalf of my mother, Sister Kemp, who has been confined to her bed seven years. May I be kept humble.

Your sister,

ELLEN CAHMAN.

FOUNTAIN, Mich., April 7th.

Bro. Blair:—Will you please advertise in the Herald the death of the wife of E. A. Shelly. She died March 31st, 1889, aged 44 years, 2 months and 15 days. She leaves a husband and eight children to mourn their loss. Funeral April 2d. Sermon by Joseph Shippy, of Hersey. She is a member of Sherman branch, baptized by E. C. Briggs, July 9th, 1871.

Bro. E. A. Shelley found a few verses in her sewing machine drawer after her death, which he would be pleased to have inserted with the above notice. They are as follows:

When old age comes creeping o'er thee, And thy heart is filled with care, If the heavens above are clouded, And thou find no solace there;

If thy days be full of trouble
And the nights bring no relief,
And thy heart is almost breaking
With its heavy load of grief;

Should the loved ones you have cherished Prove most cruel foes to be, While your heart is sorely bleeding Think then, think, O think of me.

AMARDA

PHŒNIX, Miss., Apr. 14th.

Dear Herald:- I wish to say a few words for this latter day work. I can say I know it is of God, for I have sufficient testimony to know it is true. There are no Saints here, and we have not the privilege that some have of hearing the word of God preached. There never has been any of our preachers through here. We would gladly welcome an elder if one could come, for there are several here who want to hear preaching, and I have two married daughters who want to be baptized into our church. May God open up the way that some elder may come this way from General Conference, that my children may join the church while their faith in it is strong. We love the work of God, and have tried to raise our children to love it, though they have never heard a Saint preach. Will some one come here and preach for us awhile. We will do all we can to comfort him. We ask the prayers of the Saints that the gospel may be sent us.

We remain, husband and wife,

In the faith of Christ,

N. I. FULLER.

BUCHANAN, Mich., Apr. 15th.

Bro. Dancer:—Please send me one copy of Cruden's Concordance, for a Mr. Spencer who one year ago commenced investigating this great latter day work. He was an infided, but I had sent some Heralds to his part of the county, three miles out of town, and he read some of them and thus became interested. He came to see me and remained all night; so next morning he wanted a Book of Mormon and took the Herald for six months. He then got the Doctrine and Covenants and the Apochryphal Testament. Yes, thank God, yesterday he gave me his name for baptism.

There are seven of us, Saints, who hold regular meetings every Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Yes, thank God, by the help of Bro. Columbus and Leonard Scott, Hiram Rathbun and Willard Smith, the servants of God, and by the help of the Master the work is on the increase here in Buchanan, and all around Galien God is at work with his people. Thank God for his plan of salvation.

I lived to be forty-nine years of age and never could see anything in sectarianism; but when I heard the gospel explained by Bro. G. T. Griffiths, it only took three sermons to convince me to become obedient to the commandments of Jesus Christ. God bless the work.

Your Brother,

JOHN SHOOK.

South Addison, Me., Apr. 10th.

Bro. Blair:—I held two meetings here last Sunday. Bro. Greene has been laboring here for a short time, and is very much liked. I consider the prospect good for the opening of the work here. I visited a lady last evening and administered to her. When leaving she asked for baptism as soon as circumstances would allow.

I overlooked the mailing of my report to the Seventy's quorum which I had prepared; also the following report to conference, until today:

I am happy in being able to say, that my lines have fallen to me in pleasant places. In all my efforts I have been hopeful for the success of the work on our island; but judging from present appearances, I would not like to predict when, in my opinion, the work will revive. For more than twenty years I have been trying to advance the work here and elsewhere and in doing so I have had much pleasure. I am convinced that had I, with my brethren, been more faithful and self-denying, that more good would have been done.

I am fully satisfied as to the authority under which I am acting; not one doubt has crossed my mind in connection with the work, since Bro. T. W. Smith pronounced the blessing in my confirmation.

Only one effect has been produced on me, in consequence of all that has been written or in any way produced against the Reorganization, viz, it has made it more beautiful, consequently more lovely.

I have for a long time been locking forward to the time when I would have the pleasure of meeting with you. I still hope the pleasure will be realized. Yours in bonds,

Jos. LAKEMAN.

WEST FORK, Indiana, April 18th.

Dear Herald: -- Br. Daniels and myself arrived here the 16th. We found all well, and he spoke last night to a quiet and interested congregation. We felt to rejoice that we were latter day saints. The work is onward in this part. Our debate closed April 7th. Our opponent was more honorable than most opponents are, but he would use some slurs. However, our moderator, Bro. Daniels, was equal to the emergency. We do not think our cause suffered and lost in the discussion, although Bro. Terry was one of the ablest of the Christian order and had been preparing for two years at least, and had his part all written out. But we took it off-handed and the saints felt well, and seemed to be energized to press forward in the good work. We baptized two after the debate; so the good work goes on in spite of the puny efforts of men. There is a better interest in the work than I have seen for years. We hope general conference will supply this district with laborers. I understand that the Brighamites are still here. We met them and offered to discuss with them, but they failed to come to time. So it goes. They made friends for us, and people have no excuse now. I am glad they came, for some of these old mossback sectarians would never have believed us, but now they are forced to admit it. We have been very busy this winter and spring in the work, but this is what we like. We rejoice to see Zion moving onward. We go from here to Birds Eve; then we would love to rest for ten days or labor in my neighborhood; but how can the ministry be idle when there are so many calls! May God send more laborers into the field.

Bro. Daniels is an energetic worker and a fair representative and spiritual minded man.

May this conference year be one of rejoicing for Zion's children, and may we all receive the Spirit of God to such an extent that we may all rejoice in the good work. I feel better since the conference of April 6th than for months. May God bless us all.

V. D. BAGGERLY.

SPICKARDS, Missouri, April 6th.

Dear Herald: - You are ever a welcome visitor. bringing good news from many parts of the world. By you we hear of the progress of the church; how the honest ones are laboring and sacrificing to bring others to a knowledge of the truth. May their labors not be in vain. I doubt not the truthfulness of the latter day work nor of the final triumph of the church, for God is at the head. His purposes fail not and none can stay his hand. The work was opened here nine years ago by Bro. J. M. Terry. A number of others have labored here, principally Brn. Bozarth and Kinnaman, and last of all Bro. J. S. Roth preached four excellent sermons at Fairview school house. This is not as inviting a field as others, but still we hope it will not be neglected. Our numbers are but few, yet we hope others will obey and if they do not we shall reap our reward if we are faithful.

To-day I have often thought of the assembly that meets at St. Joseph. Where under the sun can we find another such a body of men, ambassadors for the meek and lowly Jesus? I pray that the Holy Spirit may be with them all through conference, that they may receive that strength and encouragement which they need to face a frowning world and labor for the Master the coming year. Success to the Herald.

LAURA MORRISON.

McVEY, Ills., April 19th.

Editors Herald:—The discussion between Bro. G. H. Hilliard and Elder Layman, (referred to in late Herald), has closed. Bro. Hilliard ably defended the truth. The masterly way in which he handled the word will, we think, be the cause of some investigating.

Elder Layman came seeking a sign, and at the very first session presented Bro. Hilliard with a bottle of arsenic, telling him to take it and if it did not kill him he would join the "Mormon" church. The reply was, You are a murderer in your heart, and, that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him.

Although King James' translation of the Bible was to be the standard of evidence, (other things taken for what they were worth), Layman did not offer to reply to the prophecies concerning the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, but in his summary said they had no more reference to the Book of Mormon than a cart wheel had to a state house; not telling what they did refer to. Those who came out for the express purpose of getting Elder Layman's rendering of those prophecies were much disappointed.

Elders Hilliard and Isaac M. Smith remained over Sunday, preached three sermons to attentive audiences. I am glad Br. Smith is returned to this mission. Sorry Br. Hilliard cannot devote all his time to the ministry. They do not think they can visit this part again soon; would therefore be pleased if J. W. Gillen could stop over and preach for us. He will find a stopping place with B. A. Morris and family, one and one-half miles from McVey.

In hope of eternal life.

Mrs. B. A. Morris.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 21st.

My Beloved Brethren:—I herewith send you the subscription price for the Herald for the ensuing year, that I may be assured of its unfailing weekly visits. I find it an absolute necessity to my happiness besides the great amount of knowledge and instruction I receive, the value of which is incalculable.

How very grateful I am that God has such valuable servants to guide and control the instrument whose influence and good instruction whenever received, tell for the advancement and encouragement of the work of God. What a grand conception was the idea of the Mothers' Home Column. There is no part of the work that I read with more interest and I presume it is so in all homes. The subjects written upon by Sr. Frances are full of good thoughts and are undoubtedly as instructive to the fathers as the mothers. Her selections are always wisely made. the writers of which seem to be endowed with a spirit which have the good of mankind in view. There is an untold amount of satisfaction in reading the letters of the brothers and sisters, especially those which disclose a meek and loving spirit-those which show an undying love for God and His work, and a faith that trusts him though troubles seem to be piled mountains high, and do, under wonderful adverse circumstances, acknowledge His wisdom, rely on His justice, remember His love and say, "Thy will be done, O God!" I have noticed many letters wherein such faith was exhibited. What a gift! What an endowment the gift of faith in the eternal promises of God is, and blessed is the child of God who is thus favored. However, God favors all his children. I am glad that I have received through Him a sufficient amount of knowledge whereby I could decide between truth and error, and as my knowledge increases, my faith in God and His work grows stronger. There is much comfort in a knowledge of the gospel, and I continually pray for its increase among the children of men. It is the first thing in my mind in the morning and the last at night.

God is good, and I find him more prompt in blessing than I am constant and faithful in performing my duty.

I pray that the Spirit of God my be very near us all at all times, that we may be guarded from doing evil and prompted to do right, that righteousness may abound more abundantly throughout God's heritage, and especially in the Church of Jesus Christ, in which I am your brother.

M. S. FRICK.

GENERAL CONFERENCE. (Continued.)

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder R. C. Evans, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have labored in the mission assigned me, the Dominion of Canada, under the presidency of Elder J. H. Lake. In all my efforts to present the gospel, the divine approbation of heaven has been mine to enjoy. My love for God's work has been intensified. The better I understand the more confirmed I am of its divinity. I have preached 274 sermons, presided over 57 prayer meetings, ordained 2 elders, 2 priests, 2 teachers, 1 deacon, presided over 2 elders' courts, solemnized 2 marriages, organized 1 branch, blessed 17 children, baptized 67 and confirmed 57. Have assisted to ordain, bless and confirm others. Have defended the work of the Master when called upon in public debate. I went, a stranger, to Waterford, accepted the challenge of Canada's Goliath-Rev. T. L. Wilkinson. God and true men stood by me and truth had a glorious triumph. Since the debate have baptized 37 The Saints have a nice church there, the property of one of the branch. I hope to fill well the design of my creation and rest with the pure and the good.

Elder H. O. Smith, of the Seventy, present, reports;

Upon learning of my appointment, I proceded to arrange my affairs so that I could take the field at once, and succeeded, much to my satisfaction in getting ready to leave for my mission, May 26th. From May 26th until September 25th, by request of Bro. Caffail, I spent in the Southern Nebraska district. I then returned home, attended the reunion at Missouri Valley and arranged my affairs for the winter, and on the 22d of October left home again for Central Nebraska district, where I have labored to date, baptizing five in Southern, and three in Central Nebraska.

While my record of baptisms is not large, I have labored constantly, most of the time in new locations where the gospel had never been preached. I hope the seed sown will eventually bear fruit, though I may not be permitted to gather it.

There is a vast field opening up in this district and it should have its share of attention from the conference. The people generally are poor in this world's goods, but as a rule, hospitable and kind. Have met with some opposition, and find that only by steady and persistent effort can we succeed in removing prejudice and gain the ears of the people.

Have preached in Wilbur, DeWitt, Mt. Olive, Freeman, Fairbury, Ellis, Wabash, Bennett and Nebraska City, in the Southern Nebraska district; and Clear Water, Petersburg, Cedar Creek, Oakdale, Stewart, Minneola and St. Edwards, in the Central Nebraska District. I have no request to make of the conference as to where I shall be assigned for the coming year, but shall endeavor to hold myself in readiness to go wherever the conference sees fit to send me, and shall ever pray that in all your deliberations you may be guided by the Spirit of God. This work is becoming dear to me, and when I look back over my ministerial labors I can say that, whatever my future may be, I shall look upon those few months as the one bright spot in my pathway in life, although my future may be obscured by clouds. But I still look forward to many happy hours to be spent in the service of my Master.

W. E. Peak, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since last conference I have labored in the field assigned me, filling my mission to the best of my ability. I have preached at Council Bluffs, Crescent, Park's Mills, Underwood, Neola, Persia, Loveland's Mills, Woodbine, Little Sioux, Missouri Valley, Kingsley, Richland, Dakota, and in several school-houses. As a general thing I have had good liberty, better than in any year previous. I have baptized four, administered to the sick, etc. God has been with me in Spirit, which gives me a stronger desire to press forward than ever.

Elder M. M. Turpen, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have labored in Decatur and Ringgold counties, Iowa, and in Mercer and Harrison counties, Missouri. Have met with the people about one hundred and forty times. Baptized two, confirmed two, administered to the sick a number of times. Have been blessed in my labor of love, for which I feel very thankful. Many say they will unite with us soon. All things considered the work is onward in this mission. I am at the disposal of the conference.

Elder J. Arthur Davis, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I give a report of my labors in the field assigned me, namely, Little Sioux and Pottawottamie districts: I can say that the Lord has blessed me abundantly in preaching and in other duties pertaining to my office. I believe that the greatest part of the field is as good as could be expected. I have baptized two, and preached one hundred and eighty-five times, and think I am safe in saying that I left quite a number believing. I also opened several new places with good results. Am quite hopeful of the future for this field.

Elder J. Alfred Davies, of the Seventy, writes:

I have confined my labors mainly to the Spring River district. Although hindered to a great extent on account of sickness, yet I have labored as constantly as my health would allow. Am hopeful of the future. Have confirmed two, ordained two and united one couple in marriage. The outlook is very encouraging, there is is great demand for the preaching of the word. The field being so large, it was impossible for us to supply the demand. I am at the disposal of the conference.

Elder Peter Anderson, of the Seventy, writes:

I returned to this field last May according to appointment, and have since labored in this Territory, as circumstances would permit. Our cause is onward. I am not discouraged and shall remain in this field if you think best. It would be a great advantage in this mission if we had the standard books of the the church published in the Danish language. I am still willing, and consider myself able to publish the books if wanted, but it is undoubtedly useless to mention it at present. Have baptized ten during the year.

Elder T. J. Beatty, of the Seventy, writes:

Since last conference I have been laboring in the field appointed me, namely, South Eastern Ohio, in the counties of Vinton, Athens and Hocking, but labored some in Wayne county, West Virginia. Have presided over the district the last year, and acted as Bishop's Agent. Have tried to do the best for the good of the cause. Delivered one hundred and twenty five discourses, baptized seventeen, confirmed sixteen, blessed some children, and administered to the sick with some good results. My all is in this great latter day work, and I feel willing to do what little I can to help the best of causes.

Elder John Smith, of the Seventy, writes:

Since my last report, my labor, though small, has been chiefly in the Massachusetts district. Owing to business cares and duties, I have not yet been able to devote my entire time to the ministry. I am still willing to labor as circumstances will permit for the building up of the kingdom of God.

Elder O. B. Thomas, of the Seventy, writes:

Because of not defininely stating to the Twelve and the Bishopric, at the last conference, the amount needed for the support of my family, I was referred to the Bishop and the Missionary in charge, (Bro. Lambert,) who also attended to my ordi-When I gave to them the required definite estimate, the funds on hand did not warrant my taking the field. I have therfore done what local preaching I could and attended to temporal duties. I shall strive to do still more the coming season, and try to be ready to take the field whenever it is deemed practicable. I have baptized but three since my last ordination, June 18th, last, as directed by the conference.

Elder J. W. Wight, of the Seventy, writes:

My report since your last sitting to the present is as follows: I have preached one hundred and seven times, baptized six, held one discussion with a Utah Elder of two nights duration; subject, polygamy. Traveled some twelve thousand, eight hundred and sixty five miles, and in connection with my co-worker, opened up several new places. Find the mission an arduous and expensive one. My receipts from all sources have been $321.55, and expenses $328.93.

Though I "have married a wife," I can find it no excuse for idleness, but still feel a strong desire to reap with the ability I have at command. I trust you will remember this mission, and if deemed wisdom to continue us here, send some help. I am desirous of laboring where God and wisdom may direct.

Elder H. N. Hansen, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since last conference I have labored in the Pottawattamie district, Iowa, with the exception of a little over two months spent in the work in Minnesota. I went to the latter field according to appointment of General Conference and the urgent request of missionary in charge there to labor among the Scandinavians. I found it hard to reach the ears of these people, they being satisfied with the religion of their fathers and much prejudiced against the faith of the Saints. However I did what I could to sow the seed to the few that would listen and trust that in time it may appear that some good was done. I am now presiding over the Pottawattamie district in which there is much room for labor and good prospect for the work. I desire the privilege to labor here the coming year if conference is willing. I have baptized three and confirmed or assisted in their confirmation, blessed little ones, administered to the sick and performed such other duties as fall to the lot of a minister and in my labors have realized the approval of the Spirit.

Elder M. H. Bond of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since your last session I have been laboring as per appoint in the New England mission. My work has been mostly in the Massachusetts district, a portion of last summer being spent in eastern and western Maine with a brief visit to New Hampshire in company with Elder F. M. Sheehy. I believe that I have endeavored to earnestly and conscientiously promote the interests of the work and the permanent good of the church which I am commissioned to represent. I have been greatly blessed of God by the direction and comfort of his Holy Spirit, though severely tried and perplexed at times while endeavoring to discharge the obligations imposed upon me by him whom I desire to fear more than any man.

We are gaining slowly in numbers (fast enough, perhaps) and in wisdom, we trust. We ought to if suffering would secure it. Concerning our needs as a mission, Bro. W. H. Kelley, in charge, will no doubt communicate. I want, however, to emphasize the fact that we have needs of an urgent character which, for the safety and progress of the work, I earnestly hope will be most seriously considered by this conference;—we need help and that speedily. May the Lord of the harvest guide, in sending more laborers into the great harvest field in the eastern country.

My faith in God and in his work is strong, and I desire above all things its progress. The great fact that it means salvation here and hereafter to every one that accepts, obeys and lives it, stimulates me to the preaching of the word and to press onward to effectual labor in the cause. My faith is in the Reorganized Church and that God is at the helm, and that those who are taught of God may discern between just criticism and a reckless spirit of fault finding, and a disposition or spirit to destroy that which they can not control. In the discussion and "reform" movement that is troubling some, I do not feel, so far as my observations will allow me to judge, but that the church will in the end show as between loss and gain a balance on the credit side; also that the criticism or denial of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants may serve to stimulate research and investigation of the revelations contained in it only to find-if earnestly and wisely seeking for the truth—that the government of God can not be revealed nor the church of Jesus Christ be built up among men without them.

Elder W. 7. Bozarth, of the Seventy, present, reports:

During the last conference year I have labored in the Des Moines, Eastern Iowa and Far West, Missouri, districts. In each of these districts I find plenty of opportunity for preaching the word. In the Des Moines district Bro. W. C. Nirk is doing all he can as the president of the district and in local labor. Brn. William Thompson, G. Shimmel and N. Stamm have labored all they could and have done good service. The district has had some serious trials and I think should be carefully looked after by some one sent there who understands the law of the church and is not afraid to execute it. There are some splendid openings in the district. I labored but little in the Eastern Iowa district owing to other duties. In Grundy county, Missouri, I had good congrega-tions, a splendid interest and some near the kingdom. I think that field should be looked after by all means. I have been greatly blessed the past year in presenting the word. I have baptized six, assisted in confirming a number of others, and blessed several children, and have administered to the sick with good results. I sat on two elders' courts, held two discussions, and performed such other labor as I could. Am still desirous of laboring on.

Elder Willard J. Smith of the Seventy, present, reports:

I submit a report of labor done in Michigan and Canada since my appointment to that field. I have tried to labor to advance the cause, and think good has been the result. The Master has stood by me while trying to unfurl the gospel banner, and, in consequence, I have baptized eighty-one persons, and confirmed the most of them. I have also administered in the ordinance of blessing a number of children, have ordained four persons and assisted in the ordination of others, have solemnized three marriages, and performed various other duties devolving upon me as a minister for Christ. I feel encouraged in the work and have no desire to lay my armor down. I like the field assigned me last year, and would be pleased to labor in the same field—Michigan and Canada—this coming conference year. However, if it is thought advisable to appoint me elsewhere, I am willing to labor wherever it is thought I can best serve the church.

Elder W. M. Rumel of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have tried to labor according to the strength received and as wisdom directed in the following counties: Sarpy, Douglas, Burt, Madison, Antelope, Knox and Holt. In many of the above places there is a good field which should be looked after. There is a large field in the western part of Nebraska, but in many respects it is a hard I have preached about one hundred and five times, and assisted in many other meetings. Have baptized five, blessed seven children and administered to a number who were sick, and in nearly every case relief was given. I have served the North Nebraska district as its president and Bishop's agent. In all my labors I have been greatly blessed for which I praise the name of the Lord. I expect to continue in the field if sustained, but would prefer to have my present field, as my financial condition will not permit of a change at this time. May the wisdom of God direct in all things.

Elder Arthur Leverton, of the Seventy, writes:

I accepted a General Conference appointment yet I have only been able to devote a small portion of my time in the ministry. I intended to labor the entire winter season, but could not do so very well without calling on the Bishop for assistance; and when I saw it reported through the Herald that some of the brethren in the field would have to be called home, I thought under such circumstances it would not be wise to make requests in that direction. If I could have spent my own money and it been accounted to me as tithing I could have liberated myself, but I knew this was not the order of things, so I said nothing about it; so under the general existing circumstances I have tried to do the best I could. I have preached in Zion, Chatham, Longwood, Glencoe, London and Strathburn. I have also opened up a new field in the township of Albrough, where I have preached in two different places, baptized four, and prospects are good for more to follow soon. I have also opened up a new fieldwith the assistance of Bro. Tyrrell—in the town of Wallaceburg where I am at pres-The prospects are bright ent writing. here for an ingathering at some future I have baptized ten and performed general duties.

Elder T. Matthews, of the Seventy, writes:

I have, by consent of Brn. G. T. Griffiths and E. C. Briggs, labored in West Virgina and Ohio. I am living on the line of the two states, and have calls for preaching both ways. I have preached in the following counties in West Virginia: Jackson, Marshall, Ritchie, Kanawha and Fayette; also in Jackson, Vinton, Athens, Hocking and Meigs, in Ohio. have baptized but two persons, others doing the watering; ordained one teacher, and, in connection with Bro. James Moler, at Sand Hill, Jackson county, West Virginia, organized with nine members the Washington branch. I have blessed a number of children and administered to the sick with a marked degree of benefit. Have solemnized two marriages, and by request of those not of our church, I have been called to preach several funeral sermons. I have been greatly blessed at times in preaching the word of life, the good Father blessing me with his Spirit and making friends to the cause. prospect is good for the future as far as I am able to judge.

Elder James Moler, of the Seventy, writes:

I have labored the past year, I think, to the best abvantage under the existing circumstances. I have preached in Franklin, Athens, Vinton and Gallia counties. in Ohio; in Jackson, Wayne and Cabell counties, West Virginia; and in Augusta and Rockingham counties, Virginia. Have opened up the work in twelve new places, preached 139 times, baptized 27, blessed some children and otherwise officiated in the ordinances of the gospel. Good liberty has been given to speak the word. I feel confident of the final triumph of the kingdom of Christ. I hope to be able to endure to the end. If it is thought wise I am ready for the field the coming year.

Elder E. M. Wildermuth, of the Seventy, writes:

I repaired to the mission appointed me as soon as possible and commenced laboring near Wheatville, Wisconsin, and continued until after the arrival of my colaborers, Brn. Short and Pender. I then pushed forward up the Kickapoo river and preached in Richland and Vernon counties, also in North Freedom, Sauk county, and Walworth county. Enjoyed a marked degree of the Holy Spirit and did all I could to advance the cause of the Master. Since arriving in Arkansas my labors have been blessed and I have baptized six persons and opened up a large field of labor and made many friends to the cause of Christ. I am at the disposal of the conference to labor in the ministry for the coming year. I prefer Arkansas as my future field of labor.

Elder J. B. Lytle, of the Seventy, writes:

Since last resport or during the past winter I held a series of meetings, assisted by Elder Silas Wadden, in the western part of Chase county, Nebraska, where an interest had previously been aroused through private preaching. We left them apparently quite interested, and returned again in about a month to continue our work, and found that the neighborhood was troubled with an epidemic among the children. Held one meeting and found the people in bad state to turn out. Returned home and commenced holding meetings in a new place just finished near home. Held a few meetings without interest, mostly on account of bad weather, closed with a promise to continue when the weather was more favorable. Expect to try them again soon. I have had some invitations of late to continue services and shall respond. I have preached eight times, baptized two, those being the children of Elder Madden.

My faith was never stronger in the latter day work than at present. While I have had to depend on testimony of the Spirit and the reading of the promises of the First Prophet which have had their fulfillment, I can testify by my own experience that the present prophet is a true prophet, for his prophecy concerning the elders who failed to lift up their voices and proclaim the gospel has had its literal fulfillment with me. Then woe unto me if I preach not the gospel.

Elder Thomas Daley, of the Seventy, writes:

I have labored in northern California and Nevada since last October. I was placed in charge of that mission by Bro. H. C. Smith, missionary in charge of the Pacific Slope. I feel that I have labored since last October all my body would stand without doing injustice to it. I walked over the Sierra Nevada mountains, carrying my values, and preached over two months nearly every night and God has blessed my labors. I baptized twenty-three there, the most of them were grown up to manhood and womanhood. I held one discussion with an M. E. preacher which resulted in doing much good. Two of his members and two of the Seventh Day Adventists were baptized after the debate. I preached one funeral discourse, blest three children and helped to organize a branch there in Nevada. I went to Eureka, California, and preached there. I was there six weeks, baptizing seven more, making thirty souls that God gave me for my labor since last October. Previous to that date I only preached on Sundays, as I was engaged in mining; but since October I have labored constantly, and God worked with me and much good has been done. I never had such liberty in my life, nor such large congregations. I have left many more believing, and some are waiting their companions go with them. I solemnized two marriages, and administered to the sick, God blessing them in a miraculous manner. Glory be to God for the love and power He is manifesting through the gospel of Christ. I expect to have to go to work on the mine in April again, but I am in hopes to get in the field in two or three months. I pray God that such will be the case, for it is my desire to be in the field continuously. I can not say just here how much time I can put in, but I expect to be able to do more the coming year than the past; that is, it looks more favorable. If the conference thinks it wisdom to give me an appointment again I should like to have California and Nevada for my mission; however, God's will be done, not mine.

Elder Thomas Taylor, president of the English mission, writes:

I feel a pleasure in saying that the work in England is onward, as you will have learned from letters sent to the Herald from time to time by the brethren in various parts of the mission. Considering the difficulties under which we labor, we consider the work is in a very fair condition. Additions are being made from time to time, in various places, which gives us encouragement to go on.

Bro. William Newton has been quite successful in laboring among his relatives and friends since he has been in England. He has brought quite a number of them into the church. Bro. Newton had been in England quite awhile before I became aware of his arrival. He called on me somewhere about October last and remained two days and then went back to Broadclist to continue his labor. Of his labor in London, Plymouth and elsewhere, he has made you aware from time to time throuh the Herald. He called upon me again unexpectedly on March 12th, and I was surprised to learn that he is about to return home, having spent two days here. He went on to Manchester where he nurposes staying until he leaves for home, which I understand will be in the early part of May.

It would be well to have an understanding in future in reference to missionary appointements to this country. In reference to Bro. Wm. Newton, I learned from him that he has not received the assistance in this country which he expected; while we have been under the impression that he was here on his own expense. I might have rendered him some little assistance out of the tithing and free-will offerings, but I had no instruction from the Bishop, the Twelve or the First Presidency, as to the terms of his appointment. Besides that, I only learned that he expected any help when he called on me March 12th.

I might say here, that in my opinion it would be better not to appoint missionaries to this country unless a proper understanding be had with those in charge as to what is to be expected from the Saints here.

The generally expressed feelings of the Saints in this country is that the church, will best consult the interest of the work by refraining from appointing any one from America to this country until it can appoint a representative man to take the entire oversight of the work; and then the church will have to be prepared to sustain him to a very large extent. The Saints have as much as they can do to sustain their branch expenses. What we lack is not preachers but opportunities for preaching. These questions are considered fully at our annual conferences, and in my humble opinion, the church in America would do well to follow the advice given from those conferences. What is here expressed I desire to be understood as not intended by way of dictation as to what should be done, as I have the fullest possible confidence in the integrity of the First Presidency, the Bishopric, the Twelve and the Annual Conference. But I feel it is better to place things in a straightforward manner before you, so that all things may be prepared beforehand that no one become disheartened by disappointment.

Elder William Newton writes from Manchester, England:

Having been appointed at the last General Conference by your honorable body to labor as missionary in England, and having duly prepared myself for the undertaking, I left the dear ones and started on my journey May 31st, 1888, stopping with the London branch, Canada, laboring amongst the Saints and friends thereabouts to the best of my ability; after which I proceeded on my journey, arriving at Broadclist July 11th. I commenced to tell the people the story of the latter day gospel, and I can say truly that the Master has been with me and blessed my humble efforts, giving me all the liberty I could desire. I have kept no detailed account of the labors performed. It sufficieth me to say that I have spared neither means nor strength nor have I neglected any opportunity of presenting the gospel. My heart and soul have been in my labors and I still desire to spend my life, my all, in connection with this glorious cause. I have labored in the following places: Kansas City, Kansas; London, Canada; Broadclist, Tiverton, Lotnes, Plymouth, Stoke Canon, Bristol, London, Enfield, Ramsdean, Petersville, Hants, all in England. Also visited Bath once and Birmingham twice. I have visited and labored some in Machester, where I am am at present located. I have found the work in this latter place in good condition. Some of the other places mentioned require much labor, care and wise counsel. Since my appointment I have baptized forty-eight, solemnized one marriage and organized one branch. There are many investigating our claims consequent upon the truth I have made known to them, and I feel assured that if I could remain here I could, by the help of God, do a good work. But I am sorry to say that I shall have to return this spring for a time on account of my family; but do not wish to be idle. Therefore if you deem me worthy to labor in the vicinity of my home for a time I shall be pleased to do so. I expect to leave here in May next, and trust that the work in the English mission may be considered at the coming conference, for I believe the time has come when the Reorganized Church should be better known in this land, for there are many honest souls to be gather-

Elder R. M. Elvin, present, reports:

Immediately after the conference of 1888 I went to Nebraska and did gospel work at three different places. The latter part of May went to my field of labor, and for two months was actively and faithfully presenting the cause of the Reorganization in Utah and Idaho. There was an evident interest in our work at Samaria and Malad City. I shall make no attempt to report the condition of the work in that mission, expecting the president thereof to do so. While that field was not my choice, I was deeply pained at heart upon leaving it, and feel fully assured that while there I made friends to the cause. The latter part of July I received the painful intelligence from Pres. Blair of the dangerous illness of my wife and the nécessity of my presence. Spent about two months caring for the suffering, during which I preached nearly every Sabbath, attended and took part in the annual Reunion, preached at Nebraska City and Shenandoah on my way home. since the first of December been actively engaged in missionary work in Iowa and Nebraska. At the Jack Wood's Schoolhouse, Pleasanton, and Magnolia, good can be accomplished by wise and continuous labor. Also labored in Otoe, Gage, Cass and Saline counties, Nebraska. And I never saw the prospect for good to the cause so promising and inviting as at the During the conference year I present. have availed myself of every opportunity to present the gospel principles of life and salvation vouchsafed by the Almighty for the redemption of the human family. Have administered baptism to nineteen and confirmed, blessed children, administered to the sick. Be it recorded in praise of God, that in many cases, a fulfillment of the promise has been immediately obtained, health and cure displacing suffering. God has been kind in giving the grace of his Holy Spirit in declaring the word unto the people, as well as in studying the word of revelation, and such evidences that sustain the claims of the gospel restored. With this increase of the light and power of the Holy Spirit, I perceive there is a greater degree of tolerance upon the part of the people, and a willingness to hear an explanation of the gospel. Have written in defence of our work to considerable extent. My personal health has been usually good, for which I am thankful. The outlook of God's work and the manifestations of His loving kindness all inspire me with greater hope and confidence in the final triumph of the gospel over every opposition.

Elder J. Armstrong verites:

I do not report myself a conference appointee, but as an elder to labor as circumstances permit. My labors have been in Southern Nebraska district mostly, and some in the Northern Nebraska district by request of Bro. Caffall. I have labored as circumstances would permit and have been greatly blessed with the Spirit; never had better liberty in presenting the word. Have baptized five and administered to the sick often. Have preached five funeral discourses. In all have preached about fifty times and have assisted in official duties in my branch. I can farther state that I am prepared for missionary work and ready and willing to abide the direction of the conference.

Elder J. J. Cornish, present, reports:

My report this year is small compared with that of other years. I have had a lot of district work to do, which has hindered me from doing as much in new places as I would wish; but I assure you that I have not been idle, for there is no time to waste.

Since my report at the last conference I have baptized forty persons and have administered in the ordinances of the gospel whenever occasion demanded. I have held two discussions with ministers of other faiths, which have and will result in good for the cause in that part. Everything in the district seems to be encouraging; many are investigating and some are coming into the church. The local officers as well as the General Conference appointees are doing a good work. Bro. F. C. Smith is willing to enter the field if so appointed. He is a good, faithful brother and could do much good with but little expense to the church. Should you feel like keeping me in the ministry I will try to do all the good I can.

Elder E. Day Bennett, present, reports: I received a letter from Bro. Joseph Smith dated October 5th, 1888, giving me authority to proceed to Michigan and to labor enroute there. I left Dakota November 27th, visited the Saints at Sioux City, Iowa, spoke once to them, went to Dow City where I spoke three times from the pulpit in the Saints' Chapel. From there I went to the Little Sioux district conference held at Woodbine, Iowa, speaking there, after which made Lamoni a visit of four days, after which stopped one night at Galien, Michigan, arriving in Saginaw City December 21st. While at Lamoni I received a letter or certificate of appointment from the first Presidency for the field of Northern Michigan, I have labored in this district continuously since I arrived, except about two weeks which I spent in study. Have held about sixty-five meetings, baptized four, confirmed four, assisted in confirming two others, blessed two children, administered to the sick. Have been blessed in all my labor. I desire to continue in this great work.

Elder J. D. Bennett, present, reports:

I report a mission voluntarily taken with the consent and approval of the First Presidency and also without prospect or probability of any aid from the Bishop. I have been constantly in the field since Tune 1st, 1888, and have preached in Jewell county near Burr Oak, North Branch and Superior in Kansas; Guide Rock and Amboy, Webster county, Nebraska; and on Johnson's Creek, Pawnee, county, Nebraska; also in Clay, Republic, Washington, Marshall and Nemeha counties, Kansas. My labors in Washington, Marshall and Pawnee (Nebraska) counties were on entirely new grounds and much of it entirely among strangers. I found much prejudice at first in almost every instance and was twice locked out. Whereever I obtained a hearing I was well received. Two emissaries of Utah had passed before me and gave me no little trouble by passing along this route, preaching but once in a place, and when confronted with their true character denied not, but asserted that all so called Mormons believed the same doctrine, that Josephites being silent on polygamy and its concomitants for prudential reasons. I found here and there Saints that were all the name implies according to the test (Doc. and Cov., p. 224, par. 16) of the gospel rule. I traveled in my own conveyance. Have preached sixty-eight times, two funeral discourses, conducted one sacramental and two prayer services, and delivered one Fourth of July oration. Total seventy-four. Aided in organizing one branch. Ordained one priest, one teacher and one deacon. Cash receipts $13.80; traveling expenses $1.30, (including bridge fare; expended for wearing apparel $10.50. On hand $2.60, and have traveled twelve hundred and thirty miles. I have been an abstainer from tea, coffee and all intoxicants and tobacco for upwards of forty years and have but little use for flesh meat of any kind. I know the work is true. I love it, and feel well when in the field and shall be at the service of the church without expense to the church, just as soon as my wife can be provided for.

Elder Henry Grim, present, reports:

Having been appointed by the presidency and missionary in charge to labor in Northern Missiouri I would say that I have been constantly engaged in the field during the past year. In Sullivan county previous to my going there a year ago, the Reorganization had not been heard of; now there is a devoted band of Saints there who hold regular meetings and many others are interested in the faith. There are many calls for preaching in that region, and an active ministry ought to be maintained there if practicable. I have devoted myself to the work for life and am at the disposal of the body; but personally would prefer to labor in Texas on account of my health. It is requested that Bro. Duncan Campbell return there should it meet with your approval. I might say, however, that I would be glad to labor in that region with any capable elder during the early summer at least.

Elder J. H. Condit writes:

I have spent most all my time since February, 1888, in the Idaho mission. Have blessed four children, married one couple. Do not know how many times I have preached. Have administered to the sick and have been blessed both in preaching and administering. My labors in Idaho have been confined to Cassia, Ada and Washington counties. The result has been quite a loss to the Brighamite Church. There are some in all their wards who are posting themselves and fighting the Utah evils. I have tried to hurry none into the water, understanding that only the believers can be saved, and it seems to me that if his Satanic majesty ever owned a people or a country it is Utah and southern Idaho. But I know there are lots of good honest souls among them, and that God in his infinite mercy has called on his people to fish them out. Our loved brother, R. J. Anthony, was with us in this county quite a while last fall, and by his request I went with him to Utah, which did me lots of good, as he is an able counselor in regard to the things of the kingdom. God is certainly giving his elders favor in the eyes of the people in the western mission. Of course we are looked on first with suspicion, but that soon gives way to respect. But seed grows slowly in this country. You know it is very dry here and needs lots of water. While I have initiated none into the church, I feel that by the blessing of our God prejudice has been removed where there had never been any preaching done by our elders. Have opened the way for preaching in a good many new places. am willing to continue in this mission if thought best.

Elder J. H. Lawn writes:

Since my appointment I spent six weeks first in Monterey county in May and June, being asaisted by Brn. John C. Holmes and Jacob Smith of Long Valley, alternately, after which I spent my time at home till October fifth, when in company with Bro. Daniel Brown of Watsonville, I left my home, (Mulberry, San Benito county), and again visited most of the places where I had before been in Monterey county, and at this last visit I baptized five. We then came directly to this (Tulare) county; have done about all we could ever since we have been here. The good Lord has greatly blessed my feeble efforts and has added seventeen more to his kingdom in this county. Then to sum it up short, since my appointment I have preached eighty-four times, baptized twenty-two, confirmed seven of them, administered to several of the sick; sometimes with marked effect. Have blessed four children and married two couples. Our last conference wishes me continued in this district, which is also my desire if thought worthy and provision can be made for my family.

Elder W. S. Pender, present, reports:

In pursuance of labor assigned by your last session, on the 4th day of June I joined Elder M. T. Short in Wisconsin; since which time I have been engaged in the work continuously.

In Wisconsin I preached as follows: In Crawford, Sauk, Rock and Walworth counties, speaking eighty times. In Illinois: LaSalle, Will, Livinstone and De-Kalb counties, speaking forty-seven times. En route to General Conference preached once in Lucas, Iowa, making the total number of efforts one hundred and twenty-eight.

When called upon, administered to the sick, assisted in confirming, and baptized seven. I have been signally blessed in presenting to the people what I know is the truth. I am willing to labor on, if you shall so appoint.

Elder R. Etzenhouser, present, reports: I entered my field, the St. Louis district, June 15th, the earliest day possible.

Under instuctions of Bro. Gillen I spent nearly all the time in the city of St. Louis, visiting other points in the district as opportunity and the condition of my health would permit.

My labor has resulted in but eight baptisms. In St. Louis a number of members who had not attended services for years have become active and still others are being revived. A number of warm friends to the cause, and of good repute, are in attendance, and the situation is promising for the future. Though I would have been glad to have accomplished much more, I can say that I am content, having tried to perform my duty and be faithful. I am satisfied that but few, except those who have labored extensively in large cities, can justly estimate city work in many respects.

Both the city and district will require help from General Conference, otherwise defeat to the work is sure. With the necessary help from year to year for a time, the work can be maintained and developed. With Bro. Gillen as missionary in charge I have been entirely satisfied. Would go with him to any clime when expedient. In my ministrations I have been much blessed in many ways, and am willing still to labor in the work of God.

Elder Hiram Rathbun, present, reports: Having been appointed by the last General Conference as a missionary in the state of Michigan under Brother Columbus Scott, missionary in charge, I have endeavored to keep him advised of my labors and my whereabouts from time to time, as seemed necessary.

I have devoted my entire time during the year to the work of the ministry, and have endeavored as best I could, to maintain the honor and dignity of the same; not only in the pulpit before the public, but also by a holy life, and a godly conversation; that by so doing, under God I might win souls and establish myself in the confidence of the Saints as sustaining the work assigned me. How well I have succeeded is not for me to say.

I have tried to speak in a number of new places and have been, in each place, well received. I have not been able to fill all the calls I have received. I have in my possession at this time letters calling for help, unanswered.

The results of my labors for the year seem exceedingly small. I have baptized and confirmed only seven. However I have assisted in the confirmation of quite a number of others. Have administered to the sick between twenty and thirty times.

The mission doubtless needs more laborers, more workers for God. To this end I am praying and looking to the Lord of the harvest to send more laborers into the field. I still hope to reap if I faint not.

Elder E. L. Kelley, of the Bishopric, present, reports:

Since the Annual Meeting of 1888, my time has been employed generally with work in connection with the Bishopric. However, in the prosecution of this work many things arise in the fields where I have been at liberty to visit, requiring no little part of the time to be devoted to regular ministerial work. This I have tried to meet wherever I could; not to too much neglect the special duties assigned.

During the year, under the special instruction of the committee appointed by the last Annual Conference, the Presidency, Bishop and President of the Ohio mission, I procured and had placed in the Cincinnati Centennial what, under the circumstances was practicable, are presentation of the work of the church as a pioneer in the early settlement of Ohio, and that work as now carried forward by this Reorganization.

The officers in charge of the Exposition seemed at least to appreciate the showing made by the church, as they paid the expenses of transportation both to and from the Exposition. Also at the Columbus, Ohio, Centennial, the work was again represented by placing in the hands of the proper officers, the publications of the early society, and the Reorganization, and outsiders supplied a copy of the large bromide picture of the temple which the church had sent to Cincinnati.

From what I was able to gather when present at the Exposition, the work done by the committee did much good in fairly advertizing the church in its position on certain questions to those who before had no knowledge whatever of it.

In the districts where I have labored, I have met with universal aid and courtesy from the general and local ministry and Saints and have found only too much to be done in each and every one. It is greatly to be regretted that more laborers can not be sent to some of the fields.

Elder William. M. Gibson, writes:

I have been laboring in San Bernardino county, California, preaching in school-houses, and where I could not get preaching have distributed tracts.

I also attended to branch duties, administered to the sick, preached five funeral sermons and performed many other duties. I was also in San Diego county; spoke in five school-houses to good congregations, and got five names for baptism. I will go to San Diego county as often as I can, as I believe good can be done in that part of the country. I wish to labor where I can do the most good. I am at the disposal of Conference as you may be directed.

Elder H. C. Bronson, present, reports: I was appointed to labor the last year past in Southern Nebraska. I have filled that mission to the best of my ability, laboring at Wilbur, Palmyra, Wabash, Omaha, Nebraska City and Platte Valley. In Omaha I conducted a series of meetings in November and by the help of the local ministry I am sure good has been the result. I have filled other appointments at the same place, and can say the work in Omaha is in a flourishing condition. At Wilbur I conducted a discussion with, I think, good results and filled other appointments there. At Nebraska City I held a joint discussion which proved quite a help to the work there, as we were able to reach a great many people whom we could not otherwise have reached. I have haptized seven and attended to other duties pertaining to the ministry.

Elder C. E. Butterworth, present, reports:

Since last session of conference I have labored in the Galland's Grove district according to appointment. I have preached one hundred and fifty-five times, presided over or assisted in conducting forty-five other meetings, baptized twenty-three, confirmed or assisted in cofirming twenty-two, blessed or assisted in blessing twenty-seven children, administered to the sick and performed other duties devolving upon an elder, such as visiting and encouraging scattered members and also writing a good many letters for the same purpose. In my labors I have been greatly assisted by the Holy Spirit. I desire to continue to labor.

Elder John Hawley, present, reports:

The mission assigned me was the southwestern mission, under the direction of I. N. Roberts. My first work after leaving the spring conference at Independence was in Iowa, preaching until August 15th, and visiting Plum Hollow Camp Meeting. From there I went to the Nodaway district, Missouri, laboring in that district till September 17th, thence to Texas, stopping at Webb City, Missouri, a few days; and then down in the Indian Territory, pass-ing over the field I labored in last fall a year ago and preaching. I have baptized five, confirmed eight. I think the gospel should be preached to the Indians; but as they are a remnant of Judah I look for the greatest work of conversion of that people about, or a little before, the coming of Christ. My age and lameness prevent me from volunteering to take any mission from conference. I see plenty of work to be done in the district that I have moved into and shall labor all I can under the authority of the same.

Elder Andrew Barr writes:

I have labored in Northern Michigan, and have been much blessed in teaching the law of tithes and offerings, for which I feel thankful. Many of the Saints throughout this district are conforming to the law of tithes and offerings. The cause we love is onward and I feel much encouraged. I also have been called on to administer to the sick some fifty-four times, and our Father was pleased to give the desired blessing almost every time. To him be all the glory. I also blessed twenty children, ordained one deacon, married one couple and labored in several new places; which in the near future I believe will bring forth fruit. I am still at your disposal.

Elder J. R. Evans writes from Samaria, Idaho:

I left Cleveland, Iowa, my home, June 26th, 1888, for the Rocky Mountain mission; arriving at Brigham City June 29th. Did all I could in the interest of the cause while there, but being unable to secure a place to preach in, I left for the Malad district and labored there until called to Salt Lake City to look after the work there until the return of Bro. Anthony from the Since then I have travelled and preached continually. Was at Provo and Spanish Fork twice, and Salem once; at Union Fort twice; west Jordan and Murray in November, also in Salt Lake City. Since November 30th I have labored in the Malad district. The prospects are good in southern Idaho at present and the work ought to be vigorously prosecuted in this part. I think the time has come for the Reorganization to do all they can for the work here. The effects of the bad counsel given last fall by the Utah church authorities to its members prior to the election has plunged those who heeded it into worse difficulties than they were before. The tendency now is to infidelity with a large number of the people. Some have hope in the Reorganization. Bro. Anthony ought to be well supported in Utah and church government be better understood. I am at the disposal of the conference. I have baptized four.

Elder Thomas Wellington writes:

Since my appointment last spring I went to Illinois, and in company with Elder S. J. Salisbury commenced work. I spoke 35 times, and from there went to Missouri, spoke 40 times; thence to Iowa in company with Bro. Martin Turpen in different places. Spoke 49 times, making in all one hundred and twenty-four times and baptized 3.

Elder Fames Brown writes:

At the last General Conference I was appointed to the Pittsburg and Kirtland district. I can report improvement in zeal and conduct of the Saints in some localities, but the reverse in others. The openings for preaching are increasing, and it is hoped that there will be considerable of it done this coming season. The few who contribute of their means to the Bishop's agent do all that can be expected. Some fail to give at all, but are liberal otherwise, while some do nothing; some from inability, and some from non-disposition to give.

I have tried to labor in harmony with the authorities of the district and the president of the mission. In the world I could generally gain the ears of the people, and the general expression was that it is true if there is any truth in the Bible. On leaving I have been generally requested to return and preach to them. I was treated kindly by all and in every case kindly invited and urged to return. My faith is in the latter day work and I am willing to labor to build up the cause. Hope that I may be sustained in my present field. I have been blessed with the Spirit while proclaiming the gospel of Christ. Have also been blessed with good health. To God be all the glory.

Elder A. Haws, of California, writes:

Appointed to the Northern district of California, I commenced immediately and have labored all the time with the exception of a few days arranging for my mission. I have preached over one hundred times. I have traveled and preached in San Joaquin, Sacramento, Butte, San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa and Humboldt counties. Have been blessed with good liberty with few exceptions. A great amount of my labor has been from house to house, as the people would not come to hear; so I went to them as circumstances permitted. I have not baptized any as my health will not permit; especially when other able bodied elders are to be had. I have confirmed two, blessed one child, administered to the sick with satisfactory results with few exceptions. Have sold about forty dollars worth of books and publications for the Herald Office. I am ready to go wherever sent, but would prefer a mission with some able representative to the Sandwich Islands, on account of my health; because there are thousands of old Saints there. I can stay for a term of years as the church may direct and the Lord provide. I have written four long articles for the three principal papers of this county. These articles were in defence of our position. They have had good effect, as we have heard from them and felt the effects. My advice to all elders is to reach the secular papers as much as possible.

Elder F. M. Cooper writes.

During the past conference year I have been engaged to the best of my ability in the interests of the church, laboring in the field assigned me. My missionary work has been abridged by having local charge as president of the Northern Illinois district, the duties of which occupied most of my time and attention. While laboring in that sphere I have felt painfully sensitive of the delicate and complex character of the work believing that hasty and premature action means certain defeat of the ends aimed at; and that intelligent action, inspired by the spirit of the gospel, and a clear explanation and understanding of the law of God are essential to the permanent growth and normal life of the church. To say that I am satisfied with my own efforts, as a whole, would be untrue; but the duties hardest to perform, and most adverse to my personal choice, are those through which I have learned the most, and when I have felt the presence of Him who has promised to give us wisdom if we ask. The labors of the past year have deepened my love for the truth and for the people of God. The evidences of His providence and love mark the progress of the church, and bear witness of its ultimate triumph, if true unto itself and unto God. I would do violence to my own feelings if I did not say that the church is represented in the Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin district by a people who love the work, and whose upright love and loving faith bear witness of their fellowship with Christ. The complications of the past as active issues—at least have passed away, and so far as I know, peace prevails throughout the church, and we have just reasons for looking upon the future with hope and joy. I record with pleasure my associations with Brn. Short, Pender and Foss, whose labors in the district were not only timely but appreciated. I have not kept an itemized account of sermons preached or labor done, but I have been busy in thought and act, according to my limited ability. Five, I believe, were all I baptized. I care nothing for office or official dignity as applying to myself; but I love this work for the work's sake; for the good it is capable of doing, and for the characters and souls of humankind. God speed the gospel's glorious work!

Elder Samuel Brown writes:

Since last conference I have labored in the Canada mission under the direction of Bro. J. H. Lake. About April 25th I went to the London district; remained there till about the middle of November, during which time I visited most of the branches, setting before them the law of tithes and offerings. About six weeks of that time I was obliged to remain at home repairing and fixing my house, and doing work for others, by which means I was able to purchase a suit of clothes and sustain my family.

About November 15th, by request of the president of the mission, I came to the Kent and Elgin district. Have remained here till the present, doing what I could for the advancement of truth.

I have held 172 meetings, baptized 11, confirmed 7, blessed several children, administered to many sick with good results; also preached two funeral sermons, solemnized one marriage, and performed other duties which pertain to a traveling elder.

I have been greatly blessed by God's Spirit, and I find the revelation of 1887 to be of great help mentally and physically.

I desire to still labor on. The outlook for preaching in Canada is good.

Elder Levi Phelps writes:

I have labored in the following counties of Northern Michigan: Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola and Lapeer, to the best of my ability, and have been greatly blessed by the Spirit at many times. I have witnessed the power of God in a remakable degree in healing the sick. I have baptized twenty-six.

I am willing to continue in the field, and am at your disposal.

Elder E. Delong writes:

My labor has been in Northern Michigan, more especially in Bay City. I have baptized eighteen, assisted in organizing the Bay City branch, ordained two priests and one deacon. If it is your desire to place me in the field I am willing by the help of God to assist in rolling on this great latter day work.

Elder D. L Shinn writes from Clarksburg, West Virginia:

By an arrangement with the Bishop, I took the field about December 1st, and have given my whole time to the work. I have traveled principally in Ritchie and Calhoun counties. I have spoken fiftynine times including a discussion of eight sessions of two hours each with Elder Archibald, of the "Disciple" order, at the close of which the large audience voted unanimously in my favor, and thus truth was triumphant again.

I have blessed sixteen children in the rounds and administered to the sick in three cases.

I reorganized, or rather aided in completing an organization already commenced of the Fairview branch, Calhoun county. I baptized seven; one in Ritchie, and six in Calhoun counties. I am willing to continue traveling. I have reason to rejoice and be glad in the work, because the Lord has so abundantly blessed with spiritual strength and liberty in preaching. The prospects are good; prejudice is giving away; truth is taking root, and ere long will bear fruit.

Comminications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for Contributions solicited. their own views.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

THE condition of our finances is, I suppose, owing to a failure upon the part of some to do their duty; for it is reasonable to suppose that ample provisions are made in the law for all necessities. Is it to be supposed that this failure is altogether upon the part of those whose duty it is to give? May it not be possible that there is a non-performance of duty upon the part of those who receive, as well as the givers? and that the present condition of our treasury is a warning to the ministry to be more diligent? I notice that the blame seems to be laid at the doors of the givers, or those who it is supposed should give; all articles on this question being addressed to them, as though they alone

To some extent, they are; but it is seldom, if ever, that the few are at fault at d the pulpit free.

Let us look this matter fairly in the face, and when we ask more diligence of the laity be willing to render more ourselves, lest when the Lord speaks we may be reproved, and possibly be punished. It is a serious thing to use the Lord's money unlawfully.

I do not mean to cast discredit upon the Bishopric, by claiming unwise expenditures which they could have avoided, for a man acting under an appointment can remain at home idling away his time, if he is so disposed,—especially if he is one high in authority-and it is hard indeed for the financial authorities to prevent such. This is true of all officers of the church. She is obliged to trust her servants, which trust they can betray, but woe unto those who do so. For one I am determined to be more careful.

HIRAM L. HOLT.

ALILA, Cal., March 22d.

Conserence Minutes.

CENTRAL MISSOURI.

Conference met with the Alma branch, March 9th at ten a. m., J. B. Belcher president, M. A. Trotter secretary. Minutes of last conference were read and approved. Elders Reports: Ware, Belcher, Carter and Trotter. Priest: W. Nuccol. Teacher: R. Hockings. Deacon: T. Curfis. Branch reports: Alma 31, 1 died, 1 received. A motion prevailed that the president of the district be authorized and requested to assist the authorities of the differ-ent branches in the district to set them in order; and when no branch authorities are to be found in charge of the branches, the president of the district shall take charge of the same. A motion carried that the chair appoint a commit-tee of two to consider the advisability of holding a camp meeting in the district, the time and place to be considered in the report; committee to report at next conference. Brn. R. L. Ware and J. B. Belcher were appointed delegates to General Conference April 6th, 1889, at St. Joseph, Missouri. Bro. R. L. Ware was chosen president of the district for the next quarter and M. A. Trotter secretary. ence adjourned to meet with the Alma branch on Saturday before the second Sunday in June, 1889, at ten o'clock, a. m.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

Conference convened with the Deer Creek branch, Tulare county, March 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th, president J. B. Carmichael in the chair, J. A. Lawn secretary. An invitation was extended to all visiting members to take part in the conference. Elders reported: J. B. Carmichael, D. Brown, J. H. Lawn (baptized 20), E. S. Burton, H. Green, E. Holt and H. L. Holt. Priest, W. N. Dawson; Teacher, M. Clark; Deacon, A. Page. Bishop's agent's report: Received since last report $361.47, paid out $300.85, balance $60.62. Branch reports: Deer Creek 17; 9 baptized, 1 died. Jefferson 21; 1 baptized, 1 ordination. San Benito 32; no changes. Lone 18; 6 baptized, 1 received, 1 died. J. B. Carmichael and J. A. Lawn were selected president and secretary respectively, for the next six months, D. Brown assistant president. Resolutions were adopted asking the General Conference to appoint J. H. Lawn and E. S. Burton to labor in this district. Upon vote of the conference T. J. Lawn was ordained to the office of priest. Two were baptized during the conference by J. H. Lawn and confirmed by D. Brown, E. S. Burton and E. Holt. Preaching by E. S. Burton, H. L. Holt, J. H. Lawn and E. Holt. Adjourned to meet with the San Benito branch, at Mulberry, on the 4th, 5th and 6th of October.

ST. LOUIS.

District conference convened in the Saints' meeting house, No. 2518 Elliott Avenue, St. Louis, Mo, Saturday March 30th. On motion Elder R. Etzenhouser was chosen to preside, and John S. Parrish was chosen clerk. Cheltenham 28, 2 removed; St. Louis 188, no changes. The other branches in the district failed to report. Elders J. Whitehead, W. O. Thomas, W. Smith, John Beaird, W. H. Jemmett and R. Etzenhouser reported. On motion elders R. Etzenhouser, W. O. Thomas and J. W. Gillen were chosen delegates to the General Conference. months ending March 1st: balance due church Dec. 31st, 1888 $3345; received since $27450; total $307.95; paid out $15355; balance $154.40. Three auditors examined the above report and found it correct. These reports were also approved by the conference. Adjourned to meet at St. Louis, Mo., Saturday evening, July 6th at 7 o'clock for business, and on the following Sunday for worship. Preaching by elders James White-head and R. Etzenhouser.

FORSTER.

A conference of the above district convened at A conference of the above district convened at Forster, New South Wales, on Saturday, February 16th, Elders J. W. Wight and John Wright presiding, C. S. McLaren and R. McLaughlin secretaries. Minutes of previous conference read and approved. Branch reports: Wallsend 38; no change. Hamilton and Newcastle 16; I removal, 3 ordinations. Forster 56; 5 baptized, 1 died, 6 ordinations. Nambucca 42; 2 ordinations. 6 ordinations. Nambucca 42: 2 ordinations. Spiritual condition good generally. Officials present and reporting: Elders: J. W. Wight of the Seventy, (baptized 4). John Wright, Altred Loving. Priests: Laurity Anderson, Charles Avery, W. Ballard. Teachers: A. Mills, John Flood. Deacon: W. Taylor. Bishop's agent, (John Wright), acknowledged the receipt of his credentials from Bishop Blakeslee. and reported: Perceipts 5764 sod: paid out 5136 16s; balance Receipts £164 4s 9d; paid out £136 16s; balance in hand £27 8s 9d, which report was duly accept-The resignation (by letter) of George Ballard as president was accepted, and on motion Elder Alfred Loving was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. District officers A. Dickinson, assistant president, George Lewis and C. Mc-Laren, secretaries, were sustained. to an appeal by Bro. Wight to the ministry present, Bro. Loving proffered to devote three months of the year to the "field," after which it was resolved that the branch should duly request said brother to do so. Resolved that our next conference should convene in February, 1890, to be annual and during each successive February. During the session of conference Bro. J. W. Wight preached on three occasions, and Bro. Loving one, with much liberty. A young sister was baptized. A confirmation and fellowship meeting was held Sunday Afternoon. Adjourned to meet at call of president or missionary of district.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Conference convened at San Bernardino, March 15th. The president and secretary being absent Elder Heman C. Smith was elected to preside, S. Wright and E. J. French secretaries. The following branches reported: San Bernardino, Newport, Laguna and Los Angeles. Elders reporting: Joseph Smith, H. C. Smith, J. F. Burton, D. L. Harris, W. M. Gibson, E. J. French. Priests: A. E. Jones, W. Pickering, S. Wright, J. A. Anthony, C. S. Hendrickson, and Teacher J. Baldwin. 24 baptisms were reported. The Bishop's agent reported. The signification of the word jurisdiction in a resolution passed by last conference was, by Bro. Burton, stated in a resolution to be that the Sunday School Association was under the supervision of the officers of the church. The officers of the church, mission and district were sustained by the conference. Bro. H. C. Smith was voted as delegate to General Conference. The afternoon session was taken up by the Sunday School Association. A very The afternoon session was taken encouraging letter from Bro. W. W. Blair of past success and bright prospect for the future was read. Letters of condolence were authorized by conference to be written to the family of the late Bro. J. R. Badham; also to the Herald. It was voted by conference that the delegate to General Conference be authorized to vote as he saw fit. Adjourned to meet at San Bernardino, October 4th, at 10 a.m.

DECATUR.

Conference was held at Lamoni, Iowa, March 9th and 10th, 1889, H. A. Stebbins presiding, S. D. Shippy clerk. Branch reports: Lamoni 619; 7 baptized, 3 received, 2 removed, 4 died, 3 marriages. Davis City 82; 17 baptized. Greenville 39; 4 baptized. Pleasanton 114, 5 baptized, 7 removed, 2 died, 1 marriage. Lucas 200; 4 baptized. 3 died, 1 ordination, 1 marriage. Centerville 21; 3 baptized. Lone Rock 63; 3 baptized, 1 expelled. Allendale 62; 1 baptized, 4 received. Branch presidents reported. W. N. Abbott, Davis City; J. McDiffit, Greenville; W. Anderson, Pleasanon; A. S. Cochran, Lamoni; J. Johnson, Lone Rock; R. Archibald, Centerville; J. Watkins reported Lucas branch by letter. L. W. Powell spoke of the condition of the work there and J. W. Johnson stated how it was prospering at Allendale. Elders W. W. Blair, J. R. Lambert, Allendale. J. Landers, M. H. Forscutt, D. Campbell, M. M. Turpen, C. H. Jones, R. S. Salyards, O. B. Thomas, J. A. Snively, H. N. Snively, J. Johnston, J. W. Johnson, S. V. Bailey, T. Wellington, S. Ackerly, H. Bartlett, C. J. Anderson, O. J. Bailey, H. Church, E. Lovell, J. Boswell, and Priests Shippy, Powell, Lovell, Wahlstrom, T. W. Williams and Joseph Brown reported in person, and Elders Elvin, Morgan, Baggerly and Izatt by letter. The president appointed L. W. Powell, V. White and H. R. Harder as committee on report and books of Bishop's agent, D. Dancer. They subsequently resported as follows. Dancer. They subsequently resported as follows: Balance last report $1,134.79. collected in the district $1.490.65, received from Bishop $745.05, total $3.370.49. Paid the ministry $3,010.05, to the poor $153.88; balance $206.56. The committe appointed at last conference to consider the advisability of having a district Sunday School organization reported having decided in favor of having one, and that they were proceeding with the effort to organize, and were to meet again Monday morning; T.

W. Williams, M. Walker, H. Birchell committee. Concerning the camp meeting that is proposed to be held at Davis City the coming summer or fall it was resolved that Brn. H. A. Stebbins, W. Anderson and O. J. Bailey be a committee to carry out the designs, and that they be authorized to choose two others to assist The following were chosen as delegates to General Conference, and they were instructed to work and vote for the session of 1800 to be held at Lamoni: L. W. Powell, R. Johnston, M. M. Turpen, W. Anderson, W. Hudson. Alternates: C. H. Jones, J. Johnston, J. Hammer, T. W. Williams and R. Archibald. On Saturday W. Williams and R. Archibald. On Saturday evening there was preaching by H. R. Harder, assisted by J. W. Johnston; on Sunday morning by L. W. Powell, assisted by T. W. Williams; on Sunday evening by C. H. Jones, assisted by O. B. Thomas. The afternoon prayer meeting was a time of rejoicing in the Spirit of God. The president of the district had charge. Adjourned to meet at Allendale, Missourl, June 8th, 1889. 8th, 1889.

Miscellaneous.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana district conference will be held at Galien, Michigan, June 8th & 9th, 1889. The missionaries in the district, Wiliard Smith and Columbus and Leonard Scott will be there; also Bro. E. C. Briggs or Bro. Gomer T. Griffiths, perhaps both. We announce it early, so that each and all may be without excuse, but get a good ready and attend. The other missionaries in the state are specially invited to be present.

HIRAM RATHBUN, Dist. Pres.

MARRIED.

Moler.-Jeffers -- At the residence of the bride's parents near Vale's Mills, Vinton county, Ohio, on March 6th, 1889. Bro. Hyrum E. Moler, of Limerick, and Sister Myrta Jeffers. Elder Thomas Matthews officiating.

DIED.

HOPKINS .- Joseph Allen Hopkins was born near Washington Corners, Alameda county, California, August 22d, 1860, and was baptized and confirmed in that vicinity, June 25th, 1871, by Elder W. W. Blair. In the spring of 1872 he, with his parents located in the vicinity of Lamoni, and on the 4th of March, 1880. he was united in marriage with Miss Fannie L. Smith, who now, with their two children, survives him. In 1882 his health failed seriously, and in 1886 he, with his family, went to Oregon, hoping for its restoration, and recovered so far as to be able to engage in active business at Glendale.

Last November, for two nights he watched with and waited upon a sick man who, it was afterwards found, had the small-pox. Bro. Hopkins soon after was takan sick and had the symptoms of that disease, only that eruptions did not come out. The disease seemed to spread inwardly, and he rapidly failed and wasted, till death seemed near. His sufferings for near three months were great and constant. At length he was strongly impressed with faith that the Lord would bless him with divine aid if the elders would administer to him the ordinance of anointing with oil and laying on of hands with prayer. Bro. Henry C. Smith was called, and immediate relief came. In answer to the ministrations the pain left his head. The hopes and joys of returning health and vigor continued till the 24th of March when himself and family took train for Lamoni. On the way here, they were detained at Grand Island, Nebraska, for twelve hours. There he contracted a severe cold which laid the foundation for the sickness that terminated in his death at about nine o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, the 17th of April, 1889 Death came to him in the fondly loved home of his parents, surrounded by his constant, affectionate wife, his little children, his devoted brothers and kindred and numerous kind and cherished friends and neighbors. This his soul had prayerfully desired when far away on his sick bed in Oregon. Heaven favored him and granted this desire and prayer of himself and his family and friends. A few days after his return, when talking with his father, who was then at his becide waiting upon him, he said; 'My happiness is now complete!"

During his lifetime he suffered much through accidents which occurred to him, and at one time he was sorely afflicted with inflammatory rheu-matism, and was healed of it finally by the administration of the elders. He also was healed when crushed in the wheels of a Gang Plow. At these times he exhibited great faith and complete confidence in God.

He was of generous heart and kindly disposition, and made and retained many friends.

A large concourse of relatives and sympathizing friends and neighbors attended the funeral services at the Saints' Church, Friday, the 19th. He was buried in Rose Hill Cemetery. neral sermon was preached by Elder W. W. Blair, assisted by Elder J. W. Gillen.

LAMON.—At Frankford, Philadelphia, March 30th, 1889, Sr. Edith Lamon, widow of the late Elder Lamon, aged 81 years. She was buried April 3rd at Washington Square burying ground, Philadelphia. Sister and Elder Lamon were members of the old church for a number of years. Elder Lamon died out of the Reorganized church but Sr. Lamon was a strong adherent to it, and believed that Bro. Joseph was the successor to his father. She died in the faith of the gospel of Christ with a glorious hope of the resurrection and reign on the earth. Funeral services by the minister of the Church of the Beloved Apostles.

WEAVER .- At Kay's Creek, Utah, April 6th, 1889, our dear sister, and beloved wife of Bro. John Weaver, aged 67 years. She obeyed the gospel as taught by the Utah elders in her native land—England—in the year 1849. But after emigrating to Utah, the promised Zion, she met with the same disappointment that thousands have met with, but with a glad heart she, in 1871, (May 9th) heard and received the message of salvation as taught by the Reorganized church, receiving baptism at the hands of Elder E. C. Brand. Every elder that has traveled in this mission can testify of the goodness and faithfulness of this noble Saint. And the host of sympathizing friends that followed her to the silent city of the tombs is a witness of the high esteem in which she was held. She leaves a grief-stricken hus-band and several grown children to mourn the loss of a kind mother, a gentle wife and a noble Saint. May the great Physician pour in the healing oil! Funeral services by J. C. Clapp.

STREETER.-Of old age, near Magnolia, Harrison county, Iowa, February 22d, 1889, Sister Lucinda Streeter, aged 80 years and about 4 months; having outlived her husband, Caleb Streeter, one year, one month and one week. She was born October 16th, 1808. She had long been in the Church of Christ, having united with the old church in Vermont. She was truly a Saint, and died in full faith. She had been nearly blind for many years.

ly blind for many years.

Gone to that land where the Saints are at rest—
The next, better world, where assemble the blest;
To sing with the ransomed the heavenly hymns,
Where truth is triumphant and light never dims;
Where music that far beyond earthly compare
Rejoices the soul on its entrance there;
Where no strong delusion of devils or men
Can enter to tempt into pathways of sin;
Where the flowers that bloom and the zephyrs that blow
Are fairer and sweeter than mortals can know.
Her faith never faitered nor strayed from the light,
And firmly she stood by the truth and the right.

Chas. W. Lamb.

I hereby give notice that the

Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies

17 x 20, is now ready for sale.

I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2. All members of the Quorum represented in the medley can obtain a copy for $1.50.

R. BURDGE, Photographer, Appleton City, Mo.

I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art, containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a medley, handsomely arranged, all numbered with index below of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Pieture

E. C. BRAND.

PHARMACIST WANTED.	TRACTS.	BRADENKELLEY DEBATE.
	No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen 20	Cloth Boards, 396 pages
A young man who is registered in Iowa, and can give good references, &c. A member of the church preferred. Address F, M. W.ELD,	per hundred	,
Address F, M. WELD,	No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; dozen 05	Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of
26mar4t Lamoni, Iowa.	per hundred 40	divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to
SHAPE AND DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE P	No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the	the respect and belief of all Christian people?
Farm for Sale.	Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.	(2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden am
A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well	dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000.1 75	a member, the Church of Christ, and identical fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard	No. 5.—The Gospelprice the same as No. 4.	in faith, organization, ordinances, worship and bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new	No. 6.—The Gospelprice the same as No. 4.  No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Sub-	practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other	iosta Pro regrisitar and D	perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered,	jects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who	Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on	Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100. 1 75	Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and ac-
4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big	No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 05	cepted with Him?
bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the	per hundred 40	FORSCUTT—SHINN DISCUSSION.
county seat of Barton county.	No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; per doz. 25
EBENEZER MILLER, Senior, SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.	per hundred	Paper covers, 194 pages
SCAMMONVILLE, Unerokee county, Kansas.	No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Script-	J. Shinn affirms "The Bible teaches the com-
TIPE & DD ACKENDUDY	ural Standpoint; per doz. 30c., per 1002 25	ing of Christ to Judge the world is now past."
LUFF & BRACKENBURY,	! No. 10.—The Narrow Way: doz. 15c., 100, .1 10	M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible teaches the
	No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz 30	Literal Resurrection of the body from the grave."
REAL ESTATE AGENTS,	per hundred	VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE
West Lexington Street,	No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy	SEER.
West hearing for bucch	l per dozen 25c per hundred 1 65
INDEPENDENCE, - MISSOURI.	No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen. 25	Discoveries of Ancient American Records and
,	per hundred	Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew.
Next to Warnky's Gallery.	No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen 05	Paper covers, 43 pages
	per hundred 40	CONCORDANCE TO DOCTRINE AND
: A Family Newspaper :	No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001 40	COVENANTS.
THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT	No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-	An enlarged edition, 32 pages, paper covers. 10
Provides its readers weekly with	fig and Presidence of the Charlet de	· ·
56 COLUMNS	fice and Presidency of the Church; doz. 25	BRANCH RECORDS.
	per hundred	Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; print-
Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Per-	No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz. 15	ed headings, and ruled for Record of Names.
sonal departments, and aims to keep its readers thorough-	per hundred	Blessing of Children, and for Marriages 2 00
ly acquainted with the striking features of the world's	No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of	DISTRICT RECORDS.
progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.	Christ, under the Apostleship, and under
LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS,	the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 40	Printed and bound similar to Branc Rec-
25aug Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa.	No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen 03	ords
COLUMN CO	per hundred 15	LICENCES, NOTICES, &c.
AUTUMN LEAVES,	No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen 15	, ,
Published monthly for the	per hundred 10	Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Li-
	No. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 1001 25	censes, each per dozen 12
Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus	No. 24.—The Kingdom of God: doz.5c., 100 40	Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books 25
Christ of Latter Day Saints,	No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. 40	Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred 40
Price per year $1.50.	No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House:	CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.
M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.	per dozen 5c., per hundred 40
HI. Walker, Edition and Laminton.	No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz 25	Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen 40
DEED TO MILOTO TOOTIED AND MOD CALE	per hundred	Annual Statistical Reports, two for 05
PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE	No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from	Certificates of Baptism and Membership,
———) BY THE (———	the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 40	per dozen 12
Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church,	No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon	Certificates of Removal, per dozen 12
at their Publishing House in	per dozen 15c., per hundred1 10	Marriage Certificates, per dozen 25
LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,	No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Ortho-	SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.
	doxy? and an Evangelical Church? Al-
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.	so, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 4.	Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. 50
HOLY SCRIPTURES.	No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 40	Prompt Attendance Tickets, 100 for 15
	No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined	1,000 101 11 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10
(Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.)	per dozen 20c., per hundred1 25	Good Behavior TicketsSame price.
Sheep or Library binding 50	Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection	JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	5c. each, per dozen 50	HIS PROGENITORS.
New Testament, inspired	Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 15
BOOK OF MORMON.	An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.	Muslin boards, 312 pages
	COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.	Leather binding 100
Roan, sprinkled edges		HESPERIS.
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	Bound in Limp Cloth turned in 75
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.	COWDERY LETTERS.	Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges
Sprinkled sheep, or library 25	Containing valuable matter in relation to the	, 0
Imitation Morocco	Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and	VOICE OF WARNING
	Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the	And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine
SAINTS' HARP—HYMN BOOK.	Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.	and History of the latter day work.
Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges 25	In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen 75
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	Without covers 5c. each, per dozen 50	In paper covers; twelve for $1each 10
"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."		Limp cloth covers, each
	MISCELLANEOUS.	JOSEPH THE SEER:
In cloth 25cts., ten or more, each 20	The Problem of Human Life Here and Here-	His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the
In paper 15 cts., ten or more, each	after, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages 1 50	Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon
This is the notorious "Manuscript Found."	Universalism Against Itself; 336 pages 1 00	Defended and Maintained.
written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which	Josephus, complete, library leather 3 50	Paper covers, 200 pages so much has been said in connection with the	Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Em-	This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sid-	pire, cloth boards, 5 volumes	William Shaldon of the Second Advent Society
ney Rigdon the chief ground work and mate-	Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols4 00	William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society,
rial from which to write the Book of Mormon.	Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated) 1 80	and is an important work to be in the hands of
REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.	Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one4 00	the ministry of the church; and it is a most ex-
	The Koran, library leather	cellent one to be circulated both in the church
In paper 10 cts., per dozen	Gieselar's Écclesiastical History, from A.D.	and among those without, abounding in proofs
This is the "Reply of President Joseph Smith	1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols10 00	never before presented in defense of Joseph to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine	The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pam-	Smith and the Book of Mormon.
of Plural Marriage."	philus, Bishop of Cæsarea and Palestine .2 00	MISCELLANEOUS.
SABBATH SCHOOL BOOKS.	Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1 75	Tract 42.—Rejection of the Church, a dozen 15
	Bible Text Book	per hundred I IO
Compendium of Faith, for higher classes, bound in sprinkled Leather, each	Apocryphal New Testament 65	Tract 43.—One Wife, or Many, per dozen 25
The same bound in Cloth	Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size 85	per hundred 75
Question Book, for intermediate classes, each 25c.,	Elders' Diary, by Joseph Luff30	Old style Concordance of Doctrine and Cov-per dozen 2.50	mucis Daily, by Joseph Lum 30	enants

SAINTS'

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE. AND ONCUBINES

HE SHALL HAVE NORE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"We Believe that One Man should have One Wife, and One Woman but One Husband: Except in Case of Death, IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 830, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.—Whole No. 834.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 11, 1889

No. 19.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Beorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,
Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.
The Traveling Ministry, District and Brunch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express, Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Merald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 11, 1889

"COME UP HIGHER."

A BROTHER in writing to the HERALD states, among other excellent things, that he "has many things to learn."

Such is true of the wisest man living and of all of us. It suggests not only present but continual self-examination and that, too, not of a careless but of a rigid character, with a determination to be impartial with one's self, and a view to the elimination of all unrighteousness, selfishness, bad temper and habits, and self con-

When persons are satisfied with their present status of attainment, (which is one phase of being "at ease in Zion"), they are in a decidedly dangerous condition. Such a state is strongly suggestive of self-righteousness which not only exposes to the enemy's attack, but also grieves, repels and drives away, rather than invites, the presence of the Holy Spirit, so necessary to growth and development.

It is probable that every Saint is, and for a long time to come will be, far enough below "a perfect man;" "the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ;" "a lamb without spot and without blemish," to justify the folly and absurdity of discontinuing prayerful and earnest efforts to "rule" their spirits and "have salt" in themselves.

As we think of the purposes and objects of the work of Christ, we feel to urge upon all the workers, male and female, that they continually remember that the gospel is designed to bring humanity up to the standard of godliness as revealed in the life and character of Jesus Christ. Let us not forget that the best type and example of mankind is not our true ideal; that such at best is incomparably below Jesus Christ, the perfect and glorified One.

With the object of becoming like him we should not, in the remotest sense, hold any man's person in admiration. Nor should we flatter men or unduly praise their efforts. Men working for the good of humanity and the glory of God deserve a proper amount of encouragement when they have the hard, common sense to receive it simply as such; but the individual who labors for God and Christ will not seek, nor should he be given that which contains the least semblance of adulation. -"For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith."-Romans

"Watch and pray;" "take heed to yourselves;" "be ye perfect even as your Father in heaven is perfect," were the injunctions of the Great Teacher when personally present with his people.

Recognizing our comparatively slow progress, his loving kindness, while pointing to the teachings of his word, bids us through the voice of his Spirit to "Come up higher," and be daily more like him by being transformed into his image.

It is folly to deceive ourselves; we can not hide from God the intents and purposes of our hearts, because he searches them —his Spirit is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart; and the faithful and discerning of God's people will also be able to recognize hypocrisy, and deception, and improper motives, wherever exhibited.

We shall do well to rise above every ignoble, unworthy and unmanly act. If God is perfect he must despise meanness in every shape and form. Rugged honesty and genuine sincerity are what he calls for, and without them we shall notcan not-be accepted of him. His commendation of Nathaniel was that he was without guile,-there was no deception or sham in his character.

The observance of the golden rule and the additional command of Christ "Let your conversation be yea, yea, and nay, nay"—or in other words, Say just what you mean, and mean just what you saynothing more or less, are indispensable requisites to, and integral parts of, godliness and true manliness in character.-"For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth." -2d Cor. 10: 18.

PERSECUTION IN WALLACEBURG.

BRETHREN Leverton and Tyrrell who have of late been preaching in Wallaceburg. Ontario, are met by sectarian hate, and the villification of foul-mouthed bigots who pervert not only the intent, but the very language of the public records and published documents of the Reorganized church so as to make it appear that the church, its presiding officer and others, advocate and apologize for polygamy and its like! Such shameless audacity and foul dealing are enough to provoke bitter retaliation and kindle the fires of wrath. Base and false and vile, an outrage upon common decency and fair dealing, it is not surprising that our brethren reply to their enemies with strong, hot words, as well as with conclusive proofs and irrefutable arguments.

And yet, the only proper means to use on such an occasion is the "twoedged sword" of truth, wielded in the spirit of wisdom and love, thereby teaching and exemplifying the truth as it is in Christ and his work.

The excellency of the work committed to the Saints is never seen so clearly and felt so powerfully as when, assaulted by all the craft and cunning and bitterness of its enemies, the Saints-ministers and members-reply in the Spirit of the Master, rendering good for evil, refuting error with truth, blessing those who persecute, and in love seeking the good of those who would do harm. Under these conditions the moral superiority of Christ's truth and Christ's disciples is manifest with telling effect. Then it is that, amidst appaling midnight darkness, the beauty and worth of the "city set on a hill" is seen in the goodness and splendor of its gladening, saving light. Brethren, sisters, "let your light so shine before men that they, seeing your good works, may glorify your Father which is in heaven;" and bear in mind that the greater men's darkness, the more they need the light of Christ through you and in you.

INAUGURATION CENTENNIAL.

THE celebration of the inauguration of Washington April 30th, 1789, was a pleasant and instructive affair in Lamoni, and, all things considered, was generally attended from town and country. The speeches of Prof. Gunsolley, Rev. E. H. Gurley and Elders J. W. Gillen and H. A. Stebbins were well chosen and entertaining. The choir and band did well, and the school children's parade was excellent and cheering. The best of order prevailed.

The times when men were governed without their expressed consent, but at the will of dictators and despots and arrogant priests, were displayed in a manner to "stir a fever of indignation" in the souls of lovers of liberty and equal rights. The golden worth of those who saw and suffered the wrongs of official usurpation and tyranny until, impelled by a mighty, innate sense of inborn right they resisted the evil, and lifted government to its proper plane, was portrayed in patriotic words of cheer and promise. All felt proud of America and her heaven-born institutions, and the day and its exercises served to arouse and intensify the love of God and man and country in both old and young.

Parents, puplic spirited people, and those having in charge the education and training of the young, will find no better occasion than the one just past, with which to impress favorably and forcefully the rising generation with noble aspirations and worthy purposes. Men and women who have no heart and give no help in this direction are to be pitied—but not trusted—for they live far beneath the privileges and duties of patriotic citizens.

"Great God! we thank thee for this home,
This bounteous birthland of the free;
Where wanderers from afar may come,
And breathe the air of liberty!
"Still may her flowers spring,
Her harvests wave, her cities rise;
And yet, till time shall fold his wing,
Remain earth's loveliest Paradise."

THE CATTLE KING OF THE FUTURE.

"The 'cattle king' of the future will be found 'at home' on the ranch, in a commodious, comfortable house, surrounded by beautiful lawns, shrubs and flowers, and a thrifty orchard near by. His carriage horses will have a comfortable barn and there will be well built and commodious stables and sheds for the breeding stock. Also within reach will be fields in which will be found growing all the necessary fodder and other 'truck.' The pastures will be well fenced and the stock will be improved breeds."—Texas Live Stock Fournal.

Whoever considers how rapidly the available public lands of North America are being settled, can readily see that raising stock upon the western plains, after the manner of the past, must presently come to a halt, and that the manner indicated in the above clipping will take its place. The "ranges" on the plains are rapidly "giving out," for the reason that most of the feed obtained on them results from annual seeding, and that the excessive feeding so common of late years prevents such seeding.

The loss in this direction will be more than compensated by the better and more humane methods of rearing and feeding stock on farms where they can be watered and fed and housed in a kindly way.

"The merciful man is merciful to his beast," is sometimes quoted as scripture—which it is not in letter, yet is thoroughly so in sentiment—but the scriptures do say that "A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast," and this implies equally as much.

In the "Holy Scriptures," translated by Joseph Smith, the seer, we have these beautiful, humane sayings, in which man is held to be accountable for the manner in which he treats both man and beast:

"And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said unto them, Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth. And the fear of you, and the dread of you, shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea; into your hands are they delivered. Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you; even as the green herb have I given you all things, But, the blood of all flesh which I have given you for meat, shall be shed upon the ground, which taketh life thereof, and the blood ye shall not eat. And surely, blood shall not be shed, only for meat, to save your lives; and the blood of every beast will I require at your hands. And whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed; for man shall not shed the blood of man. For a commandment I give, that every man's brother shall preserve the life of man, for in mine own image have I made man."-Gen. 9: 8-13.

By this it is clearly seen that the Lord requires of man kind treatment toward all he is made steward over. Many times the sufferings of stock raised on the plains is simply barbarous for want of food, water, and shelter from bitter cold, driving winds, and extreme storms of snow and rain. It will be a better day for man and beast when the latter are wisely cared for on the farm. This done, the morals of man and the comfort of his stock will be largely increased, and the solid wealth and well being of the land be greatly enhanced.

Stock raising, wisely conducted, has ever been the safest, pleasantest part of human life, and usually yields ample returns; and so it is, that those who give to their stock the best treatment secure the best returns. Good treatment and kind dealing blesses both receiver and giver even toward the lower orders of creation.

AT the closing of the conference of the Mormon Church, George Q. Cannon read statistics of the church which has nine apostles, 75 patriarchs, 3,719 high priests, 11,805 elders, 2,065 priests, 2,282 teachers, 11,610 deacons, 81,889 famlies, 115.915 officers and members, and 49,902 children under eight years of age, a Mormon population, old and young, of 153,711. The number of marriages in the six months ended April 6th was 530; the number of births, 2,754.; new members baptized, 488; excommunications, 113.

In closing his address Cannon said that he was sorry to hear of young men going away from Utah to take up lands. The Saints had been called together here to build up Zion, and this scattering must be stopped.—Idaho World.

THE following clipping from a California paper reached us some time ago, but its publication was overlooked:

TERRIFIC HURRICANE.

AUCKLAND, April 4th.—The hurricane of March 15th swept the Tahiti Island with terrible, disastrous effects. The capital city was totally submerged. The loss of life is enormous. Thousands of natives were swept away and drowned. One hundred houses in Papeite were carried away, and the public buildings ruined. Devastation spread everywhere. Some people managed to reach the high lands and escaped the flood, but the number who perished is beyond present calculation. The crops are destroyed, and the people who escaped the flood are confronted by the danger of a famine. Great havec on Tonga Island is reported, and thirty lives have been lost.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

In this issue will be found a letter from "Herald Reader" in which he takes to task the Juvenile Instructor, edited by George Q. Canuon, and exposes what appears to be a pitiful fraud or an inexcusable oversight on the part of the publishers of that paper. Charity requires that we think it the latter, though "it looks very like a whale!"

President Joseph Smith wrote us from San Bernardino, California, the 18th ult. He is doing well, moving forward in the Master's work, and will soon visit localities farther north and east.

Mr. Louis Leist writes from Morris, Grundy county, Illinois, that he has been blessed in the investigation of the faith of the Latter Day Saints, and rejoices in the light it has brought to him. He is fifteen miles from the branch at Braidwood, Illinois, and desires the address of the president of that branch that he may arrange for baptism.

Bro. W. W. Hodge of Beaver Falls, Pa., writes as follows: "I was requested to send word to the HERALD for the Saints to pray for Sr. May's daughter who is afflicted."

"Joseph the Seer." We regret the delay in publishing the revised and enlarged edition of this work. Many have already ordered it, and we can only say to them and others that it will be forthcoming as soon as can be, and when published due notice will be given.

Brn. M. H. Bond, F. M. Sheehy and H. O. Smith, after spending a few days in Lamoni, have gone on to their respective fields of labor. May heaven prosper them greatly.

Sisters Betsey Pierce and Adelia M. Clark, mother and daughter, of Rehoboth, Mass., the former aged eighty-five years, send funds for the missionary field. Sr. Clark askes prayers in behalf of her aged mother who has been confined to her bed since September 1st, 1886. They have manifested their faith and interest in the cause by their works. We trust the request will not escape attention.

Sr. Minnie Lemon, now of Bennett, Nebraska, desires us to announce her change of address, having lately removed to that place from Sioux City, Iowa.

Sr. Mrs. Ella Myers of Fairbury, Nebraska, writes, making mention of a scurrilous reference to the faith in a public lecture in the M. E. Church at that place. There was no opportunity to correct the statements made, but she feels impressed that such will be brought about in its proper time.

Pres. Joseph Smith wrote from San Bernardino, April 23d, as follows: "I now think of going to Santa Ana next week for a few days; thence to Los Angeles, San Francisco and Utah. Have not heard from the 'tent' yet. Suppose it is going at Santa Ana this week."

Six have been baptized of late at Lucas, Iowa, by Bro. Lorenzo Powell, and the branch at that place is prosperous.

Sr. N. V. Pearson writes from Haman, Gonzales county, Texas, that some of the Christians (Disciples) with their minister desire Elder J. A. Currie, Jr. to go and preach to them. They promise him their meeting house and a home as long as he will remain. Sr. Pearson desires Elder Currie to write her concerning the matter and she will then arrange it in detail.

The following from a card dated Otsego, Michigan, April 10th will be of interest to those whose orders for "Seventh Day Adventism Renounced" have not yet been filled. We expect to supply all orders later on: "Your order for books will have to wait until my husband gets home.

* * * Mr. C. will return in three or four weeks and attend to his book business.
Mrs. D. M. Canright."

A Mr. W. E. Rush, of New Freeport, Greene county, Pennsylvania, sends for church publications, and he desires the names and addresses of some of the active elders in that region. Brethren Griffliths and Briggs can aommunicate with him.

Bro. N. A. Boyd of Hill City, Kansas, states in a late letter that he desires an elder to go and preach there. One is ready for baptism and others would doubtless obey, as many are anxious to hear the word.

Bro. D. M. Rudd thus writes from Auburn, Iowa, the 30th ult.: "Have been doing what I could since appointment by conference. Baptized two last Saturday at this place."

"One Wife, or Many," our new 16 page tract, is now ready to mail. Price 25 cents per dozen, or $1.75 per hundred. Every body should have it. Send in your orders at once.

Bro. G. A. Blakeslee of Galien, Michigan, writes under date of the 1st inst. that the elders resident at and passing through Galien have been doing a good work there of late. Eight have been baptized and the interest is increasing.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Leave God to order all thy ways, And hope in him what e'er betide; Thou'lt find him in the evil days An all-sufficient strenth and guide; Who trusts in God's unchanging love Builds on a rock that nanght can move."

ONE AND ONE ARE MORE THAN TWO.

Even in cold, hard mathematics, a unit gives or gains added power beyond its intrinsic value by its position with reference to another unit. One and one put together become not two but eleven. And if it be the fact that in the realm of this exact science a unit tenfolds the value of another unit, and adds its own value to it besides, simply by its juxtaposition with that other unit, who will question that, in the sphere of being and doing, one person and one person brought into right relations to each other are more by far than two persons; or that their aggregate power is more than doubled?

"Two are better than one," says the Preacher; and then he gives us a reason for this gain: "For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falleth, and hath not another to lift him up." There certainly can be no question that one live man and another live man are worth at least eleven times the practical value of one dead man. And it is obvious that the life of either of two men may depend on the helping hand of another man in the hour of peculiar need. Moreover, while they live, and are not in special danger, two men may gain tenfold power from one another by means of the sympathy and counsel and life quickening assistance which they render each to the other. "Iron sharpeneth iron; so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend," says the Wise Man. An iron instrument sharpened is fully ten times as effective for its instrumental purposes as it could be with a dulled edge; and since no iron instrument can sharpen itself all by itself, one iron instrument and another iron instrument, sharpening one another by their clashing and mutual rubbings, ten fold each other's value through being together. And as it is with iron and iron, so it is with friend and friend.

It is hard to stand all by one's self, battling a host without a human fellow to speak a word of stimulus or cheer. Not every man is capable of being an Athanasius, to go against the whole world when the whole world goes against God. But when one true man finds another true man by his side, the two may be a host in themselves; they may, in fact, be all the world to each other. Each is no longer one, nor are the two merely two. Each is more than one, and the two are many times more than two. This thought it is that gives point to the inspired suggestion, that in the Lord's service, in battling with the world, "one" believer shall "chase a thousand, and two" shall "put ten thousand to flight;" two having tenfold the power of one.

This truth is not a mere sentiment; it has a practical basis in the necessities of the case. No man can be at his own best, all by himself. He needs the stimulus and cheer of another to bring his own best into action. His powers can be at their full only in and through their expression, and they can have expression only when expression to another is called for. Take, for example, a physician, with the case of a very sick patient to tax his sense of responsibility. He is doing as well as he knows how, when the friends of the patient desire him to call in another physician in consultation. At once a new pressure is brought to bear upon him. He must be ready to state the case of his patient to his brother practitioner, with a sense of professional responsibility in that statement. His powers of observation are quicked accordingly. He scrutinizes the case with keener perceptions than before. He is more of a physician, through this added pressure, than would be possible without such pressure. The one is already more than one. A similar process goes on in the mind of the practitioner called in from without. His powers also are aroused by the appeal to his professional skill, and to his professional responsibility. He is more of a physician for this case, under this peculiar pressure, than he could be for the same case if it were left to him alone. Then the two, who are already more than two, test each other, and examine their common charge together. Every effort that either makes to state the facts as he sees them, or to formulate his opinion as that opinion must be formulated, enlarges his capabilities as a physician in charge of the case. Meanwhile each fresh suggestion made by either is a quickener to the thought of the other. There is no longer one standpoint of observation for both, but there are two standpoints of observation for each. Either becomes more than twice the man he was before, and the two together are more than twice two. Where either might have failed by himself, the two may prove a success. And as it is with the physician, so it is with the lawyer; so, indeed, it is with every thinker or doer in his realm of though or of action: one may be many times more than two.

No man can study to so good advantage all by himself, as with the help of another. In elementary branches, a man studies best with the help of a teacher; but if it be that he is above needing a teacher's help, he still has need of a fellow student or of a pupil. He needs another to whom he can express himself, in order to secure the gain of expression. By himself he can never be more than a unit. With another, he and his fellow can be more than two units. This it is that makes the best Sunday-school teachers value most the Sunday-school teachers'-meeting; and that makes those who attend the teachers' meeting the best teachers; for one and one are more than two—in a teacher's meeting as elsewhere.

Independence of character, and independence of thought, and independence of action, are admirable and praiseworthy attainments; but no man can be independent without another man to help him. It takes at least two to enable one to be independent. A man can shut himself up within himself all by himself; but in order to express himself, he must have some one to express himself to; and unless a man gives expression to himself, one part of his nature, and the most important part at that, is not brought into play. There must be both centrifugal and centripetal forces at work to enable an orb to keep moving on in its own circuit, in the mental or in the moral, as well as in the natural world; and only as a man opens himself outward toward an object of attraction, while still holding himself in toward his own truest inner self, can he be his best self, or be himself at his best. Thus it is that, in order for a man to be more than one, he must have another one with whom he stands in such relations that one and one are as eleven, rather than as two.

And so we find that we are dependent on others to enable us to be ourselves, and that others are dependent on us in order to be themselves. Others need us, and we need others. Each one of us is only one, but one and one in right relations make ten and one; each one being, in that association, tenfolded without the loss of its unit power. Here, as elsewhere, out-giving is intaking; and he who is one with another is more than one in himself.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sr. Ada Brooks, Juniata, Michigan, writes:—"I know not how to properly express my thankfulness to God for the light of the gospel. I am young in the work, having been in the church about eighteen months; but I earnestly desire to do all in my power to forward it. Of a large family, I am the only one yet in the "Ark of safety." I have three children, and earnestly desire grace to do all things right with reference to them.

We have a branch of about forty members in this place, and a Prayer Union of five members. I earnestly desire the prayers of the Saints."

Sr. Lizzie Wight, North Forster, Australia, writes:—"I am young, but I feel desirous to improve upon the talent that I have, in order that more may be given, and I be of use to my fellow beings. It rejoices my heart to see such an interest manifested in the work of God as the news in our papers indicate.

How satisfying to a mother it must be to see her children growing into noble manhood or womanhood! It is religion which makes men and women. I ask myself the true meaning of the term "Saint." What does it imply? More, I fear, than some of us are aware of.

The life of a Saint should indeed be one of purity and love in order that those by whom we are surrounded may see by our walk and conversation that we are trying to serve God and trying to live as becometh Saints.

When we see so many falling short of the blessings of God, we feel to take them by the hand and lead them; but how few will heed the call! The pleasures of this world seem to have all attraction for them, and they have no time for anything else. We have known mothers who have considered it a trouble to instruct their little ones in the things pertaining to the kingdom of God. If they could realize the trouble they were bringing on themselves and their children by so doing, they would willingly take time to teach them.

Things learned in childhood are never forgotten, and though they may grow up and seemingly become careless, still the early training remains. Some were asking a while ago in the Column, "If boys needed as much training as girls?" To our mind one needs as much as the other. Their temptations are perhaps of a different nature, still they all need training, and that thoroughly.

Being with children a few years has taught me that they have strange ways and dispositions, therefore one needs to be careful in teaching them. I hope that all mothers will see the necessity of looking to their little ones; and that God will bless them in their efforts to do good is the prayer of your sister in Christ,"

Sr. Emma Payne, Kanona, Kansas, writes:—
"When I am weary, and when I feel tried and tempted, I often receive comfort and gain strength by reading the Home Column. I have three little girls and one little boy given into my care, and realize that some time I have to give an account for the way in which I have trained their young minds. It is my earnest desire that as they grow up they will love and serve God.
Though sometimes hindered, I am trying to keep the hour of prayer with the sisters of the Prayer Union."

"Bind together your spare hours by the cord of some definite purpose, and you know not how much you may accomplish. Gather up the fragments of your time, that nothing may be lost."

"There can be no peace in human life without the contempt of all events. He who troubles his head with drawing room consequences from mere contingencies will never be at rest." BATTLES OF THE HEART.

Tell me not with hesitation
That the bravest battles fought
Were the battles of our nation—
Battles of our beroes wrought.

They were battles of another— Fought without a fall or dart; Battles of each noble mother— Fought within the troubled heart.

Battles, not of wicked violence— Fought in fields of gory red; Battles sought in sorrow, silence, Conquered aye, when life had fied.

Yea! the spot I long have cherished, Is this battle-field of old, Where the bravest warriors perished, And the cause was never told.

-The Curren

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

PARTICIAL DESCRIPTION OF THE PARTICIAL DESCRI
Sr. B. A. Gipson, Macon City, Mo$1 oc
Sr. Kate Cunningham, Osawatamie, Kan 50
Sr. Julia A. Smith, Port Sanilac, Mich 1 25
Sr. John Thronton, Leverton, Mo
Sr. M. A. Farley, Wisner, Neb 25
A Brother, Dow City, Iowa 50
Sr. Maria Lovell, Davis City, Iowa 50
Sr. S. R. Barnes, Hunter, O 40
Sr. Adelia Clark & Mother, Rehoboth, Mass. 2 7
Sr. H. O. Fogg, Plano, Ill
Sr. Christina Johnson, Plano, Ill 55
Sr. Susie Mader, Lamoni, Iowa
Sr. Minnie Mader, Lamoni, Iowa
Sr. Sarah Hedrick, Pixley, Cal 50
Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa.
Lamoni, Iowa, May 3rd.

Correspondence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 24th. Bro. Blair: We are beginning to make a little show in our city for the good labor of past years. Our spiritual condition is improving, we are having our numbers increased, and we hope good working material is being added to the church. Our meetings are quite well attended and a good spirit prevails. I had the pleasure of baptizing one man on March 24th, another on April 21st and to-day I added five more to the church by baptism-Mr. and Mrs. John E. White, formerly members of the Utah church, and Mr. G. J. Waller, of Oakland, also a daughter of Sr. Jane Knight. This gives us seven baptized within a month. The last five were confirmed to-day by the help of H. P. Brown and C. A. Parkin.

My mother is now lying at the point of death. She has been unconscious for forty-eight hours. She has lived, and will die, strong in the faith.

GEO. S. LINCOLN.

Lansing, Mich., April 19th.

Bro. Blair:—The next day after conference closed I went from St. Joseph to Kansas City, Kansas, and stayed there until the 17th inst. Preached twice while there; heard Brn. Williard Smith and J. J. Cornish once each, and Bro. Cornish was to preach the evening that Br. Smith and myself came away. While in Kansas City I stopped with Brn. Stratton, (the priest of the branch), and Milotte, (a teacher.) I formed a very agreeable acquaintance with many of the brethren and sisters. I administered to three sick persons while there, and on the whole had a most excellent visit there.

I arrived home on the evening of the 18th and found my family usually well and cheerful.

Yours in the truth, HIRAM RATHBUN.

SACRAMENTO, April 15th.

W. W. Blair:-I will have to leave the field for a time which I regret very much. The Lord is working among the people, preparing their minds and hearts to receive the gospel. The harvest is great but the laborers are few. I hope to be able to return in three or four months to the field again. I am receiving letters to come back again; that the people want me to return. I received a letter from Modoc county, California, stating that Br. Pack, a layman of our church had been preaching to the people at that place, and that there was fourteen converted and anxiously waiting an elder to come and baptize them. Bro. J. R. Cook, of Sacramento, started yesterday to baptize them, and to labor in that county. There was a slanderous article published in a paper of that place and republished in the Sacramento Bee, which I am glad to hear is false. Bro. Pack never claimed to be an elder, or anything but a member. He has been preaching the gospel to the people, warning them, and God has worked with him to the converting of fourteen souls. May God bless him, and may he continue to spread the glad tidings of great joy. Paul may plant and Apollos water, but it is God that gives the increase. I shall be at Grizzly Flat, ElDorado county, California, for a whilethat will be my address. Any one wishing to correspond with me will please take notice.

ELDER THOMAS DALEY,
President of Northern District of California.

Boston, Mass., April 26th.

Bro. Blair:-I left Nova Scotia last Monday. arriving here on Wednesday and met with the Saints at their prayer meeting. The presence of the Spirit made it pleasant and encouraging. Of my labors with Bro. Parsons during the past year, I can truly say we have done the best we could. What the future will develop for the Saints there depends upon their faith and works. The prospects are not flattering, but I am sure that God will look after his children. Expect to go to Dennisport next week and labor till the district conference the 11th and 12th of May, and then go on to my present field of labor if my wife's health will permit. Expect to stop at different points by the way. My address will be Independence, Missouri, till further notice.

As ever in gospel bonds,

H. H. Robinson.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., March 25.

Bro. Blair: -- Yesterday I had the pleasure of leading two noble souls into the waters of baptism. Bro. A. B. Sly, an aged man who has been fighting the church for twenty years, was one of them. He states that in all those years he has never prospered in anything to which he put his hands, and fully realized that he was fighting against God. He now dons the gospel sword to fight for the truth. May light and prosperity attend his future, driving out the adversities of the past. The other is a young man, Br. James Mc-Comas, who belonged to the Catholic church, never hearing the gospel until coming to Independence. He has been working with me for the past six months, during which time I succeeded in thorougly arousing him to a conception of the dangerous ground occupied by the "old mother," and pointed him to the better light, which he readily saw, accepted, and now rejoices in the marvelous truth of the latter days. He will be heard of in the future.

The church here is in splendid condition, and many of the world are becoming interested in the sledge hammer sermons of Bro. Luff. Prejudice and ignorance concerning Mormons is fast fading away, and as our large and beautiful church edifice nears completion, people are realizing the fact that we are here to stay.

Yours in hope,

T. W. CHATBURN.

DAWSON, Iowa, April 23d.

Dear Herald: -I once more forward my mite that you may still continue your weekly visits to our little hamlet, for many times feeling somewhat downcast with my small trials, I see in your columns how some brother or sister have been succored by your wise and timely admonitions. My wife dreamed that she was attending a Methodist meeting in this place, (which we sometimes did, until by their persistent persecution of the Saints in lying and falsifying in many ways, in spite of the reasoning of Brn. Brand, Thompson, Bozarth and Shimmel,) she dreamed they had been slandering the Saints, and that she came out feeling downcast, and that she started home alone, and by the side of the road there was a bunch of four or five roots sprouting up, and every one that passed by would kick them. But she saw our Savior digging and fixing round the roots, and he said unto her, "See, after all their kicking, those roots are yet solid; they can not hurt them."

Dear saints, we are on a solid foundation, and after all the opposition we have to meet we will come off more than conqueror through Him who said, "He who heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them, I will liken him to a wise man, who built his house upon a rock."

I remain yours,

Wm. Johnson.

Magnolia, Iowa, April 25th.

Dear Herald:—Your pages are perused with eagerness to learn how the old ship Zion prospers, and how goes the times with all her passengers. If all receive the enjoyment and satisfaction in so doing that I do, your mission is a soul-cheering one. None who peruse your pages but have some spiritual acquaintance with some one who has taken passage on Zion's ship, and of whom they would desire to hear, and to hear that with them all is well. It gives enjoyment, and while this is the case there are none on board but what some others would enjoy hearing how goes the hour with them, and often peruse your pages in vain for weeks and sometimes months with no tidings.

How often I have been caused rejoicing when my eye would catch the name of some one of Zion's children who had become especially endeared to me through some spiritual experience with them, and how eagerly has my eye passed from word to word to learn it all was well. It is encouraging to read of one of the Saints, known in the body or not, who has passed through some tempestuous gale unharmed, and spiritually benefitted. Thus are you the harbinger of good to the people of God.

My voyage on the sea of life has been quiet. The vision of the land at which we shall find a peaceful anchorage grows brighter, and at times I seem to see the grandeur of the scenery of Beulah land, as if by mirage, appearing above the horizon of my natural sight. I am satisfied with the voyage appointed to be made by God's people. I am satisfied with the ship to carry us safely, and with the crew with which the ship is manned. I am satisfied with the labor assigned me in assisting to make the trip to the promised haven of safety; also that the experiences through which I have passed while on this voyage has or will all result for good, and I desire to continue on until I have done my work to assist Zion on her way. When I am called to cease labor, I hope I shall be satisfied to commit my station to another, and rest with the Captain-Christ Jesus. I am not satisfied that I have done as much as others, neither am I satisfied that I shall ever be able to. I am not satisfied that I shall be able to complete the voyage safely, as some severe gale through which the ship may have to pass may cause me to jump overboard, and be drowned in my former sins; but my faith is fixed, and by the grace of God I hope to stem the tide and "anchor bye and bye." I am not satisfied to sit down and see others doing the work assigned me and I be idle; to permit one error seen by me to pass unreproved or unrebuked. I am not satisfied to see man-made organizations attached to the church, and espoused by any of the household of faith as of primal importance, and they devote more time and attention to them than the direct commands of God, or the order of the church; I am not satisfied that one can be idle in the church in respect to the duties assigned them of God and be safe, and I am not satisfied with anything less than the gospel of Jesus Christ, so far as I understand it, and hope I shall never be satisfied unless I am doing the will of Heaven.

The faith of the Saints here is firm so far as faith in the first principles of the gospel is concerned, and I know of none but whom God has satisfied that this is his work. But many are not contending for that faith once delivered to the Saints by which God was with them in mighty power as described in Hebrews 11th chapter. It seems that many are satisfied with the past evidences of the work of God, and are willing to trust the present and future on past evidences without seeking for and having ever present with them that abiding witness, for when this is with them it is shown by an active and ever existent manifestation of faith by work, by which their faith is made alive unto God.

We are much in need of the prayers of the righteous, that we may be delivered from the present gloomy prospects and from a lack of present spiritual power to lead souls to Christ by which the present barriers may be removed, some of which are known and many no doubt unseen; that the known ones may be dealt with as the law of God directs, and the unseen removed or brought to light so they can be dealt with and thus removed.

I know of none but what would desire to be saved, but some do not realize the need of keeping in the straight and narrow way which leadeth unto life, and feel as though the yoke was galling when their attention is called to the straightness of the way as revealed to God's people in all ages; but what rejoicing when once seen, how necessary to bear the cross and endure the shame, when feeling the evidences of God's satisfaction with them.

I still desire to labor and pray for Zion, for only when doing this do I have perfect peace. I beg an interest in the prayers of the righteous that I may be able to finish the work God has given me to do, and be blessed with them when I step upon the shores of eternity in singing the song of the redeemed forever more.

Your well wisher,

J. F. MINTUN.

ALPENA, Mich., April 24th.

Brn. Smith and Blair:-I look forward from week to week for the regular visits of the Herald. O, how I love to read the letters of dear brethren and sisters of like faith. I rejoice when I read cheering news of elders having been blessed with sheaves as a reward for their labor. I also feel sad when I read of valiant laborers having to remain from the field on account of lack of means. May God open up a way (which I feel he will) for the future promotion of his cause. With sadness and also with joy I read of the departure of valiant soldiers of the cross-with sadness on account of the bereavement of those who are dear to us; with joy in knowing that they have fought the good fight of faith and entered into the paradise of God.

I wish to add my testimony to this gospel which I have for over four years embraced. I tried for fourteen years the faith and opinions of various churches, but during the four years of my embracing the Latter Day Saints doctrine I have obtained more truths without husks or chaff than during my previous lifetime.

Your brother,

ISRAEL P. TITUS.

EUREKA, Cal., March 30th.

Editors Herald: -Since the 25th of December there have been eleven persons baptized into this branch-nine adults and two children. These additions are the result of the labors of Bros. Hawes and Daley, mostly, together with the assistance of Br. Robinson and the writer. Included in the number mentioned above, are Bro. and Sr. Corthell and their only son, Earle, twenty years of age, who came to this place from the State of Illinois, formerly from Maine about a year ago. Some two months ago Earle, by accident, made the acquaintance of our son Milton and they soon became much attached to each other. About two weeks later he learned that Milton was a member of the Latter Day Saints. Earle and his mother were members of the Presbyterian church. As soon as he learned what Milton's belief was, he quietly and sorrowfully wended his way home, and with saddened countenance and voice said: "Mother, can you believe it, that young friend of mine tells me that he is a Mormon?" It seems, however, that he was given sufficient strength to withstand the shock, and he immediately commenced an investigation of our claims, and only a few days elapsed, when he asked his mothers's consent to his joining the church. After expressing her surprise at his request, she refused to grant it.

Bro. Corthell had a private talk with Bro. Haws, and afterward attended a few of our meetings and stated that his views were in harmony with ours, and that he received the same witness of the Spirit as in 1842.

Sister Corthell says that ever since she became acquainted with her husband he has been regarded as a skeptic or infidel, for the reason that he had held himself aloof from all religious bodies;

but sister Corthell, although a Presbyterian, says she has often remarked, "I wish I was as good a christian as my husband."

A few days after Earle failed to get his mother's consent, and Bro. Corthell came to my house and had a talk with Br. Haws, and then went home and informed his wife that he himself was a "Mormon," having united with the church in 1842. Well, perhaps you can imagine her surprise. But, she says, that after a few moment's reflection the Spirit bore witness to her of the truth of the work, and immediately her sorrow was turned into joy, and she began to praise God. The next day the father, mother and son were all buried with Christ in baptism, and the following day I heard her say, under the influence of the Spirit, "I now know that I am in the kingdom of God." She says she never had such peace and joy in all her life before. We have lately received the divine approval of our acceptance with the Master by the cutpouring of the Holy Spirit in several of our meetings. There are several others, apparently, near the water.

Bro. Haws has succeeded in getting the doctrines and positions of the church concerning polygamy, etc., before the world through four of the leading papers of this county. These papers appear to be quite liberal. Elders in other fields might do more through the press, but possibly they are doing all they can through this medium.

Yours for the cause,

WALTER BOHALL.

LOOKOUT, Cal.,

I am still strong in the faith. I think there is a good opening here. Bro. Pack and I have been holding meetings every Sabbath since Christmas, and we have a good congregation. We have about twelve ready for baptism, and are awaiting for an elder to come and finish our work. We have more calls than we can fill. Hoping that we will have help soon, we close, trusting in God. Yours in Christ,

Louis Turnbull.

LAMONI, Iowa, April 24th.

Editors Herald:—The last issue of the Juvenile Instructor, dated April 15th, 1889, published at Salt Lake City, Utah; and, according to its own statement, "designed expressly for the education and elevation of the young," lately reached me.

On page 182 is a wood cut denominated "A Hindoo God," and on the following page a descriptive article concerning said image in which the following passage occurs: "It is a god of the heathens who live in southern Asia—an immense image of stone which millions of human beings have worshiped and do adore even in this day. This immense figure was carved with the utmost skill of the benighted people who pay respect to it, and cost an incalculable amount of means and a great period of time to construct. * * But even these poor Hindoos will yet receive gospel favors," etc.

As I looked at the engraving of the idol my heart was touched; not exactly with awe and reverence, but with a sense of the ludicrous, and afterwards with indignation; for in it I recognized an old book acquaintance. The cut referred to is nothing more or less than a duplicate of an idol taken from the frontispiece of "Travels in Central America, Chiapas and Yucatan, vol. 1, by J. L. Stephens." A close comparison shows it to be a well executed copy of said engraving, a description of which is given on page 136 of the work referred to, as a statue found in the ruins of the city of Copan, in the state of Honduras, Central America.

But the Juvenile Instructor palms it off as a "Hindoo Idol," and states that it is worshiped by millions of people at the present time; and the additional statement is made that these poor Hindoos will yet receive gospel favors.

We have just this to say: If such methods are resorted to and designed to expressly educate and elevate the young in Utah, the young people there will receive anything but benefit from such misrepresentations, and the heathen, should they hear of it, will likely exclaim, "From such favors, and violations of the Bible commandment 'Thou shalt not bear false witness,'—Good Lord deliver us."

DERBY, Ind., April 8th.

Dear Herald:-I write you concerning the work that is done in southern Indiana. The discussion is closed between Mr. Terry, of the Christian church, and Br. V. D. Baggerly. I had the pleasure of acting as one of the moderators in the discussion. I heard all the arguments produced on both sides, and I think we lost nothing. The Saints and most of the world's people think we have victory on the side of the saints. Bro. Baggerly thinks the powers of darkness are giving way in this district. Since the district conference we all have had good liberty in preaching the word- The time was divided at nights. I used their church, and their preacher did so once. Left them in a friendly and christian manner, and I think made many warm friends in the Christian church, also in the world. The saints are greatly encouraged. May God bless this grand latter day work, is my prayer.

I am, yours in love of truth,

LEONARD F. DANIEL.

Edmonds, Kansas, April 24th.

Br. Blair: On the 13th of March I left my home to fill some appointments in the district, and attend the Northwest Kansas district conference, also the annual conference. Arriving at Gaylord, appointed a meeting, and preached Saturday night to a good congregation. On Sunday it rained all day and our meeting was hindered. but the people were made glad indeed because of the long needed rain. On Monday I went to Osborn and continued until the 25th, preached and baptized two precious souls, thence to my old home at Blue Rapids, where I met with Brn. Beebe and E. C. Brand, and I spent a few of the happiest days of my life in preaching the word and administering the ordinances of God's house. Not the least of our joy was to have Bro. and Sr. John Landers again to share in the blessing of the Lord in our conference.

This was a time long to be remembered by many. Seven precious souls were baptized into Christ, and more will be ere long if those in charge of this branch will only follow up the work with diligence.

I continued in Blue Rapids, laboring in company with Bro. C. Duncan until April 5th, when I went on to the annual conference where I spent one week, returning from St. Joe on the 14th to Osborn City I preached three times, baptized one, married one couple, and then went to Bro. Coops, near Downs, and preached three times, where I found Br. and Sr. Landers visiting their grandson, Wm. Landers, and enjoying good health. From here I went to Gaylord, where I met with a good number of friends and preached three times. I am in hopes to revive some of the saints, and baptize some others who are believing, though the enemy is doing all he can against us through the other denominations to keep people away from our meetings. O, when will the saints learn to avoid the vanity and folly of sectarian mock-resurrections, grab bags, post offices, neck-tie parties, &c., which are gotten up only to fleece the flock. Many of the saints are not able to buy the church books, take the Herald, or provide a place for the elders to preach in, but they can always find time and money to go to funmaking, fun-seeing and worldly entertainments. O, that God would give us wisdom! He will if we contend for it by forsaking our follies.

I have opened a new place for preaching here, by the request of a brother, T. Greer, and others, with very good prospects. Expect to continue over Sunday, then return home where I want to stay and preach for ten days. I will then be ready to go where I am the most needed. My address will be Kanona, Decatur Co., Kansas. I shall be happy to hear from all parties in regard to the work in Northwest Kansas; especially from the elders. Tithing may be sent to me by postoffice order on Norcatur P. O., which is the nearest order office to me.

GEORGE W. CHUTE.

XENIA, Illinois, April 29th.

Bro. Blair:—I have just returned from Macoupin county where I have been attending a discussion between Bro. Hilliard and one Mr. Laman, a Christian (?) minister. The proposition was: "Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God, and the Book of Mormon of divine origin." The discussion lasted four days. Bro. Hilliard brought up the prophecies of Joseph Smith, and the work he did in the restoration of the gospel, the organization of the church, and the teaching of the original gospel as evidences of the first part of the proposition. The latter part he proved by the prophecies of the Bible, scientific discoveries, and the blessing of God upon the Jews and their land.

The evidences were barely touched by the negative. He disposed of the prophecy on the rebelion by saying that any one could have prophesied of it, and by trying to make it appear that Joseph went to Washington and there tried to keep his own prophecy from coming true. He objected to the doctrine Joseph taught being used as evidence, and intimated that he would appeal to the moderators to have it ruled out, that it was entirely foreign to the subject.

He disposed of all the prophecies relating to the coming forth of the Book of Mormon at one sweep by saying: "They have no more reference to that than an old wagon has to a state house." He tried to gain sympathy by claiming that Wesley, Calvin, Luther and Campbell only claimed to be reformers trying to get the people back to the gospel, while Joseph Smith claimed to restore the gospel. But when Bro. H. turned to page 7 of their "Christian System" and showed that Campbell claimed to restore the gospel, Mr. Laman came up with the plea that Mr. Campbell "meant" so and so!

Is'nt it a pity that the reformers, and even Christ and the apostles, didn't have some of the wiseacres of the nineteenth century to tell them just what they "meant" at the time they were speaking and writing?

Whether Mr. Laman is a descendant of Laman the son of Lehi or not, I shall not say; but I feel sure that he is of the same spirit, and has as little regard for the truth. His mind, however, was not as fruitful as Braden's, for he had only two of the manuscript found, and the one from which the Book of Mormon was taken stolen in 1822 or 1823, by Rigdon. This of course left him in bad plight when Bro. H. brought in the one we have and it testified to by his own witnesses as the writings of Spaulding, and then showed from one of Braden's witnesses, George Clark, that the one at his father's in 1834 was the one like the Book of Mormon according to the statement of Mrs. Davidson, and hence could not have been stolen in 1822 or 1823.

Yes, they need at least three or four manuscripts to make the story hold together at all.

Yours for truth,

ISAAC M. SMITH.

FLUSHING, N. Y., April 19th.

Br. Blair: I left my home and family in San Benito, California, March 27th, and started on a visit to my native land, Nova Scotia, which I have not seen for twenty five years next November. Left the Oakland pier March 29th, at half past nine in the evening, by the Sante Fe route, arriving in New York city April 5th, at half past ten in the evening. I saw many strange and wonderful sights, both of nature and art. Among the former, the celebrated Niagara Falls; the latter, the Niagara bridge. The morning of the 6th I came to Flushing and found my dear friend of youthful days, who is afflicted by deafness; a Methodist who lived her religion as she understood it. But in the last few years she has read some of our publications, also Autumn Leaves, thereby getting an understanding of the restored gospel. And last Sunday we went to Brooklyn, (also her husband's sister.) We were met at the train by Elder George Potts, who conducted us to the home of Bro. and Sr. Squires, where we were indeed made welcome by those most noble saints.

A goodly number of those "of like precious faith" were there, and we spent a short but profitable season in singing, prayer and exhortation; and then my very soul was made to rejoice when my friend, for whom I have prayed many years, was buried with Christ in baptism; also a boy, a son of Br. and Sr. Moore, by Elder G. Potts, in a font in Bro. Squires' yard. After dinner we repaired to "their own hired hall" to attend their usual two o'clock prayer and testimony meeting, and confirmed the newly baptized into the church of Jesus Christ. My sister, although she heard not a word, with closed eyes saw a light shining when they were confirming her, and afterward by her request she was administered to, that she might regain her hearing. There was no promise, but a strong belief that she will be blessed. Her strong desire is to hear them pray. I can testify that the same Spirit that met with us in my California home was here on this side of the continent to bless and encourage us. Yes, it has the same ring, the same pure gold, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." In a few days I bid farewell to the saints here, and go to see my relatives, but not saints; and how will they receive me? I expect my feelings will be wounded many times, but my daily prayer is that my heavenly Father will give me strength, patience and wisdom to live my religion, and that I may be instrumental in removing some prejudice; for I believe there are honest hearts among them. My address will be Amherst, Cumberland County, Nova Scotia. Yours in gospel bonds, Mrs. Albert Page.

KILMANAGH, Mich., Apr. 22d.

Dear Herald:—The work is still moving on in Bay Port, and round about. I baptized one more on the fourteenth.

I am still preaching and letting the light shine to the world wherever there is an opportunity afforded. The most of the Saints are rejoicing in this great latter day work, and are running manfully the race set before them.

F. C. SMITH.

Official.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

(Concluded.)

Elder U. W. Greene writes:

During the past year I have labored at Plainville, Attleboro and Boston, in Massachusetts; Jonesport, Jonesboro, Mason's Bay, Kennebec, Addison, Indian River, Hancock, Lamoine, West Ellsworth, Surrey, Sedgwick, Brooksville, Bray's Mts., Stinson's Neck, Green's Landing, Tenant's Harbor, Martinsville, Clark's Isle, Long Cove, New Harbor and Pemiquict Harbor, in Maine. Have baptized seven, assisted in confirming several others, solemnized one marriage, blessed a number of children, administered to the sick when called upon, and preached when practicable.

Maine presents a large and promising field, with openings on every hand where some desire to hear the word of life. More laborers should be in this state, which would result in many accepting the work.

Have been blessed with a good degree of the Spirit the past year. I am willing to labor in any capacity if the conference decides to appoint me.

Elder 7. A. McIntosh writes:

Since last conference I have preached 166 times, baptized 15, confirmed 26, ordained 3, blessed 20, administered to 39. Have held 4 sacramental meetings, 18 prayer meetings, made I new opening, held 5 business meetings and 2 debates. Have preached at Irondale, Monmouth, Cameron, Garafraxa, Masonville, Amaranth, Riverview, Egremont, Proton, St. Mary's, Chatham, London, Louisville, St. Thomas, Zone, Blenheim and Pardoes.

Elder Leonard Scott writes:

I heve endeavored to honor the appointment given, since July 12th 1888. The time intervening was occupied in the Michigan and Indiana mission, because of an understanding that provisions of such nature were included in the appointment to Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. I have occupied new ground about one-third of the time in said mission. Have labored to the best of my ability to uphold the principles of the great latter day work. Have been marvelously blessed in the public administration of God's word. Have engaged in one discussion in Allegheny City with Rev. Russell (Millennial Dawnist) on the Spirit Conscious question. Baptized seven, and administered to sick ones with good results. My health is poorly just now. If worthy to be continued, would prefer Southern Michigan and Indiana.

Elder S. Maloney writes:

I have labored to the best of my ability among the Cherokee and Shawnee Indians. I have had regular appointments the past summer and winter. Traveled with my team and wagon over two thousand miles, going back and forth to fill appointments at different points from sixteen to seventy miles apart. I can, and am glad to say, that in performing my duty the Spririt of the Lord has been my help and instructor. I have met with considerable opposition, not from the citizens of the Territory, but from non-citizens called preachers. Wherever we have been we have made friends for the cause of our Master, removed the bitter prejudice that exists on account of Utahism, distributed all the tracts sent me from the office, also many copies Voice of Warning, and other books, Autumn Leaves and Hopes, at our own expense.

This is a very peculiar mission, a peculiar people, and an extensive field. There is a great work to be done, and the Spirit of the Lord is doing it, preparing the minds of the people; for once in private converation with a full-blood who could not talk, the Spirit rested upon me in power so he understood and was glad of what I told him. They are slow to understand, only in private talk; slow to act, but firm when convinced, and honorable in all their transactions.

There are many believing, and six told me they were ready for the water when the weather moderated. I baptized two. I expect to do what I can for the Master the coming year.

Elder J. S. Goodrich writes:

Having been appointed at last Conference to a mission in Kentucky, and having entered the field on the first of June following, I was called home by the sickness of my wife, after four week's labor in the field. Said sickness continued for such a period (and for two months her life was despaired of,) that I was unable to return until last February, when I wrote Bro. Blakeslee about it, as I had no means to travel without aid. His reply was that probably, on account of the low condition of the treasury, and the near approach of General Confernce, I had better remain until that time, and leave the matter with them. I therefore make the following report: No. of sermons preached 26, administered to the sick, baptized 1. I have also preached about seven times near home and at Limerick Ohio.

I would like to continue in the Kentucky mission or in North West Ohio. I believe that North East Kentucky is a good field, having opened up five places for preaching in the month I spent there, with good interest, and calls for preaching in every direction. I have received three letters since leaving there, reminding me of my promise to return or send an elder there.

Elder E. Curtis writes:

Immediately after conference I commenced labor in the Independence district, and in June I traded my property for a farm in Cass county, Missouri, and moved my family on it. Here I found a few members who had been baptized by Bro. H. H. Robinson and left isolated from any branch. I have labored to the best of my ability. I held one discussion at Virgil City, Vernon county, with Elder Smith, of the Christian Church. It lasted five nights. The Lord greatly blessed me.

The work in this district is prospering On the 15th of February I was called home, my barn and seven head of mules and horses having been burned. I lost about $1,000. This was a severe trial to me, but I set about at once and bought seven head more and started out again. I have made arrangements with my boys, turning the farm over to them for a term of seven years, so I could be loose for the ministry.

I have preached one hundred and seventy-eight times, baptized twenty-six, confirmed fifteen, ordained two elders, and blessed eleven children. I feel well in the work, and still desire to continue in the field

Elder G. E. Deuel writes:

I have preached over a hundred times, baptized two and confirmed them, blessed three children administered to the sick a number of times, and the Lord blessed and healed them. Have traveled by rail 875 miles, by wagon 680, and on foot 420 miles, paid car-fare, hall rent, posters, board and buggy, $23.75. By cash from all sources $4.75.

Elder V. D. Baggerly writes:

I have labored in Jefferson, Harrison, Crawford, Perry, Dubois and Floyd counties; baptized and confirmed 15, solemnized 3 marriages, blessed 12 children, administered to the sick, etc., and held one joint-meeting with a Christian minister. I rejoice in the work and can truly say that God has abundantly blessed me in my labor. I have spoke about two hundred times. The work is decidedly onward here, but we have every kind of opposition to encounter. Am willing to labor in this district or elsewhere.

Elder J. A. Wedlock writes:

Since I received an appointment I have preached in Crawford, Cherokee, Plymouth, Buena Vista, Palo Alto and Pocahontas counties. Have not preached all the time, but have done what I could. There is a large field in the northern part of our district, and Saints are scattered all over the country that have not had church privileges, and who want their neighbors to hear. That is where I have labored. I have not been in branches at all, as Bro.

Whiting wanted me to travel and preach where not much had been done. It has been a happy year for me. The Lord has wonderfully blessed me in presenting His truth. I am at the disposal of the conference and should like to be continued in the same field.

Elder James Thomas writes:

Since last report I have labored in the ministry continually to the best of my ability in the Nodaway district. There have been some baptized and the work is in a fair condition. Some local labor has been done by the following Elders: Ole Madison, W. Woodbead, W. Powell, Joseph Flory and R. K. Ross in their several localities with good effect. The outlook in our district appears to be good. I hope to continue in the field.

Elder Thomas Whiting writes:

Since last General Conference I have labored as follows: In the state of Maine at Surry, Orland, Winterport, Sedgewick, Green's Landing, East Blue Hill; meeting success, opposition, etc., but with encouraging prospects all along the line. this I returned to the Massachusetts district where I labored until the latter part of October, visiting and preaching at Boston, Brockton, Providence, Fall River, Douglas, Attleboro, Plymouth, Dennisport, East Dennis, New Bedford, Little Compton; preaching 100 times. Have baptized two. About the last of October through a misunderstanding and serious sickness in my family I returned from the field, since which time I have visited and preached occasionally as best I could. am ready to take the field again if it should please you to so appoint.

Elder J. A. Currie, Fr., writes:

I have preached but eighty-two times since last conference, and have held two discussions; spoke twelve times in first, sixteen times in second. Since my appointment last August to labor under our beloved brother I. N. Roberts, I have been greatly blessed. Many dark clouds often gather in my pathway now, but all works for the best bye and bye. Have been in the field continually since last August, also acting as district president since June last. Have performed such labor as pertains to an Elder's office. Baptized eighteen and have enjoyed the gift of the Spirit to guide, cheer and strengthen.

We have some good local help now—Brn. L. L. Wight, T. J. Sheppard, J. P. Neal, R. Currey, A. Kuykendall, Andrew Kuykendall and Father and Bro. Crofield Jackson. Zion's cause moves forward.

Mr. Zadock Brooks is opposing us now at Stockdale. He has held debates with our elders at DeKalb, Illinois, and other places several years ago. He denies ever belonging to the church of Latter Day Saints, and also denies writing the "Introductory" to one edition of the Book of Mormon. (He says his name is Brooks.) We discuss in July. I have reviewed his arguments as far as he has gone and God's Spirit was with me; think much good was done. Bro. L. L. Wight released me, by being called over Medins City branch, of that responsibility, and I hope God will call some one to take charge of the district soon; nevertheless His will be done.

Father and I are now in Gonzales county about one hundred and ten miles from Bandera, trying to open up the work; the furthest I've been. I try to labor as systematically and substantially as I can. Brethren, I have much to learn; feel weak, but God is blessing my labors and I am ready at the call to go anywhere the church says, or stay at home. "Any little corner, Lord." But I hope you will continue my appointment to labor some place.

Elder F. W. Fohnson, writes:

I have preached in the Decatur district as my circumstances would permit since the first of November, 1888. Have opened up the work near Redding, Ringgold county, Iowa. Have preached fourteen times there and I consider that a good work can be done there. Will continue to preach there and elsewhere as best I can by your permission. I pray God to bless all his Elders and the work that is entrusted to their care, My health is poor and I wish the prayers of the Saints in my behalf. Have blessed two children.

Elder E. E. Wheeler, present, reports: I arrived in southeastern Dakota early in Tune: did not reach Minnesota at all. The field given me was so large and new that I thought it best to confine my labors to as narrow limits as possible. Found the field almost entirely a new one. In a few places a little labor has been done. but no continuous effort has ever been put forth, unless it was at Richland in Union county. Bro. Wight did some good work at Springfield but was not there very long. Have done nearly all my labor in Mc Cook, Hutchinson and Bon Homme counties, with a little additional work in Miner and Charles Mix counties. Have great hopes of the permanent success of the work at points in McCook, Miner and Bon Homme counties. Have preached ninetv times and have been blessed with the Spirit of the Master to a good degree. Have done considerable visiting among the people of the world and scattered a great many tracts which were furnished me by the church. Held one discussion of eight sessions and God was with me in power; good must surely be the result. Have performed general duties. My field is not a good one for a young man to make rapid improvement in, still if it is the will of the Father that I should go there next year am willing to go. I hope another elder will be sent with me, then it will not be so hard. Am more and more confirmed in the truth of the latter day work and hope to continue faithful. Am desirous of improving and advancing in the work and thus make myself a useful instrument in God's hands for the upbuilding of His cause.

Elder J. McKiernan, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have labored diligently in the mission with the exception of two months—September and October. I have held meetings at Bevier, Hannibal, Bucklin, Renick, Elliott, Huntsville and Salt River branch in Missouri, holding meetings at each place as long as the interest or circumstances would justify; baptized one. I have labored at various times at Jeff Davis school house and Rock Creek in Illinois; at Burlington, Montrose, Keokuk, Sand Prairie, Allen school house, Croton and Farmington, Iowa. I have performed two marriages, conducted six funeral services and otherwise administered in gospel oadinances as occasion required.

Elder A. J. Cato writes:

I have labored to the best of my ability to get the doctrine of the Reorganized Church before the people of Arkansasthe mission in which I was assigned. I have preached in five counties in Arkansas, viz., Sevier, Howard, Pike, Craighead and Benton, and left a host of friends; many of them being favorable. Some expressed themselves as being satisfied, but wanted to wait awhile before obeying. The work in the counties named above ought to be looked after and continued; also in Johnson and Faulkner counties. I feel justified in saying that the church will lose nothing, and many souls will be added to the church by a vigorous prosecution of the work in that field. Some things have been done which in a measure militated against the work in some localities, but not to any considerable extent. I am willing to continue in the present field, or do anything else that you may think best for the cause of Christ.

Elder E. C. Briggs, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Since last conference I have labored in the field assigned me to the best of my ability.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

"THE ONE BAPTISM" AND THE "DOCTRINE OF BAPTISMS."

Is there but "one baptism" and at the same time more than one? How can Paul in Ephesians 4:5 be harmonized with Paul in Hebrews 6:2?

Easily, for the truth is stated in both cases; there is but one baptism, but it requires two separate and distinct actions to constitute the one baptism. It requires the use or employment of two elements to constitute the "one baptism," namely, water and the Spirit. Baptism, ie the "one baptism" is very properly, very aptly illustrated by the Savior in John 3:3-8 as a birth, a new birth. The child in natural birth is born of or through the agency and operation of the blood and of the air, typifying the water and the Spirit. tells us of an inward and an outward man. yet the inward man or the spirit man, and the outward or body man; or the spiritual man and the physical man are not two men, but both make one man. In the spiritual birth, or the new birth, the water baptism or birth, precedes the birth of the spirit, as the birth of blood precedes that of the air. It would be just as unnatural or contrary to law for a person to be born of the Spirit before being born of the water as it would be for a child to be born of the air before it had been born of the blood. The same God who gave or established the natural law or the law of nature in the physical birth, also created and established the spiritual law in the new or spiritual birth, and the order of that law is, the water first and the Spirit next, or afterward. The Son of God, the author of the law (under the Father) became subject to its operations, as far as the order is concerned; for he was first baptized in the water, and with the Spirit afterward; and it was not until the order was fully observed and demonstrated that the recognition and approval of the act of the Son by the Father were given. (See Matt. 2: 13-17.) John taught that order when he said concerning his work and that of Christ: "I indeed have baptized you with water; but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost." Jesus endorsed that statement Tesus endorsed that statement and said: "John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence." Peter taught the order of heaven on the day of Pentecost, putting the baptism of water before that of the Spirit as was proper. Paul taught the same order by first baptizing the Ephesians and laying on his hands for the gift of the Holy Spirit; so did Peter and John in regard to those who had been baptized by Philip. Paul puts the case to Titus thus: "The washing of regeneration and the renewing of the Holy Ghost." So we find John the Baptist, Jesus the Christ, Peter, John and Paul, chief among the apostles of Christ, teaching in harmony the "one baptism," ie of "water and the Spirit." That these are distinct baptisms is seen from the remarks of Paul to the Galatians and to the Corinthians. To the former he writes: "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." To the latter church he writes: "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body." That is, baptized into the head of the church by water and into the church by the Holy Spirit. This idea or truth is taught very clearly in John 3:5, for as "the kingdom of God" is unquestionably the Church of Christ, it is here positively declared that "Except a man be born of water, and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God." This is equivalent to saying that a man is not in the church until he is baptized of the Holy That is to say, that a man is not baptized into the church by the baptism of water only, but by water and the Spirit. A man might not receive the laying on of hands for days and even weeks after being baptized with or in water, as in the case of a priest baptizing where there was no elder at hand, and as in the case of those whom Philip had baptized. And as until the laying on of hands is performed the baptism of the Holy Spirit does not follow; and as by the Spirit we are baptized into the church, so I hold that a person is not in the church until he or she receives the Holy Spirit, whether that be one hour or a week or a month or a year after he or she has been baptized in water.

Such a person has not experienced the "one baptism," and has not been "born again." And this is particularly true of those who deny the baptism of the Holy Spirit, or the operations, manifestations and gifts of the Holy Ghost, except as revealed in and through the written word. Not being born of the Spirit, not baptized by the Spirit, they are not in the kingdom of God, they are not in, and of course not members of, much less officers of, the Church of Christ. And of course the church to which they belong, or which they form the various parts of, is not and can not be the kingdom of God, or the "one body," or Church of Christ. may say that they have received the Spirit through the word or the "words of the Spirit." But this will not do for two good reasons. First, As they have received the Spirit in this way before baptism in water; that is contrary to the order of heaven. Second, The word of the Spirit, ie. the gospel, is not the birth but the "seed" by which we are begotten. No one was ever born who was not first begotten. Conception first and birth afterward. "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth," said Tames.

But suppose we allow the claim of another class, those who say they have been born of the Spirit, but it was before they were baptized, either with or in water. They say that the church is the the sheepfold, and that baptism is the door into the fold. But by claiming to be baptized by the Spirit, they must, of course, (if their claim be good,) be already in the church, for by "one Spirit we are all baptized into one body," says Paul. And being in the church by the action of the Spirit's baptism, what is the effect of their passing through the door of baptism by water? It is not the act of going into the church, for they must be already in-if baptized by the Spirit-so if they go through the door of water baptism at all, they must go out of the church. What is the one baptism? The baptism of water and the Holy Spirit, two acts in the one drama, so to speak. "Ye must be born again," not "born again and again," or two distinct, separate and independent births, one of water and the other of the Spirit, one birth, but of two distinct elements, the effect of the operation of two distinct agencies.

The construction the Romanists put upon the "one baptism" is this, that a person having been once baptized can never be baptized again, he can not be cut off from the church, and therefore being baptized into it once, he forever remains in it, and therefore can not be baptized into it again. But if they understood the passage of Scripture they are so fond of quoting, namely, the power of the ministry to bind on earth what will be bound in heaven, and to loose on earth what will be loosed in heaven, they would see that it conveys the idea of cutting off, or expelling members as well as adding them to the Church of Christ, The man who being duly labored with and refuses to hear the church, is to be considered as a heathen or a publican, or in other words as an outsider, or one who is no longer in the church. a person has been legally dealt with for actual transgression, and refused to repent of his sins and to confess the same, and is cut off from the church according to due form and order of the church, he must come into the church by the same mode of procedure as before, unless indeed, such an one can not again be accepted of God as a child of his; and should such be the case, how very careful should the church be in proceeding in the case, and to use the knife only when the honor, well-being and integrity of the church positively demands it.

Is every person who is immersed in the water by an elder or priest of the church, and upon whose head the elders afterward lay their hands, truly baptized of the water and of the Holy Ghost? Not unless these conditions are observed, viz., 1st. A belief of the gospel of Jesus Christ in its fulness, from the heart; 2d. A truly honest and sincere repentance of sin, which includes of course confession and forsaking of sin; 3d. Baptism by immersion for remission of sin, in the name, or authority of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit; 4th. The laying on of hands of the elders of the church, to be followed by an upright life, and earnest seeking for the Spirit.

A person who does not believe the gospel from the heart, after he has heard it sufficiently explained, could not be a proper subject for baptism. Or a person who did not truly repent of sin would not be baptized to divine acceptance. Or a person not baptized by one having authority from God; or being only partially immersed by one having authority, or by some unauthorized form by one having authority to baptize lawfully. Such persons would not be baptized, and if not baptized, the objects for which baptism is designed would not be realized, namely, the remission of sins, and the putting on of Christ, and the gift of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit would not be given such persons, and the baptism by water being invalid, they would not be partakers of the "one baptism;" would not be born again, and would not be in Christ, nor in his church or body.

The mere fact of a man having authority received through valid ordination would not make the baptism of an unbeliever, or an impenitent person a vallid baptism, nor would the immersion of infants incapable of either faith or repentance be valid in the sight of God. In order to be not found building with untemed mortar, the writer has made it a rule ever since receiving ordination to the office of an elder under the hands of Bro. Jason W. Briggs, to not call for candidates for baptism, until at least seven or eight discourses had been preached on the first principles of the gospel.

And for all that, I have no doubt that some have offered themselves who did not understand the gospel as they ought to, and some were baptized just because some relative or friend was, and some few that I had reason to believe afterward, had not truly repented of their sins. Upon these grounds the answer could be found to the question raised by some, "Why have I not received the Holy Spirit according to promise?" The fault could not have been with the administrator, for this reason, viz., Others baptized and confirmed at the same time, received in unmistakable measure and manner the gift of the Holy Spirit, and God is no respecter of persons, and he never fails to keep his promises when the conditions upon which they are promised are complied with. The failure to receive the Holy Spirit therefore must rest upon the parties immersed, if they have been immersed by one having authority, and properly immersed at the same time.

What, then, is the "one baptism," the one only true and saving baptism? The immersion of the entire person in water for the remission of sins on the part of those who have heard, understood and believed the gospel of Jesus Christ, and who have truly repented of sins; and being immersed by one having received authority from the Lord Jesus Christ, in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit. If this be true, then sprinkling or pouring is not baptism. Immersion as an outward sign of an inward work of grace, or as a sign that the person is in Christ, or Christian, is not baptism. The immersion for remission of sins, of infants, or unbelieving, or unrepentant adults is not baptism, even if performed by those having authority to baptize. And the immersion of believing penitents, if performed by one not having authority from Jesus Christ, is not baptism.

There is emphatically but one true God. and but one true Lord-even Jesus Christ; and but one true Divine Spirit—the Holy Spirit; and but one true faith—the intelligent faith in the gospel of the kingdom of God; and but one true repentance—a genuine sorrow for, confession of, and forsaking of sins: and but one true baptism the baptism by immersion of true penitent believers in the gospel of the kingdom, by those sent of God; and but one true hope-eternal salvation in the kingdom of the Father, through Jesus Christ; and but one true calling-to be Saints of the Most High in deed and in truth, and members of the one true body, the Church of Jesus

Have we been legally baptized? If so, then we are in Christ. Have we received the Holy Spirit? If so, then we are in the Church of Christ, or in the kingdom of God. There is but "one baptism," that of water and the Holy Ghost; two yet one, as the Father and the Son are one. The husband and the wife are "one flesh"—two yet one.

Should we admit sprinkling to be baptism? it is of necessity an entirely distinct thing both in form and purpose to that of scripture baptism. It bears no shadow of resemblance to a birth; it is not for remission of sins, nor is it performed to put on Christ, for its recipients are supposed to be freed from sin already by their faith in the blood of Christ, and are already new creatures in Christ Jesus. It is, therefore, an other and an entirely different baptism to that taught by John, and Jesus, and Peter, and Paul, both in mode and object and is, therefore, no part of the "one baptism." "But," says one, "pouring is all right, for in the baptism of the Holy Spirit, as recorded in Acts 11, the Spirit was poured out." True, but how much was "poured out"? A cuptul? Nay, it "filled the whole house," and not only that, but it "filled" the disciples, too. So keep on pouring till the bouse and the people are full and we will accept the baptism, providing every body is not drowned, as they surely would be. But as there is but "one baptism," we will hold to that and follow Christ.

THOMAS W. SMITH. MATAHOA, Anaa, Nov. 20th, 1886.

THE "SEALED BOOK."-No. vii.

BY ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

WHOEVER reads the wonderful narrative contained in the Book of Mormon, and how the God of the whole earth condescended to smile upon the ancient people of this continent, guiding them by the revelations of His grace; those who examine the claims for an early civilization as described in the said Book of Mormon, where impartiality prevails, truth shines into their minds; but when blinding prejudice, distorting bias, fanatical bigotry can not see good and truth manifested, all discoveries to them are of little interest, while those accepting the statements made, and proven by scientific research can read the tangled web of American tradition and mythology as in the blaze of the sun at

Mr. James Adair, a trader with the Indians and resident with them for over forty years says: "The Israelites were divided into tribes and had chiefs over them; so the Indians divide themselves, each tribe forming a little community within the nation. And as the nation hath its particular symbol, so hath each tribe the badge from which it is denominated. If we go from nation to nation among them we shall not find one individual that doth not distinguish himself by his family name. Every town has a State House or synedrion, the same as the Jewish sanhedrin, where almost every night the head men meet to discuss public business. The Hebrew nation was ordered to worship Tehovah, the true and living God, who by the Indians is styled Yohewah. The ancient heathens, it is well known, worshipped a plurality of gods; but these American Indians pay their religious devotions to Loak Ishtohoollo Aba, The Great, Beneficent, Supreme, Holy Spirit of Fire. They do not pay the least perceptible adoration to images. They in their religious worship accord more nearly with the Mosaic institutions, which could not be if they were of Heathen descent.

The American Indians affirm that there is a certain fixed place and time, when and where every one must die, without the possibility of averting it; such was the belief also of the ancient Greeks and Romans, who were much addicted to copying the rites and customs of the Jews. Their opinion that God chose them out of all the rest of mankind as his peculiar and beloved people, fills both the white Jew and the red American with that steady hatred against all the world, which renders them hated and despised by all. We have abundant evidence of the Jews believing in the ministration of angels. During the Old Testament dispensation, their frequent appearances and their services on the earth, are recorded in the oracles which the Tews themselves receive as given by divine inspiration; and St. Paul in his epistle addressed to the Hebrews speaks of it as their general opinion 'that angels are ministering spirits to the good and righteous on earth.' The Indian sentiments and traditions are the same. They believe the higher regions to be inhabited by good spirits, relations to the Great Holy One, and that these spirits attend and favor the virtuous. The Indian language and dialects appear to have the very idiom and genius of the Hebrew. Their words and sentences are expressive, concise, emphatic, sonorous and bold, and often both in letters and signification, synonymous with the Hebrew language. They count time after the manner of the Hebrews, reckoning years by lunar months like the Israelites who counted by moons. The religious ceremonies of the American Indians are in conformity with those of the Jews, they having their prophets, High Priests, and others of religious order. As the Jews had a sanctum sactorum or most holy place, so have all the Indian Nations. The dress also of the High Priests is similar in character to that of the Hebrews. The festivals, feasts, and religious rites of the Indian Americans have also a great resemblance to those of the Hebrews. The Indian imitates the Israelites in his religious offerings. The Hebrews had various ablutions and anointings according to the Mosaic ritual-and all the Indian nations constantly observe similar customs from religious motives. Their frequent bathing, or dipping themselves and their children in rivers, even in the severest weather, seems to be as truly Jewish as the other rites and ceremonies which have been mentioned. The Indian laws of uncleanness and purification, and also the abstaining from things deemed unclean, are the same as those of the Hebrews. The Indian marriages, divorces and punishments of adultery still retain a strong likeness to the Jewish laws on those points. Many of the Indian punishments resemble those of the Jews. Whoever attentively views the features of the Indian, and his eye, and reflects on his fickle, obstinate, and cruel disposition, will naturally think of the Jews. The ceremonies performed by the Indians before going to war, such as purification, and fasting are similar to those of the Hebrew nation. The Israelites were fond of wearing beads and other ornaments even as early as the patriarchal age, and in resemblance to these customs, the Indian females continually wear the same, believing it to be a preventive against many evils.

The Indian manner of curing the sick is very similar to that of the Jews. Like the Hebrews, they firmly believe that diseases and wounds are occasioned by divine anger, in proportion to some violation of the old beloved speech. The Hebrews carefully buried their dead, so on any accident they carefully gathered their bones, and laid them in the tombs of their forefathers. Thus all the numerous nations of the Indians perform the like friendly office to every deceased person of their respective tribe. The Jewish records tell us that the women mourned for the loss of their deceased husbands and were reckoned vile by the civil law if they married in the space of at least ten months after their death. In the same manner all the Indian widows, by an established penal law, mourn for the loss of their deceased husbands; and among some tribes for the space of three or four years. The surviving brother by the Mosaic law was to raise seed to a deceased brother, who left a widow childless, to perpetuate his name and family. The American law enforces the same rule. When the Israelites gave names to their children or others, they chose such appellatives as suited best their circumstances and times. This custom is a standing rule with the Indians."

The above is from Mr. Adair's American Indian. I make this note for the reason that I have quoted from another book bearing the same title.

Brasseur de Bourbourg, although he rejects Kingsborough's theory, thinks that some Jews may have reached America. He recognizes a Jewish type on certain ruins, and calls attention to the perfectly Tewish dress of the women at Palin and on the shores of Lake Amatitlan."—History Nat. Civ., vol. 1, p. 17.

Testimony from one, contrary to his own conviction or interests, is the very strongest we can have. Giordiau says: Customs and relics seems to show that the Americans are of Hebrew descent."-

Tehuantepec, p. 57.
Rossi says: "On the northwest coast there are many beliefs and rites which resemble the Jewish; circumcision obtains in Central America and women wear Jewish costumes."—Souvenirs, p. 276.

Here is one man that seems fixed in his convictions wherein Mr. Jones says, "I will not yield to any man in the firm belief that the aborigines of North America and the Ancient Israelites are identical."-History of Ancient America, pp. 2, 11, 26, 188-90.

Meyer finds many reasons for regarding the wild tribes of the north as Jews; such as the physical peculiarities; numerous customs; the number of languages pointing to a Babylonish confusion of tongues. Most Indians have high priests' temples, altars, and a sacred ark which they carry with them on their wanderings. count by four seasons, celebrate new moon and arbor festivals, and offer first fruits. In September when the sun enters the scales they hold their feast of atonement. They work with one hand and carry their weapons in the other.—Nach Dem Sacramento, p. 241-5.

Schoolcraft says, "The Navajo tradition that they came out of the water a long way to the north; their peaceful, pastoral manner of life; their aversion to hog's flesh; their belief that they will return to the water from whence they came, instead of going to hunting grounds like other tribes; their prophets who prophesy and receive revelations; their strict fast days and keenness in trade; their comparatively good treatment of women, are Jewish similarities stronger than any tribe can present. The most striking custom of apparently Hebraic origin, is the periodical separation of females, and the strong and universal idea of uncleanness connected therewith." -Schoolcraft's Archaeology, vol. 3, p. 60 -62.

I forbear formulating an argument upon proofs cited, that I may gain space for additional proof.

Juarros says, "According to various manuscripts the Toltecs are of Jewish descent."—History of Guatemala, vol. 2, p. 7-8.

Leon de Cordova is of the same opinion as Juarros.—See Municipalidad de Leon, Em de Moraez says, "Nothing but circumcision is wanting to form a perfect resemblance between the Jews and Brazilians."-Carver's Travels p. 188-9.

Melgar gives a list of the Chiapanec calendar names, and finds that fourteen agree with suitable Jewish names.—Mex. Geog., vol 3, p. 108.

Joseph Merrick, Esq. a highly respectable character in the church, at Pittsfield gave the following account: That in 1815 he was leveling some ground under and near an old woodshed standing on a place of his, situated on Indian Hill. He ploughed and conveved away old chips and earth to some depth. After the work was done, walking over the place he discovered near where the earth had been dug the deepest, a black strap, as it appeared, about six inches in length, and one and one-half in breadth, and about the thickness of a leather trace to a harness. He perceived it had at each end, a loop of some hard substance, probably for the purpose of carrying it. He conveyed it to his house and threw it into an old tool box. He afterwards found it thrown out at the door, and again conveyed it to the box. After some time he thought he would examine it; but in attempting to cut it, found it as hard as bone; he succeeded, however, in getting it open, and found it was formed of two pieces of thick raw hide, sewed and made water tight with the sinews of some animal and gummed over; and in the fold was contained four folded pieces of parchment. They were of a dark yellow hue, and contained some kind of writing. The neighbors coming in to see the strange discovery, tore one of the pieces to atoms in the true Hun and Vandal style. The other three pieces Mr. Merrick saved and sent them to Cambridge, where they were examined and discovered to have been written by a pen in Hebrew, plain and legible. The writing on the three remaining pieces of parchment was quotations from the Old Testament.—American Antiquities, p. 68-70. Mr. A. A. Bancroft thus describes another Hebrew inscription: "About eight miles southeast of Newark there was formerly a large mound composed of masses of free-stone, which had been brought from some distance and thrown into a heap without much placing or care." Describing an excavation in this he says: "Before long he was rewarded by finding in the center and near the surface a bed of the tough clay known as pipe clay, which must have been brought from a distance of some twelve miles. Imbedded in the clay was a coffin, dug out of a burr oak log, and in a pretty good state of preservation. In the coffin was a skeleton, with quite a number of stone ornaments and emblems, and some open brass rings suitable for bracelets or anklets. These being removed, they dug down deeper and soondiscovered a stone dressed to an oblong shape, about eighteen inches long and twelve wide, which proved to be a casket, neatly fitted and completely water tight, containing a slab of stone of hard and fine quality, an inch and a half thick, eight inches long, four inches and a half wide at one end, and tapering to three inches at the other. Upon the face of the slab was the figure of a man, apparently a priest, with a long flowing beard, and a robe reaching to his feet. Over his head was a curved line of characters, and upon the edge and back of the stone were closely and neatly carved letters. The slab, which I saw myself, was shown to the Episcopalian clergyman, of Newark, and he pronounced the writing to be the ten commandments in ancient Hebrew."-Antiquities of Licking County, Ohio, Manuscript.

Copy of a pamphlet entitled, "A rep sentation of the two stones with the chreacters inscribed upon them, that were found by D. Wyrick, during the summer of 1860, near Newark, Ohio."

PREFACE.

"The following is a representation of the four sides of the supposed key stone that was found on the 29th day of June, 1860, in a sink or depression commonly denominated well holes, whilst looking for human bones that said well holes were said to contain. The object of looking for human bones was to ascertain the truth of such assertion. This stone is in the shape and size represented by the cuts, and has upon each of the four sides a Hebrew inscription in the Hebrew character, which when translated reads, 'The King of the Earth,' 'The word of the Lord,' 'The laws of Jehovah,' 'The Holy of Holies.'"

BODY OF THE WORK.

"The following four cuts are those of the four sides of a very singular stone found encased in a stone box buried some twenty feet in the earth, or in the earth of a tremendous stone mound. This stone was found on the first day of November, 1851, in company with five others while examining the condition and character of a bed of fire clay that was found to be beneath a portion of this great stone mound after it had been mostly removed for protection purposes to banks of the canal and reservoir. In the first place, in removing this stone pile which was said to have been from forty to fifty feet high, rising from a base whose diameter is a hundred and eighty-two feet, some of the rock hands came to a mound of pure clay, of which they say there was or is quite a number situated just within the periphery of this stone base entirely around it and all covered up from view by this enormous stone stack. But in this one while digging out some very suitable flat stone for protection. and that seemed to be imbedded in this clay, they found something like the shell of an old log on which lay seven copper rings with the appearance of some extremely coarse cloth. This was shown to several and talked of for some days, when another person was induced by curiosity to make some further examinations. He removed this old shell, and in doing so found that it appeared to be the cover of another piece of timber resembling a large wooden trough. In this he also found some of the apparent coarse cloth. Indeed he says that it appeared to him as though the whole interior of the trough had been lined with this material, but it was so rotten as to utterly prevent his securing a piece as large as his thumb nail. He also found within this trough or log a parcel of human bones, a locket of very fine black hair about six or eight inches long, and ten of those copper rings identical with those found upon the covering or lid. He then covered it all over again, taking with him, however, the rings as probably auriferous, and saying but little about the matter. The place remained at rest for several years, when in July last, [1860], I happened to see a piece of the wooden structure and four of the rings, and learning that the pieces of timber in which they were found were still in the earth, under the prospects of procuring an ancient sarcophagus, not Egyptian nor Phoenician, but American, I repaired to the place with some work-hands and sacreligiously took it up. From the appearance of the place I stated that it had been laid in a concave basin made of impervious clay purposely to receive it. thought by some to be rather doubtful from the cursory examination I had made, and that a more thorough examination would show otherwise. Determined, therefore, to know the true condition of the place, I resolved to make the examination satisfactory the very first time I should be at the place with men and tools sufficient to do so. Time rolled away from July until the first day of November before I met with an opportunity to put my threat into execution. The place had become all filled up again by the natural tumbling down of the loose stone and the running over it by the cattle, etc., so that it took three of us working hard from early in the morning till nearly three o'clock in the afternoon to reach the clay bed with a sufficient removal of the detritus to effect the examination required. When the matter in controversy had been settled by finding things as I had represented, one of the party, [Dr. Nicol], proposed ascertaining the thickness of the clay strata, and accordingly dug a hole into it. showed it to be a bed of very tough fire clay of the color of putty, that had, from all appearances, never been disturbed from the day it was put there. It appeared to be a strata of about two feet in thickness, and from near the under surface, imbedded in this clay, was taken the stone box, a representation of which as to size and shape is given on the last page of this pamphlet. Whilst digging in the hole thus made in the clay, in which was encased an inscribed stone of a black color, and as is shown by the following four cuts of four sides of it with the characters on each side, the English of which appears to be abridgment of the Ten Commandments. The translation as given by Rev. J. W. Mc-Carty: MOSES, sthis word appears above the head of the image, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt and out of the house of servants. I am Jehovah thy God. There shall not be to thee gods other than me before me. Thou shalt not make for thyself a graven image. shalt not bow down to them or worship Thou shalt not take the name of them. Remember Jehovah, thy God, in vain. the Sabbath day to sanctify it. The six of day thou shalt do all thy work. Honor thy father and thy mother. Thou shalt not murder, thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt steal, thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his servant, nor his maid, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is his."

This find is a good witness favoring the theory that the American aboriginees are the offspring of Jewish stock.

Speaking of one of the series of mounds which he explored in Wisconsin, which was found to be in the form of a huge serpent with its body entwined round a monumental structure, William Pidgeon says: "I have never regarded with much favor the views of those who regard the primitive inhabitants of North America as the descendants of the lost tribes of the children of Israel. But I confess that this curious earth-work thus raised on high, on the very summit of the loftiest hill in that region of country, and in full view of several extensive groups of residential mounds scattered along the shores of the Mississippi, does indeed forcibly remind the observer of the brazen serpent raised up in the wilderness." . . . "This beautiful prairie, (in the vicinity of Gottenburg), surrounded by mountain scenery of the most romantic description, presents a very extensive group of ancient monuments, among which we recognize the forms of two large serpents traced by a series of tumuli."—Traditions of Dee-Coo-Dah, p. 116-17.

Speaking of the Indians Priest says: "Their Jewish customs are too many to be enumerated in this work."-American Antiquities, p. 56. Mr. George Catlin in his work published in 1856, gives the following twelve reasons for believing that the American Indians are descended in some way from the Israelites: "I. The Jews had their sanctum sanctorum, and so it may be said the Indians have, in their council or medicine houses, which are always held as sacred places.. 2. As the Jews had, they have their High Priests and prophets. 3. Among the Indians as among the ancient Hebrews, the women are not allowed to worship with the men, and in all cases also, they eat separately. 4. The Indians everywhere believe that they are certainly like those ancient people, persecuted, as every man's hand seems raised against 5. In their marriages, the Indians, as did the ancient Jews, uniformly buy their wives by giving presents, and in many tribes, very closely resemble them in other forms and ceremonies of their marriages. 6. In their preparation for war, and in peace-making they are strikingly similar. 7. In their treatment of the sick, burial of the dead and mourning, they are also similar. 8. In their bathing and ablutions at all seasons of the year, as a part of their religious observances having separate places for men and women to perform these immersions they resemble again. 9. The custom among the women of absenting themselves during the lunar influence, is exactly consonant to the Mosaic law. 10. After this season of separation, purification in running water and anointing, precisely in accordance with the Jewish command, is required before she can enter the family lodge. 11. Many of them have a feast closely resembling the annual feasts of the Jewish Passover, and amongst others an occasion much like the Israelitish feast of the Tabernacle, which lasted eight days, [when history tells us they carried bundles of willow boughs, and fasted several days and nights), making sacrifices of the first fruits and best of everything, closely resembling the sin offering and peace offering of the Hebrews. (See this history in vol. 1, pps. 159 and 170 of Religious Ceremonies of Mandans.) 12. Amongst the list of their customs, however, we meet a number which had their origin, it would seem, in the Jewish ceremoemonial code, and which are so peculiar in their forms that it would seem quite improbable and almost impossible that two different peoples should have hit upon them alike, without some knowledge of each other. These I consider go further than anything else as evidence, and carry in my mind conclusive proof that these people are tinctured with Jewish blood."-North American Indians, vol. 2, p. 231.

Priest says: "Hebrew words are found among the American Indians in considerable variety."-American Antiquities, p.

63.
We credit to Boudinot the statement: "Their language in its roots, idiom and particular construction, appear to have the whole genius of the Hebrew; and what is very remarkable, and well worthy of serious attention, has most of the peculiarities of the language, especially those in which it differs from most other languages."

Speaking of the traditions concerning the fall of man and kindred topics, Delafied says: "So remarkable were the traditions of several of these facts among the inhabitants of America at the time of the Spanish conquest, that the priests who accompanied the army were induced to suppose that Christianity, or at least Judaism, had been inculcated among them at some very distant period."—Page 8.

Prescott says: "When the Indians make their feasts they remove all fire from the lodge, and rekindle it before the food is put on to cook, so as to be sure and not have anything unclean about the feast. For my part I am forced to believe these feasts have been handed down from the children of Israel."-p. 241.

Perhaps in time to come untold thousands will be like Mr. Prescott, "forced" to confess the truth.

In building the sacred fire a branch of poplar, willow, or white oak is cut from the tree. A hole is bored partly through it; and, with another piece sharpened for the purpose, friction is made by revolving this within the hole, by which fire is gathered. This is cherished with fine chips and fanned with the wing of a white swan. An earthen vessel, consecrated for the purpose, receives the burning mass, and the priest then carries the fire to the altar which is overhung with green boughs, and places it therein. Then fruits are brought, which have been carefully anointed with bear's oil, and laid upon the fire." -Ibid, p. 264.

Baptism is taught in the Book of Mormon and it was practiced by the Mexicans.

-Builders of Babel, p. 78.

"Palacio relates that at Azori, in Honduras, the natives circumcised boys before an idol called Icelca."—Carta, p. 84.

Lord Kingsborough informs us that the Central Americans used the same rite; and McKenzie says he saw the ceremony performed by the Chippeways.

What I have cited to identify a Jewish origin for the ancient people of America, should be all-sufficient to sustain the correctness and the divine character of the Book of Mormon. However, kind reader, I have yet much that I wish you to patiently and carefully investigate. As the wheel of time rolls, and new discoveries are made, the volume of proof to establish the "Sealed Book" is on the increase, and the time will come when it will be a shame for the average American to be ignorant of the antiquities of his country. For one I hail with joy the rising tide of knowledge relative to the civilization of the ancient inhabitants of America.

To be continued.

Selections.

CARDINAL MANNING AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Cardinal Manning cites from one of his authorities, (Mr. Montgomery), statistics which are thought to demonstrate the baleful effect of common schools on the virtue of society. The group of six New Englang States is compared with six of the Southern States. One of them had common schools, the other had not. The results are spread before us. "Massachusetts and her five sisters, out of her native population of a little more than two and a half millions, had, on the 1st of June, 1860, just 2459 criminals in prison," while the six Southern States, "Her comparatively unlettered companions, with a native white population of over three millions, had but 477 in prison." Before inquiring into the accuracy of the statistical data, it may be well to notice briefly the flimsy character of this logic. It is a good specimen of the confounding of consequent with effect. Darkness precedes light; ergo, darkness creates light. Negro slavery existed in the one group of states, where there are but fewer offences against the law; it did not exist in the other; therefore the existence of Negro slavery tends to lessen the number of crimes, the absence of it to increase them. Dueling has been a custom in one of the groups; it has not been a custom in the other; therefore, if you would raise the tone of morality, introduce dueling. Before assuming an identity of conditions between the two gronps, it is remarkable that the cardinal did not remember that in the New England group there are great manufacturing centers, large cities, a vast number of recently arrived immigrantsall of these being conditions not belonging to the group with which New England is compared. But these are only a few of the glaring fallacies in this argument against common schools to which Cardinal Manning lends his sanction.

—The Forum for April.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE AS A THEOLOGY.

DISCUSSION PRECLUDED-THE MORAL PERIL OF DENIAL OF SIN.

CHRISTIAN Science is not only a system of physical healing, it is a system of philosophy and theology. Its philosophy, of course, underlies its theology, which is developed from the postulate of Berklein idealism. A rapid survey of some of the theological positions of Christian Science is all that will be attempted in this article.

"God is the Infinite and Immortal mind," says Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, the discoverer and high priestess of Christian Science. Time and again she denies the personality of God. Rev. H. M. Tenny, author of the discriminating treatise, "Christian Science: its Truths and Errors," wrote Mrs. Eddy inquiring whether she denied the personality of God. Her reply was: "It is the material or corporeal personality of God that I deny. God is an individual Being 'self-conscious and self-determined,' all-knowing, all-doing, all-power, presence, all-science, omniscience, Omniscience." The present writer, supposing that application to Mrs. Eddy would elicit nothing more than this, consulted a gentleman who had had the benefit of Mrs. Eddey's personal instruction in the arcana of Christian Science (were his name given he would be recognized by most of the readers of The Christian at Work as a gifted man, a leader in his profession). I asked him in what sense he understood Mrs. Eddy to deny the personality of God. He replied, "She believes that personality implies limitation, and therefore denies that God is a person."

This, doubtless, is a true representation of Mrs. Eddy's teaching. In denying the personality of God she is simply misled by her theory that personality implies physical limitation. Atheists and Pantheists rally under her banner upon which is inscribed "God is Divine Principle, not a Person," and some Christian theists when they discover her defective conception of personality assent to her legend. This statement of the doctrine of God resembles a modern political platform; with suitable explanations all parties can agree to it.

It will be found that the vagueness, intentional or unintentional, which marks the expression of this doctrine, characterizes most of the theological conceptions of the system. This vagueness affords a common shibboleth to those who would find that they had fallen into queer company, if exact definition were to be attempted. There are atheistic, panthestic, agnostic, and theistic Christian sciences.

The principle by which Christian Science interprets the Scriptures reminds one of Swedenborg. It is the allegorical. We commend the expositions given in the Christian Science Monthly for the help of Sunday School teachers, to those who wish to find examples of the extremes to which the allegorizing interpretation of the Scriptures can be carried. Origen would have modified his doctrine of the four-fold sense of Scripture if he could have seen a page of Swedenborg or of the Christian Science Monthly.

Of course one can find anything in the Bible he sets out to find, if he is at liberty to attach his own typical meaning to its words. Interpretation is not a question of exegesis, it is a question of what one wants to make the Scriptures teach.

When Mrs. Eddy is met by the objection that her interpretations of the Scriptures are forced and unnatural, she replies that her personal inspiration is the same in kind as that which produced the Scriptures, that she has the true clue to their meaning, and can not be mistaken. One can not argue with an infallible Pope.

The assertion is often made that Christian Science exalts the person and character of Christ. Certainly the rhetoric of Christian Science authors becomes florid when Christ is referred to, but a somewhat careful study of what has been written on this subject leads me to the inevitable conclusion that Christian Science recognizes a difference in degree of life, not in kind of life, between our Lord and men. Christ is man at his climax. Every man has in himself the potentialities of a Christ. Our Lord's miracles were not in any strict sense supernatural. He had mastered the secret which of late Mrs. Eddy has rediscovered. He was the first Christian Scientist. His works may be paralleled by the achievements of modern Christian scientists. At bottom this view of Christ's relation to men does not differ essentially from the position of advanced modern Unitarians. But in its views of sin and sickness Christian Science to a good degree parts with its vagueness. Here we touch the vitals of the system. All the rest of its doctrines have been formulated with reference to their bearing upon the doctrine of sin and sickness.

"Man is a reflection of immortal mind:"

he holds the relation to God that the reflection of an object in a mirror holds to the object itself. But man sets up his own thoughts instead of thinking the thoughts of God. He thinks that the material world is a reality, and involves himself in the penalties of false belief, in sin and sickness. How, if man is only a reflection of God, and as Mrs. Eddy asserts, has no power of self-determination, he can ever set up a thought of his own, instead of eternally corresponding to the thought of God, is a question which no Christian scientist has yet answered. It is at this point that the system needs remodeling. In this denial of the reality of sin is involved the greatest moral peril connected with the acceptance of Christian Science. The testimony of the universal human consciousness asserts that the fact of personal sin is the most tremendous reality in this universe, and the denial of the reality of sin, though delicately veiled in philosophical assumptions, is sure to ultimately weaken the sense of moral accountability, and when that is weakened disintegration of the moral life certainly follows.

The pernicious fruits of Christian Science may not be immediately seen in its adherents. They may continue to be excellent Christians after embracing Mrs. Eddy's theology, for in the human mind the lion and the lamb of opposing doctrines often lie down together. It is not difficult to understand why some should think that their Christian lives have been deepened, and their views of truth enlarged by embracing these doctrines, but as President Hopkins used to say, "Things ultimately follow their tendencies." results produced in the second or third or tenth generation are a better test of a doctrine than the sentiment of its first disciples. The lion ultimately devours the lamb.-Rev. G. E. Horr, Fr.

Miscellaneous.

THE FORUM FOR MAY.

The political articles in The Forum for May are "The Republican Party and the Negro," by Mr. E. L. Godkin, edi or of the New York Evening Post, who shows the impracticability of all plans to give special protection to the Negro vote in the South, except the plan of allowing the Southern people to solve the problem themselves, citing evidence to show that the South is doing this as fast as possible; "The Saloon as a Political Power," by Mr. Ernest H. Crosby, of the New York Legislature, who argues the necessity of destroying the political influence of the saloon before dividing public attention as to methods of temperance reform, and gives many striking instances of corrupt political work done by saloon keepers and brewers; and Prof Emile de Laveleye, of the University of Liege, writes a political article (in the large sense) on "Perils of Democracy," reviewing the new dangers that beset free governments. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps shows the deep gulf between conventional Christianity and the teachings of Christ, giving Christian Society and the churches many evidences of their shortcomings. Another article that has a religious as well as scientific bearing is Prof. St. George Mivart's second essay on "Where Darwinism Fails," in which he points out the break in the Darwinian theory. Grant Allen, replying to a recent argument by Prof. Lester F. Ward, maintains that women are not the more important half of the human race, being the sex sacrificed by reproductive necessities. Mr. F. B. Hawley, of New York, criticising Mr. Edward Atkinson's recent articles in The Forum, maintains that Mr. Atkinson has made a capital error in his calculation to show that labor gets 95 per cent. and capital gets only 5 per cent. of the total product, and he argues that such a statement misleads and does great harm. President William De W. Hyde, of Bowdoin College, shows the ill effects of school examinations as they are usually conducted and points out the proper part for examinations to play in rational education. Mrs. Oliphant analyzes the elements of success in novel-writing; Prof. James M. Hoppin, of Yale, shows the value of art in popular education; and James Payn, the English novelist, writes an essay on his memory of pleasant conversation, and on what it consists, under the title of "The Closing of the Doors," which refers to his own deafness. The Forum Publishing Co., New York.—50 cents a copy; $5 a year.

GROVE MEETING.

At the March session of the Decatur District Conference it was provided that a camp meeting be held at Davis City, seven miles east of Lamoni, during the summer or fall. Brethren H. A. Stebbins, O. J. Bailey and William Anderson were chosen a committee, and they have secured the use of the grounds for services to begin on the use of the grounds for services to begin on Friday August 2d, with the expectation that the meeting will continue till Sunday the 11th. It is a fine site for the purpose, an extensive grove on the river bank, yet elevated above it. Wood on the river bank, yet elevated above it. Wood and hay will also be plenty and cheap. A tent to hold the meetings in has been spoken for. The Saints of the Decatur District hope that their brethren and sisters in the Nodaway, Far West, Fremont, Pottawattamie, Des Moines and other districts will join with them in making the meeting a success. All who have tents covers, or who can prepare them, will, we feel sure, enjoy the camping privileges at Davis City, and the meetings. Furtuer notice will be given as to conveniences and prices of fuel and food.

H. A. S'TEBBINS, Chairman of Committee.

APPEAL.

Dear Brethren and Sisters of Kent and Elgin district:—In order that the ministry be kept in the field and their families sustained, it will be necessary that we, as Saints, do our duty in contributing our tithes and offerings.

We claim to love the cause and are glad to hear of its progress; therefore we should all do our part and leave the result with our heavenly Father. It is useless for us to pray to God to spread this work unless we contribute of our substance as God has blessed us, to sustain the families of those who go to preach the gospel. We all have our part to do in this great work, and my prayer to God is that we may all learn our duty and perform it with an eye single to His glory.

Your brother in the gospel,

RICHARD COBURN,

Bishop's Agent of the Kent and Elgin District.
BLENNEIM, Ontario, April 18th.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The conference of the Northern Minnesota district will be held at Lake Eunice, Becker county, Minnesota, June 1st and 2d. Come one and all, and invite your friends to come. Come praying that God may give us of his Spirit, and that peace and harmony may prevail and a good work be done for the Master.

THOMAS J. MARTIN, Dist. Pres.

DECATUR.

The June conference of the above district will convene at ten o'clock on Saturday, June 8th, 1889. Not only is it expected that each branch will send a report, but also the attention of the Sunday schools is called to the necessity of sending delegates for the purpose of perfecting the proposed organization of the Sunday school interests in the district. The Saints at Allendale desire to see a large attendance from other branches. Many can drive down on Friday or Saturday as well as not. Those who must go by train will find Bro. E. Keeler, liveryman, at Grant City, seven miles from Allendale. Please let him know before the time.

H. A. STEBBINS, Presiding Elder in Charge.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to the scattered members of the Lindsley branch of the Kent and Elgin district of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to wit: Henry Her-endeen, Bertha Herendeen, Eliza Booth, Annie Maitland. As their whereabouts are not known, we request that they report to Bro. Asa Vickery, presiding officer of the Lindsley branch, before June the first, or their names will be dropped and reported as scattered members of said branch.

EMMA JULIA GREEN, Clerk.

MARRIED.

FRANCE.—DERRY.—William A. France and Ada L. Derry, both of Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the residence of the bride's father, Lamoni, Iowa, on the 21st of April, 1889, Elder Charles Derry officiating.

Ada, thou hast done thy duty;
God and men thy works approve.
Filial love, thy crowning beauty—
Pure, unselfish, child-like love.

Go to him whom thou hast chosen; Make his heart thy earthly throne; Re gn as queen, forever loving, Keep yourselves for each alone.

Take a father's blessing with thee— Thy mother smiles upon her child From her heights of Eden-glory, With a love that's undefiled.

William, Ada, God be with you Through the changing scenes of life; May his love and peace continue With fond husband, loving wife.

DIED

Whitehouse .- At Lucas, Iowa, March 11th, 1889, Alice Whitehouse was burned accidentally, and after great suffering she died, March 28th. She was the daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Harriet James, of Flagler, Iowa, and was born in Des Moines, Polk county, February 8th, 1860. Ste was married to Benjamin Whitehouse, Sep. tember, 1879. Funeral services were conducted by John Warkins, sen., at the house of doctor C. E. Eaton; funeral discourse by G. T. Griffiths, at the Saints' Church, March 31st, to a large audience.

TAPLIN.—At Friberg, Ottertail county, Minnesota, April 17th, 1889, Bro. Lorenzo D. Taplin, by bursting a blood-vessel. Bro. Taplin was born March 20th, 1869, at Weston, Dunn county, Wisconsin; baptized October 17th, 1886, at Friberg, by Bro. J. C. Foss. Funeral services by Bro. B. B. Mossier, assisted by Elder Barnhard, April 18th, 1880. Bro. Lorenzo was a true Saint April 18th, 1889. Bro. Lorenzo was a true Saint, full of zeal and good works, a faithful son, a kind and loving brother. We believe he is gone to the paradise of God.

JOHNSON.—Near Mission, LaSalle county, Illinos, January 13th, 1889, Sr. Maggie, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Henry Johnson, aged 19 years, 4 months and 2 days. The sad event took place at her home while surrounded by her heart-strick-en parents, brothers and sisters. The elders were called during her sickness and administered to her, and each time she received instant relief, then gradually relapsed into her former condition. About one hour before her death the elders were again summoned; but alas! they came about four minutes too late. She had breathed a short prayer, asking God to forgive and be merciful unto her; then the angel came and relieved

Among her last words she admonished her father, mother, brothers and sisters, saying, "Be kind to each other, and do right, and you sure-ly will be blessed." The funeral was held at the Latter Day Saints' Church on the 15th, Elder Thomas Hougas officiating. A large concourse attended, there being over one hundred carriages in the procession from the church to her last resting place. She was much loved and admired by all who knew her, and the various papers of this vicinity expressed deep sympathy.

A precious one from earth has gone, A voice we loved is stilled; A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled. God in his wisdom has recalled, The boon his love had given; And though the body moulders here, The soul is safe in heaven.

VREDENBURGH.—Almena Vredenburgh died August 30th, 1889, at the home of her son, William Vredenburgh, in Soldier Valley, Iowa, and was buried September 1st. Funeral service was held at the house, Elder Putney officiating.

Sr. Vredenburgh was born February 3d, 1808, in Queensbury, Washington county, New York, and was married to Henry Vredenburgh in 1825. She was the mother of eleven children, seven dries and four bove the oldest and two girls and four boys; the eldest and two youngest have passed away; two have their homes in Illinois, three in Iowa, one in Nebraska, one in Colorado and one in Oregon. Mrs. Vredenburgh moved with her family from New York into Illinois in 1843, and from Illinois into Iowa in 1862, and has since been a resident of Little Sioux, Iowa, until her death.

She joined the Latter Day Saints' Church in 1835, and the Reorganization of the same in 1861. She was first baptized by Hyrum Stratton, and second by Zenos Gurley, Sen. Sr. Vredenburg was known as a quiet, worthy and religious member of society. She had been a widow some twenty years. She died strong in the faith.

SHAW -At Fall River, Massachusetts, April 21st, 1889, Alma D, the only child of brother and sister Daniel and Alice Shaw, aged 3 years, 3 months and 27 days. Funeral April 24th, conducted by Elder John Smith.

This tender bud so young and fair,
Called hence by early doom:
Just came to show how sweet a flower,
In paradise should bloom. To you the child was only lent, While mortal he was yours; But now to glory be is sent, To join the heavenly powers. 'Tis in the Savior's bosom laid, And feels no sorrow there; 'Tis by a heavenly parent fed And needs no more your care.

Osborn — Elmer Ray, son of Mr. A. J. and Mrs. Martha C. Osborn, died in Grove Township. Shelby county, Iowa, March 31st, 1889, aged 8 weeks and 1 day. The funeral was in charge of Elder A. Jackson; and the sermon was preached by Elder C. E. Butterworth April 28th 1889, in the Saint's Chapel, Galland's Grove, Iowa, to a large congregation of relatives and Saints. Text: "I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness."—Psalms 17: 15.

DAVIES.—At Rock Island, Illinois, April 15th, 1889, of quick consumption, James T. Davies, born at Kewanee, Illinois, October 14th, 1869. He was the only son of Mr. W. C. and Mrs. Annie Davies, and was a bright, intelligent, promising young man. He first heard the gospel in February last, and he fully decided to be baptized as soon as it was possible to comply. But it was God's will be should not recover. He manifested firm faith in the ordinances of the gospel, and called for the elders of the church and received great consolation through the prayer of faith and ancinting with oil in the name of He enjoyed the company of the the Lord. Saints, and before his departure he implored his mother to obey the gospel and become one with the Saints. Funeral sermon by Elder J. Ruby, of Buffalo, Iowa.

NIELSEN.-At his residence in Nebraska City, Nebraska, Monday evening at 8:30. April 1st, 1889, Br. Niels Nielsen, beloved husband of Sr. Anna Nielsen, aged 43 years, 10 months and 1 day. He was born in Aalborg, Denmark, in 1845; came to Nebraska City June, 1869; was married to Miss Anna Dahl, December 1st, 1870, who now deeply mourns him. He was baptized April 21st, 1872, at Nebraska City, and was faithful to the end Three years ago his health began failing, and three weeks ago he was confined to his home and bed, until when his tried meek spirit was released from the body. The elders came often and administered to him, and he remained perfectly calm and conscious to the last moment. He possessed a humble and quiet spirit, and served God and his cause both by his faith and means. He was faithful to our Sunday school until a year ago, when health declined, and had acted as assistant superintendent and treasurer, and was for several years the teacher of the Book of Mormon class. His face in death bespoke that pure life there is for the good and true, for it had a pleasant smile and profoundly peaceful expression. Thus "the Lord give his beloved sleep." His remains were brought to the Saints' church Thursday after-noon, April 4th, where funeral services were conducted by Eld. M. H. Forscutt. The church could not hold all who came—many stood outside. A large cortege followed him to his tomb, where he rests in peace to await the morn of the first resurrection. He left a pure record. Thus the Lord shows his power to his confiding saints. Death is robbed of its terrors, and they pass away peacefully.

ADDRESSES.

ADDRESSES.

J. H. I.ake. Kirtland, Lake co., Ohio.
Willard J. Smith, Box 153, Buchanan, Mich.
J. W. Wight, Queensferry, Victorin, Australia,
T. W. Smith, Papetee, Tahiti, via San Francisco.
J. A. Currie, Jr., Bandera, Randera co., Texas,
John Thomas, Buchanan, Henry Co., Tenn,
Joseph F. Burton, Santa Ana, California.
A. J. Cato, Nathan, Pike Co., Arkansas.
J. W. Gillen, 3129 Catoline street. St. Louis, Missouri,
E. C. Bruggs, box 323, Pittsburg, Pa.
Mads P. Hanson, box 512, Plymouth, Mass.
John T. Davies, 5 Park avenue, Llanelly, Carmarthen
shire, Wales.
G. A. Blakeslee, presiding Bishop, Galien Michigan.

l. A. Blakeslee, presiding Bishop, Galien, Michigan. . H. Peters, Coleman, Midland Co., Michigan.

I hereby give notice that the

Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies

 $17 \times 20$ , is now ready for sale.

I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2. All members of the Quorum represented in the medley can obtain a copy for $1.50.

> R. BURDGE, Photographer, Appleton City, Mo.

I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art. containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a medley, handsomely arranged, all numbered with index helow of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Pieture

E. C. BRAND.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't. D. F. Nicholson, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK of LAMONI

Will attend to any Business for Non-Residents entrusted to our care.

Interest Allowed on Time Deposits.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - - -$1.50.

M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.

The following is the table of contents for May Autumn Leaves:

Winter Passage on the Atlantic-The Ocean Steamer—Autobiography of Apostle T. W Smith—Eminent Hebrews—Tread Lightly— Short History of my Early Life-Reminiscence of the Dark Day—Autobiography of Elder Glaud Rodger—The Carpenter—Preach only Jesus Christ and him Crucified—Esther—Story of the Book of Mormon-Manly Courtesy Illustrated-Birthday Vision—Pattie; or, Leaves from a Life —Took it to God in Prayer—King Solomon and the Bees—Home Conversations—The Basis of Politeness—Bereaved Ones—Incidents in the Life of One of Earth's Pilgrims—Miss Clara Barton—He Knoweth the Way that I take—Strange Birds of Syria—Editor's Corner—Round Table.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled 'Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist, Ad-Reoleiddedig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

PHARMACIST WANTED.	TRACTS.	BRADENKELLEY DEBATE.
A vonne man who is registered in Iowa, and can give	No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen 20 per hundred	Cloth Boards, 396 pages good references, &c. A member of the church preferred. Address F, M. WELD,	No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd: dozen 05	Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to 26mar4t Lamoni, Iowa	per hundred 40	the respect and belief of all Christian people?
Farm for Sale.	No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.	(2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden am
A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well	dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000,1 75	a member, the Church of Christ, and identical in faith, organization, ordinances, worship and fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new	I No. 5.—The Gospel price the same as No. 4.	practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other	No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who	perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the
out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on	Shall Administer: 25c, per doz., per 100., 1.75	Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and ac-
4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big	No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 05	cepted with Him?
bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the	per hundred	FORSCUTT—SHINN DISCUSSION.
county seat of Barton county.  EBENEZER MILLER, Senior,	per hundred	Paper covers, 194 pages
Scammonville, Cherokee county, Kansas.	No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Script-	J. Shinn affirms "The Bible teaches the coming of Christ to Judge the world is now past."
LUFF & BRACKENBURY,	ural Standpoint; per doz. 30c., per 1002 25 No. 10.—The Narrow Way; doz. 15c., 1001 10	M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible teaches the
	No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz 30	Literal Resurrection of the body from the grave."
REAL ESTATE AGENTS,	per hundred	VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE
West Lexington Street,	per dozen 25c., per hundred 1 65	SEER.
INDEPENDENCE, - MISSOURI.	No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen. 25	Discoveries of Ancient American Records and Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew.
Next to Warnky's Gallery.	per hundred	Paper covers, 43 pages 10
	per hundred	CONCORDANCE TO DOCTRINE AND
: A Family Newspaper.:	No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original To-	COVENANTS.
THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT	net of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001 40 No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-	An enlarged edition, 32 pages, paper covers. 10
Provides its readers weekly with	ice and Presidency of the Church: doz. 25	BRANCH RECORDS.
56 COLUMNS	per hundred	Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; print-
Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Per-	per hundred	ed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages2 00
sonal departments, and aims to keep its readers thorough- ly acquainted with the striking features of the world's progrees. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy	No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of	DISTRICT RECORDS.
free. One dollar per year.	Christ, under the Apostleship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 40	Printed and bound similar to Branc' Rec-
free. One dollar per venr.  LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, 25aug Lamoni. Decatur Co., lowa.	No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen 03	ords
(INC.) MANAGEMENT (INC.) TO THE CONTROL OF T	per hundred	LICENCES, NOTICES, &c.
A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:	per hundred 1 10	Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Li-
Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.	No. 23.—Baptism: per dozen 20c., 100 1 25	censes, each per dozen
BY A. J. MAPES.	No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; doz. 5c., 100 40 No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. 40	Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books 25 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred 40
Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by	No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House;	CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.
Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.	per dozen 5c., per hundred 40 No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz 25	Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen 40
PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE	per hundred	Annual Statistical Reports, two for 05
——————————————————————————————————————	No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 40	Certificates of Baptism and Membership, per dozen 12
Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church,	No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon	Certificates of Removal, per dozen 12
at their Publishing House in LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,	per dozen 15c., per hundred1 10	Marriage Certificates, per dozen 25
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.	No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Al-	SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.
	so, Kirtland Temple Suit same price No. 4.	Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. 50 Prompt Attendance Tickets 100 for
HOLY SCRIPTURES.	No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 40 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined	Prompt Attendance Tickets, 100 for 15 " 1,000 for 100
(Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.) Sheep or Library binding1_50	per dozen 20c., per hundred1 25	Good Behavior TicketsSame price.
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 50 bc. each, per dozen 50	JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND
New Testament, inspired	Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 15	HIS PROGENITORS.
BOOK OF MORMON.	An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.	Muslin boards, 312 pages
Roan, sprinkled edges	COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.	HESPERIS.
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	Bound in Limp Cloth turned in	Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.	Cowdeny Letters.	cloth, gilt edges
Sprinkled sheep, or library         1 25           Imitation Morocco         1 50	Containing valuable matter in relation to the Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and	VOICE OF WARNING
SAINTS' HARP—HYMN BOOK,	Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the	And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine
Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges 1 25	Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen 75	and History of the latter day work.
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges	Without covers 5c. each, per dozen 50	In paper covers; twelve for $1each 10 Limp cloth covers, each
"MANUSCRIPT FOUND."	MISCELLANEOUS.	JOSEPH THE SEER:
In cloth 25cts., ten or more, each	The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages 150	His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the
This is the notorious "Manuscript Found,"	Universalism Against Itself; 336 pages 1 00	Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which	Josephus, complete, library leather 3 50	Defended and Maintained.
so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sid-	Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes	Paper covers, 200 pages
ney Rigdon the chief ground work and mate-	Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols 4 00	William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society,
rial from which to write the Book of Mormon.	Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated) 1 80	and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the church; and it is a most ex-
REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.	Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one4 00 The Koran, library leather2 00	cellent one to be circulated both in the church
In paper 10 cts., per dozen	Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from A.D.	and among those without, abounding in proofs
This is the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine	1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols10 00 The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pam-	never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.
of Plural Marriage"	philus, Bishop of Cæsarea and Palestine .2 00	MISCELLANEOUS.
SABBATH SCHOOL BOOKS.	Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible . 1 75	Tract 42.—Rejection of the Church, a dozen 15
Compendium of Faith, for higher classes, bound in sprinkled Leather, each $1.00	Bible Text Book	per hundred
The same bound in Cloth	Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size 85	per hundred 75 per dozen 2.50	Elders' Diary, by Joseph Luff 30	Old style Concordance of Doctrine and Covenants 10

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord: for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One Wife, and Concubines HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.—Whole No. 835.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 18, 1889.

No. 20.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,
Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents. are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Perald

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 18, 1889

CALLED OF GOD.

WE have received a series of questions from an esteemed brother which will be found below, to which we append answers:

Bro. Joseph Smith:-Please answer through the Herald the following:

The Epitome of Faith and Doctrine states: "We believe that a man must be called of God and ordained by the laying on of hands of those who are in authority to entitle him to preach the gospel and administer in the ordinances thereof." -Heb. 5:1, 5, 6, 8; Acts 1:24, 25; 14:23; Eph. 4:11; John 15:16.

Now Hebrews 5:4 says: "And no man taketh this honor unto himself but he that is called of God as was Aaron." It is stated in Acts 1:24: "And they prayed and said: Thou, Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, shew whether of these two thou hast chosen." Ephesians 4:11 instructs us: "And he gave some apostles; and some prophets; and some evangelists; and some pastors, and teachers." John 15:16 says: "Ye have not chosen me but I have chosen you and ordained you that ye should go and bring forth fruit," etc.

I will also quote Exodus 28: 1, which undoubtedly is the passage of Scripture referred to by Paul in Hebrews 5:4 given above, to-wit: "And take thou unto thee Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him from among the children of Israel, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office," etc. Now the information desired is this:

FIRST.—If a person is called to the office of deacon, teacher, priest, or elder under any one of the following circumstances, is it a call "from God" within the requirements laid down by the above quotations?

- (1). By the Spirit of God manifested by prophecy, or unknown tongue through a brother, whether a lay member or of either priesthood, or even through a sister?
- (2). By one of the Twelve or the Seventy who states that he feels by the Spirit that the call should be made?

- (3). By the president of a district conference suggesting, or stating simply, that he feels that a certain one should be ordained, followed by motion and second which prevails by vote; and this either in a branch council or branch business meeting?
- (4). By the president of a branch suggesting; same as in number three?
- (5). By a brother of the lesser priesthood, (or a brother lay member), in a branch council, or a branch business meeting arising and simply making a motion followed by a second, that an ordination to one of these offices be made, without stating that he is so prompted by the Spirit?

SECONDLY.—Is it the province, or authority, of district or branch presidents any more than any other elder, or person holding a less office, or even lay member, to suggest, receive communications through the Spirit openly or in secret, or make simple motions that any of the ordinations referred to be made?

THIRDLY.—Is it the duty of a person when called by any of the five modes mentioned to one of these offices to accept ordination accordingly, whether he feels by the Spirit that he is called or not?

FOURTHLY.-When members of the priesthood are giving "a reason for the hope that is within them" and are asked by what authority they teach or if they are "called of God as was Aaron," what answer will they make if called by any one of the five preceding modes as such are Yours in the gospel, above given?

JOHN S. PARRISH.

In reply to the foregoing:

We are constrained to believe that the work in which the officers and members of the church are engaged is to be recognized as the "work of the Lord." ever is commanded of the Lord should be done; the commandment of God is man's authority.

i. Yes. The agents through whom God may speak by his Spirit are to be chosen by him-He may speak through whom he will.

2. Yes. For the reason that these men, being in the active discharge of their duties as spiritual authorities, are supposed to be directed in them by the Spirit; and it is not to be supposed that one of them would speak idly in the name of the Spirit. The form of their making known the teaching of the Spirit is not so essential as the fact of it. No specified formula of speech is given, used or understood.

3. Not necessarily. The action of a district conference by motion and vote, is the choosing of the person "called of God." But it is fair to presume that a district presiding elder is imbued with the spirit of his office, and being directed by it in conducting the affairs of his charge, he may, and probably will, speak by the "word of wisdom"—the "gift of the Spirit" to him-in so designating the one to be chosen. Branch councils and business meetings are the proper places for the presentation of such matters, as it is there such things may be considered and settled, as affairs of the church.

4. The answer is practically as given above in reply to number three.

5. Any person may be presented in the manner proposed in the question, the fact of proper call within the rule being subject to inquiry; the inquiry hinging upon the necessity for an ordination of the sort named in the branch, fitness of the person named for the office aside from the call, and the occasion of the meeting. the occasion is not a proper one, the person named unfitted, or disqualified for the office, or there being no necessity for the officers named, no such ordination should be made.

Secondly. It is the province of presiding officer to receive information and instruction, manifestations and revelations concerning the affairs of the church comprised in their presidency, whether it be branch, district, conference, or mission. The "powers that be, in the church, are ordained (set, fixed, appointed) of God."
It is to be presumed that whatever directions or instructions the Spirit may have to give to the church will be so given through those called of God, chosen and acknowledged, and set apart to preside, or have charge of them. Nor is it improper for the Saints to expect that the Lord will recognize the officers of the church in their respective places, and honor himself by respecting those who are placed in office by his appointment. All members of the church are privileged to attend any and all meetings of the branches to which they belong; all have equal voice and vote in the business meetings; each is at liberty to suggest, speak, make motions, and vote yes, or no, to any and all questions presented for action; but each is not privileged to preside, or to assume the powers of decision, rule, or presidency, for these are vested in some one, or more, chosen to so act; hence the propriety of considering those who may be presiding as being the proper ones through whom the communications, or suggestions, concerning the ordinations referred to ought to be made, in preference to others. "Order is heaven's first law." If the principle of order is held to be observed in heaven, it should also be in the church; for the church is to stand to us as the government of the kingdom of heaven upon earth until the "Son of the Highest" rules on the "Throne of David," to whose "dominion there shall be no end."

Thirdly. No. No one should accept an ordination in the church, coming within the scope of the saying "called of God, as was Aaron;" unless he is satisfied that he is so called, or is sufficiently confident in the integrity of his brethren as to accept their declaration in the case. No one need hesitate to decline to accept ordinaition, until he is justified in himself that he is "called of God." If he accepts, he should approve himself in his office; if he declines he must not expect to escape condemnation if he declines improperly. It is better not to accept, than to accept and dishonor the calling.

Fourthly. We do not know. Each must answer for himself according to the light he has received, and his understanding of the written word. The Savior charged his disciples that they were not to take thought what they should say when they should be brought before rulers, for that it should be given them in the hour of their need. Paul, however, charged that one should be ready to give to "every man a reason for the hope" that was in him. Both injunctions are good, and are in keeping, one with the other. The first was given to men who were liable to be brought into positions in which they could not by previous thought have provided themselves with their defense, as they could not determine by any means in their power when, or how, or under what circumstances they would be called to answer. The second was given to men who were likely to be asked why they had hope in Christ; and for this they could by "study," and careful thought upon what was written, guided by the Spirit which should bear witness to the fact that Jesus is the Christ, be well and ably prepared. Let us be prepared for either condition by the counsel given in each.

THE HOPE.

THE issue of the HOPE for May 4th was, to us, full of good things. We read with much pleasure the "Letter to Sunday School Teachers" by Bessie Bright—an original contribution from some talented and earnest worker in the good cause of educating the children.

Some time ago in requesting that all sustain the HOPE, we predicted that it would become more und more useful, entertaining and instructive.

We hope that subscriptions of means and contributions of talent will still be forwarded to "Sustain the HOPE." Its present size and make up are but prophecies of what the editor and the workers will make it if sustained as it ought to be. Dont neglect the HOPE in its financial and literary interests.

THE Reed City, Michigan, Weekly Clarion of May 1st contains the following friendly notice:

"We are in receipt of a copy for exchange of the Saint's Herald, published at Lamoni, Iowa. The Herald is the official organ of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, erroneously called Mormons. It contains a full and complete report of the fifty-first annual conference of their church at St. Joseph, Mo., April 6th. Joseph Smith is editor, and W. W. Blair associate editor. The Herald is a 16-page quarto, nicely printed, and filled to overflowing with good sound christian reading. This portion of Michigan was represented in the conference by elder J. J. Cornish."

JOSIAH QUINCY ON JOSEPH SMITH.

WE give herewith copious extracts from a book entitled "Figures of the Past," a work written by Josiah Quincy, and published in Boston, Massachusetts, in 1884, by Roberts Brothers. Mr. Quincy intends to deal fairly with his subject, and has done so largely, yet at times there is apparent a measure of bias in his statements, which arises, no doubt, from the strong prejudices so common in the past and present against the name and claims and doings of Joseph Smith. But faulty as his work is, he nevertheless has performed a good service to society, to the church of God, and to the character of Joseph Smith, by the candor and justness and independence with which he writes.

Testimony of this kind, coming from this eminent, honorable, strong-minded public man, one who had not a shadow of connection with Joseph Smith and the Latter Day Saints, one whose religious sentiments were largely moulded by the popular religions of his times, can not be charged with the least personal favor, religiously or politically, toward Mr. Smith and the work he founded and was advocating. Quincy was thoroughly free from and unmoved by any personal interest whatever in behalf of the "extraordinary man" and the strange and marvellous work he represented. Here is something of what he savs:

It is by no means improbable that some future text-book, for the use of generations yet unborn, will contain a question something like this: What historical American of the nineteenth century has exerted the most powerful influence upon the destinies of his countrymen? And it is by no means impossible that the answer to that interrogatory may be thus written: Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet. And the reply, absurd as it doubtless seems to most men now living, may be an obvious common-place to their descendants. History deals in surprises and paradoxes quite as startling as this. The man who established a religion in this age of free debate, who was and is to-day accepted by hundreds of thousands as a direct emissary from the Most High,-such a rare human being is not to be disposed of by pelting his memory with unsavory epithets. Fanatic, impostor, charlatan, he may have been; but these hard names furnish no solution to the problem he presents to us. Fanatics and impostors are living and dying every day, and their memory is buried with them; but the wonderful influence which this founder of a religion exerted and still exerts throws him into relief before us, not as a rogue to be criminated, but as a phenomenon to be explained. The most vital questions Americans are asking each other to-day have to do with this man and what he has left us. Is there any remedy heroic enough to meet the case, yet in accordance with our national doctrines of liberty and toleration, which can be applied to the demoralizing doctrines now advanced by the sect which he created? The possibilities of the Mormon system are unfathomable. Polygamy may be followed by still darker "revelations." Here is a society resting upon foundations which may at any moment be made subversive of every duty which we claim from the citizen. Must it be reached by that last argument which quenched the evil fanaticisms of Mulhausen and Munster? A generation other than mine must deal with these questions. Burning questions they are, which must give a prominent place in the history of the country to that sturdy self-asserter whom I visited at Nauvoo. Joseph Smith, claiming to be an inspired teacher, faced adversity such as few men have been called to meet, enjoyed a brief season of prosperity such as few men have ever attained, and, finally, forty-three days after I saw him, went cheerfully to a martyr's death. When he surrendered his person to Governor Ford, in order to prevent the shedding of blood, the prophet had a presentiment of what was before him: "I am going like a lamb to the slaughter," he is reported to have said; "but I am calm as a summer's morning. I have a conscience void of offence and shall die innocent." I have no theory to advance respecting this extraordinary man. I shall simply give the facts of my intercourse with him. At some future time they may be found to have some bearing upon the theories of others who are more competent to make them. Ten closely written pages of my journal describe my impressions of Nauvoo, and of its prophet, mayor, general, and judge; but details, necessarily omitted in the diary, went into letters addressed to friends at home, and I shall use both these sources to make my narrative as complete as possible. I happened to visit Joseph Smith in company with a distinguished gentleman, who, if rumor may be trusted, has been as conscientious a journal-writer as was his father. It is not impossible that my record may one day be supplemented by that of my fellow traveller, the Hon. Charles Francis Adams. It was on the 25th of April, 1844, that Mr. Adams and myself left Boston for the journey to the West which we had had for some time in contemplation. I omit all account of our adventures-and a very full account of them is before me-until the 14th of May, when we are ascending the clear, sparkling waters of the Upper Missippi in the little steamboat "Amaranth." With one exception we find our fellow-passengers uninteresting. The exception is Dr. Goforth. A chivalric, yet simple personage is this same doctor, who has served under General Jackson at the battle of New Orleans and is now going to Nauvoo, to promote the election of the just nominated Henry Clay. It is to this gentleman we owe our sight of the City of the Saints, which, strangely enough, we had not intended to visit. Though far from being a Mormon himself, Dr. Goforth told us much that was good and interesting about this strange people. He urged us to see for ourselves the result of the singular political system which had been fastened upon Christianity, and to make the acquaintance of his friend, General Smith, the religious and civil autocrat of the community. "We agreed to stop at Nauvoo," says my journal, "provided some conveyance should be found at the landing which would take us up to General Smith's tavern, and prepared our baggage for this contingency. . . . It was a three story frame house, set back from the street and surrounded by a white fence, that we had reached after about two miles of the muddlest driving.

Pre-eminent among the stragglers by the door stood a man of commanding appearance, clad in the costume of a journeyman carpenter when about his work. He was a hearty, athletic fellow, with blue eyes standing prominently out upon his light complexion, a long nose, and a retreating forehead. He wore striped pantaloons, a linen jacket, which had not lately seen the washtub, and a beard of some three days' growth. This was the founder of the religion which had been preached in every quarter of the earth. As Dr. Goforth introduced us to the prophet, he mentioned the parentage of my companion. "God bless you, to begin with!" said Joseph Smith, raising his hands in the air and letting them descend upon the shoulders of Mr. Adams. The benediction, though evidently sincere, had an odd savor of what may be called official familiarity, such as a crowned head might adopt on receiving the heir presumptive of a friendly court. The greeting to me was cordial-with that sort of cordiality with which the president of a college might welcome a deserving janitor-and a blessing formed no part of it. "And now come, both of you, into the house!" said our host, as, suiting the action to the word, he ushered us across the threshhold of his tavern.

A fine-looking man is what the passer-by would instinctively have murmured upon meeting the remarkable individual who had fashioned the mould which was to shape the feelings of so many thousands of his fellow mortals. But Smith was more than this, and one could not resist the impression that capacity and resource were natural to his stalwart person. I have already mentioned the resemblance he bore to Elisha R. Potter, of Rhode Island, whom I met in Washington in 1826. The likeness was not such as would be recognized in a picture, but rather one that would be felt in a grave emergency. Of all men I have met, these two seemed best endowed with that kingly faculty which directs, as by intrinsic right, the feeble or confused souls who are looking for guidance. This it is just to say with emphasis; for the reader will find so much that is puerile and even shocking in my report of the prophet's conversation that he might never suspect the impression of rugged power that was given by the man.

On the right hand, as we entered the house, was a small and very comfortless-looking barroom; all the more comfortless, perchance, from its being a dry barroom, as no spirituous liquors were permitted at Nauvoo. . . .

Smith then began to talk about himself and his people, as of course we encouraged him to do. He addressed his words to Mr. Adams oftener than to me, evidently thinking that this gentleman had or was likely to have political influence, which it was desirable to conciliate. Whether by subtle tact or happy accident, he introduced us to Mormonism as a secular institution before stating its monstrous claims as a religious system. Polygamy, it must be remembered, formed no part of the alleged revelations upon which the social life at Nauvoo was based; indeed, the recorded precepts of its prophet were utterly opposed to such a practice, and it is, at least, doubtful whether this barbarism was in any way sanctioned by Smith, Let a man who has so much to answer for be allowed the full benefit of the doubt; and Mormonism, minus the spiritual wife system, had, as it has to-day, much that was interesting in its secular aspects. Its founder told us what he had accomplished and the terrible persecutions through which he had brought his people. He spoke with bitterness of outrages to which they had been subjected in Missouri, and implied that the wanton barbarities of his lawless enemies must one day be atoned for. He spoke of the industrial results of his autocracy in the holy city we were visiting, and of the extraordinary powers of its charter, obtained through his friend, Governor Ford. . . .

At this point breakfast was announced, and a substantial meal was served in a long back kitchen. We sat down with about thirty persons, some of them being in their shirt sleeves, as if just come from work. There was no going out, as the rain still fell in torrents; and so, when we had finished breakfast, the prophet, (who had exchanged his working dress for a broadcloth suit while we lingered at the table), proposed to return to the chamber we had quitted, where he would give us his views of theology. The bed had been made during our absence and the fire plentifully replenished. Our party was now increased by the presence of the patriarch, Hyrum Smith; Dr. Richards, of Philadelphla, who seemed to be a very modest and respectable Mormon: Dr. Goforth; and a Methodist minister whose name I have not preserved. No sooner were we seated than there entered some half dozen leaders of the sect, among whom, I think, were Rigdon and Young; but of their presence I can not be positive. These men constituted a sort of silent chorus during the expositions of their chief. They fixed a searching, yet furtive gaze upon Mr. Adams and myself, as if eager to discover how we were impressed by what we heard. Of the wild talk that we listened to I have preserved but a few fragments. Smith was well versed in the letter of the Scriptures, though he had little comprehension of their spirit. He began by denving the doctrine of the Trinity, and supported his views by the glib recitation of a number of texts. From this he passed to his own claims to special inspiration; quoting with great emphasiz the eleventh and twelfth verses of the fourth chapter of Ephesians, which, in his eyes, adumbrated the whole Mormon hierarchy. . . .

"And now come with me," said the prophet, and I will show you the curiosities." So saying, he led the way to a lower room, where sat a venerable and respectable-looking lady. "This is my mother, gentlemen. The curiosities we shall see belong to her. They were purchased with her own money, at a cost of six thousand dollars:" and then, with deep feeling, were added the words, "And that woman was turned out upon the prairie in the dead of night by a mob." There were some pine presses fixed against the wall of the room. These receptacles Smith open. ed, and disclosed four human bodies, shrunken and black with age. "These are mummies," said the exhibitor. "I want you to look at that little runt of a fellow over there. He was a great man in his day. Why, that was Pharaoh Necho, King of Egypt!" Some parchments inscribed with hieroglyphics were then offered us. They were preserved under glass and handled with great respect. "That is the handwriting of Abraham, the Father of the Faithful," said the prophet. "This is the autograph of Moses, and these lines were written by his brother Aaron. Here we have the earliest account of the creation, from which Moses composed the First Book of Genesis." The parchment last referred to showed a rude drawing of a man and woman, and a serpent walking upon a pair of legs. . . .

It is well known that Joseph Smith was accustomed to make his revelations point to those sturdy business habits which lead to prosperity in this present life. He had little enough of that unmixed spiritual power which flashed out from the spare, neurasthenic body of Andrew Jackson. The prophet's hold upon you seemed to come from the balance and harmony of temperament which reposes upon a large physical basis. No association with the sacred phrases of Scripture could keep the inspirations of this man from getting down upon the hard pan of practical affairs. "Verily I say unto you, let my servant, Sidney Gilbert, plant himself in this place and establish a store." So had run one of his revelations, in which no holier spirit than that of commerce is discernible. The exhibition of these august relics concluded with a similar descent into the hard modern world of fact. . . .

The clouds had parted when we emerged from the chamber of curiosities, and there was time to see the temple before dinner. General Smith ordered a capacious carriage, and we drove to that beautiful eminence, bounded on three sides by the Mississippi, which was covered by the holy city of Nauvoo. The curve in the river enclosed a position lovely enough to furnish a site for the Utopian communities of Plato or Sir Thomas More; and here was an orderly city, magnificently laid out, and teeming with activity and enterprise. And all the diligent workers, who had reared these handsome stores and comfortable dwellings, bowed in subjection to the man to whose unexampled absurdities we had listened that morning. Not quite unexampled either. For many years I held a trusteeship which required me to be a frequent visitor at the McLean Asylum for the Insane. I had talked with some of its unhappy inmates, victims of the sad but not uncommon delusion that each had received the appointment of vicegerent of the Deity upon earth. It is well known that such unfortunates, if asked to explain their confinement, have a ready reply: "I am sane. The rest of the world is mad, and the majority is against me." It was like a dream to find one's self moving through a prosperous community, where the repulsive claim of one of these pretenders was respectfully acknowledged. It was said that Prince Hamlet had no need to recover his wits when he was despatched to England, for the demented denizens of that Island would never detect his infirmity. If the blasphemous assumptions of Smith seemed like the ravings of a lunatic, he had, at least, brought them to a market where "all the people were as mad as he." Near the entrance to the Temple we passed a workman who was-laboring upon a huge sun, which he had chiselled from the solid rock. The countenance was of the negro type, and it was surrounded by the conventional rays.

"General Smith," said the man, looking up from his task, "is this like the face you saw in vision?"

"Very near it," answered the prophet, "except" (this was added with an air of careful connoisseurship that was quite overpowering)—"except that the nose is just a thought too broad."

The Mormon Temple was not fully completed.

It was a wonderigd structure, altogether indescribable by me. Being, presumably, like something Smith had seen in vision, it certainly can not be compared to any ecclesiastical building which may be discerned by the natural eyesight. It was built of limestone, and was partially supported by huge monolithic pillars, each costing, said the prophet, three thousand dollars. Then in the basement was the Baptistery, which centred in a mighty tank, surrounded by twelve wooden oxen of colossal size. These animals, we were assured, were temporary. They were to be replaced by stone oxen as fast as they could be made. The Temple, odd and striking as it was, produced no effect that was commensurate with its cost. Perhaps it would have required a genius to have designed anything worthy of that noble site. The city of Nauvoo, with its wide streets sloping gracefully to the farms enclosed on the prairie, seemed to be a better temple to Him who prospers the work of industrious hands than the grotesque structure on the hill, with all its queer carvings of moons and suns. This, however, was by no means the opinion of the man whose fiat had reared the building. In a tone half-way between jest and earnest, and which might have been taken for either at the option of the hearer, the prophet put this inquiry: "Is not here one greater than Solomon, who built a temple with the treasures of his father David and with the assistance of Huram, King of Tyre? Joseph Smith has built his temple with no one to aid him in the

On returning to the tavern, dinner was served in the kitchen where we had breakfasted. The prophet carved at one end of the board, while some twenty persons, Mormons or travelers, (the former mostly coatless), were scattered along its sides. At the close of a substantial meal a message was brought to the effect that the United States marshal had arrived and wished to speak to Mr. Adams. This officer, as it turned out, wanted my companion's advice about the capture of some criminal, for whom he had a warrant, The matter was one of some difficulty, for the prophet being absolute in Nauvoo, no man could be arrested or held without his permission. I do not remember what was the outcome of this interview, which was so protracted that it caused Mr. Adams to miss one of the most notable exhibitions of the day.

"General Smith," said Dr. Goforth, when we had adjourned to the green in front of the tavern, "I think Mr. Quincy would like to hear you preach." "Then I shall be happy to do so," was the obliging reply; and, mounting the broad step which led from the house, the prophet promptly addressed a sermon to the little group about him. Our numbers were constantly increased from the passers in the street, and a most attentive audience of more than a hundred persons soon hung upon every word of the speaker. The text was Mark 16: 15, and the comments, though rambling and disconnected, were delivered with the fluency and fervor of a camp meeting orator. The discourse was interrupted several times by the Methodist minister before referred to, who thought it incumbent upon him to question the soundness. of certain theological positions maintained by the speaker. One specimen of the sparring which ensued I thought worth setting down. The prophet is asserting that baptism for the remission of sins is essential for salvation. Minister. Stop! What do you say to the case of the penitent thief? Prophet. What do you mean by that? Minister. You know our Savior said to the thief, "this day shalt thou be with me in paradise," which shows he could not have been baptized before his admission. Prophet. How do you know he wasn't baptized before he became a thief? At this retort the sort of laugh that is provoked by an unexpected hit ran through the audience; but this demonstration of sympathy was rebuked by a severe look from Smith, who went on to say: "But that is not the true answer. In the original Greek, as this gentleman [turning to me] will inform you, the word that has been translated paradise means simply a place of departed spirits. To that place the penitent thief was conveyed, and there, doubtless, he received the baptism necessary for his admission to the heavenly kingdom." The other objections of his antagonist were parried with a similar adroitness, and in about fifteen minutes the prophet concluded a sermon which it was evident that his disciples had heard with the heartiest satisfaction.

In the afternoon we drove to visit the farms upon the prairie which this enterprising people had enclosed and were cultivating with every appearance of success. On returning, we stopped in a beautiful grove, where there were seats and a platform for speaking. "When the weather permits," said Smith, "we hold our services in this place; but shall cease to do so when the Temple is finished." "I suppose none but Mormon preachers are allowed in Nauvoo," said the Methodist minister, who had accompanied our expedition. "On the contrary," replied the prophet, "I shall be very happy to have you address my people next Sunday, and I will insure you a most attentive congregation." "What! do you mean that I may say anything I please and that you will make no reply?" "You may certainly say anything you please; but I must reserve the right of adding a word or two, if I judge best. I promise to speak of you in the most respectful manner." As we rode back, there was more dispute between the minister and Smith. "Come," said the latter, suddenly slapping his antagonist on the knee, to emphasize the production of a triumphant text, if you can't argue better than that, you shall say all you want to say to my people, and I will promise to hold my tongue, for there's not a Mormon among them who would need my assistance to answer you." Some back-thrust was evidently required to pay for this; and the minister, soon after, having occasion to allude to some erroneous doctrine which I forget, suddenly exclaimed, "Why, I told my congregation the other Sunday that they might as well believe Joe Smith as such theology as that." "Did you say Joe Smith in a sermon?" inquired the person to whom the title had been applied. Of course I did, Why not.?" The prophet's reply was given with a quiet superiority that was overwhelming: "Considering only the day and the place, it would have been more respectful to have said Lieutenant-General Joseph Smith." Clearly, the worthy minister was no match for the head of the Mormon church.

I have before me some relics of my visit to Nauvoo. Here is the Book of Mormon, bearing the autograph which its alleged discoverer and translator wrote, at my request; and here are some letters addressed to the same personage which I came by strangely enough. I took them from a public basket of waste-paper, which was placed for the service of the inmates of the tavern. Three of these abandoned epistles I asked leave to keep as memorials of my visit, and no objection was made to my doing so. The most interesting of these letters is dated "Manchester, August 29, 1842," and comes from an English convert to Mormonism. The man writes four pages of giltedged paper to his "beloved brother in the Lord," and sends him by the favor of Elder Snider the following presents: "A hat, a black satin stock, with front, and a brooch." He would fain join the prophet in Nauvoo; but the way is blocked by that not-unheard-of obstacle, a mother-in-law, and until this excellent lady "falls asleep" the disciple must deny his eyes the sight of the master's face. The account of himself given by this correspondent shows with what pathetic sincerity the divine commission of Smith was accepted by a class of men which would seem to be intellectually superior to so miserable a delusion. Suppressing the name of the writer, I shall give a portion of this letter, as it furnishes food for reflection, and shows that the secret of the Mormon prophet is not to be fathomed at a glance:-

"I take the liberty of writing a few lines, being assured that you are a man of God and a prophet of the Most High, not only from testimony given by the brethren, but the Spirit itself beareth witness. It is true that mine eyes have not seen and mine ears heard you; but the testimony I have received shows plainly that God does reveal by his Spirit things that the natural man has not seen by his natural eyes. You may perhaps wonder who the individual is that has written this letter. I will tell you, in a few words: My father died about twenty-four years since, leaving my mother a widow with seven children. . . I remember her teachings well, which were these: Fear God, be strictly honest, and speak the truth. I remember, when about three or four years old, being with her in a shop. I saw a pin on the floor. I picked it up and gave it to her. She told me to give it to the shopman, with a sharp reprimand, showing me that it was a sin to take even a pin. The remembrance of this slight circumstance has followed me from that time to the present. [An account of the writer's conversion to Mormonism follows, after which he goes on thus.] Previously to joining this church, I was a singer in the Church of England, had eight pounds a year, and a good situation in the week time at a retail hat shop. My wife's brother told me I was robbing my children of their bread in giving up the eight pounds. I told him I was not dependent on that for bread, and said unto him the Lord could make up the difference. He laughed at me; but, beloved brother, in about one month from the time I left the Church of England my master raised my wages four shillings a week, (which was about one shilling per week more than that just sacrificed), and this has continued on ever since, which is now two years this month, for which I thank the Lord, together with many other mercies."

I have quoted enough to show what really good material Smith managed to draw into his net. Were such fish to be caught with Spaulding's tedious romance and a puerile fable of undecipherable gold plates and gigantic spectacles? Not these cheap and wretched properties, but some mastering force of the man who handled them, inspired the devoted missionaries who worked such wonders. The remaining letters, both written a year previous to my visit, came from a certain Chicago attorney, who seems to have been the personal friend as well as the legal adviser of the prophet. With the legal advice come warnings of plots which enemies are preparing, and of the probability that a seizure of his person by secret ambush is contemplated. "They hate you," writes this friendly writer, "because they have done evil unto you. . . . My advice to you is not to sleep in your own house, but to have some place to sleep strongly guarded by your own friends, so that you can resist any sudden attempt that might be made to kidnap you in the night. When the Missourians come on this side and burn houses, depend upon it they will not hesitate to make the attempt to carry you away by force. Let me again caution you to be every moment upon your guard." The man to whom this letter was addressed had long been familiar with perils. For fourteen years he was surrounded by vindictive enemies, who lost no opportunity to harass him. He was in danger even when we saw him at the summit of his prosperity, and he was soon to seal his testimony -or, if you will, to expiate his imposture-by death at the hands of dastardly assassins. If these letters go little way toward interpreting the man, they suggest that any hasty interpretation of him is inadequate. . . .

We then went on to talk of politics. Smith recognized the curse and iniquity of slavery, though he opposed the methods of the Abolitionists. His plan was for the nation to pay for the slaves from the sale of the public lands. "Congress," he said, "should be compelled to take this course, by petitions from all parts of the country; but the petitioners must disclaim all alliance with those who would disturb the rights of property recognized by the Constitution and foment insurrection." It may be worth while to remark that Smith's plan was publicly advocated eleven years later, by one who has mixed so much practical shrewdness with his lofty philosophy. In 1855, when men's minds had been moved to their depths on the question of slavery, Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson declared that it should be met in accordance "with the interest of the South and with the settled conscience of the North. It is not really a great task, a great fight for this country to accomplish, to buy that property of the planter, as the British nation bought the West Indian slaves." He further says that the "United States will be brought to give every inch of their public lands for a purpose like this." We, who can look back upon the terrible cost of the fratricidal war which put an end to slavery, now say that such a solution of the difficulty would have been worthy a Christian statesmen. But if the retired scholar was in advance of his time when he advocated this disposition of the public property in 1855, what shall I say of the political and religious leader who had committed himself, in print, as well as in conversation, to the same course in 1844? If the atmosphere of men's opinions was stirred by such a proposition when war-clouds were discernible in the sky, was it not a statesmanlike word eleven years earlier, when the heavens looked tranquil and beneficent?

General Smith proceeded to unfold still further his views upon politics. He denounced the Missouri compromise as an unjustifiable concession for the benefit of slavery. It was Henry Clay's bid for the presidency. Dr. Goforth might have spared himself the trouble of coming to Navoo to electioneer for a duellist who would fire at John Randolph, but was not brave enough to protect the Saints in their rights as American citizens. Clay had told his people to go to the wilds of Oregon and set up a government of their own. Oh yes, the Saints might go into the wilderness and obtain justice of the Indians, which imbecile, time-serving politicians would not give them in the land of freedom and equality. The prophet then talked of the details of government. He thought that the number of members admitted to the Lower House of the National Legislature should be reduced. A crowd only darkened counsel and impeded business. A member to every half million of population would be ample. The powers of the president should be increased. He should have authority to put down rebellion in a state, without waiting for the request of any governor; for it might happen that the governor himself would be the leader of the rebels. It is needless to remark how later events showed the executive weakness that Smith pointed out,—a weakness which cost thousands of valuable lives and millions of treasure; but the man mingled Utopian fallacies with his shrewd suggestions. He talked as from a strong mind utterly unenlightened by the teachings of history. Finally, he told us what he would do, were he President of the United States, and he went on to mention that he might one day so hold the balance between parties as to render his election to that office by no means unlikely.

Who can wonder that the chair of the National Executive had its place among the visions of this self-reliant man. He had already traversed the roughest part of the way to that coveted position. Born in the lowest ranks of poverty, without book-learning and with the homliest of all human names, he had made himself at the age of thirtynine a power upon earth. Of the multitudinous family of Smith, from Adam down, (Adam of the "Wealth of Nations," I mean), none had so won human hearts and shaped human lives as this Joseph. His influence, whether for good or for evil, is potent to-day, and the end is not yet.

I have endeavored to give the details of my visit to the Mormon prophet with absolute accuracy. If the reader does not know just what to make of Joseph Smith, I can not help him out of the difficulty. I myself stand helpless before the puzzle.

WE take the following from the South Manchester (Eng.) Chronicle of April

"CONFERENCE OF LATTER DAY SAINTS .-The elders of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Manchester district) held their annual conference in the "Saints' Chapel," Clarendon street, Great Jackson street, Hulme, on the 19th, 20th and 22d inst. The report for the year ending 31st December, 1888, showed four branches, (churches) composed as follows: 22 elders, 18 priests, 7 teachers, 4 deacons, 188 members, total 239; died, 4, baptized 22. The Sunday Schools and Bands of Hope in connection with the district were reported to be in a prosperous condition. The burial society report showed: 114 members; expended in funeral claims, etc., during the year, £9 10s. 1d., leaving a balance of £55 14s. 7d. The president reported 22 members baptized in the district since the opening of the present year.

Sunday, the 21st, the three services were held in the vestry hall at the Hulme Town Hall. The morning service opened at 10:30 A. M. After the usual prelimiaries, short addresses (were given by two of the elders, who spoke encouragingly of the future prospects of the work in the district. The afternoon meeting was devoted to the membership, many of whom related their experiences since their connection with the movement. At the evening service a large and respectable congregation assembled to hear the tenets of the Saints explained by Elders C. H. Caton and Thomas Taylor, the secretary and president of the mission, who were in excellent form, and received a sympathetic hearing. The whole of the meetings were well attended."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Toseph Flanders, of Horton, Kansas, wrote us under date of the 1st inst., as follows:

"The Strangites of Horton, except three families, do not recognize L. D. Hickey as our representative, neither does he represent us in any way. We consider the brethren of the Reorganization devout, sincere people. We have no bad feelings for them, but many good desires. I shall investigate their principles more fully than ever before.

Sr. Maria Empey, of Dundas, Rice county, Minnesota, says:

"I wish an Elder to come to Dundas. I am one of the old members. We are forty miles south of St. Paul."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Another of our office employes has forsaken the perilous ways of the unmarried and found refuge and safety with the rapidly increasing army of the benedicts. Joseph T. Silver is now a married man, and a well married man, too, for we have known his good wife from the time she was a little girl, and have ever highly esteemed her for her many virtues. We have also known Joseph since his childhood, and have ever felt and now feel deeply interested in his welfare. All the office employes hold this newly married couple in high esteem, and we all bid them goodspeed and a long, prosperous, and very happy life.

We are pleased to note that orders accompanied by funds are beginning to come in for the Saints' Harmony. It will be published just as soon as we can complete the printing and binding, and we trust that orders and money will be liberally sent in sufficient to promptly exhaust the edition.

Bro. J. H. Lawn wrote May 1st, from Watsonville, California, that he had "baptized three sons and two daughters of Bro. and Sr. Andrew, and Margarets, and who live up in the Red Woods, and left them all rejoicing."

Sr. C. Rush writes (omitting address) sending funds for the Home Column. She hopes the Prayer Union will remember herself and family that they may obey the truth, also that a branch may be raised up where she resides.

Sr. Louise Scott of New Providence, Indiana, writes mentioning the encouragement which she derives from reading the news of the progress of the great work of God. She wishes to inform the sisters that if she is not enrolled as a member, she desires the success and keeps the appointments of the Prayer Union. She relates a dream which indicates the coming time when the Saints must be pure.

Sr. Ella Barnes of Independence, Missouri, writes, speaking well of the labors of Brn. Cornish and Evans who visited that place and Armstrong, Kansas, (the former also visiting Knob Noster, Missouri). Bro. Cornish baptized a number while at those points.

Bro. A. Haws writes requesting that his brother, Bro. A. P. Haws of Napa county, California, be prayed for. He is very sick.

Bro. and Sr. J. F. and N. M. Patten of Olivet, Dakota, write in earnest spirit regretting that the temporal law is not more fully complied with that more elders may be sent into the field. Reading a story of a "missionary potato" they resolve to plant a certain amount of that vegetable and remit proceeds to the Bishop, as the best they can do at present in that direction. They hope to hear of others following suit.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"I listen, from no mortal tongue,
To hear the song the angels sung;
And wait within myself to know
The Christmas lillies bud and blow.
The outward symbols disappear
From him whose inward sight is clear;
And small must be the choice of days
To him who fills them all with praise!"

THE UNSEEN BATTLE FIELD.

There is an unseen battle field
In every human breast
Where two opposing forces meet,
And where they seldom rest.

The field is veiled from mortal sight
'Tis only seen by One
Who knows alone where victory lies
When each day's fight is done.

One army clusters strong and fierce, Their chief of demon form; His brow is like the thunder cloud, His voice the bursting storm.

His captains, Pride, and Lust, and Hate, Whose troops watch night and day, Swift to detect the weakest point, And thirsting for the fray.

Contending with this mighty force
Is but a little band,
Yet there with an unyielding front,
These warriors firmly stand.

Their leader is a godlike form,
Of countenance serene;
And glowing on his naked breast,
A simple cross is seen

His captains, Faith, and Hope, and Love, Point to the wond'rous sign, And gazing at it, all receive Strength from a power divine.

They feel it speaks a glorious truth,—
A truth as great as sure,—
That, to be victors, they must learn
To love, confide, endure.

That faith sublime, in widest strife
Imparts a holy calm;
In every deadly blow a shield,
For every wound a balm.

And, when they win that battle field,
Past toil is quite forgot;
The plain where carnage once had reigned,
Becomes a hallowed spot—

A spot where flowers of joy and peace Spring from the fertile sod, And breathe the perfume of their praise On every breeze—to God.

GOING FOR FASHION.

The sermon of Rev. Nels Eagle on "Dress" has produced so much talk, that we print the following synopsis, furnished by one there. It is worth reading:

All extravagant and fashionable dressing has its origin in a vain and foolish heart. The person ought to beautify the clothes, and not the reverse. A good man or woman is good, no matter how he or she is dressed. Are the people more extravagant dow-a-days in dress than our forefathers used to be? The preacher said that he thought that we are not, and gave a number of illustrations on this point.

In regard to how a person ought to dress, he said: A person should always get the best goods that he can afford, because it is the cheapest in the course of time, for they wear so much longer. He should have them made in the best and nicest way, so they will look neat and good. But no one should wear clothes that he has not paid for with honest money, because that is dishonesty; and yet there are hundreds and thousands who do it every year.

No one should wear clothes that are detrimental or hurtful to the development of the body, because that is a sin against yourself. If a person is so foolish that he would like to do it, still he ought to fear the God who has said, "Do thyself no harm." How many there be who in order to have small feet buy too small shoes, and the consequence is that after a while their feet are so sore and tender that they can hardly walk. Ah, my friend, there is room enough on America's free soil for a twelve inch shoe if you need it, rather than to hurt yourself. To lace tight is wrong, and especially so for young women; it hinders the circulation of the blood and causes sickness of many kinds. There is not a doctor but what, if he wants to tell the truth, would say that it ought not to be done.

Again we think that when you find a pattern that is pretty and comfortable that ought to be kept. But here is where the trouble comes in. You have to follow all the changes of the fashion plate and there is where the vanity of the heart rules. A thing is handsome and pretty because it is the fashion; so then that which was so stylish last summer will as a matter of course be very ugly next summer. Now to think for a moment that church members and professed Christians should in everything go hand in hand with the world is a sad thing.

Again, how people dress their hair! To have the hair cut and wear bangs! well, it looks good in a horse, but not in a young lady! Others paint their faces and use powder. Now I wish that all that do such things would think of the fact that God has an eye on them and that they actually spoil that which he has made beautiful. God made both man and woman right but they seek many inventions. To be natural is the prettiest, so far as complexion is concerned at least.

Of bustles I have nothing to say just now, only this: When a woman comes to church and takes the hymn book and places it between her back and the back of the seat in order to avoid damage to the bustle, then it goes a little too far—and still I have seen it done; not here, but in some other place. How about the men? Well, they are just as bad. Just look at these "dudes" with their hair parted in the middle, and all the nip and tuck that their foolish heart can think of—and then how utterly worthless they are after all. God help us all from being slaves to fashion or anything else.

Sr. S. A. Hodge (formerly Rose) requests us to say to her many friends that her present address is Beaver, Beaver county, Pennsylvania.

Errata.—In the Home Column of last issue the article entitled, "One and One are More Than Two," should have been credited to "Sunday School Times editorial."

PRAYER UNION.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JUNE.

1St Thursday: Acts 20: 35; Rom. 15: 1,2;

1 Thes. 5: 12-15.

2d Thursday: Joel 1: 3; Psa. 78: 6, 7. 3d Thursday: Rom. 10: 15; Zeph. 3: 12. 4th Thursday: Isa. 26: 15; ch. 62: 1.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Sr. Kate Curry of Senior, Texas, asks your faith and prayers in behalf of her afflicted child, whom the Lord has promised to heal.

Sr. White of Webb City, Missouri, who is almost blind, desires your prayers in her behalf, that her sight may be restored.

Mrs. John Thornton, Leverton, Missouri, also desires your prayers that her affliction may be removed.

Also Bro. Hodge of Beaver, Pennsylvania, wishes to have his little boy remembered by the Union.

A sister who is suffering with a broken limb requests your prayers. For wise reasons her name is not published.

Sr. Headrick of Pixley, California, requests your prayers for her sister, Mrs. Yates, who is greatly afflicted.

Sr. Melissa Keairns, Dunlap, Iowa, wishes your prayers in her behalf, that her eyes may be healed and sight restored.

ALLENDALE, Mo., April 25th.

Sister Frances: - I write to inform you that the sisters of this branch are endeavoring to serve the Lord and keep his commandments. We met last November and organized a Sisters' Prayer Meeting with five members present; but the Lord has surely blessed us and our numbers have been increased beyond our expectations. We meet Thursday afternoons at two o'clock. At our meeting last Thursday there was a hymn sung in an unknown tongue and interpreted by a sister. It was truly encouraging to us. The import of it was encouragment to the sisters to go on in faith for their prayers were heard, even the weakest one, and to be faithful for there were great blessings in store for the faithful ones. The officers chosen were Sr. Helen Ackley, president; Sr. Minerva Hammer, treasurer; Sr. Eliza Ann Cochran, secretary.

We have also organized a society called the "Sisters' Mite Society." The following regulations were adopted: That each member should pay ten cents for membership and five cents monthly dues, and if any can not pay membership or dues and wish their names enrolled and desire to help work for the good of the cause they will be cordially received and entitled to all the privliges of the society. We meet every two weeks on Thursday afternoon, when the weather will permit.

Your sister in Christ,

HELEN ACKLEY.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 30th.

Dear Sister Frances:-In this branch we have a Prayer Union and a Sewing Society. We pay five cents each per month. We do all kinds of sewing and I think the formation of the Prayer Union is one of the best things that ever happened this branch. The prayers of the faithful avail much. Then, sisters, let us one and all watch, lest we fall into temptation. I have a great desire to do my heavenly Father's will and hope and pray that I may never be a stumblingblock to any one. There are some of our officers who go about four miles south-east of Kansas City to preach twice each month, and think good will result. We ask the prayers of the Saints that our branch may be more thoroughly organized and its members become as fruitful vines.

In bonds of peace, your sister,

AGNES EDWARDS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 30th.

Sister Frances:—The sisters of the first Kansas City branch met to organize a Prayer Union in connection with their Sewing Society. Lydia A. Schmitz was chosen to act as president, Agnes Edwards secretary and Lydia Tankard treasurer.

Agnes Edwards, Sec.

A PLEA FOR THE ERRING.

Many articles have been written about boys who have been led astray, and in nearly all, the better boys and girls have been advised to leave such ones entirely alone, fearing contamination. But has it ever occured to these writers that boys, even the worst ones, have sensitive feelings as well as others; and that there might possibly be a better way to deal with them than this?

Young girls have been exhorted never to look with tolerance upon a young man who drinks, no matter if he has been led away from truth; no matter what may have been the cause of his downfall, he must be left entirely alone.

Doubtless a more Christ-like way is to try by influence and sympathy to see whether the hearts of these young men are entirely hardened to every pure thought.

One who has erred is much more likely to yield to good example and kindly sympathy, than to long sermons or indifference. To meet friends whose faces once brightened at the meeting, and now see them turn away with a steely coldness, hardens the heart, and he who was perhaps even then contemplating his error, and was listening to the better thoughts which were crowding his heart, throws these thoughts to the wind saying, "As well the game as the name." The good seed planted but a moment before by some wiser friend, who, with smiles and sympathy inpressed the erring one with his earnestness and good wishes, has been utterly destroyed, shriveled by the frosts of unkindness.

We can not realize with how much the poor, struggling boy has to contend. All know that the past generation hardly began to appreciate the virtue of temperance. It has only been a short time since the glass and decanter were upon every table; to drink was gentlemanly.

Now, many boys have to fight against an inherited love for drink, the strength of which we can not comprehend.

How many times we may have, though unconsciously, pushed a struggling fellow-being down, farther down the hill of shame! How many times he has, perhaps, climbed wearily up a few steps, when he has been violently thrown back by the coldness and unfriendliness with which we have met him, not deigning him in our superiority and goodness(?) one glance of sympathy or human fellowship! May God forgive us if ever when the sin-sick soul cried out "Oh, for one glance of kindness, one act of love," we have thrown him a stone!

A kind word is an untold influence for good; indifference, an infinite power for evil. May we use all the power for good we possess, as Christ would do, not being sparing of its abundance.

MAY JUNE.

We gladly welcome "May June" to the sacred precincts of the Column and we commend the thoughts of our young sister to the careful consideration of those who are older, and who having been longer engaged in the service of the Master should be wiser. Ah, when will we learn this one grand lesson, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance!" When will we learn to separate the sinner from the sin, and while we pity the first, reserve all our condemnation for the last.

"Son, give me thy heart!" How gentle and tender the voice of pleading. It was taught and inculcated by every act of Jesus, which had a bearing on this point. Plain, pointed, most direct and scathing were his denunciations of the Scribes and Pharisees, who, sitting in Moses' seat, taught the people to be very careful to observe the law, and who made a man an offender for a word; while they themselves were hypocrites, doing constantly those things which were contrary to the law; but his tender pity ever hovered around the poor, mistaken sinner, whom he had come to rescue.

This pity is always found dwelling most richly and fully in the hearts of those who are most like him. It is the love which stoops, not to become like the erring one, but to lift him up by every power of persuasion one human being may exercise over another, into a purer atmosphere, a nobler life. (ED.)

Home Column Missionary Fund.

Sr. Hannah Moor, Calihan, O$1	00
Bro T. W. Beurse, Pleasant Lake, Mass2	00
Sr. C. Rush, Heppner, Oregon	00
Sr. Carrie Lewis, Stuart, Iowa	50
Sr. Ann Cotton, Newton, Iowa	00
Sr. Elizabeth Ainley, Newton, Iowa 1	00
Sr. Ellen Johnson, Norway, Ill	00
Sr. Elizabeth Hartnell, Junita, Mich	00
Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iows Lamoni, Iowa, May 9th.	i.

ADDRESSES.

John T. Davis, 42 Lakefield Road, Llanelly, Carmarthenshire, Wales.

Correspondence.

NEW PROVIDENCE, Ind., Apr. 30th. Bro. Foseph:-I preach in four school districts in Lawrence county, with great liberty and large congregations and good attention-sometimes one and two hundred in attendance. I preached in the town of Lawrenceport on White river with crowded houses and good attention; also in the Lee school house, not far from the line of Jackson county. I preached at this place for one week and I think a branch will be organized there in the near future. I preached at the Plate school house, also the Shuff school house, and in the town of Mitchell. The work through this part of the district is getting to be pretty well understood. There was a publication through the Mitchell Herald, concerning our faith, the best I have ever seen. It has done great good in that part. It was handed to me by a Campbellite lady asking if I endorsed it. I said that I did.

The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; pray, therefore, that the Lord of the harvest may send more laborers into the field. There are good people there, and they treated me with great respect. I shall remember them with due respect.

The publication was the result of my preaching there. There is a great field of labor there.

I shall ever praise the Lord for his mercy exercised over us; for he truly is glorious in holiness, fearful in praises; doing wonders. May the Lord add peace and mercy to the entire membership of the body.

JAMES G. SCOTT.

42 Lakefield Road, LLANELLY, Wales, April 24th.

Brn. Foseph and William: My health is not the best in this country. I like America a great deal better. Sr. Davis is getting rather better health here. We could put up with most anything better than the low condition of the work here, and the obstacles in the way of reaching the people. The same terrible death-like feeling and influence opposes the work here as you and your fellow laborers witnessed for many years in "the waste places of Zion," all shut up through the errors committed by Brigham Young, etc. It is going to be a steady pull here for many years, and I think it important that missionaries be sustained here all the time, if we will maintain what we have and gain any more. We have lost in the past by neglecting having missionaries here all the time to travel. The Brighamites have full complement in the field-about fifteen-and they intend to swell the number to one hundred this summer they tell me. Poor fellows, they have to make terrible sacrifices, both in means and feelings. They do no good, for they are "trodden under the feet of men" everywhere.

I realize the good of my going up to Utah before I came here. The Utah elders do not get it all their own way. They carry on their work under false colors, for they carry in their hands the Epitome of the faith of the church under Joseph the Martyr, but in their hearts a different kind of belief altogether. There is a hidden "mystery" underneath their missionary business. The most of them are run aways from the officers of the law. We have such here now. They are sent out to gather "generalities" for work in their temples, etc, and they succeed in it, some thirty, and some forty, and some a hundred fold—and when these "names" are returned they bring at least a dollar a head in the temple, which you can see at a glance will make those buildings as productive of gain as any railroad system in the United States—thats the way it appears to me. Pity the deceived ones!

I have the "Reply to L. O. Littlefield" in course of translation and aim to get it out through the Welsh and English papers, and also have them in leaflet form for distribution. I consider the "Reply" the best matter of its kind we have. We have no word from conference yet.

I am very glad the Lord is carrying forth his work by raising up the young, and am encouraged by the good reports of the elders nearly everywhere. Hope Bro. Joseph's health has improved. Nothing does me so much good as to hear of the prosperity of the great work.

J. T. DAVIS.

ANTONITO, Col., May 1st.

Dear Herald:—One more was added at Manassa, Colorado, the 21st ultimo, and four at the above place on the 27th, which gives us seven members here and six in Manassa, with fully twenty others in both places who believe and admit the validity of our position and a continuance of the great work begun in 1827 by Joseph the Seer. Duty calls me to move from this point. Bro. F. B. Moyers will take the oversight of the work here and at Manassa. It seems proper to defer organization in both places for the time being, but stated meetings will be held, with efforts to establish Sabbath Schools, etc.

That the Saints might not be deprived of church privliges it was thought best to confer the eldership on Bro. S. W. Payne. Our members and those in sympathy with us do not design to make Manassa their abiding place forever, hence may float off any day to more congenial climes. With sadness I take leave of the Saints in the above places and highly appreciate their kindness, and for their final salvation will ever pray. It affords me more than ordinary satisfaction to know that I can commend them to God and to the word of His grace which is able to build them up and give them an inheritance among all them which are sanctified. And nothing tends to so effectually convince of the validity of thus commending as the splendid confirmation meetings held. It matters not if a poor, trembling Paul plants and an Apollos who evinces fallibility waters, if the Lord but give the increase; and without that the planting of Paul and the watering of Apollos will indeed be vain.

The news of the improvement of Pres. Joseph Smith's health is most gratifying. I sincerely hope he will find it practicable to visit this part on his retnrn, as under God's guidance he would do a vast amount of good; for many are ready to duly honor those whom God calls. I learn since I left New Mexico that a very pious representative of one branch of the Methodists assumed an antagonistic attitude; said Joe Smith got a revelation, went to New Nork, hired a lawyer to fit up the Spaulding romance, hence the Book of Mormon and the displacing of the Old Bible; that they became so corrupt the people drove them out and they made their headquarters at Salt Lake City; that all the members have to go to Salt Lake once a year to venerate Brigham Young's grave. Doubtless that stalwart, farseeing Methodist divine thought he had struck the death-blow to what he was pleased to call Mormonism. Were the Latter Day Saints to exhibit such profound ignorance as to the rise and the validity-or non-validity-of Methodism, there would be a howling among the self-styled reverends about Mormon illiteracy, etc. But ignorance from one in their ranks of the rise of the Church of Latter Day Saints with a corresponding amount of sectarian bigotry is heartily endorsed-though there may be some honorable exceptions. I addressed a respectful note to the reverned gentleman with an Epitome of our faith, and the Spaulding romance, that if he desires he may read and learn.

In gospel bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., May 2d.

Bro. Blair:—I have been in Valley Center, San Diego county, and have a good opening there. I preached in three school houses and had a good hearing. Baptized six good souls into the kingdom, all heads of families, five from the Methodist Church. The M. E. minister spoke very hard against our taith. He would not come out to debate when he was invited to. I have many friends there, and good will result. I shall go back in a few weeks and have hopes of more coming into the kingdom of Christ. It is a new place. Bro. Pickering went with me and was a good help to me. I trust the Lord will bless and prosper his work.

Yours in truth,

Wm. M. Gibson.

Monmouth, Ill., Agr. 29th.

Bro. Blair:—I send you $5.00 to be credited on my three church papers—Herald, Zion's Hope and Autumn Leaves, none of which I can get along without. I have no children, and yet the Hope is as sweet to me as if I was a little boy; for one reason, and that is, I do not believe a man or a woman can be a true Christian or follower of Christ, without loving little children; for the reason that Christ said, "Except ye become as these little ones, ye can in no wise enter the kingdom of heaven."

Therefore I never expect to let the little children drop out of my notice.

Yours in the love of Christ,

L. M. SOLLENERGER.

Dow CITY, Iowa, May 3d.

Dear Bro. Blair:—I enclose an obituary notice of Grandma Hunt. She was perfectly conscious to within a few hours of her departure, and passed away apparently without the least pain, but with a pleasant smile on her countenance. Truly the death of the righteous is "sweet unto them." It always gave her much pleasure to talk of Elder Blair's pleasant visits away back in early days.

"Uncle Billy Jordan" is dead and was buried to-day. I had not heard anything about him for some time. But he was old and quite feeble, and liable to pass away any time. Am thankful that, in these cases, we are mourners of hope.

Uncle Jno. A. McIntosh met with quite a severe accident a little over two weeks ago. He and wife were returning from a visit to Bro. John Hunt's, and starting on the way home the horses ran down a short and steep pitch on the road, and Uncle John was thrown or fell out of the buggy and was very much shaken up, and bruised on his left side. On Sunday last he was able to be up and walk a little out of doors. He felt a little impatient and fretful—a sure sign of convalescence it is said. *** Bro. I. Hansen has been sick for some time. Brn. Butterworth and Jackson administered to him last Sunday, and later on in the day Brn. Jenkins, John Hunt and myself called on and prayed for him also, and all felt encouraged.

We are having good meetings, and from what I hear the Saints in other places near are also.

In gospel bonds,

JOHN PETT.

Onawa, Iowa, April 23d.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:—We have no meetings here and there is only one sister within several miles. I have felt impressed to bear my testimony to the mercies of God toward my family; especially how I was healed and raised from sore affliction.

In 1875 I was taken down with lung fever, and when my babe died the typhoid fever set in and I was very sick. A doctor was sent for at the start but I became worse, and one day as I lay thinking, knowing that I had done wrong in employing a doctor instead of doing as we are commanded in case of sickness, I was wondering if God would forgive me when I knew so well what to do. I heard a voice say to me plainly, "Your sins are already forgiven you, and if you put your trust in God you shall live; but if you trust in a doctor you will die." And O, how I rejoiced! I felt that it was a voice from heaven. Feeling to put a great deal of confidence in my father I desired to talk with him on the subject. He came and I talked with him, then we dismissed the doctor and threw the medicine away, for my heart was all in God then. I grew worse very rapidly, and a fast and prayer meeting was called and I was administered to. They had the promise that if they were faithful and put their faith in God I should be raised to health, but I was so sick then that I did not realize hardly anything; still, whenever I was in my right mind I would beg of my father to not let any one give me medicine-I felt to trust in God. The most of the time I was out of my mind and at times was very wild, but still God sent his angels to visit me. At one time when I was rational I heard such sweet music and singing. I remember the last line of each verse was, "To reign on earth with Christ a thousand years;" and at one time I thought I was dying. I called my husband and two little children to my bed. I kissed them, bade them good bye, begged them not to cry for me, for if they knew how happy I would be they would not mourn for me, and begged my husband to stick to the latter day work and teach our little ones the right way. I plead with my uncle to investigate the work and join the church, for I knew it was the true Church of Christ, and I was willing to die by it for I could see such happiness in it, even in the hour of death. At another time I saw, as it is called, hell; a place of everlasting punishment. It seemed like a place of darkness where the wicked would go; a dark pit where no one would ever know of their sorrow and torment. I would lay in spasms for five hours at a time and sink away until my friends thought I was gone-only those that looked forward with faith in the promise given them were all that had any faith. Then I was administered to by Brn. John H. Lake and John Lambert; and through faith and prayers and trust in God I was healed, for which I am thankful to-day. And if I am not permitted to bear my testimony again, I will say now that I know that this is the true gospel of Christ, as he taught it when on earth and sent his disciples to teach to every nation, kindred, tongue and people. I love the latter day work. I have many trials the same as the rest of you; but I know if we prove faithful until death we shall receive a glorious rest, free from all trials and pain. Please pray for me and my family that we may be prepared to meet Christ in peace at his coming.

I love the Herald; it brings me good news and cheers me in my loneliness, so far from the Saints whom I love to be with. I often shed tears of joy when reading it. I almost feel as though I had been talking with the sisters face to face after reading their letters. I feel that the Spirit is in the words written to cheer and strengthen each other.

I ask an interest in the prayers of all, and of the sisters of the Prayer Union that I may be spared through my affliction and live to see my companion and my family all rejoicing in the gospel of Christ. Your sister,

M. L. CAMERON.

BROWN CITY, Michigan, April 28th. Editors Herald:—Since last October I have been detained at home most of the time. My wife and my mother were both taken sick and February 20th mother passed over to the other side, dying strong in the faith of the latter day work. I have awakened a good interest in several places around home. The work in this part seems to be on the move. I baptized yesterday two promising young men. I expect to enter my field of labor as soon as possible. I hope that in two or three weeks my wife will be so well that I can return to my field. Many calls from all directions to come and preach.

Yours in gospel bonds, J. A. CARPENTER.

....

WELLMANVILLE, Kansas, April 29th. Bro. W. W. Blair :- On the 14th of this month I organized a Union Sunday School. I had thought and it was understood by me and our Swiss friend that I would organize a Saints' school, but they could not stand the pressure; but more and more I realize that man's extremities are God's opportunities. I built the M. E. sod church. It was declared that the Mormons would never get to preach in it. I was asked to preach in a school three miles south of here and as only six came out I was not asked to preach again; but next Sunday the M. E. class leader and superintendent of Sunday School came to me and asked me if I would give them a short sermon or an essay. I said I would and took for my text "Seek ye first the kingdom," and for the lesson I read part of Matt. sixth and dwelt a little on the thirteenth verse. It was sometime before they got reconciled. Some of them came to me and said, "It is all right, but to think that we have read that all our lives and could not see it until a Mormon should clear it up for us."

In our Literary last winter we had a question: "Resolved that the wicked dead have no resurrection." I took the negative and it was decided in favor of the negative. Next Saturday evening we debate probation after death. Some of my friends are afraid they are going to do me up. I tell them to come up and see them do it and bring as many as they ean.

Yours in a cause that is true,

E. H. EBERT.

PERSIA, Iowa, May 2d.

Dear Herald:—It is almost two years since I united with the Saints. I have had strong proof of my acceptance with God, a satisfaction I never before felt, although I was a member of the Presbyterian church for twenty years. We have been blessed through the administration of the elders which has caused us to rejoice and praise God, giving Him all the glory. I have been trying to do all I can in my feeble way to show others the way. I have a dear mother and four sisters. I so earnestly pray that I may be the instrument in God's hand to bring them to the light. Could I but find words to express the joy and the hope I have in this latter day work! I have a number of tracts to distribute. Pray for me.

Your sister,

FRANCES M. CHAPMAN.

TRANCES III CHAIMAN

Canboro, Michigan, April 28th.

Brother Blair:—I am alone where I am, but I have the Spirit of the Master with me to help me. When I look around out on the world and see how blind they are to the true faith, it makes my heart sorrow for them. But I hope the time is not far off when there shall be an opening made here so the people can see the true light and be made to rejoice the same as I have.

I remain your brother, CURTIS C. LAMBKIN.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS BY THE BISHOPRIC.

Question 1.—Is there any law in the church exempting all or any of the traveling ministry, or any other who is giving the whole of his time to the ministry, from paying tithing? or is their work regarded as a set off to their tithing?

Answer.-We know of no such law. On the other hand the law relating to tithes and offerings is a general one, and we are furnished with no exceptions to the same in the Scriptures. It embraces within its scope the Patriarch, Abraham, rich in this world's goods and a preacher of the gospel, and the widow who can dispense with but a single "mite." The law itself is a spiritual one, although relating to temporal things, and calculated to better those complying with the same, similar to the law of baptism. This is a law pertaining to an outward ordinance: yet the law is spiritual and proves a benefit to all who comply with the same as provided in the Scriptures.

To the second part of the question we say, no; an elder is not supposed in any sense to pay his tithing—or to fulfill this law—by preaching. Just as well conclude that it would do in place of the 'laying on of hands," to be baptized a second time; not to say anything about what a poor preacher it must be to require all his time in the ministry to offset a one-tenth part of his chattels.

Jesus taught his disciples to comply with this law, from the basis that benefits accrued from the proper keeping of it.—Mat. 6:1-4; Luke 11:41, 42; 16:9-13. Jesus does not give the people a new law in his instructions as to almsgiving, but tells them how to keep the law which they had received through the "fathers;"—this was the law of "tithes and offerings;" and the object in all cases the same as that referred to by the apostle when he urges the Saints to comply: "Not because I desire a gift; but I desire fruit that may abound to your account."—Phil. 4:17.

In the Book of Doctrine and Covenants the instruction is very plain and positive and in entire harmony with the Scriptures.
—See par. 1, sec. 72.

"It is required of the Lord, at the hand of every steward, to render an account of his stewardship both in time and in eternity. For he who is faithful and wise in time is accounted worthy to inherit the mansions prepared for them of my Father. Verily I say unto you, the elders of the church in this part of my vineyard shall render an account of their stewardship unto the Bishop which shall be appointed of me in this part of my vineyard."

Ques. 2.—If one of the traveling ministry sells a piece of land upon which he has paid no tithe, would the law of the church require that he pay tithing on the proceeds?

Ans.—The law of the church would apply to such minister just the same as any other member; being a minister, he ought to be careful to comply at once and be an "ensample [example] to the flock."

Ques. 3.—Suppose an elder who owns $1,000 be appointed a mission; his tithing would be $100, (if he paid at all) and the tenth of his increase about $9 annually; but as the church appointed him to travel it would be bound to keep his wife and family and their expenses would be about $400 per annum. The elder prefers to keep his wife and family to paying tithing. What would the law be in that case?

Ans.—The law would not—could not -change. The man could take his own course, but it would be contrary to the law and he would be able to run but a short time. Why should the elder wish to do his own way, and yet seek to be a teacher of the law of God? He would tell the people that he was a proper administrator of the law of God, and they must obey, and that according to the terms of the law; while at the same time he admitted that the Bishop and his assistants were the only proper administrators of the law relating to temporal things, and yet he claimed that he could do as he pleased about it. His own teaching would condemn him before an all-wise judge.

Ques. 4.—Has any of the traveling ministry the right to go to a Bishop's agent and demand to know how much money he has on hand?

Ans.—No. He may properly inquire as to whether he has sufficient funds to meet demands upon the treasury and whether the Saints are complying with the law which is for the replenishing of the treasury; and it is the duty of the agent to treat all with proper courtesy, but not permit the books to go out of his possession except so directed by the Bishop, or when necessary to place in the hands of a committee duly appointed by a district conference for examination, and it is the duty of the agent to have his books present at all quarterly conferences so that they may be properly examined and audited so that no mistakes may occur.

If the traveling ministry, or the local ministry, or members, fail to receive that courtesy extended that is proper from agents, they should not have any words or ill feeling with the agent, but report the facts of discourtesy to the Bishop, who will make proper corrections; further it would be wise for all agents to strictly follow all instructions given by the Bishopric. By so doing, conflictions will have no occasion to rise.

G. A. BLAKESLEE,

Presiding Bishop.

A FULL SALVATION.

Dear Herald:—It is on account of the interest I have in this work, and the spirit that impresses me, that I carefully peruse the three books. Fearing that I may, through weakness misapply their teachings, I ask the Father in the name of Christ that He may give me wisdom that I may make no misapplication. He has promised to give to all men liberally and not upbraid.

Thus far, I have found nothing in the three books that conflicts, but have found them in perfect unity, and I firmly believe that by obeying the laws contained therein that I will not only be saved from sin, but from death, and also receive a temporal salvation.

I want to call attention to what I understand to be saved from sin: Mark 16:15, 16; Matthew 28:12, 20; Acts 2:38, 39; I Peter 3:20, 21; Hebrews 6:1,2; Titus 3:5; Acts 12:17; 19:5, 6; called by James the perfect law of liberty; James 1:25; the psalmist the law of the Lord; Psalms 19:7; and by the apostle the law of the Spirit; Romans 8:1, 2. See also Book of Mormon, Nephi 3:7; 10:5; 8:9; 2:3; 12:3, 4; Mormon 3:4, 7; and Doctrine and Covenants 49:1, 2; 55:1; 106:11. This is sufficient for any candid thinking person; this is to be saved from sin.

I now call your attention to temporal salvation. Consider the days of Noah when he was preaching righteousness, and bear in mind the gospel. He was saved by temporal means—the ark which he constructed after the pattern that the Almighty had given. Think of righteous Lot and his two daughters escaping from Sodom and Gomorah and fleeing to the land of Zoar. (Gen. 19: 22–30.) Mark you, as it was in those days so it will be of the coming of the Son of Man. (Matt. 24: 37–39.) I also call your attention to

Moses, how he escaped by temporal means by going through the Red Sea; and Joshua by passing through the River

Jordan. (Joshua 3: 13-17.)

We will now pass over the rest of the prophets and come to the days of Christ. When he was warning his disciples of the destruction of Jerusalem, "When you see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know the desolation thereof is nigh," and he told them to flee into Judea. I ask, To be saved from the destruction that was coming upon it. And right here he tells them of his second appearing, when "there shall be signs in the sun and in the moon and in the stars; men's hearts failing them for fear; looking after those things that are coming on the earth. For the power of heaven shall be shaken." (Luke 21:20-26; D. and C., 28:2, 7; 36; B. of M., 2 Nephi 2: 2, 3, 5; 5: 9, 12; 1:4; Nephi 19:8, 12.)

The judgments of God are to be upon the earth, as John saw in vision (Rev. 14: 6, 7; Isa. 26:9.) Now if our Creator is unchangeable, will he not have a place prepared in this the eleventh hour? If you will turn with me to Joel 2:32, 33; Psalms 48:50, 51; 17:18 and 132 you will find that he has prepared a gathering place, and I believe the field of the woods to be on this continent, in the land of Missouri. (Sections 57, 58 and 59 D. and C.)

souri. (Sections 57, 58 and 59 D. and C.) Concerning salvation from death, please read the following: Job 19: 23-26; Isaiah 26: 19; Ezekiel 37: 1-10; Daniel 12: 2, 3; John 5: 25-29; Acts 24: 14, 15; Romans 1:4; Revelations 20: 4, 15; 2 Nephi 6: 4, 6; Jacob 3: 3; Mosiah 8: 6; Alma 9: 2, 5; Mormon 3: 4, 6; D. and C. 63: 5, 13; 76; 85: 4, 6; 108: 9.

I am sure this is sufficient for any thinking man, to prove that these books are in perfect unity with each other. I know, with a blessed assurance, that if I walk in perfect harmony with these three books I will be found spotless before the pleasing bar of God.

I can bear my testimony that Joseph the Martyr was a prophet of God, and that his son is his successor in this day; the honor and glory be to God and the Lamb!

Your brother,

N. R. NICKERSON.

THE "SEALED BOOK."-No. VIII.

BY ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

MONUMENTAL ARCHÆOLOGY.

AGE, location and derivation of aboriginal civilization being now before us, we are prepared to enquire into the nature of that civilization; and for the special benefit of those who may not have access to the Book of Mormon, and may take an interest in reading this paper, I transcribe the more important accounts of the work done by the early inhabitants which indicate their civilization and clear away all the uncertainty surrounding the antiquities of America.

"And it came to pass that I, Nephi, did guide the ship, that we sailed again toward the promised land. And it came to pass that after we had sailed for the space of many days, we did arrive to the promised land; and we went forth upon the land, and did pitch our tents, and we did call it the promised land. And it came to pass that we did begin to till the earth, and we began to plant seeds; yea, we did put all of our seeds into the earth, which we had brought from the land of Jerusalem. And it came to pass that they did grow exceedingly; wherefore, we were blessed in abundance."—I Nephi 5:43-4.

This is a brief statement of the Lehi migration, their landing upon the American continent, and their first efforts in husbandry, which is the basis of all civilization. After the wants of the family are provided for, a very important factor in civilization is a well organized government, and a God-appointed institution of worship, all of which necessitates the erection of buildings.

"And it came to pass, that the Lord did warn me, that I, Nephi, should depart from them, and flee into the wilderness, and all those who would go with me. Wherefore it came to pass that I, Nephi, did take my family, and also Zoram and his family, and Sam, mine elder brother and his family, and Jacob and Joseph my younger brethren, and also my sisters, and all those who would go with me. And all those who would go with me were those who believed in the warnings and revelations of God; wherefore they did hearken unto my words. And we did take our tents and whatsoever things were possible for us, and did journey in the wilderness for the space of many days. And after we had journeyed for the space of many days, we did pitch our tents. And my people would that we should call the name of the place Nephi; wherefore, we did call it Nephi. And all those that were with me, did take upon them to call themselves the people of Nephi. And we did observe to keep the judgments, and the statutes, and the commandments of the Lord in all things, according to the law of Moses. And the Lord was with us; and we did prosper exceedingly; for we did sow seed, and we did reap again in abundance. And we began to raise flocks and herds and animals of every kind. And I, Nephi, had also brought the records which were engraven upon the plates of brass; and also the ball, or compass, which was prepared for my father, by the hand of the Lord, according to that which is written. And it came to pass that we began to prosper exceedingly, and to multiply in the land.

"And I, Nephi, did take the sword of Laban, and after the manner of it did make many swords, lest by any means the people who were now called Lamanites, should come upon us and destroy us; for I knew their hatred towards me and my children, and those who were called my people. And I did teach my people to build buildings; and to work in all manner of wood, and of iron, and of copper, and of brass, and of steel, and of gold, and of silver, and of precious ores, which were in great abundance. And I, Nephi, did build a temple; and I did construct it after the manner of the temple of Solomon, save it were not built of so many precious things; for they were not to be found upon the land; wherefore, it could not be built like unto Solomon's temple. But the manner of the construction was like unto the temple of Solomon; and the workmanship thereof was exceeding fine."—2 Nephi

In the above we are informed of the establishment of both government and church, and the separation of the people into two parties or nations. Sometimes the warfare of nations is a fruitful agency in developing knowledge of lasting benefit, and of erecting monuments that outlive the people who brought them into being: "And now, behold, two hundred years had passed away, and the people of Nephi had waxed strong in the land. They observed to keep the law of Moses, and the Sabbath day holy unto the Lord; and they profaned not; neither did they blaspheme. And the laws of the land were exceeding strict. And they were scattered upon much of the face of the land; and the Lamanites also. And they were exceeding more numerous than were they of the Nephites; and they loved murder, and would drink the blood of beasts. And it came to pass that they came many times against us, the Nephites, to battle. But our kings and our leaders were mighty men in the faith of the Lord; and they taught the people the ways of the Lord; wherefore, we withstood the Lamanites, and swept them away, out of our lands, and began to fortify our cities, or whatsoever place of our inheritance. And we multiplied exceedingly, and spread upon the face of the land, and became exceeding rich in gold and in silver, and in precious things, and in fine workmanship of wood, and in buildings, and in machinery, and also in iron, and copper, and brass, and steel, making all manner of tools of every kind to till the ground, and weapons of war; yea, the sharp pointed arrow, and the quiver, and the dart, and the javelin, and all preparations for war; thus being prepared to meet the Lamanites, they did not prosper against us. But the word of the Lord was verified, which he spake unto our fathers, saying, That inasmuch as ye will keep my commandments, ye shall prosper in the land."—Jarom 1:3, 4.

The foregoing indicates quite an advanced state of civilization.

"And it came to pass that we did inherit the land of our fathers, for many years; yea, for the space of twenty and two years. And I did cause that the men should till the ground, and raise all manner of grain, and all manner of fruit, of every kind. And I did cause that the women should spin, and toil, and work, and work all manner of fine linen, yea, and cloth of every kind, that we might clothe our makedness; and thus we did prosper in the land."

-Mosiah 6:7.

There came into power and authority an unrighteous ruler over the Nephites, however, who spent some of the unlawful tax in erecting monumental evidence of that ancient people: "And it came to pass that king Noah built many elegant and spacious buildings; and he ornamented them with fine work of wood, and of all manner of precious things of gold, and of silver, and of iron, and of brass, and of ziff, and of copper, and he also built him a spacious palace, and a throne in the midst thereof, all of which was of fine wood, and was ornamented with gold, and silver, and with precious things. And he also caused that his workmen should work all manner of fine work within the walls of the temple, of fine wood, and of copper and of brass; and the seats which were set apart for the high priests, which were above all the other seats, he did ornament with pure gold; and he caused a breastwork to be built before them, that they might rest their bodies and their arms upon, while they should speak lying and vain words to his people. And it came to pass that he built a tower near the temple: yea, a very high tower, even so high that he could stand upon the top thereof and overlook the land of Shilom, and also the land of Shemlon, which was possessed by the Lamanites, and he could even look over all the land round about. And it came to pass that he caused many buildings to be built in the land Shilom: and he caused a great tower to built on the hill north of the land Shilom, which had been a resort for the children of Nephi, at the time they fled out of the land; and thus he did do with the riches which he obtained by the taxation of his people."—Ibid 7: 2-4.

The wicked are often profligate, and very extravagant in fine painting and costly buildings, all of which become important witnesses relative to the antiquities of ancient America. However trouble and distress came upon the Nephites when the ungodly ruled, but prosperity and peace when they loved and obeyed God.

"And there began to be much peace again in the land; and the people began to be very numerous, and began to scatter abroad upon the face of the earth; yea, on the north and on the south, on the east and on the west, building large cities and villages in all quarters of the land."—Ibid 11:18.

Here is a description of the social condition of those ancient people: "And now because of the steadiness of the church, they began to be exceeding rich: having abundance of all things whatsoever they stood in need: an abundance of flocks, and herds, and fatlings of every kind, and also abundance of grain, and of gold, and of silver, and of precious things; and abundance of silk and fine twined linen, and all manner of good homely cloth."—Alma 1:6.

Wealth sometimes turns the mind from the simple principles of charity to man and love for God, to the sordid things of the world: "And it came to pass in the eighth year of the reign of the judges, that the people of the church began to wax proud, because of their exceeding riches, and their fine silks, and their fine twined linen, and because of their many flocks and herds, and their gold, and their silver, and all manner of precious things which they had obtained by their industry; and in all these things they were lifted up in the pride of their eyes, for they began to wear costly apparel."—Ibid 2:3.

A relapse from duty in moral and religious work, was usually followed by an attempt to revive and reclaim the people: "And Alma and Amulek went forth preaching repentance to the people in their temples, and in their sanctuaries, and also in their synagogues, which were built after the manner of the Jews."—Ibid 11:6.

This is a very important item in considering the question of the civilization of this land of wonders. Here is an account of some of these cities of Yucatan and vicinity: "And it came to pass that the Nephites began the foundation of a city; and they called the name of the city Moroni; and it was by the east sea; and it was in the south by the line of the possessions of the Lamanites. And they also began a foundation for a city between the city of Moroni and the city of Aaron, joining the borders of Aaron and Moroni; and they called the name of the city or the land, Nephihah. And they also began in the same year to build many cities on the north; one in a paraticular manner which they called Lehi, which was in the north, by the borders of the sea-shore."—Ibid 22:3.

Forty years later another writer describes the condition of this people: "And it came to pass that they became exceeding rich, both the Lamanites and Nephites; and they did have exceeding plenty of gold, and of silver, and of all manner of precious metals, both in the land south, and in the land north. . . . And behold, there was all manner of gold in both these lands, and of silver, and of precious ore of every kind; and there were also curious workmen, who did work all kinds of ore, and did refine it; and thus they did become rich. They did raise grain in abundance, both in the north and in the south, and they did flourish exceedingly, both in the north and in the south. And they did multiply and wax exceeding strong in the land. And they did raise many flocks aud herds, yea, many fatlings. Behold, their women did toil and spin, and did make all manner of cloth, of fine twined linen, and cloth of every kind, to clothe their nakedness."--Helaman 2:27.

Immediately after the events referred to, the Lamanites prevailed against the Nephites, so that after sixteen years this account is given: "And thus it did come to pass that the people of Nephi began to prosper again in the land, and began to build up their waste places, and began to multiply and spread, even until they did cover the whole face of the land, both on the northward and on the southward, from the sea west to the sea east."—Ibid 4:4.

Those writers and readers of antiquities who have puzzled themselves over the evidences of more than one ancient civilization, can find a solution in the following: "And it came to pass that there were many cities built anew, and there were many old cities repaired, and there were many highways cast up, and many roads made which led from city to city, and from land to land, and from place to place."—Nephi 3:2.

Here are some extracts relative to the first or Jaredite civilization: "And the Lord began again to take the curse from off the land, and the house of Emer did prosper exceedingly under the reign of Emer, and in the space of sixty and two years they had become exceedingly strong, insomuch that they became exceeding rich, having all manner of fruit, and of grain, and of silks, and of fine linen, and of gold, and of silver, and of precious things, and also all manner of cattle, of oxen, and cows, and of sheep, and of swine, and of goats, and also many other kind of animals which were useful for the food of man; and they also had horses, and asses, and there were elephants, and cureloms, and cumoms; all of which were useful unto man, and more especially the elephants, and cureloms, and cumoms."-Ether 4: 3.

"And it came to pass that his father did

"And it came to pass that his father did build up many cities upon the face of the land, and the people began again to spread over all the face of the land."—

Ibid, 4:4.

Again: "And it came to pass that Morianton built up many cities, and the people became exceeding rich under his reign, both in buildings, and in gold, and in silver, and in raising grain, and in flocks, and herds, and such things which had been restored unto them."—Ibid, 4:6.

My last extract from the Book of Mormon for the present is this: "And they built a great city by the narrow neck of land, by the place where the sea divides the land. And they did preserve the land southward for a wilderness, to get game. And the whole face of the land northward was covered with inhabitants; and they were exceedingly industrious, and they did buy and sell and traffic one with another, that they might get gain. And they did work in all manner of ore, and they did make gold, and silver, and iron, and brass, and all manner of metals; and they did dig it out of the earth; wherefore they did cast up mighty heaps of earth to get ore, of gold, and of silver, and of iron, and of copper. And they did work all manner of fine work. And they did have silks, and fine twined linen; and they did work all manner of cloth, that they might clothe themselves from their nakedness. And they did make all manner of tools to till the earth, both to plough and to sow, to reap and to hoe, and also to thrash. And they did make all manner of tools with which they did work their beasts. And they did make all manner of weapons of war. And they did work all manner of work of exceeding curious workmanship."-Ibid, 4:7.

It will be observed from what is claimed by the Nephite writers that they had a knowledge of agriculture, architecture, mechanism, engineering and mining, as also some acquaintance with the fine arts. It would not, however, be fair or honest for the critic to compare and contrast these acquirements with the advanced achievements of the present century, but with that which the history of other nations shows was possessed by them from the time of the tower of Babel till four or five hundred years after Christ.

Of the importance of monumental archaeology, Bancroft says: "Monumental archaeology, as distinguished from written and traditional archaeology, owes its interest largely to its reality and tangibility. The teachings of material relics, so fareas they go, are irrefutable. Real in themselves, they impart an air of reality to the study of the past. They stand before us as the actual work of human hands, affording no foothold for skepticism; they are the balance-wheels of tradition, resting places for the mind wearied with the study of aboriginal fable; stepping-stones on which to cross the miry sloughs of mythic history. The ruins of a great city represent and recall vividly its original state, and the populace that once thronged its streets; the towering mound, or pyramid brings before the observer's mind toiling bands of slaves driven to their unwelcome task by strong progressive masters; tem-ples and idols are but remnants of religious systems, native fear, superstition and faith; sculpture, the existence of art, kingly palaces are the result of a strong government, wars, and conquest; sepulchral deposits reveal thoughts of another life; and hieroglyphic inscriptions, even if their key be lost, imply events deemed worthy of record, and a degree of progress towards letters."—Native Races, vol. 4, p. 5.
The same author says again: "The study of ancient monuments, in addition to its high degree of interest, is moreover of great practical value in the develop-ment of historical science, as a source of positive information, as a corroboration of annals otherwise recorded, and as an incentive to continued research. It contributes to actual knowledge by indicating the various arts that flourished among the peoples of antiquity, the germs of the corresponding arts of modern times. The monuments show not alone the precise degree of excellence on architecture and sculpture attained by the particular people whose work they are, but by an examination of their differences they throw much light on the origin and growth of these and other arts, while by comparison with the works of other peoples better known they serve to establish more or less clearly national affinities. And not only do they illustrate the state of the fine and useful arts, but also to a great extent public institutions and private customs. Temples, idols and altars reveal much of religious rites and priestly power; weapons of warfare, implements of household habits, ornaments of dress, tombs and sepulchral relics of burial ceremonies, regard for the dead and ideas respecting another When in addition to their indirect teachings respecting the arts and institutions of their builders, antique monuments bear also inscriptions in written or legible hieroglyphic characters, their value is of course greatly increased; indeed, under such circumstances they are the very highest historic authority. It is, however, in connection with the other branches of the science, written and traditional, that material relics accomplish their most satisfactory results, their corroborative evidence being even more valuable than the positive information they convey. For instance, tradition relates wondrous tales of the wealth, power and mighty deeds of a people that long ago occupied what is now a barren desert or a dense forest. These tales are classed with other aboriginal fables, interesting but comparatively valueless; but some wandering explorer by chance, or as the result of an apparently absurd and profitless research, discovers in the shade of the tangled thicket or lays bare under the drifting desert sands, the ruins of a great city with magnificent palace and temple; at once the mythic fable is transformed into authentic history, especially if the traditional statements of that people's arts and institutions are confirmed by their relics. Again, the written record of Biblical tradition, unsatisfactory to some when not supported by corroborative evidence, narrates with minute detail the history of an ancient city including its conquest at a certain date by a foreign king. The discovery in another land of the monarch's statue or triumphal arch, inscribed with his name, title and a list of his deeds confirms or invalidates the Scriptural account not only of that particular event, but indirectly of other details of the city's annals not recorded in stone. In America material relics acquire increased importance as corroborative and corrective witnesses in comparison with those of the old world, from the absence of contemporary written Besides, constituting the only tangible supports of the more ancient triumphs of American civilization, they are the illustrations of comparatively modern stages of art whose products have disappeared, and by no means superfluous of Spanish chroniclers in later times, very many, or perhaps most of whose statements repecting the wonderful phenomena of the New World culture, as I have remarked in a previous volume, without this incontrovertible material proof, would find few believers among the sceptical students of the present day."-Ibid, pps.

Prescott says: "But the surest test of the civilization of a people—at least, as sure as any—afforded by mechanical art, is to be found in their architecture, which presents so noble a field for the display of the grand and the beautiful, and which, at the same time, is so intimately connected with the essential comforts of life."—Conquest of Peru, vol. 1, p. 155.

Something like a year ago I was called upon to meet the Rev. M. T. Lamb, Baptist missionary to Utah, at Malad City, Idaho, upon the authenticity of the Book of Mormon. He had printed a book upon the subject and was going from place to place lecturing and selling such publication against the Book of Mormon. In his lectures in the Court House at Malad City, he made free use of the name of Prof. Le Plongeon, on whom he had called, and the audience was given to understand that if they could only see and talk with Prof. Le Plongeon, and his most excellent lady, they would not believe in the Book of Mormon for a moment. I was not distressed in mind, or my confidence destroyed because it was represented by the Rev. Lamb that Prof. Le Plongeon possessed such wonderful and strong evidence against said book. Only a short time ago a friend kindly permitted me to read a letter from the said Prof. Le Plongeon, and I comfess a high degree of satisfaction at the gratuitious account which Mr. Le Plongeon gives of Rev. Lamb's visit, which reads: "This calls to my mind the visit of a certain Rev. Mr. Lamb, who introduced himself to me by stating that he resided at Salt Lake City, and was there combatting the Mormon doctrine and showing that their pre-tended revelations were all humbug. He presented me with a book published by him in which he pretended to show many absurdities contained in the Book of Mormon. He finished by telling me that he had called upon me in order to obtain my opinion on what is said in the book relatively to the animals such as the horse, the pig, the cattle and sheep that lived anciently on the Western Continent, which he contended proves that the whole book is an absurd fabrication; and hoped that I would help him with my knowledge in showing it to be such. The man evidently either had been misinformed concerning me, or had not taken the trouble to When he ceased speaking, I enquire. asked him if he was a Christian, to which he emphatically answered, 'Yes!' and I as emphatically replied no! because he did not follow the doctrine of Jesus-'do not do to others what you do not wish others to do to you.' I informed him that I did not care a straw if the Book of Mormon was a revelation or a fabrication. considered every man had an absolute right to worship Deity as best he thought. That on the other hand I could not join him in disproving the Book of Mormon in the part in which the animals mentioned are said to have lived on the American continent, because I was not in the habit of making a fool of myself if I could help Then I informed him that seventeen species of fossil horses had been discovered in America, that the buffaloes were cattle, that the mountain sheep still lived in the Rocky Mountains, and that peccaries or wild pigs roamed yet in large numbers in the forests of Central America. After that I gave him a piece of my mind and bowed him out of the house."-Exit Lamb!

The man who would misrepresent the Book of Mormon would also misrepresent Le Plongeon or any other man. yet to find the opposers to the Book of Mormon who will not resort to untruth in their warfare against said book.

It should be borne in mind that the archaeological evidence introduced is corroborative only. If one agreement between the Book of Mormon and discoveries made since its publication is shown, that is evidence of its divinity, and is equivalent to a fulfillment of prophecy; for the power to reveal that which is unknown in regard to the past is equal to that required to make known the future. If two such agreements are found, the evidence becomes important. If twenty are found, the evidence is almost conclu-But if upon all vital points there is agreement, and upon no points absolute disagreement, the evidence is overwhelming and conclusive. This latter we claim to be the case between the Book of Mormon add scientific discoveries made since its publication.

To be continued.

Selections.

CATHOLOCISM AND THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

WE find Cardinal Manning objecting to our school system as an invasion of family "The law of nature," he asserts, "has invested parents with these responsibilities" of teaching and training children; "parents have a right to control the education of their children." What the Cardinal and his adherents are really contending for is not the rights of the family and of the parent, but the moral right of the clergy to prescribe to the parent and family how much and what sort of instruction the children shall receive. Elsewhere His Eminence teaches that the Churchmeaning the Roman hierarchy-is the authoritative guide of conscience in all its relations, "not only of the child to the parent, but of the parent to the child." teaches that God gave to St. Peter and his successors "the direction of families, of households, of all the collective forms of natural society;" that the Supreme Pontiff "is father in all things, both spiritual and temporal." The priesthood are to organize the schools, superintend them, appoint the teachers, choose the text-books. It is notorious that all the pressure that the laity will endure has been brought to bear upon them to move them to withdraw their children from the public schools. Take one example. On January 3d, 1880, Bishop McCloskey of Louisville, Kentucky, issued a decree in which it is said:

"Now it is our will and command that where there is a Catholic school in the parish, parents and guardians in such places should send their children or wards, who are under nine years of age, to such Catholic school; and we hereby direct that this obligation be enforced under the pain of refusal of absolution in the sacrament of penance."

It is a thousand pities that a contest of this nature should arise. What may be termed the traditional and unintelligent hostility to the Roman Catholic religion has been passing away from the minds of educated people in this country. There has been a growing tendency to appreciate what the Church of Rome has done, and is doing in behalf of our common Christianity and of all the interests of society which good men have at heart. But if the battle for our free, secular schools must come, it is a consolation to reflect that the contest is one in which all civilized nations, Roman Catholic or Protestant, have a share. Our allies are in all enlightened lands. It is an additional comfort to know that there is no real danger of defeat. The only hope of the adversary must lie in the desire of politicians to catch votes; and these will soon learn, if they do not know by instinct, that in taking wrong ground in this vital question they will lose vastly more votes than they can hope to win.— Prof. George P. Fisher, in the April Forum.

CONFIDENCE.

MANY a man has been lost to the world on account of his lack of self-confidence, and the world has been deprived of the benefits which it would otherwise have derived from him had he not been so unfortunately handicapped by the absence of this most essential faculty.

Many a young man has labored faithfully in an effort to secure a professional training, and then failed because he lacked the confidence or faith in his own abilities which is required of all of us if we ever achieve true greatness in any trade or calling of life.

We have seen other young men, who have not enjoyed the benefits of an elaborate or even common education, make a most remarkable success of themselves, simply by having that innate feeling of confidence in their own powess, which has almost unconsciously drawn them on toward the goal of success.

There's a remarkable significance in the word "success." It speaks volumes to the thinking mind. It tells of a grand final consummation of a life work of which men must say it was well done; the victor has earned the spoils; the world has gained much by his having lived in it.

How desirable it is to leave such a record. It should be the chief aim of every person to live this life in such a manner, and to do the duties of this life in such a manner that when we leave our survivors will say, his life has left its impress on the times in which he lived, he has done good to his generation.

To the young who are just starting the journey of life we would say, try to make this life of yours a grand success. Let everything you do be done with a will. Believe yourself capable of doing good work, and impress that belief upon others. Don't find fault with everything you do, and tell others of the fault you have found; hide the defects as much as you can and try to correct them. If you are a lawyer, and come to the conclusion that you can't make as good a plea or write as ably on questions of law as some of the older and more distinguished men in your profession don't think yourself a failure, and make yourself miserable regretting the fact that you ever entered the profession; throw off this lack of confidence, and learn to appreciate your own work. No man ever made a success of life by condemning his own efforts.—Sel.

J. H. Lake, Kirtland, Lake co., Ohio.
Willard J. Smith, Box 153, Buchanan, Mich.
J. W. Wight, Queensferry, Victoria, Australia.
T. W. Smith, Papetee, Tahiti, via San Francisco.
J. A. Currie, Jr., Bandera, Bandera co., Texas.
John Thomas, Buchanan, Henry Co., Tenn.
Joseph F. Burton, Santa Ana, California.
J. W. Gillen, 3129 Caroline street, St Louis, Missouri.
E. C. Briggs, box 323, Pittsburg, Pa.
John T. Davies, 5 Park avenue, Llanelly, Carmarthen
shire, Wales.
J. H. Peters, Coleman, Midland Co., Michigan.
G. A. Blakeslee, presiding Bishon, Galien Michigan.

G. A. Blakeslee, presiding Bishop, Galien, Michigan.

Conserence Minutes.

NEBRASKA.

Cenference convened at the Saints' Church at Wilber, April 22d, Pres. J. W. Waldsmith in the chair, C. H. Porter secretary. Minutes of the previous meeting read. Moved to amend by striking out the report of T. Nutt from the record. Carried. Minutes approved as amended. Branches reported: Platte River present 21; 3 removed, 9 reported as scattered members. Blue River 139; 7 baptized. Nebraska City 136; 1 died. Palmyra 61. Reports: High Priest R. C. Elvin, Elders J. D. Bennett, J. Armstrong, J. W. Waldsmith, R. M. Elvin (baptized 6), L. Anthony, C. H. Porter (baptized 1) Teacher: Daniel Brolliar. Bishop's agent's report: Balance due church January 1st, 1889, $23.76. Received during the quarter $545. Expended $211.50. Balance due church April 1st $357.26. The district president and secretary also reported. On motion the district officers were sustained. Adjourned to meet August 11th, 1889, with the Platte River branch. Official members present: 2 seventies, 4 elders, 2 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon. Preaching by I. N. Roberts, R. J. Anthony and C. H. Porter.

Miscellaneous.

LAMONI COLLEGE.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has a membership throughout the length and breadth of our land, from Maine to California, in the Canadas, Australia, the Islands of the Sea, and in Europe.

The church has not to-day a single educational institution under its direct patronage or influence, or under the influence, to any considerable extent, of its membership.

Moving in every sphere of society, the members of the church need the opportunity of the highest culture in some institution, which shall be so adapted to their various wants that each and every one so inclined may avail themselves of its privileges in that direction which, to them, shall be calculated to work the greatest development, and this in some location where church associations and influences may have the greatest effect for good in moulding the moral and spiritual character of the student, and, it may be, of the future teacher.

In its organization and operation, this institution, when established, should show such breadth and liberality of sentiment as shall be in harmony. with the declaration of the martyr, Joseph Smith, "OUR CREED IS ALL TRUTH."

No sectarian lines are admissable, and only such men should be called to positions in connection with the institution as Trustees, Professors, or Teachers, as are broad and tolerant in their views and without respect to church affiliation. Such an institution can not fail to commend itself and its supporters to the world at large. city set on a hill cannot be hid."

Lamoni has been regarded as an eminently proper place in which to establish a college of the character stated .:

First -As being the present headquarters of our church organization.

Second -Because the community is an exceptionally moral one, and the influences surrounding it of the very best.

Third.—It is removed from the many demoralizing influences and attractions adverse to study in larger places, yet has sufficient of interest to the young and growing as well as matured mind to prevent dullness. It need scarcely be stated that Lamoni is not recommended because of any individual business interests involved, but simply and only because, in our opinion, it more fully supplies all require ments than any other place within our knowledge. The general outlines for articles of association were suggested in an article published in the Saint's Herald in issue of last January 12th, but these necessarily are subject to such modifications as in the judgment of the subscribers may be advisable and necessary at the meeting to be held at the Herald office, Lamoni, Saturday, May 25th, when it is hoped that sufficient shares of stock may have been subscribed, and such an interest shown as will warrant the formal adoption of articles, and that legal steps be taken to secure an organization at once.

Every member of the church is interested in this matter. Will each and every one who reads this kindly assist. Send in your subscriptions. Work to secure others likewise, and report to some member of our committee, or to D. F. Nicholson, Lamoni, Iowa, by or before May 25th, but don't cease working then. The cause is worthy but don't cease working then. of every generous effort which may be made on its behalf.

Every subscriber who can possibly be present should attend the meeting on May 25th, so that the movement may have the benefit of the best judgment of all. If those who cannot be present will kindly send in their suggestions, or such information as they can furnish regarding such institutions, the committee will greatly appreciate it and will see that such communications shall receive due consideration.

Let all work promptly and heartily in this good cause, and success is assured.

ROBERT WINNING.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 3, 1889.

P. S.—The committee appointed April 18th last to solicit stock, arrange and devise to put in operation the plan of the college consists of David Dancer, Lamori, Iowa; E. L. Kelly, Kirtland, Ohio; and Robert Winning, St. Joseph, Mo.

NOTICES.

There will be a Two Days' Meeting held by the Saints of the Maple Valley branch at Brown City, Sanilac county, Michigan, May 25th and 26th, 1889. All are cordially invited. We shall expect Bro. J. J. Cornish, president of the district, and all other ministers that can come.

J. A. CARPENTER, Branch Pres.

Will the party who enclosed us 15 cts. in stamps to replace a March number of Autumn Leaves, lost by loaning when on the way to conference, please send their address to Bro. Dancer? can not find the letter containing it.

Bro. David S. Kelley is requested to report to the president of North Plymouth branch in one month from the date of this notice or he will be counted among the scattered members. last heard from he was in New York City.

WILLIAM B. LELAND, President.

PASTORAL LETTER.

To the Saints in the Rocky Mountain Mission, greeting:

As it has fallen to my lot to labor for and with you another year, I feel to thank you for your hearty co-operation in the years that we have labored together, and I pray the Master to bless and prosper you in all your affairs for good, and that the blessings of health and of peace and prosperity may be granted unto you in all days to

We have long been expecting a visit to this field from our beloved brother and president of the Church, Joseph Smith, but because of ill health he has not been able to reach us. I have now arranged to meet him in Salt Lake City as early in June as will be practicable. I request your special prayers for him that the Lord may greatly bless him with health and spiritual power and wisdom that all may be blessed with his wise counsel and ministrations. Let us greet him as true soldiers for Christ, when he comes; and let us hope that the just and true may be greatly strengthened, while the troubled and distressed may be comforted and directed in the better way. I know you have labored long under adverse circumstances and strange surroundings, with but little signs of great results. Let us not now grow weary. The Lord is directing his work in all the world and especially in the "goodly land." Surely the morning of a brighter and a better day will dawn upon your long and constant effort in the valleys of the mountains. Let us maintain the cause, then, until all people shall see and know that we have lived and labored for the right, and God will give us the victory in His own good time.

Let all who possibly can lay up in store to aid the work when Joseph comes so he can visit and speak when and where wisdom may direct, and all who can send tithes and offerings to me; direct to Box 1123, Salt Lake City, Utah, and God bless you all. R. J. ANTHONY.

To official and non-official members of the church in Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico, Greeting: May peace and an increased understanding, with a full realization of your responsibilities be with you and abound.

Desiring, as per action of the recent Annual Conference to be striving to travel on in duty's path in the above mentioned missionary field during the present conference year, may be a sufficient apology for essaying to address you through the church organ. Our exultation for past success and inspiring prospects for the future should cause us to evince a new zeal; for much yet remains to be done. I had no sanguine expectation for a large increase of our ministerial force, but would have been pleased to have had the same force we were blessed with last year continued, but doubtless for some potent reason this has been denied us; so let us be thankful for what we have, and hope for more. vantageously use this force is the important question, as a proper utilization of time and means at our command is most imperative.

For the present, Brn. R. M. Elvin and C. H.
Porter will labor in the Southern Nebraska district, and Bro. W. M. Rumel in the North and Central Nebraska districts, with the hope that so far as practicable, they will penetrate into new localities. Should the future develop the propriety of a change with any or all of these co-labor-ers, I will take the liberty to suggest it. Legitimate activity with branch officials is just as urgent, or more so, than ever. As a result of as urgent, of more so, man ever. As a result of this activity the law guarantees success to every department of God's spiritual government. And both members and officials should feel, in a measure, that the success of the branch depends upon their faithfulness and perseverance. And officials should never lose sight of the fact that their law-imposed labors are to prevent trouble, as well as to adjudicate, when it shall exist. And I believe with continued and well directed efforts to prevent trouble, church trials would diminish. The active, judicious teacher, by timely interference can indeed become a peace preserver, and, "Blessed are the peace makers!"

There must be a sharp discrimination between official, diligent labor which the law reveals and imposes, and official officiousness. "For there is no power in the church but of God; the powers that be are ordained of God, whoso resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God; and they that resist shall receive to themselves punishment."—I. T., Rom. 13:1, 2. For a duly appointed official to be unduly officious, would be a digression from a gospel-imposed medium. "He that heareth you heareth me," refers to a legitimately appointed teacher as to the president of the church. There is no necessity for branch officials to direct their labors as to make themselves obnoxious to the members and thus forfeit confidence and respect. Nor may they expect, however judicious, to please every-The laying down of a trust but coming from a human source might find a justification, but it were difficult, I think, to justify the laying down of a trust legitimately tendered and accepted in the Church of God, for its acceptation must be tantamount to making a covenant with God, imposing a diligence ultimating in the performance of duties belonging to the accepted position. And the violation of a covenant thus made must be a grave matter. And the belief of justification in an official laying down his trust because of kind or unkind criticism, etc., is, as I view it, illy founded.

Efforts to attain proficiency by dint of study, etc., are imperative on all officials from the deacon to the president. Our church articles reflect official labor consisting in visitation to teach the Saints duties, etc., and I am not aware that the lapse of time decreases the necessity of any official labor imposed in the inception, or at the beginning of the work. Yet it seems possible for our duties to become monotonous because of their sameness; this certainly ought not to be. The zeal evinced by Christ at the beginning of his labor on earth, diminished not; and so he finished his work.

If permitted space in the Herald I would anaccording to my knowledge and underswarding a question propounded during the past conference year, namely: "Whose duty is it to suggest or name suitable ones for branch of-ficials?" I understand a legitimately organized branch to possess, by virtue of their relation with the body, power to regulate its own affairs without interference from other departments; that a presiding power carries with it the right to suggest and admonish, teach, expound, and, when necessary, to render an authoritative decision. I therefore believe that a wise, zealous presiding elder of a branch, with proper counsel, and advising with his fellow officials, the proper one to provide officials-when a necessity exists for calling or selection—which necessity will exist in a branch through death, removals, expulsions, etc., on the hypothesis that every official is mighty in his sphere. I believe that faithful, God fearing, active officers of a branch are the most competent to attend to, regulate and order the affairs of the branch over which they are called to preside.

The practice of branches petitioning a district conference for the privilege of ordaining necessary officials that are indispensable to prosecute branch labor, if obtaining, is by custom, and not by any provisions made in law, that I have found. But if it does exist, I would be glad to examime, and will do so on its production.

Branches, to all intents and purposes, are primary organizations, and can not legally be shorn of law-guaranteed rights by subsequent helps or organization brought into being, to aid, or more extensively spread the gospel. Between a godly jealousy Paul refers to in Corinthians, and a settled mistrust and suspicion, there is a material difference; the former is of of God and leads to godly deeds evincing a proper care to defend and advocate God-guaranteed rights; the latter the very reverse of this; and much talk of a high moral rectitude or feignd piely wont hide the defectiveness of such a Godless procedure.

The Master bids us not to judge, but is just as definite in saying "Every tree is known by its fruits," and "By their fruits ye shall know them." There is a visible significance in both, and they are given for our profit. Time spent by A. B. to tell of his piety, goodness etc., as I think, is traveling outside of gospel imposed modesty and calculated to produce sensationalism.

Local officials are generally burdened with life's cares, hence the necessity of a proper division of branch labor, but this should not lead to a desire for a superabundace of officials; for wherever this has happened, or very frequently, evil has ensued. The right to confer power as necessity demands, for the general weal of the work does not warrant a lavishing of such power, without discretion or a due consideration of results.

Though impracticable to visit every part of the field I shall always be glad to hear suggestions-or, so far as possible, respond to questions in which the welfare of the work may be involved. But I wish to give due notice that the solution of mysteries below, on, or above the earth is not my forte. But think sometimes I feel elated through the inspirational exposition of law given by the Palmyra Seer and found in paragraphs 8, 9 and 10, sec. 85 of Doctrine and Covenants, and dare say I believe law to be the rule of action revealed by the superior to the inferior, which the latter must obey-and further respectfully say that I have no time to apologize for inserting the word must; though to the stalwart advocate of liberty the little word seems terrifying.

I, too, love liberty but for Latter Day Saints I know of none, teach none, expect none in time or eternity, but that guaranteed and regulated by God's revealed and unchangable law. The 46th section Doctrine and Covenants empowers some one to prohibit offenders taking the sacrament until a reconciliation is effected, which, with other proofs justifies the thought that officials are authorized, not to suppress, but to regulate or punish those guilty of crime and the beginning of this is law-imposed labor with the offender.

I see some of the precious time of the late conference was consumed in introducing a resolution on dancing—one (as generally practised) of the demoralizing practices of the age. And how many who have forfeited their honor and virtue attribute that sad event to the first step taken in the ball room! I never did, nor do I now, understand that branches have to wait or defer the lawimposed labor to regulate their members, etc., until a motion is made by a General Conference permitting them to move in the labor belonging to their official position. To my mind the resolution reflects nothing conflicting with the spirit or letter of the law, on the imposed labors of officials. And the indefinite action of conference is well calculated to encourage the defiant and render more complicated trouble likely to arise on, or through the vexed question.

The radicalism on Prohibition, and the sickly sentimentalism, wishy washy, milk and water legislation on dancing (which often leads to the use of the intoxicating cup,) present a perplexing contrast.

The missionary in charge is sometimes thought quite necessary in adjusting trouble that others wish to be clear of. Permit me to respectfully suggest that I wish to evade no duty, but wish a legitimate basis for action, and if you wish to make complaints to the missionary in charge against A. or B., be prepared to make your com-plaints legitimate. To move against a brother in a way that his reputation may be jeopardized on the Mother Grundy method is cruel, unjust and wicked, whether done by angel, man or dev-The denouncing of one as a transgressor in Zion, is a culmination of a law-imposed, preparatory procedure-in which procedure the law-required amount of unimpeachable testimony is indispensable. All being innocent until proven guilty is founded in justice, and he who would raise a furore of excitement because of suspicion, and thus cramp the efforts, and curtail the influence of those suspicioned, is, in the eyes of the law, a transgressor and a disturber of the peace. Law is not to empower to please friends and worst foes, and thus evince our love or spleen.

None should overlook the struggles of the church and the necessity of rendering financial aid as far as practicable. All branches should have a fund to meet current expenses, etc., created by the mite offerings of its members from one to more cents per week.

A necessity exists for care and forethought in inducing elders to undertake long and expensive journeys to respond to calls.

Hoping our co-operation may be thorough, pleasant and profitable the present conference year, in gospel bonds, JAMES CAFFALL. P. S. For the present, in view of almost continuous travel, my address will be 453 Park Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa. J. C. Anyonito, Colorado, April 29th, 1889.

Dear Herald: - As you journey on your mission of peace, will you please carry with you a little budget of news?

To the Saints and to my co-laborers in the Canada mission, greeting: As it has been thought proper that I should return to this mission, I wish to do so under the Spirit of peace and good will to all. As we enter on the duties and labors of this mission-year, let us each examine ourselves and see that we are in the faith, then each put forth an effort in accordance with our several abilities and callings to help establish the same. Hoping the Saints are willing to make the sacrifice that is necessary to carry on the great work of the last days, considering their great privileges of being at home and with loved ones and the right of business to make money and enjoy life; while the elders have to leave home and all its endearments and deprive themselves of the right of business and its benefits, and be the servants of all. May the love of God, that charity which vaunteth not itself and seek-eth not her own, and is not easily provoked, endureth all things, thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth-dwell richly in our hearts to enable us to fight the good fight of faith.

We have great reason to be encouraged by the reports to conference of the increase in the last We were second, and the report of peace prevailing and the labors done by the local as well as the general ministry was good. May we unitedly put forth renewed efforts to increase our labors, that our reports at the end of the year may show the increased favor of God upon the

I wish all the laborers to work as best they can until the June conference, and we will then endeavor to more permanently locate them for the balance of the year. I hope all will endeavor to open up new places that the work may spread and the honest of heart may be gathered into the fold, and the word be preached to all as a witness, that the way may be prepared for the end to come. May the sick be cared for and the weak strengthened and all the officers of the branches be respected and properly instructed in their duties, that each may learn their duty that they may be under the approval of God!

I expect to be in the mission as soon as my circumstances will admit. We have bought us a little house at Kirtland, Ohio, and will have some little fixing up before we leave so that those left may have rest and can care for themselves without too much weariness of body and mind, which we feel to be our reasonable duty to do and not be worse than the infidel.

Hope to be remembered at the altar of prayer by all the Saints that I may be sustained unto the end when the last brave word and work is said and done, that I with you may have a right to the rest prepared for the people of God. My prayer shall be that the Spirit of God may be with us to be our sun and shield, our guide and protector, that we may all be one in Christ Jesus our Lord when he comes to number his jewels.

Your co-laborer, JOHN H. LAKE.

BORN.

FROST.—At Tecumseh, Nebraska, September 25th, 1888, to Mr. Robert M. and Sister Ettie Frost, a daughter. Blessed at Davis City, Iowa, May 4th, 1889, by Elders Rob't. M. Elvin and Oliver J. Bailey, and named Cirreta Mary McCabe.

MARRIED.

SILVER.—MAYHEW.—At Lamoni, Iowa, May 5th, 1889, Bro. Joseph T. Silver and Sister Flora A. Mayhew. The ceremony was performed by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

DIED.

DEAN.—April 28th, 1889, the little daughter of Sr. Lizzie and Bro. Charles Dean, of Streator, Illinois, aged 7 months and 10 days. Funeral from the home of the bereaved May 2nd. Remarks by Elder F. M. Cooper. Bro. and Sr. Dean have buried their little Bertha, their first and only child. May God help them to look be-yond the crumbling elements of time's inconstant realm to that life and world where all is substantial and eternal.

TRANTER.—At her home in Iowa City, April 4th, 1889, Mrs. Harriett Tranter, aged 96 years. Harriett Shinn was born in Worcestershire, England, in 1820, and in 1846 married John Tranter. Together they arrived in America in 1856, living in New York City a year and then moved to Iowa City. In 1861 they moved to Utah, but returned the following year. There were born to them eight children of which only three survive, two boys and one girl. Mrs. Tranter was a highly respected woman and leaves many friends to mourn her death. The funeral services were held on April 5th, conducted by Elder John X.

held on April 5th, conducted by Davis of Newton, Iowa.

"She's gone. Her work on earth is done.
Her battle's fought, her race is run.
Blest is the path she trod
For she espoused the glorious cause,
In prompt obedience to the laws
Of the Eternal God."

Vanleuven.—April 28th, 1889, at the residence of his son in Atchison county, Missouri, brother John Vanleuven; born August 10th, 1801, in Canada; was baptized in 1834 by Brigham

Young and confirmed by B. Young and Orson Pratt; was received by vote in the Union branch at Hamburg, Iowa, December 20th, 1885, while living with his daughter—sister Emma Lazenby. Funeral by Rev. Mr. Shackleford of the M. E. church, at Tarkio City, Missouri Bro. Vanleuven was well known by nearly all of the church in the days of the persecutions.

CHISNALL.—Sister Annie Chisnall was born February 20th, 1860, at Kewanee, Illinois. She departed this life April 24th, 1889, aged 29 years, 2 months, and 6 days. She was the daughter of Bro. Joseph Boswell, now of Davis City, Iowa. She was married to Thomas Chisnall December 11th, 1880, and was the mother of two children, one, only aged four years, surviving her. She united with the church at an early age, and, by her ever consistent life, gained the esteem of all, whether of like faith with her or not; and it may be said, "truly," that none knew her but to love her;-her gentle spirit always proving a ready passport to the confidence and affections of all.

For upwards of twelve months her relatives and friends have viewed with alarm the encroachments of an insiduous disease upon her already frail body, and have done all in their power to assist her in the unequal struggle with death. Possessed of strong maternal feelings, it was not unreasonable that she should desire to live, if only for the sake of her child; but becoming convinced that she was called to go, her deep religious convictions came to her help, by which she was enabled to say, "Thy will be done, O Lord, not mine." While on her sick bed she gained many beautiful testimonies that served strengthen and make permanent her faith in the immortality of life. To those in attendance upon her she would frequently say, "I am ready to go," and expressed a strong desire to get beyond the dark valley of death to the beautiful land she had been permitted to view. And as the moment of dissolution drew nigh, with the last expiring breath she said to those around her, "Good by," "Good by."

As an instance, showing her retiring disposi-tion in life, she expressed a wish that a simple funeral service at her home might suffice. And while we render this tribute of respect to her life and wishes, may God grant that as we lay her away in the silent tomb, the epistle of her gentle life may remain with us to our good.

Br. Robert Holt officiated in the funeral ser-

HUNT.—At the residence of her son, Br. John B. Hunt, in Galland's Grove, Iowa, April 12th, 1889, sister Mary Hunt, in the 95th year of her age. She was born in Roan County, North Carolina, May 15th, 1795, was baptized in Kentucky in 1844, by Elder Daniel D. Hunt, moved to Nauvoo with her husband, Alexander Hunt, deceased, and family the same year; was there through all the persecutions of the Saints till 1846; resided in various places in Iowa till they moved to Galland's grove in 1855. She was among the first to accept of the Reorganization, being baptized by Elder Uriah Roundy in 1860. She will be remembered by some of the first elders of the church for her kindness and hospitality. For the last thirteen years she was totally blind, but bore with Christian patience the sad affliction, being assured of her acceptance with God, and was comforted by a glorious vision she had of the Lord Jesus Christ, and of his showing her that her name was written in "the Lamb's book of life."

Ever faithful and true, she sleeps the sleep of the just.

Funeral services at the Saints' church, Galland's Grove, by Elders John Pett and Ralph Jenkins. Many relatives and friends attended.

HARVEY.—Alma, second son of Bro. John and Sr. Annie Harvey, of Kansas City, Kansas, May 3rd, 1889, aged 8 years.

LEWIS.-At Deer Creek, Nebraska, April 20th, 1889, Bro. Arthur E. Lewis, aged 30 years, 6 months and 24 days. He leaves a wife and three children, a father, mother, brothers, sisters, and many friends to mourn his death. He was a member of the branch and a teacher in the Just before his death he expressed his faith in the gospel, and only regretted that he had not done more in the cause of truth. Funeral sermon by (Bro.) Elder John Rogerson at the M. E. Church, Tilden, April 21st. His remains were laid to rest in Hoyt's Cemetry, on Deer Creek. We mourn, but not as those without

STREETER.-Of old age, near Magnolia, Harrison county, Iowa, January 15th, 1888, Caleb Streeter, aged 85 years, 3 months and 26 days. He died as he lived, in full faith in the restored gospel of Christ. He united with the old church in Vermont, in an early day and always bore a consistent and faithful testimony to the truth and the hope within him, both by words of exhorta-tion and by daily walk; doing the good that he tion and by daily walk; doing the good could and harming none.

Dear father, sleep, thou art at rest;
Thy cross was meekly borne.
We know thy spirit's with the blest,
Although thy loss we mourn.
But when the Savior comes, on high,
Lost Eden to restore,
We hope to meet you bye and bye
Where death can part no more.

L. N. STREETER.

GRIFFIN .- This is to inform all of the death of Elder James Griffin of Grand Manan Island, which took place March 27th, 1889, at the age of 76 years. Our brother was among the first who joined the church here. While conversing with him just before his death, he bore a strong testimony to the truth of the work. Elder Joseph Lakeman conducted the funeral services.

WOLVIN.-At her home in Goodland, Lapeer county, Michigan, Tuesday, April 30th, 1889, of consumption, Sr. Phebe M Wolvin. She was born in Port Huron, St. Clair county, September 14th, 1860; was baptized September 28th, 1876, in Burnsides, Michigan, by Elder John Baily and confirmed by Elders Robert Davis and John Bailey. Funeral services at the house on Thursday, at one o'clock, conducted by Elder James Carpenter assisted by Elder John Baily.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

Notice is hereby given that the Western Wisconsin district conference will convene at Willow Creek, Richland county, Wisconsin, June 8th and 9th. We invite all to attend. We want branch and official's reports. Come with the Spirit of God.

A. L. WHITEAKER, Dist. Pres't.

The time of holding the quarterly conference of the Galland's Grove district is changed from the 7th to the 14th of June, it being desirable that the viril of the lattice of the lattice of the the missionary in charge attend, which he could not do owing to the Little Sioux district conference being appointed to be held on the 7th.

By order of the district president.

JOHN PETT, Secretary.

STEM VOWEL SHORTHAND.

A system of shorthand in which the vowels are ex-A system of shorthand in which the vowels are expressed in the consonant stems, by making the latter of different lengths. Invented by a court reporter of years of practical experience and used by hundreds in business life. Its merits are that it is easily learned, easily read and fully vocalized. It has no long lists of word signs. The undersigned uses it, and after comparing it with other systems recommends it to young men and women as a valuable acquisition as a profession. Little orn os train upon the memory required to learn it, which can be done in from four to six months ordinary attention. Book with plain and complete self-instructions sent to any address $2. Circulars sent upon application. Address R. S. SALYARDS, agent, Lamoni, Iowa.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't. D. F. Nicholson, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK OF LAWONI.

Ample Responsibility.

Loans money on aproved security. Six per cent interest paid on time deposits. Real Estate bought and sold.

AUTUMN LEAVES,

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - - -M. Walker, Editor and Publisher. I hereby give notice that the

Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies

 $17 \times 20$ , is now ready for sale.

I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2. All members of the Quorum represented in the medley can obtain a copy for $1.50.

> R. BURDGE, Photographer, Appleton City, Mo.

I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art, containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a medley, handsomely arranged, all numbered with index below of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Pieture E. C. BRAND.

PHARMACIST WANTED.

A young man who is registered in Iowa, and can give good references, &c. A member of the church preferred. Address F, M. WELD,

26mar4t

Lamoni, Iowa.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the county seat of Barton county.

EBENEZER MILLER, Senior,

Scammonville, Cherokee county, Kansas.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

West Lexington Street,

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

--: A Family Newspaper.:--THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT

Provides its readers weekly with 56 COLUMNS

Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thoroughly acquainted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, 25aug Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPES.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.

HOLY SCRIPTURES

(Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.) Sheep or Library binding...... 50

BOOK OF MORMON.

DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

SAINTS' HARP-HYMN BOOK.

Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges...... 25 Imitation Morocco, gilt edges..... 50

"MANUSCRIPT FOUND." In cloth 25cts., ten or more, each.....

written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon.

REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD.

E SAINTS' HERAL

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE. AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIEEETY TO MARBY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36,-Whole No. 836

Lamoni, Iowa, May 25, 1889

No. 21.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Every Saturday. Price $3.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Perald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 25, 1889.

WILL HE FIND FAITH?

AT the close of one of the lessons which the Lord taught his disciples by parables, he urges upon them the thought that, not withstanding the evils and wrongs which they were subjected to the time would come when the Lord would avenge them; but, as if moved to mournfulness by the impression made upon him by the apparent want of confidence in him and his Father's word, he uses this expression: "Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?"

It is well that Latter Day Saints should satisfy themselves of what it was that the Lord called faith in the passage cited, and then to answer it in reference to their own condition—and the last days.

We may from negative texts in Scripture discover what faith is not. Of these that of Deuteronomy 32: 20 is, a striking instance: "And he said, I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be: for they are a very froward generation, children in whom is no faith.

From the reading of the context, it is discovered that the fault of the people of whom this was said, was either a careless forgetfulness of God, or such a want of trust and confidence in him that they disregarded the teaching of the better things so diligently brought to their notice. For in the beginning of the chapter the heavens and the earth are both called upon to hear the "words" of the "mouth" of God. "My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass: because I will publish the name of the Lord: ascribe ve greatness unto our God. He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he."

These are the "words" of the mouth of the Lord to which these froward "children of no faith" had proved themselves to be perverse, of obedience to which they had become careless, in which they had either lost confidence, or had never trusted.

Of a similar nature is the conclusion of the charge of the Savior, found in Matthew sixth chapter, beginning at the 24th verse: "No man can serve two masters."

This was plain to them, and when he continued: "Wherefore, [for this reason], if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, oh ye of little faith?" he made a strong case against those whom he addressed, for their lack of trust for their daily bread, the things which perish, and over which he showed them God had an infinite and continuing charge, notwithstanding the things spoken of neither toiled, nor spun-that is, took no "thought for the morrow."

Further on in the ministrations of Christ, when traveling with his disciples, the wind tossed the sea into angry waves round the vessel on which they journeyed. The disciples, affrighted, brought their fear to him. He rebuked them for their want of confidence and assurance of safeconduct in these words: "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?"—Matt. 8: 26.

This rebuke was to the small body of those chosen by the Lord to be with him and so applied to each. The occasion was one in which Master and disciples were alike in danger. His placid sleep itself should have been their guarantee of their own safety; but it was not. His unmoved demeanor in the midst of the warring elements should have stayed their manly courage, but it did not. The completeness of his trust should have been the support of their assurance, but it was not. In the face of the wind and the waves their courage failed, their trust forsook them, their confidence vanished. Where was their faith?

Another, and if one can be more convincing than another out of the many evidences from holy writ, a strong one is found in the Lord's exclamation to Peter, upon the occasion of the attempt of the latter to go to his Lord walking on the water. Peter started all right, was upborne upon the surface of the water and would have done what he essayed to do, had he paid heed to the command, "Come," and not to the "boisterous" wind. Beginning to sink, his pitiable plea, "Lord, save me," was met by the outstretched hand of the Lord in saving strength, and the reproof, "O thou of little faith, wherefore dids't thou doubt?"

Peter knew the power of Jesus, for he had witnessed it before; but when his own trust was to be put to the test his confidence failed him and he sank. This was Peter's personal lesson. The occasion was a notable one, and clearly shows that it was want of faith, trust and confidence that caused Peter to fail. He walked safely afterwards while holding to his Lord's hand. He walked by sight and not by

Of positive proofs there are many; from among them the following may sustain the point sought to be presented:

"And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee."

-Luke 5:20. In this case the Lord was beset by a number of those who sought his aid; some could not come near to him because of the great crowd, so they approached him by going upon the housetop, taking up the tiled roof and letting their sick man down into the presence of Jesus in that way. The Lord saw their trust, their assurance, and ministered to their desires in his own way. It was as easy for him to say, "Arise, be thou healed and go thy way," as to say, "Thy sins are forgiven thee;" but his lesson this time was of other significance, and so he used language indicating the grander object upon which he was sent, the forgiving, the saving of his people from their sins. This made apparent, he graciously said to the palsied one; "Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine own house."

The confidence of those who brought their sick relative or friend to receive the ministration of the man, Jesus Christ, for relief from sickness, was so strong that they did not hesitate to use strong measures to reach the one they sought. This confidence Jesus saw and respected. To him it was the exhibition of a sublime reliance upon the power which they recognized as the power of God. One object to be attained by his coming was to inspire the covenant people of his Father's house with this trust, this confidence, this reliance upon the power of Him who had promised Israel that He would not forget him. As a consequence, Jesus, when he witnessed this reliance, would not, and did not fail to commend and confirm it.

Once on his journeyings the Lord in passing through a village was met by ten persons afflicted by leprosy. These, outcast and shunned, did not press closely upon him, but stood apart from him, long and sad experience in their distress having taught them that they were loathed among the living, and though they still lived, were accounted as dead. They appealed to him, and the language of that appeal was: "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us." In these terms there was expressed all that could be, in so few words. It was an appeal to the Lord, in the name Jesus, by which his humanity and affinity for his human kind was recognized. It was an appeal to him as Master, the one having the right to rule and command, and possesing the power to enforce his commands. It was an appeal in the interest of suffering and distress, without any urging of demands for recognition, any worth, or merit in themselves; "Have mercy on us."

This appeal evinced their trust. It does not matter how their trust had been created; whether by observing the acts by which others had been benefitted, or by hearing the preaching of Christ and his followers; it was in them an existent consciousness within themselves of power to heal in the Savior. This the Master recognized and healed them. The benefit received, the Savior commanded them to show themselves to the priests. One of them, finding himself healed, was moved by grateful remembrance of him through whom he had received the healing power, and returned to seek and thank him; the others, so helped, were careless, forgetful and possibly ungrateful, went about their daily affairs in enjoyment of the blessing conferred, unmindful of the source whence it came. Of the latter class there may be many when the end contemplated in the question "when the Son of man cometh?" shall be reached.

The boon sought by these lepers was bodily health, a physical blessing only. To give was easy for the Master, but in giving there was no promise, and no fulfillment of eternal life, the best and all-sufficient gift within the power of him who came to save.

In Luke, seventh chapter, there is a relation of an incident remarkable in its circumstances and containing a different element from any of the others; perhaps for the reason that one of the principal actors was a man of more character than some of those taking part in other instances cited. In the household of this Centurion was a valued servant, who was sick. The Centurion desiring that this servant should be made well, made application to the elders of the Jews, asking them to request Jesus to come and heal him. These Tewish elders, for reasons of their own, undertook the commission, and in urging their request, told Jesus that the Centurion was worthy of the service. Jesus started with them, and was met by those sent by the Centurion, who assured him that their employer did not feel himself to be worthy of receiving the Lord in his house. "I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof. Neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word and my servant shall be healed."

There would have been nothing remarkable in this, if it had not been for the argument with which the Centurion enforced the statement of his belief in the power of Jesus to heal the sick man. "For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it." This evinced the fact that the Centurion had been cognizant of both the teaching and work of Jesus; and had given them much thought. The result of this had been that he had satisfied himself that Jesus was not only the expected Messiah, the one who was to come, but was the Lord (ruler, commander), of life; and that all things were subjected to his command; that if Tesus should so far interest himself in his behalf as to be willing to do him the service he asked of him, it would not be necessary for Jesus to go to his house, personally to lay hands upon the sick man, or to perform any rite, or observe any ordinance in the sick man's presence; but it would be sufficient for Jesus to "say the word;" that is, give command and from out the places where the forces of cure, strength and health were hidden from the search and power of man, there would come healing and balm to him who lay wrestling for life with disease and death. There was in the statement of the Centurion confident assurance of the powers of the Lord to perform what was desired, and in the argument with which he fortified his request there was shown such a comprehensiveness of the personality, character and mission of Jesus, that that personage himself was forcibly impressed by it. This is seen by the statement made by Jesus: "I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel."

From a consideration of these texts, we discover that the faith to which the Lord must have had reference was not doubt, distrust, want of confidence, either in them who were of the fold, or out of it; and that it was trust, confidence and sublime assurance in the existence of God, His promises to man and absolute goodness and power to keep his promises and to fulfill them to the fullest extent.

Latter Day Saints, have you this sort of

FOOD FOR REFLECTION.

THE Lamoni branch at its last annual business meeting re-elected its former corps of officers, placing Bro. Asa S. Cochran in charge for another year. It was refreshing to notice, that while the are upwards of thirty elders in the branch, there was not one aspirant for the presidency. This is as it should be, and is an encouraging and significant indication.

When men aspire to place and position in the church they furnish the best evidence of their unfitness and incapacity for such positions; for such actions are in direct opposition to the spirit of the gospel, and it is manifestly improper to place responsibility upon individuals who seek such for the purpose of gratifying their love of place and power.

love of place and power.

Jesus declared "For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." This means simply that the man who, in a spirit of self-exaltation labors for and obtains position and prominence among the people, will in time be abased, and his folly and the thoughts and intents of his heart be made made manifest to all, (for Christ's predictions mean what they say); while the individual who pursues the opposite course will be recognized and his integrity and true worth, and the grandeur and uprightness of his character be made manifest to the good of the cause, and its permanent growth and establishment so far as the Lord calls such individual to labor, whether as a member, deacon, teacher, priest or elder. God recognizes the sincere efforts of the humblest of his children: "She hath done what she could" contains a world of meaning in this connection, and should give encouragement to all who are endeavoring so to do.— "Faith, hope, charity and love, with an eye single to the glory of God, qualifies him [or her] for the work,"—Doc. & Cov. III

Formerly, an opinion prevailed—at least to a great extent—(and we are not certain that it is not yet held by many) that an individual must hold some office in order to be useful. We have thanked God and taken renewed courage that in the revelation given at Kirtland, in 1887, the Lord gave proof of his impartiality by recognizing the efforts of all. "All are called according the gifts of God unto them; and to the intent that all may labor together, let him that laboreth in the ministry and him that toileth in the affairs of the men of business and of work labor together with God for the accomplishment of the work entrusted to all."

It is necessary that some shall be entrusted with the various degrees of authority provided for in the law, but such is by no means true of all. If superior wisdom designs that men shall receive responsibilities, it is fair to presume that at a proper time such ordinations will be provided for, and that individuals need not become a law unto themselves and improperly seek for that of which we preach, that "no man taketh this honor unto himself but he that is called of God as was Aaron." Sec. 3, Doc. & Cov. must be considered in connection with all that is written on the subject of "calling."

Nor is the grave and important matter of calling a prerogative left to the exercise of every individual. While some may prophesy of or predict things that may be designed upon certain conditions, and thus aid in preparing and instrucing individuals concerning such matters, yet there is a designating and ordaining authority in the church whom God has gifted to discern the gifts and callings of men, and to set such apart at proper times.

In some respects we need to take heed to the injunction "Forgetting the things that are behind, . . . let us press toward the mark of the prize of our high calling of God in Christ Jesus." We need some new interpretations, but only such as are in entire harmony with the three books—and we anticipate that said books, correctly interpreted, will always point forward in the line of progress and intelligence, and for a long time to come be in advance of the people; at least until the church learns to "live by every word which proceedeth from the mouth of God."

If the people of God are to become that "glorious church, without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing;" and are to "come unto Mt. Sion, and unto the City of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of the first born, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant," the Spirit has wisely enjoined us to "come up higher;" and we therefore present some features which to us appear necessary to consider in that respect in order to obey the Spirit's voice.

We are gratified to observe that serious branch troubles are becoming less frequent. Their absence indicates one form of healthful growth. We have often wondered why individuals were unable to understand the motives of men who have caused many of those difficulties. The exercise of ordinary perception and judgment ought to reveal the purposes and motives of most of those aspiring men, but such seem to "beguile unstable souls" now, as they also did in ancient times. We are thankful, however, that some, like Paul, "are not ignorant of" the enemy's "devices."

The minister who labors in the Spirit of Christ performs a noble duty; but we should not forget to also equally honor the wives, and mothers, and children who sacrifice many of the enjoyments and comforts which a father's society and labor provide. We sometimes wonder if the sacrifices of the families are not the greater. We know that the ministry will be gratified if we prefer to so regard it, and we believe that our conclusion is, in many respects at least, the correct one.

One thing more: Some men's labors appear more conspicuously than others, and on that acount we are apt to over-estimate them and fail to credit others whose labors are—apparently—not so meritorious. A great mistake is often made here. We like to hear of men baptizing large numbers, and we bid them God speed in that work; but we should remember that some men's callings require another kind of labor which is equally as important as baptizing, and imperatively necessary-that is, among other things, the confirming of the disciples.

We have known of men who have toiled, and labored, and fasted and prayed, while contending against the efforts of false brethren, and foes from without and within, in order to repel the enemy and feed the sheep; and who by reason of the extra strain and the demands thus made upon them have passed many anxious, sleepless nights; yet their work when summed up, would be slightingly spoken of beause they were not baptizing large numbers, but were engaged in a work of a more burdensome and difficult character, requiring greater wisdom, and care and discretion, than the unresisted preaching of the principles of the gospel.

It is also much more difficult to make converts in some sections of the country than in others. We accord all proper honor and appreciation to the energetic workers who baptize many converts, but let us look also beneath the surface of present results and fruits when we view the labors of others whose work may, for a time or as a general thing, be of another character.

Let us "live and learn," or rather, learn and live.

SAMUEL BRANNAN.

FROM among the many notices sent us of the death of Samuel Brannan we publish the following, as being nearer the truth in respect to what it says of the history of his life, which we take from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 6.—Samuel Brannan, whose career reads like a romance, died last night at Escondido, San Diego County, of inflammation of the bowels. Brannan was the man whom Brigham Young selected to found a Mormon empire on this coast, but the discovery of gold led him to change his plans, and for ten years he was the richest man and leading citizen of California. Then he lost wealth, friends and health, and for twenty years has been trying to develop a great concession of land he secured from the Mexican Government. Brannan was a painter and came from Saco, Me. In 1846 he chartered the ship Brooklyn at New York and came round the Horn with a party of Mormon emigrants. He loaded the ship with everything he thought a colony would need, including types and press for a newspaper. Brannan had great trouble with his party, and was forced to put in to Honolulu to provision the ship. When he arrived here he secured a large body of land near Sutter Fort, on the Sacramento River, known ever since as Mormon Island. He himself preached every Sunday, and carried on a general merchandise store during the week. The colony was flourishing and was in constant communication with Brigham Young, until the gold discovery revolutionized everything in California. Brannan was among the first to learn of the gold nuggets found by Marshall in Sutter mill-race, and he was shrewd enough to foresee the great rush of prospectors which would follow as soon as the discovery was known. He hurried to San Francisco and invested his entire fortune and everything he could borrow in groceries and supplies that miners would need, while he sent to New York for picks, shovels and miners' pans. When the great rush of argonauts came Brannan was about the only one prepared for it, and he cleared an immense profit, making as much as $1000 per day. He abandoned the Mormon Church, went to San Francisco and plunged in to trade and real estate speculation. He was worth $1,000,000 by 1860, and was foremost in all public enterprises. It was due mainly to his energy and public spirit that the first vigilance committee was formed, and he was its first President. He established the first newspaper on this coast, called the Star, which he printed from the type he brought from New York. Brannan was a man of immense energy, but he lacked selfcontrol, and his vices, of which drinking was the chief, soon made an inroad on his fortune. He rapidly lost his valuable real estate in this city, which to day is worth more than $10,000,000, but to the end of his career he still showed great business shrewdness and unparalleled vigor. He gave more than any single man to the sanitary fund during the rebellion, and no old pioneer applied vainly to him for aid. He was one of the strongest Union men in the dark days, when Duke Gwin and other Southern leaders tried to deliver Cailfornia over to the Confederates. In the struggle of Mexico with Maximilian, Brannan assisted patriotic parties with large sums of money, and in return obtained a grant of 2,000,-000 acres in the Maya and Yaqui country, but he could do nothing with it because of the savage Indians. Then he obtained another grant in Sonora, which he was forced to give up to the company that paid the large expenses of surveying it. For many years Brannan lived at Guaymas, but recently he came back to this state and settled at Escondido, which is a large orange grove. Though broken in health, he was brave in spirit and always declared he should again become a millionaire. He belonged to the Masons and Odd Fellows, and no doubt a monument will be raised to his memory.

Not many years ago Mr. Brannan wrote President Joseph Smith at intervals seeking to get the latter, and the Church under his presidency, interested in the lands he secured from the Mexican Government in the vicinity of Guaymas. He evidently had not lost all interest in the work begun under the ministry of Joseph the Seer, but his head and heart were devoted first and last to worldly matters, until now he has gone to his account to receive according to his works.

He united with the church at Kirtland. Ohio, when but a boy, and afterward, in the city of New York, labored in the interests of the church till he went with the Brooklyn company to California. It has been currently reported that, on meeting Brigham Young afterwards in the Rocky mountains and becoming acquainted with the new methods of church government and the strange doctrines foisted upon the Saints by Brigham and his fellows, he refused and rejected that people and their doctrines and paid no more attention to matters of religion. He was about seventy years of age at his death.

THE following correspondence of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat is chiefly valuable as showing that the fates continue to revive the story of the brutal murder of Joseph and Hyrum Smith at Carthage, Illinois, June 27th 1844.

When this cruel, barbarous transaction forces itself into public notice so frequently as in the past, it demonstrates the fact that heaven wills that the horrid deed shall vex its perpetrators and abettors, teach the world the sinfulness of sectarian hate, the dangers of political trickery, and the vileness of religious persecution. And further, it reveals that, whatever the short comings of Joseph Smith the martyr, God holds his betrayers and murderers and their abettors and apologists responsible for the dastardly deed and will hold it up to the gaze of the world and to the quickened conscience of men till retributive justice is appeased or ample atonement made.

It teaches further, that Joseph Smith was and is of sufficient importance with Him who notes the fall of the sparrow, to move the heavens in vindication of his rights as a man, and as a citizen of this divinely founded government. The mists of darkness that enshrouded the history of Joseph Smith and the Saints are lifting and passing away, and the light of truth is revealing the facts of that history in their proper spirit and connections.

The Saints have need of patient endurance. The right will triumph at last, and this event is rapidly nearing. Don't be surprised at errors and exaggerations found in the article below. Wise Saints will gather out the wheat from the chaff—and there is "wheat" in the article. The people anciently "magnified" the Saints whom they before greatly persecuted (Acts 5: 13). And "the name of the Lord Jesus," whom they once despised and detested, "was magnified" by "Jews and Greeks."—Acts 10: 17.

Therefore it is no surprising thing that, in the very places stained "by the blood of Saints and prophets" men are rising up and exposing the wrongs and the barbarities heaped upon the people of God, and rebuking the erring ones who were guilty of such deeds. The Lord has said: "Vengence belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord." He will bring it to pass in the right time and manner, and He will make no mistakes about it.

Here is the arcticle alluded to:

"PROPHET JOSEPH SMITH'S VISION."

CARTHAGE, Illinois, April 11th.-The remarkable vision at the execution of the Mormon prophet, Joseph Smith, which some people still in the land of the living claim to have witnessed at that grim spectacle, is among the singular "spook lore" of Hancock county, and is even recalled with terror forty-four years after. It is a matter of common history that Joseph Smith had gotten into serious trouble at Nauvoo with the civil authorities, for having ordered a newspaper office called the Nauvoo Expositor demolished, and the type and presses thrown into the river. For this act, Smith, his brother Hyrum, Dr. Taylor, recent president of the Mormon Church at Salt Lake, and a Mr. Richards, all Mormon dignitaries, were arrested and brought to Carthage on June 26th, 1844. They were accompanied by an armed posse under orders from Governor Ford, more for protection to the prisoners than through any fear that they would escape. While crossing the then trackless prairies to Carthage, Smith suddenly drew rein, and turning in his saddle, addressed his fellowprisoners in substance as follows:

"Brothers, I have had a vision and I am sorely troubled. Governor Ford has promised us due protection in the Carthage jail and a fair trial; but alas, we are doomed. An angel has told me that my days and Hyrum's are numbered. We shall be murdered before sunset tomorrow. It is written."

He then turned toward Nauvoo and gazed with earnest longing in that direction for several minutes.

Then he exclaimed: "Zion, my love, my joy —my people—farewell!"

The prisoners arrived at Carthage that day and were placed in the debtor's room of the old stone jail, which now stands in good condition. On the next afternoon, June 27th, 1844, about 4 o'clock, a mob of armed men wearing hideous disguises, emerged from a strip of timber near the jail and made a furious assault upon the guards who fled in confusion. It was the work of but a few minutes to send a shower of bullets into the struggling bodies of the prisoners. Smith defended himself nobly, but finding himself overpowered, ran to the east window and attempted to jump out. His appearance was the signal for a volley of bullets from determined men in the yard below. With a heavy groan the prophet fell to the earth and expired. In the meantime the mob had fled, and most of the inhabitants of the town also.

A few who remained and went to the jail declare that as Smith's body lay, torn and bleeding, on the ground, a most beautiful vision appeared, which cast a dazzling light upon them, blinding their sight for a moment. Then, as they declare, the vision took a clearer form, it being that of an angel arrayed in spotless white. In one hand she carried a flaming sword, while in the other swung a basket of incense, the odors of which filled the air with strangely sweet perfume. The angel approached the prostrate form of the prophet. Then the light became more dazzling, when, amidst a cloud of great glory and beauty, the vision disappeared.

The bodies of the murdered Mormons were cared for by a citizen and taken the next day to Nauvoo. Here they were received with great sorrow and lamentations by the stricken people. Both bodies were secretly buried and their resting place is now unknown save to one or two.

At the trial of those supposed to have been connected with this murder, at least one witness for the prosecution swore that a great light descended from heaven when the attack was made. The testimony had little weight, however, with the jury, who acquitted the defendants after a short consultation.

There are a few persons living to-day who claim to have been eye-witnesses to this great tragedy. Some members of the old Carthage Grays who were there guarding the jail, yet live, as do one or two who resided near the jail at the time. So great was the terror of the people, fearing vengeance at the hands of the Mormons, that few remained to witness the beautiful vision, which, as some of the faithful believe, came to bear away the spirit of their prophet to its new Zion, where trouble cometh not.

"THE American Method," is the title of an article from an eastern paper which appears below. In it will be found a graphic picture of some of the religious transformation scenes peculiar to the age. It is true that old forms of religious belief are being broken away from, but it is also true that "the masses are not to be without religion," of some kind, for the old questions of what is man, what his destiny, and how shall he be able to intelligently approach and receive from Deity are still the agitated ones, and will continue to be discussed while man exists. We may well rejoice that the wants of our times have been anticipated and provided for, and that in these last times "God has spoken unto us by his Son," as provided for in the constitutional word, and again revealed that religion which responds to every human necessity and harmonizes with and takes strong hold upon "present life, its hopes, its trials," and blends it with the future

That the leaven of a progressive spirit is working in the world, and that it may, in a measure, enable men to properly interpret religious life in its constitutional form, we do not doubt; but it is both fitting and providential that heaven should behold the necessities of earth's children and furnish the supply.

The great latter day work comprehends and represents man's every want, and its scope is broader, and deeper, and higher than that which has entered into the heart of the natural man. "Out of Zion the perfection of beauty God hath shined." Would that men would come to the light that their deeds might be made manifest and their lives be made conformable to heavenly precepts and true earthly conditions!

"THE AMERICAN METHOD."

It is difficult to estimate the present strength of religious life among the people as a whole. In one section of the country the old forms of piety are triumphant; in another the beliefs of the people have broken away from the past, and they are in search of a better expression of religious truth. Wherever one goes, the two issues, the traditional faith and the modern belief, are in contention in the thoughts of our citizens. Never was there a greater demand for the interpretation of religion by the facts of character; never was the demand more earnest for a belief which is true to life; never before have social questions been closer pressed to a religious issue by thoughtful persons. It is plain to those who observe the religious trend of the day in its larger aspects that the American people are demanding more of the different organized churches than these bodies are willing to concede to them. The movement toward unity expresses this demand, and the purpose of individuals, especially those individuals who are fair representatives of the common thought, indicates its terms in the strongest way.

It is evident from these marks of leading that, at least in this country, we are working toward an American religious system. This has not anywhere, as yet, formal expression; it is hardly the informal expression of individual convictions; it expresses itself, on the one hand, in dissatisfaction with what exists, and, on the other, in the freer and the better statement of the truth contained in many dogmatic formularies. The masses of the people are not to be without religion, but whatever faith they have must take strong hold on their present life, its hopes, its trials, and comprehend what they are living for. Here the earnestness of the evangelical system atones somewhat for its recognized weakness. The difficulty with American religion comes from the dissatisfaction of thoughtful and often well educated people, who are familiar with religious truth, but do not give their full allegiance. These persons express themselves in a narrow individualism, and are seldom willing to move beyond their environment. The larger belief, which can reduce to coherence, and bring to a formal unity the widely divergent thought of the American people, as expressed in their religious convictions, has yet hardly come. The method by which what may be called the American statement of religious principles, into which shall be incorporated convictions that grow out of the intelligent life of our people, is in process of formation. You get glimpses of it in many directions, but no one has yet put it into a statement that fairly expresses the American idea. The statement of this method is to be reached by those Americans who have what may be called a genius for the interpretation of religious life in its institutional form; and this is the point to which the higher religious thinking in this country is now tending."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE building committee of the Lamoni branch have lately taken action toward the finishing and furnishing of the large upper auditorium of the brick church, that all things may be prepared for the General Conference of 1890. It is estimated that its seating capacity is sufficient for one thousand persons or more.

A letter from Bro. T. W. Smith and wife, dated Papete, Tahiti, March 14th was received yesterday, (May 9th), indicating their safe arrival at that island from Australia. The Saints gladly welcomed them.

Bro. Simeon Townsend of Chicago, Illinois, writes that he could get many to go and hear the word if they had regular services conducted by an experienced Elder in Chicago.

Bro. Henry Kemp writes from Thurman, Iowa, that Bro. R. J. Anthony has aided the work there by delivering some excellent discourses.

A late letter from Bro. E. L. Page of Independence, Missouri, informs us that Bro. J. C. Foss is yet confined to his bed and is very feeble. He desires the prayers of the Saints.

Bro. R. Goreham, No 612, east Condit street, Decatur, Illinois, writes for tracts to acquaint his neighbors with the truth and inform them "that there is one Latter Day Saint in that place." He will welcome any of the elders who will call at the above address.

Bro. E. W. and Sr. Mary Anway of Dickens, Lincoln county, Nebraska, write, May 12th, desiring to be communicated with by the president of that district, or if not in any district, by those in charge of that field. They live twenty-five miles south of North Platte and will welcome any minister who can call upon them. Will those in charge please write them?

Can any one furnish us the address of Sr. Christine Ryon? A HERALD has been erroneously addressed to her at Knob Noster, Missouri, but we are informed that she does not reside there. We would like to have her correct address.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

President Joseph Smith was still in San Bernardino, California, the 10th inst. He says:

"I feel better than at any time since I left home. Yesterday it was dark, cold, rainy, and it thundered and stormed. There are thousands of tons of hay down and probably spoiled by the storm. .... Bro Wm. M. Gibson baptized seven lately in San Diego county."

Bro. M. J. Danielson of Danway, Illinois, writes:

"I feel happy to say that the interest is increasing in our Sabbath School cause here. The Saints at Mission are feeling pretty well spiritually. We had a genuine old time prayer and estimony meeting to-day, in which the gifts of he gospel were enjoyed; admonishing the Saints o diligence and duty, and warning of trials."

Bro. James Corhan of Stuttgart, Arkansas county, Arkansas, thus writes in a recent letter:

"We have no meeting of the Saints to go to here, and there is a good opening for a preacher of the Saints here. Can you send us one? If an elder will come we will take care of him as long as he will stay. There are nine of our family to be baptized."

Bro. George H. Hilliard wrote us of

"I am expecting to do considerable in the cause this year. Am glad we have the testimony of the truth of the latter day work from a higher power than man."

Bro. J. W. Brackenbury, Independence, Missouri, writes:

"All are well here at present. Church prosper-Church building still going up—at work on gables.'

Bro. I. N. Roberts, Craig, Holt county, Missouri, writes:

"I am holding meetings here. The interest is good, house full every night, and many investigating. Please send an assortment of tracts to assist in keeping up the interest until Bro. A. J. Moore or some other brother can come to the rescue. I leave in a few days."

The Saints at Wilbur, Nebraska, are now occupying their new chapel. Bro. R. J. Anthony wrote us the 7th instant, saying:

"I had both the privilege and pleasure of preaching the first discourse in our little chapel. I feel to praise the Lord that we have been patient in trials and labor, and that we now see the fruits of the work done."

Bro. R. J. Anthony, writing from Plum Hollow, Iowa, the 15th inst. says:

"I have preached here four times to full houses. Next Monday I go to Nebraska City. Church interests here are pleasant and favorable."

Bro. Edward McGurk, of Somerville, Victoria, Australia, in a letter dated April 8th, says:

"I will be very much mistaken if Brn. Wight and Butterworth do not make a fine record. They are good men and well liked, being heart and soul in the work, planting wisely and well."

On the 12th inst. Pres. J. Smith wrote us:

"It is with much pleasure I can report my health much improved."

He intended to leave San Bernardino for Los Angeles and San Francisco the 14th or 15th inst.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques .- What is the two horned beast spoken of in Revelation 13:11-18?

Ans.—We understand it to be Papal Rome, and that the "two horns like a lamb" represent respectively the spiritual and the temporal powers of that Kingdom.

Pagan Rome, which preceded Papal Rome, and out of which the latter was developed, is plainly described in its chief characteristics in the same chapter, from the first to the tenth verses. Pagan Rome had "seven heads" [seven different forms of government during its times, viz., kings, consuls, decemvirs, dictators, military tribunes, emperors of the laurel crown, and emperors of the diadem] and it had "ten horns" with "ten crowns," foreshowing the ten kingdoms into which it would be finally divided, which occurred between A. D. 356 and A. D. 526, viz., Huns, Ostrogoths, Visigoths, Franks, Vandals, Sueves and Alans, Burgundians, Herules and Rugians, Saxons, and the Longobards. This Pagan "beast" was to accomplish the complete overthrow of the church, for "it was given unto him to make war with the Saints, and to overthrow them."-verse 7. This Pagan power was succeeded about A. D. 606, by Papal Rome, which exercised "all the power of the first beast" -Pagan Rome-and it had and held similar dominion, and it blended church and state-ecclesiastical and political power-and hence it "had two horns like a lamb," though it retained the essential characteristics of "the first beast." This chapter, like chapter twelve, foreshows the entire apostacy of the first christian church, and the final means by which it would be accomplished, making it possible and needful that the pure gospel, and the true church of Christ, be restored and re-established as provided for in the following chapter—and this just prior to the downfall of Babylon and the second coming of our Lord.

2.—How will the Lord's servants "compel" people to come in to the "great supper" mentioned in Luke 14: 16, 23?

A.—By the force of evidences furnished from various sources as, (1) prophecy and its fulfilment; (2) the perfect manner of preaching the gospel in its fulness; and, (3), by the special power of the Holy Spirit in which they will preach and minister (as in tongues, and prophecy, and revelation, and miracle), the Lord thus sealing and compelling conviction and effecting conversion. The parable should be read in connection with the following from Doc. and Cov. 58: 3, which reads: "For this cause have I sent vou [Elders] that you might be obedient, and that your hearts might be prepared to bear testimony of the things which are to come; and also that you might be honored of laying the foundation, and of bearing record of the land upon which the Zion of God shall stand; and also that a feast of fat things might be prepared for the poor; yea, a feast of fat things, of wine on the lees well refined, that the earth may know that the mouths of the prophets shall not fail; yea, a supper of the house of the Lord, well prepared, unto which all nations shall be invited. Firstly, the rich and the learned, the wise and the noble; and after that cometh the day of my power; then shall the poor, the lame and the blind, and the deaf, come in unto the marriage of the Lamb, and partake of the supper of the Lord, prepared for the great day to come." And in Doc. and Cov. 87: 3, 4, it is seen that the Frst Presidency are to organize and administer in "the school of the prophets" that "they may be perfected in their ministry for the salvation of Zion, and of the nations of Israel, and of the Gentiles, as many as will believe;" that "the word my go forth unto the ends of the earth, unto the Gentiles first; and then, behold, and lo, they shall turn to the Jews; and then cometh the day when the arm of the Lord shall be revealed in power in convincing the nations, the heathen nations, the house of Joseph, of the gospel of their salvation. For it shall come to pass in that day, that every man shall hear the fulness of the gospel in his own tongue and in his own language, through those who are ordained unto this power, by the administration of the Comforter, and shed forth upon them, for the revelation of Jesus Christ." These latter passages are keys to explain and texts confirming Luke 14: 16-24, and should be read in close connection with each other. When this is done thoroughly there can be but one opinion in regard to their meaning and application.

"TRUST IN GOD."

Courage, brother, do not stumble,
Though thy path be dark as night;
There's a star to guide the humble,
Trust in God and do the right.

Let the road be rough and dreary, And its end far out of sight; Foot it bravely, strong or weary, Trust in God and do the right.

Perish policy and cunning;
Perish all that fears the light;
Whether losing, whether winning,
Trust in God and do the right.

Simple rule, and safest guiding, Inward peace, and inward might; Star upon our path abiding, Trust in God and do the right.

Some will hate thee, some will love thee,
Some will flatter, some will slight;
Cease from man and look above thee,
Trust in God and do the right.
H. TABBINER

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"In spring, the seeds hid deep in earth's dark mold,
Push upward, striving still to find the light,
Till in full beauty they their buds unfold,
And, free from earth-soil, robed in purest white, Bloom on through fair June days, with sunshine bright.

So thou, my soul, if striving e'er to rise
Through this dark mold of sin and doubt, shalt see
The Sun of Righteousness in God's fair skies;
And having seen it shall be given to thee
To live in light to all eternity."

WHITE HANDS.

It was the evening before commencement at Mt. Pleasant Seminary. Six young ladies of the graduating class were gathered around a window overlooking the pleasant grounds, and talking eagerly about the future. Their plans were various, reaching onward with no thought of grief or sorrow. Wealth, admiration, fame, were among the attainable. Music and art would each have its devotee. One would continue her studies at a higner institution; another would become the mistress of a beautiful home.

One had not spoken, and when the question, a second time, was asked impatiently, "Louise, what are your plans?" her answer was eagerly awaited. "I shall help my mother," said quiet Louise. "O-o-oh, we all mean to do that, of course," said one, "but what plans have you? You can't mean just to stay at home in a poky way and not try to do anything?" "Girls," said Louise, "I do not mean to do just that; for the present, at least, my business shall be to help my mother in any way that it is possible for me to help her.

A glance at the puzzled faces around her, and she continued: "Shall I open my heart to you a bit and let you read a sad page from it? You remember Stella Morton? You remember that I once visited her during vacation? Her home was very pleasant, and a large family of brothers and sisters made the days pass merrily. Our pleasures kept us so much out of doors that we saw little of Mrs. Morton, a delicate, quiet lady, always ready to bestow sympathy when needed. I noticed that the girls were not so tidy and helpful about the house as I had been taught to be, but as I did not see who supplied all deficiencies I thought little about It. One day a picnic had been planned, and I heard the girls impa.

tiently commenting upon the illness of the one servant, as it threw upon them some disagreeable household duties. How Mrs. Morton, ever accomplished the delicious lunch we ate that day, only such overworked mothers can explain; the little assistance given by Stella and Alice must have been unsatisfactory.

"We returned by moonlight, so tired that we went to our rooms without seeing any one, if indeed any one was up at that hour. By and by—I don't know how long we had slept—a frightened voice called Stella, who shared my room, and soon we all knew that gentle, tired Mrs. Morton was alarmingly ill. At sunrise she was gone, without hearing the voices so full of love and sorrow. Girls, I can't describe Stella's grief; she placed her own delicate hand beside the thin, toil-stained dead one, and said, 'See, Louise, at what a cost mine is so fair; and I have been vain of my white hands." She kissed the cold fingers again and again.

"One day I found Stella at her mother's worktable holding up some unfinished piece, evidently left in haste. 'Louise,' she said, 'mother asked me to do this and I really meant to; oh, why didn't I do it at once?'

"You can understand what an impression all this made upon me, and when a few days later, I was called home by the illness of my own mother, the feeling was intensified. Mother was very ill, and as hope grew fainter my distress was hardly less than Stella's. One night, when my sister and I were too anxious to sleep. I told her about Stella, and we then pledged ourselves to take from mother every possible care, and to make our home our first object. To make the promise more binding and real we exchanged rings. Mother's illness made it seem more natural and easy at first, and everything moved on so smoothly that I really think she regained her health more quickly. All the mending and sewing were done promptly under her direction, and we always silenced her by saying that we liked to do it. She seldom knows what is preparing for tea or breakfast; we beg her not to inquire, for we know that she enjoys little surprises. The boys and the dear baby are better and happier for having so much of her time and attention.

"Last summer I visited Stella again. She is the light of the home. Only for the discipline I had passed through could I understand how she was able to accomplish so much. Once when I expressed something of this to her, her eyes filled with tears when she asked, 'Do you suppose she can see us—that she knows what I am trying to do? Her hands were not fair and delicate, but I thought them more beautiful. Why, girls, I never see a pretty hand now without wondering if it has a right to be fair and white. So I am going home to help mother; I shall be happy because I know it is my duty."

As Louise finished speaking the retiring bell sounded. Not a word was spoken, but the kiss that each bestowed upon the flushed face of the earnest speaker told of the impression her words had made. Those mothers alone can tell whether the influence was lasting.—Congregationalist.

Inexhaustible good nature is indeed the most precious gift of heaven, spreading itself like oil over the troubled sea of thought, and keeping the mind smooth and equal in the roughest weather.

A FEW WORDS WITH OUR CORRES-PONDENTS.

Perhaps it would have more nearly expressed our meaning had we said, "Those who should be our correspondents!" That there are many who could contribute interesting matter to sustain the Home Column, we believe, and that such ought to do so we feel very certain. Will you do it? is the question we come to ask you. You will never be able to help us in a time when such help will be more acceptable. The work is not ours in any broader sense than it is yours, and we hope the Spirit will whisper to you, "Help those who need help and be kind."

To the many, many friends who have sent us personal letters of sympathy and cheer, we wish to say, "Your words have been hid away in our heart." To each one we would have been glad to respond separately, but find it impossible so to do. We trust therefore that you will accept our grateful acknowledgment of your kindness and assurance of its full appreciation. May the Lord deal kindly with you as you have dealt with us.

PRAYER UNION.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS.

Sf. Susannah Yocum, of Bellair, Ohio, asks your prayers in behalf of her husband, who was brought home badly injured, (cause not mentioned.)

Sr. Mollie S. Matthews, New Park, Pa., asks your prayers in behalf of her little boy, who is a sufferer trom spinal affection, and Br. M. O. Matthews also asks your prayers in behalf of his son, who is suffering from necrosis of the bone of his leg. Both have been afflicted about three years.

Sr. Mary A. Palmer of Avoca, Iowa, requests your prayers in behalf of a sister, afflicted with cancer, who has been pronounced incurable by the doctors.

Home Column Missionary Fund.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sr. A. E. Sheppard, Medina, Texas, writes:—
"To-day I feel like writing to you and asking an interest in the prayers of the Saints that I may be stronger in the faith and more worthy of God's blessing. My mother was sick, nearly four weeks, but was administered to and is now better. Brethren L. L. Wight and T. J. Sheppard are doing all they can to roll on the good work in this locality. Pray for them that God will bless and strengthen them."

Sr. Mollie S. Matthews, New Park, Pa., writes: "I am a young mother and feel great need of encouragement in raising my family. I think the Prayer Union a great help in the church. We have a little band of Saints here and though scattered, we meet once a week. I ask the prayers of all Saints, who read this, in behalf of my little son who is sorely afflicted."

Sr. Margaret A. Stewart, Santa Cruz, California, writes, "It has been a long time since I was called by the dear name of "Sister" by any of the Saints, and when recently a postal came from the editor of the Patriot thus addressing me, it caused me to rejoice to be so called. I can truthfully say that this is the work of God; that God has many times heard my prayers and I am desiring to live more humble and faithful. Br. Joseph Clapp, of Deer Lodge, Montana, sends me the Herald, for which I am so thankful, and do not know how I have done without it so long. May the blessing of God be with his people.

ARE WE DECEIVING OURSELVES.

This is a question I will first ask myself. I call myself a Saint. Have I a right to the name? I always want to do good, when it is consistent, and I try to live at peace with all. Do I have faith? I try to be faithful. When I went down into the waters of baptism, was it not in the covenant with the Good Father that henceforth I would serve him faithfully; that I would renounce the vanities and follies that draw us away from God and unite us with evil? (and evil is the only name I can find to give a master who is not God-like.) When I find myself very anxious to appear as finely dressed as my neighbors, and using money for decorating my clothing that I am sure should have been used for helping the Lord's work onward, why, I must plead guilty to the charge of a broken covenant with God, and acknowledge that I am not serving Him. Well, says the foolish friend, if your heart is right towards God, it don't make any difference how nice you dress; but this doubtful balm does not make me feel the less guilty, for I can not forget the fact that I have broken a very sacred

And how about the repentance? Of course if I have done any wrong I am very sorry, and I will keep watch over myself. But is that all? Have I ever, by unkind remarks, caused any heart sadness? I hope not, but am very sorry if I have, and truly I repent, but how? I will go to that person and own that I have wronged them, by word or deed, and ask their forgiveness, and that is the only proof that I can give of my repentance. Do I serve the good Father in my daily life in all little things? Am I careful to set a good example before my children, that they may also become Saints, or am I surly and cross in my home? Do I try to make my family happy by being kind and loving? Do I try to make those about me happy by being cheerful and considerate? I conclude that little things rather than big ones, after all, go to make up the sum of good or evil in the lives we live: and when I bear my testimony to the truth of God's work, how can I bear a testimony that I am true to the promise I made to serve him all the days of my life? Henceforth I will watch myself closely lest I find myself being drawn away from God by love of worldly things. I will not serve the evil one by taking up a reproach against any one; for I believe a true Saint will rather cover than expose the faults of even the least one among us. I will watch myself very closely lest my children, (those sure detectives), shall see in my words or works anything that does not agree with the profession I make. I pray the Lord my soul to keep that I may be a Saint indeed.

ANTIONETTE.

Foresee and prepare everything. Trust nothing to chance. "The chapter of accidents is found only in the Bible of fools."

Correspondence.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, May 10th.

Editors Herald:-After a pleasant visit with my brother and a few of my old friends at Lamoni I returned home via St. Joseph, Missouri, where I enjoyed the hospitality of Bro. and Sr. Burlington.

On the 28th ultimo I preached twice in the Saints' Church in Council Bluffs, the church being then reopened after being enlarged and improved every way. And now owing to the enterprise of the Saints there and the untiring zeal of Brn. Beebe and Peeling they have a commodious little church in which to worship God and invite their neighbors in order that they may learn the ways of truth. There was good attendance at the reopening services and the best of attention to the word spoken. Inasmuch as the Saints there do their duty, it seems there must be a good work done in the

After reaching home I was summoned away to preach two funeral sermons; one for Bro. W. H. Jordan of Deloit, and the other for Bro. Abner Martin near Woodbine. At the former there was a large attendance, and good liberty was given to the speaker. The attendance at the latter was not so large, but the interest was good.

I feel greatly the weight of the charge placed upon me to preach the gospel and watch over the interests of the work in this part of the vineyard; and I know that without the aid of God's Spirit I shall be found wanting. I realize that I am called upon to "preach the word," not for filthy lucre, nor yet as a time-server, neither as a manpleaser, but with an eye single to the glory of God. In order to do this I must understand that word and abide in and by that word. And after more than forty years' experience, I feel that within the limits (if I may use the word) of the gospel, I find ample scope for all my powers of mind, and abundant food to feed every hungry soul without having to go outside of that gospel. "What is the chaff to the wheat, saith the Lord God."

I thank you for sending me the tract, "One Wife or Many." It will make a splendid campaign document, and is so clear, concise and emphatic, that it will, with God's blessing, sweep the cob-webs from every eye that can not clearly discern the difference between a doctrine and practice that originated in lust, and is sustained by lust, and the order ordained of God for the peopling of the world and the establishing and accomplishment of his eternal purpose. May God's blessing attend it everywhere.

C. DERRY.

RUSHVILLE, Neb., Mar. 10th.

Brn. Blair and Smith: We are trying to tell the gospel story. Opposition is great, but for all that I had the pleasure of leading two into the waters of baptism-two noble sisters, both adults. I baptized them March 24th. There is no branch here, but there are ten members of the church, and we do praise the Lord for the blessings he bestows upon us.

I live eight miles north of Rushville, and would like to have the brethren in charge of this mission call and labor awhile for us. We desire the prayers of the church that God will raise up a branch here.

I am trying in my weak way to live and set an example worthy the name I bear. The desire of my heart is to go into the field of labor and there remain in the service of my Lord and Master, and I do pray that the time will come when I can do more in the field. But oh, how I do rejoice when I hear of the good work that is being done by others! May God bless the noble efforts of P. W. PRIMO. all his servants.

LONE ROCK, Missouri, May 1st.

Bro. Blair:—I am trying in my weakness to let the light shine which has dawned upon us in this the latter day. I realize that each and every one has a work to do and I trust to King Emanuel that I may work a work of righteousness and be saved in the celestial kingdom of God. My salvation does not depend upon others; for the apostle Paul said, "Let us work out our own salvation with fear and trembling." How can we fight the battle of life without some assistance from God and asking him for divine aid and assistance. God commands us to pray that we may not be led into temptation. This is part of the work which we have to do. Prayer is the outpouring of the soul to God and he will bless us in our prayers if we bow before him in faith. O, that I may so live and so act and conduct myself through life that I may not bring any reproach upon the glorious church and Kingdom

We were made glad on the 27th of last month by the presence of Bro. John Shippy in our branch and his preaching of three discourses for us. With glad hearts we received his noble counsel and teachings. Truly he is a servant of God, and we say, Come again, Bro. Shippy, you are welcome.

My faith in this latter day work grows stronger and stronger day by day.

Your brother,

E. E. MARSHALL.

BYRNVILLE, Indiana, May 8th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-I am at the famous town of Byrnville where the white caps, or rather sectarianism under the name of white caps, tried to hinder the progress of the work. But I am sure it has come to stay. I spoke here last night and am to speak again to-night. I am billed for Nevin, near Corydon, the county seat of this county, for Saturday night. This is a new point where our faith has not been introduced. Of course we expect to meet opposition, as at other new fields, but trust God will be our sufficiency. Pray for us and send some tracts if there is any for distribution, as there are many calls for them. There are more calls for preaching than can be responded to at present. Have not heard from Bro. Gillen since conference. e come....
Yours in bonds,
M. R. Scott.

Editors Herald:-I have traveled over the land of the Saints a great deal and feel like giving a few of my likes and dislikes of things practiced among the Saints: I like a good Sunday School, but do not like to see those running one stand out and contend against the whole branch when that body wishes the Sunday School to give away at the suggestion of the presiding officer, that the time may be occupied by a traveling elder in dispensing the word.

I do not like to see a Sunday School crowd out or take the precedence over a prayer meeting, thereby occupying the best part of the day, namely, the afternoon. I don't like to see the key turned in the door on account of a little church difficulty and the congregation turned away hungry for the word at eleven o'clock and at one o'clock the door to be opened for Sunday School. I have nothing against Sunday Schools in their place, but they should always occupy their place and not be boosted up on the top shelf. I do not like to attend religious services of any kind, especially prayer meeting, and wait from fifteen to forty-five minutes, and sometimes one hour after the appointed time before the presiding officer or one in charge takes the stand. This is all wrong. It is just as easy to open on time as it is to wait. If the presiding officer is prompt and opens, regardless of absent ones they will soon be found on time. Nothing will kill a prayer meeting quicker than for those in charge to be dilatory in opening services at the appointed time. It grieves the Spirit as well as tires the congregation; especially if preaching services follow.

I do not like to see petty quarrels among. Saints after services of any kind, or any kind of business done on the Lord's day. I love to see the Saints honest, upright citizens, having charity one towards another, for charity preventeth a multitude of sins. I love the Saints and love to see the kingdom roll onward until the little stone shall fill the whole earth. I love to see the Saints pay God his just recompense which they owe Him for His goodness towards them. I do not wish to be considered a fault finder but state facts as they appear to a casual observer, and facts are facts whether found among Saints or sinners.

DENVER, Col., May 10th.

Bro. Blair.—We have been made glad by the presence and teachings of Bro. Caffall. He spoke twice in the school house in Valverde on Sunday last, but the attendance was small. We tried to advertise his appointment so that all should be without excuse, but many do not care for the words of life in any form; others are so prejudiced and creed-bound that they will not listen to anything foreign to their preconceived notions.

It seems so strange that people will be so narrow-minded that they will not even listen, but such is the spirit of Babylon, or the sectarian world. For they only show by their works that they are the daughters of the harlot and will not hear for fear of their craft, for it is surely in danger when the light of truth is brought to bear upon it. But as the gospel is to judge every man in the last days they will have to stand or fall for themselves. Bro. Caffall also preached at my house and at sister Platt's. The Saints were encouraged at least, and we hope the seed sown was beneficial to others. We took his advice as stated in his letter to the Herald some time ago, and have organized regular meetings, and the Spirit of the Master has been with us. There are about twenty members in the city, most of them located permanetly, but somewhat scattered; yet we try to get together once a week and are blessed in so doing. Bro. Caffall is undoubtedly the proper one for this mission. Though his congregations are small he does not neglect to declare the whole counsel of God and in such plainness that his hearers are left without excuse. This is a hard mission and would discourage many, but he moves right along the same as if large congregations greeted him and many converts were made. The better acquainted we get with him the more we think him a chosen servant of God to declare this marvelous work and a wonder. That God may bless him in this life with many souls such as shall be saved, and in the great beyond with life eternal is our prayer.

Remember us in this mission that every one of us that have named the name of Christ may let our light shine as a city set upon a hill whose light can not be hid.

That the gospel may spread from the rivers to the ends of the earth, and all the honest in heart be saved is my prayer.

We were much pleased with the showing of the church for the past year both as to numbers and finances.

With love to all the Saints, your Bro. and Sr. in the gospel, E. F. and E. C. Shupe.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 6th.

Bro. W. W. Blair: On the evening of the 1st ultimo Elder Larson of the Seventh Day Adventists made an attack upon our faith in general, and upon the character of Joseph Smith, the Inspired Translation, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants in particular, while he was preaching at Davis City; and upon my return from the General Conference I was requested to make a reply, which I did on the evenings of the 22d and 23d ultimos, and subsequently spoke upon the abrogation of the decalogue; also upon man as a pre-existing being and conscious entity between death and the resurrection. The elder was present and took notes of these two sermons, and on the 28th ultimo he used the Saints' Church at 2:30 p. m., and made a wild, scattering attempt to review what I said. He flaunted the red flag with so much braggadocio and impudence that I felt privileged in challenging him to a public discussion. I offered to furnish a free house, each church to bear the expense equally, and the debate to be printed; we to debate two or more propositions that should effect each church equally. He accepted the challenge and demanded that we meet in public to perfect the necessary arrangements for the debate, stating that he would not agree to any proposition in private, but wanted the people to come out and see who would do the squirming and wiggling. We met at the Saints Church on Monday at 10 p. m. Larson came late, but all fixed up with propositions for both sides. The first squirm was on furnishing his half of the all needful to meet the expense. His propositions were very unfair and not up to agreement, as he utterly failed to affirm anything defensive for his church, while I agreed to affirm the following:

Resolved, I.—That the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is in harmony with the New Testament, in doctrine, practice and organization.

2.—That man as a conscious being pre-existed, and that between death and the resurrection he exists as an intelligent entity.

3.—That the Book of Mormon is of divine origin.

4—That Joseph Smith was a prophet of God. Please be kind enough to publish this, as Larson and his people are busy in circulating a report that I was the one to crawfish; but let it be understood that I still hold myself responsible to stand in defense of those propositions. Larson is the most complete religious acrobat I have ever met.

Our work at Davis City was blest of the Father, two were added by letter, and three by baptism, and our nineteen meetings were well attended, and quite a number of the best people of the place gave us kind and cheerful words. The outlook for the cause there promises favorably.

On the 3d instant the good Saints gave to the undersigned and his better half a dinner at the residence of Bro. W. N. Abbott, for which we return thanks. But best of all was the blessings and words of comfort by the gifts of the Holy Spirit. Truly, it is good to be a Saint, and have a religion that stands the test every time, and shines brighter when put in contrast with the man-made theories that have but an empty form.

In bonds,

R. M. ELVIN.

ESTILL SPRINGS, Tenn., May 6th.

Dear Herald:-I have often thought of bearing my testimony through the columns of the Herald of this great latter day work which I believe to be of God. Although I have not had as great testimony as some of the Saints, yet I have had enough to convince me that this is the true church of Christ. I have been a member for ten years. Was baptized by Elder C. Scott at Clear Lake, Indiana, and I have never for one moment regreted the step taken. I have not heard a Latter Day Saint sermon preached for over three years. There are no Saints here except myself. father, mother and two sisters. I wish some of the elders passing by this way would stop at Estill Springs. They would be gladly welcomed. It seems that good might be done here as else-Your sister, where.

NANCY A. GROSS.

Blenheim, Ontario, May 5th.

Editor Herald:-This beautiful Sabbath morning my heart is made glad while reading the Herald of the progress this glorious cause is making in the world, especially in some places where the elders and Saints have been persecuted and misrepresented, but where they are now honored and respected. My mind is carried back some twenty-seven years to January, 1862, when the work was commenced in this vicinity, or about five miles from here, by Br. John Shippy, and of what was said of the Saints at that time as they were going to and from their meetings, which was that Br. "Joseph Shippy's oxen would be able to haul all the Mormons there would ever be in Canada." But their prophecies have utterly failed, for it would take a large number of ox teams to haul all the Saints in the province of Ontario alone.

Our branch here is not very large, as quite a number have moved from here to other places. The people of our town are very much creedbound, and do not come out much to hear Latter Day Saint doctrine; still, as a church, the Saints here are esteemed as an honest and upright people by the business men of the town.

I think the work is in a fair condition in this district. In some places branches need some labor which it is hoped will be looked after by the proper ones in their time. We hope the Saints will make an extra effort to help the cause in this mission this year by supplying the means necessary to keep the families of those appointed to labor in the mission. The sum required is about one thousand dollars-just about enough to keep one ordinary man on a small circuit in other denominations, and only amounts to about one dollar from each member; and, surely we ought to make that much sacrifice for the cause we all profess to love. May God speed the good work. RICHARD COBURN. · Your brother.

Buchanan, Michigan, May 13th.

Bro. W. W. Blair: To-day I send to Bro. Dancer for one more copy of the Saints' Herald. It does me much good to be in the post-office and see the package of Heralds opened. Thank God he is helping us to increase the number. We can look back eight years, when the Herald first made its appearance, one in number, in Buchanan, but to-day six are taken. Two more precious souls were added May 5th, Bro. and Sr. Bolster, (mother and son) and there will be more of the same family. They are investigating. Brn. W. J. Smith and R. C. Evans, through the help of the heavenly Father, have brought the people of Buchanan to thinking so that the work is looking upward and onward. Many are near the kingdom. Your brother,

JOHN SHOOK.

GRAND BLANC, Mich., Apr. 28th.

Brothers and Sisters:-I am not a member of any church, but have read several of your papers that one of your brethren, Asel Armstrong, gave me to read while he has been staying at our house. He is a poor man in this world's goods. but is rich in the faith of the hereafter, and I can sincerely say if you all live up to what you profess as strictly as he does, I should have a good deal of faith in your religion. He has given up the habit of smoking, which habit he has indulged in very much, and he seems interested in nothing but the Bible and the Saints' Herald.

MRS. C. REED.

RANDALL, Kansas, May 11th.

Bro. Blair:-We have lived in Kansas two years, and during that time have not heard one gospel sermon nor seen a Saint, except a sister who visited us from Missouri last Autumn. Imagine our joy then, when, on the evening of April 30th, Bro. C. R. Duncan came to our place, and after making himself known, declared his intention to try to gain an opening and preach the truth here. Accordingly he visited Randall and obtained the use of the Christian church there, in which he delivered three discourses to crowded houses and at the close of one of his sermons distributed some tracts.

The Spirit of God was with him, and the gospel, set forth in clearness and simplicity, had its effect upon the audience. Some said they had never heard such principles preached from the pulpit before; others asked numerous questions concerning our faith and where they might obtain the Book of Mormon and other church publications. Bro. Duncan also preached one discourse at the Vicksburg school-house, two miles east of Randall.

We believe there is a great work to be accomplished here, as the people seem thoroughly arroused by the hearing of this "strange doctrine," and all are filled with the spirit of inquiry. We will be pleased to have any of the Elders who may be passing through here, call upon us. We live three miles northeast of Randall. Bro.

Duncan promises to return at his earliest opportunity and preach to us again, and we await his coming with some impatience, for the gospel is "manna" to our hungry souls.

Your sister in Christ,

ELMA COOK.

Comminations.

ABTICLUS under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

A VOICE OF WARNING.

IT has been made known to me of late that I should write, or cause to be written, this word of exhortation and warning to my dear brethren and sisters in the Lord. For within the last two months the voice of God from the heavens has said to me. "Write, or cause to be written," &c. Bro. J. H. Lawn was then appointed as my scribe, as my age and feebleness unfit me to do that work myself, and he at that time being on a mission in Tulare county, two hundred miles east of here.

Now, let it be understood by all who love the blessed Lord and his glorious cause, that this is not intended or offered as a new revelation to guide the church, but as a word or voice of warning to the Saints to pay heed and be obedient to that which is already written. I am one of the few who, by the grace of God our Father. are still permitted to tarry on earth and occasionally have the blessed privilege of bearing our testimony to our dear brethren and sisters who have espoused the same precious faith as we.

Some who see this will remember reading my "Experience and Testimony," in Herald of October 22d, 1887. It will there be seen that I was well acquainted with the martyred prophet, Joseph Smith. I have heard him from time to time, when preaching to the Saints, exhort them to "diligence in keeping the commandments of the Lord, for therein is the promise of salvation." I was present at several meetings after work on the Nauvoo Temple had been begun and to all outward appearences was progressing and moving on according to the mind and will of the Lord. But Brother Joseph, inspired by the Spirit of his Master, could see the inward working of things as they actually existed in the minds and hearts of some who stood in the first ranks, and hence the revelation which says, "But I command you, all ye my Saints, to build an house unto me; and I grant unto you a sufficient time to build an house unto me, and during this time your baptisms shall be acceptable unto me. But, behold, at the end of this appointment, your baptisms for your dead shall not be acceptable unto me; and if you do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead, saith the Lord your God."-Doc. & Cov. 107: 10, 11.

Well, did they, "as a church," a whole, go to work and build that house according to the commandment and thus obey the the voice of inspiration, the voice they so strongly professed to believe? or did they not-the majority of them-reject the counsel of God and but few of them who professed faith in the message continue faithful to the end? Then let me ask. Were they not "as a church" at the end of the appointed time rejected with their dead?

I was present when the corner stone of the Nauvoo Temple was laid and saw placed therein a copy of the Holy Scriptures-King James translation-a copy of the Book of Mormon, and a copy of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, also a hymn book, together with other church publications.

That building, when almost completed by skillful hands, by much sacrifice on the the part of some, a few even denying themselves two out of three meals allowed by others per day, and bestowing the value of the other two toward the building of that house, whose work was not bestowed in vain, that building which was looked upon by thousands of longing eyes and upturned faces as the holy and sanctified place where they should in the near future from that time be permitted to meet as often as they would and feast upon luxuries, not of earth, but of heavenly origin; that house whose every stone and every timber in it, was laid in hope and cemented in prayer, and the stroke of its busy workmen's hammers as they plied rapidly upon that holy edifice made music to the ears of thousands that was sweeter to them by far than all other earthly music combined; that house, although it was the Lord's house, was desecrated; and because of wickedness and abominations on the part of some of the leaders, it was permitted to be destroyed, and was, by the enemies of God and his holy work, burned to utter destruction. For after Bro. Joseph's death, Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, and others, turned it into "a den of thieves" by stealing men's wives and daughters and leading them into transgression.

This should be a warning to all Saints. everywhere, that the commandments of God should be kept sacred and fulfilled.

And the voice said unto me, "It may do to trifle with man, but not so with God, for his commandments are yea and amen to his people." And now, you and I are expecting, if spared a few more years, to be permitted to assist in the building of another Temple, the one which is to be built at Independence, Missouri. But because of this hope are we exempt from the law of tithing? I answer, No; no more than the person who says he believes what we preach is exempt from the ordinance of baptism; for after he believes, the next step in the gospel ladder is repentance, and the next, baptism. So also of each member of this church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; after obedience to the "first principles," then we should "go on unto perfection"; and inasmuch as our Savior perfected his work through suffering-and "the servant is no greater than his Lord"—we, in order to be made perfect like him, must be willing to suffer and make all needful sacrifice for the spread of his truth. Hear ye the cry of the hungering millions to be fed with the "bread of life" pure and unadulterated! O, let me, dear Saints, admonish you to pay your tithing into the hands of the Bishop or his appointed agents. Do not suffer that the laborers shall be called in from the great harvest of souls, for the great day of the Lord is near at hand, and who may abide the day of his coming!

I am in my eighty-eighth year, and this may be my last testimony through the Herald. Heed this voice of warning. In hope of eternal life.

JEREMIAH ROOT.
MULBERRY, Cal., April 24th, 1889.

THE SIGNS OF CHRIST'S COMING.

I no not see any reason for treating of these signs separately. In fact, in order to obtain a comprehensive view of the subject we must consider them collectively. And inasmuch as there has been some discussion of the subject of late in the Herald, I think it not out of place that I should give my opinion also.

I do not claim any authority to teach in regard to these things, except such authority as the truth always has when it is told, no matter by whom it is told. And the truth, to commend itself to our belief, should be intelligent. We read that "Whatsoever maketh manifest is light," and if we do not make the points manifest which we attempt to prove, we do not ask our readers to receive them.

We have said that the signs of Christ's coming ought to be considered collectively. We give this reason, in addition to what has already been said on the subject, for so considering them: The order of events in any line of prophecy, is an important feature in its fulfillment. For instance: If the brazen (or Grecian) age of the Image of Nebuchadnezzar had followed the golden, (or Babylonian) age, it would have been a serious defect in the fulfillment of Daniel's predictions concerning the empire. So, if we find the events given nearest the time of Christ's second coming occuring before those given earlier in the line of events to precede his coming, then we are at sea to determine our whereabouts in the stream of time, and will have to acknowledge that some of the predictions in regard to that event have failed. On the other hand, if we have each of these predictions fulfilled in their order, we not only have a confirmation of the prophecy itself, but we know that we are on the line of the fulfillment.

The first sign of Christ's coming is a great earthquake. Have we had anything which we may construe into a fulfillment of this prophecy? Certainly, and the one known as "the great earthquake," (that of Lisbon,) evidently meets all the requirements in the case. It came at the right time, before any of the other signs had been given; and it was of the right kind, "a great earthquake." No other specifications having been made in regard to this sign, we pass to the consideration of the next.

"The sun shall be darkened." If this sign has not been fulfilled, then none of those which follow it could have taken place, without the failure of some of the predictions of the Savior. But who does not know that the "waves" have been "roaring," and "men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth?" These signs were not due until after the darkening of the sun and moon.

But to proceed. In the proper order, (after the earthquake at Lisbon,) came the darkening of the sun and moon, May 10th. 1780. This was of so striking a character that multitudes thought the day of judgment was right at hand. It can not be (and I don't know that it is) denied, that this is a sign of the coming of Christ; and if it is, then it certainly is the one designated as such in Matthew 24:30.

The falling of the stars comes next in order; and if the stars did not fall, then part of the prophecy has failed. But if we can find a case on record, in the proper order of fulfillment, which meets the specifications of the prophecy, then we may know we are treading on solid ground.

In 1833, the 13th day of November, the stars "fell from heaven as a fig-tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind."

Now the last sign of the series remains to be given, and we are willing to make this sign a test of our system of interpretation. If this fails to come in its order, then possibly we are mista-ken as to the application of the others; but if it comes in in its place, in the order of events to precede the second coming of the Son of man, then we may know that we have been following out the right line of interpretation, and that the event of which these things are signs, is near at hand, "even at the doors."

The shaking of the powers of the heavens is an event which has probably more to do with the people of this world than is generally supposed. With the rest of the signs it is already in the past; and like them it is unnoticed by many, for the coming of the Son of man is as "a thief in the night." But Daniel says "The wise shall understand;" hence if we do not understand, we should pray for wisdom which God has promised to give liberally to those that ask it, and not upbraid them for asking.

In order to understand the last sign, it will be necessary for us to know, first. what the powers of the heavens are; and secondly, what their shaking signifies.

A power is something that controls; and the powers of the heavens are the things that control the heavens, or the heavenly bodies. Now it is an acknowledged principle of Natural Philosophy that "every body exerts (by virtue of the law of gravitation) an influence on every other body, which is in proportion to its size and the distance it is from the other body."

From this it will be seen that the heavenly bodies themselves are the powers of the heavens, and consequently it is them that are to be shaken. Has any shaking taken place among the heavenly planets since the event known as the falling of the stars? Most assuredly there has, and one of such magnitude as to require its enrollment among the signs of the coming of the Son of man, by those who are at all versed in such matters, when they become acquainted with the facts as they are recorded in history.

From 1881 to 1887 inclusive, occurred the perihelia of seven of the great planets of the solar system; i. e. during this period they reached their nearest point to the sun. And coming in conjunction as they did, these perihelias produced marvelous atmospheric disturbances, sun storms, etc., etc., which shook "not the earth only, but heaven also."

Upon the supposition that this perihelia was the shaking referred to in various places in the scriptures, this writer predicted, several years before it occcurred, the "great earthquake such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake and so great," in which "every island fled away and the mountains were not found."

"But," says the objector, "every island has not fled away."

No, not in the extreme literal sense of the word; neither do we expect they ever will. But as John beheld the scene of the Java earthquake, hundreds of years before it occurred, how natural for him to exclaim, "Every island fled away, and the mountains were not found!"

As the account was telegraphed to us over the wires it sounded very much like the prophecy of John repeated with the additional items of time and place.

When the dreadful news of that dire calamity reached this country, it was in language like the following: "Ísland after island disappeared beneath the foaming waters;" "Sixty-five miles of mountain range skirting the coast, went down beneath the waves of the ocean to be seen no more." These things are upon record.

What a striking fulfillment! earthquake at Lisbon up to this date, (Aug. 26th, 1883,) had been known as "the great earthquake;" yet by it only about 50,000 people had lost their lives; but in this dreadful catastrophe between 75,000 and 100,000 human beings perished, besides 50 miles square of land going down bodily into the ocean.

Can it be possible that an event of such magnitude as the one we have briefly described above has no place in the signs of the times? Dull, indeed, must be the comprehension of one who would assume to take such a position. But if it has a place, it can have but one and that a welldefined one, in its regular order as a part of the shaking wherein "not the earth only, but heaven also" was to be shaken; which shaking signifieth "the removing of those things that are shaken, as of things that are made, that the things that can not be shaken may remain."

Now just a word or two in conclusion, in regard to the word of the Lord to Joseph Smith concerning the darkening of the sun and moon and the falling of the stars, beginning, "not many days hence," etc. This has been considered an insurmountable objection to the application of any of these signs at any time previous to the giving of this revelation.

We do not consider it any serious objection whatever; and should it prove to be, with the fulfillment so clearly before us, if we had to choose between the former day prophecy and its fulfillment as recorded on the pages of history, and the latter day prophecy and its uncertainty, (looking at it from this standpoint,) should say decidedly, "The old is better." But properly understood there is no conflict in the case whatever. "Not many days hence the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall become exceeding angry," etc., does not necessarily signify that all of these signs were yet in the future when this prophecy was given. A part of the signs, the falling of the stars, etc., were still in the future, and in order to connect the whole series of events in one comprehensive view, he classes them all together; although some of them, the darkening of the sun and moon, were already in the past when this prophecy was given.

We do not consider that we are doing violence to the language of scripture when we make this application of the prophecy. The tense of prophetic declarations is not always to be determined according to the rules of grammar. For instance take the declaration: "Out of Egypt have I called my Son," uttered hundreds of years before that Son was born; and also, "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee," uttered under precisely similar circumstances, are sufficient to prove the correctness of our position. But if any are still inclined to look forward to these signs as yet in the future, I am willing to depend the correctness of my position upon the fulfillment of another prophecy in the line, i, e. the plague of the hail following right after the great earthquake, (see Rev. 18.)

Upon the strength of prophecies already fulfilled, I venture to make the prediction that before the sun and moon shall be darkened, (if that ever occurs again) the plague of hail will be sent, and the Son of man will appear in the clouds of heaven. "Even so, come Lord Jesus."

A. J. Dennis.

CURE FOR CANCER.

Dear Herald:-I have often noticed in your columns deaths from cancers, and I have often thought to send you a remedy that has proven successful in my hands in every case that I have applied it to cancers. The remedy is this: Spread a plaster of common sticking plaster, cut a hole in the plaster a trifle larger than the cancer so that there will be a small margin of good flesh, about the sixteenth of an inch, all around the cancer. Apply the plaster over the cancer, leaving the cancer and this small margin exposed; then apply over the cancer and resting on the plaster the cancer plaster composed of one part wheat flower, one part Blood Root (Sanguinaria) ground fine, one part Chloride of Zinc. Mix the Sanguinaria and flour with water, then the Chloride of Zinc. Mix well and apply over the cancer, letting it remain from twenty-four to fortyeight hours according to the time the cancer has been standing. Then take off the cancer plaster and dress with any good healing salve. In from a week to ten days the cancer will drop out. (Don't try to press it out.) Then heal with any good salve. Probably the best healing salve is the All healing or Black salve; it is the best for a cancer which I will furnish the receipt of to any one writing for it, enclosing a two cent postage stamp to pay postage.

Levi Cheney.

KENT, Illinois, March 8th, 1889.

THE "SEALED BOOK."-No. IX.

BY ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

EARTH WORKS.

As one of the elements of the civilization of the Mound Builders, I speak of their earth works. Jones says: "The ancient tumuli still extant within the geographical limits of Georgia, are frequently associated in groups, and at other times exist as isolated monuments erected upon or near localities possessing some natural advantages for observation, defense, or for the facile procurement of food. In form they are circular, elliptical, quadrangular and polygonal. Some are flat on the top, resembling truncated pyramids and truncated cones. The prevailing type, however, is that of the conical earth mound. There is every variety in size, from the large temple mound on the Etowah-more than sixty -five feet high, and with a summit diameter of over two hundred feet—to the small sepulchral tumulus whose existence can scarcely be recognized."-Antiquities of the Southern Indians, p. 130.

Mr. Jones' book was published in 1873. While considering the mounds and enclosures of Georgia, he says: "The first we shall notice are located upon the right bank of the Etowah river, on the plantation of Colonel Lewis Tumlin, a few miles from Cartersville, in Barton county. Viewed as a whole, this group is the most remarkable within the confines of the state. These mounds are situated in the midst of a beautiful and fertile valley. occupy a central position in an area of some fifty acres, bounded on the south and east by the Etowah river, and on the north and west by a large ditch or artificial canal, which, at its lower end communicates directly with the river. This moat at present varies in depth from five to twenty-five feet, and in width from twenty to seventyfive feet. No parapets or earth walls appear upon its edges. Along its line are two reservoirs of about an acre each, possessing on average depth of not less than twenty feet, and its upper end expands into an artificial pond, elliptical in form, and somewhat deeper than the excavations mentioned. Within the enclosure formed by this moat and the river are seven mounds. Three of them are pre-eminent in size, the one designated in the accompanying plan by the letter A far surpassing the others, both in its proportions, and in the degree of interest which attaches to it. To the eye of the observer when it first rests upon its towering form, it seems a monument of the past ages, venerable in its antiquity, solemn, silent and yet not voiceless, a remarkable exhibition of the power and industry of a former race. With its erection the modern hunter tribes, so far as our information extends, had naught to do."—Ibid pp. 136, 137.

"The central tumulus rises about sixtyfive feet above the level of the valley. Summit admeasurements are as follows: Length of northward side, one hundred and fifty feet; length of eastern side, one hundred and sixty feet; length of southeastern side, one hundred feet; length of southern side, ninety feet; and length of western side, one hundred feet. Measured east and west, its longest apex diameter is two hundred and twenty feet: measured north and south it falls a little short being about two hundred and twenty feet. The established approach to the top is from the east. Its ascent was accomplished through the intervention of terraces rising one above the other-inclined planes leading from one to the other. These terraces are sixty-five feet in width, and extend from the mound toward the south east".-Ibid pp. 137, 138.

Pidgeon tells us that: "Near the junction with the Mississippi of a small stream called the Bad Axe, in the state of Wisconsin, there is a complicated group of earth works occupying a surface of nearly forty acres."—Traditions of Dee Coo Dah, p.

140.

Again: "Cut C. fig. 1, shows the forms and relative position of a range of national mounds extending in a continuous line along the Black river in Wisconsin, near its junction with the Mississippi. This line is composed of seven works that are from thirty to forty poles in length, eighteen feet in breadth, and two and a half in hight, and are distant from each other about sixty poles, occupying a straight line for nearly two miles. They appear isolated, or unconnected with other works."—Ibid p. 217.

A. S. Barnes says in general terms, in American Antiquities:—"In various parts of the continent, remains are found of the people who occupied this country in pre-historic times. Through the Mississippi valley, from the lake to the gulf, extends a succession of defensive earth works. The largest forest trees are often found growing upon them. The Indians have no tradition as to the origin of these structures. They generally crown steep hills, and consist of embankments, ditches, etc., indicating considerable acquaintance with military science. At Newark, Ohio, a fortification exists which covers an area more than two miles square, and has over two miles of embankment from two to twenty feet high. Mounds, seemingly constructed as great altars for religious purposes or as monuments, are also numerous. One opposite St. Louis covers eight acres of ground, and is ninety feet high. There are said to be ten thousand of these mounds in Ohio alone.

"A peculiar kind of earth work has the outline of gigantic men or animals. An embankment in Adams county, Ohio, represents very accurately a serpent one thousand feet long. Its body winds with graceful curves, and in its wide extended jaws lies a figure which the animal seems about to swallow. In Mexico and Peru, still more wonderful remains have been discovered. They consist not only of defensive work, altars and monuments, but also of idols, temples acqueducts and paved roads. The Mound Builders is the name given to the people who erected the mounds of North America. The old pits where the Mound Builders dug copper are still found in the mining region of Lake Su-They seem, also, to have occupied Central America, and there to have developed a high civilization. They built cities, wove cotton, worked in gold, silver and copper, labored in the fields, and had regular governments.—"A Brief History of the United States, pp. 9, 10.

This is from a text book used extensively in our schools, and endorsed by many able educators.

Describing Fort Ancient, Pidgeon says: "This name has been given to an interesting and remarkable earth work erected upon a prominent neck of land upon the eastern bank of the Little Miami river, about thirty-five miles north east of Cincinnati. It is not only the most extensive and magnificent work of its class in the state of Ohio, but it bears the marks of higher antiquity than most others. The terrace upon which it stands presents precipitous declivities on all sides, except toward the north east, where a neck of land about forty poles in breadth, slopes eastward, gradually widening as it recedes, until lost in the common undulation of the surrounding country. From either side of this neck, or ridge of land, two deep ravines diverge north and south, through which flow two small streams, tributaries of the Little Miami. That river is separated from the higher embankment by a narrow terrace, and is about two hundred feet below the general level of the fort. Various conjectures have been advanced as to the origin and design of this work, all, however tending to the same conclusion that it was designed for a military fortification and for purposes of defense. The situation and general outline of the embankments, similar to those of modern fortifications, would seem to render this view a very probable one, in the absence of all authentic history or reliable tradition."-Tradiditions of De Coo Dah, p. 74.

Speaking of the Holy City in Ross county, Ohio, he says: "The large circle is thirty-five hundred feet in diameter, with eleven exterior openings; and the small circle eight hundred feet in diameter, communicating with the large circle, but having no exterior entrance. The whole work, as will be perceived, comprises two circles, a semi-circle and a square. Within the semi-circle there is an embankment resembling in outline, a crescent, or a new moon; and there is a sacrificial altar appended to a national mound within the larger circular enclosure, and between it and the square."-Ibid p. 248.

Of the Celestial City in Ross county, Ohio, he says: "The square is twelve hundred feet in diameter. The oblong octagonal enclosure, which in this work is substituted for the larger circle, is twelve by eighteen hundred feet in diameter. The small circle appended to the octagon is six hundred feet in diameter."-Ibid, p.

Again he says: "Another work in Ross county presents in outline two circles. a semi-circle and squure, differing from the Holy City in the manner in which the circles are connected together."—Ibid, p. 251.

Of the Prophet's Metropolis, he says: "This work is situated near Newark, Licking county, Ohio, and occupies an area of nearly two miles square. It consists of three principal divisions, connected by parallel walls and smaller works. The parallel walls and detached portions of the works generally, as well as the small circles, are very slight, rarely exceeding four feet in hight; but the embankments of the principal or regular portions of the work, are much heavier. Those of the larger circular work, are generally about twelve feet high, and fifty feet in thickness at the base, enclosing an interior ditch seven feet deep by thirty wide. At the gate-way or entrance of this large circle, however, the walls are much higher than at any other point, being not less than sixteen feet in perpendicular altitude, with a ditch of thirteen feet in depth, giving from the bottom of the ditch to the top of the embankment, an actual hight of thirty feet at What a towering wall must this time. this once have been!"—Ibid, p. 254.
Again: "The full extent of the lines of earthern walls or embankments that have been thrown up by the Mound Builders in the great valley of the Mississippi, apparently designed for covered pass-ways, will probably never be fully ascertained in consequence of the past and present de-molition of them. Near the confluence of the Scioto and Ohio rivers, we have twenty-one miles of embankment of this description, twenty feet wide, and from three to six in altitude, connecting various works scattered along the Ohio river, and embracing a section of about eight miles. Works similar to these are found in great numbers throughout the Mississippi valley, and in the valleys of the Scioto and Miami's there are many of them, evidently disconnected and yet contiguous to each other; some connecting enclosures, some leading to watering places, and others insolated and unconnected with other works, extending many miles, and running on parallel lines. There is also a single line of embankment running in a northeast direction from a point near the Scioto near Lake Erie, that may be clearly traced seventeen miles in length unbroken except by water courses, yet in many places almost obliterated by the uprooting of large timber that formerly grew on the work." —Ibid, p. 265.

Concerning the great mound of Miamisburg, he says: "This grand colossal earthen structure is situated in the vicinity of Miamisburg, Montgomery county, Ohio, and is sixty-eight feet in perpendicular altitude, and about eight hundred and fifty in base circumference, containing three hundred and eleven thousand, three hundred and fifty three cubic feet of earth. Mounds of this form abound throughout this valley, and are of all sizes and dimensions, towering upward from the mole hill to the miniature mountain. At the junction of Grave Creek with the Ohio, in Virginia, we find another, seventy feet high, with a base circumference of more than a thousand feet. At Cahokia, in Illinois, there is another, towering to the hight of ninety feet, with a base circumference of over two thousand feet, and a level top, with an area of more than two Near Salverstown, Mississippi, there is one that occupies an area of six acres. And yet there are many groups in the north arranged in circles, squares, triangles, and lines, together with others that present no apparent regular order of arrangement that would require for their construction the labor of a thousand men many months, aided with all the modern improvements in mechanical implements in their construction."—Ibid, p. 267-8.

Those who may incline to doubt or disbelieve the statements of the Book of Mormon, are requested to consider the closing words of this last extract from Mr. Pidgeon. Speaking of the Indian trail from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river, he says: "In pursuing this trail, even the most indifferent traveler can not fail to observe and feel an interest in the mysterious ruins presented to view, in the greatest diversity of form, and by their numbers indicative of an industry and energy becoming the most energetic and ambitious nations of the earth."—Ibid p. 280.

Maclean says of the Mound Builders' earth-works: "These works are very irregularly distributed, being found principally along the river valleys. They are only occasionally met with in the hill or broken country, and when thus found are always of small size. Their number is very great; in Ohio alone there are not less than thirteen thousand including both mounds and enclosures. Within a radius of fifty miles from the mouth of the Illinois river, in the state of Illinois there are about five thousand mounds. All the mounds located in the territory occupied by the Mound Builders, do not belong to that ancient people, for many of them have been constructed by the Indians, and doubtless many in Ohio have been assigned to the epoch of the former, when in reality they belong to the latter. In the irregular distribution of the works, it is noticed that in certain localities the remains are very numerous, and from this fact it is easy to point out their principal seats, or where their population was dense. In Ohio this is found to be in the vicinity of Marietta, Athens, Portsmouth, Chillicothe, Circleville, Newark, Springfield, Alexandersville, Middleton, Eaton, Oxford, Hamilton, and Cincinnati. Smaller settlements are found throughout the different parts of the state."-Mound Builders, p. 15.

The same author defines or classifies those ancient earth-works: "The ancient remains composed of earth and stone, naturally divide themselves into two general classes, viz. Enclosures and Mounds."-

Ibid, p. 15.

And in describing the enclosures, he says: "The enclosures, to the general observer, form the most interesting class of these remains. They are massive, sometimes of great dimensions, and required great labor in their construction. number is great; Ohio alone containing over one thousand five hundred of them. They are composed of clay-sometimes of stone,—the walls having a hight ranging from three feet to thirty, and enclosing areas of from one acre to four hundred. Enclosures of from one to fifty acres are common; of two hundred acres not infrequent, and of greater extent only occasionally met with."-Ibid, p. 16. "A large proportion of the enclosures are regular in outline, being constructed in the form of the square, circle, parallelogram, illipse, and polygon, the first two predominating. The regularly formed works occur on the level river terraces, and the irregular works, being used as places of defense, are made to conform to the nature of the brows of the hills upon which they are situated. The square and circle frequently occur in combination, and are either directly connected with each other, or else by avenues enclosed by parallel walls. Nearly all the embankments give evidence of having been fully completed. A few remain which were left in an unfinished state. The walls are usually accompanied by a ditch either interior or exterior to the embankment. From this ditch the earth was taken for the foundation of the walls."—Ibid, p. 16.

Strange that in many cases our own civilization made choice for their cities on the same sites on which the ancient civilization builded. "Attention was called years ago to the fact that nearly every town of importance in the valleys of the Ohio and the Mississippi and their tributaries is founded on the ruins of these ancient people. To the names of those already mentioned, other sites might be added, such as Norwalk, Dayton, Xenia, Frankfort, St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, and so on almost indefinitely."-Ibid, p. 17.

On defensive enclosures he says: "Where such hills are in the vicinity of an extensive valley, the military works may be seen on the one best adapted for the purpose of defense. These show great labor and skill; the walls extend a little below the brow of the hill and vary in hight and solidity, as the declivity is more or less perpendicular. The side most exposed to attack and the approaches are protected by trenches and overlapping walls more or less numerous in different forts. trench is usually on the exterior of the wall. The gateways in the walls, situated at the points most easy to approach, are guarded by overlapping walls, or a series of them, and in some cases accompanied by a mound rising above the rest of the works, probably designed for both observation and defense. Great engineering skill is invariably displayed in protecting the points most exposed to attack, and care has been exercised against any flanking movement that might be made by an enemy."—Ibid, p. 19.

The evidence obtained indicates that the engineering and military skill of the ancient people of America was well up to, if not equal to that of our own time and people. Of Fort Ancient he says: "No work on the Mound Builders would be complete without a description of Fort Ancient, the most celebrated and the most generally known of all the fortifications of this people. It is situated on the east bank of the Little Miami River, in Warren county, Ohio, and about thirty-three miles north east of Cincinnati. It has been frequently surveyed, and much has been written concerning it, so that in this place it will be necessary to give an extended notice of it. Reference to the engraving will assist the reader in forming a conception of the structure,-There are about five miles of wall, enclosing an area of a little more than one hundred acres. embankment is composed of a tough, diluvial clay, ranging from five to twenty feet in height, and averaging between nine and ten feet, and contains six hundred and twenty-eight thousand eight hundred cubic yards of excavation, [the position is a strong one - where the work is most exposed to an enemy it is of the greatest solidity and strength,-where the Chilicothe road enters from the west the wall is fourteen feet high, by sixty feet base. There are over seventy gateways in the embankment, having a width of from ten to fifteen feet. These could not have all been for places of ingress and egress. At numerous points are found large quantities of water-worn stone, which after an incredible amount of labor, have been carried from the river below."-Ibid, pps.20-23.

"In respect to the magnitude of the area enclosed, the largest fortification in the county is that near Bourneville. twelve miles west of Chillicothe. The hill upon which it is situated is about four hundred feet high, and remarkable for the general abruptness of its sides. It projects into the broad valley of Paint Creek -being washed on two sides by small Its summit is a broad and fertile plain with depressions, some of which contain water during the entire year, and one covering about two acres. wall is carried around the hill a little below the brow, save where it rises to cut off the narrow spurs and to separate the hill from the land beyond. The fortification consists of a stone wall two miles and a quarter in length, and encloses an area of about one hundred and forty acres. The work contains five gateways, three of them being on the isthmus. At the gateways the amount of stone is four times as great as at any other point, and constitutes broad, mound-shaped heaps."-Ibid, pps.

"Among the most important works of the defensive order is that situated in both Montgomery and Warren counties, about two miles west of Carlisle station, Ohio. On the west where the enclosure is most exposed, are discovered three walls. The entire length of the wall is three thousand six hundred and seventy-six feet, and encloses an area of from twelve to fifteen acres. The length of the wall on the twin bluff is eleven hundred and ten feet."-

Ibid, pps. 25-26.

"The form and location of a very large number of earth-works render it evident that they were not erected for militiary They have been called sacred purposes. enclosures. In the careful examination of the works of defense it is discovered that they are adapted in every way to the natural features of well chosen hills, and their avenues guarded with consummate skill. On the other hand the sacred enclosures are situated on the level river bottoms, and seldom occur upon the tablelands, or where the surface is broken. Some of the reasons for ascribing a portion of the enclosures to a religious or superstitious origin are thus given: The small dimensions of most of the circles; the occurrence of the ditch interior of the embankment; the occurrence of altars within the enclosures; and the fact that many of the enclosures are completely commanded by the adjacent heights. The works are generally regular in their structure, and principally found in groups."-Ibid, p. 31.

"The most elaborate and complicated of all the works of the Mound Builders occur at the junction of the South and Raccoon forks of Licking River, near Newark. They are situated upon a plain elevated from thirty to fifty feet above the bottom land bordering on the stream. They consist of an extensive series of square, circular and polygonal enclosures, with mounds, ditches and connecting avenues, extending over about four square miles."—Ibid, p. 32.

"Five miles below Chillicothe, and on the right bank of the Scioto, the enclosures designated 'High Bank Works' occur. At this point the river has cut its way up to the third terrace, which in consequence presents a bold bank rising not less than seventy-five feet above the water. This terrace spreads out into a beautiful plain. The principal works located upon this terrace consist of an octagon and circle, and the former enclosing eighteen and the latter twenty acres. These two works are connected by a gateway. The wall of the circle is from four to five feet in height, and the walls of the octagon about eleven by fifty feet base. The octagon contains seven gateways, each covered upon by a mound."—Ibid, p. 36.

"Accompanying some of the enclosures is another class which has been denominated graded ways or avenues, the purposes of which are not clear. They sometimes ascend from one terrace to another, and occasionally descend towards the banks of the rivers. The most remarkable one [?] occurs near Piketon, Pike county. It consists of a graded ascent from the second to the third terrace, the level of the latter being seventeen feet above the former. The way is one thousand eighty feet long, by two hundred and fifteen feet at the lower and two hundred and three feet at the upper extremity."—Ibid, p. 37.

"On the site of the city of Marietta was once a remarkable group of works, a portion of which still remains. It has been frequently described, and several surveys of it have been made. The earthworks consist of two irregular squares, the one in the foreground having an area of fifty acres, and the other twenty-seven], inclosing various mounds and connected with a graded way on the right, and a large mound in the distance. On the opposite side of the Muskingum, situated upon bold, precipitous bluffs, are quite a number of stone mounds, which command a very extensive view."—Ibid, p. 43.

A correspondent thus writes on some of the interesting sights of the Exposition: "In the mineral annexes to the Main Exhibition building there is an interesting display of the economic resources of the most progressive states, and of this a full description will soon be possible. But in the Ohio department there is now ready for inspection of the visitors a magnificent collection of implements of war, of the chase, and of the domestic life of the mysterious Mound Builders. This display is not favorably situated to attract attention, but good judges pronounce it, in point of interest, no mean competitor of the famous Smithsonian collection. large archaeological map twelve by fifteen feet shows the location, etc., of some of the earth and stone works found in Ohio. From their magnitude and number it is easily seen that they were erected by a people with a well organized government, and far too numerous to subsist without a system of agriculture. The immense system of fortifications in the form of circles, squares, octagons, mounds, paralell walls, etc., at Newark, would to day with the present tools of steel and steam machinery, require the labor of thousands of men for a long period of time to construct."—New York Tribune.

We leave the subject on this line of evidence and invite your candid and careful examination and attention to some additional material witnesses that help to establish the fact of a prehistoric civilization upon the American Continent as set forth in the sacred book of the Nephites.

Selections.

To be continued.

THE NERVOUS SYSTEM.

"Nothing in nature is more marvelous than the net-work of nerves which we call our nervous system. Each nerve is a telegraphic cord in itself. Each is a part of the whole complex and inimitable system of teleghraphy by which messages from the headquarters in the brain are sent to the minute stations in the extremities.

"When we are glum and dismal and lowspirited it is, according to the writer already quoted, because the telegraphic apparatus is out of order and the nerve force demoralized. When nerves work wrong it is as when telegraphic poles are shaky or wires tangled or crossed or currents irregular or batteries confused.

"According to the irregularity of our nerves, so are our irregular moods. If all is right, we are happy and cheery and sunshiny. But let the batteries blunder, or the currents cross, or the wires become entangled, and we are irritable, sulky, illtempered or angry, as the case may be. In some of our distressful moods we pout and sulk, and misinterpret and misunderstand. We take offense where no offense is intended, and we impute to others motives which are never conceived by them.

"At times, when the moods are out of sorts, we think the whole world is persecuting us, and we, the afflicted objects of persecution, are, above all other human beings singled out for martyrdom. There are circumstances under which most of us can, without insuperable difficulty, rise from the moodiness which is brought about by letting the nerves have their own way. Mental and physical diet has much to do with it. Brooding over real sorrows and imaginary miseries will make the best of us moody and wretched. Nursing grief and affronts and telling the sad story of our woes has as depressing an effect as narcotic drugs.

Sleeping in unventilated rooms often produces chronic wretchedness, even if these rooms be furnished with the appliances of wealth and refinement. Good health, mental, spiritual and bodily, is worth working for and more easily attained than most folks suppose.—Sel.

THE CYNIC.

THE cynic is one who never sees a good quality in a man, and never fails to see a bad one. He is the human owl, vigilant in darkness and blind in light, mousing for vermin, and never seeing noble game. The cynic puts all human actions into only two classes—openly bad and secretly bad. All virtue and generosity and disinterestedness are merely the appearance of good, but selfish at the bottom. He holds that no man does a good thing except for profit. The effect of his conversation upon your feelings is to chill and sear them, to send you away sour and morose.

If Mr. A. is pronounced a religious man, he will reply: "Yes, on Sundays."

Mr. B. has just joined the church: "Certainly, the elections are coming on."
Such a man is generous: "Of other men's money."

To him religion is hypocrisy, honesty a preparation for fraud, virtue only a want of opportunity.

A man will be what his most cherished feelings are. If he encourage a noble generosity, every feeling will be enriched by it; if he nurse bitter and envenomed thoughts, his own spirit will absorb the poison, and he will crawl among men as a burnished adder, whose life is mischief, and whose errand is death.

He who hunts for flowers will find flowers, and he who loves weeds may find weeds. Reject, then, the morbid ambition of the cynic, or cease to call yourself a man.

The above quotation from the writings of Henry Ward Beecher is constantly brought to one's mind when reading the outpourings of venom from the down town organ of hate.

What should be the opinion other than that of pity and contempt when enterprises that are for the benefit of our city are ridiculed and belittled because they do not happen to be the outgrowth of a suggestion of the diseased mind of the cynic that presides over the destinies of the Tribune. for, "Let it be remembered that no man, who is not himself mortally diseased, will have a relish for disease in others."

We all rejoice in the erection of such buildings as the Scott-Auerbach structure, as they are a credit to our city, and also the advancement of any home institution.

The increasing of the capital of the Home Fire Insurance company from $100,000 to $200,000 is not worthy of mention in the colums of our very enterprising (?) unesteemed cotem. The Herald says success to every enterprise that will save money to the country and furnish employment to the people; and it never will be found wanting in giving full credit to Mormon, Jew or Gentile, who does anything for the good of our city or territory.—Sel.

TALKED OF MOSES' MISTAKES.

THE FIRST LAWGIVER THE SUBJECT OF DR. HASTINGS LECTURE AT THE BI-BLE INSTITUTE.

DR. HASTINGS discussed the "Mistakes of Moses" at the twent fourth day's session of the Bible institute. "It is curious," he said, "that Moses' mistakes are the only ones that are worth any money. We all make mistakes. Joe Smith made mistakes. Mohammed made mistakes, but there are no people who will pay $500 per night to listen to an account of those mistakes. Moses formed the first government for the people. It is claimed that the Pilgrim fathers had the first written constitution, but they were born several centuries too late to lay just claim to this honor. The law of Moses to the children of Israel was the first constitution upon earth. We find that the law of Moses was read through once in seven yeara, in the presence of all the people, and a portion of it was read every Sabbath morning in the synagogues. Was this one of the mistakes of Moses?

"If the people of our own country knew as much of the law as the children of Israel did, there would be less disobedience. Moses started the first total abstinence society, and a description of it with its ironclad pledge, can be found in the sixth chapter of Numbers. Moses gave every workingman one day in seven for rest, and he gave each man a farm of his own. At fifty years of age, under the Mosaic dispensation, every man had won his homestead and according to the law he had no power to mortgage or sell his property. Moses forbade the taking of the widow's garment for debt, which can hardly be called a mis-

"What are some of the mistakes of Moses? The infidels claim that according to the Mosaic law death was the penalty for hundreds oi offenses. Let us examine the the text of the book and see what it says concerning this. There are only four classes of capital offenses mentioned in the Mosaic law, and there are only seventeen classes or cases under which death was the punishment inflicted. Infidels say they killed a man for picking up sticks on the holy Sabbath. This was for disobedience to the law, and the law only meted out its penalty. In our late war we find that men were shot down for stealing a chicken. Why? Because this was disobedience to the law, which said there should be no foraging.

Most people who find fault with the law of Moses know very little about it. and less of the laws of some countries. There have been more cruel laws enforced during the last century than any given in the Mosaic tablets. In the Mosaic law, there was no case in which death was inficted as a punishment for anything relating to property. The only punishment was a small fine. Only murder and certain other offenses against the purity of the people were punishable by death. Moses laws were a deal more merciful than the laws of the United States are today.

"Moses said God made the world, but infidels say this was one of Moses mistakes. It is by faith we understand that worlds were framed by the word of God; and the infidel, having no faith, is unable to see this. God not only created the world, but stars and other planets. You can tell time by the stars more accurately than by any time piece made by man, because they are made and regulated by the hand that never makes mistakes. God made things on the best plan, but the people of today say they don't want any old-fogy notions. Where do you find these old fogies? In the church. You never find an old fogy in a saloon or rum shop, for the devil kills all of the perspectives in early life."-Sel.

Miscellaneous.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Fremont district conference will convene at Farm Creek, in the school house, June 8th and 9th. President W. W. Blair is expected to be with us. Will the branch presidents and clerks please have their reports on hand? Let all attend that possibly can.

HENRY KEMP, Dist. Pres.

A conference of the Kent and Elgin district will convene in Blenheim, Ontario, Saturday, June 8th, at 10 a.m. Presidents and clerks of branches will please have their branches properly reported. Organists of the district who calculate to attend will please notify me and we will provide an organ for the services. As our church here needs some repairs, and our numbers are few, we wish the Saints of the district to come prepared to render us some assistance if possible

RICHARD COBURN, Sec.

Please say in the Herald that all parties coming on the Milwaukee rail road to attend the conference of the Galland's Grove district at Dow City. Iowa, June 14th, will be met at Arion with teams if they will write to the undersigned

A. H. Rudd, Dow City, Iowa.

The String Prairie and Nauvoo district conference will convene Saturday, June 1st, at 10:30 a.m., in Montrose, Iowa. A full attendance is requested as it will be necessary to elect officers for the future.

James McKiernan, Dist. Pres.

TWO DAYS' MEETING.

A two days' meeting will be held at Wheeler's Grove, Pottawattamie district, commencing June 1st, at 10:30 a.m. Elder W. W. Blair will be with us, and the Saints' new church will be dedi-H. N. HANSEN, President of Dist.

DIED.

JORDAN.-Elder William H. Jordan was born in Bedford county, Virginia, in the year 1802; was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at Nauvoo, Hancock county, Illinois, during the first General Conference of the church ever held there; united with the Reorganized Church in an early day; was an ardent lover of the cause of truth, and died in full faith of the latter day work, having full confidence in Christ, and consequently a strong hope in the resurrection of the just. He and his companion had walked together in mutual love for fiftyseven years lacking twelve days. "Uncle Billy" was a friend to the friendless; his hand, heart and home were always open to the needy, and he was well respected by all who knew him. His obedience to the gospel enabled him to wait calmly and hopefully the great change, which occurred May 1st, 1889 at Deloit, Crawford county, Iowa, he being 87 years old. His wear-ied soul rests in peace. Funeral sermon by C.

MARTIN.-Abner Martin was born in Lafayette county, Missouri, in the year 1822; was bap-tized into the Church of Christ February 12th, 1865, by Elder Rasmus Campoen, 1 country mie county, Iowa, and died April 30th, 1889, at 1865, by Elder Rasmus Campbell, Pottawattahope given in obedience to the gospel was as an anchor to his soul, and he was enabled to welcome the great change, and was anxious to depart bence that he might be with Christ. He eaves a wife, 14 children and 39 grandchildren. His funeral sermon was preached in Woodbine, Iowa, on the 5th of May, 1889, by C. Derry.

JOHNSON.—At Independence, Missouri, February 20th, 1889, Sr. Amy C. Johnson. born in Jasper county, Missouri, June 27th, 1853. Was baptized at Independence, Missouri, September 4th, 1887, by Elder Clarence St. Clair. She passed from earth's scenes of great trial through all of which she manifested the endurance of faith and a character of saint-like integrity, worthy of emulation. As an upright, conscientious and pious woman, the example she afforded will not be forgotten while her weary and tired spirit is enjoying rest through an abundant entrance into the mansions of bliss prepared for the tried and true. Funeral sermon at Saints' Chapel by Elder Joseph Luff, who paid a just tribute to her worth.

BAKER .-- At the residence of his son, William Baker, May 6th, 1889, Bro. Shelby Baker, of heart disease of several years standing. He was born in the state of Kentucky, June 7th, 1809. His age was 79 years, 10 months and 29 days. He married in Ohio and had fourteen children, eleven of whom with his companion in life survive him. He came to Iowa in 1851 and lived in the vicinity of Rhodes most of the time, and was much respected as a citizen and a christian by all who knew him. He was baptized by Elder G. E. Deuel, and ordained an elder by the same broth-Most of his children do not belong to this About the last words he could be understood in he requested his daughter-in-law to read the sixth chapter of Hebrews for a testimony that he wished his children would honor God by obeying all the principles of the doctrine of Christ, that they might have both the Father and the Son.—3 John 9. Funeral sermon by Elder William C. Nirk.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, bugy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the county seat of Barton county.

EBENEZER MILLER, Senior, SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

MANCHESTER DISTRICT.

CONFERENCE IOTTINGS.

Dear Herald: We have just concluded a very successful conference which began with prayer and testimony meeting at 10: 30 a. m. on Friday, the 19th inst. Our spiritual services were blessed of God and were productive of that holy peace so necessary for the calm consideration of every question affecting the temporal interest of the kingdom, be they local or general. Soon after 3 p. m. the business sessions of the conference were opened, the president of the district in the chair. Prayer was offered by Elder H. Greenwood, after which the secretary, Elder J. Baty, called the roll of the eldership, to which the following responded: J. Dewsnup, H. Greenwood, J. Baty, W. Armstrong, W. R. Armstrong, T. Hughes, T. Mills, J. Ramsey and John Austin. missionary Elder, Wm. Newton, also being present, while the lesser priesthood and members were sitting without the inner circle in considerable numbers.

The usual preliminaries were gone through and then the formal business of the conference was attacked and dispatched with efficiency and expedition, possible only to assemblies bound to each other by ties of love binding together in unity. At 7:45 p.m. business was adjourned, and shortly afterwards a fellowship meeting was opened, in charge of our esteemed brother Wm. Newton. The presence of the Holy Spirit during our services most surely attested the approbation by our heavenly Father of that which had been Saturday's meeting was called to order at 3:30 p. m., Elders H. Hoole and J. Naylor being present. The Spirit of concord again took possession of our meeting making pleasant the otherwise dry and somewhat tedious proceedings of a business session. Shortly after opening we were joined by the worthy president of the mission, Elder Thomas Taylor, and his indefatigable secretary, Elder C. H. Caton. A set of revised rules for the government of the district were presented and unanimously adopted; after which the meeting was adjourned, in order to enable the committee on location to make provision for the visiting brethren and sisters who were now to the front in force. This accomplished we retired to our respective homes, giving praise to God "from whom all blessings flow," for the blessings we had received.

Nine a. m. the following day found us at the Saints' chapel, preparing to participate with our brethren and sisters in early prayer and praise, under the leadership of Elder Newton. We had a profitable meeting which prepared our minds for the services that followed. At 10:30 a.m. our general services commenced in the vestry hall of the Hulme town hall; elders J. Baty and H. Hoole being privileged to break the bread of life to the large congregation which had the reassembled. At 2:30 p. m. a meeting for testimony and prayer was held under the presidency of the writer. Many soul-stirring testimonies to the truth of this latter day work were given, and the Spirit of God was poured out upon his people, causing much rejoicing, insomuch as it proved our kinship to the God we call Our Father. At 6 p. m. our evening service commenced, and after the usual preliminaries, Elders Caton and Taylor dispensed the words of life to a large and deeply sympathetic congregation, and we trust that good was done.

Each of the sessions were well attended and the behavior of those present left nothing to be desired on the score of order.

After the evening service a meeting of reconciliation took place, at which six elders were present. Difficulties of long standing were discussed and removed to the joy and satisfaction of. those most concerned, and to the advantage of the church.

The adjourned business sessions of conference convened again on Monday morning the 22d inst., the additional elders present being Simon and William Spargo of the Farnworth branch. Again the Spirit of peace brooded over the assembly. Past sins were confessed, reconciliation effected and confidence fully restored. Several of the brethren whose licenses had been suspended had them restored; amongst others may be mentioned Elder C. H. Hassall, who manifested in a cheering manner a contrite heart and a humble spirit. May God bless him with spiritual grace

The question of suspended licenses having been dealt with, a recommendation from the Leeds branch for the ordination of Bro. Job Dally to the office of priest was then considered. Considerable doubt seemed to exist as to the office to which the brother should be called. Testimony as to fitness were abundant, but no special manifestation had been received. While thus undecided the Holy Ghost began to move upon the elders and it was declared that the Lord was about to decide the question. The promise given was soon fulfilled, for the weakest amongst usin his own estimation-stood and with strong emotions delivered the message: "Thus saith the Spirit unto you, the Elders of my church: It pleaseth me to call my servant to the office of elder, for I am well pleased with him, having observed his integrity. And I will fit and qualify him for the work to which he is called, if he remains faithful before me."

Other words of consolation were given but it sufficeth to say that every heart felt the power, and to God be the glory! The elders bowed to the command of God and gave their decision in harmony with his will. Shortly afterwards the business of the conference was concluded amid deep and heartfelt rejoicings on the part of all present.

In the evening a Tea party and entertainment was given by the brethren and sisters of the Manchester branch and was conducted to a successful issue by the indefatigable efforts of the brethren and sisters of the committee of management, assisted by our no less energetic brother, Elder Wm. Newton, who presided over the entertainment given after Tea. And thus was brought to a close the most spiritual and consequently the most successful conference yet held in the Manchester district in connection with the Reorganized Church.

During the Sunday services Teacher Owen Owens, resident at Fleetwood, late of Burlington branch, Iowa, was received by vote of the Manchester branch as in good standing.

Yours in faith and hope, JOSEPH DEWSNUP, SEN.,

President of the Manchester district. April 26th, 1889.

ADDRESSES.

C. R. Duncan, Box 70, Blue Rapids, Marshall Co., Kan. J. H. Lake, Kirtland, Lake co., Ohio. Willard J. Smith, Box 153, Buchanan, Mich.

[In the Press.]

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

PRICE $2.50 BY MAIL.

The Harmony will contain all the hymns in the Saints' Harp; also 542 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, 13 full sized pages of music, full instruction on choir and anthem music, the Editor's preface and introduction, and publisher's preface.

Stem Vowel Shorthand,

A system of shorthand in which the vowels are expressed in the consonant stems, by making the latter of different lengths. Invented by a court reporter of years of practical experience and used by hundreds in business life. Its merits are that it is easily learned, easily read and fully vocalized. It has no long lists of word signs. The undersigned uses it, and after comparing it with other systems recommends it to young men and women as a valuable acquisition as a profession. Little or no strain upon the memory required to learn it, which can be done in from four to six months ordinary attention. Book with plain and complete self-instructions sent to any address $2. Circulars sent upon application. Address R. S. Salvards, agent, Lamoni, Iows.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't.

D. F. Nicholson, Cashier,

FARMERS' BANK OF LAMONI.

Ample Responsibility.

Loans money on aproved security. Six per cent interest paid on time deposits. Real Estate bought and sold.

AUTUMN LEAVES,

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - -

M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.

I hereby give notice that the

Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies 17 x 20, is now ready for sale.

I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2.

All members of the Quorum represented in the medley can obtain a copy for $1.50.

> R. BURDGE, Photographer, Appleton City, Mo.

I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art, containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a medley, handsomely arranged, all numbered with index below of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Picture E. C. BRAND.

PHARMACIST WANTED.

A young man who is registered in Iowa, and can give good references, &c. A member of the church preferred A member of the church preferred.
Address F, M. WELD. 26mar4t

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

ESTATE AGENTS.

West Lexington Street,

INDEPENDENCE. MISSOURT.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

--: A Family Newspaper :---THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT

Provides its readers weekly with 56 COLUMNS

Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thoroughly acquanted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPES.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.

No. 3.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen. 20 per hundred	No 2 Truth Mede Manifest, nor dozen
No. 4.—Bpitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit. dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000.1 75 No. 5.—The Gospelprice the same as No. 4. No. 6.—The "One Baptism," its Mode, Stubjects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100 1 75 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved jer doz. 06 per hundred	per hundred 1 50
No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit. dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000.1 75 No. 5.—The "One Baptism"," its Mode, Subjects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 1001 75 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 05 per hundred	No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; dozen 05
Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100.1 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. per hundred	No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.
Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100.1 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. per hundred	No. 5.—The Gospelprice the same as No. 4.
Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100.1 75 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. per hundred	lects, Fre-reduisites and Hesignand Who
No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; per doz. per hundred	Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100.1 75
per hundred	per hundred 40
No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoini; per doz. 30c., per 100. 2 No. 11.—The Narrow Way; doz. 15c., 100. 1 No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz. 30 per hundred. 22 No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy. 25c. per hundred. 16 No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratti; per dozen. 25c. per hundred. 17 No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen. 26per hundred. 17 No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 20c., 100. 1 No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; doz. 25per hundred. 17 No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz. 15per hundred. 17 No. 20.—The One Body: or the Church of Christ, under the Aposteship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 100. 1 No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen per hundred. 15 No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen. 15per hundred. 15 No. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 100. 10 No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100 No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; per dozen 5c., per hundred. 10 No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz. 25per hundred. 10 No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon. 25c. dozen 16c. per hundred. 10 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit. same price No. 4 No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 16c. per hundred. 10 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit. same price No. 4 No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 10c., per hundred. 10 No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit. same price No. 4 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen. 50 Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100. 15 No. 15 per dozen. 50 Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100. 15 No. 15 per dozen. 50 Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100. 15 No. 16 per dozen. 50 Nilscellans per dozen. 50 Nilscellans per do	per hundred
No. 12.—The Pian of Salvation; per doz. 30 per hundred	No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Script-per hundred 25 No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy 25 per dozen 25c., per hundred 1 65 No. 14.—Reply to Orson Fratt; per dozen 25 per hundred 1 75 No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen 05 per hundred 40 No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 20c., 100 1 40 No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; doz. 25 per hundred 1 75 No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz. 25 per hundred 1 10 No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of Ohrist, under the Aposteship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 100 1 40 No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen per hundred 15 No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen 15 No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; doz. 5c., 100 No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100 No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; per dozen 5c., per hundred 14 No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz 25 per hundred 1 40 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred 1 10 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred 1 10 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred 1 10 No. 30.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suit same price No. 4. No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred 1 25 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection 5c. each, per dozen 50 Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 15 Without covers 5c. each, per dozen 75 Gosphus, complete, library leather 35 Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes 40 Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols. 40 Mosladwin's Ancient History, 2 vols. 40 Mosladwin's Ancient History, 2 vols. 40 Mosladwin's Ancient History, 5 vols. 40 Mosladwin's Ancient History, 5 vols. 40 G	No. 10.—The Narrow Way; doz. 15c., 1001 10 per dozen 25c, per hundred 165 No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen 25 per hundred 175 No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen 05 per hundred 40 No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 20c., 100	per hundred
per hundred	per dozen 25c., per hundred 1 65
No. 16.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen	per hundred net of the Church; per doz. 20c., 100	No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen fice and Presidency of the Church; doz. 25 per hundred	No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Te-per hundred 175 per hundred 180. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of Christ, under the Apostleship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 100 140 No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen per hundred 150. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen 150. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen 150. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 100 125 per hundred 100. 100. 100. 100. 100. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 100 100. 100. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. 100. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; per dozen 5c., per hundred 100. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz 25 per hundred 140. 140. 140. 140. 140. 140. 140.	No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-
No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz. 15 per hundred	per hundred
No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of Christ, under the Aposteship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 100	No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz. 15
the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 40 No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen per hundred	No. 20.—The "One Body; or the Church of per hundred	the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 40
Per hundred	per hundred 15
No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House;  per dozen 5c., per hundred	ner hundred
No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House;  per dozen 5c., per hundred	No. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 100 per dozen 5c., per hundred	No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. 40
per hundred	per dozen 5c., per hundred 40
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon  per dozen 15c., per hundred	per hundred
No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon	the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 40
No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 4.  No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 40  No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred	per dozen 15c., per hundred1 10
so, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 4 No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred	No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Ortho-
No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred	so, Kirtland Temple Suit same price No. 4.
Frial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection  50. Sc. each, per dozen	No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined
Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100	Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection
COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in	Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 15
Bound in Limp Cloth turned in
Containing valuable matter in relation to the Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen	Bound in Limp Cloth turned in 75
Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen	Containing valuable metter in relation to the Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen	Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and
Without covers 5c. each, per dozen	Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.
The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages after, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages
Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes	after, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages 1 50
pire, cloth boards, 5 volumes	Josephus, complete, library leather 3 50
Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated)	pire, cloth boards, 5 volumes4 00
The Koran, Borary leather	Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated) 1 80
Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from A. D.  1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols	Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one4 00 The Koran library leather
The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Cæsarea and Palestine 2 00 Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible 1 75 Bible Text Book	Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from A.D.
Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1. 75 Bible Text Book	The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pam-
Apocryphal New Testament 65	Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1 75
	Apocryphal New Testament
	Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size 85
Elders' Diary, by Joseph Luff 30	Enders Diary, by Joseph Lun 30

TRACTS.

THE SAINTS' HE

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUBBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER

IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.—Whole No. 837.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 1, 1889

No. 22.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,
Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents. are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 1, 1889

"THE SIGNS OF CHRIST'S COMING."

In the last issue was an article entitled "The Signs of Christ's Coming" which we think in some of its parts erroneous and misleading, from the fact that it is, in our opinion, in direct conflict with the accepted word of God.

The writer assumes that "The first sign of Christ's coming is a great earthquake; but the word of the Lord assures us that the restoration of the gospel by the ministration of an angel (Rev. 14: 6-8); and the preaching of this [same] gospel of the kingdom . . . for a witness unto all nations (Matt. 24: 14); the establishment of the church and kingdom of God in its militant state in the earth (Dan. 2: 34—45, with Matt. 13: 47–49 and 25: 1–13, etc.); the setting of the Lord's hand "the second time" to recover Israel and Judah, when he shall set up an ensign to the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth" (Isa. 11: 11, 12); the sending "out of Sion (Zion) the deliverer"—the Lord's "covenant-[the gospel] unto them" (Rom. 11: 25-27); the existence of God's "saints and and prophets" in and among the nations (Rev. 16:6), the revelation from heaven to the Lord's people to gather out of "Mystery, Babylon the Great" (Rev. 17: 5, with 18:4;) the establishment (in the earth) of God's "holy apostles and prophets" who shall suffer persecution at the hand of this same "Mystery, Babylon the Great" (Rev. 18: 20); the establisment of "the Lord's house" in "Judah and Jerusalem" (Isa. 2: 1-4); also the great latter day apostasy(2 Thes. 2: 2-12; 1 Tim. 4: 1-3; 2 Tim. 3: 1-9) and the latter day development of demon power and cunning, (2 Thess. 2:7-11; 1 Tim. 4:1; Rev. 16: 14; 13: 14; Matt. 24: 24, etc., etc.)—all these were to, and do first foretoken the last days and the coming of the Son of man, while the signs spoken of by the Savior in Matt. 24: 24-31; Mark 13: 21-26; Luke 21: 25-28, are manifestly those which more immediately precede Christ's glorious and public advent.

In no place that we are aware of does Christ or any of his prophets predict that "the first sign of Christ's coming is a great earthquake," but to the contrary, as may be seen on reading Matthew chapter 24; Mark, chapter 13; and Luke, chapter 21. While it is true that earthquakes are, and will be among the notable signs of the second advent, yet it is a fact that what is called "a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great," (Rev. 16: 18), is located by revelation after a series of most notable events mentioned in Revelation, chapters 14 15 and 16 have occurred, prominent among them the restoration of the gospel by the angel (Rev. 14: 6-8), the taking of the incipient steps by the angels for the speedy downfall of Babylon (verses 8-13), the appearance of "a white cloud, and upon the cloud one ... like unto the Son of man" (verse 14), the proclamation by angels that "the harvest of the earth"—the end of the world, Matt. 13:39—"is ripe" (verse 15), the reign of our Lord and his "judgments" declared (chap. 15: 4), "the rivers and fountains of waters" become blood (chap. 16: 4), the great developement of demon power (verses 13 and 14), the immediate proclamation from heaven by Christ of his then sudden advent (verse 15)-all these, and much more, are to precede that "great earthquake," the finishing up of Babylon's destruction and the physical remodeling, restoring and beautifying of the earth to fit it for the inheritance of the all glorious Lord and his redeemed hosts who are then at hand coming in the clouds of heaven brighter than the noonday sun.

The "sign of the Son of man in heaven," of Matt. 24: 30, is doubtless "the clouds of heaven"—clouds radiant with the glory of Christ and all his glorified Saints (Zech. 14:4, 5; I Thess. 4:16, 17; Matt. 16:27; Dan. 7:13; Jude 14; Acts 1: 11; Rev. 14:14-16; ch. 1:7, and Matt. 24: 30). These glory clouds, the heavenly chariots of our coming Lord and all his ransomed hosts, brighter and more dazzling than the sun in its meridian splendor, may well cause "all the tribes of the earth" to "mourn," and "all kindreds of the earth" to "wail because of him" and call to the mountains and rocks to fall on them and hide them from the "face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb."—Matt. 24: 30; Rev. 1:7; 6: 12-17, with ch. 14: 14-19.
These "clouds of heaven," brilliant with the light and glory of Christ and his shining myriads, these "clouds of heaven" freighted with the Son of Man and "all his holy angels," "all the Saints" including the resurrected and the changed, (I Thess. 4: 16, 17)—these and those will constitute an awful array in point of numbers, and a display of glory and awful majesty well befitting the august coming of the Son of God to be enthroned and receive the sceptre of universal dominion and power and glory to reign forever as "King of kings, and Lord of lords." And well may this world-wide display be termed "the sign of the Son of Man in heaven." Well may the tribes and "all the nations" "mourn" and "wail" and desire to "hide" from the coming Lord whom they know not but have treated with indifference and wilful contempt and derision. For then will be heard by all the "midnight cry," made by the angels of God, and then will the "foolish virgins"-unfaithful Saints-find to their eternal contempt and dismay how foolish and dangerous are delays in getting fully "ready" to "meet the bridegroom" at his glorious and final coming. The teachings of the revelations given through Joseph the Seer all tend to harmonize the teachings of the Bible on the points involved in the second coming of Christ. And this may well be expected, for inasmuch as the first advent was not only indicated by the prophets and seers of former times, but also by angel ministrations and revelations given to God's servants as set forth in the first four chapters of Matthew, the first chapter of Mark, the first three chapters of Luke and the first chapter of John, so may we expect that the second advent would be heralded by angelic ministrations, the revelations of the Holy Ghost, and divers divine testimonies to living men and women in the "times and seasons" of that most important and deci-

Paul assures us that the worthy Saints living in the times of the second advent will not be ignorant in regard to the matter, and will make no blunders in respect to it, for he says: "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should over-take you as a thief. Ye are the children of light, and the children of the day."-I Thess. 5:4, 5. And the Lord, through duly authorized, regularly accredited and approved officers of his Church, publicly instructed and warned the Saints touching this and many other matters of general import to them and their successors in the visible church and kingdom of God, so that the people were not victims of doubt through conflicting interpretations of the prophets and the forced private constructions of men. And inasmuch as the Lord is always in harmony with his own chosen methods, the Saints may rest assured that his faithful ministers will, in the times of the second advent, be well instructed in "the times and seasons" in which they live and minister, and be skillful and intelligent in respect to the events that foretoken the coming of our Lord, also in the order of those events, so that they may properly answer the cry, "Watchman, what of the night?" and they and their people be not overtaken as by "a thief in the night." And of all God's servants in those times, who so likely to be well and first instructed in such matters? Certainly the chief servant of God, the presiding officer of his church, and after him every man in his station and calling, for the Lord has said, "Surely the Lord God will do nothing until he revealeth the secret unto his servants the prophets."—Amos 3: 7. being true, we may always look for the Lord to honor himself and the order he has ordained, and reveal all matters of general import through such persons as possess the divine credentials and authority and stand approved of God by their works, and also by the special testimonies of the Holy Spirit.

Joseph Smith's ministerial works being fully in harmony with scriptural requirements, both in respect to time, place, order, nature and method; and they being confirmed by the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven to all who faithfully accept the the same, it follows that such ministerial works were and are ordained of God and that Joseph was the Lord's servant, chosen and authorized of him and was possessed of the proper credentials from heaven as the Lord's servant to introduce and open up the dispensation in which the second advent would occur, and that he was authorized to teach, preach, expound and explain the word and work of the Lord, and to receive and teach such revelations from God as relate to the founding, organizing, teaching and building up the church of God in all its departments, have full authority from God and be found "a wise master builder." The Lord made no mistake when he chose Joseph as his first and chief servant in these latter days, and no one, unless called directly by God, and that, too, in the most unmistakable manner, should attempt to rectify supposed errors in the teachings, interpretations and ministerial methods of that "choice seer" of whom the Lord says, "I will make him great in mine eyes," and of whom he also says, "And he shall be great like unto Moses."-2 Nephi 2: 2.

In view of all this, it becomes the Saints everywhere to observe the revelations of God in the authorized Doctrine and Covenants and rest assured that "the prophecies and promises which are in them shall all be fulfilled."—Doc. & Cov. 1:7. When they do this, they will learn that the restoration of the gospel by the hands of an angel and the establishing of the visible church of Christ in this nineteenth century were the first of a series of heavenly harbingers of the second advent of our blessed Lord.

Having lengthened this paper beyond its intended limits, we now, in conclusion, refer our readers to the revelations given through the great Seer Joseph Smith and and found in Doctrine and Covenants, sections 28, 43, 45, 49, 85 and 108.

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

As early as the April conference of 1871, the ministry began to agitate the matter of having a "Music Book" prepared which should be adapted to the peculiar character of the hymns and chants and songs of the Saints, and the fall conference following authorized its presiding officer, Pres. Joseph Smith, to appoint a committee of seven to compile one. The president therefore selected brethren M. H. Forscutt, Norman W. Smith, and David H. Smith, J. A. Scott, John T. Kinnaman, William Roberts and Phineas Cadwell as said committee, the first named to be its chairman. The committee, with its limited means, began at once its work of procuring and preparing suitable material.

By the authority of the spring conference of 1872, Bro. M. H. Forscutt was appointed to the European mission, from whence he reported to the conference of 1873 that, owing to the demands of the mission on his time and attention the committee had made but little progress in its work, and on his own request, the fall conference of the same year released him from further service on the committee. Bro. Norman W. Smith was then chosen its president and Bro. James McKiernan appointed a member in place of Bro. Forscutt. The fall conference of 1874 released Bro. McKiernan on his request, and Bro. J. V. Roberts was appointed to fill the vacancy, and the September conference of 1875 added Bro. Forscutt to the committee. This committee was released by the October conference of 1876, and Bro. M. H. Forscutt was appointed chairman of another in its stead with power to choose two assistants, and to the spring session the chairman reported he had selected as such brethren Norman W. Smith and John T. Kinnaman. "The Saints' Harmony" was then named as the title of the proposed music book, and it was provided that eight hundred pages be prepared and submitted to the Board of Publication, the latter to decide whether to publish and to give due notice through the HERALD. The spring conference of 1878 instructed that all matter in the hands of the committee be turned over to the Bishop, and the fall session appointed brethren D. H. Bays, T. W. Chatburn and C. M. Wilder a committee to examine what music had been collated and report to the Board of Publication. On their report and recommendation Bro. Sherman I. Smith was added to the committee on music, and conference ordered that the books and documents on music be retained in the hands of said committee. To the fall conference of 1879 the committee reported their work done and ready to be prepared for the printers; and to the April conference of 1888 the Board of Publication reported its readiness to proceed with the printing of the work when prepared for the press. Upon this the report of the Music Editor, Bro. M. H. Forscutt, was read, and on motion the chair appointed brethren G. A. Blakeslee, J. A. Robinson and J. T. Kinnaman a committee on said report, who in due time presented the following:

"We, your committee appointed by your honorable body on music, beg leave to report:

"Having examined some of the manuscript for the proposed "Saints' Harmony" and conferred with the editor, Bro. M. H. Forscutt, we find that he has expended for books and material about $200, which he asks the church to pay him, and further that he is now ready to enter upon the duties of preparing manuscript and of proof-reading of the work, from now until the work is completed, his salary to be $75 per month while the work is being done. It is estimated that it will take six months to complete the work to put the book on sale.

"We recommend that this matter be turned over to the Board of Publication, requesting it to prosecute this work at once to its completion, your committee being in possession of information that the Board of Publication is now ready to proceed with the work.

"And we further recommend that the $200 be paid to the brother, and that the Board of Publication procure his services and set about the work at once."

This report was, on motion, adopted by the conference.

The Board proceeded directly to comply with the above instruction, and the work is now ready for the press, and no effort is being spared to place it in the hands of subscribers at an early time.

A large amount of money has already been expended in procuring the plates and paper for the book, and the Board now urgently requests all who intend to have the book to send for it at once, for the money is needed to pay bills incurred in its publication.

It is a large work, well arranged, will be neatly printed and properly bound, and the price, $2.50 per copy, is as low as they can be afforded.

The Church ordered the book to be provided, instructed the Board to do the work, and the latter now asks that the Church and others interested in it come forward promptly and buy the book, so that the Board shall be reimbursed for moneys expended.

It is confidently expected that the Saints' Harmony will prove to be one of the best works of the kind ever issued, and that it will also do very much to unify, advance and elevate the song service of those who use it.

THE following is from the Times-Index, published at San Bernardino, California, in its issue for Friday, May 10th, 1889:

"A dozen boys have within a short time been committed to the Napa insane asylum, whose insanity has been caused by smoking cigarettes. The cigarette habit is producing a great deal of mental imbecility, idiocy and crime. In Oakland an ordinance against the habit has been passed and the police officers arrest any youngster they find smoking cigarettes on the street. Every city in the state should pass and enforce the same ordinance. Michigan has taken a stand on this question by passing a state law to the same effect, and all other states should do likewise"

The warning against the use of tobacco, given so early in the history of the church is being very forcibly confirmed by the experiences of society. Strong drink, hot drinks, tobacco, (chewed of smoked), spiced food, excess of meats are all provocative of derangements in the proper conditions of the body, by which diseases are invited to enter and occupy. "Wisdom is justified of her children," says the proverb, and it would seem as if governments are waking to the dangers which threaten the good of the state by practicers of improper habits.

We take the editorial below from the Deseret News of the 14th ultimo and cheerfully give it place in our columns that our readers may see what the Utah Church organ asserts are now the teachings of that society. This is building upon the regularly authorized doctrines and covenants of the church, and is sound in principle, and safe in application if faithfully carried out. It will deeply interest many of our readers to learn that the Utah Church now publicly avows these as their governing principles. This is getting back to "the old paths." There is safety and blessing in it:

"CHURCH LAW AND CIVIL LAW.

"It is not true, as stated by a wilful perverter of 'Mormon' doctrine that: 'The theory of the creed is that if he [a 'Mormon' Apostle or High Priest] is ordained and after that pretends to be moved upon by the Holy Ghost his word can not be doubted by any of lesser authority.' There is nothing in the creed which teaches this, but much which teaches the opposite. It is very evident that the writer who pretends to explain what the 'Mormons' believe does not know anything about their creed, and in addition that he endeavors to falsify even that which he thinks he knows.

"In answer to the question, 'Can any man tell where the church leaves off and the civil law begins with Mormons,' we answer: Yes, every man with common brains who reads for information can tell. The dividing line is sharply drawn in the published doctrines of the church. It is clearly perceived by its members. There is no difficulty in comprehending it if any person desires to do so. The revelations contained in the Doctrine and Covenants, to which allusion has been made, are declared to be simply 'laws to govern the church.' And subjection to 'the powers that be,' embodied in the valid 'laws of the land' and in those who administer them, is enjoined until Christ comes 'whose right it is to reign.'

"The extent of the application of church rules is defined to relate to church fellowship, and the limit of church authority to be excommunication. Every soul is left free to think, believe and act for itself and none are to be in bondage one to another' neither is any power of priesthood to be exercised except by persuasion, in meekness, love and charity, by instruction and light to the convincing of the mind.

"The point where 'the church leaves off and the civil law begins with Mormons,' can not be better defined than in the following from the Doctrine and Covenants section 134 [112] 4, 6, 7:

"We believe that religion is instituted of God, and that men are amenable to him, and to him only, for the exercise of it, unless their religious opinions prompt them to infringe upon the rights and liberties of others; but we do not believe that human law has a right to interfere in prescribing rules of worship to bind the consciences of men, nor dictate forms for public or private devotion; that the civil magistrate should restrain crime, but never control conscience; should punish guilt, but never suppress the freedom of the soul.

"We believe that every man should be honored in his station: rulers and magistrates as such, being placed for the protection of the innocent, and the punishment of the guilty; and that to the laws, all men owe respect and deference, as without them peace and harmony would be supplanted by anarchy and terror; human laws being instituted for the express purpose of regulating our interests as individuals and nations, between man and man, and divine laws given of heaven, prescribing rules on spiritual concerns, for faith and worship, both to be answered by man and to his Maker.

"We believe that rulers, states and governments, have a right, and are bound to enact laws for the protection of all citizens in the free exercise of their religious belief; but we do not believe that they have a right in justice, to deprive citizens of this privilege, or proscribe them in their opinions, so long as a regard and reverence are shown to the laws, and such religious opinions do not justify sedition nor conspiracy."

"BIG PAY PAY FOR PREACHERS."

THE above is the title of an editorial in a late issue of the Chicago Times, and among other good things in it we find the following:

"The example of the primitive Christians is often appealed to. They were humble, illiterate persons, incapable of giving a yearly fortune to the man who showed them the way and the life. Their goods were held in common and the granting of extraordinary fees to those among them who had the gift of exhortation and the authority of the priestly office never entered their simple minds as something necessary to be done.

"It would be well for the modern Christian, either of the pew or the pulpit, seriously to ask himself how much of a Christian he is, anyway. The spirit of the Christian is not lost by any means. When Father Damien devoted himself cheerfully to a living death that he might mitigate the sufferings of repulsive lepers and bring them to a knowledge or at least to the profession of Christ, he realized the Christian ideal. To teach was not his sole mission. Like the Nazarene himself, he worked at the carpenter's bench and he went about doing good. His bishop was not a frequent visitor at his mission. The question of his salary never came up. If he had had $10,000 a year the lepers would be the beneficiaries. Well, he's dead of leprosy-dead with the pale reflection upon his face swollen with a loathsome disease of the pity and the agony of the cross. His heroism will be repeated, but never by a $10,000-a-year man, never by men who are constantly quoting that the laborer is worthy of his hire and looking about for a call with an increase of pay.

"If a preacher persists in affirming himself a Christian, his concern about his salary and his parsonage, his coach and his horses, his wedding fees and his dinners, and his agreeable associates and all that, is strongly at variance with his profession. If, however, he will take formally the ground he takes substantially, that his elequence, address, and leadership of a congregation of well-to-do people are worth to him all he can get for them, he comes in line with the great worldly law of supply and demand. His becomes, like the lawyer's or the doctor's, a secular profession, and he is entitled to make the most of it. But there oughtn't to be any humbuggery or hypocrisy about it."

This is a just rebuke to those who seek to make the ministry a system of "merchandise" in the name of Christ and his holy religion. Christianity, to be what its Author and Exemplar intended, must be builded and abide upon the foundations laid by its founder, as set forth in its authentic records. Christ ordained that his ministers, especially those connected with missionary work, should depend very largely for temporal aid upon the special providences promised of the Father, that thereby the Lord might prove the minister, the church, the world—all for whom the servant of Christ should minister that the knowledge of God and the fact of His special interference in behalf of His servants and His work might be known; also that the servant of the Lord might have frequent special manifestations of the power and loving care of the Lord in providing for his temporal needs by the ministrations of the Saints, or those of the world, wherever that servant should faithfully labor. In this way faith is increased and confirmed; in this way the Lord's servant is kept under constant divine discipline; in this way the Saints and the world are being proved and tried and taught of the Lord; and in this way the world is having "a witness" of the knowledge and integrity and devotion and intelligent zeal of the servants of God and the eternal verity of the gospel of Christ that either seals to eternal life or to present and future condemnation. When a minister of Christ leaves home and its endearments, abandons remunerative business pursuits, seeks the present and future welfare of souls by sacrificing self in respect to ease and pleasure and worldly honor and gain, hears the frowns and contempt and prejudice and opposition of unbelievers, goes truthfully, faithfully forward relying upon and receiving spiritual and temporal help from the Lord, he is indeed "a witness" and a "sign" (Isa. 8:18) for God and his work. Such a minister, exhibiting such faith and such trust in God, is a "living epistle" for Christ and his blessed gospel; and his practical exhibition of his faith and the sustaining grace and providences of God wins souls to Christ and lifts them up into divine life. while at the same time his own soul is feasting and growing and joying in the goodness and power and wisdom of an ever present Lord and Master. Such ministers make converts for Christ, and the latter it can be truly said, are indeed Christ's converts, because converted in the manner and under the conditions which heaven has provided and decreed.

To those conversant with the New Testament, it needs no proof that the Lord proposes to sustain and guide and teach and provide for his active ministers in a special manner if needful, and that they were so helped according to His promises. And to those conversant with the sacred books of the Saints in these times there need be no argument that the Lord requires similarly of his ministry now as then. In a revelation to the elders given July, 1830, and found in Doctrine and Covenants 23:7, we find these commands and promises of the Lord: "And thou shalt take no purse, nor scrip, neither staves, neither two coats, for the church shall give unto thee in the very hour [if the minister is dutiful, of course] what thou needest for food, and for raiment, and for shoes, and for money, and for scrip; for thou art called to prune my vineyard with a mighty pruning, yea, even for the last time. Yea, and also all those whom thou hast ordained. And they shall do even according to this pattern. Amen"

In September, 1832, these words of command and promise were given to those called to travel and preach the gospel:

"And again I say unto you, my friends (for from henceforth I shall call you friends), it is expedient that I give unto you this commandment, that ye become even as my friends in days when I was with them traveling to preach this gospel in my power; for I suffered them not to have purse or scrip, neither two coats; behold, I send you out to prove the world, and the laborer is worthy of his hire. And any man that shall go and preach this gospel of the kingdom, and fail not to continue faithful in all things, shall not be weary in mind, neither darkened, neither in body, limb or joint; and an hair of his head shall not fall to the ground unnoticed. And they shall not go hungry, neither athirst.

"Therefore, take no thought for the morrow, for what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, or wherewithall ye shall be clothed; for consider the lilies of the field, how they grow, they toil not, neither do they spin; and the kingdoms of the world, in all their glory, are not arrayed like one of these; for your Father who art in heaven, knoweth that ye have need of all these things. Therefore, let the morrow take thought for the things of itself. Neither take ye thought beforehand what ye shall say, but treasure up in your minds continually the words of life, and it shall be given you in the very hour that portion that shall be meted unto every man.

"Therefore, let no man among you (for this commandment is unto all the faithful who are called of God in the church, unto the ministry), from this hour, take purse or script, that goeth forth to proclaim this gospel of the kingdom. Behold, I send you out to reprove the world of all their unrighteous deeds, and to teach them of a judgment which is to come. And whoso receiveth you, there will I be also; for I will go before your face; I will be on your right hand and on your left, and my Spirit shall be in your hearts, and my angels round about you, to bear you up.

"Whoso receiveth you receiveth me, and the same will feed you, and clothe you, and give you money. And he who feeds you, or clothes you, or gives you money, shall in no wise lose his reward: and he that doeth not these things is not my disciple: by this ye may know my disciples. He that receiveth you not, go away from him alone by yourselves, and cleanse your feet, even with water, pure water, whether in heat or in cold, and bear testimony of it unto your Father which is in heaven, and return not again unto that man. And into whatsoever village or city ye enter, do likewise. Nevertheless, search diligently and spare not; and wo unto that house, or that village, or city, that rejecteth you, or your words, or testimony concerning me." * * *

"And again, verily, verily I say unto you, it is expedient that every man who goes forth to proclaim mine everlasting gospel, that inasmuch as they have families, and receive moneys by gift, that they should send it unto them, or make use of it for their benefit, as the Lord shall direct them, for thus it seemeth me good. And let all those who have not families, who receive moneys, send it up unto the bishop in Zion, or unto the bishop in Ohio, that it may be consecrated for the bringing forth of the revelations and the printing thereof, and for establishing Zion.

"And if any man shall give unto any of you a coat, or a suit, take the old and cast it unto the poor, and go your way rejoicing. And if any man among you be strong in the Spirit, let him take with him he that is weak, that he may be edified in all meekness, that he may become strong also.

"Therefore, take with you those who are ordained unto the lesser priesthood, and send them before you to make appointments, and to prepare the way, and to fill appointments that you yourselves are not able to fill. Behold, this is the way that mine apostles, in ancient days, built up my church unto me.

"Therefore, let every man stand in his own office, and labor in his own calling; and let not the head say unto the feet it hath no need of the feet, for without the feet how shall the body be able to stand? Also, the body hath need of every member, that all may be edified together, that the system may be kept perfect.

"And behold, the high priests shall travel, and also the elders, and also the lesser priests; but the deacons and teachers should be appointed to watch over the church, to be standing ministers unto the church."—D. & C. 83:13—16, 18-22.

To this we add what the Lord says concerning those traveling ministers who have families to provide for:

"And, again, thus saith the Lord unto you, O ye elders of my church, who have given your names that you might know His will concerning you; behold I say unto you, that it is the duty of the church to assist in supporting the families of those who are called and must needs be sent unto the world to proclaim the gospel unto the world; wherefore, I, the Lord, give unto you this commandment, that ye obtain places for your families, inasmuch as your brethren are willing to open their hearts; and let all such as can obtain places for their families and support of the church for them, not fail to go into the world; whether to the east, or to the west, or to the north, or to the south; let them ask and they shall receive, knock and it shall be opened unto them, and made known from on high, even by the Comforter, whither they shall go.

"And again, verily I say unto you, that every man who is obliged to provide for his own family, let him provide and he shall in no wise lose his crown; and let him labor in the church. Let every man be diligent in all things. And the idler shall not have place in the church except he repents and mends his ways."—D. C., sec. 75. pars. 4, 5.

When the traveling ministry move forward in the manner set forth in these texts, they can claim, and will enjoy the promises set forth therein; and when all this is had—obedience to God and the promised blessings—the ministry are indeed "the light of the world;" and that light will convince and convert sinners as no other means can, and when conversion occurs under such conditions, the faith of the converts as well as that of the ministry will stand "in the power of God," and not "in the wisdom of men."

The world needs such ministers and such ministrations. And wherever a faithful soul labors in keeping with these divine requirements, the Lord gives grace and power and good success. Outside these conditions, the ministry have no special promise of help and blessing.

Who is there that will take God at his word and prove him? Some will do it—have done it—and will continue to do it. If this were done by all who are called, there would be less tarrying and fault-finding, and better work and more of it would be done, and thus God and his work would be glorified and souls saved.

If these commands were faithfully carried out and the Lord and his people tested and proved, there would be less trusting in man and vastly more confidence had in the special care of God for his faithful laborers. The minister for Christ needs to live and labor in great nearness to God.

Diogenes said to Alexander the Great, who asked to know how he might show him favor: "Just stand out of my sunlight!" And that should be the sentiment of the active ministry—they should suffer no one to stand in their sunlight and hinder the special favor of God in their work.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Subscriptions for the Saints' Harmony are coming in quite freely, and we learn that lists are being made up in the branches for it. The Board of Publication have already expended quite a large sum on the Harmony; hence those who contemplate purchasing it should send in their subscriptions at as early a time as practicable. All interested in good music and a oneness of method—and that method the correct one—throughout the church, are requested to take notice.

Bro. W. J. Plain, of Elmwood, Indian Territory, writes desiring us to state that he had written to Brn. "John Hailey" and "Nunley," but had not received replies.

In a letter dated at Farnsworth, Sanborn county, Dakota, the 7th ult., Mr. S. V. Grey asks that some faithful elder call on them and labor, and he seems confident a good work can be done there. A number are now ready to unite with the church by baptism. Those having charge of that field should see to this call soon.

We clip the following from the Worth couty, (Mo.), Times, found in the Allendale correspondence: "Elder Stebbins, of Lamoni, Iowa, preached at the Saints' Chapel here last Saturday night and Sunday at 11 o'clock and at night. Mr. Stebbins is highly respected here, and never fails to have a crowded house to hear him preach.

We thank friends for sending us marked copies of leading papers containing valuable articles. Sometimes we use these articles in our columns when we think them available and suitable, and we are always glad to receive even such as we do not use.

In the Wallaceburg (Ontario) Herald Record of the 3d ult., there appears a lengthy vindication of the faith of the Saints by Bro. J. H. Tyrrell. The brethren will do best to keep harshness and recrimination in word or manner, entirely out of their work in defense or advocacy of the work Christ has committed to our trust.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Heman C. Smith wrote from Valley Center, San Diego county, California, May 14th:

"Bro. Sydney Wright and I are on a gospel mission through this county. We have reason to believe we have done some good, and hope to do more."

Bro. Frank Lofty writes from Osage City, Kansas, May 20th:

"I have commenced preaching in the United Brethren church in this city, but can not tell how I may succeed until later on."

Bro. E. Day Bennett wrote May 19th, Santa Clara, Dakota:

"The work moves on slowly in this field. Sunday is about the only day one can secure a congregation. All is well."

THE WORST FORM OF IRRELIGION.

Costly as their education has been, not one man or woman in a hundred of the liesured classes has acquired, or seem likely to acquire, an insight into the conditions on which society is now held together. The men, perhaps, study politics, for they may belong by tradition to a party; and to politics some add what it is the fashion to call history—for the most part a magnified view of the same party interests. As for women, no one has ever instructed them that it is their duty "to see life steadily, and see it whole." But neither men nor women care for political economy. What the average man does not underis making money. His aim is by some lucky stroke to become a silver king, railway or cattle king, master of a syndicate, or creator of a "corner." This it is that justifies Von Hartman's description of the nineteenth century as "the most irreligious that ever has been seen;" this, and not the assault upon dogma or the decline of the churces. There is a depth below atheism, below anti-religion, and into it the age has fallen. It is the indifference to every instinct which does not make for wealth.—

Rev. Dr. William Barry, in the April Forum.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The winds with hymns of praise are loud,
Or low with sobs of pain,—
The thunder-organ of the cloud,
The dropping tears of rain."

DISCERNING A CHILD'S SPECIAL NEED OF TRAINING.

In the wise training of children, it is of first importance to know their special need of training. There can be no good shooting until we have something to aim at. Until we know what the disease is, there is little use in trying to cure it

No quality of a good physician is of more importance than skill in making a diagnosis of a patient's case. If a master mind in this realm were to pass with positiveness on the disease of every patient, the treatment of that disease would be comparatively easy. A young graduate from a medical school, or a trained nurse, would in most cases be capable of knowing and doing that which was needful in the premises. But until the diagnosis is accurate, the best efforts of the ablest physician are liable to be misdirected, and so to be ineffective for good. As it is with the physician and his patient, so it is with the parent and his child. An accurate diagnosis is an essential pre-requisite to wise and efficient treatment. The diagnosis secured, the matter of treatment is comparatively an easy matter. A parent's diagnosis of his child's case is in the discerning of his child's faults, as preliminary to a process of training for their cure. Until that is secured, there is no hope of intelligent and well-directed treatment.

Yet it is not the easiest thing in the world to say what are a child's peculiar faults, and what is, therefore, that child's peculiar need of training. Many a parent is disturbed by a child's best traits, while he underestimates or overlooks that child's chief failings. And many another parent who knows that his child is full of faults can not say just what they are, or classify them according to their relative prominence, and their power for evil. "That boy's questions will worry my life out. He is always asking questions; and such questions. I can't stand it." This is said by a great many fathers and mothers whose children are full of promise, largely because they are full of questions. But if the boy has a bright mind and positive preferences, and is ready to study or to work untiringly in the line of his own tastes, and in no other line, it does not always occur to his parents that just here-in this reluctance to apply himself in the line of wise expediency rather than of personal fancy—there is a failing which, if not trained out of that boy, will stand as a barrier to his truest manhood, and will make him a second-rate man when he might be a first-rate one; a one-sided man instead of a well-proportioned man. Such a boy is quite likely to be looked upon as one who must be permitted to have his own way, since that way is evidently not a bad way, and he shows unusual power in its direction. So that boy may be left untrained in this particular until he is hopelessly past training, merely because his chief fault is unrecognized by those who could correct it, and who would gladly do so if they saw it in its due proportions.

Careful study and a wise discrimination are needed on a parent's part to ascertain a child's peculiar faults. Each parent would do well to ask himself, or herself, the questions, "What are the special faults of my child? Where is he weakest? In what direction is his greatest strength liable to lead him astray; or when is it most likely to fail him? Which of his faults is most prominent? Which of them is of chief importance for immediate correction?" Such questions as these should be considered at a time favorable to deliberate judgment, when there is least temptation to be influenced by personal feeling, either of preference or dissatisfaction. They should be pondered long and well.

The unfriendly criticisms of neighbors, and the kind suggestions of friends, are not to be despised by a parent in making up an estimate of his child's failings and faults. Rarely is a parent so discerning, so impartial, and so wise, that he can know his child through and through, and be able to weigh the several traits, and perceive the every imperfection and exaggeration of their characters, with unerring accuracy and absolute fairness. A judge is supposed to be disqualified for an impartial hearing of a case in which he has direct personal interest. A physician will not commonly make a disagnosis of his own disorders, lest his fears or hopes should bias his judgment. And even though the parent must decide for himself concerning the interests and the treatment of his own children, he ought to be glad to take into consideration what others think and say of them, while he is making up his mind concerning his duty in the premises. And what is written or said on this subject by competent educators is worthy of attention from every parent who would train his children understandingly. There is little danger that any parent will give too much study to his child's specific needs, or have too many helps to a wise conclusion on that point. There is a great deal of danger that the whole subject will be neglected or undervalued by a parent.

If a parent were explicitly to ask the question of a fair and plain-speaking friend, familiar with that parent's children, and competent to judge them, What do you think is the chief fault-or the most objectionable characteristic-of my son or danghter? the frank answer to that question would in very many cases be an utter surprise to the parent; the fault or characteristic named not having been suspected by the parent. A child may be so much like the parent just here, that the parent's blindness to his or her own chief fault or lack may forbid the seeing of the child's similar deformity. Or, again, that child may be so totally unlike the parent, that the parent will be unable to appreciate, or even to apprehend, that peculiarity of the child which is apparent to every outside intelligent observer. A child's reticence from deep feeling has often been counted by an over-demonstrative parent as a sign of want of sensitiveness; and so vice versa. Parents need help from others, from personal friends whom they can trust to speak with impartiality and kindness, or from the teachers of their children, in the gaining of a proper estimate and understanding of their children's characteristics and needs. The parent who does not realize this truth, and act on it, will never do as well as might be done for his or her child. God has given the responsibility of the training of that child to the parent; but he has also laid on that parent the duty of learning, by the aid of all proper means, what are that child's requirements, and how to meet them. A child may be permanently dwarfed or distorted in mental and moral characteristics through his parent's neglect of this duty. - Sunday School Times.

SLEEP.

"So He giveth his beloved sleep."-Psa. cxxvii. 2.

He sees when their footsteps falter, when their heart grows weak and faint,

He marks when their strength is failing, and listens to each complaint:

He bids them rest for a season, for the pathway has grown too steep;

And folded in fair green pastures,

He giveth his loved ones sleep

Like weary and worn out children, that sigh for the daylight's close,

He knows that they oft are longing for home and its sweet repose;

So he calls them in from their labors ere the shadows around them creep,

And silently watching o'er them,

He giveth his loved ones sleep.

He giveth it, oh, so gently, as a mother will hush to rest The babe that she softly pillows so tenderly on her breast; Forgotten are now the trials and sorrows that made them weep;

For with many a soothing promise He giveth his loved ones sleep.

He giveth it! friends the dearest, can never this boon be-

But he touches the drooping eyelids, and placid the features grow;

Their foes may gather about them, and storms may round them sweep,

But guarding them safe from danger, He giveth his loved ones sleep.

All dread of the distant future, all fears that opprest today,

Like mists that clear in the sunlight, have noiselessly passed away;

Nor call nor clamor can rouse them from slumbers so pure and deep,

For only his voice can reach them

Who giveth his loved ones sleep.

Weep not that their toils are over, weep not that their race is run;

God grant we may rest as calmly when our work, like their, is done!

Till then we would yield with gladness our treasures to him to keep,

And rejoice in the sweet assurance, joice in the sweet appearance.

He giveth his loved ones sleep.

—Golden Hours.

STEWARTSVILLE, Mo., May 11th.

Dear Sisters:-- I felt it my duty to write once more and say that I am still firm in the faith, and have great reason to be thankful for the many blessings I daily receive. The longer I know this work, the more I love it and the more beauties I see in it; and I want to live as becometh a Saint and do all the good I can, and help in my weakness to spread the gospel. I have given away some tracts and one copy of the Voice of Warning, and they are at work. I don't feel that we could get along without the Home Column. I think the church papers are all good.

Ever praying for the welfare of the cause I I love, I remain your sister, ANN SUMMERFIELD.

Sigel, Michigan, Apr. 1889.

Dear Herald:-I am a little girl just twelve years old, and as I never sent a birth-day present to the "Column," I will now send a small one. I was baptized a year ago and have not regretted the step I have taken for it is good to be a Saint. If we live faithful we know our reward is sure. Pray for me, dear Saints, that I may have my lamp trimmed and ready for the coming of the Bridegroom. Your sister, CELESTIA J. MORGAN.

TABERVILLE, Mo., May 10th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:-I have not yet subscribed for the Herald, but borrow them from the sisters of this branch, and I take such pleasure in reading the Home Column that I feel I should like to add a few lines to it, and tell how I love this work.

I was born and raised in Southern Ohio, where I lived until April, 1885, when we came to South-western Missouri, we bought a farm and located where we now are, and here I first heard the gospel preached by the Latter Day Saints. I was not long in making up my mind that it was the right church for me, and I soon enlisted in the cause.

I was baptized on the 12th day of February, 1888, by brother E. Curtis, and I thank our Heavenly Father that I have lived to see this glorious light shine. It has been to me the happiest part of my life since early childhood. I know this to be the true way to walk in the light of God; and if we will only prove faithful we shall receive all he has promised us. I have received many testimonies of the truth since I came into this work. Of course I have temptations and trials, but I know if we do not bear the cross, we can not wear the crown, for God will have a tried people.

My husband is also a member of the Beorganized Church. We have two pretty little blackeyed girls, smart and interesting, and the greatest desire of my heart is to be able to live a pure and true life, that our Heavenly Father will enable us to walk so as to let our light shine that we may be fit examples to guide these dear little ones in the way in which they should go, that may not depart from the faith when they grow

We have preaching here but once each month. Brn. I. N. White and — Tucker preached for us last week. We had preaching on Sunday, also on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and one was baptized. We have prayer and testimony meetings every Sunday at the brethren and sisters' homes. This is a good neighborhood and we have many friends of our church.

May God bless and be with all who will try to investigate and love the truth, is my prayer in Your sister in Christ,

LIZZIE M. HADLEY.

Preaching, praver and testimony meetings, Sr. Lizzie, but how about the little ones? Is there not material enough for a Sabbath School? Two black-eyed little girls with mother or father anxious for their salvation, the holy Sabbath day, with Zion's Hope and Sabbath School Question Books; are these not enough? Are there no others? Are the lambs of the flock being fed with the pure milk of the wordb We must train the child in the way he should go, if we would have him walk in it when old. Don't, we beseech you, suffer the golden days of youth to slip by unimproved, lest you have it to regret, where regrets avail nothing.-ED.

Home Column Missionary Fund.

and the state of t
Sr. Celesta J. Morgan, Sigel, Mich$	IC
Sr. M. Mansfield, Houlton, Me	OC
Sr. Ann Summerfield, Stewartsville, Mo1	00
Sr. Janette Strauss, Portsmouth, Iowa2
Sr Ella B. Hayer, Eagle Grove, Iowa	OC
A Sister, Woodford's, Cal
Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa

Correspondence.

COAL HILL, Arkansas.

Dear Herald:-I do not agree with one Bro. Robinson—who inferred in his letter that people in Arkansas were not worth saving. I think that some of the smartest people that I ever met are here, and vice versa. But I think this would be the easiest field to preach in that can be found anywhere. The field is ripe already for the harvest. Tell the parties that have charge of this mission that they can find a welcome at my house whether they find me doing my duty or not. My place is one quarter mile north of Christian Church of this town. Would be glad to have any of the traveling elders write and call on me.

There are a few Saints at Rogers in Benton County Among them are Sister Minnie Wickes and Bro. John Moore and wife. At Springdale, Washington county, there is a branch of thirteen. Bro. E. Wildermuth presides at this place, eight members. This is Johnson county, on the Little Rock and Ft. Smith Railroad. At Shark, Yell county, will be found Bro. Rich Worthington and wife. I believe this is all I can do toward helping the missionary till he does something. Pray for the cause. B. H. CASE.

WOODBINE, Iowa, May 21st.

Dear Herald: - Brethren Charles Derry and H. O. Smith have been preaching for us of late to increasing and attentive audiences, and I trust in the near future the Lord will give the increase, which I believe he will do if we live faithful in the discharge of every known duty. This is what I am laboring and praying daily for.

It is my true desire and prayer that each and all Latter Day Saints may strive to live up to their privileges, and then we will see the gospel win its way and many honest in heart be brought into the fold of Christ.

S. B. KIBLER.

BOZEMAN, Montana, May 13th.

Editors Herald: - I take this means of informing the readers of the Herald that we are still alive in this part of the world. We are pretty far north, but while it is cold without, there is yet a little of the good old fire within to give activity and life to the body. I feel so grateful to God for the blessings he has bestowed on me of late, that I want to tell my brethren and the world about it: I had a violent attack of inflammatory rheumatism lately. I suffered intense pain, at times almost beyond endurance. On the evening of the 5th I sent for Elder J. E. Reese to administer to me, and, thank God, I was there and then healed.

I want to say to those that fancy there is no power in this work, that they are mistaken. If they receive no answer from heaven it is because they have no faith. I feel firmer than ever in this work, and hope soon to be able to devote my days to the Lord's service. Then my joy will be complete.

Yours in gospel bonds,

GOMER REESE.

WALLAMBA, N. S. W., April 9th.

Dear Herald:—I have just now laid down the Herald after a very pleasant perusal of its colums. It is indeed a spirit-strengthening paper, and one that no adult Saint can afford to do without.

When I read of the noble work being achieved by the elders, who, in the face of vile calumny, are so courageously and zealously battling against a hostile world, my admiration of them develops into ecstasy, particularly when I think of the cause they are advocating, and I feel as if I would like to join them in the battle field, for the harvest indeed is ripe and truly great, but the reapers are few. O, that I had the necessary qualifications to fit me for a faithful and profitable coworker with my brethren in the vineyard of the Lord!

It would certainly, I think, be a good thing if more missionaries could be sent from America into this far off sunny land. We like the Yankees; they can talk so! There are many noble people in the colonies who have never yet heard the glad tidings of the gospel, and who, after hearing must obey. There are many others again, and honest hearts too, many of them, who have been so poisoned against anything like the sound of Mormon, by the circulated slanders of the enemy, that they are now bound down in awful darkness by the cruel chains of prejudice and bigotry, and who in time would break those bands of error and rise triumphant above the cunning of the adversary, if truth were sufficiently promulgated.

Wouldn't the Saints here rejoice if we only heard of two such elders as Brn. Burton and Smith being sent out here to preach?

Brn. Wight and Butterworth are determined to use their taients in such a way as will gain for them the saying, "Well done." They are doing a lion's share, but would it not be grand if they were assisted by a brother such as T. W. Smith? I hope you will not think it selfish if I say that we would like to have Br. T. W. Smith back again. If such be the emanation of a selfish spirit, then I can vouch that many in the church and out of it participate in that selfishness. Br. and Sr. Smith have done a good work during their "too short stay" in Australia, which I trust, time will never efface and for which we have learned to love them.

The branch at Forster is being augmented by an occasional one obeying the gospel. There is quite a number in the district who are convinced, but are afraid of the finger of scorn; others are investigating with a desire to know the truth. And now my appeal to the Saints, not only of Forster, but everywhere, is to endeavor to live in such a manner as will render us strong factors in facilitating the coming into the kingdom of such people as above mentioned. Truly, one of the best persuasions and proofs of the truthfulness of the latter day work we can offer to seekers after Christ, is to show them by our lives that we are Saints in deed, as well as in theory. But how are we to arrive at that standard of perfection unless we assist each other by prayer, words of encouragement, and that brotherly love that should be characteristic of every servant of the Lord?

Br. Wight is now with us in Forster, but intends shortly to go out into a new field, after which he purposes visiting Nambuccra branch, and then we shall have to do without him for a time. However, we ought not to murmur, for we have had a good share of the preaching of the traveling elders, and we have a good staff of officers in the Forster branch.

It is now about nine months since I connected myself with the church, and feel considerably strengthened since then; but alas! too timid and weak yet by a long way in the service of the Lord. Trusting that I shall yet growstronger in the faith and become a more useful instrument. I pray that the Lord will bless all the honest in heart who from time to time become initiated into the kingdom and open up a way unto all those who are convinced and desirous of obeying the truth; that he may enable us to feel that we must not nullify our teachings by our daily actions; and remember that the "Spirit of the Lord dwelleth not in unholy temples," and that without God's Spirit we are unable to cope with cunning craftiness and powerful attacks of the adversary. I remain your brother,

R. H. LAUGHLIN.

COLEMAN, Michigan, May 15th.

Br. W. W. Blair:—After the general conference I went to Kansas City and Independence to visit my brethren, about thirty or forty of whom were formerly of Ontario, and chiefly the fruits of my labors in the gospel. We had quite a reunion. The old fire that was kindled thirteen years ago had not died out. Our rejoicing together was great. We felt a portion of that same Spirit we used to have when we were but babes in the church. Some of our brethren who have been a little backward in the past took a fresh start and declared their intentions to do better in the future.

By request I went to Knob Knoster and preached a few times. Had fair liberty. Five were baptized during my stay, and about the same time I learned that some were baptized in Independence, and four were added to the branch at Kansas City, Kansas. All along the line people are coming into the church.

I arrived at home May 1st. Left everything looking bright in Missouri, the trees in blossom etc., and found the ground white with snow in Michigan. But I hope the people in Missouri will not think we have had winter ever since the snow fell last October. No, we have had good weather between these times, and all the difference I see in these scattering storms of snow early in the Fall and late in the Spring is, down there it is a miserable cold, wet rain and at night a man needs his overcoat, while here the snow that was on the ground on May 1st was all gone before night, and that evening was not so cold as would be in Missouri. But we are a month behind Missouri.

Well, I found my family all well. I remained a few days and planted some potatoes and corn and other garden stuff, then left for Coleman. Ten have been baptized in Coleman in the last three days and others are believing.

I receive many calls for preaching, more than I can fill. I hope the brethren will be patient, and we will be with them as often as we can.

I must say that for the first three days of conference I felt downcast; I thought-pay so much for this hall, just for the Saints to hold conference, and so few outsiders to attend! And Bro. Joseph not here, Oh, this is terrible! I began to think of the past when in some of our districts at conference or two days' meetings, What, is the president of the district not coming? Well, "we might just as well go home!" "We might just as well not have any conference," etc. But the "kingdom is ours," and we must all make up our minds to do our part in the same. And we must all learn to live, and perhaps die without having the prophet or elder by our side. I have returned from the conference with a determination upon my part to do the best I can in spreading the glorious gospel until I hear it said "Well J. J. Cornish.

Independence, Mo., May 8th.

Dear Herald:-I had the following vision May 4th, 1889, at Holden, Missouri, in the Saints' afternoon meeting during the district conference there. President Luff had appointed Bro. John A. Robinson in charge of the meeting. After the Saints had partaken of the sacrament, the brother in charge made some very appropriate remarks in regard to the duties of the Saints, the success of the meeting, and the blessings of God that we were privileged to enjoy. While he was thus speaking, there was a holy, joyful influence came over the congregation, and my heart was made glad and my soul did rejoice in God my Savior, to know that the restoration of the gospel was indeed a glorious reality. While in this happy condition there appeared before my spiritual vision as follows:

I saw before me a beautiful garden, lovely to behold. It was was nicely laid out and very tastefully arranged. It was filled with beautiful, growing plants, such as I had never before seen. I wondered what all this meant. There seemed to be a personage there (but invisible to me) for the purpose of giving me instruction. He informed me that this garden was mine, and was given to me by the Lord when I united with the church. As he thus spoke I was made to understand what all these plants were. This question came in my mind: What shall the harvest be? to which he answered, "It depends altogether upon you and how you care for the plants, cultivate the soil, and keep the weeds down. You may so neglect it that all will go to waste and the labor you have done be lost; or you may labor so that at harvest time you may reap thirty fold, or you can so labor and care for the plants that you may reap sixty fold; and it is in your power to reap an hundred fold." As he thus informed me of the privileges and agency that I possessed, I became intensely interested, and I walked through the garden with an anxious desire in my heart to reap to the utmost extent. I noticed some of the plants were not as thrifty as I wished they were, and on close observation I saw that the ground had not been worked as carefully as it should have been, and that consequently the ground was getting hard. And I also saw quite a number of stones lying in the garden, and these stones made me feel very sad, for they did not belong in the garden and ought not to be there. I could not see where they came from, and why they were there, for they accomplished no good in any wise, but they produced a very sad and grievous effect upon me. At once I found myself upon an elevated place, and I saw many gardens like mine. These gardens represented the souls of persons in the church; the plants represented the christian graces such as love, joy, peace, meekness, virtue, long suffering, brotherly kindness, godliness, etc., etc., and the weeds represented, envy, malice, strife, hatred, uncleanness, wrath, etc., etc. I could understand in regard to all except those stones that I saw lying in the garden, and again I was told to look, and I saw stones being thrown from almost in every direction and falling into all the gardens, and I was informed that these stones represented the evil speaking among F. C. WARNKY. God's people.

GARAFRAXA, Ont., May 20th.

Bro. Blair:—I have never been so much blessed as of late. The Spirit of the Master has indeed been "poured out" in rich spiritual blessings, causing love and union. The sick are being healed, even diseases of long standing being rebuked through the instruction of the Spirit. In connection with Bro. James McClean I have been visiting some of the neighboring branches in the district, and find a desire on the part of the Saints to comply with the law, both temporally and spiritually. Yesterday eve had the pleasure of burying in baptism two aged ladies who bid fair to become prominent in Israel.

JOHN SHIELDS.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, May 9th.

Editors Saints' Herald: - At the urgent request of Bro J. W. Gillen that I visit the Saints of St. Louis and those of Johnson county, Illinois, on my return to the east, and having an inclination so to do, on the evening following the closing of the general conference at St. Joseph I took the C. B. & Q. train via. Hannibal for St. Louis, where I arrived on Sunday morning, the 14th, safely. Nothing of a striking nature occurred on the way except a Missouri "bald knobber," presumably, was polite enough to relieve me of my hat as I quietly rested in a reclining chair under the influence of old Morpheus during the night-bade adieu-forgetting to leave another in its place. After the first impulse of disgust and contempt for such a mean fellow, upon reflection I was consoled in the thought that he left me my head. and as I was in Missouri this speaks volumes. It was just a little uncomfortable, however, to be compelled to appear in St. Louis on Sunday morning when all the stores should be closed, bare headed. The porter was clever enough to loan me a traveling cap, however, about two sizes too small and considerably worn which I donned and with valise in hand started in search of 3129 Caroline street. After a long ride, several enquiries and short walk I arrived at the aforesaid number to be kindly received by Bro. and Sr. Dawson and grandma, having attracted more than ordinary attention on the way. But all is well that ends well, and he is no soldier at all who is not ready to meet emergencies.

There is a warm atmosphere about Bro. Dawson's house for Latter Day Saint ministers which I at once appreciated. Home like! Exchanging cap for one of Bro. Dawson's hats, slightly more becoming, I attended services in the Saints new church in the afternoon and evening. Preached with fair liberty to an attractive and appreciative audience, empathizing especially against thieves. This being my first visit to St. Louis I would not be a competent judge as to the temper and success of the brethren; any way there are witnesses for the truth in St. Louis and evidences of earnestness and devotion to the cause. Excellent judgment has been exhibited in the building of their new chapel—"making haste to go slow"—keeping it in easy control of the branch financially. This is a good example. Bro. James W. Gillen and co-workers bear rather enviable reputations among the Saints and friends. Good.

On Monday Sr. Dawson accompanied me to the business portion of the city, pointed out some of its prominent attractions and directed me to a proper hat store. I purchased a hat. $3.50 out, besides one worth $4.00, and among the best I ever wore-conference hat-gone to adorn the head of a "bald knobber" or "hat grabber," and yet it is thought that ministers never have any ups and downs in the world. The dollar handed me the day previous by a good brother not letting his left hand know what his right hand did, whose name I did not get, and whose contributions the Bishop may never hear of, went into the new hat also. His kindness is duly appreciated. In the afternoon I was put in charge of Sr. Patience Cook for the remainder of the day and Tuesday, to make calls and see the attractions of the city. We called on a number of the brethren to be kindly received, and spent the time profitably and pleasantly. I failed to get the names down at the time and can not furnish them from memory, but their kindness is appreciated all the same.
On Tuesday Sr. Cook following her own tasts and inclinations as to the most delightful parts of the city, girl like, led the way to the parks and flower gardens. The day was bright and beautiful and the scenery pleasing and attractive. Buds. flowers, birds, butterflies, toiling men and growing plants; trees and shrubs of various kinds and climate, long walks and green landscapes, with the large reservoir that supplies the city with water daily were among the attractive things seen and studied. This was our holiday. It is said, "The eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing." But long walks and intense interest, however attractive and beautiful the view, bring weary limbs and a longing for a luncheon and a couch. St. Louis with all its magnificence has not that sleek appearance and business snap apparent in eastern cities. I was agreeably impressed with the good taste and sense of my young guide, as she only had pleasant words and compliments for her brothers and sisters in the faith, and expressed esteem for those who labor for them in word and doctrine, May her virtues continue to shine as the years go by.

Early on Wednesday the 17th, Bro. Dawson accompanied me to the Union Depot and I took the Cairo short line for Tunnel Hill, Illinois. The day was warm and beautiful. The fruit trees along the way were in full bloom, the forests green with foliage, variegated with redbud and dogwood blossoms as of yore, the meadows verdant and growing, the young clover struggling hard in places to hide the yellow clay from view, and the wheat fields presented a rich and luxuriant growth—said to be as fine as was ever seen in that country. This was my return to "Egypt" after a lapse of twenty-seven years. At noon we were at Carbondale in the coal fields recently developed. About 2 p. m. Marion was reached. Here is where I spent a term at school when a boy, at a time when it was thought to be nonprogressive for country and city boys to be on good terms. I belonged to the former class. The town boys with overwhelming numbers were frequently looking for me and a boy by the name of Caleb Cain and my two older brothers (for short, Frank and Jack) and they usually found us there. Hive Cunningham and Ben Mulkey were especially pugilistic, and we used to take a train almost daily, on the street or in the school room when the old fogy teacher's back was turned. The old town stands there yet looking precisely like itself, and no striking improvement save a rail way has been put through. What was worse the grown people would encourage those practices among the boys and hiss them on.

Night found me at Tunnel Hill. Stayed over with cousin Columbus Webb. Received some points as to the way and started out into the old neighborhood of birth and early life-five miles distant. Here and round about reside a large number of relatives and brethren too numerous to mention. At an early day the gospel found its way here and was received by my father, his brother, and others who became its defenders. It has had opposition all these years but the good seed remains and the leaven works. Uncle Andrew Kelley resides here, one of two of the surviving brothers of the old famity. He is known for his sterling manhood, industry and strict honesty. He has a large family of fine repute-all in the faith. Whatever course may be pursued by the younger generations they can point with pride to a worthy ancestry. Their word was as good as a bank account, but unfortunately were all poor. By the way, can a man begin at the stump of things and soon achieve a fortune by an honest course in an honest way? But this was a poor country to begin in.

The Saints have a church building and a large number of communicants here. Among the chief supporters are Elisha and Daniel Webb, old schoolmates, Thomas Kelley, Richard and Joseph Smith with a large number of relatives and friends. They hold their meetings regularly. I preached for them two Sabbaths and two Saturday evenings with fair liberty and encouraged by large audiences. What a world of young people! It is encouraging to be able to draw, but I incline to the opinion that it was my father's good record that brought out the crowd here. It is said that "A wise son makes a glad father," and it is equally true that a reputable father cheers the heart of a son. The good seed of the kingdom is firmly planted in the hearts of many in this community, both old and young, and under more favorable circumstances and surroundings would shine out to better advantage. May they hold on to the good, and with opportunity scatter into distant fields. Just a few miles from the Saints chapel at Evergreen, in a little log cabin on the hill, is the place where the writer began his career on the planet called Earth. Of course the little spot was viewed with interest by me as memories of the past crowded in upon the mind. Birth and death, the beginning and the end of man in this probation, become points of interest to every one. The house was gone but the ground on which it stood remains. No one could get away with that. The same tree stands by the wet weather spring from which we used water which coursed down the rocky way. Other marks of identity still remain. This was a good place to see how far back memory would go. I mentioned a circumstance to my cousin, older than myself, that I rembered very distinctly and which she also remembered, and on computing the time and distance back found that I was about two years old. I thought this was pretty good considering that I was born on the first day of April. The occurence was at corn planting. I had been cautioned not to touch the vessel containing the seed corn, and it was placed where it was thought to be out of my reach. When the parties who were planting had made their round that vessel was upside down and the corn on the ground. No one had been there but me and of course I was the main point of attack. Warm words and warmer applications placed on various parts in order to shape me up for the future made such an impression that I have never forgotten it. All of that ado just because I developed early a precocity to look into things. But I got a tremendous set back that day. A year later we moved a mile and a half distance. There stands the old house on the old homestead yet. When about four years old I was out in the "clearing" near the house with my father. He was felling trees and piling brush but chanced to lay the ax down and stepped away a short distance when an impulse seized me to try to be a man, and I raised the big sharp ax as high as I could and when it came down it took off the end of my left big toe. The blood streamed for twelve or fifteen inches. Father's attention was soon attracted and he came and carried me to the house. I was the center of attention and received general sympathy from all present until I was easy and began to enjoy myself pretty well, when my two older brothers struck up:

"Joe cut off his big toe,
And hung it up to dry;
All the girls began to laugh,
But Joe began to cry."

This was too much, adding insult to injury, and I was ready to carry the war into Africa at once. These samples of interesting incidents in my early life will doubtless suffice for the present and I will await bids for a full and complete biography.

I made it my home at cousin E. Webb's and was kindly and pleasantly cared for by himself and his excellent wife and family. Indeed all of the relatives, neighbors and Saints showed me marked kindness and respect for which I return sincere thanks. May they continue to be worthy and commendable Saints, which is the highest attainment that can be reached by man, that I know anything about.

Monday the 29th I left Tunnel Hill for home. Arrived in Coldwater, Michigan, at two P. M. on the 30th, and found Brn. George Corless, E. Whaley and C. Scott in waiting for Brn. F. M. Sheehy, Richard Evans and W. J. Smith, who were expected on the same train. Meetings had been announced for those expected, but they did not come. I filled appointments on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings with good audiences in attendance.

It is like going home to call to see the Saints at Coldwater. Then it was pleasant to be in the presence of my old associate and co-laborer, Brc. C. Scott. May his shadow never grow less!

I was sorry to learn that a personal friend and a staunch supporter of the faith, Bro. William Lockerby was quite ill. I found him about, but his condition is critical. May be recover soon.

May the 5th I divided the time with Bro. M. H. Bond at Kirtland, Ohio, he preaching in the morning, and I in the evening, with good audiences in attendance. Home folks, Saints and people in community are well. Bright warm days have come, and buds, flowers, green grasses and singing birds indicate that spring is here.

Busily, W. H. Kelley.

NORTH FORSTER, Australia, April 7th. Editors Herald:-We are not slumbering in this part of the Lord's vineyard. Although we have not been communicating with the Herald, yet we teel a gratitude to our heavenly Master for the fulness of the gospel brought by Brn. J. F. Burton and T. W. Smith and others. May God be with them to the end. Our branch was organized in 1886, by Elder J. F. Burton. We then numbered twenty six, but we can now count fifty, so you see, dear brethren, that the Lord is working with his people. Although we are young in the gospel of Christ, we can say that we know that it is of God, and that the signs follow the faithful. For, speaking of myself, I have seen some of God's love and power. I was called to administer to a brother Argent, of the Nambuccera branch, who was paralyzed in his limbs. I received a letter from him some time after, and this is what he says: "I feel a great deal better since you administered to me. I am able to walk and do a little work now, and I know it was by the power of God that I was healed, and I feel thankful."

We all felt the parting hour very much when Br. and Sr. Smith took their departure from Forster. But we feel to say, God's will be done, not ours; knowing that it was for the best to the work of the Lord. However, it was not long before we were again blessed by having Br. and Sr. Wight with us. They are doing a good work for the Lord. May His Spirit be with them, for we need good, faithful and spiritual men.

Australia is a large and hard field, and the harvest is ripe. So, dear Saints, remember us in your prayers that the Lord may fit and qualify the young ministry of Australia, that they may stand in their lot and fill their office and calling as faithful men of God. For the Lord demands faithful men-a sluggard will he not uphold. We need a good few just such men as Brn. T. W. Smth, Burton, Wight and all the rest that I have heard preach the latter day faith. The Lord is remembering Zion, for the set time for her favor has come. He is giving signs in all parts of the earth. In a letter received from Sweden, written by my father, it says that a great fire took place in that land recently, and burned many cities to the ground, and left thousands of people homeless; also in Australia we had a great hailstorm during last year, destroying the crops. So the Lord is leaving his testimony upon all the continents of the earth that the people may know the time is come. Let us be ready when the Lord shall call, that we may be saved with all the happy ones of Zion.

Your humble servant, CHARLES A. LOVING.

ADDRESSES. E. C. Briggs, Shenandoah, Iowa. The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE WITNESS OF THE SPIRIT.

DEAR HERALD:-The Savior said, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again." This saying has caused not only Nicodemus to marvel, but many others have queried in this age of the world, and doubtless in other ages where they had access to this declaration. "Ye must be born again," suggests to the mind, as shown by the question of Nicodemus, the first birth; and the natural man wonders how a second birth can take place. The interrogator of Jesus wondered, which Tesus perceving, informed him of the nature of the birth, and the mode of the same, that he had reference to. He says, "Except a man be born of water, and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of flesh, is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit, is spirit." Then comes this text, "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth; so is every one who is born of the Spirit."

It seems to the writer, by these scriptures, that the Savior wished to convey to the mind of Nicodemus that man was of a dual nature, and that both natures had to be born, one of water and the other of the Spirit. The spirit was to be born of the Spirit, and the body of water. The birth of water (or being brought forth out of the water) we can see performed before our eyes when a candidate is immersed, and comes out of the water, and knows from whence he came, and whither he tends, but the birth of the Spirit we can not see, neither do we know its origin, or destination. The sacred writer says, "There is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding."—Job 32:8. Paul says, "For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man that is in him; even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God." We perceive then that it is the spiritual part of man which has understanding, which knows, and this is proven by experience, that when the spirit leaves the body, the body is dead; as James says, "The body without the spirit is dead." The dead body has eyes, but sees not; it hath ears but it hears not: mouth but is dumb; brains but they have lost their power to act;—the living, thinking, acting, entity, is gone. The sacred writers, speaking of man, sometimes refer to the spirit in man, as man; sometimes to the body as man; as Paul speaks about the inner and the outward man, and Job speaks about man that is born of woman, and asks, "If [that] man die shall he live again?" (Job 14) but the whole man is spoken of in the text.

The writer can readily conceive why the birth of the Spirit should take place, viz.: that we should partake of the divine nature and thus become the children of God, but he has often queried why a person should be baptized, or born of water, but never came to the conclusion to reject it so long as he believed the scriptures; for it is there declared to be commanded of God, and he has always considered that God the Creator had the right to command the creature, and that all His commands are essential to salvation. In this inquisitiveness we perceive that we do not degenerate from our common parent, Adam, for it is written, (Inspired Translation): "And our father Adam spake unto the Lord and said, Why is it that men must repent and be baptized in water?" Here is the father of all the inhabitants of the earth asking a very pertinent question of the Lord that not only affected him and his immediate posterity, but all of his posterity to the end of time, for all are on a common level under the effects of the fall. The Lord condescends to answer him, and after first making known unto him that through the atonement made by the Son of God, the original sin was cancelled, making his children as well as himself free from blame in that transaction, he proceeds to answer the question, saying: "Inasmuch as thy children are conceived in sin, even so, when they begin to grow up sin conceiveth in their hearts and they taste the bitter, that they may know how to prize the good. And it is given them to know good from evil; wherefore they are agents unto themselves. And I have given unto you another law and commandment; wherefore teach it unto your children, that all men every where must repent or they can in no wise enter the kingdom of God. For no unclean thing can dwell in his presence; for in the language of Adam, Man of Holiness is his name; and the name of the Only Begotten is the Son of Man, even Jesus Christ, a righteous judge who shall come in the meridian of time. Therefore I give unto you a commandment to teach these things freely unto your children, saying that by reason of transgression cometh the fall, which fall bringeth death; and inasmuch as ye were born into the world by water and blood, and the spirit which I have made. and so became of dust a living soul; even so ye must be born again into the kingdom of heaven, of water and of the Spirit, and be cleansed by blood, even the blood of mine Only Begotten, that ye might be sanctified from all sin, and enjoy the words of eternal life in this world, and eternal life in the world to come; even immortal glory. For by the water ye keep the commandment; by the Spirit ye are justified, and by the blood ye are sanctified. Therefore it is given to abide in you, the record of heaven, the Comforter, the peacable things of immortal glory, the truth of all things, that which quickeneth all things, which maketh alive all things, that which knoweth all things, and hath all power according to wisdom, mercy, truth, justice and judgment. And now behold I say unto you, This is the plan of salvation unto all men, through the blood of mine Only Begotten, who shall come in the meridian of time."

Reader, we have here the Lord's answer not only to Adam's question, but the plan of salvation is given in full, for the Lord declares, "This is the plan of salvation to all men," etc. He commands that these things shall be taught to Adam's posterity freely,—"That by reason of transgression cometh the fall, which fall bringeth death, and inasmuch as ye were born into the world by water and by blood, and the spirit which I have made, and so became of dust a living soul, even so ye must be born again into the kingdom of heaven, of water and the Spirit and be cleansed by the blood of mine Only Begotten." etc.

From the foregoing the writer deducts the following: That inasmuch as the first birth was the result of the creative power of God, and that those born of that power were the children of God (all infants through the atonement of Christ are whole from the foundation of the world, and born also by that power, are entitled to be called the children of God; the Savior seemed to endorse the same in his language, "For of such is the kingdom of heaven") but through transgression died, or ceased to be the children of God. as all their children do when they grow up and allow sin to conceive in their hearts and lead them to sin or rebel against their Creator, even so there is a necessity of being born again, and by that same power, even of God, in order to be entitled to the relationship of children of God. The manner or mode that God hath appointed for this birth to take place, if executed according to his command, must accomplish the desired end. The Lord said unto our common parent, "Ye must be born again into the kingdom of heaven, of water and of the Spirit, and cleansed by the blood of mine Only Begotten." Jesus said he came not to do his own will. but the will of the Father who sent him, and he consequently declared the same as his Father did in the beginning, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he can not enter the kingdom of heaven," and, "God so loved the world that he gave his Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life;" and thus the Father meant that this should be the plan of salvation to all men. To be born of God a second time, his power must be exercised. It matters not whether God acts immediately himself, or delegates that power to man to officiate in the premises, the result is the same. It is stated in the first chapter of Hebrews, second verse, that God delegated his power to his Son to create the worlds; by which we understand all pertaining to those worlds, which would include the creation of man. Christ delegated his power or authority to men: "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost;" and he declares that he received his authority from the Father, for the Father had sent him. So that when the disciples officiated in the birth of water, or baptism, it was just the same as though God himself per-formed the work. We perceive how strictly the Son teaches in the meridian of of time what his Father taught in the beginning. The Son says, "Go teach all nations;" the Father says, "Teach unto your children freely that they must repent." When the Savior commenced preaching he said, "Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," and commanded his disciples to do the same. The prerogative to baptize with the Holy Ghost, according to John, belonged to Christ. He says, "I indeed baptize you with water ... but he [Christ] sha'll baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire;" and yet according to the New Testament history, he would not perform his part of this birth until a certain rite or ordinance was attended to, viz., the laying on of hands by those authorized of him to act in the same. Witness when Philip had been preaching at Samaria and had baptized some by water, but they did not receive the Holy Ghost until Peter and John, sent from Jerusalem for the express purpose, had laid their hands on and prayed for them, (Acts 8th chapter). Also when Saul had been led to Damascus blind, Ananias being sent to him by Christ went, "And putting his hands on him said, Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight and be filled with the Holy Ghost."-Acts 9th chapter. Also in the 19th chapter of Acts we have an account of certain disciples who, having been deceived by some one not having authority from God so that they were baptized by them, being undeceived by Paul, who taught them the way of God as it is in Christ Jesus, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus; "And when Paul had laid his hands on them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues and prophesied."

Professing to be authorized of God by the revelation of his will to them, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints preach the same means of adoption into the kingdom of heaven in this the dispensation of the fulness of times, as did the Father in the beginning, and the Son in the meridian of time, We declare that, the meridian of time, according to the Scriptures, and the revelations of God to us in these last days, there is no other way, that there is no other name given whereby they can be saved, but the name of Jesus Christ. Name, signifies authority to act, and no man can officiate in the ordinances of the house of God, except the Lord has authorized him to act; if he does, that which is performed maketh not a child of God, therefore is not entitled to the heirship of a son of God.

All doctrine that claims to come from God, can be tested by the rule that Jesus gave: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself." How shall we know that we are the children of God, after performing all that you have been writing about? the reader may reasonably inquire. Paul answers this question directly in Romans 8: 15, 16: "For ye have not received the Spirit of bondage again to fear, but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry. Abba, Father. The Spirit itself beareth with our spirits that we are the children of God." If the Spirit itself beareth witness, it is not received second hand, we receive it direct, and being that power which "Searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God," as Paul declares in 1 Corinthians, 2d chapter, it knoweth that whereof it testifies, and being the great witness of God to testify of Him, and of His Son, Jesus Christ, whatsoever it testifies is the truth, for it is the "Spirit of truth." We have seen that the Father declared unto Adam that this Comforter, or Spirit of truth, quickeneth, maketh alive, and knoweth all things, and hath all power according to wisdom, mercy, truth, justice and judg-ment. The Savior declared it would "teach all things," etc., and Paul says, as before quoted, "The things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God," "for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God."

We see by these Scriptures not only the fice work of the Spirit in its extensive capacity, but that it is the agency by, and through which we know the things of God. John in his 1st epistle, 5th chapter, speaking of this great witness says: "And it is the Spirit that beareth witness, because the Spirit is truth. For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word and the Holy Ghost; and these three are one. And there are three that bear witness in earth, the Spirit, the water and the blood, and these three agree in one." We see that the matchless "three" bear record in heaven, but one of the three bears witness on earth, with the water and the blood. What does it bear witness to? Paul says it bears witness with our spirits that we are the children of God. But without the witness of the water, and the blood, it could not witness to that fact, for, "By the water ye keep the commandment, by the Spirit ye are justified, and by the blood ye are sanctified" or made clean from sin; and this being the case, the Spirit beareth record in heaven. And there is a record kept there called the "Lamb's Book of Life," and in it are recorded the names of those who are born of God, accepted of both the Father and the Son, and this acceptance is made known unto those who are born of God, by that one of the three that beareth witness on earth.

John says: "If we receive the witness of men the witness of God is greater," etc. Truly is the witness of God greater than men, even as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are his ways above our ways, and his thoughts above our thoughts. If we do the will of God, we are entitled to know of the doctrine, not guess, not be contented with an undefinable impression, but a certain definite knowledge, and each child of God that receives this knowledge can not bestow it upon his fellow man; he can only bear testimony to him of its reception, for "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness to him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."—I Cor. 2:14.

The Holy Spirit, according to the Scriptures, has several ways of making known unto God's children their acceptance with him. The apostle in the 12th chapter of 1st Corinthians enumerates these ways as follows: "Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant. Ye know that ve were Gentiles, carried away unto these dumb idols, even as ye were led. [Were in an unregenerate state.] Wherefore, I give you to understand that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Tesus accursed; and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost. Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. And there are differences of administrations but the same Lord. And there are diversities of operations, but the same God which worketh all in all. But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit; to another the working of miracles; to anther prophecy; to another discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues: but all these worketh that one and selfsame Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles." etc., etc.

The apostle goes on and illustrates the body, or Church of Christ, by a perfect human body, and says that one member of that body can not say to another, "I have no need of thee," but reasons that all the members are necessary to accomplish the object of its creation, and says: "So also is the body of Christ;" so that we perceive that the apostle argues that the members of the body of Christ could not say one to another, "We have no need of thee," not even to the weakest, or most uncomely member, and winds up with saying, "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues."

We see here that the apostle, in summing up his reasoning about the members of the body or Church of Christ, says that God who set the members of the human body in it as it hath pleased him, also set the members in the body of Christ as it pleased him, each one possessing the gifts that the Spirit divided to them as he would, to some the apostolic gift, some the prophetic, some to teach, some to work miracles, some the gifts of healing, etc., etc. If we ask Bro. Paul what God caused this organization to be established for, he will answer, as he did the Ephesians in the 4th chapter of his epistle to them: "And he gave some apostles; and some prophets; and some evangelists; and some pastors and teachers: for the perfecting of the saints, [body or people of God] for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

The saints were imperfect in those days, as is proven by the quotation under consideration, as well as by the Savior's exhortation, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect;" and by the exhortation of Paul, on another occasion: "Let us go on unto perfection;" hence the body or church of Christ was necessary then.

The work of the ministry was necessary, for the gospel was to be preached in all the world. The edifying of the body of Christ, the building up, strengthening, encouraging and establishing the people of God, so liable to temptations and trials from the foes of God and man, was very necessary. "O yes," say our religious contemporaries, "they were necessary then, but not so now."

If that church organization is not necessary now, then the condition of the world must have changed, Adam's posterity must have ceased to be under the effects of the fall, those claiming to be the people of God must be perfected, God must have changed the church organization, and the plan of salvation is consequently changed. What a dilemma, friend reader, those who take this position place themselves in!

There is not a sin in all the black catalogue, but what human nature is guilty of committing now, as well as then. Pro-fessed churches of God are far from being perfect; instead of being united, they are divided in church organization and doctrine; instead of trying to edify and build up, they are trying to tear down. They profess that the work of the ministry is necessary to be performed, and yet deny the necessity of the inspiration of God, and say God has not spoken from the heavens for upwards of eighteen centuries! They by this position virtually say they are not called of God to act in his name, and that they carry on things (although professedly in the name of the Lord,) by man's wisdom; called, qualified and sent forth of man. "For what man knoweth the things of a man save the spirit of man that is in him: even so the things of God knoweth no man but the Spirit of God."-I Cor. 2.

If the things of God are not known by man, but only by the Spirit of God, and that Spirit is prohibited from making them known, no matter from what cause, the writer in all seriousness asks how those that deny inspiration, or direct revelation from God in these days, can know the things of God, can know that they are called of God, that their preaching is acceptable to him? or how can their converts know that they are children of God?

The great hue and cry is raised by professed Christians in this age of the world against the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, because we teach that God does reveal his will to his people now, as anciently. Do they realize that all progress in human education is done by that very principle—the principle of revelation? The apostle so understood it, hence the expression "For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man that is in him."

If the spirit of man, as we have seen, is the thinking, knowing, intelligent part of man, knows of anything that his fellow-man does not, how is that fellowman to know it unless the one in possession of the secret makes it known, or reveals it to him? The world could not get along without this principle of revelation. The child, or the man goes to school to learn that which he does not know, to have something revealed to him (whether it be the alphabet, or the most abstruse problem in mathematics,) by those who are capable of imparting the required knowledge, and this knowledge imparted is a revelation.

The artist, merchant, mechanic, etc., all serve an apprenticeship of longer or shorter duration, to be instructed, or to have the mysteries of the profession which they have chosen to follow revealed to them; and so might we go on illustrating the necessity of this great principle in all our worldly affairs. Where then the consistency of making such a bugaboo of the necessity of revelation in spiritual things, or that which relates to that life which is as superior to this, as eternity is to three-score and ten years.

Paul, understanding that man was so much in need of this principle in order to know how to proceed in things pertaining to this life, knew also that those helpless beings would certainly need it to operate in making known unto them the things of God, or those things so necessary to know to fit them for eternal life; for "No man knoweth the things of God, but the Spirit of God," consequently the Spirit will have to reveal them to him if he gets to know them at all. But before they are revealed to him (or that he knows of the doctrine) he will have to do the Father's will, and that, we have seen, is to repent of his sins against God, and be born of water and of the Spirit, and be cleansed by the blood of Jesus Christ.

Then he is made clean from sin, the old man of sin is dead, a new creature, a son of God is born; old things have passed away, and all things become new; he receives of the Spirit of God that bears witness to him that he is a child of God, heir of God, and joint heir with Jesus Christ. Becoming a child of God, he enjoys the great favor of being led by the Spirit of God; "For," says the apostle, "as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God;" and if led by that Spirit that knoweth all things, and teacheth all things that are of God, there is no danger of falling into error. It is only when men depart from the teachings of that Spirit, seeking to become a law unto themselves, that there is danger of being led into error and lose their own souls.

That there has been a great departure from the teachings of that Spirit, is made manifest in the rejection of its teachings by those who profess to be the people of God as represented in the so called orthodox churches of to-day. When men tell us that the organization by God of the many members of his church into one body, each with their spiritual gift divided to them as the Spirit would are no longer necessary, they deny the Scriptures which were given by the inspiration of God, which testify that he is unchangeable, without the shadow of turning, is no respecter of persons; and virtually assert to the contrary, that he has changed the organization of His church, has changed the mode (gospel) of being inducted into it, and left those organizations, styled the Churches of God, (plural), to be guided by men instead of the Spirit of God; and oh! inconsistency, they tell us these things and assert that God has not spoken to men, neither by his own voice, nor by his Spirit, nor by angelic ministration for lo, these eighteen hundred years. Query: How do they know it if God has not made it known to them? They have acted consistently in one thing, that is, having changed the organization of the Church or Kingdom of God, they have changed the gospel of Christ, and consequently it is not the gospel of the kingdom, and being not the gospel of the kingdom, is not the gospel that Jesus said should be preached in all the world for a witness before the end should come, but may be one adapted to their organization. In this there is a show of consistency. They have acted consistently in denying that God has not communicated anything to man for the above length of time, in preaching for the gospel that which never came from him, and he not having given them authority to preach in his name, they preach by self-constituted authority, a man-made gospel. If they deny its being a man-made gospel, they have only another doctrine to fall back on, and that is the "doctrine of devils," for there are only three doctrines spoken of in Scripture. "The doctrine of Christ," "doctrines of men," and "doctrines of devils," and the doctrine of the devil has always been contradictory, or in direct opposition to that of God, as for instance, in the garden of Eden God said: "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." The evil one said: "In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt not surely die." only a little word's difference, "not," but it comprehended a great deal-an opposition to the teaching of God.

When Jesus Christ sent his disciples forth saying, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, and he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," etc., etc., (Mark 16), and men tell us that baptism is not a saving ordinance, we are led to enquire whose doctrine do those men teach? When Jesus has said it is written: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," and again: "Teach them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you," etc., and men tell us that any of his commandments are non-essential, we ask again, whose doctrine do they teach? Having seen that Jesus, who came to do the will of his Father, had respect to that will when he found it written in God's word, and told the tempter so, that man must "live by every word that proceedeth out of

as to command his disciples to teach all to whom they were sent (all the world) to "observe all things" that he had commanded them, and that Paul, an apostle of Christ, said in Hebrews six, in enumerating the principles of the doctrine of Christ that "the laying on of hands" was one of them. and reading in Acts 19 an account of his practicing that ordinance, that those whom he had baptized in water might receive the Holy Ghost, receiving the endorsement of God as manifested in the candidates receiving the gift of tongues and prophecy, and the disciples at Jerusalem sending Peter and John to Samaria to officiate in the ordinance of the "laying on of hands" that those Samaritans who had been baptized in water by Philip, and had much joy before they received the Holy Ghost, might receive the baptism of the Spirit, and greater joy in the acknowledgement of heaven to them, of their adoption into the family of God, and men professing to teach the doctrine of Christ, and entirely ignoring that ordinance, we ask, whose doctrine are they teaching? When Peter, commissioned by his Lord to preach the gospel, did so on the Pentecostal day, (Acts 2), and in answering the enquiry of those convicted ones of what they should do, said, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins," etc., and men say that baptism is not for the remission of sins," but is an outward sign of an inward and spiritual are led again to ask, whose doctrine are they preaching? One of the greatest evidences in proof of the necessity of the guidance of the Holy Spirit, is in the contention and division, multiplied division in the so called Churches of God; for if instructed and guided by the one great Teacher, such things would not obtain, for it being the Spirit of Truth would not contradict itself, and therefore would teach the same doctrine for the doctrine of Christ all the time. John and his epistle to the "elect lady" says: "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you and bring not this doctrine [of Christ | receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed. For he that biddeth him God speed is a partaker of his evil deeds."

the mouth of God," and was so particular

We perceive, kind reader, that those who transgress, depart from or abide not in the doctrine of Christ can claim no relationship with God, they have not God, are not heirs of God, and can not have any claim on that inheritance which is to be parcelled out to all God's faithful children when "The meek shall inherit the earth," when "Every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree," etc., the title of which can not be disputed, much less wrested from them, for it will come from him who has redeemed and purchased it by his blood, who will reign over all the earth; for "his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." But on the contrary, all who abide in the doctrine of Christ will have the Father and the Son-have God for their Father, Jesus Christ-as our elder brother, be heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ. And in that is comprehended the highest reward that God, the possessor of all things, is able to giveeternal life, or life with the eternal God. The deeds of those who abide not in the doctrine of Christ are by the apostle accused of being evil, and we are not allowed to bid them Godspeed in such, lest we come under condemnation. reason that we would come under condemnation for aiding and they for teaching other than the doctrine of Christ, is very plain to the writer. The doctrine of Christ was established for the salvation of fallen man, by Infinite wisdom, who has the disposition of that salvation, and who hath said: "Though heaven and earth shall pass away, my word shall not pass away until all shall be fulfilled;" and hath said, upon certain conditions will I bestow eternal life, therefore, they who teach salvation upon any other terms are deceiving the people, leading them astray, and causing them to lose that salvation appointed of God to all who obey him. And though they may do it ignorantly, yet their deeds have an evil tendency, and when they do it knowingly, their deeds are to be the more condemned.

Our opponents tell us that "The Bible is a sufficient guide," meaning by this that there is no necessity for present revelation from God. That assertion seems to the writer to be paradoxical. Taking the Bible as a guide as we have shown, it teaches us to expect present revelation, not only that we may detect error when presented to us by our fellow men, but that we may know the things of God when presented to us. We have quoted, "Even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God." The following verse says: "Now we have not received the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given us of God." If our Christian friends had received that Spirit by which we know the things of God, they would never say this command of God is not a saving ordinance, that it is non-essential that man can be saved by faith, when that guide they profess to go by says to the contrary. If they had received that Spirit which guides into all truth they would never have rejected the church that God had established, setting the members in it as it pleased him, which members compose the one body of Christ, and have set up upwards of a thousand different bodies, each claiming to be that body, when that guide spoken of (Bible) says: "For by one Spirit are we baptized into one body." -- Cor. 12. And instead of being guided by the Bible which says: "There is one Lord, one faith, and one baptism," it is evident that darkness, doubt, guess so, hope so, has been their guide. Their minds have been darkened, and having no claim on that Holy Spirit, and denying the necessity of its help to give them a knowledge of the things of God, they have followed the dictates of their own spirits, or some other one, and thus spiritual "darkness covers the earth." And this condition of things abundantly proves the position of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, which claims that there has been a departure from the ancient faith, and consequently a necessity of restoration.

We wish to examine briefly, before closing this article, the quotation just referred to: "Now we have received, not the Spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God, that we may know the things that are freely given us of God." By this language we understand that the Holy Spirit is to abide with us, as the Father said in the beginning, and the Son in the meridian of time, and one of the purposes of its abiding with us is, that we may "know the things that are freely given us of God."

We have seen that when Jesus ascended on high, "He led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men;" "He gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers." -Ephesians 4th chapter; and we have seen that the Spirit divided several other gifts unto the members of the body of Christ. Here then are some of the gifts, given to to the members of Christ's body; and that Spirit we have received is the one that has given them and can certainly testify to its own work. It can certainly testify to the calling of an apostle of God, if one comes to us professing to be called of him to that holy calling.

If a prophet should come to us in the name of the Lord, that Spirit with us could certainly testify whether he had called him or not, and in the exercise of any gift by any of the members, if we so live as to keep that Spirit as a constant companion, we can know whether they be of God, or not, and be able to detect all spurious ones that come from beneath, and need not fear the power of men or devils, for God will take care of his own work, and of all who serve him. And oh, how rich is the condition of the children of God, having both the Father and the Son! Can they desire any more? If they do, can they obtain any more? for the Creator of all things is possessor of all things, and the apostle says that with his Son he will freely give us all things, of course if we continue faithful to the end.

We must abide in the doctrine, not run for a season, and then turn from it. We must fight the good fight of faith like unto our brother Paul, and finish our course with joy, to be entitled to the crown; we must be willing to suffer with him, if we expect to reign with him. "For now we see throgh a glass darkly, but then face to face: now I know in part, but then shall I know, even as also I am known." The unregenerate have no claim to this reign, for "the carnal mind is enmity against God." "Marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again."

E. STAFFORD.

LAMONI, Iowa, February 2d, 1887.

C. R. Duncan, Box 70, Blue Rapids, Marshall Co., Kan. J. H. Lake, Kirtland, Lake co., Ohio. Willard J. Smith, Box 153, Buchanan, Mich.

Selections.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

How can one be keenly sensitive to whatever is not as it should be, and yet not critical, cynical or censorious?

We all believe that the Judge of all the earth will do right.

Still, notwithstanding that belief, it is not easy, at times, to possess an unperturbed mind when witnessing or thinking about grievous wrongs. If you have been "let off" yourself from certain bad tendencies, you can be hopeful of others.

Here is the secret of being keenly alive to wrong doing and all error on the one hand, vet charitable to the last degree on the other. As long as we are not "out of the woods" ourselves, we feel chagrined to see our companions still wandering in a maze. At a fire, or when a man is drowning, or at any like emergency, the impatient exclamations "Why don't they do something?" comes from those, and only those, who are not doing their full duty. If every thought and muscle were strained to relieve the distress there would be no time nor mind to note the delinquencies of others. The mistake of doing little or nothing in order to have time to judge others is a bad one, and I I must be on my guard now, lest I use the pen in lieu of the sword.

As I understand the example and words of our Master, we are to imitate him by going forth to battle against the spirits of

The government of the world looks to me in this way. Society is chaotic. All the animal and vegetable world is chaotic. Everything is chaotic but God. I want to have a better incentive for action than simply to say, "Well, we are in for it and must make the best of it, there is no use in disputing the inevitable." I want something better than the logic of despair. I want to look into this chaos and be able to do so without any blinking at the possibilities of trouble ahead for me and mine. I want to rejoice that I live, and not only that, but look every possible future contingency squarely in the face and not flinch. I must do so actually and without the least qualms that my "brave" attitude may be put on and not genuine.

The truth that order comes out of confusion, health after sickness, light after darkness and every one of the ten thousand illustrations of the fact that good succeeds evil, all help me to lift up the head and rejoice.

Still this is not enough, for I am conscious that before long, my sun goes down never to rise, my sickness does not yield and the ten thousand hopeful facts and theories are cut short by that one brief, quick, terrible monosyllable "dead."

But, setting that climax aside: when apparently a long way this side of it, the petty annoyances of life as well as its more serious ills are hard to bear with equanimity notwithstanding the philosophy of

For years I believed in human testimony that men had arisen from the dead with new powers; and that notably Jesus Christ had done so. This gave me considerable satisfaction and I was in certain respects happy in it. There was, however, this fact to face, I was in many ways getting worse and worse in my private secret life and all my faith in Jesus Christ only showed me what a hypocrite I was.

At length, through confession—out and out confession-of the dastardly state of my private life at the age of thirty-five, I felt a power come into me which made me sure that Jesus Christ's resurrection life was in me. From that day to this, I can scarcely awaken enough interest in the dogmas which I formerly preached with such vim and gusto, to turn my hand over to save them.

Some of those dogmas went like my former habits, I knew not how or whither. Others seemed too trite to "harp upon" any more.

The grand thing, however, was that I knew by a conscious inspiration that Jesus Christ was living in me, and that the new immortal nature was already implanted. It makes no difference to me how much you assail what I know to be living truth, I am glad to have it combatted. It shows that it is appreciated.

The fruit tells. The names of things are nothing unless the reality backs them.

Now if you wish to know how to walk out alone into midnight darkness, take the words of Jesus Christ as veritable truths to go on, and let the traditions go, you will find a power equal to any emergency.-7. C., in Chinese Times.

WORTH KNOWING.

In the parable known as that of the sheep and the goats, the ordinary translations of it, and consequently much of the point of it should be corrected. Our Lord's words are, in a literal rendering of the Greek, "As a shepherd limits off repeatedly the sheep and the goats from the kids." Unfortunately, in English we have no nearer generic term to include the sheep and goats (as the Hebrew, Chinese and other languages have,) than small cattle. The truthful presentation of the matter is that great companies of sheep and goats are represented as being limited off from time to time, from the little useless kids of the flock. If you can get such a picture in your mind, it will help to a better understanding of the whole parable.—Sel.

Conserence Minutes.

NORTH EAST MISSOURI.

Conference convened at Bevier, Missouri, Apr. 20th, J. T. Williams, president, pro. tem ; J. Richards, clerk. Branches reported: Bevier, 113, many scattered; Salt River, 18,8 scattered, 1 died; Renick and Hannibal branches, reports rejected and returned for correction. Bishop's Agent, J. T. Richards, reported: due agent last report, 76 cts; received since, $16; paid out $16; due 76 cts. Audited, found correct, and adopted. Elders reported: E. Rowland, J. McKiernan, J. T. Williams and J. Taylor by letter. Priest, Mark Surridge, and teacher J. T. Richards reported.

Resolved: That Elder C. Perry take the oversight of Salt River Saints according to their request; also that it is the request of this conference that Bro J. R. Lambert send an active el-der into this district, as Bro. McKiernan has been released; the secretary to send a copy of the resolutions to J. R. Lambert.

According to the request of Bro. J. T. Richards he was released from acting as district secretary and Bro. J. T. Williams appointed to act. Preaching by J. T. Williams and J. McKiernan. President John Taylor and vice president Richard Jones were sustained; also Bishop's agent, J. T. Richards. Adjourned to Bevier, August 31st.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE.

The Saints who live in the vicinity of Irvington, California, are hereby informed that meetings are being held at the Saints' Chapel at Irvington, on the second Sunday of each month. Sacramental meeting at II A. M., preaching at I:30 P. M. C. A. PARKIN.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The district conference of the London district of the Canada Mission will be held in Garfield branch, Dufferin county, Ontario, June 15th and 16th, 1889. All those coming by train will please come to Grand Valley station, Luther Tp. The Saints' Church is three miles from the station, but all trains will be met by teams on Friday, the 14th, to convey Saints to church and lodging. Those coming before Friday will send notice to Bro. John Taylor or myself, and will be met at JOHN SHIELDS, the station.

Sec'y of Dist.

The Far West district conference will convene on Saturday, June 8th, at ten A. M., 1889, with the German Stewartsville branch. All who come on Saturday morning will be met with teams, both at Stewartsville and Clarksdale

CHARLES P. FAUL, Dist. Sec.

PASTORAL.

To the Ministry of the Pacific Slope, Greeting: —Dear brethren—co laborers in the cause of our Divine Master: Press onward in the cause of Christ and victory is ours. Be not cast down nor discouraged for God is on our side and Christ is our Advocate. Clouds may hover over us and trials seem severe, but glorious will the result be if we are faithful to our callings.

Reports from all along the line indicate that we are gaining ground. I heartily and cheerfully commend your past sacrifice and work, and wish to assure you of my confidence in your future integrity, zeal and wisdom. Let us sustain each other by confidence and prayer, never for a moment giving place to jealousy or distrust, and then will God approve.

Until the financial condition improves none of us will be able to travel much, but let us see to it that the interests of the cause suffer not where we are. Changes of appointment of General Conference necessitates a change of arrangements, so, until further notice, Elder J. F. Burton will be in charge of California as a "field of labor," and Elder Thomas Daley of Nevada and My address is, Box 695. San Bernardino, California. In bonds of peace.

HEMAN C. SMITH,

President Pacific Slope Mission. VALLEY CENTER, Cal, May 16th, 1889.

BLESSING OF CHILDREN.

On Sunday, May 19th, 1889, by Elders M. H. Forscutt and George Z. Redfield (the former spokesman in each case, by request). Charles H. Redfield, born December 6th, 1880; May V. Redfield, born January 10th, 1882; Earl N. Redfield, born March 5th, 1885; and Roy R. Redfield, born October 30th, 1886 These four are all children of George Z. and Imogene I. Redfield. They were all born at or near Shenandoah, and blessed at the house of Bro. Redfield (the former property of Governor Furnass), near Brownville.

Born at Bromfield, Nebraska, to Mr. Cornelius and Sr. Eva Perry, on April 1st, 1889, a son. Blessed by Elders M. H. Forscutt and George Z. Redfield, at Brownville, Nebraska, on Mry 19th, 1889, and named George Z.

MARRIED.

SHAWL-KENNEDY.-At Hutchinson, Colora-

SHAWL—KENNEDY.—At Hutchinson, Colorado, May 15th, 1889, James L. Shawl and Ina A. Kennedy, by Elder James Caffall.

Ina, as daughter, sister, friend,
And church member, long we thee have known,
For seeds of kindness in our hearts thou hast sown.
Friends and strangers thy kindness have shared,
And thou the name of thy God hath feared.
And now, Sr. Ina, we bid thee adleu,
But for thee and thy husband ever will pray,
May God bless and make thee a kind, loving wife,
Thy husband to help, cheer and bless,
Through life's checkered scenes; and when Thine earthly career may end, Thine earthly career may end, May God thy guardian spirits send, Conducting both to realms of bliss, And thus from evil may God always thee defend.

DIED.

MANEE. - At Hartford, Michigan, May 8th, 1889, Bro. Henry Manee, aged 59 years, 2 months and 5 days, of paralysis. Bro. Manee was baptized into the Reorganized Church July 2d, 1878, at Lawrence, VanBuren county. Michigan, by Elder Columbus Scott. He lived a consistent and virtuous life. He was a private in Company G, 28th Michigan Infantry, volunteer, enrolled September 2d, 1864, to serve three years; was dis-charged June 5th, 1866, at Raleigh, North Carolina, having fought bravely and nobly to maintain the glorious legacy bequeathedto the sons and daughters of Columbia, in both church and state. Funeral services from the Baptist Church. A large concourse of friends and relatives attended. Remarks by Elder Leonard Scott, from Col. 3: 20, 21. To his bereaved companion and mourning children, we extend the sympathy and condolence of all God's people.

Moore.—At Sweet Home, Nodaway county, Missouri, April 26th, 1889, sister Hannah Jennette Moore; born January 16th, 1828, town of Brutus, New York. She was baptized March 7th, 1866, by Elder William Thomas, at Malad City, Onedia county, Idaho, and confirmed by her husband, the late Bro. R. C. Moore. She was a good neighbor, a kind and loving mother. She leaves three sons, one daughter and ten grand children to mourn her death. She had no fear of death, but expressed herself ready and willing to pass to the other side whenever Funeral Sermon by Elder James Thomas.

"Dear mother thou art gove to rest,
And this shall be our prayer
That when we reach our journey's end,
Thy glory we may share."

REDFIELD.-At the residence of Bro. George Z. and Imogene I. Redfield, near Brownville, Nebraska, their interesting daughter, Inez. Born March 17th, 1878, and dying May 13th, 1889, Inez was but little more than eleven years of age. Although nine children are left to the mourning parents, they feel it is equally as hard to spare the tithe the great high priest has demanded for the store house above, as though but one or two remained. The members of the Disciple Church at Brownville courteously gave the use of their church edifice for the funeral services which were conducted by Elder Mark H. Forscutt on May 19th, in presence of a large congregation, many of whom desire to hear more of the marvelous work that gives the joy of triumph in the presence of death's victory.

Inez, beloved one, thou hast left us behind thee,
To mourn thee, though glad that thy memory is sweet
With the fragrance of love whose power could not bind thee To earth, for soon the beloved and the living will meet;

And meeting—O! joy af all joys—meet in the Lord,
And all that was lost, all, all, be restored.

Baptized at Brownville, Nebraska, May 20th, by M. H. Forscutt, confirmed same day—assisted by Elders George Z. Redfield and Jonas H. Drury.

PRICE.—In Deer Lodge county, Montana, May 11th, 1889, Sr. Sarah Price, wife of Bro. Isaac Price, aged thirty-six years. She died in giving birth to a sweet little girl who lives. Price was born at Manti, San Pete county, Utah, the 22d of March, 1853. She embraced the gosthe 22d of March, 1853. She embraced the gospel at the early age of thirteen years, in Malad, Idaho, and was baptized by elder Wm. Thomas. She has left a husband and eight children to mourn, but not as those who have no hope. Funeral services conducted at the Saints' Chapelin Deer Lodge, by Elder J. C. Clapp.

WHISTON.—At the home of her son, Mr. F. Cooper, Montague Gold Mines, Nova Scotta, sister Lovina Jane W. C. Whiston, April 2d, 1889. Born April 15th, 1816, she was near 73 years old at the time of death. The mother of 8 children, (three of whom only remain), the grandmother of 25 and the great grandmother of 11, she had not lived in vain. Blind for thirty years, she bore patiently her lot, faithful to the truth she had received up to the time of her death, which was occasioned by a stroke of paralysis. was baptized in 1843 by Robert Dixon, and received into the Reorganized Church by brother Joseph Burton during his ministry in Nova Scotia.

No longer the darkness of blindness obscures her sight; The light of the glorious day, the light above Now gladdens her spirit set free in its native right To roam the elysian fields in its wealth of love.

WOOLAMS .-- At his home near Millbrook, Kendall county, Illinois, May 15th, 1889, Bro. James Woolams, aged 84 years, 8 months and 18 days. Bro. Woolams was born in Walgrove, Northampton, Eng., Aug. 18th, 1804; united with the Reorganized Church, Mar. 12th, 1865, being baptized by Elder Thomas Revell, and he was or-dained an elder the same day. He came to America in 1867, and to Illinois, and united with the Fox River branch, where he has since resided until death called him home. His life was indeed an exemplary one, he having the work of God at heart, loving the fellowship of the Saints and was fully prepared to cross over the river. He passed away without any sickness or suffering; being at work in the garden, plowing potatoes with a hand plow, he sat dawn on a saw-horse to rest at the end of the row and told sister Tanser, with whom he lived, that he would come in and help her as soon as he got that bit of plowing Then he fell from the saw-horse to done. the ground and Sr. Tanser came to him and he her to send for Bro. Hart and another man, whom he named, to lay him out, and for them to send for her husband. Within five minutes from the time he fell the spirit had taken its flight. Thus passed away one who feared not to cross the river, as the writer has often heard him testify. Funeral services were held at the house by Bro. W. Vickery, assisted by Bro. C. J. Lan-phear. His rest is glorious.

BALLou.—At Lamoni Iowa, May 14th, 1889, the infant son of Bro. Archibald and Sr. Hannah E. Ballou. The infant came and departed life the same day, and was not named. Prayer at the house and grave by Elder Robert M. Elvin. Bronson.—At Princeville, Illinois, April 15th, 1888, Mary D. Bronson, aged 85 years and 15 days. Grandmother Bronson was born in Antrim, Hillsborough county, New Hampshire, April 1st, 1803; was married to Hiel Bronson at Wadsworth, Ohio, in 1827; joined the church in Ohio in 1835; came to Illinois in 1841, and was baptized and confirmed into the Reorganization Elder George Rarick in February, 1862. Grandmother Bronson was a faithful, consistent christian all her life, and in early youth sought after the blessings that a life of purity and virtue brings. She rested her hope of eternal life among the Saints in the early days of the church, and through trials, persecutions and hardships she ever clung firmly to the church and died tri-umphant in the faith. She died on the same day of the month that grandfather Bronson was buried only one year later. Never for a moment did she lose confidence in the latter day work, and many times bore testimony to the divine mission of Joseph the Seer. She received a pa-triarchal blessing under the hands of the first patriarch of the church, which was beautiful and glorious. Her many acts of kindness and words of love are now cherished and will ever be held fresh in the memory of all who knew her, and especially by those who were nearest and dearest to her during life. She has gone to receive her reward from the Redeemer, and her patient, quiet, saintly life in memory is left for an example to those who still remain. Funeral services were conducted by Elder John Chisnall, of Kewanee.

BEATRICE CHAUTAUQUA ASSEMBLY.

The first session of the Beatrice Chautauqua Assembly will be held in Riverside park, Beatrice, June 28th to July 8th inclusive. gram is a superior one, embracing lectures, concerts, elocution readings, etc. Among the lecturers are Peter M. von Finkleston, of Jerusalem, who will appear in his native costume; Robert McIntyre, "the Hoosier Orator;" Prof. John H. De Motte, Ph. D., one of the foremost scientists of the land; J. B. Young, D. D., the scholar, the orator, the traveler; Geo. W. Miller, D. D, one of the leading Chautauqua orators of the east, a pleasant, interesting and forcible speaker; Miss Ella Dillon, elocutionist. The committee are trying to secure Sam Jones, Dr. Hayes and others.

Among the instructors are director of music, S. F. Cravens; planist, Mrs. S. Cravens; intermediate music class, Prof Colvin.

The special days are, Old Settlers' day, W. C. The special days are, Old Settlers' day, W. C. T. U., and the Temperance day, Y. M. C. A. day, Children's Jubilee, Independence day, C. L. S. C. Recognition day, Music and Mission day.

Programs of much interest have been prepared for these days. Fourth of July is to be one of unusual interest. We are permitted to give part of it, viz:

io: 30 a. m., Songs of the War, Assembly choir; Prof. S. F. Cravens, director. 11:00 a. m., Morning lecture, (speaker to be announced).

Camp fire; hot black coffee, and plenty of it; army songs; hard 2:30 p. m., tack, old style; army jokes and sham battle.

: 30 p. m., 8:00 p. m,

Musical prelude. National songs. "Echoes from Round Top; the Story of a Great Battle," illustrated with large diagrams of the campaign and battlefield of Gettysburg. J. B. Young.

Bands, fireworks, etc.

Write for programs, etc., to S. S. Green, secretary, Beatrice, Nebraska.

Reduced rates on all railroads. New tabernacle, new cottages, ample accomodations. Season ticket $2.00. Single admission 25 cents.

SEMILUNAR FARDELS OF THE CLERCIAL SEX.

The use of the LL.D. is the most droll and incongruous, but the use of the D.D. is the most discreditable. The wild profusion with which the pages of the clergy-list of every sect in America are spotted all over with the symbols described by the late Dr. Cox as "semilunar fardels," is due not only to the amiableness or the business enterprise of the colleges, but to the small vanity of what George Eliot unsympathetically characterizes as the clercial sex. Here is a curious paradox: that the one set of men to whom this sort of distinction is forbidden, under the command, "Be ye not called Rabbi," should be the only set of men in America to seek it, and make much of it, and ostentatiously parade it. The lawyer who should put LL.D. on his tin sign, on his briefs, or at the head of his note-paper, would soon find his life made a burden by the wags of the profession. It is only the Christian minister who, being tapped on the one cheek with this accolade, promptly turns the other also. It is well understood that ministers as a class do very much like this kind of thing; and faithfully doing to others as they would that these should do to them, are punctilious in bandying complimentary titles among themselves, such as are disused by the good taste and self-respect of more secular men.—Rev. Dr. Leonard Woolsey Bacon in the June Forum.

NEED OF ARM EXERCISE.

Walking on an even surface, the only variety of physical exercise which most business and professional men get in town, is well known to be a poor substitute for arm exertion. son is partially plain, since walking is almost automatic and involuntary. The walking mechanism is set in motion as we would turn an hour glass, and requires little attention, much less volition and separate discharges of force from brain surface with each muscular contraction, as is the case with the great majority of arm movements.

The arm-user is a higher animal than the leguser. Arm motions are more nearly associated with mental action than leg movements. A man's lower limbs merely carry his higher centers to his food or work. The latter must be executed with his arms and hands.

A third way in which arm exercise benefits the organism is through the nervous system. Whether this is due to an increased supply of richer, purer, blood, or whether the continual discharge of motor impulses in some way stores up another variety of force, we do not know. One thing is certain, the victim of neurasthenia is very seldom an individual who daily uses his arms for muscular work; with this, the limit of hurtful meatal work is seldom reached.—Popular Science Monthly.

SOCIAL REFORM FROM THE KITCHEN.

It is a well-ascertained fact that, with respect to about ninety per cent. of the community, the price paid for food comes to one-half the income or more. After this food is bought, how much of it is wasted in bad cooking? How much human force is wasted in consequence of bad cookrang? How much does dyspepsia or indigestion, caused by bad cooking, impair the working capacity of the people of the United States and diminish their product? Can five cents' worth per day be saved? Is not that a very insufficient measure of the diffierence between a poor, wastecents a day can be saved on food and fuel, while at the same time that which is bought and cooked may be converted into more nutritious and appetizing food, the difference in each community of six thousand people would be $109,500 a vear, or about nine per cent. of the total product of the typical community, which we have assumed to be $1,200,000 a year in gross.

When the attention of the labor reformer is brought down from grand schemes for altering the whole constitution of society, by act of Congress or of the State legislature, to the simple question of how each person, each family, or each community may better itself under existing conditions, great progress will have been made in solving all the problems which are now pending. -Edward Atkinson, in the April Forum.

"John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, neither mokes nor drinks. He never drives fast horses, never yachts, doesn't play billiards, and never went to a theatre or to a circus in his life. His only recreation comes on Sunday, when he conducts a Sunday School class of three thousand pupils in a Philadelphia church, which he built and paid for himself. Mr. Wanamaker is a very remarkable man. He may be president of the United States one of these days."—Boston Herald.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than reut. A big bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the county seat of Barton county.

EBENEZER MILLER, Senior, SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist, Ad-Reoleiddedig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage: bound in full leather, marbled edges,

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

BRADENKELLEY DEBATE.	ı
Cloth Boards, 396 pages
Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of
divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to	١,
the respect and belief of all Christian people? (2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden am a member, the Church of Christ, and identical	i in faith, organization, ordinances, worship and practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left	f perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the	)
Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and ac-	I
cepted with Him?	-
FORSCUTT—SHINN DISCUSSION.
Paper covers, 194 pages	I
J. Shinn affirms "The Bible teaches the com-	1 0
ing of Christ to Judge the world is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible teaches the	l r
Literal Resurrection of the body from the grave."	1
VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.	7
Discoveries of Ancient American Records and	t
Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew.	8
Paper covers, 43 pages 10	-
CONCORDANCE TO DOCTRINE AND	]
COVENANTS.
An enlarged edition, 32 pages, paper covers. 10 BRANCH RECORDS.	OCCUPANT OF THE PROPERTY OF TH
Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; print-	١.
ed headings, and ruled for Record of Names,	)
Blessing of Children, and for Marriages2 00
DISTRICT RECORDS.	-
Printed and bound similar to Brane' Records
LICENCES, NOTICES, &c.
Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Li-	- censes, each per dozen 12
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books 25 Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred 40
CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.	٠
	١,
Annual Statistical Reports, two for 05	-
Certificates of Baptism and Membership.
per dozen
Marriage Certificates, per dozen 25	1
SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.
Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. 50
Prompt Attendance Tickets, 100 for 15 " " 1,000 for 100	١,
Good Behavior TicketsSame price.	1
JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND	-
HIS PROGENITORS.
Muslin boards, 312 pages
HESPERIS.	1
Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges 1 50
VOICE OF WARNING	,
And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the latter day work.	-
In paper covers; twelve for $1each 10
Limp cloth covers, each
JOSEPH THE SEER:	١.
His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained.	}
Paper covers, 200 pages	]
William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society,	9 and is an important work to be in the hands of	1
the ministry of the church; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the church and among those without, abounding in proofs	1 never before presented in defense of Joseph
Smith and the Book of Mormon.  MISCELLANEOUS.
Tract 42.—Rejection of the Church, a dozen 15	1
per hundred 10	1 `
The state One Wife an Money and James	'
Tract 43—One Wife, or Many, per dozen 25
Tract 43.—One Wife, or Many, per dozen 25 per hundred

[In the Press.]

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

PRICE $2.50 BY MAIL.

The Harmony will contain all the hymns in the Saints' Harp; also 542 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, 13 full sized pages of music, full instruction on choir and anthem music, the Editor's preface and introduction, and publisher's preface.

Stem Vowel Shorthand.

A system of shorthand in which the vowels are expressed in the consonant stems, by making the latter of different lengths. Invented by a court reporter of years of practical experience and used by hundreds in business life. Its merits are that it is easily learned, easily read and fully vocalized. It has no long lists of word signs. The undersigned uses it, and after comparing it with other systems recommends it to young men and women as a valuable acquisition as a profession. Little or no strain upon the memory required to learn it, which can be done in from four to six months ordinary attention. Book with plain and complete self-instructions sent to any address $2. Circulars sent upon application. Address R. S. Salvards, agent, Lamoni, Iowa.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't.

D. F. Nicholson, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK OF LAMONI.

Ample Responsibility.

Loans money on aproved security. Six per cent interest paid on time deposits. Real Estate bought and sold.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - - - $1.50.

M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.

I hereby give notice that the

Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies

17 x 20, is now ready for sale.

I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2. All members of the Quorum represented in the medley can obtain a copy for $1.50.

> R. BURDGE, Photographer, Appleton City, Mo.

I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art, containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a medley, handsomely arranged, all numbered with index below of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Pieture E. C. BRAND.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

REAL ESTATE AGENTS,

West Lexington Street,

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

--: A Family Newspaper.:--THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT

Provides its readers weekly with

56 COLUMNS Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and alms to keep its readers thoroughly acquainted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, 25aug Lamoni, Decatur Co., lows.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPES.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price $5 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo. Always write the Business portion of your Letter on a separate piece of paper, and let it be brief and explicit.

If you have anything to say to the Editor, or something you wish published, no nor write it on the back of a business letter. Business is Business, and MUST BE done in a business-like manner.

	No.	2,	-Truth	Mad	e Man	ifest:	per de	zen	20
	No.	3	-Voice	of the	area e Good	d Shej	herd;	dozen	50 05
	No.	4	Epitor	ne of l	Faith:	and D	octrine	ofthe	40
	d.	ozer	ı 5c., 1	00.25c	250	50c.,	500 $1.	e Suit. 1,000.1	75
	MO.	U	The "	One.	Baptis:	$\mathbf{m};"$ i	ts Mod	ne as No le, Sub-	. 4.
	je S	ets, hall	Pre-re Admi	quisit nister	es and	Designer d	gn—an	dWho	75
	No.	7	-w.bo	Then	Can h	oe Sav	ed: pe	er doz.	05 40
	No.	8	-Fuine	ss of i	the At	onem	ent; p	er doz.	25 75
	No.	9	Spirit	ualisr	a Viev	wed fi	a mor	Script-
	NO.	IU.	-The	Narro	w Wa	w: do	z. 15c.	1002 , 1001	25 10
			per	hun:	dred			doz 2	30 25
		12	ner	, qoze	n 250.	. ner l	nndre	d1	65
	No.	14	–Kepi	v to (	)rson	Fratt	: per c	lozen	25 75
	No.	15	—Brig nei	hamit hun	e Idol dred	latry;	per de	ozen	$\frac{05}{40}$
	No.	16	—Polv	gamv	: Was	it ar	ı Orioi	nal Te- 001	40
	TAO.	116	rue	succe	ssor ii	a tne .	rropa	etic UI-per	hun:	$\operatorname{dred}$ .			; doz	25 75
			neje pei	tuon hun	or the dred	unui	cn; pe	er doz. urch of	15 10
	0	20 hris	st. und	er the	e Aroos	stlesh	in, and	under
	t! No.	ne A 21.	postas —Trut	ly; po h by	er doze Three	en 20c Witn	esses;	1001 dozen	40 03
		22.	per	r bun	dred.			en	15 15
	No.	23.	per	r hun	dred.			1 01	10 25
	No.	24.	-The	King	${ m dom}$ o	f God	; doz.	5c., 100 c., 100	40
	No.	26.	Mou	ntain	of the	e Lor	l's Ho	use;
	No.	27.	-The	Sabb	ath Qi	iestio:	n; per	doz	40 25
	No.	29.	A V	ision (	of the	Resu	rrectio	1 n, from	40
	No.	. 30.	-Orig	in of	the Bo	ook of	' Morn	5c., 100 10n	40
	No.	31.	per —Wha	cdoz€ tis_'	n 15c. Truth	per and	hundre True	ed1 Ortho-	10
	S	o, K	irtland	l Ten	iple Si	uit	same	1? Al- price No	. 4.
5	No.	. 32	Whi	ch is	the O	hurch	? doz.	5c., 100 amined	40
			pe:	r doze	en 20c.	, per	hundr	ed1 rection	25
			5c.	each	, per c	lozen			50 15
	A	T	An as	sortm	ent of	Trac	ts, 35 c	ents.
	Bot	ınd					TRA(	JID.	75
	O						TERS.		47
	- (	alli:	ng of J	osepl	a the s	Seer. t	he Dis	tion to covery a	$_{ m ind}$
	A.	nge	elic bea	towa	l of th	ie Prie	esthoo
								• • • • • • • • •	75 50
	Th	e Pr	oblem		CELL man l			d Here-
	a	fter	by A	. Wili	ord H	all; 5	44 pag	es1	50 00
	Jos	eph	us, cor	npiet	e, libra	ary le:	ather.	an Em-	50
	- 10	ire.	cloth	board	s, 5 vc	olume	g	4	00
	Bal	.dwi	n's Ar	ıcient	Amer	ica (i	llustra	$\operatorname{ted}) \cdot \cdot \cdot 1$	-80
	The	9 K.	oran, l	ibrary	7 leath	er		ne4	00
	1	till	1854,	cloth	board	s, 5 v	ols	om A. D.	00 p	hilt	ıs, Bisl	o qoe	f Cæsa	rea ai	ad Pal	s Pam- estine . 2
	Crt Bik	ıder de T	ı's Con 'ext B	ook	Conc	ordan	ce of .	Bible1	75 00
	Ap	ocry	phal l	Vew 1	'estam	ent.		1 e	65 85
								.,,,,,,	30

THE SAINTS' HERALL

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord; for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One Wife, and Concubines

HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.—Whole No. 838

Lamoni, Iowa, June 8, 1889

No. 23.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

FUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, LOWA,
Every Saturday, Price $2.25 per year.
The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.
Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express,
Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Merald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

Entrop ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Lamoni, Iowa, June 8, 1889.

AUTUMN LEAVES FOR JUNE.

THE forthcoming June number of Autumn Leaves contains an excellent assortment of reading matter, and will be found especially interesting to its readers. commend it as worthy of a careful reading and trust that the magazine will be liberally supported by increased subscriptions, also by original contributions from those who possess the talent and have the desire to interest and instruct the young.

A heretofore long neglected field opens up in this department, and those possessing the abilities to do so should come to the assistance of the editor of the Autumn Leaves and the Hope, and "occupy." In the words of Alma, "Let this desire work in you.

COLLEGE PROSPECTS.

In another column will be found a brief report of a meeting of committee on ways and means to build a college at this place; and taking into account the busy season of the year, the fact that the committee had but about a month in which to do their work, also the stringency of the times, and we think it made a good showing.

Through the timely and energetic efforts of Bro. R. Winning a large amount of valuable documents in respect to college building has been procured. The information they afford is important and excellent. Many interesting letters, all expressing hearty commendation of the movement, and some of them promising substantial aid and thoroughly endorsing Lamoni as the very best point at which to locate a college were read.

No argument is needed with many to show the need of a first-class educational institution under the management and moral influence of the church, where the young men and women of the Saints and their friends may be well and thoroughly disciplined and instructed aside and free from the snares, prejudices and corruptions abounding abroad. The moral, social, and even physical welfare of the student, and the peace and satisfaction of parents and guardians, are all largely at stake in these matters.

A person starting out in life with a thorough, practical education; pure, solid morals and a healthy, vigorous body, is rich in the essential elements of a useful, happy life, and is prepared to make life a a success and bless and benefit society. Such have a fortune that fire can not burn, thieves can not steal, corrupt employes can not despoil, the elements can not waste, which only increases by use, and which rightly used proves a blessing to This should be eagerly, patiently sought after, and all who can should aid in the good work, for both themselves and others.

GOD.

A BROTHER wishes us to say what are the teachings of the Scriptures touching the God-head, and asks to know if Christ is God, if his Father is God, and if the Holy Spirit is God, and also if it takes these three to constitute God. Our reply will be found in the following taken from the lectures on faith in Doctrine and Covenants, section five, paragraph two:

"There are two personages who constitute the great, matchless, governing and supreme power over all things-by whom all things were created and made, that are created and made, whether visible or invisible—whether in heaven, on earth, or in the earth, under the earth, or throughout the immensity of space. They are the Father and the Son-the Father being a personage of spirit, glory and power, possessing all perfection and fullness-the Son, who was in the bosom of the Father, a personage of tabernacle, made or fashioned like unto man, or being in the form and likeness of man, or rather man was formed after his likeness and in his image; he is also the express image and likeness of the personage of the Father, possessing all the fullness of the Father, or the same fullness with the Father; being begotten of him, and ordained from before the foundation of the world to be a propitiation for the sins of all those who should believe on his name, and is called the Son because of the flesh-and descended in suffering below that which man can suffer; or, in other words, suffered greater sufferings, and was exposed to more powerful contradictions than any man can be. But notwithstanding all this, he kept the law of God, and remained without sin, showing thereby that it is in the power of man to keep the law and remain also without sin; and also, that by him a righteous judgment might come upon all flesh, and that all who walk not in the law of God may be justly condemned by the law, and have no excuse for their sins. And he being the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth, and having overcome, received a fullness of the glory of the Father-possessing the same mind with the Father, which mind is the Holy Spirit, that bears record of the Father and the Son, and these three are one; or, in other words, these three constitute the great, matchless, governing and supreme power over all things; by whom all things were created and made, that were created and made, and these three constitute the God-head, and are one; the Father and the Son possessing the same mind, the same wisdom, glory, power and fullness-filling all in all; the Son being filled with the fullness of the mind, glory and power; or, in other words. the spirit, glory and power of the Father--possessing all knowledge and glory, and the same kingdom-sitting at the right hand of power, in the express image and likeness of the Father, a mediator for man-being filled with the fullness of the mind of the Father; or, in other words, the Spirit of the Father; which Spirit is shed forth upon all who believe in his name and keep his commandments; and all those who keep his commandments shall grow up from grace to grace, and become heirs of the heavenly kingdom, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ; possessing the same mind, being transformed into the same image or likeness, even the express image of Him who fills all in all; being filled with the fullness of his glory, and become one in him, even as the Father, Son and Holy Spirit are one."-D. & C., sec. 5, par. 2.

HELP THE HERALD OFFICE.

THE Business Manager requests us to ask those owing the Herald Office for papers, books, etc., etc., to remit at once. Owing to the publication of The Saints' Harmony, and other works, the office is pressed for means to meet expenses.

We also request that all take active steps to procure new subscribers for all our church works, for in this manner they can aid the general work, and the office directly. The missionaries and branch officers, especially, are requested to help what they can in these matters.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. E. C. Brand wrote May 26th from Atchison, Kansas, as follows:

"I left home on the 10th and preached at Omaha twice on the 12th, and on Monday baptized a lady in the font at Council Bluffs. To St. Joe on 14th, and on 15th baptized Daniel Burlington, and went in evening to Guilford. Preached there four times and arrived here on Tuesday the 21st. Last night married Sister Alice Lipscomb to a gentleman whom I expect will soon obey, and preached this afternoon. I go to-night to Good Intent."

LUFF ON WALTON & CO.

WE find the following from the pen of Elder Joseph Luff, of Independence, Missouri, in the Progress, of that city, for the 25th ultimo. From it we gather that Rev. Clark Braden and his friends are seeking a debate with our elders in that district if they can get it on propositions such as will leave them free to ply their favorite avocations as filthy slanderers. Conscious of their lack of truth and logic to either maintain or defend their theological theories, like the Jewish Zealots of the times of Christ and his apostles, they fly to their last and meanest resort and attack personal character in order to create prejudice and hate: But such will in due time meet a just reward.

Ed. Progress:—From the letters appearing in your late issues it seems that Elder I. N. White, of the Latter Day Saints, has served a challenge for debate on Elder S. F. Walton of the Christian church, at Sibley. The subject to be, the identity of either church in doctrine, &c., with the scriptures. This has grown out of some remarks, publicly made, by the latter gentleman regarding the character of Joseph Smith.

Mr. Walton declines entering the debate himself but agrees to furnish a man for the fray, and appeals to these "champions of the character of Joe Smith to come to the front or take down challenge," embracing in his proposition the Divinity of the Book of Mormon.

Mr. White will probably take care of what he has claimed in his correspondence with Mr. Walton. Of this I know nothing, but offer the following because the last letter in your issue is general in character, and indirectly affects me.

1st. The doctrine of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints exists apart from and independent of the moral character of Joseph Smith or any other man, as much as does the inspiration of the scriptures of the moral character of its writers.

2nd. The people of the country can gather no saving force from a knowledge of personal character of the man named, but may do so from an understanding of and obedience to truth—pure Gospel truth. Hence the need of discovering where said truth is located—in this or that church.

3rd. The earth has been raked and scraped by Elder Clark Braden with a view to the overthrow of the faith of Latter Day Saints by denouncing the character of Joseph Smith, and the mass accumulated is published in the debate held by him with Elder E. L. Kelley, at Kirtland, Ohio. Any person desiring to know the worst that was ever manufactured or published in that line can find said work on sale at Barbee and Murphy's store, west side of square, Independence, Mo.

4th. The following propositions were submitted to said Clark Braden by Elder I. R. Lambert, since saiddebate was held. They were, together with the correspondence had between those gentlemen, published in the Saints Herald, of Lamoni, Iowa, Feb. 7, 1885, and have never yet been accepted by Mr. Braden.

(A.) Is the Church of Christ (commonly called Campbellite church) in harmony with the New Testament scriptures in doctrine and church organization.—Braden to (B.) Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (commonly called Mormon church), in harmony with the New Testament scriptures in doctrine and church organization.-Latter Day Saint to affirm.

(c.) Is the Book of Mormon a true record? Does it contain a revelation of God's will to man?—Latter Day Saint to (D.) Does the Bible contain all the revelation that God intended for men in all ages of the world.—Braden to affirm.

If preferred it was agreed on the part of Elder Lambert to change proposition "c." by affirming that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God, instead of the Book of Mormon question.

5th. In the same number of the paper referred to was a letter from Elder E. L. Kelley, offering to debate similar propositions with Mr. Braden.

Such is the situation, and until these men are met and upon the questions submitted as above, there is no use in agitating the subject of debate. Joseph Smith is dead. If his moral character was bad, he alone must suffer for that. If he practiced polvgamy his curse will be as great as that of any other man who played the hypo-But our religion stands untouched even if his character in the above direction was as bad as Ingersoll says David and Solomon's were.

There is not a member of the Latter Day Saints' church but has read and heard the worst that was ever said of Smith, but they united with the church after all, for the sake of the truth they found in it.

We are selling every day the works of Clark Braden. They are in the homes of our people. And if worse is ever to be written against Smith than he has furnished, a demon must needs be created for the There can be no hope therefore of turning Latter Day Saints from their church by such means, and if the only thing left is intended, viz: to prejudice the citizens of Independence, outside of the L. D. S. church against us, I beg to inform your correspondent that it is too late in the day. Our character is established and the citizens take us at our value in character as they do all other religionists. This is all we ask or expect, and will cheerfully risk the saving or damning processes which rest in the hands of truth's author-the Great God of the universewhom we serve, when we are called to render account before him.

Latter Day Saints have a warm place in their hearts for the name and memory of Joseph Smith, because of the doctrine they believe he was instrumental in bringing to the understanding of men. do not believe all that his enemies have said or wrote of by him any more than they do the writings of men against the good men of early times, not excluding Christ himself. Those who prefer to believe all the bad and none of the good written of him, we have no war with. We simply ask that we be allowed the privilege of believing in the good, and discarding the bad when we find evidence of it.

We shall try to so live that no man will ever be able to truthfully reproach the name of Mr Smith because of our conduct. As for our doctrine as a church, we stand as we ever have stood, ready to defend it against the opposing world, and will be found thus willing in Independence or elsewhere, and those who believe that doctrine to be false will find the fullest opportunity to come and enlighten us from the Word. We welcome one and all, and will gladly open our doors and crowd the house with listening and eager Latter Day Saints every time a representative man comes to perform so laudable an undertaking. Meanwhile we shall content ourselves with preaching Christ-his life as the only model with a divine seal upon it, and his death for a world's salvation. As to Joseph Smith, if his work points to Christ, thither we look. If away from Christ, we look not thence.

The above is submitted, for general information, and in so far as it relates to the Walton-White controversy may be so applied.

Craving pardon for this lengthy intrusion upon your space, Mr. Editor,

I remain, Yours for truth, JOSEPH LUFF, Pastor L. D. S. Church.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PRES. JOSEPH SMITH Wrote us the 21st ultimo that he would leave Los Angeles for San Francisco the evening of the 22d. and that he intends to reach Utah in June.

Pres. Joseph Smith arrived at San Francisco, California, May 24th. He intended to remain in upper California a few weeks, visiting Sacramento, Stockton, Lower Lake, etc., if possible.

The Chariton, Iowa, Herald of Thursday, March 23d, contains a pungent article explanatory of our faith from the pen of Bro. M. T. Short. Good.

Bro. R. J. Anthony wrote from Wilber, Nebraska, May 23d, that himself and wife had just returned from Plum Hollow, Iowa, where he had been visiting and preaching. He reports prospects for gospel work to be very favorable there, and states that he rejoices to see it so where he heard, believed and obeyed the truth. Bro. Anthony will leave for Salt Lake City, Utah, June 10th. Bro. T. W. Smith wrote, April 10th, from Papeete, Tahiti, ordering church publications for that mission.

WE take the following from the Philadelphia (Pa.) Ledger of the 18th ultimo. Comments are needless:

"The Presbyterian General Assembly discussed to-day several subjects of interest to all denominations. Chief among them was the question of vacant pastorates. A committee reported that there are 1,200 vacant Presbyterian pulpits in this country. Nearly all of these, of course, are small, weak churches, over 400 having a membership of less than 26 each. In a long report, which took over an hour to read, the committee dealt with the problem involved in these statistics, and the interest with which the report was followed shows how important the question is considered. What is true of the Presbyterian Church must be true to a greater or less extent of other denominations. There has been a good deal heard of recent years of the demand for young men of ability and energy in the ministerial profession. Formerly the bulk of the college graduates went into the pulpit; now, the proportion of those who adopt the cloth is comparatively small. Young men of brains and ambition are attracted by the prospects offered by other professions and the world of business. Consequently the supply of young ministers is not equal to the demand. The Board of Home Missions wants two hundred new missionaries this year. How many young men of talent and education are ready to respond to the call?"

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"And, oh! sad soul, there is for thee A lesson hidden;
Though all thy life a desert be,
And bloom forbidden,
Remember, though thy fate be sad,
No joy once bringing,
The darkest day will seem more glad
If birds are singing.

GEORGE NEUMARK'S HYMN.

[Two and a third centuries have passed since a young man of twenty-nine years, sitting hungry, desolate and alone in an upper room of a house in one of the filthiest streets of Hamburg, Germany, composed and sung, on an old violincello which was all the world to him, this beautiful hymn. Without food, without friends, without employment, surely, if any man might have reason to distrust God, this young man had. But his faith rose all the stronger. He trusted God, he built on the Rock, and soon the way opened and he became secretary to the Swedish Ambassador. There is a lesson for every Christian heart in this hymn. Have you made it yours?]

Leave God to order all thy ways,
And hope in him, whate'er betide;
Thou'lt find him in the evil days
An all sufficient strength and guide.
Who trusts in God's unchanging love
Builds on the Rock that naugut can move.

What can these anxious cares avail—
These never-ceasing means and sighs?
What can it help us to bewail
Each painful moment as it flies?
Our cross and trials do but press
The heavier for our bitterness.

Only your restless heart keep still,
And wait in cheefful hope, content
To take whate'er His gracious will,
His all-discerning love hath sent;
Nor doubt our inmost wants are known
To him who chose us for His own.

He knows when joyful hours are best;
He sends them as He sees it meet;
When thou hast borne its fiery test,
And now art freed from all deceit,
He comes to thee all unaware,
And makes thee own his loving care.

Nor, in the heat of pain and strife,
Think God hath cast thee off unheard;
Nor that the man whose prosperous life
Thou enviest is of him preferred;
Time passes, and much change doth bring,
And sets a bound to everything.

All are alike before his face:
'Tis easy to our God most high.

To make the rich man poor and base, To give the poor man wealth and joy. True wonders still of him are wrought, Who setteth up and brings to naught.

Sing, pray, and swerve not from his ways, But do thine own part faithfully; Trust his rich promises of grace, So shall it be fulfilled in thee; God never yet forsook at need The soul that trusted him indeed.

-Sei

MORAL TRAINING OF CHILD-REN

Almost imperceptibly the baby has become the boy in kilts. His progress, which seemed so slow during the first years of his life, has advanced with more rapid strides after the second mile-stone has been passed. The mother who has had another baby given to her arms is necessarily so absorbed in the close care demanded by the later arrival that she has not so much leisure to watch every shade of development in the older child as she would have were he the only object of her maternal solicitude. Such relaxation of attention does the little fellow no harm so long as it does not degenerate into neglect. He will grow more naturally and symmetrically if he is not too obviously studied. The opening rose is not improved by having its petals handled by an enthusiastic botanist, eager to learn the mystery of its unfolding.

A certain sense of manliness comes to the boy with his emancipation from the high chair and what it implies. He is no longer a baby. The embryo man protest against the stigma of this term at a much earlier age than would his sister. She does not so much mind being called a baby.

It must be the care of the father and mother alike to see that this incipient manliness does not confine itself to bragging assumption, but manifests itself also in the development of manly qualities. The principle of showing bravery under hurts can be taught at an early age. Everything depends upon a child's first instruction in this matter as to whether he will be fretful and peevish, crying or complaining, at every slight discomfort, or a courageous little fellow, bearing small injuries without a moan, and brave even in worse suffering.

Injudicious nurses, in their anxiety to check a baby's lamentations over a tumble or a bruise, often seek to direct his attention elsewhere by feigning to punish the inanimate object with which the little one has come into unfriendly contact. In his pleasure at seeing the offending table, chair, or floor beaten the baby forgets his woes, and laughs through his tears.

It may seem like overstrained to say that the child thus acquires a spirit of vindictiveness, but it is true nevertheless. The boy who has been taught to strike insentient things because he was hurt by them is very likely, as he grows older, to raise his hand against a playmate or a brother or sister who has either inflicted physical injury or run counter to his desires.

A better plan for diverting the bady's attention from a hurt is by awaking his compassion for the cause of his suffering. If he is taught to pity the "poor door" or the "poor carpet" that just had such a hard knock, he will cease his own expressions of distress quite as quickly as if his worse passions were appealed to. The writer of this has often known a child to check the cries caused by a bumped head to "oh" and "ah" over the floor or piece of furniture that was the occasion of the mischief, and has seen him stroke the offending surface with genuine pity at its supposed hurt, while the tears drawn by his own pain still hung on his own cheeks. Such self-control will stand either a boy or girl in good stead in later life. The women who faint at a slight injury, and are utter cowards in the dentist's chair, or at the least accident, are of those who have been encouraged from childhood to magnify their own sufferings and to consider ultra-sensibility a pretty thing.

Probably there is less danger of the boy remaining babyish owing to the healthy state of feeling that exists among older boys and men on this subject. If the pet of his mother and nurse goes to school filled with an idea of his own delicacy of organization and of the consideration that should be shown his weaknesses, he is apt to have a rude awakening. Rough handling and sarcastic words will teach him the self-reliance and courage in discomfort he should have learned in his earlier years, and at a much greater cost than would have been necessary then.

A well known story writer, in a recent conversation on different codes of morals for men and women, boldly declared that many of the qualities deemed faults in men were virtues in women. In support of his theory he instanced the matter of physical courage. Cowardice, he maintained, while a disgrace to a man, was no shame to a woman. A man who was afraid of the dark, who acknowledged superstitious dreads, or who shrank from personal injury, was despised by other men. On the contrary, a woman, although an out-and-out coward, was esteemed none the less highly on that account, either by her own or by the opposite sex.

Without discussing at length this phase of the question, one may at least suggest that cowardice in a woman is a very inconvenient trait. Every one can recall one or more instances of the annoyance some woman has made of herself by her unreasoning terror of mice, of cows, of burglars, of thunderstorms. In nearly every case of this sort the dread that has become unconquerable in the woman may be traced to some childish impression, which, if not exactly cultivated by parents and nurses, was at least permitted, instead of being eradicated when it first appeared.

Only in the rare occasions of hereditary antipathy does one find a baby or a young child naturally afraid of the stock terrors mentioned above. A little girl will look with pleasure at the antics of a mouse about the floor, will behold with interest the excursion of a "daddylong-legs" across her lap, and will watch delightedly the flash of the lightning, and listen to the roll of the thunder unperturbed. Only when she has seen some other person exhibit terror at any one of these happenings does it occur to her to show dread. With the imitativeness characistic of childhood she indulges in the same expressions of alarm she has observed in her elders. It needs only a little unwitting fostering of the new "fad" by the parent or nurse to render it a confirmed habit.

When one comes to what may be styled spiritual dreads, one ventures upon more delicate ground. Such fears often seem innate, and are not easily vanquished. A child who appears to have a natural dread of the dark can not be scolded or persuaded out of it in a day. Patience and gentleness will be required in order to subdue what seems to be in many children an inborn and almost unconquerable antipathy.

All diligence should be used to keep from the little ones all fears of bogies or other ghostly apparations, and no such punishment as confinement in a dark closet should ever be imposed upon them. A child's nervous organization is too delicate a piece of machinery to be trifled with.

Still, superstitious fears should not be too much humored, but rather gently reproved, lovingly ridiculed, or else made the subject of serious remonstrance. By such means the child may often be aided to outgrow dread that would otherwise be an incubus upon him all his life.-Sel.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. B. Bardsley, Neola, Iowa$2	00
Sr. Mary A. Twaddle, Tulare City, Cal	50
Sr. Mary Hiatt, Iowa City, Iowa	00
Sr. Margaret A. Willetts, Gilman, Wash1	00
Sr. Sarah M. Ellison, Portsmouth, Iowa1	00
Sr. Janette Harris & children, Bozeman,
Mont2	00
Sr. J. Burlingame, Cumberland Hill, R. II	00
Sr. Phebe W. Tabbut, Lake View, Minn	50
Sr. Mary A. Lewis, Council Bluffs, Iowa	75
Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa Lamoni, Iowa, May 31st.	a LAMONI, IOWA, May 31st.

DEFIANCE, Iowa, May 11th.

Dear Sister Frances:-As it has been some time since you've heard from me, I thought I would write a few lines. The God whom I love and serve is still sparing my life, and I trust it is for some good, though it is but little good I can do; but I am still in love with this latter day work. It is uppermost in my mind and I value it more than I do my life, because it is of endless duration, and our lives, at best, are but short and fleeting. I often think of the days that have gone by, but I am more engaged with the days that are to come, as my race is almost run. I often think of the happy meetings that I shall shortly have with those loved ones that have passed away. Yea, with the thousands with whom I have traveled in the days of our greatest persecution. I am the mother of ten children: the grandmother of seventy-eight; and the great grandmother of about as many. My grand children all belong to the church save two or three, and many of them are trying to do right. This is a great consolation to me, and may God bless them is my prayer! May they grow up into a multitude on the earth and become mighty in doing good and helping to build up the kingdom of God on the earth! It is almost fifty-six years since I embraced this latter day work, and it is just as precious to me now as it ever was. Indeed more precious, for the longer I live, the better I like it. I have been a widow thirty years. I have long since learned to put my trust in the Lord. I will in a few days be in my ninetieth year. I am enjoying the best of health, and if I had the tongue of an angel I could not tell you how thankful I feel for the blessings of the Lord. I hope you will ever remember me in your prayers. Pray that the Lord will strengthen me while I live, both soul and body.

Your sister in Christ,

SARAH HAWLEY.

The above was written by the little ten-yearold grand daughter of Sr. Hawley, and both the hand writing and spelling reflect credit upon the little girl. Neither is this all, for it is not every little girl who would be willing to do this kind act for her aged grandmother. God bless the dear aged ones who sit by our firesides and brighten our homes; and happy indeed is that home where the warmest spot in winter, the coolest nook in summer, is occupied by grandmother's chair; and blessed indeed are the children who gather about her knees and learn wisdom from her holy conversation. Let it never enter into the heart of such a dear aged one, that God is lengthening out their days beyond the period of usefulness. What the earth would be without the ripe, mellow fruits of autumn time, life would be without the garnered sweetness and wisdom of the aged. The strife and turmoil of life's battle is past for them, and the grandchildren receive many an hour of instruction, of gentle, thoughtful, loving care which the dear grandmother never found leisure to give to her own little ones. In those far away days, when the cares and labors of life pressed so heavily, there was not the opportunity for cherishing the gentle admonitions of the Spirit which comes with these mellow autumn days. Grandmother is going upon a long journey and her mind is occupied with the glorious reality of the place to which she is going. She does not talk to the children about the home for which she longs, in a vague uncertain way, as though it was far, far away in some distant realm of space: but she speaks of it as very near, very real; just a little farther on the life-road, and she calls by name each of the loved ones who have passed on before her, until the children too feel the reality of the life to come and of the reunion to take place there. To the clearer, better vision of her aged eyes, how much is the family indebted! God bless these aged ones and sustain them by his grace until he shall say to them, "It is enough," and receive them into everlasting habitations.-ED.

Correspondence.

NEW HOPE, Va., May 27th.

Bro. Blair: On the 11th of this month I left home for my mission in this state. I stopped over Saturday night and Sunday in the vicinity of Wilkesville, Vinton county, Ohio, where with Bro. Matthews I held two meetings, and Sunday evening, the 12th, baptized a promising young lady into the fold. The few Saints there are strong in the faith, and with Bro. R. H. Ervinpriest-to look after their welfare, think they will prosper in the work. I arrived in this valley Tuesday the 14th. So far as the prospect for the work here is concerned, it is not very flattering as to spreading it in new places, but I am trying to make some new openings, but don't know yet how I will succeed. But if we can't get some new openings I do not think it wise for me to stay here very long, for I can not feel that I am serving the church faithfully unless I am pushing the work into new localities. While I know that it is very necessary to look after and instruct those who are in the fold, yet-that is not particularly my mission, though it is much pleasanter to stay among kind brethren and sisters where we can have the good things of this life and kind words of dear Saints.

The Saints here are progressing well with their church house. It will be an honor to the work, being the first one in the state. It is 33x45 feet and will be well finished. It will be ready for dedication by the 15th of June, and they desire it dedicated as soon as it is completed, if it can be. Most of the Saints here are very firm in the faith, and I think that the work is here to stay, but there is much prejudice and religious bigotry. I still feel confident of the final triumph of this great work. Am looking for Bro. D. L. Shinn here soon. May God bless his people. Your brother,

JAMES MOLER.

GILMAN, Washington, May 20th.

Bro. Blair: I rejoice in reading the letters in the Herald and the testimonies of my brethren and sisters. I feel that I would like to bear my testimony. I know the work is of God, and I hope that I will continue to the end. I feel thankful to my heavenly Father for every blessing he has bestowed upon me and my family. Though there is no branch here where I can go to meeting, I am blessed from time to time and often feel the Spirit in great power upon me when I am trying to show the gospel to others that have never heard of it. They think there has never been such a church on earth since the days of the apostles. I think this would be a good field for an elder, and I feel glad that I am in such a great work.

There are no Saints here but my family and that of Bro. W. B. Farley. We oftimes feel to rejoice together, and feel the Spirit of God rest upon us. We ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints, in particularly of the Lucas branch as we are members of that branch. I would like to make a request of the elder who is appointed for Washington territory to come up this way as soon as he can; that we are troubled a great deal with Seventh Day Adventists. An Adventist elder by the name of A. Benson has given a written challenge for any elder of our faith for six nights; subject, Sabbath day question, and the immortality of the soul, and there is a hall ready to preach in as long as they want it. We hope and pray that we may continue to the end in the covenant we have made.

Your brother,
WM. WILLETTS.

In the mountains near Apros, Cal., May 13th.

Bro. W. W. Blair: -- I have wished many times to write to the Herald, but I did not know what to write till of late. I have been a Latter Day Saint for twenty-five years and have never belleved different, for I know it is the true gospel. Since I was baptized by Alexander Smith and William Anderson at Corralitos, Santa Cruz county, California, I was ordained by you, Bro. Blair, a Teacher according to the laws of God given to the church at a special conference held at Watsonville, July 10th, A. D. 1868.

After some years, having had no opportunity to attend church, I met Bro. Daniel Brown and he told me that there would be a two days' meeting at Watsonville-preaching by Elder J. H. Lawn. I told my wife-Sr. Margaret-and we went to church on Saturday and Sunday, 27th and 28th of April. We met many Saints, had great rejoicing; preaching by Brn. J. H. Lawn and D. Brown; in the afternoon Saints' testimony meeting; the Spirit was in our midst, and speaking in tongues by Sr. Carmichael. We were greatly blessed.

Sunday at eleven we had preaching by Brn. Carmichael and James Lawn. In the afternoon sacrament and Saints' meeting. The blessings promised us attended, and we received the manifestation of speaking in tongues and the interpretation thereof. In the evening we had preaching by Brn. J. H. Lawn and D. Brown, and we were greatly edified. I invited Bro. J. H. Lawn and two sons and daughter and D. Brown, and two sisters Headrick up in the mountain, for I had work for them to do.

On Monday the 29th we went to my home, and I requested the elders to speak to my children, to tell them of the goodness and the blessings that will follow them that obey the everlasting gospel. At the end of two hours of exhortation five of my children arose for baptism. The next day we repaired to a most beautiful pond God had prepared for us nineteen hundred feet above the level of the Pacific Ocean, and five souls were baptized into Christ. At home they were confirmed, received the sacrament and testified of the goodness of God. Then Brn. Lawn and Brown blessed our two little children, after which the brethren returned to their respective homes.

Bro. Blair, I ask your prayers that I may be faithful to the end and teach my children to be faithful, and not to be carried away by false doctrine. Yours in Christ Jesus, Andrew C. Stuart.

AID, Ill., May 26th.

Dear Herald: -- Having read many cheering words in your columns which have been a blessing to me, I wish to add a little, hoping it may be a benefit to others. It has been about three years since I obeyed the gospel. I was baptized by Elder J. T. Hensen, and with the assistance of Bro. I. M. Smith was confirmed. in which I felt that I was translated from the powers of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son. I can truly say it is good to be a Saint in latter days. Although I have felt weak, dreary and sad many times through my disobedience, and not paying more heed to the enticings of the Spirit, I hope God will continue to chastise me if I transgress His law. God has blessed me with his Spirit in power, for which I feel to adore and praise His holy name.

I dreamed not long since that Bro. Joseph Smith came to me and told me that the Book of Mormon and the work he did was true; I also dreamed about that which is spoken of in Revelations 14:6, the angel which was to bring the everlasting gospel. I felt that gospel in much power, for indeed God's Holy Spirit was then resting upon me in power. I have loaned books to my neighbors and people around me; also tracts. Have done what I could to spread the work. I ask the prayers of all the Saints that I may be able to do much good, for this has been my desire; and I know the doctrine is true. May we all be faithful unto the end, and leave a mark of truth and integrity behind us.

That God will also call more elders and send them into the field is my desire, for truly the harvest is great and the laborers few. That God will give us his Spirit that we may be able to overcome all things, and with an eye single to His glory serve him, that we may be able to understand his word and comprehend the truth of his gospel and receive more knowledge day by day, is my prayer. Let us all do something to in some way roll on the good work, for I realize His great and marvelous work and a wonder is in the earth. Let us pray without ceasing.

FRANCIS M. Slover.

TAWAS CITY, Mich., May 20th.

Bro. Blair:—I came to this place on the 9th inst., where I have been actively engaged in my appointed field of labor. Since writing you I have baptized one in Bay City and find a good interest here. Last week was a very busy time. We are building a church here and want to get it in readiness for June conference. Outsiders are liberal and kind, and willing to aid us. The Sisters' Aid Society has raised thirty dollars for the church; notwithstanding, some think sisters have no right to voice and vote.

I preached yesterday afternoon and evening to large and attentive crowds. After meeting one lady said she was ready for baptism. The work here is prosperous. This evening I go to Oscoda for a few days. Yours in bonds,

E. DELONG.

INDEPENDECE, Mo., May 15th.

Bro. Blair:—On last Sunday we had the pleasure of leading one Mr. S. B. Hill—of Vermont—into the waters of baptism, thereby assisting him to don the gospel armor and stand upon the platform upon which the gospel battle is to be fought. He has for some time been sojourning with Bro. Wm. Lintel whose example in, and arguments for, the gospel life, fully persuaded him to a better life here, and a more glorious hope in the hereafter. Thus they come, "One of a town and two of a city."

A few days ago I was conversing with one of our "departed" brethren, who, in the course of his remarks eulogized the life and actions, and fully endorsed all the revelatons of "the Seer" prior, and up to 1838-he subsequently becoming a very bad man, going into wickedness of various kinds in Illinois and elsewhere until he met his death and the final scattering of the church.

I said: "My brother, I have an invisible ladder of three rounds which I carry around for just such fellows as you, and I will now present it.—First, you of course believe Joseph to have been a prophet and the Book of Mormon true?"

"Certainly we do; that is our ground work."

"Next you believe the angel who appeared to him told the truth?"

"Certainly."

"Well, sir, he told Joseph his name should be had for good or for evil among all men; the right-eous would hold it in honor, and the unrighteous in dishonor. Which class do you belong to? This is the third round of the ladder. You may jump off—and be jumped."

Yours, T. W. CHATBURN.

LOOKOUT, Cal., May 19th.

Dear Herald:—I have been laboring in this vicinity about four weeks. At the first meeting after my arrival I asked all those who desired to be baptized to arise to their feet, and instead of fourteen as has been stated, there were but five who were really ready for baptism. Since that time, however, I have baptized six more, making eleven in all, and there are others who have said that they intend to join. There are a good many more who seem to be warmly investigating. I think I never had a better outlook for a good work to be done, and if my family is sustained I shall labor there this summer. I feel greatly encouraged in the work here. There are calls nearly all over this large valley.

Bro. B. W. Pack has done the greatest work here that I ever have known to be done by a layman

J. R. Cook,

G. W. HOWELL.

ELToro, Cal., May 19th.

Dear Herald:—On February 1st brethren Joseph Smith and J. F. Burton visited Laguna where, they held meeting two evenings, and Bro. Burton as assistant missionary in charge proceeded to reorganize the Laguna branch. Since that time we have had splendid meetings, and have been greatly blessed by the Spirit, especially in the gift of tongues. On one occasion a young man received the interpretation of a tongue which, by the way, was to himself, to be baptized, which command he obeyed, and with five others went down into the waters of baptism, Elder A. W. Thompson performing the sacred ordinance.

Our little branch is growing in number and in zeal, and all are striving to do the Master's will. The sisters have organized a Prayer Union with sister Nancy Thompson president, Tina Syltar, secretary, and Nancy Roger, treasurer.

Some time since brethren Wright and H. C. Smith visited the branch and preached some splendid discourses, which were not without good effect. Elder A. W. Thomas has sold his property in Laguna and bought at ElToro, which is seven miles from Laguna. He is building a very comfortable house and will move his family over next week.

I pray for the welfare of Zion, that her truths may sweep over the land like a tidal wave, "till every knee shall bow and every tongue confess." Yours in Christ,

C. M. SALTER.

DALLAS, Texas, May 13th.

Bro. Smith:—I have been separated from the Saints about four years, living in cities where there was no branch of the church. I do not say this in excuse for my long silence; there can be no excuse for that. I have been asleep or cold, thank God not lukewarm—I never was that yet, and I hope I never shall be.

A few weeks ago I was at a friend's house and there saw a copy of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat in which was a picture of your father lying on the ground dead and the angel of the Lord at-The question was asked in my mind, "Did I believe that yet?" My soul's answer was, "Yes." A few moments afterward I was filled with the Spirit. Words of wisdom were given me and I had a happy time. Our friends came to visit us Saturday evening. I was again blessed with the Spirit, and my friend, who by the way is a Methodist local preacher, unconsciously fulfilled a prophecy given in London, that the time would come when men should say, "O, that I were like Waterman!" Although I was full of joy and felt like a child of God, yet I could have buried my head in shame to think that I could neglect such a faithful, loving God and his cause. Bro. Joseph, I now ask your forgiveness, and through you the church's and any one's whom I have offended; and I trust it will not be withheld. I am very happy. Who is not with the undwelling Spirit, the seal of adoption and eternal union with God and his people? Gratefully I can again say:

"The Spirit of God like a fire is burning,
The latter day glory begins to come forth;
The visions and blessings of old are returning,
The angels are coming to visit the earth."

Yes, sir! The next place in my heart after Jesus Christ is filled by Joseph Smith, for he was the instrument used so that I could receive this blessing. "Great indeed is his memory." Surely the Lord's words were true when he said: "The righteous shall be had in everlasting remembrance." Did He make mistakes? I do, but the Lord says, "I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and iniquities I will remember no more." I thank God and take courage. Sr. Waterman is sick. Please pray for her.

WILLIAM WATERMAN.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 12th.

Bro. Blair:—I have thought many times I would write to the office and have my address on the Herald changed, but whenever I think of writing, then the three visions I saw during last conference loom up before me so vividly that, to merely write the business part, and say nothing of what our heavenly Father showed me, would leave a feeling of condemnation. So with God's help I have concluded to write thereon, hoping they may do much good.

While Elder E. L. Kelley was preaching I became very sleepy and in spite of all my efforts to keep awake, I fell asleep for a moment and saw a large piece of meat, and salt gently falling upon it. I awoke with joyous feelings, and as I was meditating on what I had seen, Christ's words came to my mind when he was addressing his disciples thus: "Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be seasoned?" indicating that the savor had been lost, or the authority to preach the gospel which is able to save to the uttermost had been taken away, and that the word which was left us was only a dead letter; but that now, in these last days, the authority had been restored, and that again the preserving power (the gospel of Jesus Christ) was being sprinkled out upon the people clear as crystal, unmixed with earth, or man's opinion.

In a few moments I became very sleepy agian, and could not refrain from falling asleep. I saw loaves of dry bread which I was steaming. I awoke and was soon absorbed in meditating on these things when these thoughts came to my mind: "We must have fire to steam bread, and water also. A few drops of water would not be sufficient sprinkled upon the bread, nor would water poured upon it refresh it; but it must be enclosed in water, or steam, which is produced by fire underneath the vessel. Then these words came to me: "I will make my ministers a flame of fire," and doth not the gospel contain water enough to bury a person? and while the authorized minister stands in the water, with the Holy Ghost penetrating and possesing his body, ready to bury a person that feels the need of regeneration and has confessed and repented of his wickedness, the person is then laid under the water with one hand of the man of God filled with the Holy Ghost underneath him, while the other hand is over him, he is raised out of the water with his sins washed away."

Then while Elder Kelley was delivering the closing discourse of the conference, I again became very sleepy, and I asked God to keep me from sleeping, for I was very desirous of hearing the sermon. But I had no control of my eyelids, and I again was lost in slumber—but only a moment—and I saw Bro. Alexander Smith at a well drawing water and dipping out glasses of water and handing it to a large company of eldthat stood around on one side of the well. They were as one body, they stood so close together. They were to pass the water around to the people. The water was very beautiful and clear.

I awoke with the Spirit of God still upon me, and I felt very joyous, and it seemed as though I could hardly refrain from giving vent to my feelings. I said to myself: "Truly the waters of eternal life are again being given to the people of the earth, and they came by way of Joseph Smith the martyr, and Bro. Alexander Smith is the only one who represents his father's family here at this conference.

I thank God for the restored gospel, and that whereas I was once blind I now see the plan of salvation.

I can not close my letter without writing the evidence I had at the conference a year ago at Independence. I had been very desirous of seeing our beloved president of the church, which pleasure was then granted me. I also had the pleasure of shaking hands with him. We had some conversation and I then turned to leave the church and I had gone but a few feet from him when I was turned around and was gazing after him. He turned around also, and I then beheld Christ's Spirit within him, and these words were impressed upon my mind: "Behold your Prophet?" A thrill of joy passed through me, and I lifted my heart to God in thankfulness for this latter day work.

Then again, where he was preaching, his eyes looked like balls of fire.

Bro. Blair, I know this is God's work. I am thankful I am living in these last days, to behold his "marvelous work and a wonder," and to know that he has so wonderfully blessed this unworthy handmaid. JENNIE KRAHL.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 28th.

Bro. Blair: To me the outlook of the latter day work never appeared brighter. The great demand for preaching, the attention the people give wherever the gospel is preached, the many calls for preaching, the desire that a goodly number of those outside of the church with whom I converse seem to have to investigate the doctrine we teach, and the signs of the times all go to show that the great and "marvelous work" of God in these last days is onward with marked success, and that the good Spirit of Jesus Christ our Savior is preparing the hearts of the honest to receive the truth. I have more calls to preach than I can fill. Last Saturday Bro. Fowler took me and my son Saleda D. down to the Ramey school house, about fifteen miles from here, where I preached in the evening, my son preached next day at eleven o'clock and I in the afternoon. Between the two meetings I had the pleasure of introducing one more precious soul into the kingdom by baptism, a man named George York, who, if faithful, is capable of doing great good for the Master's cause, and perhaps will be an instrument in convincing his father (who is now a Disciple or Christian preacher) of the truth of the latter day work. There are more near the kingdom in that vicinity who I believe will obey ere long. Two weeks ago I and my son walked over to the same school house and preached three times with good liberty to a full house of attentive hearers. I have also preached in the High Point and Lone Rock school houses, where being called uppon by Bro. John Johnson, president of the Lone Rock branch, to assist in carrying on a series of meetings in which elders H. A. Stebbins, Joseph and Nephi Snively, Charles Jones and I. Baggerly took a part. We kept the "camp fires burning" for fifteen consecutive nights after I came to the Lone Rock school house. Bro. J. Snively baptized three while I there, and preached four times and I preached eleven times. We had larger congregations when we closed than at the beginning. I firmly believe that our efforts at that time will tell for My desire would be to be in the field all the time, but I have my family to care for, not being under General Conference appointment. Nevertheless, I mean to do all I can, as I have the gospel armor on and my feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. And with love to God and mankind (my enemies not excepted), I intend by the assistance of the Holy Spirit in union with the church and my brethren of the priesthood, to help fight the gospel fight against "Spiritual wickedness in high places" until the battle is fought, victory won, and we hail King Immanuel. My whole heart is in this great and glorious work.

Yours in the one faith,

JOHN SHIPPY.

TENNICONES PROCES AND SECURIO CONSESSOR CONTRACTOR OF THE PROCESSOR CONTRACTOR CONTRACTO

JUNIATA, Mich., May 24th. Bro. W. W. Blair:—Notwithstanding my age, being seventy-four years the 16th day of last March, I am trying in weakness to battle for the truth. My heart is in the gospel, and I am trying to help on the work. I have been out all winter laboring under the direction of the president of the district, trying to put the branches in order. I was assisted for several weeks by Bro. Charles Morgan, priest of Sigel branch. We baptized two while together, and I have baptized seven since that time. Pray for me God may enable me to battle for the truth while life shall last. Yours in gospel bonds,

ROBERT DAVIS.

KNOB NOSTER, Mo., May 15th.

Bro. Blair:—The work was opened up here about two years ago by Bro. Luff. Since then we have had brethren I. N. White, J. C. Foss, F. C. Warnky, J. W. Gillen, R. Etzenhouser, J. J. Cornish, (baptized five), and last of all J. A. Robinson, who baptized two. The meeting just closed with a grand interest; some new ones almost every day came to me for tracts and books. Thank the Lord we can see the bright beams of heavenly light breaking through the dark clouds. "Sow thy seed in the morning and at eventide withhold not thy hand" results well here. We should ever live up to this admonition. How much easier it is to spread the truth where the Saints all do their whole duty.

A few moments ago a doctor asked me this question: "Why is it that different preachers tell the truth and get good pay for it and the Latter Day Saint elders will spend all their time and energy and money and bear the reproach that is heaped upon them to tell a lie and get nothing for it?" I left him trying to get some one to solve it for him.

We have fifteen members but are not yet organized into a branch.

J. H. WELLS.

FLORA VISTA, New Mexico, May 17th.

Dear Herald:—I was baptized and confirmed by Elder Caffall, March 19th. He is the first minister I ever heard preach the true word of Christ. Toward the last of the elder's preaching ing here, something seemed to say to me, "You had better join now; if you wait it may be too late."

I did not think I was prepared to join, but gave up to my conscience and gave myself to Christ before Elder Caffall left us.

Brother Wight and family have moved to Colorado for the summer, leaving only three Saints here—Bro. Beach, sister Mary Shippy and myself. I hope the dear Savior will send us a preacher before long, so we may know and understand His word better. May it be the will of the Father that Elder Caffall may be with us this fall. I now close, asking you all to pray for us.

Your sister,

NETTIE THARP.

Dear Herald: - While holding a discussion with Rev. Adam Archibold at Pennsboro, West Virginia, in March last, a brother found the following notice. It had been tacked upon a stave and stuck up on the fence, where it was expected your humble servant would pass by. It was doubtless prepared to be seen by me at the close of the debate as the Campbellites expected not only to demolish me in discussion, but to run me out of the country; but the victory did not perch upon the Campbellite banners when the fight was over, and hence the would-be mobbers could not carry out their designs. One of them was seen by a friend to tear the notice off and throw it away. After he had passed on out of sight, the friend gathered up the fragments of the notice and joined them neatly together and gave it to me. It reads exactly as follows:

"Notice.—The people of Ritchie county will not tolerate such religious beliefs and practices as you have, and you are hereby notified to leave the county within ten days, or they will cut you to pieces, as the don't want any Mormons in the county. We don't want to have any trouble with you, but you had better leave at once, to save us the trouble of whipping and tarring and feathering you. This from head quarters."

This last remark is true. All such notices come from "head quarters." I think it proper that all such little complimentary notices be printed and preserved as they properly belong in the history of a great work. The elders all ought to have the pleasure of reading them to compare with those they have themselves received, for they all read alike from Maine to California.

If Archibald had gained the day and the people had voted in favor of their side, this notice was prepared ready to be sent to me, and I would have received the treatment indicated. But alas for their "side!" The poor old man did not give satisfaction, although he poured hot shot into "Mormonism" for three days; almost as good as even Braden himself could have done it. They purchased, I am told, a promissory note which was held by "one of the brethren Disciples" and paid him off in his own paper.

I baptized one in that county last Sunday and more are expected. I have many calls in that county now and no prospect of being "cut to pieces."

D. L. Shinn.

GREENVILLE, Pa., May 26th.

Dear Brn:—The work is moving in the Pittsburgh and Kirtland District and we note its progress with joy and thankfulness, because it is salvation to every one who obeys it with full purpose of heart. A good sister remarked last Sunday that it was so different from any former religious experience. There is so much food in it for the soul; it is so satisfying, yet ever bringing to us new experiences which draw us nearer to the Father. We praise him for the gospel!

Wife and self have many pleasant memories of our trip to the late conference at St. Joseph. Our genial brethren E. C. Briggs and Frank Criley were pleasant companions in travel, and although we were on the train from Saturday evening until Monday noon, the ride was by no means tedious, but quite the reverse. With deep thankfulness we took note of the Father's love and care for his servants when we saw how our beloved brethren Briggs and Lambert who had been suffering from severe sickness and prostration of body so recently, were yet, by his blessing, enabled to endure the exceedingly laborious duties in the quorum. Night and day, with but little relaxation, this quorum was in session during the entire conference, and part of the quorum several days before conference convened. It was exhausting to the strongest physical

We very much enjoyed the prayer meetings, the preaching of the word, and the association with the brethren and sisters; but we could not think of leaving out a visit to Lamoni when so near, and reluctantly leaving conference Friday morning, we started, meeting on the street cars Bishop Rogers and son, and at the station Bro. and Sr. Tilton, Bro. and Sr. Hudson, Sr. Garratt, Bro. Claus and one or two others whose images rise up as we write, but whose names we are unable, just now, to recall,--all bound for Lamoni. How glad we were of their company! A pleasant one it was. The trip was enlivened with the songs of Zion until Bethany junction was reached and shortly after Lamoni. We were escorted to Bro. Salyard's house by our kindly Sr. Garratt, and were made welcome by Sr. Salyards-Bro. S. being at conference.

Saturday morning a short visit was made to our noble Sr. Walker's, with whose usefulness and talents the church has been so greatly blessed. To us the communion was sweet,—hallowed by the the presence of the Spirit of the Master. May she long be spared to honor our heavenly Father in her calling! We could not but feel deeply for the afflicting bereavement brought upon this lovely home, calling to a higher sphere the husband and father, whose acquaintance in the flesh we were not privileged to have, but whom we expect to know, when, like him, our life work here is ended. May the Father be very tender and compassionate to them is our prayer. We were pleased to meet here Sr. Louis Walker and Sr. Lyons.

A flying visit to Sr. Elvin and family, Sr. Stebbins, and the Herald office, completed our time.

We were kindly shown through the latter establishment of which we felt rather proud, though they are sadly in need of a building almost twice as large to answer the demands of their largely increasing business. Considering how they are crowded now, it is a marvel how they can do the work at all. Brn. Cochran, Scott and Deam were all very kind. Thanks for courtesies extended, brethren.

We should much have enjoyed a stay over Sunday, and an acquaintance with others of the Saints, but previous engagements made it necessary for us to leave Lamoni Saturday, -a drive to Bro. Joseph Smith's house being one of the anticipated pleasures we were forced to forego. Sadly we gave the parting hand. At the Junction we met many of the brethren returning from conference, which made it all the harder to continue our journey. For once in our lives, at least, we were strongly tempted to turn back. However, in company with Bro. Eflils Short, we were soon on the way again, watching Lamoni until hid from view, and reaching St. Joseph in time to hear Bro. R. M. Elvin's able effort on the Book of Mormon.

Sunday noon found us at Independence, the guests of our genial Bro. and Sr. J. A. Robinson, whom to know is to love. Also met here our gifted Bro. M. H. Bond, and Bro. R. G. Smith and Sr. Lizzie Hulmes, of Pittsburgh. The meeting with the Saints in the afternoon was grand indeed. After an enjoyable tea with Bro. and Sr. Murphy, we again repaired to church and Bro. J. J. Cornish gave us an able sermon in the evening to a house where standing room was at a premium. Bro. C.'s special gift seems to be to make the gospel plain, as over eight hundred of his children in the gospel can testify.

Monday we enjoyed a visit to Sr. M. E. Salyards', an old time acquaintance, Bro. McCallum's Bro. Murphy's, Brn. Mills and Luff, and a ride—through Bro. Murphy's kindness—in company with Bro. Bond, sisters Newton and Hulmes and brethren Newton and Smith, wherein we were privileged to view some of the grandest scenery the writer ever beheld along the Missouri River, with Liberty Courthouse in the distance. The day was lovely and we could but exclaim, "Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth." At night Bro. Alex. H. Smith presented the word amid deep interest.

Tuesday morning we were enroute for St. Louis, and on Wednesday morning arrived at the home of our aged grandparents-Bro. and Sr. Seichrist-near Jeffersonville, Wayne county, Illinois. They are strong in the faith, but sadly miss church privileges, not having a conveyance of their own. Enjoyed a two-days' stay with them and uncle, aunt, and cousins, and a short visit with Bro. Thomas. Friday, enroute for Indianapolis, Indiana, spending a few days with mother and sisters. Monday morning found us in Cleveland, Ohio, and in the afternoon at Kirtland, guests of Bro. and Sr. Griffiths, meeting there Bro. T. W. Williams, one of the clerks of conference. Tuesday evening spoke to Saints and friends in Kelley's hall with poor liberty. Here the Father manifested his loving kindness to wife and self. Shortly after retiring for the night Bro. Griffiths came to the door with a message from the Lord, making known some things concerning our future movements upon which we were in doubt and undecided, bringing joy, comfort and thankfulness to our souls. An apostle of the Lord coming with a message from the Lord in one hand and a lamp in the other, seemed to us both appropriate and suggestive. Wednesday morning enroute again for home where we arrived at one p. m., finding all well, for which we felt grateful.

The first Sunday in May I filled my appointment in Conneaut township—preached morning and evening with excellent liberty; administered sacrament in afternoon, and blessed young son of Bro. and Sr. Corey. We had a good meeting.

The second Sunday in May met Bro Griffiths at Pittsburg, fulfilling district conference appointment, for which we were made a committee. Bro. Griffiths preached with liberty and acceptance. The Saints' meeting in afternoon was refreshing.

Last Sunday was with the Saints near Warren. Ohio. Preached in house of Mr. and Sr. Shafer with good liberty. At the close of this service we repaired to the water and had the great pleasure of baptizing into Christ Sr. Alice Pinkerton, Confirmation in the afternoon, when the Sacrament was administered and every one bore their testimony. All were melted to tears, and it was a time long to be remembered. Administered to Sr. Shafer who was bedfast, and felt constrained of the Spirit to rebuke the disease. Trust ere this she is fully recovered. In the evening again spoke to an audience that packed the room. Was blessed with all the liberty could ask. If the Saints continue faithful, prayerful, humble and consistent in their lives, there will soon be others added to their number who will honor the work. There are five of the Saints there now. Bro. Leonard Scott is held in high esteem there for the work done among them. They would be glad to see him return.

To day I administered to the Saints heremembers of my own family—in whose welfare I am deeply interested. I think it just as essential for them to partake of the "bread of life" as other Saints, that they may have life. "Except ye eat my flesh and drink my blood there is no life in you" is a truth that even my family can not disregard nor neglect, and yet bear fruit meet for eternal life. Next Sunday will be at Conneaut Township again, and so goes the work. I desire to see Saints and friends in other places in the district so soon as I can reach them. The Lord speed His work everywhere.

W. H. GARRETT.

BETTER THAN FIGHTING.

We have two schools in our town not far from each other. They used to play foot-ball together. One day the ball disappeared. One school accused the other of stealing it. Seven boys started out and dared the other boys to meet them. Only four went out to do so, including John Williams. When Jack Miller approached him with scowling brow and doubled fist John said, "Come, Jack, let us talk it all over." The two met, one with open hands and face, the other with doubled fist and scowls. Jack said: "I'll teach you to steal a foot-ball." John replied. "We have not stolen the ball. Wait a week and maybe it will be found. If the ball is lost we will pay for it." The dark brow cleared, hands were held out, and the boys shook them. Armies fight, wound and kill to settle disputes. Why not settle them before fighting.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

BORN AGAIN.

"Except a man be born again, he can not see the kingdom of God." As many have taken in hand to write articles upon the above subject, I feel like telling the many readers of the good Herald what I understand is meant by being born again, and how this work is accomplished. In the first place, what is it that is to be born again? Most assuredly it is the spirit of man, for it is that which is in bondage and needs deliverance, or to be born again. The first thing that is necessary to a birth is to be begotten. As in nature, so in the Spirit. How is man begotten? By the Spirit through the word, as the scriptures say; and this word must be preached by one having authority. For Paul said, "How can they preach except they be sent." Again, "No man taketh this honor unto himself but he that was called of God, as was Aaron." So when a man who has an honest heart, hears the word spoken by God's called and sent men, and receives the word spoken, he receives faith, or itthe word—begets faith in the man's heart. He is then begotten by the Spirit, and then commences the travail to birth; as in nature, so in the Spirit.

This travail consists in repentance, humility of soul, the receiving of the Spirit unto the remission of sins and manifesting it unto the Church as is required in the book of Doctrine and Covenants. Then they are ready to be born again. How? Of water and the Spirit, both in connection; not that there are two births—one of water and one of the Spirit,—but one birth, which is of water and the Spirit of God.

How is it accomplished? By being baptized by a legal administrator, and being at the same time and place delivered by the Spirit also, or in connection with water baptism, as our Lord and Master said to Nicodemus, "Except a man be born of water and the Spirit he can not enter into the kingdom of heaven"—or of God.

Again, by way of explanation, he says: "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell from whence it cometh, nor whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit." Thus when a man who is a proper subject for baptism is baptized by a legal administrator, he then receives the work that the Spirit does and has to do in the birth or deliverance from sins, that is, past sins are pardoned, made free; an heir in the kingdom of God, or the church of Jesus Christ.

"But," says one, "I thought a man was born of the Spirit when he received the laying on of hands." Well, let us see. We are told by Paul to "prove all things, hold fast that which is good." Now here comes a man who has heard the word preached by one of God's ministers and has believed it, and has repented and demands baptism at the hands of a priest, for there is no elder in that section of country, as is the case in many sections, and the priest, who is authorized to administer baption, baptizes the man but he can not lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, consequently the man has to do without that being done for some time. and it may be for all time because he is liable to die without ever seeing an elder in the world. Now, what would be the condition of that man if he was to die in that condition in the world to come; being only born of water and not of the Spirit? If a man is born of the Spirit when he receives the laying on of hands, it seems to me he would be only half born, as it takes the water and the Spirit in connection to complete the birth. Then, you see, I understand that to be born again and to receive the gift of the Holy Ghost are two things, or, in other words, to be born again and to receive the gift of the Holy Ghost through laving on of hands are two things -one is to deliver from sins that are past, the other to give spiritual life and qualify the individual to live the life of a Christian by bestowing upon the faithful servant of Christ every needed gift and blessing in life, and prepare him for the world to come.

If I am wrong, will some brother set me right? I will stop writing on this subject and wait and see what the good brethren think of what I have already written.

E. W. Nunley.

THE "SEALED BOOK."—No. X.

BY ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

As another element of civilization I present, Mining, Metals, Pottery, etc; Mac-Lean says: "The finding of various implements made of the more precious minerals would not in itself indicate that the Mound Builders engaged in mining. Copper was extensively used, and yet this material has been found in various pounds weight in the valley of the Connecticut, and near New Haven a mass was found weighing ninety pounds. It is found in small pieces in New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois. Small pieces have been picked up in various localities in Ohio. It is probable that the copper found in Connecticut and New Jersey originates from the red sandstone formation, while in Indiana and Illinois it was deposited during the drift. In Ohio it has been possibly dropped by the hand of man.

"What is true of copper is not so of galena, obsidian, mica and silver. Considerable quantities of galena, have been found in the mounds of Ohio. Upon one of the altars within a mound in 'Mound City' (three miles above Chillicothe) a quantity of galena was found which had been exposed to the action of fire. It is of frequent occurence on the sacrificial altars, and met with in quantities of thirty pounds weight. Plumb bobs and net sinkers are met with of this material, and yet no original deposits are known in the state of Ohio. Obsidian, a peculiar glass-like stone of volcanic origin, is obtained from some of the mounds, but in very small quantities, and in the shape of arrow and spear points and cutting implements. This mineral has not been met with in situ north of Mexico and east of the Rocky Mountains. Mica (commonly called isingglass) has been taken in large quantities from the mounds, and often plowed up in the neighborhood of the enclosures. In the sepulchral mound, in the center of the earth-work at Circleville, Ohio, there was taken out a sheet of mica three feet long, one foot and a half wide, and an inch and a half in thickness. In the year 1828, in one of the mounds near Newark, Ohio, regular layers of mica plates, from eight to ten inches in length, four or five inches wide, and from half an inch to one inch in thickness were found covering fourteen human skeletons in an advanced state of decomposition.

"From this mound there were taken about twenty bushels of mica. As mica is found in large quantities and carefully hid away in the mounds, it is evident that it was regarded as of great value. It was used for mirrors, ornaments, and as it has been found covering the skeletons, may have been looked upon as having supernatural properties. Mica is found in New Hampshire and North Carolina. In the former state it has been found from two to three feet in diameter; but there is no evidence that the Mound Builders penetrated that far east. Neither have any ancient mines been discovered there. Traces of wrought silver have been found but they are exceedingly scarce, and constituted no technical importance among them. The polished stone implements composed of greenish slate of a close grain have already received attention. stone is not found in original deposits in the valley of the Mississippi, unless it be upon the rim of the basin. It belongs to the oldest sedimentary formation, and occurs in considerable masses along the Atlantic coast, and has been observed from Rhode Island to Canada.

"From these considerations alone we readily infer that the Mound Builders either engaged in mining or else trafficked with those nations who did so engage. In 1847, about one year before the ancient copper mines were discovered, it was pointed out that the probable source of the copper and silver was the region of Lake Superior. The discovery of the ancient mines has set all speculations at rest. In the copper regions of Lake Superior have been found numerous excavations in the solid rock from which the copper has been extracted. Upon examination it has been discovered that the whole extent of the copper bearing region was resorted to by this ancient race. The ancient trenches and pits were found to be filled even with the surrounding country, and were not detected until many years after the region had been thrown open to actual exploration.

"Mining began effectively in 1845 and it was not until 1848 that S. O. Knapp, then the agent of the Minnesota Mining Company, made the discovery. In passing over a portion of the company's grounds, in the winter of 1847-8, he observed a continuous depression in the soil, which he conjectured was formed by the disintegration of a vein. Following up these indications, he came to a cavern where he noticed evidence of artificial excavation. On cleansing out the rubbish, afterwards, he found numerous stone hammers, and at the bottom was seen a vein with ragged projections which the ancient miners had not detatched. . .

"At a depth of eighteen feet, among a mass of leaves, sticks and water, Mr. Knapp discovered a detached mass of copper weighing six tons. This mass had been raised about five feet along the foot of the lode on timbers, by means of wedges, and was left upon a cob-work of logs. These logs were from six to eight inches in diameter, the ends of which plainly showed the marks of a cutting tool. The upper surface and edges of the mass of copper were beaten and pounded smooth, showing that the irregular, protruding pieces had been broken off. Near it were found other masses. On the walls of the shaft were marks of fire. Besides charcoal there was found a stone sledge weighing thirty-six pounds, and a copper maul weighing twenty-five pounds.

"Stone mauls, ashes and charcoal have been found in all these mines. On the Island known as Isle Royal, near the northern shore of the lake, these ancient works of man are very extensive, and some of the pits are sixty feet in depth. On opening one of the pits of this island, it was discovered that the mine had been worked through solid rock to the depth of nine feet. At the bottom was a vein of pure copper eighteen inches thick. These miners were intelligent and experienced, for they not only showed rare powers of observation in locating the veins, but also displayed much knowledge in following them up when interrupted. The excavations are connected underground, and drains are cut into the rock to carry off the water. At one point the excavations extend for over two miles in a nearly continuous direcion."

"From the accumulation of evidence in these ancient trenches, and the copper implements in the mounds, we have the proof that these ancient people not only toiled in building the mounds, but also toiled in the copper mines of Lake Superior. They were a toiling, plodding people." * * * "While gangs of men were operating the mines of Lake Superior, there were others engaged in searching for mica in the mountainous regions of North Carolina. The diggings in the mica regions were open excavations. Some of the excavations are extended for several hundred feet. As in the copper mines, so here the same judgment was displayed. The richest veins yet discovered show that there the ancient excavations are the most extensive. The kinds of mica now refused were then rejected, carrying the best away to their homes in the north." * * * "In all these operations it is evident that the mining was not only conducted under a well organized effort, but the Mound Builders had their leaders, or foremen, and were skilled, and had a thorough acquaintance with their work."—Mound Builders, p. 74-S1.

Baldwin says: "Modern mining on Lake Superior began effectively in 1845. The whole copper region has not been fully explored. Works of the ancient miners are found at all the mines of any importance and they show remarkable skill in discovering and tracing actual veins of metal."—Ancient America, p. 46.

Jones says: "In 1834, Coles, Merriwether and Lumsden, while engaged in digging a canal in Duke's Creek Valley for the purpose of facilitating their mining operations, unearthed a subterraneous village consisting of thirty-four small cabins, located in a straight line extending upward of three hundred feet. They were made of logs hewn at the ends and notched down after the fashion of the rude log huts of the present day. This hewing and notching had evidently been done with sharp metallic tools, the marks being such as would have been caused by a chopping ax. In Valley River valley, the writer is informed, eleven old shafts have been found, varying in depth from ninety to one hundred feet. In 1854, one of them was cleaned out, and at the depth of ninety feet the workmen found a windlass of postoak, well hewn, with an inch auger hole through each end. Distinct traces appeared where it had been banded with iron. Another shaft for twenty-five feet passed through gneiss rock. Its sides were scarred by the marks of the sharp tools used in forcing a passage through this hard substance. Six miles southeast of this locality are five other shafts similar in age and construction. The presence of iron and the marks of sharp metalic tools, prove that these ancient mining operations can not be referred to the labors of Indians." (The places above described by Jones are located in the State of Georgia. See Antiquities of Southern Indians, pp. 48-9.)

Reader, do not let the question and evidence of IRON escape your notice, for I will emphasize this one metal as a witness for the Book of Mormon.

Of these same mines Bryant says: "From these ancient mines, of whose workings the Indians had no tradition, was supplied the metal used by the Mound Builders, a thousand miles distant in the valley of the Mississippi. From that agricultural region, probably, the miners came with their supplies for their summer's support; and the method of conveyance which took them and their provisions to the mines, sufficed no doubt, for carrying back the ore to market across the lakes and the long land journey." "Of this copper mining the Indians had even no tradition, and among them at the time of European discovery, copper was only used, and that rarely, for purposes of rude ornament."-History of

United States, vol. 1, p. 30.

Priest says: "In Liberty township, Washington county, Ohio, are yet to be seen twenty or thirty rude furnaces, built of stone, with hearths of clay, containing pieces of stone coal, and cinders, perhaps used in smelting ore. Large trees are still growing on them, and attest their age. They stand in the midst of a rich body of iron ore, and in a wild, hilly, and rough part of the country, better adapted to manufactures than to agriculture."-An Inquiry into the Origin of American Antiquities,

P. 55.
Bryant gives the following description of copper instruments recently discovered in Wisconsin: "An adze with wings for fitting. An arrow head with wings for fitting to arrow. A knife with socket for handle. A chisel apparently cast, the roughness showing sand mould, and white spots of melted silver. An awl. A spear head, II inches in length, with socket for handle. An adze."-History of United States, vol. 1, p. 31.

This is strong testimony, substantiating the statement of the Book of Mormon, that the Nephites, the ancient people of America, made all manner of tools.

Speaking of discoveries at Circleville, Ohio, Priest says: "About twenty feet to the north of it was another skeleton, with which was found a large mirror about three feet in length, one and a half in width, and one inch and a half in thickness;-this was of isinglass. On this mirror was a plate of iron, which had become an oxide; but before it was disturbed by the spade resembled a plate of cast iron. mirror was a monstrous piece of isinglass, a lucid mineral, larger than we recollect to have ever heard of before, and used among the rich of the ancients for lights and mirrors. A mirror of any kind, in which men may be enabled to contemplate their own form, is evidence of a considerable degree of advancement in the arts, if not even of luxury itself."--Inquiry, Origin Am. Ant., p. 178-9.

Of the arts among the Mound Builders he says: "But as to the state of the arts among the more ancient nations of America, some idea may be gathered from what has already been said. That they manufactured brick of a good quality, is known from the discoveries made on opening their tumuli. A vast many instances, of articles made of copper, and sometimes plated with silver, have been met with on opening their works. Circular pieces of copper intended either as medals or breast plates, have been found, several inches in diameter, very much injured by time. In several tumuli, the remains of knives, and even of swords, in the form of rust, have been discovered.—Ibid, p. 256.

Atwater says: "Mirrors of isinglass have been found in as many as fifty places within my own knowledge, besides the large and elegant one at Circleville."—

Quoted by Priest, p. 257.
Priest says again: "Two stone covers of stone vessels were found in a stone mound, in Ross county, Ohio, ingeniously wrought and highly polished. These covers resembled almost exactly, and were quite equal to vessels of that material manufactured in Italy at the present time." -Ibid p. 257.

In the foregoing Mr. Priest pays quite a compliment to Nephite skill in fine arts.

He says again: "Among the vast variety of discoveries made in the mounds, tumuli and fortifications of these people, [the Mound Builders], have been found not only hatchets made of stone; but axes as large, and much of the same shape with those made of iron at the present day; also pickaxes and pestles,—see plates Nos. 11 and 12,-with various other instruments made of stone. But besides there have been found very well manufactured swords and knives of iron, and possibly steel, says Mr. Atwater."—Ibid, p. 259.

Baldwin says of the Mound Builders:

"The articles manufactured of stone show fine workmanship; some of them are elaborately carved. Tools of some very hard material must have been required to work the porphyry in this manner."-Ancient America, p. 40.

Rev. M. T. Lamb, in his book, "The Golden Bible," tells us on page 300 and 301, under the caption of Iron, Steel and Brass, that: "The Book of Mormon tells us that iron, steel and brass were in common use among the ancient Nephites as as they are used to-day.... Against these fictitious words the authorities are positive and numerous."

These words are misleading and unfair. As the Book of Mormon does not say that these metals "were in common use, as they are to-day;" that was an unjust comparison. Mr. Lamb writes as if he expected to find rolling mills, iron and brass founderies, such as we find at Pittsburgh, Detroit, and St. Louis, and other manufacturing cities all over North and South America—just on account of the claim that the metals were used. Let the candid reader consider and decide whether the authorities agree with Mr. Lamb, or with said Book of Mormon.

METALLURGY.

"The Atlanteans mined ores, and worked in metals; they used copper, tin, bronze, gold and silver, and probably iron. The American nations possessed all these metals. The age of bronze, or of copper combined with tin, was preceded in America, and nowhere else, by a simpler age of copper; and, therefore, the working of metals probably originated in America, or in some region to which it was tributary. The Mexicans manufactured bronze, and the Incas mined iron near Lake Titacaca; and the civilization of this latter region, as we will show, probably dated back to Atlantean times. The Peruvians called gold the tears of the sun. It was sacred to the sun, as silver was to the moon."-Atlantis p. 140.

"Iron.-We have seen that the Greek mythological legends asserted that before the submergence of the great race over whom their gods reigned, there had been not only an age of bronze, but an age of iron. This metal was known to the Egyptians in the earliest ages; fragments of iron have been found in the oldest pyr-The iron age in northern Europe far antedated intercourse with the Greeks or Romans. In the mounds of the Mississippi valley, as I have shown, the remains of iron implements have been found. In the 'Mecurio Peruano' (tom. 1., p. 201, 1791,) it is stated that 'Anciently the Peruvian sovereigns worked magnificent iron mines at Ancoriames, on the west shore of Lake Titicaca.'

"'It is remarkable,' says Molina, 'that iron, which has been thought unknown to the ancient Americans, had particular names in some of their tongues.' In official Peruvian it was called quillary, and in Chilian, panilic. The Mound Builders fashioned implements out of meteoric iron. -Foster's 'Prehistoric Races,' p. 333.-Atlantis, p. 451.

If iron was unknown to the ancient Americans, how comes it that the people of Peru and Chili had words or names for it in their language?

Again he says: "We find the remains of an iron sword and meteoric iron weapons in the mounds of the Missisippi valley, while the name of the metal is found in the ancient languages of Peru and Chili, and the Incas worked in iron on the shores of Lake Titicaca."—Ibid p. 462.

This author draws from the archælogical writings of a number of eminent authorities in support of his statements. He says of the ancient people of America: "They worked in copper, silver and lead, and there are evidences, as we shall see, that they wrought even in iron. Copper implements are very numerous in the mounds. Copper axes, spear heads, hollow buttons, bosses for ornaments, bracelets, rings etc., are found in very many of them strikingly similar to those of the bronze age in Europe. In one in Butler county, Ohio, was found a copper fillet around the head of a skeleton, with strange devices marked upon it. Silver ornaments have also been found, but not in such great numbers. They seem to have attached a high value to silver, and it is often found in sheets no thicker than paper, wrapped over copper or stone ornaments so neatly as almost to escape detection. The great esteem in which they held a metal so intrinsically valueless as silver, is another evidence that they must have drawn their superstitions from the same source as the European nations.

"Copper is also often found in this manner plated over stone pipes, presenting an unbroken metalic lustre, the overlapping edges so well polished as to be scarcely discoverable. Beads and stars made of shells have sometimes been found doubly plated, first with copper, then with silver.

"The Mound Builders also understood the art of casting metals, or they held intercourse with some race who did: a copper axe 'cast' has been found in the state of New York."-(See Lubbock's 'Prehistoric Times' p. 254, note.)

"Professor Foster (Prehistoric Races," p. 259,) also proves that the ancient people of the Mississippi valley possessed this art, and he gives us representations of various articles plainly showing the marks of the mould upon them.

"A rude article in the shape of an ax, composed of pure lead, weighing about half a pound, was found in sinking a well within a trench of the ancient works at Circleville. There can be no doubt it was the production of the Mound Builders, as galena has often been found on the altars in the mounds.

"It has been generally thought, by Mr. Squier and others, that there were no evidences that the Mound Builders were acquainted with the use of iron, or that their plating was more than the simple overlaying of one metal on another, or on some foreign substance.

"Some years since, however, a mound was opened at Marietta, Ohio, which seems to have refuted these opinions. Dr. S. P. Hildreth in a letter to the American Antiquarian Society thus speaks of it: 'Lying immediately over on the forehead of of the body were found three large circular bosses, or ornaments for a sword-belt or buckler; they were composed of copper overlaid with a thick plate of silver. The fronts are slightly convex, with a depression like a cup in the center, and they measure two inches and a quarter across the face of each. On the back side, opposite the depressed portion, is a copper rivet or nail, around which are two sepate plates by which they were fastened to the leather. Two small pieces of leather were found lying between the plates of one of the bosses; they resemble the skin of a mummy, and seem to have been preserved by the salts of copper. Near the side of the body was found a plate of silver, which appears to have been the upper part of a sword scabbard; it is six inches in length, two in breadth, and weighs one ounce. It seems to have been fastened to the scabbard by three or four rivets, the holes of which remain in the silver.

"'Two or three pieces of copper tube were also found, filled with iron-rust. These pieces, from their appearance, composed the lower end of the scabbard, near the point of the sword. No sign of the sword itself were discovered, except the rust above mentioned.

The mound had every appearance of being as old as any in the neighborhood, and was at the first settlement of Marietta covered with large trees. It seems to have been made for this single personage, as this skeleton alone was discovered. The bones were very much decayed and many of them crumbled to dust upon exposure to the air.

"Mr. Squier says: 'These articles have been critically examined and it is beyond doubt that the copper bosses were absolutely plated, not simply overlaid with silver. Between the copper and the silver exists a connection such as it seems to me could only be produced by heat; and if it is admitted that these are genuine relics of the Mound Builders, it must at the same time be admitted that they possessed the difficult art of plating one metal upon another. There is but one alternative, namely, that they had occasional or constant intercourse with a people advanced in the arts from whom these articles were obtained. Again, if Dr. Hildreth is not mistaken, oxidized iron or steel was also discovered in connection with the above remains, from which also follows the extraordinary conclusion that the Mound Builders were acquainted with the use of iron, the conclusion being, of course, subject to the improbable alternative already

"In connection with this subject we would refer to the interesting evidences that the copper mines of Lake Superior had been at some remote period worked by the Mound Builders. There were found deep excavations with rude ladders, huge masses of rock broken off, also numerous stone tools and all the evidences of extensive and long continued labor. It is even said that the great Ontonagon mass of pure copper which is now in Washington was excavated by these ancient miners and that when first found its surface showed numerous marks of their tools."

"There seems to be no doubt, then, that the Mound Builders were familiar with the use of copper, silver and lead, and in all probability in iron."—Atlantis, pps.

376-8.

The only amendment that I would offer to the conclusions arrived at, would be by dropping "Mound Builders" and inserting the word "Nephites." When a child, in company with my father in the summer of 1856, I visited a mine of ancient appearance, we found a number of pieces of lead, one fully a pound in weight. Father, who was acquainted with several of the Indian chiefs, made inquiry of them in relation to these mines, and notwithstanding it was within their territory they had no knowledge of who operated them.

To be continued.

THE PLAN OF SALVATION.

"What must I do to be saved?"—Acts 16:30.

"This is the plan of salvation."—Gen. 6:65, Inspired Translation.

Ever since the fall of Adam mankind has been trying to solve the problem at the beginning of this article. Various have been the devices invented and curious enough the schemes concocted whereby men have tried to overcome the difficulties with which they have been beset on every hand since the fall of our first father.

But nothing, from the tower of Babel down to the latest invention in the shape of a theological system, has man ever been able to bring forth, unaided by the Spirit of God, that would satisfy the longings of his immortal soul. Created in the image of God, though fallen, enough of that divine nature remained to render him forever dissatisfied until restored to that which he had lost by transgression.

But the fall was voluntary on the part of man, and so must the redemption be on the part of the Creator. No promise had been made of salvation if the one command given to Adam was violated; but immediately upon his conviction of sin the promise of restitution was given.

In the very nature of the case it was necessary that the plan of salvation should be made known by revelation. Man could not study it out; for he did not even know that any ransom for his life would be paid, much less what that ransom would be, or upon what conditions it would be offered.

The promise made to the woman that her seed should bruise the head of the serpent, was the first intimation the guilty pair had that anything but death would be their portion. But as all the component parts of the mighty oak are contained in embryo in the acorn, so the vast scheme of redemption was concentrated in that one little sentence pronounced npon the serpent: "He [the seed of the woman] shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."—Gen. 3:21, I. T.

Without tracing the germination of this gospel seed, and its budding forth in the sacrifices offered by Abel, its further development in the Levitical system, and the complete gospel tree as manifested by Christ and his apostles, with its ripe and perfect fruit to be realized in individual Christian experience, I will take a somewhat different course and investigate consecutively the three different steps going to make what the second text we have quoted in the beginning of this article declares is the "plan of salvation."

In the sixty third verse of the chapter from which the verse referred to above is taken, we read: "For by the water ye keep the commandment, by the Spirit ve are justified and by the blood ve are sanctified." And then in the sixty-fifth verse: "This is the plan of salvation."

These very plain and precious Scriptures are eliminated from the King James Translation altogether with many more plain and precious things; and if Joseph Smith had never done any more than to restore these precious Scriptures, he would not have lived in vain.

We shall examine this subject under three heads, I, Water Baptism; 2, Justification by the Spirit, and 3d, Sanctification by the Blood.

I. WATER BAPTISM.

When Adam transgressed the divine command, he did not incur thereby physical pollution, but the purity of his soul was contaminated and his conscience became corrupt.

But of what use could a physical washing, or baptism be for the removal of spiritual defilement? This question has been asked over and over and over again, until it would almost seem as if mankind thought some better way could be devised for the salvation of the human race than that revealed by the author of the wonderful plan of salvation.

When Elisha said to Naaman, "Go dip in Jordan seven times," he thought he knew better than the prophet; but his servant was wiser than he, and his advice is worthy the prayerful consideration of all: "If the prophet had bid thee do some great thing wouldst thou not have done it? How much more then when he says, wash and be clean."

Ah, Yes! There is just where proud human nature stumbles! It is the simplicity of the plan of salvation, that so mystifies mankind in their fallen condition. If they could only do something that would actually remove their sin and undo the act which brought death on the human race, how great would be their alacrity to comply! And then they could boast and say: "I fell it is true; but see, I have regained what I lost and reinstated myself in the blissful Eden of my original innocence."

And then Christ would have none of the glory. But no. This is not the plan of salvation. Man fell by the transgression of an arbitrary commandment justly given him by his wise and beneficent Creator, as a test of his filial love and obedience by which he should have developed a righteous character; and having fallen in this way, he can not return in any other way than by obedience to a similar commandment.

It is futile to speculate or contend as to whether baptism really does or does not remove sin; it matters not to the individual. God has revealed this as one step in the plan of salvation, and it only remains for the sinner to accept of the terms of salvation upon the gospel plan.

It is of no use for us to propose a scheme of our own whereby we may return to God, or substitute any institution of our own in the place of the ordinance God has set in the church. All such inventions of men are but an insult to the Almighty. God was under no obligation to redeem man after he had willfully violated the only condition imposed upon him whereby he would have retained the favor of his divine Creator.

After having paid the enormous price of man's redemption, even the life of his own dear Son, the Father may well say upon what conditions the benefit of that atonement could be obtained by man. Paul has tersely summed up the whole matter in a few words when he says of Christ that he "became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him."

This is the secret of the whole matter. "If we be willing and obedient," says the Prophet Isaiah, "ye shall eat the good of the land; but if ye refuse and rebel, a sword shall devour you, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

Let those beware who fight the ordinance of baptism. Although, as they say, it may possibly not be a saving ordinance, per se, yet it will surely become a condemning ordinance if it is rejected, for it is acknowledged by all to be a commandment of God, and if so, we can not violate it with impunity.

Some will ask "If baptism is for the remission of sins, can any one obtain the remission of sins without baptism?"

We know that this is a controverted point and do not propose to enter into any lengthy discussion of the subject at this time; we simply design giving a few testimonies from sources generally regarded as authorities by Latter Day Saints.

The first one we shall give is Joseph the Seer. He says: "It is dangerous to say that no one can receive the forgiveness of sins without having been baptized."

Cornelius received the gift of the Holy Ghost before submitting to the ordinance of baptism.

Alma testified, "I am born of God," before he had had the opportunity of being baptized.—Mosiah 11:22.

Another important testimony upon this engrossing subject is found in Alma 12: 18, where Abish, a servant woman of king Lamoni, had been "converted unto the Lord for many years on account of a remarkable vision of her father," never having had the opportunity of being baptized.

Time and space forbids making mention of the many similar cases recorded in the Book of Mormon; suffice it to say that it was not only common, but it seemed to be the rule in many of those glorious revivals of religion which broke out from time to time among them for the people to be converted before they were baptized; to "fall under the power," etc., just as they do in modern times, and if the doctrine were sound in other respects, I, for one, could find no fault with these manifestations at the present day.

2. JUSTIFICATION BY THE SPIRIT.

Justification is the state or condition of being justified, or just; or in other words, righteous before God. An unrighteous man is not just, and an unjust man is not righteous.

The Doc. & Cov. 17: 6, says: "We know that justification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true; and we know also that sanctification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ is just and true."

We may know whether we are in a state of justification or not by examining the characteristics of a justified experience. They are:

1st. The Witness of the Spirit.

Paul tells us that God's "Spirit beareth witness with our spirits that we are the children of God."

The witness of the Spirit is that inward-revelation of Christ to the soul as our personal Savior, without which no man can say understandingly that Jesus is the Christ. Without this assurance we can not have confidence toward God. Neither can we know that we are accepted of him. We may have been baptized by one having due authority, but unless we have the witness of the Spirit, we can not be sure that he has accepted the administration.

2d. The Fruits of the Spirit.

This is the second evidence we shall notice of justification. Having the Spirit of God, we have love, and John tells us "He that loveth is born of God."

Love begets joy, and this is increased by the knowledge that we are born of God, and that our sins are forgiven; and peace of mind and all the precious fruits of the Spirit follow in their order, as the result of our having laid down the weapons of our warfare and taken the oath of allegiance to the government of God.

But this is not all. The fruits of the Spirit are convincing proof to the individual that he has passed from death unto life, but something more is necessary to prove to others infallibly that the change has been wrought. This proof is found in what we shall denominate the third evidence of justificaction.

3d. The Gifts of the Spirit.

In the unfolding of the plan of salvation the gifts of the Spirit perform an important part. These are denominated, prophecy, healings, tongues, miracles, etc., etc. There is no equivocation in the promise of the bestowment of these gifts. Jesus said, "These signs shall follow them that believe." This "shall" is just as positive as the ones preceding it, where he says: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; and he that believeth not shall be damned."

"What are the signs for?" They are to convince unbelievers and believers. Paul tells us that "prophecy is a sign to them that believe" and that "tongues are a sign to them that believe not." Believers have a right to expect of believers that some sign of their believership shall follow their profession, but they have no right to be unreasonable in their demands. One may have the gift of faith, another a gift of understanding dispensations, another a gift of testimony, etc., etc., but all are expected to have some gift, and in the exercise of that gift to edify the body.

Third and last we shall notice,

SANCTIFICATION BY THE BLOOD.

Water can cleanse ordinary defilement, but nothing but blood can cleanse some things. Even in natural things beef's blood is used to produce the dazzling purity of the whitest sugar and salt. David realized this fact when he said, "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow;" and John testified of Jesus that "he came, not by water only, but by water and blood."

The water can have no virtue only as it is associated with the blood, for "without shedding of blood there is no remission." But there are some things that seem to require something more than water (even when thus associated) to cleanse them. For instance, those whom John saw who had "come up through great tribulation" had "washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb," and I feel that I am giving meat in due season to the Saints at this time, when I exhort them to seek after that holiness of heart which is here typified, and without which "no man shall see the Lord."

Zion is the pure in heart, and it is only those who have "clean hands and pure hearts" who shall "ascend into the hill of the Lord," or "stand in his holy mountain." How important then that we should be purified from all sin! The Spirit is continually testifying that the end is near; let us then be ready, having our "loins girt about" with truth, and we be as "men who wait for their Lord when he shall return from the wedding."

"But how are we to be sanctified?" some will ask. "One says it is by the blood; another says it is by faith; another says it is by the Spirit; another says it is by obedience, and I can't tell how it is."

There is no need of as much confusion on the subject of sanctification as there is. The Scriptures are very plain on this point, and we shall endeavor to show, taking our text for a starting point, what part each of the agencies mentioned above performs in the work of sanctification.

In the first place, we are "sanctified by the blood,"—that is definitely stated in our text. Now if we are sanctified by the blood, we can not be sanctified by anything else in this primary sense of the word; for if that were the case God would be the author of confusion, which we know he is not.

But the blood of itself would never sanctify us without some intelligent agent to apply its virtue. This is the work of the Spirit, for Paul says that God has chosen us to salvation through sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth.

So it is the Spirit that applies the blood; but it must be according to some rule, and that rule is the word. "Sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth."

The word teaches that we should present our "bodies a living sacrifice . . . that" we "may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God;" and "this is the will of God, even your sanctification."

The presenting of our bodies is our part of the work,—it is consecration. It is to be enabled to say in all things with Jesus as he bowed in the garden of Gethsemane: "Father, not my will but thine be done."

And when we take the will of God as our will, we take sanctification, for that is his will, even our sanctification. (I Thess. 4:3.) And if we do not love holiness and seek after it, we may know that our will is not in harmony with the will of God.

And thus obedience, or submission is necessary to sanctification, but it must be accompanied by faith. And this is the procuring cause. Paul said that Jesus told him he would send him to the Gentiles, that they might receive "forgiveness of sins and an inheritance among all them that are sanctified by faith that is in me."

Seeing then that this is to be the condition upon which we are to receive our inheritance, how careful ought we to be that we not only "keep the commandment" "by the water," and are "justified by the Spirit," but that we are also "sanctified by the blood."

And let us not forget the admonition of Paul in this connection, to "be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds."

If we are Christ's we will separate ourselves from the world, that we shall not partake of its spirit nor walk after its ways. And we will let our adorning be in the hidden man of the heart, even a meek and quiet spirit which is in the sight of God of great price.

A. J. DENNIS.

THE LOCOMOTIVE IN PALESTINE.

If the Turkish Government consents it is probable that Palestine will be invaded by locomotives, and that before long the conductor will have an opportunity of calling out "Galilee; all out for Galilee," and in good Turkish, "Damascus passengers will please retain their seats till the train comes to a full stop." Application has been made by Joseph Elias, formerly Government engineer of Lebanon, for a commission for a railway from Haifa, on the Mediterranean, about midway between Tyre and Caesarea, by way of Lake Galilee over River Jordan to Damascus.—Philadelphia Press.

Selections.

RELIGIOUS NEEDS AND METHODS.

THE two great representative bodies of American Presbyterianism are now in session, and their proceedings will be watched with close interest, not only by the adherents of that particular faith, but by people of every sect, and by all intelligent persons outside of church lines. It is to be expected that the familiar question of the corporate reunion of the Northern and Southern branches of the organization will excite discussion, as usual; but it is not likely that the desired end will be brought any nearer. The Southern brethren are evidently determined that the reunion shall not take place except upon the basis of a separate church for the colored people; and the Northern brethren are equally resolute in their opposition to the idea that the two races should approach heaven by different routs, in order to gratify a prejudice which is neither reasonable nor religious. It is true that the former are willing to co-operate with the latter in mission work among the freedmen, but such a compromise is a mere evasion of the main issue, and therefore can not prove satisfactory. If perfect union can not be had, then it is hardly worth while to waste time in considering any other form of agreement.

There is a subject, however, which is more important than this, and which should receive the earnest and practical attention of both Assemblies. We refer to the proposal to revise the Westminster Confession of Faith. It is very well known that certain things in said Confession are no longer taught by the ministers or believed by the members of the Church. This is especially true of the declaration that God has been pleased, "according to the un-searchable counsel of His own will," to foreordain some men and angels to everlasting felicity and others to everlasting misery. Such a doctrine is well characterized by Dr. Crosby as "a metaphysical figment of Augustine and Calvin." the light of present intelligence and spiritual development, it only serves to provoke hurtful criticism, and provide the scoffers with a dangerous weapon. So long as the statement stands, the Church is sure to be held responsible for it, and to be embarrassed by it in the work of promoting the vital truths and purposes of Christianity. The apostles of infidelity are quick to seize an advantage of this sort, and to use it effectively, regardless of all modifying facts and tendencies. To say that the doctrine has been practically discarded is only to invite the reply that the Church is dishonest, then, in preserving it as a part of the Confession. If it is not really believed, the proper thing to do is to eliminate it, and thus remove the pretext for charging that it is still a recognized point of faith.

As Dr. Thompson remarks, the question is one of dismounting artillery that has been used under past conditions, and carrying it around to that side of the fortress where present assaults are being made. The situation demands different methods from those which prevailed in days of less enlightenment and more superstition. It is not true that our age is irreligious, and that skepticism rules in our habits of thought and feeling; but it is true that our spiritual education is seriously defective, and that it is so chiefly because the means of instruction are doubtful and disappointing. The influences of unbelief are not resisted with the best available material. There are too many guns on the wrong side of the fortress. The importance of non-essentials is mistakenly magnified at the expense of fundamental truths. Instead of the gospel in its simplicity of logic and sentiment, we have preached to us far too much of mere theological chaff which neither convinces the intelligence nor arouses the conscience. What we most need is plain talk about plain facts. The strength of the Christian religion lies not in creeds of man's making, but in the easy philosophy of "equitable faith and practice" which antedates all creeds, and requires no help from any of them to establish its veracity or to sustain its vitality. It is the duty of the Church to enforce things of positive value only, and to do it according to common-sense rules and plans; for it is through common sense, after all, that salvation by grace is made possible.— Globe-Democrat.

FROM EARTH TO HEAVEN AND RETURN.

WHILE willing to admit that agnosticism and doubt have taken a strong hold upon humanity many people lose sight of the fact that the effect of this absence of belief is, to a certain extent, offset by a class who believe far more than is generally thought necessary for the salvation of the soul. Spiritualists and believers in the principles of theism may explain many things to their own satisfaction, but there are now and then occurrences which must forever remain unsolved mysteries. A case in point is the recent remarkable experience of Mrs. Charles Collins. Soon after her husband's death she became seriously ill and apparently died. Twelve hours after her supposed death she showed signs of animation and in two hours more was reclining on a sofa conversing with friends.

She related all she had seen and heard in such a plain and concise way no one could doubt the reality of her vision or dream. She said her soul left her body during her comatose condition and went straight to heaven. She declared she saw the Lord, and the marvelous beauty and magnificence of his surroundings were too wonderful to be expressed in words. "All that I saw," said Mr. Collins, "I can never describe in this life, but I know that I was dead and went to heaven, and my eyes beheld its glories. I can affirm that I had personal experiences after the change called death, but which is not death at all: instead of that it is another and perfect existence in joy and glory. Oh, why did you not let me alone? I do not care to stay here now, knowing what unspeakable glories are there." Mrs. Collins told her story calmly and earnestly, honestly lamenting her return to earth. She firmly believes it was neither a dream nor a vision, but that her soul was transported to She is not a believer in modern "spiritualism," and no motive for a deception could be discovered.

A parallel, but if anything more wonderful case, is the trance of the Rev. William Tennent. Almost two centuries have gone since it occurred at New Brunswick, New Jersey. After a regular course of theology, and being in his twenty-fifth year, he was preparing for his ordination. His close application to study had affected his health so much his friends became anxious as to the result. At the same time his spirits were very low and he began to entertain doubts as to his final happiness. One morning as he was conversing with his brother in Latin he fainted and seemed to die. After the usual time his funeral was announced. His physician, who was much attached to him, had gone to a distant city for a short time, but returning just before the hour for the funeral refused to believe his friend was dead. Upon being told that one of the attendants had observed a slight tremor of the flesh, he investigated the fact, although there seemed to be no hope of reviving what seemed to be a cold and inanimate corpse. But he determined to make a trial. He first held his hand in warm water to make it as sensitive as possible and then felt under the arms and above the heart and affirmed that he noticed an unusual warmth, apparent to no one else. He had the body placed in a warm bed and ordered the postponement of the funeral. The brother objected to this, saying it was absurd, as the eyes were sunken, the lips discolored, and the whole body cold and stiff; however, the doctor prevailed, and all known restoratives were applied to produce symptoms of returning life.

The third day arrived and no one entertained any hope except the doctor, who remained day and night. The funeral was again announced, but still he objected, and at last confined his request to an hour, then to a half, and finally to a quarter of an hour, when the brother came into the room and insisted earnestly that the funeral should proceed.

At this critical and important moment to the supposed corpse he opened his eyes, gave a terrible groan, and sank again into apparant death. This, of course, put an end to all idea of burying him and every effort was put forth to bring about a speedy resuscitation. In about an hour his eyes again opened and he emitted another groan, and then all appearance of animation vanished. In another hour life returned with more power and complete restoration took place, to the great joy of his relatives and intimate friends and the astonishment of the many who had ridiculed the idea of "bringing the dead to life."

When his strength partially returned he was importuned to tell what he saw during his state of suspended animation.

"While I was conversing with my brother about my doubts and fears as to my future welfare," he said, "I found myself in an instant in another state of existence and under the guidance of a superior being who commanded me to follow him, I was wafted along, I know not how, until I beheld at a distance an ineffable glory, and the impression which it made on my mind is impossible for me to communicate to any one on earth. I reflected on my happy change and then thought, blessed be God!' I am safe at last beyond all my trials and fears. I saw a great host of happy beings surrounding the inexpressible glory, in acts of adoration and joyous worship; I heard things unutterable. I heard songs and hallelujahs of praise and thanksgiving, with unspeakable rapture. I felt joy unalloyed, and my soul was filled with the glory of the infinite. I then asked my escort to permit me to join the happy throng, but he said: 'You must return to the earth again.' This seemed like a sword piercing my heart. In an instant I saw my brother standing before me disputing with the doctor. The three days during which I had appeared lifeless did not seem to me more than a few minutes. The idea of returning to earth gave me such a shock I fainted repeatedly. The ravishing songs and words of praise are not out of my ears for a moment when awake."

Mr. Tennent had to begin his studies again as soon as his strength permitted him to do so, for he had nearly lost all recollection of his past life. He knew his friends and was able to converse, but as to his books he had forgotten their contents. As his strength increased his memory also returned, but for three years his sense of divine things continued so great and everything else appeared so completely vain to him that nothing which did not relate to heaven and its glories could command his serious attention. He seemed as one raised from the dead, and was continually in a condition of mental ecstacy. But in time he recovered and again prepared himself for ordination. He lived many years after and was a faithful minister until the last. He died at Freehold, N. J., aged 72 years.—Sel.

ENORMOUS PROFITS OF INSUR-ANCE COMPANIES

In an article in the June Forum Mr. Adelbert Hamilton says that, unlike capital invested in other businesses, insurance capital gets an income from two sources of constant investment: from mortgages and from insurance. As a consequence in 1886, while the average rate of interest was about 4.75 per cent, and while railway capital stock earned les than 3 per cent dividends, insurance capital earned more than 13 per cent. In 1887 the dividends upon it averaged nearly 14 per cent. Following are a few of the dividends declared in 1887: Fire Association of Philadelphia, 40 per cent: eleven companies 20 to 24 per cent; eighty-five companies 10 to 20 per cent each. Nor was 1887 an exceptional year.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llvfr Hymnau at Wassnaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist. Ad-Reoleiddedig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

Miscellaneous.

COLLEGE MEETING.

May 25th, 1889.

Lamoni College committee met as per adjournment at the Herald Office; all members present except E. L. Kelley, R. Winning chosen chairman, W. Hudson secretary. Committee reported local lists:

In and around Lamoni, ..... $4,300 00

It was moved and carried that the present committee of three on procuring subscriptions, locating site, and providing for the erection of a college in or near Lamoni, Iowa, be continued, with instructions that they use all available means to push forward that work. Amended, by adding to said committee the Editors of the Saints' Herald, Autumn Leaves and Independent Patriot.

A number of letters of commendation were read, speaking encouragingly and hopefully of the enterprise

D. Dancer at his own request was released and Asa Cochran was added in his place. It was moved and carried that the local committee of solicitation be continued. Resolved that the committee on general arrangements and solicitation be requested to present through the medium of the Independent Patriot the varied advantages that will accrue to the citizens of Lamoni, Iowa, by reason of the establishment of the college at Lamoni. And that the committee also prepare and publish in the Herald the advantages to the Church that will be realized by the founding of such an institution.

Moved to adjourn to meet at Lamoni, Friday, September 6th, 1889.

W. Hudson, Sec'y.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The north Michigan district conference will convene at Tawas City, Iosco county, Michigan, June 15th, at nine o'clock, A M. Will have preaching the evening before. We hope to have good attendance and full reports from all the branches and officers. J. J. Cornish.

The North East Kansas district (late Central Kansas) will hold their quarterly conference Sat-urday, 15th, and Sunday, 16th of June, 1889, at the Centralia branch. All officers in the district are requested to report in person or by letter; also branches are requested to send in their reports by mail a few days before conference if possible. All reports should be addressed to North East E. C. BRAND. Kansas District.

Kewanee district conference will convene at the Henderson Grove branch on the 15th of June, at ten a. m. Those coming from the east, south, or west will come to Hover's Grocery Store, north-west corner of public square, Galesburgh, Illinois. Those coming from the north will stop at Henderson. Those who contemplate visiting the conference will please notify me at Henderson what time they will be at the above named places. Send all reports to Henderson, directed to me. All come that can, and let us have a time of rejoicing.

J. W. Terry, Pres.

TWO DAYS' MEETING.

There will be a two days' grove meeting held near the Kelley school-house, five miles northeast of Lowry City, St. Clair county, Missouri, June 15th, and 16th; also one five miles east of ElDorado Springs, and two miles west of LeBeck, near Coal Hill school-house in Cedar county, Missouri, June 29th and 30th. Order of Services: -Preaching, Saturday 2:30 and 8 o'clock, p. m., Sunday at 11 a. m., 2:30 and 7:30, o'clock, p. m. Basket dinner.

Elders Joseph Luff, of Independence, and I. N. White, of Clinton, and others are expected to be present as speakers. Saints and frineds, come and have an enjoyable time.

By order of Dist. Pres., (I. N. White).

REUNION.

On the 5th of next July there will be held at Cook's Point, Texas, a Saint's reunion, and all the Saint's and friends are invited to attend. The church at that place has a commodious house, surrounded by a fine grove in which to camp, with good pasturage near at hand. meeting will be continued as long as the interest continues good. Those coming by railroad will be met at Caldwell and conveyed to the meeting ground if they will notify the committee, E. W. Nunley, William Sherrell and John W. Sherrell, Cook's Point, Texas.

NOTICES.

Bro. John Hawkins, of the island of Arutua, who was born in October 1817, at Maidstone, Kent, England, desires Bro. Wm. Hawkins, formerly of Oregon, Holt county, Missouri, and any other Hawkins who may have reason to think that they are relatives, to write to him. His father's name was William, and his mother's name was Jane Martin, before her marriage. Letters to him should be enclosed in an envelope and addressed to me, to insure his obtaining them. Bro. Hawkins left England fifty-one years ago.

Bro. Herman Johnsen-Janssen-desires that Swedish brethren should write to him. Address, Herman Johnsen, Papeete, Tahiti, Tobe forwarded. But pay 5 cents for every half ounce. I have to pay 6 cents on letters that only have on them a 2 cent stamp, as double postage is col-lected on all unpaid letters, or those with insuffi-Yours in Christ, T. W. SMITH. cient postage.

MARRIED.

KINNAMAN—SAMPLE.—At the Saints' Church, in Stewartsville, Missouri, March 7th. 1889, Bro. Melton K. Kinnaman and Sr. Addie E. Sample. The church was filled to repletion by the townspeople. A sumptuous supper was served at the house of Bro. J. T. Kinnaman. The singing was grand—joy pervaded every heart. May such be always the the portion of the uniting couple.—J. M. Terry officiated.

KINNAMAN—LEWIS.—At the residence of Bro. William Lewis, the bride's father, in St. Joseph, Missouri, May 1st, 1889, Bro. D. Carlos Kinna-man and Sr. Elizabeth Lewis. A social sumptuous repast was partaken of by the near relatives-all joined in wishing the couple a prosperous and happy wedded life .- J. M. Terry officiated.

Tuck.—Fish.—At the residence of the bride's parents in Harlan, Shelby county, Iowa, on the 4th of May, 1889, Miss Frances P. Tuck, daughter of J. J. Tuck, to Mr. B. E. Fish, of Chapel, Nebraska, Elder J. W. Chatburn officiating.

DIED.

Shackelton.—April 29th, at 11: 30 a.m., Mrs. Ellen Shackelton, in the seventy-seventh year of her age. The funeral takes place this morning at ten, from the residence of Jonas Welch in this city, Elder H. J. Hudson preaching the sermon; the burial will be at the cemetery near Shell Creek Mills. The deceased was relict of Robert Shackelton who passed to the spirit world about nine years ago. They were old settlers here, having been at Genoa in 1856, and Mr. Shackelton being one of the builders of the first saw and grist mill at Genoa. She leaves a daughter and only child, Mrs. Jonas Welch. Mrs. Shackelton was a quiet, patient woman, wonderfully devoted to her friends and beloved by all who at any time had enjoyed her acquaintance.

The above clipping is from the Columbus, (Nebraska) Journal. Sister Shackelton was born in Lancashire, England. She and her husband accepted the gospel in 1841, at Preston, under the ministry of the first missionaries to England, when the restored gospel of Christ was proclaimed in simplicity, purity and power. She came to America in 1842, reaching Nauvoo in the early summer. Her devotion to the martyr, Joseph, and the righteousness he taught never wavered through all the sad scenes of cruel persecution, trial and treachery of false brethren. Heartsick and wounded in spirit at Winter Quarters, she refused to follow the dark shadow that cast itself over the truth, which she had heard the Prophet and Seer declare would follow his departure to the spirit world. With an abiding faith in Joseph's seed, she often wept and mourned for Zion's deliverer, and hastened to prove her faith by her works and united with the Reorganization, and continued to her last moment of earth life to testify to the divine power of the Holy Spirit which she had received under Joseph's hands. Hence has passed away to God's paradise another of the favored ones of whom it is declared "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." While the Elder was speaking from these words at her funeral, a wonderful peace and solemn presence rested upon all the people who gathered to pay their last tribute to their neighbor, and in tearful silence gazed and lingered at the calm repose resting upon the face as an infant's sleep.

Dodd.-At her home near Centralia, Nemaha county, Kansas, April 16th, 1889, Sister Elizabeth Dodd, wife of Bro. Alma Dodd, and daughter of Bro. Daniel Munns, aged 43 years and 10 days. She leaves a husband, eight children and many friends to mourn their loss. Funeral services conducted by Bro. David Williams of Netawaka, Kansas.

"Rest, tired feet thy journey's ended,
And the care that moved them done;
Hence, the path with angel's blended,
Is but short—the crown is won.
"Rest, tired hands, thy weapons faileth;
Past, the need of warfare now;
Gone, thy strength,—thy faith prevaileth;
God himself will speed the plow."

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

Now that Old Probabilities has turned on the hot weather with a firm hand and a fervid disposition, people will be inquiring how to keep cool.

As a matter of fact, common-sense persons need no advice on the subject. They are cool under all circumstances and conditions, unless it is when they run to catch a street-car that has been sent off by a time keeper who has no watch.

The way to keep good-humored. There is no doubt that good humored men are sometimes warm, owing to the fact that they are jolly and fat, but no one ever heard them complain about the weather to any great extent, unless it is when they are caught out in a shower without an umbrella.

The Washington Post says the way to keep cool is to eat sparingly of meat; but this is nonsense. The coolest and most agreeable person on earth is the meat-eater, and the most irritable and unhappy is the person whose digestion will not permit him to eat meat.

Eat lean meat-tender steak and chickenwith your vegetables and you will have no trouble with the heat. Pork should be avoided, of course; but veal, mutton and all the vegetables, pot-liquor and dumplings, buttermilk and corn bread go to make up a dinner to be enjoyed.

Above all things let ice alone. It is a most deceptive affair. It is not only the nidus of microbes and bacteria, but it is unhealthy, even when it is pure. It paralyzes the stomach, ruins the digestion and leads to Bright's disease.

If you will dring as you ought to, drink water fresh from the spring. If you want it seasoned, give it a touch of lemon and sugar; but let ice alone. Ice is much colder in the summer than it is in the winter, and it is no more healthy at one season than at another.

We are giving some good advice here; but the best thing, after all, is to keep in good humor. The good natured man may get too hot occasionally, but it doesn't worry him; and the man who is'nt worried cares little for the heat .--- Atlanta Constitution.

HOUSE SERVANTS.

Is it not strange that people judge others so for breaking the Sabbath when their own house servants must work seven days out of the seven, contrary to the rule to do to others as we would be done by? If there is any place where we play the typical Pharisee to perfection it is in giving ourselves the unhealthy indulgence of being a forgetful hearer of the word in the vitiated air of our homes or an audience room while servants, for whom the fourth commandment seems especially made, are working in the kitchen and elsewhere for us.

The law forbids the working of a servant at least one day out of seven and so as to enforce it, forbade the making of a fire to cook with, but it is all unheeded, for we exact our labors in some respects with more punctiliousness than usual. The example of Our Pattern was in the line of even a greater relief of servants than the law demanded, for he had none at all and lead his religious teachers out to such activity as to give them no time (on more than one Sabbath at least) to enter a house to eat, but took the raw grain which came in their way .- F. C. in Chinese Times.

AFTER THE BATH.

Let me here remark that no bath is perfect in its results without the long and brisk friction of hands or a coarse towel afterward. Friction not only stimulates circulation, but it makes the flesh firm and polished like Parian marble. It is sometimes astonishing to see the change made in an ugly skin by friction, and any lady who wishes to possess a healthy body, firm to the touch and fair to the eye, with the elasticity of youth well prolonged into age, must give willingly of her strength to the daily task of rubbing the body thoroughly .- Sel.

A FINE MOSAIC OF LAMONI.

5½ x 8½ inches.

Seventeen different residences grouped in one card with name under each picture. By mail, post paid, 35c; per doz. $3; per 100, $20. Send 35c, for sample.

The traveling ministry please notice this.

A. M. CHASE, Lamoni, Iowa.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - - -- $1.50. M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.

Contents of Autumn Leaves for June:

Before Marriage-The Bravest Battle-Centennial Address by J. A. Gunsolly-Socrates and Aristodemus—Story of the Book of Mormon— My Lambs—The Village Gossip—Mexican Antiquities—The Fool's Prayer—Mother's Song—Autobiography of Apostle T. W. Smith—Centennial Address by H. A. Stebbins—The Vow of Washington—Jealousy of Birds—Incidents in the Life of One of Earth's Pilgrims—Government Centennial-An Unseen Follower-Lake Mary (see frontispiece)—Pattie; or, Leaves from a Life—Autobiography of Elder Glaud Rodger —Editor's Corner—Hope- Katrinas Visit to New York--Persian Legend--Round Table.

ADDRESSES.

E. C. Brand, No. 712, Q st., Atchison, Kansas.
E. C. Briggs, Shenandoah. Iowa.
C. R. Duncan, Box 70, Blue Rapids, Marshall Co., Kan.
J. H. Iake. Kirtland, Luke co., Ohio.
Willard J. Smith, Box 153, Buchanan, Mich.
John T. Davis, 42 Lakefield Road, Llanelly, Carmarthen shire, Wales.
J. W. Wight, Organism William Co. J. W. Wight, Queensferry, Victoria, Australia. T. W. Smith, Papetee, Tahiti, via San Francisco.

BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE.	[In the Press.]	TRACTS.
Cloth Boards, 396 pages 1 75	THE SAINTS' HARMONY.	No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen 20
Proposition:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of	க்கைக்கைக்க திக்கிக்கிக்கிக்கிக்கிக்கிக்கிக்கிக்கிக்	per hundred divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to the respect and belief of all Christian people?	PRICE $2.50 BY MAIL.	per hundred 40
(2) Is the Church of which I. Clark Braden am	The Harmony will contain all the hymns in the	No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.
à member, the Church of Christ, and identical in faith, organization, ordinances, worship and	Saints' Harp; also 542 pages of music, compris-	dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1 1 000, 1 75 practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left	ing about 720 tunes, 13 full sized pages of music,	No. 5.—The Gospel price the same as No. 4.
perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the	full instruction on choir and anthem music, the	No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who
Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and ac-	Editor's preface and introduction, and publisher's	Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100. 1 75
cepted with Him?	preface.	No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 05 per hundred
FORSCUTT—SHINN DISCUSSION.	Stem Vowel Shorthand.	No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; per doz. 25
Paper covers, 194 pages	A system of shorthand in which the vowels are ex-	per hundred
ing of Christ to Judge the world is now past."	pressed in the consonant stems, by making the latter of different lengths. Invented by a court reporter of years	ural Standpoint; per doz. 30c., per 1002 25
M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible teaches the Literal Resurrection of the body from the grave."	of practical experience and used by hundreds in business	No. 10.—The Narrow Way: doz. 15c., 100 1 10
VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE	life. Its merits are that it is easily learned, easily read and fully vocalized. It has no long lists of word signs, and is much simpler than the old systems. The	No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz 30 per hundred 25
SEER.	. Understoned uses it and after comparing it with other l	No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy
Discoveries of Ancient American Records and	systems recommends it to young men and women as a valuable acquisition as a profession. Little or no strain	per dozen 25c., per hundred 1 65 No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen. 25
Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew. Paper covers, 43 pages	upon the memory required to learn it, which can be done in from four to six months ordinary attention. Book	per bundred
CONCORDANCE TO DOCTRINE AND	with plain and complete self-instructions sent to any address $2. Circulars sent upon application.	No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; per dozen
COVENANTS.	Address R. S. Salvards, agent, Lamoni, Iowa.	No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Te-
An enlarged edition, 32 pages, paper covers. 10	ROBERT WINNING, Pres't. D. F. NICHOLSON, Cashier.	net of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001 40 No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-
BRANCH RECORDS.		fice and Presidency of the Church; doz. 25
Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; print-	FARMERS' BANK OF LAMONI.	per hundred
ed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages. 2 00	Ample Responsibility.	No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; per doz. 15 per hundred
DISTRICT RECORDS.	Loans money on aproved security. Six per cent interest paid on time deposits. Real Estate	No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of
Printed and bound similar to Branc' Rec-	bought and sold.	Christ, under the Apostleship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 40
ords3 00	Broaddanas and recompensate you and oppose the State was done for an analysis of the Proposition of the Prop	No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen 03
LICENCES, NOTICES, &c.	Figure for Sale.	per hundred
Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licenses, each per dozen	A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard	per hundred 1 10
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books 25	bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed,	No. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 1001 25 No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; doz. 5c., 100 40
Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred 40	new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, perched, papered,	No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. 40
CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.	and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of	No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; per dozen 5c., per hundred 40
Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen 40	the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the	No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz 25
Annual Statistical Reports, two for 05 Certificates of Baptism and Membership,	county seat of Barton county.  EBENEZER MILLER, Senior,	per hundred per dozen	SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.	the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 40
Certificates of Removal, per dozen	I hereby give notice that the	No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred1 10
SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.	Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies	No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Ortho-
Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. 50	$17 \times 20$ , is now ready for sale.	doxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 4.
Prompt Attendance Tickets, 100 for 15	I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2.	No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 40
" " 1,000 for1 00 Good Behavior TicketsSame price.	All members of the Quorum represented in the	No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined per dozen 20c., per hundred1 25
JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND	medley can obtain a copy for $1.50.  R. BURDGE, Photographer,	Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection
HIS PROGENITORS.	Appleton City, Mo.	5c. each, per dozen 50
Muslin boards, 312 pages	I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art, containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a	Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 15  An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.
	medley handsomely arranged all numbered with index	COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.
HESPERIS. Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy	below of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Pleture E. C. BRAND.	Bound in Limp Cloth turned in 75
cloth, gilt edges	LUFF & BRACKENBURY,	COWDERY LETTERS.
VOICE OF WARNING	* · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·	Containing valuable matter in relation to the Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and
And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine	REAL ESTATE AGENTS,	Translation of the Book of Mormon, and the
and History of the latter day work.  In paper covers; twelve for $1each 10	West Lexington Street,	Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen 75
Limp cloth covers, each	INDEPENDENCE, - MISSOURI.	Without covers 5c. each, per dozen 50
JOSEPH THE SEER:	Next to Warnky's Gallery.	MISCELLANEOUS.
His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the	: A Family Newspaper :	The Problem of Human Life Here and Here- after, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages 1 50
Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained.	THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT	Universalism Against Itself; 336 pages 1 00
Paper covers, 200 pages	Provides its readers weekly with	Josephus, complete, library leather 3 50 Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Em-
This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society,	56 COLUMNS	pire, cloth boards, 5 volumes and is an important work to be in the hands of	Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Per-	Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols
the ministry of the church; and it is a most ex- cellent one to be circulated both in the church	sonal departments, and aims to keep its readers thoroughly acquainted with the striking features of the world's	Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one4 00 and among those without, abounding in proofs	brooress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy	The Koran, library leather never before presented in defense of Joseph	free. One dollar per vesr.  LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.	1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols10 00
Smith and the Book of Mormon. MISCELLANEOUS.		The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Casarea and Palestine .2 00
Tract 42.—Rejection of the Church, a dozen 15	A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:	Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1 75 per hundred	Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.	Bible Text Book
per hundred	BY A. J. MAPES.	Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size 85
Old style Concordance of Doctrine and Cov-	Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by	Elders' Diary, by Joseph Luff 30
enants 10	Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·

HE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE. AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.—Whole No. 839.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 15, 1889.

No. 24.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Perald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 15, 1889.

WHITMERISM REVIEWED.

Below we present a letter from Bro. Leonard Scott which introduces two letters from D. E. McCartey-a Whitmeriteall of which explain themselves. We propose to notice the two latter, for the reason that they contain the spirit and genius of Whitmerism and present its strongest (?) points in a condensed form. Here is Bro. Scott's letter:

GALIEN, Mich., April 22d.

* Bro. Blair: Enclosed find two letters from Missouri. We desire you to ventilate them through the Herald and expose the object of some of the pious ones watching the Saints' Herald for the purpose of locating those who are favorable to the Reorganization to poison or vitiate their minds with false statements and deceptive theories snatched from the follies of Whitmerism. This is "wire pulling," and should be relegated to the circle of political tricksters and kept out of the religious realm. In the first place they are not proper representatives of the Reorganization, and therefore have no right to tell the people what we believe. The principles of the Republican platform can be properly presented only by a proper representative of that party. The principles of the Democratic platform can be properly presented only by a proper representative of that party. So the doctrines of the Reorganization can be presented only by a proper representative of that society. Trusting you will give it an early reviewing, I remain yours,

LEONARD SCOTT.

Here is the first letter Bro. Scott alludes to:

BELTON, Cass county, Missouri,

December 19th, 1888.

MISS ALICE PINKERTON,

Warren, Ohio.

Sister in Christ: - I saw yours of October 20th in the Saints' Herald, and see by it that you think that if Christ has any church on earth it is the Reorganization. Now as I am interested in the welfare of the souls of the great human family, I beg of you to investigate. Be very careful and put your trust and confidence in Jesus and he will lead you into light if you are honest in heart. I send by this mail a book that I hope you will read prayerfully and earnestly; not that I want to mislead you, God forbid; but the Reorganization to-day are practicing doctrines not in harmony with the Book of Mormon or the

Now, my dear sister, take these things before God in fasting and prayer, and He will lead you into the light. Let us hear from you and know the result. Yours in Christ,

D. E. McCartey.

And here is the second one, which we dissect as we go along:

BELTON, Mo., January 24th, 1889. MISS ALICE M. PINKERTON,

Warren, Ohio;

DEAR FRIEND:-Your most welcome letter came to hand yesterday. Was glad to see you interested, but my heart ached when I saw that you believed that book of Doctrine and Covenants. Your first question is, What do you know about Joseph Smith? Personally I know nothing of him, because he was murdered before I was born. But I know of his teachings and practices.

This gentleman betrays his case in the very start by confessing his lack of knowledge of Joseph Smith and his work; and yet he asks the lady to whom he writes to believe that he knows of the falsity and badness of Joseph's teachings and practices. This savors strongly of self-conceit and a lack of good judgment; for no enlightened, charitable, well poised person would recklessly assert so much when they know so little. He further proceeds to

In the first place, Joseph Smith, as history shows, introduced, April 6th, 1830, the first error in the church by taking upon himself the office of prophet, seer, and revelator to the church, which is contrary to the teachings of Christ, as shown by the Bible and Book of Mormon. Who was prophet, seer and revelator at Jerusalem? Who was prophet, seer and revelator upon this continent 1850 years ago? You can not find any thing about this in either Book of Mormon or the Bible.

To this we reply that, God never in the past called a man to open and introduce a dispensation without making him a prophet, seer and revelator; and further, he never called and authorized a man to preside over, continue and build up a dispensation who was not appointed and endowed by him a prophet, seer and revelator; and in proof we instance Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Joshua, Samuel, Nathan, Gad, David, Isaiah, Jesus, Peter, James, John, Paul, Lehi, Nephi, Mormon, Moroni, the brother of Jared, and many others, all of whom exercised the gifts and authority of a seer. of whose gifts, authority and qualifications the Book of Mormon says:

"A seer is a revelator and a prophet." Mosiah 5: 10). And in the same paragraph we are informed that a seer who has "interpreters" "can look and translate all records;" also that "a gift which is greater can no man have." Joseph Smith possessed and used the "interpreters," exercised the gifts of translation and revelation and prophecy in bringing forth the Book of Mormon and organizing the church, (and of all this David Whitmer has ever testified), and being "a seer, a revelator, and a prophet also," and having as "a seer" translated the Book of Mormon, the revelation this representative and exponent of Whitmerism objects to is seen to be the very embodiment of the simple facts in the case, for it says to the Saints: "Behold, there shall be a record kept among you, and in it thou [Joseph Smith] shalt be called a seer, a translator, a prophet, an apostle of Jesus Christ, an elder of the church through the will of God the Father, and the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Doc. Cov. 19: 1.

When Whitmerism denies that Joseph Smith was a seer, a prophet, and a revelator, it denies the testimony of the Book of Mormon and the historical facts in the case; and it also makes David Whitmer blindly contradict his oft repeated testimonies, for he has repeatedly affirmed that he knew by the voice of God, the personal testimony of the angel, the revelation of the Holy Spirit, and by his personal obversations and experiences with Joseph Smith, that he was the divinely authorized and empowered translator of the Book of Mormon, that he did have and did use the "interpreters," all of which proves that Joseph was God's Seer, and that being "a Seer," he was "a revelator and a prophet also," and that "a gift which is greater can no man have."—Mosiah 5: 10. By these things we see Whitmerism contradicts the Book of Mormon, denies the facts of history, opposes its own testimonies, opposes its own blindness and bewilderment, and proves that the light of God did not originate it, and is not now with it.

Whitmerism denounces Joseph Smith because the revelations of the latter claim he was "a seer, a revelator, and a prophet," and yet it professes faith in that very book which teaches that "a seer is a revelator and a prophet also; and a gift which is greater can no man have," this same ism, and its founders and builders, at the same time testifying that Joseph Smith was a seer, had and used the "interpreters," translated the Book of Mormon, and showed forth the works and signs and fruits of a seer! If this is not folly it is much worse-it is fighting against God When God and His word and work. made Joseph Smith a Seer, he made him also a translator, a revelator and a prophet; but Whitmerism would rob the man of God of these powers, gifts and honors. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Mr. McCartev continues and says:

"We see that by Moroni, 6: 1, that the names were taken that they might be remembered, and nourished by the good word of God, relying alone upon the merits of Christ, the author and the finisher of our faith." This is very plain; but the Latter Day Saints rely upon Joseph Smith to guide them. Christ promised us the Comforter that should guide into all truth."—John 14: 16-26 and 15:26.

How can a person rely upon the merits of Jesus Christ and at the same time reject and denounce the accredited and approved servant of Christ!

Jesus said of his servants:-"He that receiveth you receiveth me. . . . He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward." -Matt. 10: 40, 41.

And he further says of his chief servants: "He that heareth you heareth me; and he that despiseth you despiseth me." Luke 10: 16.

Again he says: "He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me."-John 13: 20.

The saints "rely upon Joseph Smith to guide them," just in the manner, and to the extent, that the Bible and Book of Mormon justifies them in receiving him as God's seer, revelator, translator prophet, and in no other way. The Reorganized Church prefers to receive and accept the ministrations of Joseph Smith, whom the Lord has sent, endorsed and approved, and whose ministrations He has confirmed by the gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit, rather than to heed the quibbles, doubts and oppositions of those who can show no authentic call and commission of God as either seers, revelators, translators, or prophets to lead and preside over His church. The Lord, through preceding seers and prophets, points out by revelation and prophecy those who are to be His chief servants (thus giving them divine credentials before they are called to active duty), and then when he calls them into active service, He confirms and divinely endorses their work by the gifts and graces and powers of heaven. And when persons claim to have a "comforter" which in effect rejects the provided word and order of God, the Reorganized Church prudently rejects such persons and their claims. No one can hope for the light and guidance of the heavenly comforter" if they reject the word and the order of God, for these are always found in harmony with each other, and never in conflict.

This Whitmerite elder goes on and says:

"We do not believe that the present Joseph is a prophet of God, for his revelations will not bear testing by the Book of Mormon or the Bible but more of this farther on.

"You ask why is it that you have never heard of this [Whitmerite, Ed.] church.

"The pamphlet that I sent, page 29, ought to explain this. The Lord's ways are not our ways, and they are hard to understand. When the pamphlet was printed and sent out to the public, the work of the Lord was renewed again; so that is the reason that you have never heard of it."

The Reorganized Church investigates the revelations of "the present Joseph," and is far better acquainted with them and him than our Whitmerite advocates, and yet that church fails to find any conflict between the said revelations and the teachings of those books.

It is not at all strange that the lady wonders she has never before heard of the Whitmerite Church, if that indeed is the true Church of Christ. But it is strikingly strange that the Whitmerites do not ask themselves, "Why is it, if ours is the Church of Christ-oh why is it that the world and the Saints have heard and know nothing of it till in 1887, when it is a fact that the Lord began His "marvellous work and a wonder, away back in 1827sixty years before—as set forth in Isaiah 29: 9-24; Rev. 14: 68; Isaiah 11: 10-16; 2 Nephi 11: 3, 4, 13, 16, 17, 18, 19, with 2 Nephi, 2: 2, 3, etc.!" What has this Whitmerite Church done to fulfill these prophecies and promises? On what grounds can they claim that theirs is the Church of Christ when they have done nothing to preach and build up the church, and their numbers are now so few, their work so little and their influence so limited and powerless!

What have they done?

But this Whitmerite well says, "The Lord's ways are not our ways," Precisely. That fact is very manifest when comparisons are made between the two. The Lord's way was to begin and build up "a great and marvelous work even a marvelous work and a wonder." beginning with calling and qualifying Joseph Smith as His Seer, next his translation of the Book of Mormon, of whom the Lord says:

"But behold it shall come to pass that the Lord God shall say unto him to whom he shall deliver the book. Take these words which are not sealed. and deliver them to another, that he may shew them unto the learned, saying, Read this, I pray thee. And the learned shall say, Bring hither the book and I will read them; and now, because of the glory of the world, and to get gain, will they say this, and not for the glory of God. And the man shall say, I can not bring the book, for it is sealed. Then shall the learned say, I can not read it. Wherefore it shall come to pass that the Lord God will deliver again the book and the words thereof, to him that is not learned; and the man that is not learned shall say, I am not learned. Then shall the Lord God say unto him. The learned shall not read them, for they have rejected them, and I am able to do mine own work; wherefore, thou shalt read the words which I shall give unto thee. Touch not the things which are sealed, for I will bring them forth in mine own due time; for I will show unto the children of men, that I am able to do mine own work. Wherefore when thou hast read the words which I have commanded thee, and obtained the witnesses which I have promised unto thee, then shalt thou seal up the book again, and hide it up unto me, that I may preserve the words which thou hast not read, until I shall see fit in mine own wisdom, to reveal all things unto the children of men. For behold, I am God; and I am a God of miracles; and I will shew unto the world that I the same yesterday, do-day, and forever; and I work not among the children of men, save it be according to their faith.

"And again it shall come to pass, that the Lord shall say unto him that shall read the words that shall be delivered him. For asmuch as this people draw near unto me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precepts of men, therefore, I will proceed to do a marvelous work among this people; yea, a marvelous work, and a wonder; for the wisdom of their wise and learned shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent shall be hid. And we unto them that seek deep to hide their counsel from the Lord. And their works are in the dark; and they say, Who seeth us, and who knoweth us? And they also say, Surely, your turning of things upside down, shall be esteemed as the potter's clay. But behold, I will shew unto them, saith the Lord of hosts, that I know all their works. For shall the work say of him that made it, He made me not? Or shall the thing framed, say of him that framed it, He has no understanding? But behold, saith the Lord of hosts, I will shew unto the children of men, that it is not yet a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field; and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest. And in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book; and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity and out of darkness; and the meek also shall increase, and their joy shall be in the Lord; and the poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy one of Israel. For assuredly as the Lord liveth, they shall see that the terrible one is brought to nought, and the scorner is consumed, and all that watch for iniquity are cut off; and they that make a man an offender for a word, and lav a snare for him that reproveth in the gate, and turn aside the just for a thing of nought. Therefore thus saith the Lord, who redeemed Abraham. concerning the house of Jacob, Jacob shall not now be ashamed, neither shall his face now wax pale. But when he seeth his children, the work of my hands, in the midst of him, they shall sanctify my name, and sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and shall fear the God of Israel. They also that erred in spirit shall come to understand, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine."-B. of M., 2 Nephi 11: 18, 19.

Of this work, committed to and began by Joseph the Seer the Lord further says:

"But behold, there shall be many at that day, when I shall proceed to do a marvelous work among them, that I may remember my covenants which I have made unto the children of men, that I may set my hand again the second time to recover my people, which are of the honse of Israel; and also, that I may remember the promises which I have made unto thee, Nephi, and also unto thy father, that I would remember your seed; and that the words of your seed should proceed forth out of my mouth unto your seed. And my words shall hiss forth unto the ends of the earth, for a standard unto my people, which are of the house of Israel. And because my words shall hiss forth, many of the Gentiles shall say, A bible, a bible, we have got a bible and there can not be any more bible. But thus saith the Lord God: O fools, they shall have a bible; and it shall proceed forth from the Jews, mine ancient covenant people. And what thank they the Jews for the bible which they receive from them? Yea, what do the Gentiles mean? Do they remember the travels, and the labors, and the pains of the Jews, and their diligence unto me, in bringing forth salvation unto the Gentiles?"—2 Nephi 12: 6.

"And now, I would prophecy somewhat more concerning the Jews and the Gentiles. For after the book of which I have spoken shall come forth, and be written unto the Gentiles, and sealed up again unto the Lord, there shall be many which shall believe the words which are written; and they shall carry them forth unto the remnant of our seed. And then shall the remnant of our seed know concerning us, how that we came out from Jerusalem, and that they are descendants of the Jews. And the Gospel of Jesus Christ shall be declared among them; wherefore, they shall be restored unto the knowledge of their fathers, and also to the knowledge of Jesus Christ, which was had among their fathers. And then shall they rejoice; for they shall know that it is a blessing unto them from the hand of God; and their scales of darkness shall begin to fall from their eyes; and many generations shall not pass away among them, save they shall be a pure and a delightsome people.

"And it shall come to pass that the Jews which are scattered, also shall begin to believe in Christ; and they shall begin to gather in upon the face of the land; and as many as shall believe in Christ, shall also become a delightsome people."

—2 Nephi 12: 12, 13.

And in the following we learn further concerning the calling and official authority of Joseph Smith, the Seer, by and through whom the Lord's "marvelous work" began, also of the estimation in which he would be held by the Lord and the Lord's people:

"For Joseph truly testified, saying: A seer shall the Lord my God raise up, who shall be a choice seer unto the fruit of my loins. Yea, Toseph truly said, thus saith the Lord unto me: a choice seer will I raise up out of the fruit of thy loins; and he shall be esteemed highly among the fruit of thy loins. And unto him will I give commandment, that he shall do a work for the fruit of thy loins, his brethren, which shall be of great worth unto them, even to the bringing of them to the knowledge of the covenants which I have made with the fathers. And I will give unto him a commandment, that he shall do none other work save the work which I shall command him. And I will make him great in mine eyes; for he shall do my work. And he shall be great like unto Moses, whom I have said I would raise up unto you, to deliver my people, O house of Israel. And Moses will I raise up to deliver thy people out of the land of Egypt. But a seer will I raise up out of the fruit of thy loins; and unto him will I give power to bring forth my word unto the seed of thy loins; and not the bringing forth my word only, saith the Lord, but to the convincing them of my word, which shall have already Wherefore, the gone forth among them. fruit of thy loins shall write; and the fruit of the loins of Judah shall write; and that which shall be written by the fruit of thy loins, and also that which shall be written by the fruit of the loins of Judah, shall grow together, unto the confounding of false doctrines, and laying down of contentions, and establishing peace among the fruit of thy loins, and bringing them to the knowledge of their fathers in the latter days; and also to the knowledge of my covenants, saith the Lord. And out of weakness he shall be made strong, in that day when my work shall commence among all my people, unto the restoring thee, O house of Israel, saith the Lord.

"And thus prophesied Joseph, saying, Behold, that seer will the Lord bless; and they that seek to destroy him, shall be confounded; for this promise, of which I have obtained of the Lord, of the fruit of thy loins, shall be fulfilled. Behold I am sure of the fulfilling of this promise. And his name shall be called after me; and it shall be after the name of his father. And he shall be like unto me; for the thing which the Lord shall bring forth by his hand, by the power of the Lord shall bring my people unto salvation; yea, thus prophesied Joseph, I am sure of this thing, even as I am sure of the promise of Moses; for the Lord hath said unto me, I will preserve thy seed forever. And the Lord hath sald, I will raise up a Moses; and I will give power unto him in a rod; and I will give judgment unto him in writing. Yet I will not loose his tongue, that he shall speak much; for I will not make him mighty in speaking. But I will write unto him my law, by the finger of mine own hand; and I will make a spokesman for him. And the Lord said unto me also, I will raise up unto thee fruit of thy loins; and I will make for him a spokesman. And I, behold I will give unto him, that he shall write the writing of the fruit of thy loins, unto the fruit of thy loins; and the spokesman of thy loins shall declare it. And the words which he shall write, shall be the words which are expedient in my wisdom, should go forth unto the fruit of thy loins. And it shall be as if the fruit of thy loins had cried unto them from the dust: for I know their faith. And they shall cry from the dust; yea, even repentance unto their brethren, even after many generations have gone by them. And it shall come to pass that their cry shall go, even according to the simpleness of their words. Because of their faith, their words shall proceed forth out of my mouth unto their brethren, who are the fruit of thy loins; and the weakness of their words will I make strong in their faith, unto the remembering of my covenant which I made unto thy fathers."-2 Nephi

And what has Whitmerism done toward helping forward the Lord's "marvelous work and a wonder?" Has it not rather worked to confuse, distract, hinder and fustrate that work so far as it has had influence and power?

The church organized by Joseph Smith and others April 6th, 1830, by virtue of revelations given through Joseph, has sent the gospel forth to the nations, and hundreds of thousands of souls have received it and increased their joy in the Lord under the comfort and graces and gifts and powers of the Holy Ghost by which the Lord confirms the word "with signs following." Thus the Lord endorses and approves the ministerial work of that man whom He points out and commends to all in and by the Book of Mormon. And what is Whitmerism when compared with this?

Our Whitmerite advocate proceeds to say that, "Tithing as a law is spoken of no where in the New Testament. . . . Christ said that the law was fulfilled in him." But, are not the plain teachings of Christ to be accepted as law? He said to the Jews they "ought not to leave . . undone" the paying of tithes; hence he endorsed and advocated the paying of tithes. See Matt. 23: 23. And Paul said to the Saints over thirty years after Christ's ascension, "And here men that die receive tithes; but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witnessed that he liveth."—Heb. 7:8. Besides this, tithing was the order of God over four hundred years before the giving of the law, (Gen. 14: 20), under the Melchizedek priesthood, of which Jesus was "The Great High Priest."-Heb. 4:14. And Jacob also, when under the special favor and endowment of God, nearly three hundred years before the giving of the law of Moses, realized his duty to pay tithing and promised the Lord, saying: "Of all that thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto thee."-Gen. 28: 22.

The Book of Mormon, Alma 9: 6, and 10: 1, 2, teaches tithing as one of the ordinances of Christ's order. Jesus, in Book of Nephi 11: 2, 3, teaches the same and gave the instructions touching it to the Nephites for their benefit. Whitmerism teaches the reverse of this, and yet it claims to believe in and teach the Book of Mormon! This is professing faith in it while in works it opposes and denies it.

This man asserts that "it is wrong to have high priests in the church." If so, why did Peter say to the Saints, "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood," (1 Peter 2:9); and why did John the revelator say the Lord "hath made us kings and priests," (Rev. 1:6); and why did the "redeemed" saints say of Christ,-"And hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth," (Rev. 5: 10), and why does the Lord say that those who attain to the first resurrection "shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand Will all these years."—Rev. 20:6. "priests" hold the same grade of office and authority? If not, will there not be high priests and lesser priests? The texts of Scripture and the dictates of common sense should govern here rather than private interpretations. This bewildered advocate reiterates the folly of his predecessors when he says, "Joseph Smith was to have no other gift than to translate the Book of Mormon"-meaning that he was not to have the gifts of revelation, prophecy, or those of a seer. But the Book of Mormon, as we have already seen, declares in 2 Nephi 11:18 19, that the Lord would reveal his word to the man whom he calls and empowers to translate the Book of Mormon. Also that that man, Joseph Smith, should be his seer and use the "interpreters" in translating, which none can use but a seer, and that being a seer he was, "a revelator and prophet also; and a gift which is greater can no man have."— Mosiah 5:10, with Alma 17:9, and Ether 1:10, 11; also book of Mormon 4:8. What trash, what delusion, to assert that the seer to whom was given the power to translate the Book of Mormon had not, and was not to have, the gift of revelation of prophecy, and of a seer!

This man assumes, in effect, all the way through his lengthy letter, that nothing is to be received as a revelation from God in respect to the plan of salvation or the government of God, except it can be found in the Book of Mormon, and yet that very book declares that it does not contain even "a hundredth part," but only "a little," of the teachings and doings of God's servants when teaching and ministering to the people. See Jacob 2: 11; 3:1; words of Mormon 1:2, 3; book of Nephi 2: 11, 12: 1; book of Mormon 2:5; book of Ether 6: 9, etc., etc. How irrational and false the claim that God revealed his will to those whom he called to establish and preside over dispensations in Bible and Book of Mormon times, and that such revelations were and are of force as law and doctrine and promise, and were and are binding on those to whom they come, but that in this last and greatest of the dispensations the people must be content, mainly, on the fragments given of past dispensations, and that the Lord's servant by whom and through whom he founded and began to build up this last dispensation was to translate the Book of Mormon, but was not to receive revelations from God; was not to organize the church and its priesthood; was not to receive law to set in order and build up the church and kingdom of God, but was to rely alone, on less than "a hundreth part" of what God had given his people in other times, also that it is right and needful that the revelations of Joseph the Seer be subject to the private judgment of those who give no proof of having been called and qualified of God to set that great seer and his work in order!

All are entitled to use their private judgment, but all are not called and authorized to regulate and set in order God's seers and prophets. "Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth; yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand."-Rom. 14:4. Lord says, "Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm."-1 Chron. 16:

This man also claims that this life only is a time of probation for man, and that therefore baptism for the dead is false. If this be true, why did Peter teach preaching to the spirits in prison, in 1 Peter 3: 19, 20 with 4: 5, 6? And why did Jesus teach that the dead, as well as the living could hear of him, believe and "live?" John 11: 25, 26. And if no one except in this life can hear of Christ as the Savior and judge of men, why does Paul say, "For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living."-Rom. 14:9.

And why did he say of Christ, "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."—Phil. 2:9-11. And why did John say, "And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb forever and ever."—Rev. 5:13. If this life only is a probation, and if in this life only mankind can hear and learn and believe and accept of Christ and his redemptive work, how can these scriptures, with many like them, prove true? And if Christ's redemptive work is preached to men after death, how can it be made available except they receive the benefits and blessings of gospel ordinances, among them baptism? And is it not possible, and probable, that the Lord would reveal and unfold these matters to his "choice seer" in this the greatest of all dispensations. This life is a probation, and all who neglect and refuse their privileges, opportunities and duties, will suffer sorely therefor; but whoever asserts that there is no probation for any person beyond this life, and no means of obtaining the knowledge and favor of Christ and his saving work after this present life, has neither scripture nor reason to sustain him.

We close this paper by suggesting to our Whitmerite advocate, and all of his kind, that when they assume to judge and attempt to regulate and set in order the regular and authentic work of God's "choice seer," they have taken on hand a work that will bring to them neither the blessing of God nor the praise of His people.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE murder of Dr. Cronin of Chicago. has called forth severe strictures upon secret organizations generally and upon the Clan-na-gael in particular; and this, too, from many quarters.

While at this writing it has not been proven that the clan is directly responsible for it, yet it is largely conceded that the murder is the natural fruit of that secret political institution at the least.

Why is that the brotherhood of man will put these unnatural, dividing walls between man and man! They are ever repugnant to the better instincts of human nature, and have ever proved harmful, breeding distrust, creating class distinctions and clannishness, tending to the secret plottings and secret workings, cultivating narrowness, exclusiveness, overreaching, and crushing out those generous, unselfish impulses and brotherly instincts which heaven designed for the good of all. No one can justly plead any necessity for such unnatural organizations, either in respect to political, social or religious interests; but on the other hand everything of the kind is open to just censure and condemnation, and for many reasons. They tend to separation, selfishness, intrigue and injustice. They are expensive and tend to waste of time and money and effort.

The Great Teacher condemns them all in these words: "I spake openly in the world. . . . In secret have I said nothing."
—John 18: 20.

Again: "I am come a light into the world."—John 12: 46. And in exact harmony with these sayings he said to his disciples, "Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill can not be hid. Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candle-stick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." -Matt. 5: 14–16.

In these sayings Jesus reproves and excludes secret teachings and secret works, but enjoins open ministrations, in word and deed. This is broad, unselfish, and uplifiting for all. God's sun shines for all; his light is free to all, and all who will, may "take of the water of life freely."

The Book of Mormon has no fellowship with secret organizations of any kind; but on the other hand, it denounces them all; and it teaches that the great perils of these latter days would be found largely in secret organizations. It warns the Saints against them and declares that they would be the sure precursors and signs of the approaching overthrow of nations. And the book of Doctrine and Covenants reveals the fact that from secret organizations would come great peril and evil upon the Church of God. As early as January, 1831, the Lord forewarned the Saints of this impending evil in these words: "And now, I shew unto you a mystery, a thing which is had in secret chambers, to bring to pass even your destruction in process of time." This "mystery," this thing which is had in secret chambers," the object and purpose and tendency of which would be for the "destruction" of the Saints, did develop "in process of time" in the form and work of what was and is called an "endowment" an oath-bound, secret thing, a mystery from first to last. It was this "thing," this "mystery," which had its location and workings in "secret chambers," that made polygamy and its kindred evils possible in the midst of the Saints, a people who, by command of God and by holy covenant in marriage, had adopted and endorsed monogamy and protested against and condemned polygamy and its like. Had these "secret chambers" found no favor among the Saints, had they been exposed, resisted and avoided, "the cable chain" of the deceived Saints in Nauvoo and since would never have fettered their souls nor cursed the name nor destroyed the godly power and goodly influence of the Church of Christ. It was in these "secret chambers" that "seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils" found greatest favor and did their most successful work. The "thing" which found its home and help in these "secret chambers" laid hold with corrupting hands upon the very foundations of the church and its work has been to defile, destroy, lay waste and "cause the way of truth to be evil spoken of."

Surely the Latter Day Saints have had and now have great reason to deplore, denounce and shun secret organizations, and they should profit thereby for all time.

AN AWFUL CALAMITY.

Many of our readers have doubtless heard of the terrible calamity which occurred at Johnstown, Pennsylvania,—a city of about 25,000 people,—(and vicinity), situated in the Allegheny mountains, on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, about seventy-five miles east of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. It is almost without a parallel in our national history and of such magnitude that we call attention to it, though but briefly. We do not attempt to give details.

Numerous high hills or precipitous mountain spurs surround the city, and up among them a lake of some miles in extent and of a considerable depth had been formed by walling up a stream between the hills, thus forming a dam or reservoir. Recent rains had swollen the stream and tested the retaining wall beyond its capacity and it gave way under the enormous pressure, rushing in its mad fury upon the ill-fated city of Johnstown, literally wiping out the place, and destroying thousands of lives and millions of dollars worth of property. Where once had been a flourishing and wealthy city with its teeming population of busy workers, now all is but a specta-cle of ruin, mourning and desolation. Families have in many instances been destroyed entire, while hundreds of others mourn the loss of father, mother, husband, wife or children, more or less; and the details of the suffering, and the heartrending occurrence are sickening and sad in the extreme. Numerous instances of insanity resulted as the grief-stricken survivors beheld the ruin and desolation, and as the awful realization of the loss of kindred and homes dawned upon them. Much suffering prevails among the survivors and sickness and pestilence are likely to result from exposure and the putrefaction of the large number of almost inaccessible dead.

Hearty responses are being made from all over the land and also from foreign countries, and the sympathies of the entire nation are bringing prompt supplies to meet the wants of the distressed and needy survivors.

We quote the following from the proclamation of Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania, which is probably as correct an estimate as has yet been made:

"The reports of the loss of life and property have not been exaggerated. The valley of the Conemaugh has been swept from one end to the other as with the besom of destruction. It had contained a population of 40,000 to 50,000 people living for the most part along the banks of a small river. The most conservative estimates place the loss of life at 5,000, and of property at $25,000,000. Whole towns have been utterly destroyed and not a vestige remains. . . . Those who are left have suffered the loss of everything."

A number of smaller cities or towns than Johnstown were also destroyed; floods also occurred at numerous other and distant points in the Allegheny mount-

Never before has the uncertainty of human life been so apparent. While the the civilization and public works of cities conduce largely to the education and general good of the people, yet the imperfect character of many of the latter and the oft-repeated criminal carelessness in their management frequently cause them to be but death-traps to the populace.

President Harrison and the Governors of the various states have issued proclamations requesting aid in behalf of the suffering and destitute which should meet with hearty responses.

Occurrences of this kind should awaken the warmest sympathy everywhere among the great brotherhood of man.

We notice in the list of contributions made by various Pittsburg churches, as published in a daily paper, that of the "Pittsburg Church of Latter Day Saints." Our brethren there have not forgotten their neighbors in their sore distress, and we commend them for good works as the apostle commended some of the ancient Saints for theirs.

Later reports present these almost incredible statements: "Conservative men are still of the opinion that the number of people destroyed will reach from twelve to fifteen thousand, and it is thought that from one thousand to fifteen hundred bodies will never be recovered.'

MINISTERIAL ENTERTAINMENT.

WE call attention to a selection which appears in this issue, entitled "Ministerial Entertainment."

There are some good points in it and we commend them; especially those contained in the last two sections. Our ministry require time for study and reflection in order to grow in knowledge and become more and more effectual in their la-

As in every other department of the work, study and reflection are necessary; and in order that this be had, system and order and the economizing of time must be followed. While pastoral duties-visiting and conversational preaching, prayer, etc., -are necessary, yet the time should be so divided, and the minister be so located that he be enabled to study so many hours during the morning or afternoon, or both.

The Saints should assist the minister in these things as he endeavors to aid them, and permit him to rightly divide the hours of the day in obeying the command, "Seek learning by study and by faith," in order that he may be able to "rightly divide" the word and make the progress necessary to constantly be "a workman approved, that needeth not to be ashamed."

Many of the elders complain that they get but little or no time for the necessary acquaintance with some branches of knowledge; that they are expected to put in almost the entire time in conversation. This should not be; no one of these departments of work should be neglected. In this day of general information, and the searching criticism which is generally made upon the latter day work by our opponents, our ministry are required to be studious. God inspires the mind with light and understanding in study as he does in preaching. The commands "Search the Scriptures;" "Study it out in your mind;" "Study my word which hath gone forth among the children of men;" "thy time shall be given to . . . learning much;"—the organization of the school of the prophets, and the injunctions, "Seek ye diligently and teach one another words of wisdom; yea, seek ye out of the best books words of wisdom; seek learning even by study, and also by faith;" "a knowledge also of countries, and of kingdoms,"-see Doctrine and Covenants,—are significant in this connection. They show that the Lord designed that His ministry should become a body of well informed men.

Some have endeavored to refute this position by saying, "God hath chosen the weak things of the world;" "open your mouth and the Lord will fill it." But they forget that out of weakness they were made strong. Attended by the discriminating and discerning power of the Holy Spirit, the ministry are enabled to separate the wheat from the chaff as they fulfill the command to study. Give them a proper amount of time to do it and if they are also prayerful and Spiritual, a marked improvement will be apparent in their efforts. Those who neglect it will not be as efficient as they should be.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. G. T. GRIFFITHS Wrote May 27th from Kirtland, Ohio, that he had baptized three at that place, and the work was in a flourishing condition throughout that mission. He had found Bro. T. W. Williams an acceptable and useful laborer to the Saints in that section. He also mentions the good condition of their growing Sabbath School at Kirtland, This we are glad to hear, and we hope the ministry will not neglect the duty of aiding, all they possibly can, that very important and too much neglected department of the great latter day work. It one member of the body suffers, all suffer with it; and the church can not afford to let that important "help" lie dormant or be misused. If she does, the cause will suffer loss in proportion to that neglect.

Prest. W. W. Blair left the sanctum on Thursday, May 30th, for a two weeks' ministerial tour in western Iowa.

Brother D. M. Stranchan wrote from Youngstown, Ohio, May 27th, that the branch was in good order and the Saints were living their religion.
Elder M. T. Short contributes a column and a half article to the Lancaster, Wisconsin Teller for May 30th, in defense of the faith. He evidently believes in requesting the press to aid in correctly representing our faith to the people. That is commendable and is an example which should be followed by our elders when wisdom suggests it—when necessary.

Sr. S. M. Sullivan of Biddeford, Maine, writes in good spirit concerning the work and its prospects. She sends for the printed word to loan to her friends to read, many of whom seem willing to become acquinted with and like the doctrine of the church.

Bro. R. M. King writes from Scranton, Mississippi, expressing a wish to be better situated to hear the word preached, and asking prayers in his behalf.

Bro. John Barnes writes from Excelsior, Iowa, requesting that an elder be sent there, in which event he will provide for his wants while laboring to teach the truth.

Sr. A. A. Utley, of Berlin, Arkansas, writes that an elder who will go and preach the word at that place will be made welcome. She sends for the HERALD for her sister, Mrs. M. C. Jett, of Knoxville, Lebrson county, Arkansas

Johnson county, Arkansas.

Bro. J. H. Wilson, of New Orleans, Lousiana, writes renewing for church publications, which he thinks every head of a family should have. We think so too, and while we have no desire to unduly laud the Herald or any of the publications, we think that inasmuch as they reflect the general news of the progress of the work and the favor of the Lord toward his people, they who do not read them suffer loss. The early Christians seem to have greatly prized the teachings and epistles of the ministry, and to consider such essential to their growth and development. Modern Israel will do well to do likewise.

Bro. John A. Davidson of Winona, Shannon county, Missouri, would be glad to welcome an elder at his home. A Brighamite elder named Hawkins had been through their neighborhood, and he would like Bro. Atwell, or some other elder, to preach the word there. Inquire at Keen's store, for the Roger's mill on Rocky creek. He lives on the mill farm.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. John C. Foss wrote from Independence, Missouri, May 31st, as follows: "For seven weeks I have had to keep my bed, but the prayers of God's people have prevailed and I am fast improving. I hope to be able to leave for my field of labor the latter part of June."

Bro. Foss has had a severe and trying time in his sickness, but we are glad to note his recovery.

PREPARING A PLACE.

THE following appeared in the HERALD of April 27th, page 259, under the heading "Questions and Answers":

"To whom does this promise of Jesus refer?—
'And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say to those on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.'

"The following is our answer: 'But, behold, the righteous, the Saints of the Holy One of Israel, they who have believed in the Holy One of Israel, they who have endcred the crosses of the world and despiesed the shame of it, they shall inherit the kingdom of God which was prepared from the foundation of the world, and their joy shall be full forever.'-2 Nephi 6: 7. Also, 'But, behold, verily I say unto you, before the earth shall pass away, Michael, mine archangel, shall sound his trump, and then shall all the dead awake, for their graves shall be opened and they shall come forth; yea, even all; and the righteous shall be gathered on my right hand unto eternal life; and the wicked on my left hand will I be ashamed to own before the Father; wherefore, I will say unto them, Depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels.'-D. & C. 28:7. Similar teaching is found in Mosiah 8:6, and all of this shows that the 'redemption' of the Saints and 'the kingdom' they are to eternally inherit were 'prepared from the foundation of the world.'"

A sister thus writes concerning it: "If the answere is correct, what are we to do with the following passages?

"And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also."—John 14: 3.

We reply that the celestial kingdom—the rest prepared for the people of God—was prepared from before the foundation of the world. This is proven by the following:

"Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."—Matt. 25: 34.

"Let us therefore fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it. For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them: but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. For we which have believed do enter into rest, as he said. As I have sworn in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest; although the works were finished from the foundation of the world. For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day on this wise, And God did rest the seventh day from all his works. And in this place again, If they shall enter into my rest. Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter therein, and they to whom it was first preached entered not in because of unbelief; (Again he limiteth a certain day, saying in David, To day, after so long a time; as it is said, To-day, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts. For if Jesus had given them rest, then would he not afterward have spoken of another day. There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God. For he that is entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from his.) Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief."—Heb. 4: 1-11.

The place for the kingdom, however, is not yet fully prepared; but Christ is now at the right hand of God supervising the preparation of this earth, which will yet be delivered from the curse, and be purified and glorified as the place for the kingdom of God to be. There is no conflict in the passages cited. Read 2 Peter 3: 5-12; Rev. 21st chapter; also Isaiah 60th chapter, etc.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Mothers' Kome Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES,"

"After the battle din and fiame,
To my low hed two angels came,
White Peace and soft winged Night.
One showed me starry worlds above,
Deep opening out to deep, where love
And Law lead all the hosts of light."

"One took the crushing load of pain
From breaking heart and weary brain;
—O languorous ease! O sweet release!—
And in a trance of sleep I saw
The earth upheld by Love and Law,
Her battles hushed by Night and Peace."

THE PEACE OF CHRIST IN THE HEART.

THERE is a little story of a busy woman's life which illustrates this subject. She was the mother of a large family, and, being in plain circumstances, was required to do her own work. Sometimes, in the multitude of her tasks and cares, she lost the sweetness of her peace, and, like Martha, became troubled or worried with her much serving. One morning she had been unusually hurried, and things had not gone smoothly. She had breakfast to get for her family, her husband to care for as he hasted away early to his work, and her children to make ready for school. There were other household duties which filled the poor, weak woman's hands, until her strength was well nigh utterly exhausted. And she had not gone through it all that morning in a sweet, peaceful way. She had allowed herself to lose her patience, and to grow fretful, vexed and unhappy. She had spoken quick, hasty, petulant words to her husband and her children. Her heart had been in a fever of irritation and disquiet all the morning.

When the children were gone and the pressing tasks were finished, and the house was all quiet, the tired woman crept up stairs to her own room. She was greatly discouraged. She felt that her morning had been a most unsatisfactory one; that she had sadly failed in her duty; that she had grieved her Master by her want of patience and gentleness, and had hurt her children's lives by her fretfulness and her ill tempered words. Shutting her door, she took up her Bible and read the story of the healing of the sick woman: "He touched her hand, and the fever left her; and she arose and ministered unto them."

"Ah," she said, "If I could have had that touch before I began my morning's work, the fever would have left me, and I should then have been prepared to minister sweetly and peacefully to my family." She had learned that she needed the touch of Christ to make her ready for beautiful and gentle service.

There are many busy mothers to whom this lesson might be almost a revelation. No hands are fuller of tasks, no heart is fuller of cares, than the hands and the heart of a mother of a large family of young children. It is little wonder if sometimes they lose their sweetness of spirit. But here is the lesson: Let them wait on their knees each morning, before they begin their work, for the touch of Christ's hand upon their heart. Then the fever will leave them, and they can enter with calm peace on the work of the long, hard day.—Seclected.

LEBECK, Mo., May 24th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—Many times of late I have felt impressed to write to the Column, but have neglected to do so because of my inability to either interest or instruct; but today when I took up the Herald and read the message to those who "should be correspondents," I said to myself, "I will wait no longer, but will try, though it should prove nothing but a failure.

We left Independence on March 7th for our new home, and arrived here in due time. We are well pleased with this country, so far, though hard times seem to have found their way here, as well as almost every place we hear from. We have had quite a cool rainy season here this spring, which hinders farm work somewhat. We found a branch of the church here, which is something to be thankful for, because wherever we find Latter Day Saints we are sure to find brothers, sisters, and friends. The Saint here are mostly poor in this world's goods, but we are not too poor to enjoy the rich blessings of our kind heavenly Father, who is mindful of his children everywhere, when they try to serve him and put this trust in him. Some of our prayer-meetings have been truly a feast to the soul, and many blessings have been gained through the gift of healing. To God be all the praise. I am sorry for people who do not believe that they can go to God in humble prayer, in times of trouble and distress, and obtain help and comfort from him. Oh! how many times have we been made to rejoice in the gifts that are promised the believers since we united with this work! And even before that the Lord has heard and answered our prayers, for thanks to our parents, we were taught from childhood of the divine mission of Joseph Smith and the blessings which the Lord was willing to bestow upon his believing children. And as we believed in part, so we were blessed in part. But greatest of all, it seems to me, was the gift of the Holy Ghost which I received after I was confirmed a member of the church, which truly witnessed of the Father and the Son and gave me the blessed assurance of my acceptance in his sight. Truly it was a baptism of the Holy Spirit which filled my heart with love towards God and every human being, and which to this day I am totally at a loss to explain. Weak and unworthy though I am, yet I know that my faith in this work grows brighter and stronger day by day. The Saints in this branch seem to be trying to keep the commandments of God and forsake the ways of the world. And I think the way in which Sr. Frances has explained the law on dress must have taken some effect in this branch, for, as a rule, they dress quite plainly, and do not seem to think they are obliged to wear the popular deformity, a bustle. Yet I fear there are some Latter Day Saints yet, who think it will not do to dress too plain for fear of attracting attention, or becoming conspicuous. But if the keeping of God's law could render us conspicuous, then surely the sooner Latter Day Saints become conspicuous the better. And in spite of the "dolorous plaint of woman upon the hackneyed subject," I do think Sr. Frances has made it so plain that if we desire to understand with a prayerful heart we may. For my own part I was shown in a dream years ago in answer to prayer upon that subject, that all this unnecessary adornment of the person or clothes was as obnoxious weeds which the Master of the vineyard desired uprooted; but that we had our own agency and would not be compelled to give them up, but must learn of our own free will to reverence God's law. But now the question is, will we sacrifice our own love of finery and pride of heart, or will we follow after the sight of our eyes and sacrifice time and money, and then say we have no time to read the books; no time to observe the hour of prayer set apart by the "Prayer Union;" no time to teach our children the things of God, and no money with which to pay our tithing or to support the church

Oh, may God's Spirit help us in the straight and narrow way, wherein few desire to walk, that when the day of God's power shall come, to the convincing of the house of Israel, we may all be helpers and not hindrances.

Your sister in the one faith,

EMMA L. ANDERSON.

Note.—We would like to ask the question of each earnest minded, reflecting Latter Day Saint, "How can you follow Christ without becoming conspicuous?" "Ye are the light of the world," said Christ to his followers, "a city that is set on a hill can not be hid." Let us bear this impossibility in mind, and then decide each one for himself or herself in what light he desires to be seen. Do you wish to be spoken of as one whose life is consistent with your profession or as at total varience therewith. Circumstances have placed us in a position to judge of the relative influence of many workers in the church, and let us whisper in your ear, (for the time is near when it will be proclaimed upon your housetops), the men whose influence is now felt, are the men who honor the law of God in their own lives and who shrink not to declare with boldness "the whole counsel of God," and the time is near when men of this stamp (and they only) will be upheld as standard bearers of the gospel of Christ. Will this be required of the priest and not of the people? There is to be a people "zealous of good works." This people are to be a "peculiar people." Peculiarities, you know, are always conspicuous, and while we recognize plainness of attire as among the requirements God has made of his Saints, we yet know that this plainness is not only perfectly consistent with beauty, but can be carried out without the slightest attention being attracted to the person wearing such garment. Not so, however, with good works. There are mighty preachers of the truth, and we would God that even all his people were zealous of them.—En.

BRYANT, Dakota, May 29th.

Dear Sisters:—I am striving in my weakness to be one with you in the Prayer Union and all that is connected with the cause of truth. The last time I wrote to you I was in Kewanee, now I am in Dakota and away from any of the Saints except my family. There are five of us and we are one in faith, but oh, how we miss our meetings. Our married daughters and I meet on Thursday of each week to hold our little meeting all by ourselves, and would you believe it, the Spirit of God meets with us even here away in Dakota, and how we are made to rejoice in the fulfillment of his promise that where two or three are gathered together in my name, there will I be and that to bless. I can bear my testimony that he meets with the two that try to approach him in prayer, and we can say it is good to be a Saint in latter days. With what pleasure I read the letters from my sisters, and while there are numbers that I have never seen, yet when I read their letters it seems as though I have known them all my life, and as there are many that will read this whom I have met in years that are past I would say, I thank God that I am still one of his weak ones and still have a desire to live faithful to the end. Your sister in Christ.

MARTHA WHITEHOUSE.

WARREN, Ohio, May 22d.

Dear Sisters:-- May I occupy a small cerner of the Column please? As I write to tell you of an event which has been my constant subject of prayer for the last six months, and, by God's grace, has at last been accomplished. I was baptized last Sunday, May 19th, by Bro. Garrett, a grand good man and a true Saint. I am so content and happy now. My prayer is that I may not grow weary in well-doing, but continue steadfast, looking upward to Jesus who is mighty to save even to the uttermost. What a grand work it is, and how thankful I am that at last I am one with you all, and that I can share, though not to any great extent, in the battle for victory. The Herald and Autumn Leaves are welcome visitors at our house, and we are strengthened and encouraged so much by them.

We had a meeting May 19th at one of the sister's—just the Saints who live here—Bro. Garrett administered the sacrament, and oh, it was a grand meeting! The first of the kind we have been permitted to enjoy. I am sure we were greatly benefitted thereby. The great wall of prejudice is being slowly broken down. This is a good field to work in. There are several who are now intending to be baptized soon. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion and the advance of the gospel, I am your sister in hope,

ALICE M. PINKERTON.

Sister Frances:—I have often thought I would write a letter to the Hopes and tell them how much I enjoy reading their little paper. I was not thirteen when my father died. At that time we were living on a new farm of one hundred and thirty-six acres, (father had sold twenty-four acres to get a team), and forty-five years ago Michigan was not as it is now, a day's journey by rail from the State of New York, for then we had to come on the Erie Canal to Lake Erie, then on Lake Erie to Detroit River, and thence to Detroit and Marshall by rail, and from there to our home in a wagon.

Our new home was wild, but oh such lovely flowers as could be found almost anywhere! I was a little girl then and did so much like to gather the wild flowers.

I will ask the Hopes a question.

What king "became mighty because he prepared his ways before the Lord his God?" I like to have questions asked in the Hope, and although I can not offer a prize to those who hunt up the answers, I trust many will be encouraged to search the Scriptures more diligently than ever before, not merely to answer questions; but because it is a commandment of the Lord Jesus Christ. I trust all the Hopes of Zion are kind to those whom they associate, and especially kind to the inmates of their own homes; for it hurts your kind hearted mother to see her little ones disagree. Just put yourself in her place and consider how you would feel to have those you loved so dearly do unpleasant things to annoy one another. Read Eph. 6: 1 and Col. 3: 20. Humbly praying for the welfare of all the dear children, I subscribe myself

AUNT JANE.

Accompanying this letter is an encouraging report of success in Sunday School work, and we are firmly persuaded in our own mind that succes will crown every earnest, persistent effort in this direction. With so many records of testimonies borne, "I am willing to do anything in my power to advance this work!" where is there any room for idleness, any excuse for neglect of duty. When elders are in the field, let Saints at home double their diligence, and let all envy and iealousy of others, especially because of his or her good works, be forever banished. Oh, shame upon that man or woman, who professing to be a follower of Christ, can harbor such a feeling, forgetting who has said, "He that will be greatest among you, let him be the servant of all." We earnestly pray that the willing workers may never be discouraged through this envy or jealousy of the idle, for they shall reap in due time if they faint not.—ED.

Correspondence.

RICHMOND, Mo., May 29th.

Bro. Blair:-I see there is no report of my labors in the minutes of the annual conference. The reason is there was a misunderstanding on my part in regard to who I should send my report to. I sent it to Bro. Joseph Luff, as I am in his mission. I saw a notice in the Herald from him stating that those who were laboring in his mission to report to him so he could report to conference. I took it for granted that he would take my report to conference as I wrote him that I could not attend. I hope there will be no hardness in the matter. I will send with this explanation my report: I have labored as best I could during the year. Have preached some in Caldwell county, Missouri, in Far West district. Have preached at some eighteen different places in the Central district. Labored some in connection with Bro. E. W. Cato. He baptized three in Ray county. I have not baptized any, but have blessed seven children and administered to some sick. I have not shunned to declare the word. I have been blessed with the Spirit in much of my administrations. Will do what I can during this Your brother, year.

R. L. WARE.

CONRAD, Iowa, June 3d. as been some time since

Bro. Joseph:—It has been some time since I heard from Southern Minnesota or this place, through the columns of the Herald. I feel thankful that I have been the means of helping some on the way to Christ. One finely educated boy from Brownsdale, Elton Elliott by name, is in Watertown, Dakota, wishing very much to be baptized. I am sure he will make a powerful helper in the truth. My sister Ella was baptized this spring, in Rhodes, by Bro. William Nirk. Mother Gifford, of Chitten, who is eighty-five years old, was very ill when I visited her five or six weeks ago. I have seen Mr. I. Jones and his brother in Hardin county. They are well spoken of by their neighbors and are firm as ever in the faith.

The Free Methodists gathered here for thirty miles around to make converts to their cause; but those here should bear in mind the words spoken by the prophets of God who came here at their own expense and told them their light would go out after rejecting a greater one. Their hired elder took dinner with me Safurday and felt badly offended when I informed him of the public slander and vilification heaped upon our people by his hired brethren at that time. I asked him to forgive me if the truth had hurt his feelings. He would not do so and I asked again with the same result. I would like to see all Saints, who wish a closer communion with God. to be doers as well as teachers of the law. The Bible is more universally taught to-day than ever before according to history, yet all churches lament the absence of Christian friendship which characterized them a century ago. Can we attribute this to anything but failing to do as they read and teach? Had the early church looked to Jesus, instead of men, they would not have changed their name from that of Jesus to Rome, and thereby come under condemnation of the law. Had the disciples changed the command of Jesus requiring them to tarry at Jerusalem and tarried at Damascus, or some other place, could they have hoped to see the Holy Ghost? Let us younger Saints remember that changing and living contrary to the ordinances of God are some of the causes mentioned by scripture for which the Lord will burn the world and few men shall be left. If we have never received evidence that this is the body-Church of Jesus Christ, let us repent and keep all his commands, which we can do if we will, and then he will not only acknowledge us before himself but before men.

I feel sure that the time is not far distant when the Lord will separate a holy people to himself and acknowledge them in power before the world. Therefore we should live so as not to be ashamed when that time comes. With love for all that is good. Yours in Jesus Christ,

WILLIAM J. GRAVES.

BARRY, Ill., June 1st.

Bro. W. W. Blair: -- I send you a notice of the death of three of my children. Will you please publish it in the Saints' Herald. I have had some sad experiences in my life, but I think this is the saddest of them all. I was in Missouri when the Saints were driven from that state and our lives were in danger for a long time, for we were at the mercy of a cruel mob and barely made our escape from the cruel massacre at Haun's Mill on Shoal Creek. We lived a few miles from the mill and left our homes and went there for safety, but were shown that it was not a place for safety, and we moved back home and sought safety in the brush by keeping concealed from the mob. But when the notorious proclamation was issued, and we found we could save our lives by leaving the state in a given time, we got out of there as soon as we could. Though we, (that is, my mother, and little sister, and myself), had to come out on foot and brought nothing with us but what we could pack on the back of one horse-clothing and bed clothing to keep us trom perishing with the cold. For it was very cold part of the journey to Illinois. I think sometimes that I would like to write down some of our experiences on Shoal Creek at that time if I was competent, but as I am not, I let it pass and leave it all in the hands of a just God. My faith is not shaken in the glorious gospel of the Son of God as revealed to us in these latter days, but it is all the hope and consolation I have, as I know my race is nearly run in this life; but I hope I may be counted worthy to have a place with the saints of God when Christ shall come to reign as King of kings and Lord of lords.

As ever, yours in the one faith,

R. C. HENDRICKS.

WHEELER'S GROVE, Iowa, June 3d.

Bro. R. S. Salyards:—Had full congregations yesterday. Br. E. C. Briggs was in attendance and took part in the dedication services, in the Saints' new church, at this place, at 11 a.m., he offering the dedicatory prayer, while I by request, preached the sermon. Brn. H. N. Hansen and Henry Kemp also assisted in the services during the day and evening. The song service was very good; and all through the Saints and friends seemed pleased and edified.

Br. Kemp and I are to hold services here nightly till next Thursday, after which we go to Henderson and hold services nightly till district conference convenes, Saturday next.

Weather has been dry and cold all through this region of late, and on low lands the frost has done much damage.

Church interests are progressing fairly in this section, and prospects are good for progress in the future. Yours, W. W. BLAIR.

ABBOTT, Ala., May 29th.

Brn. Smith and Blair:—I rejoice to hear of the spread of the gospel in foreign lands and climes, and the good labors done by the elders in all their fields of labor. May God bless and prosper his cause from land to land and from sea to sea, and may this year's labors double its membership in all the fields where the elders are laboring! Brethren, let us go on hand and hand together. United we stand; divided we fall. On, on to victory. Victory is the motto of all the faithful Saints.

Since General Conference I have labored to the best of my ability in Alabama and Florida with good success. I have preached in Santa Rosa county, Florida; Escambia county, Alabama, and others have opened up several new places with interest. The calls are many, the grain is ready to harvest and few to reap it. I am alone in this large territory. No local preaching is done in either district, except by W. I. Booker in the Alabama district. Bro. Joseph, we need some man to preside over this mission, as things are in bad shape here. If you could so appoint it would be a great help to the South-Eastern mission. I see that reports are had from all parts, but Alabama and Florida. This ought not to be as this part can report as well as others. I see from the annual table that Alabama has 398 of a membership and Florida 258. There are nine branches in the Alabama district, numbering from ten to forty and fifty. There are branches in the Alabama district that are not on the general record-one branch has nineteen members and the other twenty-five.

Florida has five branches, numbering ten to fifty or more, and several branches thrown away and the members scattered, and they are in no branch, though they themselves are in good standing. I have baptized thirty or thirty-five in this district who are not on the record. This would be four hundred and twenty-eight instead of three hundred and ninety-eight, and Florida stands the same. Thus you see how matters stand here, and all for the want of energetic men to manage affairs here. We are not reported to your General Assembly, and why? Because the men in charge fail to do their duty and all have to suffer, and I can not help grumbling a little. You see how badly we need a man over this mission, not that I would think to counsel you, but this is my judgment on the matter. My address will be Abbott, Alabama, for some time, and then Berrydale, Florida.

GEORGE R. SCOGIN.

Brown City, Mich., May 31st.

Editors Herald:—Our two days' meeting has just ended, and we had a splendid time. The Lord was with us from beginning to end, and a greater interest never prevailed in Brown City than at present. Many are saying, "I never attended a better meeting in my life." Others say, "It was the best preaching I ever heard."

Saturday, May 25th, our meeting commenced with prayer and testimony, the Lord being with us in power, and continued all forenoon. In the afternoon Bro. Levi Phelps preached a powerful sermon, subject, the necessity of keeping God's commandments. In the evening Bro. Robert Davis spoke, and on Sunday morning we met for social meeting, during which the gifts of J. A. Carpenter spoke, and in the evening Bro. A. Barr. Considering the time of the year there was a large turnout of Saints, including six elders, besides several priests and teachers. On the whole I think our two days' meeting was a success and will result in great good. I hope that as I live here in this branch to be able with the assisting grace of God and the help of Bro. Bailey and other branch officers to keep the stone rolling. I believe the time is not far distant when a good work will be done here. I am laboring all I possibly can. My wife being out of health it keeps me from laboring some, but I am in hopes the time will soon come when I shall be at liberty again. I am thankful to say that my wife is strong in the faith. I hope to remain faithful. In bonds,

J. A. CARPENTER.

BEELER, Kansas, May 26th.

Bro. Blair:—The work in this country seems to move slowly. The Saints have many friends out of the church who seem to respect us generally. Last fall Bro. W. F. Clark and I held several meetings in the Union school house, two miles north of my place with good attendance and interest. I held several meetings after Bro. Clark moved away, with good attendance and good interest. Bro. G. E. Deuel came and held nine mettings and the weather was unfavorable which prevented a large attendance; yet I think much good was done. There are some who desire to hold meetings there again. I expect to preach there soon.

So far as I have learned our meetings have as large atendance as any held by other denominations. The settlement is thin in this country, and the people generally are intelligent and enterprising. My desire to do good is as strong as ever, though I have done but little for some months. I wish to know Bro. G. W. Shute's address. Please let me hear from you, Bro. Shute. May the good cause ever prosper through the Saints living by every requirement of the law.

In bonds,

THOMAS E. THOMPSON.

SCRANTON, Miss., May 31st.

Dear Herald:-It has been a long time since I wrote for your papers, but I have been privileged to receive your weekly visits, for which great favor I feel grateful. Since April 1st I have haptized nine and for the blessed Spirit enjoyed in presenting the word and in confirmation meeting, I thank God. Six of those baptized were heads of families and three were young people about grown. There are others who we think will follow soon. I have many calls which I am unable to fill. The cry here as well as elsewhere is for more laborers. Brethren, pray for the Saints in the South-Eastern mission, that they may enjoy the blessings and privileges that the Lord has promised his people and be kept from the sin and evil that are in the world.

Your brother in Christ,

FRANK P. SCARCLIFF.

LEE'S SUMMIT, Mo., June 1st.

Dear Herald:—I was requested by some of the sisters in Boston, and elsewhere, to write to the Herald, as that would reach them all. This I promised to do, my reason for not writing before before being simply this, that I felt my communication was not of sufficient importance to warrant the space it would occupy in your valuable columns,—but I have been impressed of late to fulfil my promise.

On arriving in Independence from our eastern home, to say that our first impressions were good would be untrue, for our feelings were those of disappointment in many things. We did not expect to find perfection, and in that respect we were not disappointed. Those living isolated from the society of Saints and branch privileges, and always having lived that way, naturally think that those who enjoy those advantages ought to be in a high state of spiritual life; but we find human nature much the same the world over, and all have this nature to contend against. The impressions formed at first, gradually wore off, and after three months' stay among the Saints there (circumstances calling us away) were loth to leave, for we had made many pleasant and profitable acquaintances with noble souls who love this latter day work.

Here, in Lee's Summit, where there are but four Saints beside ourselves, we feel just a little lonely at times, and pray that the time will soon come when a branch will be raised up in this place. It is somewhat surprising to find in a place only fourteen miles from the center stake, people who do not know the difference between us and the Brighamites, and persist in saying that we are all one. Such talk as that was pardonable away back in Nova Scotia; but here, in this enlightened land where this gospel has been preached for fifty years, one hardly knows what to make of it, and although the readers of your columns—judging from the missionary reports from that source—may possibly think the people of Nova Scotia a little worse than any others, yet as far as my observation goes they are much the same as in this country—sectarian bigotry is the same and they use the same kind of opposition and arguments such as, "Don't let them in our churches; don't have anything to say to them," etc. But if there is any excuse for any let those have it to whom this gospel is comparatively a new thing.

In regard to this country as a home, we are satisfied to end our days here. Our health has been good here as yet, and although there are some disadvantages to contend with here as elsewhere, we like the country very much. To the Saints in Nova Scotia we wish to say that yon are not forgotten by us, and we are still deeply interested in the work there. Glad to hear of more being added to your numbers. May you with them prove faithful in this great and glorious cause is the prayer of your sister,

IDA A. LAYTON.

BOSTON, Mass., May 20th.

Bro. Blair: - As the work of the Lord rolls on I only become confident of its success, and I am made to feel more sensibly the need of a prayerful and devoted life to enable us to be saints in deed and in truth. We are in need of great wisdom and discretion to enable us to discern between truth and error, and to understand that Madam Rumor is not always a responsible witness. Law and order go hand in hand, and that as saints may have order it is necessary for us to study gospel law and cultivate a spirit of patience and meekness that love may prevail in all our deliberations. More study and prayful consideration of church government by ministers and members to enable them to run the race set before them are necessary. To this end I pray God to abundantly bless.

The district conference passed off pleasantly. A good Spirit prevailed from first to last. A church building committee has been appointed by the branch and they are going forward with the determination of victory. I pray for their success. It would give the work great prestige here. The above address will be mine till further notice.

In gospel bonds,

A. H. Parsons.

LONDON, Ontario, May 28th.

Bro. Dancer:—I think I am safe in saying that our Father is with us in the work here and at times his Spirit is felt to burn in our hearts, to comfort us in the assurance of our acceptance with Him. Although we find it to be a sleepy time with some, yet there are those that are earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the Saints and endeavoring to obey the great command to observe all things whatsoever He hath commanded us. I am pleased to say that we have a fully organized branch, elder, R. B. Howlett; priest, G. Henly; teacher, W. Pugsly; deacon, W. Hardy, and we have worked since the time of our office in unity.

Since being under this head of organization we have enjoyed the gifts of the gospel, had increase by baptism, also had ordinations, confirmations, blessings of children, organized a young people's prayer meeting and a band of hope for both young and old, and seeking to spread the truth by the Spirit and power of God. We feel our weakness for all our officers are working-men, and it is under some great sacrifices that the duties of the church have to be performed. I must say that the hand of affliction is upon me. I have had my oldest girl, aged six, down fifteen months with a very bad limb, having had it run over by a load of wood. It was a miracle that it was not cut off. It took thirty-eight stitches with the muscle of the leg cut right through and the flesh cut from the bone, but she was administered to and a gift came through Elder J. H. Lake that this affliction was for the glory of God. She has been in much pain and it is doing well with washing with clean water and using the oil. Since that I have had two other children and myself ill.

I can testify before men and angels that I believe that this work is of God, and that all things are working together for good to those that love God and keep his commandments. I have a large family and work some distance from home which I am trying to pay for by hard labor. Living two miles from church, I find that having to work so hard to maintain my family and then the church work week evenings and Lord's day comes very hard on my body. But I ask your prayers that I may have strength of body to perform the many duties and at last be found with the faithful in Zion.

Your young brother,

R. B. HOWLETT.

CLEARWATER, Nebraska, May 31st.

Bro. Blair:—I have just returned from a trip in Brown County where I baptized four, all adults, about twelve miles north of Ainsworth, making six members close together. If there are any members living near them they will do well to correspond with Bro. J. P. Hartley, Ainsworth, and perhaps they will do some good by becoming acquainted with each other. Prospects for crops thereabouts are good.

In gospel bonds,

W. M. RUMEL.

CREDULITY FOR SLANDER.

In daily life credulity finds its food in the ready credence given to slander and iniquity. Ninety nine out of every hundred people believe an infamous story if only given with sufficient detail. The hundredth alone demands corroboration. It is so much easier to believe evil than good!just as it is easier to write a telling satire than a wholesome panegyric. Repeat a story, no matter how bad, with aplomb and the air of conviction, and you carry your audience with you. Mention the sum for which ministers have been bought, and that which they have paid as hush money, and your hearers will rise to the fly, swallow it, and never ask whether it is made of living protoplasmic material, or of silk, dead feathers, and brown fluff. It does not signify how impossible in detail, how improbable in circumstanceit is a bait which credulity cannot withstand; and more unlikely the conditions of the story, the more certain are they to be accepted. All those who are able to delve deep into another's mind come to trace of credulity-that is, to beliefs entirely unsupported by evidence-which make them wonder at the folly, and sometimes dispair of the advance, of humanity.—London Queen.

John T. Davis, 42 Lakefield Road, Llanelly, Carmarthenshire, Wales, Great Britain.

Selected Poetry.

JOCKHEBED'S PETITION ON LEAVING HER SON IN THE RUSHES.

O Thou all powerful!
God of the sorrowful,
Give to my loved one protection and grace;
Curtain the eyes of all,
Nor let dire harm befall,
My cherished babe in this desolate place.

For perils deadly press
Fierce on his feebleness;
None of my race to shield him can dare;
I who would die for him,
Only can sigh for him;
Egypt's cold hearts are calloused to prayer.

To them my tears would be
What heaven's humidity
Is to the rock where unheeded it weeps:
To them my dying groan
Would be as the wild deer's moan
On the fell tigress as forward she creeps.

Show, then, Thy mighty hand,
To shake this wicked land,
Filled with the foes that are crushing Thy people;
And of Thy coming thus,
Now be the sign to us,
Life for the lone one, so helpless, so feeble.

Once on the hungry wave
Thou didst in mercy save
They by an ark who the world should restore;
Now where my child is lain,
Grant the same grace again,
In its frail ark on the waters on more.

Bright in my heart now springs,
Brought there by angels wings,
Hope which inspirits has sprung to my breast;
Finding again a voice
To bid my heart rejoice,
Heaven's balm soothing with comfort and rest.

Babe in thy helplessness,
Tho' Pharaoh's viciousness
Heartless has dared to put forth the decree,
Naught will befall thee
Nor death enthrall thee,
While God is content thy protector to be.
C. E. WILLIAMS.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

TRUE CHRISTIANITY VS. INFIDELITY.

I have had in mind for a long time to write a few thoughts in regard to the stand that some take to overthrow all that is pure and good and calculated to elevate mankind and place him on a higher and more noble plane of being, and make him more like his Maker. History to-day proves the truth of the Bible and what is written therein. What has preserved that book and has handed it down to this day? Some power greater than that of man has done this.

We call the attention of unbelievers to some things written therein, in Deuteronomy 28:64 to 98 inclusive. Moses, the man of God, is speaking to the children of Israel, or the Jews, in regard to keeping the laws of God. I would ask, has it not all taken place literally? To-day the Jew is found in every nation under heaven. When the prediction was made they were one body of people.

Again we read in Genesis 9: 18-20 in regard to the flood of waters that swept the wicked from the earth. The promise God made to Noah that the people would no more be destroyed by water as long as the earth remained, and this was the covenant, that God would cause the rainbow to be seen in the cloud-an everlasting token or proof that there would be no more flood. And these testimonies that are before all people should give us hearts to believe and not doubt the word of God. What will Infidelity gain at the final end? Only condemnation and remorse of conscience will be their reward. other hand the christianity of the Bible will entitle the believer in the doctrines of Christ, and the practicing of the same will give the followers of Christ a passport to joys and pleasures that are eternal, and fadeth not away. Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like

NICHOLAS RUMEL.

LETTER FROM BRO. J. C. FOSS.

Bro. Blair:—On April 19th I was obliged to take my bed with bilious and intermittent fever. I was administered to by the elders, but the prayers did not reach my case. I was very much alarmed about myself, for I felt that something unusual was upon me. I called a physician and he said I had the above named fevers. I soon learned that he was correct, and for four weeks I could eat nothing and became almost helpless. On the 28th of April myself and wife were moved upon to call in three of our good spiritual minded Saints for a word of prayer and once more be administered to. After they had prayed the voice of the Holy Spirit to me was, "My servant and my son, I will raise thee from your bed of affliction and you shall go to your field of labor. For I have a great and mighty work for you to do yet upon the earth." Much more was said which I omit as I wish my letter to be This gave me comfort, I assure you, for I knew it was of God.

I thought that when the elders would lay hands upon me I would then get the blessing, but I did not. The doctor called on me twenty-three times during the four weeks, and gave me medicine until his last call, when I told him to please give me a few days to rest up and see if I could take some nourishment. He said, "I don't want you to do that, for I fear the fever will rise higher on you, and if so, you're gone." After he left me, I said, "Oh, my God whom I've tried to serve at the best of my ability these many years, wilt Thou remember thy servant and fulfill the promise made to me?" I lay and thought, "is it best for me to continue the doctor's treatment, or trust in the power of God to save?" I wanted to know if taking the medicine was displeasing to Him whom I love to serve. I again called for several of the elders and sisters who were ready to do all in their power to help me. bowed before the Lord, the God of our fathers, and such prayers I never heard before. I felt that that little praying band had got hold of the golden horns of Enoch's city and could speak to the High Council above and the request then would send the desired blessing upon me and deliverance would come. After praying around Bro. Luff told Bro. C. G. Gould to anoint me. He did so, and then he called upon Bro. M. Shaw to offer the prayer. He had prayed but a few words when, in the Spirit, he said, "My servant, I, the Lord, will do for you what medicine can not do; but fear not, I will raise thee up and thou shalt do a work for me."

O, how thankful and happy I was to know that God was not asleep nor on a long journey, but was still ready to answer the desire of his unworthy servant, and still give me such a glorious promised blessing. For I love the works and ways of God, and I love to preach His glorious restored gospel in these last days.

From that time I commenced to receive strength, although I was very low. A day or two after the meeting of the praying band that met at my room, Bro. T. Chatburn asked brother and sister Robinson if they had seen Bro. Foss? They answered "yes," and that he was a very sick man. Many expressed doubts of my recovery. Bro. Chatburn called on me, and as he came in the house, making considerable noise with his step, and speaking quite loud, my wife and sister Flower, who was watching and attending me said in a low tone of voice, "Come easy, Bro. Chatburn," for up to that time I could not bear a knock at the door or a heavy walk on the floor. Bro. Chatburn came to my bed-side and looked at me. He took the oil and put a little in the spoon and I felt that I never heard such a prayer calling for the blessing of God to rest upon the few drops of oil that he wished me to take; for up to that time I taken none internally. I said "Thomas, I don't like to take that oil, for it will make me sick." "Oh no, John, I promise you that it will

I took it, and thank God, it did so. He offered prayer over me with a promised blessing as others had done, although he knew nothing of what had been said before. The next day he came again and repeated his blessing over me, and while he was praying I saw a holy angel coming from above. I thought at first that it was brother Joseph Smith, now president of the church, for he looked so much like him in face and size, but as he drew nearer I saw that it was not him. His face and hands were very clean and white. As soon as prayer was done he vanished from my sight, going up again. From that time I am safe in saying no one on earth ever gained strength as I did, and in a few days I was up and dressed and out of doors, and am now feeling that the promise made me will be fulfilled.

do you good."

The Saints stood by me nobly—the elders coming almost every day and administering to me—Brn. Shaw and Haywood hardly missing a day. Bro. Page stayed at nights, for all of which I feel to thank my good brethren and sisters, and to praise God from whom all blessings flow. I asked the doctor what his bill was for his services. He answered, "I don't charge you anything. I didn't come here for your money, I came to try and get you well." For this I thank Doctor Ervin. He belongs to no church, so he told me. Yours truly,

J. C. Foss.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., May 5th.

Selections.

IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL.

AN ANALYTICAL AND ABLE ARTICLE WHICH ANNIHILATES MILES GRANT'S THEORY ON THE SUBJECT.

I RESPECTFULLY ask you to give space to this reply to some of the assertions made by Mr. Miles Grant, in the Assembly Hall, last evening, concerning the immortality of the spirit, commonly called the soul. It does not follow that because a resurrection of the body will take place. the spirit which inhabits the body prior to its becoming released by death can have no existence or life during the period between death and the resurrection or that the reality of death, together with the dissolution of the earthly tabernacle includes the complete annihilation of the spirit. Though there is but little direct and positive teaching in the Scriptures respecting the condition and employment of disembodied spirits, or of the existence and locality of the spirit world, these great truths are everywhere implied, and since "life and immortality were brought to light" by the advent of the Messiah, the whole Christian world has received them. In his lecture, Mr. Grant stated that "the phrases 'immortal soul' and 'immortal spirit' do not occur once in Scripture;" but the phrases 'life for evermore,' 'everlasting life' and 'eternal life' are repeated scores of times in reference to men in the flesh having it, possessing it, and inheriting it, and these phrases are equivalent to the above. This perpetual duration of life does not belong to the earthly body, for that is often referred to as mortal, "vile," 'perishing," therefore the terms "everlasting," "eterna" etc., must relate to some other part of man's constitution. For life to totally end and begin again without a germ or root is subversive of all laws of God and nature and is as irrational as it is unscriptural. "He that believeth on me hath everlasting life." The flesh has no qualities or faculties by which it can fulfill this condition. Carnality can not exercise faith; it is the spiritual being that is the Hath is present possession; "everlasting life" is the quality. The Savior compares everlasting life to living water. Says he: "Shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."-John 4: 14. Removing the well or curbing of a well does not stop the flowing of the spring; neither will the dissolution of the body terminate the life of the spirit.

Mr. Grant also essays to believe that all human knowledge dies with the mortal tenement, that faculties trained by years of laborious study—in other words, that the intellect, the grandest work in the universe, ends at death's touch, and is annihilated. Imagine every faculty of the soul falling into utter disuse; all the treasures of the mind instantly lost, the most intricate and wonderfully constructed apparatus cast away for ever! What an awful thought should the dead so die. And yet this is what Mr. Grant would have us believe and quotes as his authority the following: "In the grave his thoughts perish." Certainly! "The dead know not anything" because "there is no knowledge or wisdom in the grave." Certainly not! The intelligent spirit does not go there, only the senseless dust. Thinking is the function of the brain. When the brain ceases to act, thought perishes, i. e., runs out. Per is a Latin root, and means through; ish implies motion or passing; when the body dies the thoughts perish or pass out of it. The dead are always referred to as to the fleshly body, never as to the spirit. But the subject at issue is the existence of a spiritual identity, either as joined to the body or separate from it, and the proof of its immortality, i. e., not subject to death. The question is not as to its name, whether it be a man, a soul, a thou, or a spirit; but does the thing itself, the identity, exist, and never die?

Mr. Grant seems to be perplexed as to how a spiritual being can dwell in, leave and re-enter a natural body. The difficulty lies in the misconception of the nature of spiritual things. Paul says, "There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body," not there will be, but there is. This implies personality of both. What is a spirit? A spirit is a being formed of spiritual substances, just as there are beings formed of physical substances. What a spiritual substance is in itself I can not tell, neither can I tell what natural substance is. Can Mr. Grant? He is conscious of the existence of air, caloric, and various ethereal substances; does he know what they are in their nature? Did he ever see them? A person born blind is in the midst of blazing light, but he is unconscious of it. Is he justified in denying its existence? God framed man's outward form from earthly elements, can not He organize spiritual structures from spiritual elements? "Dust thou art" is quoted by Mr. Grant, but it is not found in the Hebrew Bible. He should know that the verb art is an addition made by meddling translators. If he will read the text in the original he will find the words arranged "Dust, thou to dust shalt return." This is very different to "Dust thou art." "The Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground (the first 'of the' is not in the original), and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul." The breath of God is the Spirit of God, for breath is spirit. This breath or spirit became a part of the individual man; and the same spirit of life is in every living man, but it is not dust, neither does it return to dust. Nor is this breath of life that spirit of the man which constitutes his individuality and identity. His spirit is himself; and never was and never will be anything or anybody else but himself.

Devils are spiritual beings, but they have not mortal bodies. They will have no part in the resurrection and yet they will continue to exist in the future life. These evil spirits are in their nature and substance the same as the spirits of men. They sometimes enter and abide in human tabernacles; they compress the rightful owner and take possession. (Matt. 12: 45.) They are reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day. This applies also to disembodied spirits of wicked men who will partake of punishment with them, in being cast into the bottomless pit during the millennium. It will be seen from Revelations 17 and also 16:13, 14, that the "beast" and "false prophet" are not individuals only, but classes of disembodied spirits, who will ascend out of the bottomless pit to receive their bodies at the last judgment, and then go into perdition, which is the second death. (Chron. 2: 7; 17:8.) These spirits are immortal; and if wicked spirits live forever, will not also the spirits of the righteous? The immortal spirit or intelligence that has taken its abode in our bodies comes from God. Hence, after the dissolution of this mortal, the immortal spirit returns to God who gave it. If it were annihilated at death how could it return? But some of those spirits were seen of John the Revelator under the altar: "The souls of them that were slain for the word of God and the testimony which they held." These souls were not resurrected beings, as the time had not come. They were not slain souls, or dead men, but souls of them that were They had organic forms, for "white robes were given to every one of them." They possessed organs of speech, etc., for "they cried with a loud voice, How long, Oh Lord, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth." They were told to "rest yet for a little season, until their fellowservants should be killed as they were." -Rev. 6. The Apostle saw also four and twenty "elders," and ten thousand times ten thousand angels and elders who had been redeemed from the earth and were in the Paradise of God awaiting the first resurrection, that they might "reign with Christ upon the earth." All these spiritual beings, good and bad, manifested intelligence, "knowledge and wisdom," while they were dead in the language of Scripture, but they were alive in spiritual activity and personality.

It is understood that man is a compound of body and spirit. When this compound is dissolved, the parts separate, and the man, as such, no longer exists. The next question is—what becomes of the parts? We both agree that the body returns to dust. I maintain that the soul, or spirit, is immortal. Mr. Grant denies this, although he admits that the spirit returns to God! Now the resurrection will restore the parts and reunite the body and spirit, and the compound creature will be again a man. If the parts shall have been purified by the operation of earthly dissolution and the sanctifying effects of the Holy Ghost, the man will come forth a glorious being, and not the spirit only, but the body also will be filled with immortality and have the power of eternal life and increase and will die no more. But if the parts are not thus purified and sanctified, neither the earthly nor the spiritual natures will be clean or holy, but the resurrected being will be "filthy still." He will not be prepared to enjoy the felicities of the righteous, but will be banished from the presence of the Lord, and this constitutes the "second death."

Mr. Grant admits man has a spirit. But no man can prove that that spirit ever had a beginning. He also admits that it returns to God. He can not, and it is utterly impossible for any one to prove that that spirit ever dies. In speaking of the resurrection Paul says: "But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased Him." Giveth what a body? "It." "And to every seed his own hody." What is clearer than that it is the spirit that is here meant as receiving its own body? The bouse is constructed for the occupant, and not the occupant for the house.

The dogma that the spirit dies with the body is conceived in ignorance and brought forth of error. Its philosophy reverses the order of creation and makes a gap in the path of eternal increase. All living things, every plant and flower, possesses a living spiritual entity which survives its earthly dissolution and is left in its seed as a prophecy of future life and increase. To deny this eternal order in the economy of God's own offspring is to deny the possibility of the resurrection, and to preach heathenish annihilation. There is no germ or living principle in the dissipated dust by which it can call its parts together. There is no memory, or will, or consciousness in the diffused elements of a corpse by which it can unite and form a self-conscious organized identity. But the spirit lives and retains its memory and volition and all its characteristics and individual qualities, and must await the time of the resurrection, when God will give it its own body.

But not only does Mr. Grant affirm the total annihilation of man at death, but with a boldness verging on blasphemy, asserts that God himself likewise perished! It was the Son of God, the Lamb of God, who came and offered Himself a divine sacrifice for fallen man. It was God who sojourned among men, healed the sick, raised the dead, was transfigured upon the mount, sweat drops of blood in agony for man's transgression, betrayed and dragged before a bloodthirsty mob and was finally crucified as a dangerous impostor. What was crucified? Can you drive nails through a spirit or pierce with an iron point a celestial being? Can you flagellate the air or wound a sunbeam?

Peter says: "He was put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the spirit." The original reads: "Put to death by tearing the flesh, but alive or living by the spirit." He went and preached deliverance to the spirits in prison, which sometime were disobedient when once the long suffering of God waited in the days of Noah. What more consistent than that a spirit should go among spirits? He had administered to earthly beings while in the flesh, He now as a spiritual being went and administered to beings of a like nature.

Matthew says: "Jesus, when He had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the Ghost." Was it a dead ghost which Jesus yielded up? The word in the original translated "yielded" is from the root apha, lighting up, kindling, and meanssent away, released. Hence his spirit was released and departed and left the dead body hanging upon the cross. Jesus is the "Sun of Righteousness, the life and light of men." In Him all things live; He suffered the agonies of death in his own body that all might have a resurrection from the grave, through His coming forth the first fruits. But had His spirit died, no life could have survived the shock, all creation must have become a blank. Could the sun be blotted out and noon-day light not cease? Could Dame Nature die and her children yet live?

Not only can it be proved, as I have already shown, that the spirit exists or lives after the body is dead, but it can also be proved to be alive before the body is born. See Luke 1:14, 44. "When Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb." "For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy."

Here is a clear proof of the existence of the living, intelligent spirit previous to birth, and the independent use of its organic functions. Previous to birth the human fœtus has no separate or independent life. It does not breathe, it does not use the organs of vision or hearing, nor the brain for reasoning. The pulse of the mother throbs in its frame, and her breath keeps it alive. But John's spirit recognized the mother of the Savior without the medium of the bodily senses. As the spirit existed before the body, and exists in the body, so it will exist when the body is dissolved into impalpable elements. The most pungent, piercing or powerful physical elements can have no effect upon the more refined and delicate spiritual structure, no more than a lighted taper can destroy a sunbeam or thought be dissociated by chemical analysis.

Man is a compound of the celestial and the earthly. His spirit is a being of divine origin, endowed with God-like attributes and infinite powers. His earthly frame must not be despised nor underestimated. It is not merely a shell or extraneous covering; it is an added nature; a part of himself; a paternal endowment of infinite worth; an earthly temple destined to be immortal and filled with the presence and glory of the immortal spirit. When the union is made eternal by the power of a glorious resurrection the organism will be complete and the perfect man will be prepared to enter upon the path of eternal life, and partake with the righteous of a fulness of joy. The passages I have adduced, though few are not all that might be brought in support of the truth of man's immortal nature; but they alone by their united effulgence, bathe this divine doctrine in a flood of living light while the few passages which are distorted in order to disprove it are lightless sockets, or, at best, were artificial tapers, glimmering in error's cloudy lanterns.

I have not written this to draw out any written argument, but that Mr. Miles Grant may have an opportunity to answer some of the questions herein contained at his next public appearance in the Assembly Hall.—Deseret News.

LENGTH OF MAN'S LIFE.

HUMAN LONGEVITY DEPENDS UPON PRUDENCE AND KNOWLEDGE.

THERE is no longer any doubt that human longevity depends on human prudence and that the average duration of life depends much on the habits of the people. The highest average mortality or duration of existence is obtained in those countries where culture, wealth, commerce and civilization are most diffused. The smallest or lowest average is where poverty and vice and ignorance reign.

The question of longevity presents the greatest interest in its relation to man, although the conditions and results are similar when applied to the animal and vegetable kingdom. According to the Scriptures, Enoch was 365 years old when he died. Methuselah lived to the grand old age of 965 years. But the years as then calculated may have been of very much less duration, or the longevity attributed to the patriarches may have reference to their respective families rather than their individual age. Be this as it may, it is certain that after the deluge man's existence was gradually shortened until the average came to that now generally accepted as the limit -seventy years. Shem was 600 years of age when he died. Abraham lived, however, only 175 years. Isaac attained to the age of 180 years. Jacob died at 147 and Joseph at 110. All of these latter ages, however, were reached thousands of years after. Thomas Parr, an old farm laborer in England, died in 1635, after living 152 years and nine months. He married when he was 120 and lived with his wife twelve years before she died. He worked daily up to his 130th year and saw nine kings on the English throne. When he died it was found that all his organs were in a healthy condition; that the ossification of the cartilages, usually found in aged persons, was not apparent and that death had resulted from plethora. It was said that had Parr remained at his own fireside instead of going to London at the King's command he might have lived many years

Mary Patten is said to have lived to the age of 137; the Countess of Desmond to 145; Thomas Damme, 154; John Rovin, 172; and Peter Torton to the age of 185. All of these people, however, lived at an age when there was no standard by which to compute events; when no cronological records were kept and when it was the habit to fix dates by comparing them in the memory with other things supposed to have happened at the same time. Thus the sources of fallacy were many, although the narrators believed their statements to be true. The late Sir George Cornewall Lewis tried to prove that all these narrators, like those mentioned in Holy Writ, were inaccurate, but subsequent cases have shown that many people have attained to an age of more than a century. In these cases the age has been established by written records and not by evidences of a collateral kind nor on memory. Scarcely a month passes now but that the death of one or more centenarians is reported, and in nearly every case the fact that the deceased had lived to the age claimed is incontrovertible. Cases of longevity, it is believed, will become more and more common now as a sufficient time from the beginning of registering births goes on.

In support of this statement many facts can be cited. The insurance companies are gradually increasing the limit on life; the people are coming to appreciate that the period of life depends largely upon external conditions, and the mortality records bear evidences of an average increase of human life and a corresponding increase in the expectation of life. At one time the expectation of life to a man of 20 was given as 35 years. Now a man of 30, it is claimed, should live to the age of 63 at least. Due attention to the laws of nature and the known requirements of healthy lives in States and cities has much to do with this average increase of human life, and in no one way is it better proven than in the marked and undeniable reduction of the death rate in places where proper sanitary precautions and measures are made a study and perfected. Man is learning more and more every day how to live, and, although the period of maturity of the time when virility is attained can not be pushed forward perhaps, the "evening of life" and the period of decay can be lengthened materially. There is no reason why a man of 40 or 50, in the full enjoyment of his faculties and in general good health should not live to the age of 400 years, just as well as to the three-score and-ten limit, so long as the individual physiological conditions that determine longevity are observed. With the rapid strides made in science, the power of man to apply this increased knowledge to the problem of life, the limit of human life must increase.

Though accused of being fast livers, of burning life's match at both ends, the records show Americans to be among the longest-lived people on the earth, and that the average duration of life to-day is considerable greater than it was a century ago. This is not to be wondered at, however, for much of the work done in the olden time by hand is now performed by machinery, with a corresponding saving of vitality, strength and life to the worker. The problem of sanitation and prevention has, in a great measure, been solved, and the use and abuse of life's commodities is included in the curriculum of study in every school throughout the land. The greatest condition governing longevity, viz., heredity, is better understood, and the taints transmitted from generation to generation are becoming less and less every year as the germs of disease are killed in the present age. Diseases once believed incurable and which were looked for to manifest themselves in posterity from birth, are now radically cured, so that not only the one in whom it first showed is relieved, but his children and his children's children are granted immunity from a transmission of the disease.

That the average age of the human race is increasing is an undeniable fact. The statistics of America and of all other countries indicate this increase and justify the limit of So to 85 years, with a good chance of 100. The records of death are not quoted alone in support of this, but the registry of births as well. Scarcely a day passes but that the 100th birthday of some one is reported by the daily press.

Some time ago the newspapers printed thirty-three death notices in one day. Of these, twenty-seven were over 70 years of age, seven were over 80, four were over 90, and two had passed their 100th year. Of these thirty-three deaths, twenty-two were women, nearly all of them widows, and the preponderance of age was among them. Though it is claimed and generally believed that there are more boys born every year than girls, statistics show that women live longer as a rule than do men, and this fact is used in support of the claim made that external conditions have a great influence on the term of human life. Women live more regularly than men, their habits are more in conformity to nature than those of the opposite sex, they are less given to excesses of all kinds, and in consequence the average of their existence is greater than that of man.

Besides the reasons already given for bettering the conditions governing human life, the growth of temperance principles, the disuse of medicines and narcotics play an important part. The history of centenarians show that the majority of them have been temperate and that their longevity has been the result of a simple and common-sense mode of life. Some time ago a worthy professor in one of the leading medical colleges in the country addressed his class on the opening day of the term in these words: "Young gentlemen, forty years ago I sat where you now sit, and where I stand to-day stood a venerable and scholarly gentleman, whose name has since gone down to posterity and will live long after you and I have passed away. At that time it was his province to tell me and my province to learn how, why and when to administer medicine. To-day it is different, for it is my privilege to tell you and your privilege to know how, why and when not to administer medicine."

Brain work, so long believed to be unfavorable to longevity, is now looked upon in the reverse light, and the ages of those engaged in pursuits calling for mental labor, compared to those of the working classes, indicate that brain work is not unfavorable to long life. It is proverbial that judges and statesmen attain to a good old age, while the average life of the "wage workers" does not compare with Year by year the conditions governing human life increase. Man's work is made the more easy, his future is better assured, his comforts multiply, he learns the better how to live and his chances for a length of days increase in proportion to his acceptance and application of nature's laws .- Chicago Mail.

MINISTERIAL ENTERTAINMENT.

Who will entertain the minister? is often a vital question in places where there is no pastor, and the church has to depend upon itinerent service, having a new one to deal with every Sunday. In the country, where people are glad to see a new face once in a while, and where the bill of fare is limited to Hobson's choice-"this or nothing"-with some independence of character to go with it, there is but little trouble on this line, unless there is a squabble to see who shall have him. But in cities, where people are supposed to live in more style, and where there is more selfishness and love of ease to the square inch than there is elsewhere, the squabble is to see who will get rid of "taking care of the minister."

Now some of this trouble can be remedied by the use of common sense in knowing how to entertain the minister; and as the writer is not a minister, no one will mistrust that he means them if he offers a few points.

- 1. The principle trouble that has brought about an aversion to entertaining the minister is an over estimate of the job, in the first place; and the consequence laying out for the work that is supposed to be called for. Some people can not entertain a friend, not to speak of a stranger, nowadays, unless his visit has been anticipated a week or two, and a preparation from foundation to finish, as you build a cathedral, has been made. Where is the pertinence nowadays of that injunction of the apostle, "Be careful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares?" Angels in olden times were not in the habit of sending word a week ahead (as constables do in liquor seizures to-day) that they were going to call on a man, so as to give him a chance to brush up his faith and put away his wickedness. No, they drop down on a man suddenly, as the Lord will do to us ere long; and if angels and a prophet did not wait until a cake was baked, it will not hurt a minister or any body else to do so to-day. We need, ministers and all, to return to the simplicity of the olden times. We are cultured so highly that our piety is bound out, and the ground is occupied with worldliness.
- 2. Most ministers are big enough to take care of themselves if you will give them a fair chance and let them alone. They do not need to be petted, patted, praised, coddled, or fussed over. Raise a family, as godly women are admonished to do, and bestow all that taffy and twaddle on your babies, which other folks, with less sense, put on the young minister-and ruin him.
  - 3. Live just as well spiritually and temporally, when there is not a minister in town, and then you'll be prepared to take one in most any time, should one come along accidentally. The ox which treads out the corn is not to be muzzled; neither is an ox which treads out corn to be fed mince pie. Live plain at all times, if you would be healthy and enjoy religion. Do not bake mince and other fancy pies and cakes for the minister; leave them for the ungodly who are said to "not live out half their days"-probably, partly on this account. The trouble with the religion of many is not in their hearts, but in their stomachs. You can't put pound cake in the stomach and ounce ideas in the mind, and be an effective Christian.

- 4. Take the minister home and feed him plainly and well, and let him alone! Don't talk him to death. What would you think of a man who took your horse to keep who, after the horse had done a hard journey, should after supper spend the evening cracking the whip at him in the stall, to see him show up his agility and good points? A horse should rest up for the next day's work, and so should a minister. If you do rest and sleep in church, he has got to work, and perhaps harder on that account. Give him a chance to think. A man who preaches ideas not contained in last year's sermons, has got to think. An auctioneer whose merit is not much in ideas as in a tongue that goes like Tennyson's brook—"on forever"—can talk all the time, meal times excepted; but a man who preaches ideas can not. Do not get the idea that entertaining the minister is getting the minister home with you to entertain you supposing that he does love to talk. Other folks love to make harnesses, but they want a chance to rest.
- 5. Finally, put him to bed early; but not in a bed which is like an iceberg split in two, by being in a room which has been aired every rainy day, but not slept in for a year. There has been more than one man killed with kindness, and one way to do it is to be sure that he does not sleep in sheets that any one else has slept in, if a year intervenes. It is said that if God's servants "take up serpents, or drink any deadly thing, it shall not harm them," but nothing is said about the insidious effects of a cold, damp bed, which has not been slept in or aired since the last annual meeting.—Sel.

Miscellaneous.

PASTORAL LETTERS.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, May 27th. To the Saints in our mission, greeting: May grace attend you in all your work, and may your efforts be untiring through our heavenly Master! A more interesting field than we have to occupy is not alloted to men, and the present year opens with much to encourage us: First, we have a large mission, comprising nearly six states namely Virginia. West Virginia, Ohio, western Pennsylvania, Michigan and northern Indiana. Secondly, we have an increase of laborers to help us. Thirdly, much of the prejudice has given away and the Reorganization is being recognized by all well informed and fair minded people as a virtuous, loyal, God fearing church, in contrast to those lecherous apostates who inhabit the salt lands in the deserts of America.

The public lecturers and the honest ministry of all churches in the civilized world make a distinction between us and those Mormons who style themselves Saints, when they ought to renounce the name and acknowledge that they are fulfilling the prophecy of the ancient Apostle when he said: "For of this sort are they which creep into houses and lead captive silly women, laden with sin, led away with divers lusts;" and they live where Jeremiah the prophet declared the rebellious should live when he said: "Thus saith the Lord: Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord. For he shall be like the heath in the desert, and shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited." -Jer. 17:5, 6.

Now and then one of their minions from said land passes through our mission, but they take pains to stear clear of us. Yet we hear of them, as making claims of being teachers of the gospel, but not their blasphemous "new and everlasting coventant by which they shall pass by the angels and the gods which are set there to their exaltation and glory in all things."-page 26 Deseret News, September 14th, 1852, wherein they literally fulfill 2 Thesselonians 2:4,-"who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped."

The Mormons, like their predecessors in apostasy, shun investigation when the light is present to point out their defects and atrocious preten-We have nothing to fear from them; our sea is clear, and all we want now is to make our own record, and in order to do so, let every member of the church feel and realize that a part of the burden of bearing off the kingdom rests upon him.

Elders in the respective fields, take up the armor with renewed energy and zeal. Seek every opportunity to preach the word, for the time has come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts have they heaped to themselves teachers, and they have turned away their ears from the truth unto fables. All members should feel as though much depended upon their individual efforts, by strict, upright lives and such means as God has blessed you with to spare for His work.

It is a great sacrifice for the ministry to be de-prived of home comforts and family ties in order to save erring ones and help them to secure a home in the celestial glory. And while they are doing this great and laudable work, all those who contribute to their needs or that of their little ones at home, have and are entitled to their share of the reward, as he who is "wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."—Daniel 12:3. And as the revelation reads to one of the first laborers of this last kingdom, "and if it so be that you shall labor all your days, in crying repentance unto this people, and bring save it be one soul unto me, how great Father."—D. & C. 16:4.

"And, again, let him that laboreth in the ministry, and him that toileth in the affairs of the men of business and of work, labor together with God for the accomplishment of the work intrusted to all."-D. & C. 118:8.

The light receipts in the treasury of the Lord indicate to the ministry and members the necessity of frugality, diligence and more determina-tion to do to the best of our ability the coming year to build up the cause. Do not let anything discourage you.

The cause we are enlisted in is presided over by the blessed Master in heaven. What a glorious thought to know that Jesus, the Christ in deed, is the head of the church of which we have the honor of being members.

The stick of Judah and Joseph, with the Book of Covenants are the great records, witnessing that God is love, and a covenant keeping God. And as He was mindful of Jews and Nepites, so has He not forgotten to speak to all nations; and lifted His standard to them as a warning that the end draweth near, and the rewards are soon to be meted out to all the faithful workers in the glorified kingdom.

We can not forbear suggesting to all the elders and priests the propriety of opening up new neighborhoods as much as possible in which to preach the word, so our skirts will be clear when the time of our reckoning comes, and none can then say, "We have not been warned." We exhort all to be faithful to their covenant in Christ, and see all do as you would wish you had done when the blessed Master "comes with healing in when the blessed Master "comes with healing in his wings" "to bind up the broken hearted and comfort all that mourn."

Brn. Beatty, Devore, Matthews, Moler, Shinn, C. and L. Scott, Rathbun, Cornish, W. J. Smith, Carpenter, J. T. Williams, L. W. Powell, James Brown, F. C. Smith, L. Phelps and E. Delong are all good men, and all are expected to labor in the mission all the time.

We would be pleased to hear from you respectively often,-and of the interest of the work in your various fields; and, by advice and counsel see if we can devise such methods as will strengthen each other in building up and keeping the best of interest in our mission,-thus encouraging all local laborers to do their best and so feed the flock of God, and call in the lambs to the fold where Christ is the Chief Shepherd. We have but one interest, brethren, and that is to see the church increase and prosper.

The Bishop and his Counsellor fortunately live within our especial field, and we may reasonably expect to see and have them help to put the financial system of the church into perfect order, practically, during the coming year in all the churches.

As financiers there are none to excel them, and none have made more sacrifice financially to serve the church than they-and all for the love of the work. Hence no selfish interest can be attached to them, only as they with us, all desire to be saved in the kingdom of God, upon the principle that he who sacrifices and labors expects to receive rewards for work done, and according to the deeds here performed. It is a fact that the Scriptures teach that judgment is rendered according to deeds done in the body, and not according to our faith. Devils believe and tremble, and the wilfully wicked have "a certain fearful looking for of judgment:" but he who labors as the righteous shouts the coming of the judgment with joy and not grief.

The grand work never looked brighter than now to us, and we do not feel to waste any time looking after those discontented ones who take delight in casting odium upon the work or its defenders. But we feel with cheerfulness to press on until it is finished by the coming of our Lord amidst the shout of the archangel and the trump of God calling all to judgment.

The prayer meetings where Saints often meet to speak one to another should not be neglected. There is the place to get your spiritual strength renewed and to encourage one another,-but especially your presiding officers.

The enemy of all righteousness is ever on the alert to catch those who are not on duty, and in the language that "idleness is the workshop of the devil," certainly none but the true, live Christian can expect to be saved in the "better resur-rection."

Ever praying for your success until crowned in the triumphant coming of the King of kings, we remain your servants and co workers in the everlasting gospel, E. C. BRIGGS, G. T. GRIFFITHS.

To the Saints in Cookerville, Wyoming Territory: The privilege of laboring to preach the gospel in the above locality is solicited by Bro. A. J. Layland, of Montpelier, Lake county, Idaho, as I understand as his circumstances will permit, to which I know of no legal objection. For as Nelson exclaimed while facing the enemy's bullets at Trafalgar, "England expects this day that every man will do his duty." But the term "this day" may be applied in the Lord's service to mean our whole term of life subsequent to entering into covenant with the Lord; and in that service there is no guaranty for doing as we please, except we chose to do right; and that right is to be determined by a right method of law, and order. And in the face of the variety and decisiveness of right, thus determined, controversy should, and will cease with the contrite and upright of heart who thirst after righteous-But croakers, schemers, policy men and those who may choose to go about to establish their own righteousness, thinking that feigned piety in lieu of loyalty to God's law, will bring the coveted prestige, &c., will grow worse and worse. I heartily hope that the co-operation of Bro. A. J. Layland and the Saints and friends in the above locality, or in every other part of Wyoming in which his circumstances may permit him to labor may be pleasant and profitable. I wish to hinder none, from proper and legitimate For how dare I do this, when every sublabor. ject of God's kingdom is commanded to be steadfast, immovable, always abounding, &c. God's method is to permit; yes, and rugulate this steadfastness immovableness and abounding. This I have taught, and by God's grace (though in much weakness) intend to teach; and so far as is legitimate, essay to enforce. But if in this, God imposed work I should be foiled,—rule and law be trampled under foot for a time,-I must wait, watch and work for the salvation of God,-To teach men the verity of God's word, the unchangableness of His character was one of the purposes reflected in the restoration of the gospel in latter times through Joseph the Seer. And for the revealment of these facts God says that He excuses not himself. Who then shall want to be an apologist for God? How can the finite pre-judge the Infinite?

In gospel bonds, JAMES CAFFALL.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The semi-annual conference of the North Nebraska district will convene on the evening of June 28th, with the Platte Valley branch, three miles south of Valley station. It is expected that a grove will be provided for the occasion. Bro. James Caffall is expected to be present. Let all reports be prepared properly and placed in the hands of the secretary in time. Those coming by train from the east will be met at Waterloo, and those coming from the west will be met at Valley, by informing Bro. N. Brown, Waterloo. All will be provided for.

W. M. RUMEL, Pres. of Dist.

The quarterly conference of the Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin district will be held June 29th and 30th, at No. 213 West Madison-st Chicago. It is expected that both Branch and Sabbath School interests will be fully represent-We hope some of the general ministry will be present and help us in the work of the conference. The Saints of the Chicago branch extend a cordial invitation to all who wish to attend. Eric Johnson, 214 Sedgwick street, S. C. Good, 463 West Indiana street, committee. F. M. Cooper, Dist. Pres.

SUNDAY SCHOOL AND REUNION MEETINGS.

Saints and members of the Latter Day Saints' district Sabbath School Association of Southern California are hereby notified that said Association will hold a series of meetings at the edge of the big lake, in Laguna Canyon, twelve miles south of Santa Ana, beginning July 3d, 1889.

All Saints and members of Latter Day Saint Sabbath Schools in this district, and all visiting Saints are cordially invited to be present, and to take part in the exercises as far as they can. For programme see Hope. It would be best could the Saints assemble and have their tents pitched by Tuesday night, (July 2d), and those who do so will be richly rewarded by a lecture from Elder D. S. Mills.

VINA H. GOFF,

Acting General Sup't.

The first of a series of reunion meetings for the Southern district of California will convene in the tent at the big lake in Laguna Canyon, Los Angeles county, July 25th, 1889, to continue one week, if the weather is favorable. Abundance of hay, wood and water for the accomodation of all who wish to camp; and a good hotel in easy reach of those who may desire it. Saints coming by rail on the California Southern or Santa Fe can stop at El Torro station, between Santa Ana and San Juan, where teams will be ready to convey them to the camp. Those coming via Southern Pacific will be met at Santa Ana depot if they will notify me in advance so I can have teams in readiness at noon of each day to convey them. Come Saints; arouse, put forth a strong effort one and all to come and receive a blessing. Elders Heman C. Smith and Joseph F. Burton, missionaries in charge are expected to be present; also elders Q. S. Sparks, Hiram L. Holt and others. Be present July 2d if possible.

Box 210, Santa Ana, D. S. MILLS.

Los Angeles Co., Cal.

May 28th, 1889.

DIED.

HOPKINS .-- At Lucas, Iowa, May 25th, 1889, Stella J, child of Brother and Sister Thomas Hopkins, aged 19 days. A sweet bud plucked away by the grim destroyer. Funeral services by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

H. A. Stebbins.

Though your darling child is taken From your bosom to the urn;
Soon the sleeping dust will waken And her spirit will return.

Yes. again you will behold her, Fairer than the morning ray;
In your srms you will enfold her, When all tears are wiped away.

NEWEY .- At Birmingham, England, May 16th, 1889, Sister Sarah Newey, in her 77th year. She was born November 10th, 1812; was baptized October 4th, 1870, at Birmingham, by Elder Thomas Taylor. She remained faithful to the end and died in full hope of a glorious resurrection with the just.

HENDRICKS.—At the home of her parents, near Barry, Pike county, Illinois, after six days of severe suffering with typhoid fever and congestion of the brain, Miss Lydia Alice Hendricks, daughter of R. C. and O. A. Hendricks. She was born on August 24th, 1870, and died on January 12th, 1889.

HENDRICKS-At the home of his parents, near Barry, Pike county, Illinois, after one month's severe suffering with typhoid and catarrhal fever, William Isaac Hendricks, son of R. C. and O. A. Hendricks. He was born February 27th, 1861, and died February 20th, 1889.

HENDRICKS .- Daniel Ray Hendricks, son of R. C. and O. A. Hendricks, was crushed to death by the falling of a tree where he was sawing tim-ber, a few miles from his parent's home. He was taken away in the full health and strength of manhood without a moment's warning. was born November 28th, 1867, and died April 17th, 1889. He was, as all the others, born and raised in Pike county, Illinois. A funeral discourse was preached by Elder Jackson Goodale on the fifth day of April, 1889.

NOTICES.

Notice is hereby given to the scattered members of the Pleasant View branch of the Spring River district, Kansas, to wit, Matthew Alexander, Mary J. Sheperdson, James Sheperdson, Marion Hollinsworth, Mercy E. Hollinsworth, Benjamin Combes, George W. Mavis. They are requested to report to R. Bird, clerk of the Pleasant View branch, by August first, or their names will be dropped as scattered members. By order of the branch. R. BIRD. Clerk.

[They should not be dropped, but recorded as scattered members on the branch record.-ED.]

To the members of the Reorganized Church, scattered in Colorado, greeting:

Through much diligence, perseverance and sacrifice, the few Saints of the Rocky Mountain branch have enclosed a house of worship 36x21, with a 14 foot ceiling, with a neat vestibule; one of the most if not the most arduous works in the church ever accomplished by so few Saints. The help received from neighbors and friends has far exceeded their expectations. Seats and other furniture have yet to be secured, and an appeal is hereby made to the Saints scattered, as above, for assistance in its completion. This is the first and only church built by the Saints in Colorado.

'Tis not an expensive structure, but when finished will be neat and respectable. Those wishing to aid will please forward their donations to James Kemp, Hutchinson, Colorado. Members in other states will be privileged to help if desiring, but an especial appeal is made to the Saints in Colorado.

James Caffall,

In charge of mission.

A FINE MOSAIC OF LAMONI.

 $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$  inches.

Seventeen different residences grouped in one card with name under each picture.

By mail, post paid, 35c; per doz. $3; per 100, $20. Send 35c. for sample.

The traveling ministry please notice this. A. M. CHASE, Lamoni, Iowa.

· Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the county seat of Barton county.

EBENEZER MILLER, Senior, Scammonytille, Cherokee county, Kansas.

SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't.

D. F. NICHOLSON, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK OF LAMONI.

Ample Responsibility.

Loans money on aproved security. Six per cent interest paid on time deposits. Real Estate bought and sold.

[In the Press.]

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

PRICE $2.50 BY MAIL.

The Harmony will contain all the hymns in the Saints' Harp; also 542 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, 13 full sized pages of music, full instruction on choir and anthem music, the Editor's preface and introduction, and publisher's preface.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - - - $1.50. M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

REAL ESTATE AGENTS,

West Lexington Street,

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

---: A Family Newspaper.:---THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT

Provides its readers weekly with

Provides its readers weekly with

56 COLUMNS

Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News,
Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thoroughly acquainted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS,
25aug Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPES.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE	*
Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.
HOLY SURIPTURES.
(Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.)
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges
BOOK OF MORMON.
Roan, sprinkled edges
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.
Sprinkled sheep, or library 25
Imitation Moroeco
SAINTS' HARP—HYMN BOOK.
Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges 50
BRADEN-KELLEY DEBATE.
Cloth Boards, 396 pages
Propositions -(1) Is the Book of Mormon of divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to the respect and belief of all Christian people?
(2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden am a member, the Church of Christ, and identical in faith, organization, ordinances, worship and perfected by the America of Christ? (8) Is the practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and accepted with Him?
FORSCUTT—SHINN DISCUSSION.
1
Paper covers, 194 pages
ing of Christ to Judge the world is now nest." ing of Christ to Judge the world is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible teaches the Literal Resurrection of the body from the grave."
VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.
Discoveries of Ancient American Records and Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew.
Paper covers, 43 pages
CONCORDANCE TO DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.
An enlarged edition, 32 pages, paper covers. 10
BRANCH RECORDS.
Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages. 2 00
DISTRICT RECORDS.
Printed and bound similar to Brane' Records 3 00
LICENCES, NOTICES, &c.
Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licenses, each per dozen
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books 25
Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred 40
CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.
Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen 40
Annual Statistical Reports, two for 05	-
Certificates of Baptism and Membership,	Of the same
per dozen
Certificates of Removal, per dozen	-
, 1
SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES.
Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. 50	day here
Prompt Attendance Tickets, 100 for 15	deserve.
" 1,000 for1 00	NAME OF STREET
Good Behavior Tickets	WARRANTANA CO.
Tract 42.—Rejection of the Church, a dozen 15	A STATE OF THE PARTY
per hundred 10	Sparrage.
Tract 43.—One Wife, or Many, per dozen 25	dynamics (dy.
per hundred	-Hedracht.
SABBATH SCHOOL BOOKS.	Annual Co.
Compendium of Faith, for higher classes, bound in sprinkled Leather, each $1.00 The same bound in Cloth 75 Question Book, for intermediate classes, each 25c.,	A Department
Question Book, for intermediate classes, each 25c., per dozen	September 1
, gram parametric resuggious services and the services are	9

	-
TRACIB.	20
per hundred 1	20 50
per hundred 4	)5 10
No.4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.
dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1.000.1	75
No. 5.—The Gospel price the same as No. No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Sub-	% .
jects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who	75
No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. (	)5
No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; per doz.	10 25
per hundred	75
ural Standpoint per doz 30c per 1002	25 10
No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz	30
No. 12-The Bible versus Polycomy	25
No. 14.—Reply to Orson Prattle per dozen.	85 25
per nundred	75 05
per hundred  No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Te-	40
No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001	40
No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-	25
per hundred1	75
per hundred	15 10
No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of Christ, under the Apostleship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001	40 03
per hundred	15
per hundred	15 10
No. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 1001	25 40
No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. No. 25.—Mountain of the Lord's House;	40
per dezen be, per hundred.	40
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz per hundred1	25 40
No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100	40
No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon per dozen 15c., per hundred1	10
No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Ortho-	JI. CF
doxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No.	4.
No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100 No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined	40 per dozen 20c., per hundred1 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection	25
őc. each, per dozen	50 15
Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.	10
COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.  Bound in Limp Cloth turned in	75
COWDERY LETTERS.	10
Containing valuable matter in relation to t	he
Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery a Translation of the Book of Mormon, and t	he
Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.  In paper covers Sc. each, per dozen	75
Without covers 5c. each, per dozen MISCELLANEOUS.	50
The Problem of Human Life Here and Here-	F 0
after, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages1 Universalism Against Itself; 336 pages1 Josephus, complete, library leather3	50 00
Josephus, complete, library leather3 Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Em-	50
pire, cloth boards, 5 volumes4 Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols4	00
Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated) 1	8.0
Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one4 The Koran, library leather	00
Gieselar's Écclesiastical History, from a.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols10	00
The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Casarea and Palestine. 2	00
Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible. 1	75
Bible Text Book	00 65
Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size Elders' Diary, by Joseph Luff	85 30
ş	•

"HEARREN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAYE IT BE ONE WIFE. AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.-Whole No. 840

Lamoni, Iowa, June 22, 1889

No. 25.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express.

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Perald

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. Blair -

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 22, 1880.

DR. THOMAS ON THE EXISTENCE OF GOD.

Rev. Dr. Thomas, of Chicago, has long been known as one of the most advanced theological teachers of the age. His liberal beliefs and fearless advocacy of them resulted in his leaving the Methodist church. On sabbath last he preached a remarkable sermon which has set the whole religious portion of Chicago and the county to thinking and talking wherever the sermon has been read. The following is the principal part of the address, at least that part of the address which has caused so much comment:

Chicago Tribune: "I question whether or not it is possible for man and the human intellect ever to stand without the possibility of a doubt with reference to God. I never saw an argument tending to prove the existence of God that did not need another argument to uphold the first. Reason tries to show God and fails. It is the heart that perceives God, but doubt will ever remain on the part of the understanding."

These words were uttered by Rev. Dr. Thomas from the pulpit of the people's church yesterday morning as the climax of a profound line of reasoning. They created a decided sensation in the congregation. The place was crowded to the doors, the balconies were filled to overflowing, and in the auditorium there was barely standing room. The popular pastor was at his best. He had selected an inspiring text as his theme, and an immense congregation was present to hear him. Once or twice during the course of his sermon, while developing philosophical lines of argument, he had treaded on ground perilously near the skeptical and uttered words pregnant with free thought doctrines; but not until he delivered the words quoted had he flung out so bold and radical a statement. It was in all respects a most remarkable sermon, one which will doubtless call forth numerous criticisms from the clergy.

Dr. Thomas' text was taken from Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, where the apostle says:

"Which things we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth but which the spirit teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."

Dr. Thomas began by calling attention to the fact that for centuries the movement of the human mind had been mainly outward, hence the progress of the world had been along the lines of great discoveries and inventions and creation of industries.

The perceptive or outward powers of the mind were called into action more than the reflective. Man had thought away from himself rather than about himself, hence material knowledge had been emphasized more than the spiritual. But from this outward reach the thought of man was returning and the methods of this return movement were seen in several directions. The great activity in material studies had found a new field and impetus in the physiology and chemistry of the body of man; in the appearance of several forms of ancient thought, as in theosophy, Christian science, and the occult mysticism of India. But there was still another indication in the less gross and material interpretation put on the doctrines of religion.

"What means this great return movement?" went on Dr. Thomas. "What means this great wave of spiritual change? It exists, none dare dispute the fact, and it must be taken into account. Fifty years ago it would have been considered gross infidelity, shocking skepticism, to put any other than a literal interpretation on the resurrection of the body. Intelligent men believed as strongly as they believed in their own existence that the resurrection of man meant the coming together again of man's body, bone, and flesh. But to-day one would have to look far and wide for a man who believes that this gross body laid in the grave will come up again. The same is true of the present understanding of hell and future punishment. Not one of our modern ministers believes that this literally resurrected man is to be cast into a material hell of fire, with a clanging of chains, everlasting misery, and sufferings infinite. These same ministers are already declaring that they never held such a belief. The time is doubtless coming also when they'll deny that such a belief was ever thought of.

"But history records these facts.

"Why all this change? My friends, this world is a world of effects as well as causes. This return movement of thought to self is productive of results. Thought has reached that point where it now believes that the ego is not the vile dust once held to be. What difference does it make whether God is taught in a cathedral that shows splendid vistas of architectural beauty or in a theatre; Thether the teacher wears the sacerdotal robes or the plain black coat; whether incense is burnt, anthems chanted, and a gorgeous display of ermine and purple is made, or a plain prayer offered?

"The rational intellect has become the body of the spirit. It is of God and like God—the same in kind, only less in degree and it cares little whether worship is made in the wilderness and play-house or in that sanctified pile of bricks and mortar called a church. It is the spirit that rules! See it in the expressions of art. The material is subjected to the spiritual."

The ego in man, the me, the conscious knowledge that reasons, feels, perceives, and acts—that is the spirit, he said. That was the God-given breath which made it possible to commune with God, to know God. The common thought was that man was simply a dual being-body and soul. But a deeper analysis is emphasizing the spirit, hence there are soul, body, and spirit. The sense world is that of the body, and this being the organism of the soul or mind life is the medium of external reason. But pure reason is from with-in. "Man's ideas broaden," went on Dr. Thomas, "but man's mind is finite. God is infinite. Even the psychical man can't understand the spirit. Hence I question if it is possible for man to ever stand without the possibility of a doubt with reference to God. Reason tries to show God, but it is the heart that perceives God."

Dr. Thomas had warmed up to his subject (says the report), and he delivered this last sentence in a voice trembling with excitement. A decided sensation was created, but the pastor prevented a demonstration by quickly following up the line of his argument.

"What is that singular something," he asked, "in the human heart telling him to do what is right? What is that which leads man to ask such questions as these: Is it right; is it safe; is it expedient? The ought and the ought not! Call it conscience, call it God consciousness, the spirit power coming from God, it is all of us.

"What our age is coming to, and what I trust we are all yearning for, is to see the kingdom of God here on earth. That kingdom of heaven can never be elsewhere than within us; it can't be without us. The spirit comes to our heart and touches our conscience. That is never forgotten. Talk of regeneration! What is regeneration but God speaking to man through the conscience, the mind?

"Reason is the spiritual side of religion; this is the sanctum, the 'holy of holies.' As the material world waits on the sense life of man and the world of reason waits on his soul, so the world of religion waits upon his spirit. God as a holy spirit comes to the spirit of man, touches the conscience, quickens it, enthrones it. That is conscience towards God. That is eternal life

"How, then, shall we treat this 'holy of holies' in us?" went on Dr. Thomas. "Yield first to what appeals to the inner life. Seek solitude. Be alone. Think, reflect, reason. That is the meaning of Moses and the forty years, the meditations of Buddah, this the sec. at prayer Christ advises. O, my people, cultivate more silence, more solitude, and a greater realization of God will dawn on you. Let spirit seek spirit, man reach for God! Meet solitude, breathe it, seek it. This is the direction in which man grows; away from bloody wars, away from sin, ax ay from suffering.

"The sixteenth century saw the greatest artists; the seventeenth the greatest writers; the eighteenth the greatest reasoners; the nineteenth has given and will yet give great seers and prophets; but in the twentieth wars will be dead, the gallows dead; men will be one to another, the life of the spirit will reign, you shall be my brother, and God my father!

"This is the life awaiting you and me."

WERE it practicable to found an argument upon an isolated portion of a sermon uttered by another under any circumstances, it would not be in the case of the Rev. H. W. Thomas in the utterances credited to him in the report given above. That the reverend doctor is an advanced pulpiteer, and is far in the lead of many of his contemporary ministers in liberal and broad sentiment, is certainly to be admitted. That he has uttered in this discourse anything very startling, or extraordinarily forward we fail to see. There is nothing more, or worse in the opening statement of the report and which is given as the culmination of a line of reasoning stated to be profound, than is found in the writings of Paul, in the very epistle from which the doctor quotes:

"For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe."—I Cor.

1:21.

It seems strange that so earnest a thinker as Dr. Thomas should have taken the text which he did, and then, after a line of statement and argument largely speculative, should have reached and stated a conclusion in the form of a doubt, which the apostle from whom he quotes gives almost at the beginning of his epistle as a predicate of his own argument in support of the thought that man by man's wisdom and its methods can neither find out, nor know God.

The two statements, "Reason tries to show God and fails," and "Reason is the spiritual side of religion; this is the sanctum, the holy of holies," are not in agreement in the light of the Doctor's exposition that the "sense world is that of the body, and this being the organism of the soul or mind life is the medium of external reason," and that "man's mind is finite; God is infinite."

In order to make room for his argument the Doctor assumes that the common thought that man was a "dual beingbody and soul," is a mistake; and that he is really a three-fold unity composed of body, soul, spirit, giving these names in the inverse ratio of their value and placing the higher last. To save the supremacy of reason-possibly to avoid the conclusion that revelation is a present necessity—the doctor assumes that reason, or that in man which reasons is "the spirit; and that the rational intellect," this power that thinks, acts, feels and perceives, "has become the body of the spirit," by the long and arduous struggle of thought in man during the ages of the past. Yet he admits that reason, this faculty so exalted by him to the "sanctum, the holy of holies," fails to "show God;" that is, to make him to appear to this existent, thinking, acting, reasoning being.

Paul's plea in behalf of the work to be wrought for man by obedience to the gospel and its demands, and his argument in support of that plea were that man could not by virtue of any power which he possessed within himself find out God. Paul evidently knew and was willing to acknowledge what Doctor Thomas seems to be willing to forget, "Neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him."

The personal work of Christ in revealing God, the Father, to man can never be relegated to the realm of reason. The faculty to reason, to think, to feel, to perceive and know, by the processes of ratiocination, the efforts of the rational intellect, all appertain to the natural man. It is the being in possession of this endowment, the power to reason, that marks man as the superior creation. Without this, man could no more be vested with responsibility, and therefore accountability, than man believes the brute to be. With this, man necessarily becomes responsible and accountable. If, with this endowment man fails to find out God by use of the powers within himself, it should be reason's prerogative to accept the fact of man's helplessness in this direction and put him into whatever position to receive the knowledge he seeks that may have been appointed by Him of whom knowledge is sought.

If no man can know the Father, God, except the Son, Jesus Christ, shall reveal him, then there must have been some way directed of God by which man may be entitled to and receive this revelation, or there is no necessity for man to know God. Dr. Thomas recognizes the necessity for this knowledge in these words; "That is conscience toward God. That is eternal life."

Paul was impressed that the things of man were understood by the "spirit of man which is in him." This "spirit of man" is competent to all within man's realm, including all that is within the field of reason. The knowledge of God, in the sense that a man becomes conscious of his existence, or in the sense that the words "knoweth the Father." as used by Christ in Matthew 11:27, conveys, is not within the realm of reason, hence can not be reached unto by man however subtle and broad his reasoning may be. The doctor recommends to his people that they shall seek God in solitude. "To be alone." To "think, reflect, reason." He states that this was the meaning of "Moses and the forty years, the meditations of Buddha, the secret prayer that Christ advises." Solitude, the communing with nature, the removal of self from the active life of man, the shutting out from man's life of sin, suffering and sorrow, may, and often do force the conclusions upon man that the universe as a stupenduous whole, and all its parts as separate and integral parts of one grand system, have been the results of love, wisdom, power; the carrying out of a design suggesting omniscience and omnipresence in a designer. These force the conviction that there must be such a cause, for no such results could have followed other than the wisest, most loving and far reaching, intelligent designing, associated with unlimited power. Is God revealed in this? No. For from such solitude, such isolation come as frequently the scoffer and the skeptic, as he who claims knowledge of God. And it is somewhat curious that some of the profoundest thinkers and students of the time, past and present, possessing the most accurate knowledge of what nature holds open to the searcher only, are unbelieving as to what Dr. Thomas would name the knowledge of God. Jesus, it is true, went into the solitude of the wilderness. Matthew states that it was "to be tempted of the Devil." Mark states that the "Spirit" drove "him into the wilderness;" and that he was "tempted of Satan forty days." Luke states that he "was led by the Spirit into the wilderness, being forty days tempted of the Devil." Why did not Dr. Thomas use this example of the Savior, the Son by whom the fact of God is to be revealed unto man, as an instance of solitude and meditation by which man was to be led up to God. Moses fled from Egypt to avoid unfortunate questioning. Israel sojourned forty years in the wilderness more because they forgot God, than because they had not known him. Jesus went into the wilderness alone, after his baptism by John and the shedding of the Holy Ghost upon him, constrained to go for purposes of trial and triumph. What was endured by him during that forty days is left to conjecture, but from it he emerged knowing God, having more power to reveal him unto man.

To reflect, to reason, is not only the privilege but the duty of man. No excellence can come to man to be utilized by him in sublimating the issues of his life that is not condensed and crystalized by reflection. The mass upon which man's thoughts are to be exercised are the mountains and molehills in the way of his progress, to be removed or surmounted by slow, and often by agonizing methods. The plains and valleys of his personal existence lie all before him. His paths over and across may be trodden but once. What lies upon either hand he may determine by observation, by experience, by reason, and by the divination of the "spirit of man which is in him." What lies beyond; the power of their and his existence; the life beyond his life, are all hid from his vision and his reasoning. From him has been kept the mystery of life; nor can he know this, or attain unto the conscious knowledge of his Creator, unless it shall be revealed, shown, or made manifest to him in ways chosen by that Creator.

Dr. Thomas well says that "Reason fails" to show God. To us, however, this is for the same reason that the poet, Pope, in attempting to draw the comparison between instinct and reason, wrote:

"And reason raise o'er instinct as you can; In this, 'tis God directs; in that, 'tis man."

In the days of Job one Elihu gave utterance to the sentiment, "But there is a spirit in man; and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." Of precisely this idea is the language of Paul in furtherance of the thought that it was the revelation of the Spirit, by which the knowledge of God was given, when he wrote: "Even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God." -1 Cor. 2: 11.

Of similar import is the Savior's statement in both Matthew and Luke: "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes, even so, Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight." "And no man knoweth who the Son is but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him."—Luke 11:21, 22.

When the disciples were challenged by Jesus in reference to who he was, they gave the various ideas entertained among men as to his identity, but when directing his inquiry to them as to their knowledge of him, Peter, who evidently spoke for all, stated clearly: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."-Matt. 16: 16. In this Peter not only identifies Christ, but acknowledges the existence of God; and that too in no doubtful terms. That Peter had not reached this conclusion by the effort of his reason is stated by Jesus: "Flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven."-Matt. 16: 17.

Those who would seek after God to know him should believe in him and that the reward for seeking should be to find him. He can not be found by reason, hence is to be revealed. Dr. Thomas has it "God as a holy spirit comes to the spirit of man;" but if he had followed the thought of the apostle whose words he quoted as his text, he would have said that God would send his Spirit, the Holy Ghost, to reveal him unto the spirit of man; as in writing to the Roman Saints he said: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."-Rom. 8: 16.

This is what the Lord meant when he said: "But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, . . . he shall testify of me."-John 15: 26.

The test by which a man may discover whether he is in the way of receiving this comforter is stated by Jesus Christ, the one who is to make God manifest unto man, as follows: "If ye love me keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever. If a man love me he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him."—John 14: 15, 16, 23.

We can not identify the body, soul, and spirit, as the Doctor does. Learned doctors disagree as to the mind, its location, whence its quality and its functions. Some hold that it is but a quality attaching to, or inhering in the brain as a physical organ, differing in individuals according to the proportion of white and gray matter of which it is composed; its size, hardness, texture, (fine or coarse), and the nature of the life batteries located in the bodily forces. Some locate the mind in the brain merely as a physical organ, and so hold that when the body dies there is no sentiment, thinking, entity left. Of these are our soul sleeping philosophers, who urge that when the body of man dies he dies "all over,' body, mind, soul. Some locate the mind in the region where the nerves center in passing from the body to the brain; and urge that the brain is but an organ of the mind, used as the hand or foot is used at its pleasure. The Doctor for the purpose of argument locates the "me," that power that reasons, perceives and acts in the spirit, and calls it conscious knowledge; and still he says: "Reason tries to show God, but it is the heart that perceives God." He thus makes a wide distinction between the body, soul, and spirit; but identifies the spot where man feels God as the heart. Materialists would get lost in reading these distinctions of the Doctor and would say, Our learned friend has wandered from his text. In attempting to account for the failure of reason to discern the Ego of the universe, he has himself become tangled in the labyrinth, and now who shall lead us to the knowledge of God.

The return movement of thought from the pursuit of the material, the outward, marked as it is by the recurrence of some ancient forms of speculative thought, theosophy, Christian science and mysticism we hope may indicate a final full return to the planes of just conception of the things of God If the grasping mind of man will but at last admit that he can not find out God by direct methods the forces and direction of which are within man himself, then he will be content to seek for the knowledge of God through that great mystery, "God manifest in the flesh," and accept the revelation of God through the "man Christ Jesus," by whom only man can have access to God.

We are pleased to note that Doctor Thomas at the last seems to acknowledge the futility of all attempts to fathom the secret of Jehovah by human means alone, and according to his light throws himself upon the revelation of God to man, as the active, forceful power by which God shall be known to him, and directs his people to seek for that by meditation and reflection. If to this injunction he had but added that in their reflection and meditation the "law of the Lord" would be found to be the great auxiliary to reason, and that which would guide into the way of the knowledge of God and eternal life, we could have said a hearty amen.

Let us further hope that the statement with which this report of Dr. Thomas' sermon closes may be a prophetic one. Great events must thicken; prophets and seers must be recognized as they rise during the few years left of the nineteenth century, if it so be that this utterance is to be fulfilled.

How true is it that it can make no difference to God whether he is worshiped in the humble cottage or the lordly mansion, under a gilded dome in a costly cathedral or under the leafy canopy of the trees, in sacerdotal robes or the dusty habilaments of toil, by wealth or poverty; but how true it also is that they who worship the Father "must worship Him in spirit and in truth; for the Father seeketh such to worship him." These are the "true worshipers," wherever they are found and with them there is no fear that God will not keep promise and faith with man and reveal himself to them through the Son; and in them there is no doubt concerning the existence of God. In them "perfect love" hath "cast out fear."

THE following letter needs no explanation further than to say that the Progress claims to have received a lengthy communication from some Latter Day Saint in Nebraska in advocacy of the Reorganized Church and against the Campbellites, which it rejects, saying, "All other churches believe the Book of Mormon and To Smith are frauds of the most notorious The Progress is of the same betypes. lief."

There should be no reaching over into others' fields, to meddle with the affairs of missions, districts, or branches in which they have not been duly chosen and appointed to labor, by any person. Meddlesomness causes bitterness and confusion. Except where duty demands and authority permits, all should remember and "kecp hands off." Here is the letter:

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., May 31st.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-Enclosed please find a clipping from the Progress, a weekly paper, published here. Some one has been writing from Nebraska to that paper. It is humilitating to be advertized by our own members that we are incapable of attending to our own business in this place. Please ask all such persons to keep their noses and pens out of our local business, or else have them come here and take our place. I don't know who the writer was.

JOSEPH LUFF.

"HONORING BRUNO.

"Rome, June 9.-The statue of Bruno was unveiled with imposing ceremonies. Thirty thousand persons, including students and deputations from various parts of Italy, marched in procession through the principal streets. The removal of the canvas covering the statue was the signal for deafening cheers. The ceremonies were witnessed by the syndic of Rome, the government officials and large numbers of senators and deputies. Deputy Bovio, in an oration, eulogized the martyr, and declared there was now a religion of free thought and a liberty of conscience which would be worse for the papacy than its loss of temporal power. The proceedings throughout were orderly. The memory of Garibaldi was honored with imposing ceremony at the capitol to-day."

"THE POPE GREATLY DEPRESSED.

"London, June 10.—Advices from Rome today indicate that the Pope is still greatly depressed over the demonstration yesterday at the unveiling of the Bruno memorial. Speaking to one of the officials at the vatican to-day he said that the event of yesterday was even sadder than that of 1870, when only the temporal power of the Pope's was attacked. Yesterday's demonstration was an attempt to destroy the Pope's spiritual authority, the only power now left him."

AT the instigation and by the authority of the Roman Catholic Church Bruno was burned at the stake in Rome, February 6th, A. D. 1600. Of him Draper's "Conflict Between Religion and Science" has this to say: "But perhaps the day approaches when posterity will offer an expiation for this great ecclesiastical crime, and a statue of Bruno be unveiled under the dome of St. Peters at Rome." es we have seen, has now been done. Providence, in its compensatory work, has given honor and fame to the man who suffered persecution, shame and death, in the very city that witnessed it and under the immediate notice of the "abominable church" which did the terrible deed. This is well.

To those who have studied the world's history in connection with that of the Roman Catholic Church, especially that relating to the Reformation and the world's progress since the reformation began, the above paragraphs will be most significant as showing that "Mystery, Babylon the Great," is rapidly falling as predicted in sacred writ, also that the powers which once upheld and supported her are now rejoicing in and helping forward her downfall:- "And the ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast [Pagan Rome.—ED.], these shall hate the whore, [Papal Rome.—ED.], and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire."-Rev. 17:16. In harmony with this prophecy, and more directly locating the time for her speedy downfall, we have the following from the Book of Mormon: "And it came to pass that I beheld the wrath of God was poured out upon the great and abominable church, insomuch that there were wars and rumors of wars among all the nations and kindreds of the earth; and as there began to be wars and rumors of wars among all the nations which belonged to the mother of abominations, the angel spake unto me, saying, Behold, the wrath of God is upon the mother of harlots; and behold, thou seest all these things; and when the day cometh that the wrath of God is poured out upon the mother of harlots, which is the great and abominable church of all the earth, whose foundation is the devil, then, at that day, the work of the Father shall commence, in preparing the way for the fulfilling his covenants, which he hath made to his people, who are of the house of Israel."—I Nephi 3:

Never has the Papacy declined so rapidly as in the present century, and very notably since 1870 when she lost her temporal authority. And those "nations which belonged to the mother of abominations," both in Europe and America, have, within the last sixty years, and especially since 1860, been involved in "wars and rumors of wars" in a most unprecedented manner.

And who, viewing the condition of the world for the past hundred years, can doubt that the Lord has been working wondrously among the nations for the good of man in the line of intellectual, spiritual and material progression.

The Lord commands his people to separate themselves from all the ways of Babylon.

MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS.

THE answer to the query in the clipping below is so full of good homely common sense and human sentiment that we cheerfully give it a prominent place in our columns. Whoever ruthlessly attacks the religion of others, or the personal character of his fellow men, is occupying dangerous and questionable ground, and should be shunned by all decent people. Principles and deeds may be fully discussed if done in an honorable, charitable manner, and with the sole view to get at the right and the true. Joseph the Seer said by "commandment" to the elders at the time of the endowment March 30th, 1836, that they must "go in all meekness, in sobriety, and preach Jesus Christ and him crucified, and not contend with others on account of their faith or systems of religion, but pursue a steady course; and all who observe it not will pull down persecution upon their heads." We once heard a gentleman say that, "To build up and save is the noble work of God; but to viciously tear down and destroy is the dirty work of the devil.'

Here is our clipping:

"Is there any law compelling me to refrain from telling a person what I think of his religion?"—W. N. W.

"None but the law of politeness which no gentleman will ever break. Religion is a private matter between man and God, and no one has any right to interfere with what is none of his or her business. No well intentioned or even reasonably well educated person will ever interfere in any of the private affairs of others, except to protect himself or herself from injury, or assist those who are in distress."—Ex.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By letter from Elder Duncan Campbell dated at Kent, Union county, Iowa, the 10th inst., we learn he is much encouraged with prospects there and in that vicinity, and hopes to see the church yet well represented.

Bishop Geo. A. Blakeslee wrote us the 10th inst., that their branch has recently had thirteen accessions to its numbers, also that their late district conference was an excellent one.

Sr. Iola Kent of Burr Oak, St. Joseph county, Michigan, writes that herself and some of her family have been greatly blessed and benefitted by being administered to by the elders, and by prayer. She requests prayers in behalf of her babe which is afflicted. She also desires that some of the elders shall labor in that vicinity.

Bro. Edwin Hall of Tawas City, Michigan, writes that the Saints there are building a church, and expect to hold conference in it June 15th and 16th, with good prospects for the work.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. C. J. Carlson of Gilmore City, Iowa, writes:

"The Lord has been blessing this part of His vineyard. Four precious souls have been added to the church of late and we expect more to follow"

CHRIST'S KINGDOM.

Christmas is the anniversary of the founding of a kingdom greater and grander than all others and to which every nation may acknowledge allegiance without surrendering autonomy. first Christmas proclaimed a King to whom all may bow without disloyalty to their mortal sovereigns. It is to that Ruler that civilized and intelligent people everywhere pay homage, and remain true and loyal patriots to their own governments. It is true that centuries passed before men and nations began to appreciate the meaning of the coming of the Babe. Bethlehem was the central point in the course of the world, and from there the light spread; but there were ages of persecutions, of battles with the brave benighted, of blood, before the regeneration was fairly under way. Nearly nineteen hundred years have gone, and the reign of Peace is not yet here. Hostile ideas are still entertained in the councils of nations, and the influence of Christ has not so permeated mankind as to overawe and destroy the sentiment which makes governments miscall warglory. Wrath and anger still linger on earth, and, sad as it is, they are with the religious sects and among the believers in the mission of the blessed Jesus. But there has been such wonderful progress that there is rejoicing at the coming of the anniversary. The perfect day is not yet here. Evil still blunts the moral sense, and the ways of the world continue to obscure the mental vision; but the world grows better, and has done since Christ came; experience encourages hope and leads to the conviction that in time all will acknowledge the Savior as he would be acknowledged and thie Birth-day will be the one anniversary which the human family will celebrate.—Sel.

Always write the Business portion of your Letter on a separate piece of paper, and let it be brief and explicit.

If you have anything to say to the Editor, or something you wish published, no not write it on the back of a business letter. Business is Business, and Must be done in a business-like manner.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"I know the face of him who with the sphere
Of unseen presences communion keeps:
His eyes retain its wonders in their clear
Unfathomable deeps.
He brings the thought that gives to earthly things
Eternal meaning; brings the living faith
That, even now, puts on the immortal wings,
And clears the shadow, Death.
This in his face I see; and, when we meet,
My earthliness is shamed by him; but yet
Takes hope, to think that in the unholy street,
Such men are to be met."

MAKE HOME PLEASANT, IN SUMMER, IN WINTER, AND IN ALL SEASONS.

As OFTEN as possible throw open your shutters and let the bright sunlight stream in through your darkened rooms. Fade the carpets? Well. supposing it does, isn't it better than being faded yourself and having your children, as they grow up beyond the parental control, seeking sunshine elsewhere? Let them enjoy it at home, and let your face shine forth with bright and happy smiles, and see how soon the reflection is seen on all around you. If it be cold, stir up the fire in the grate and let it crackle and snap and dance up the chimney back, and brighten the home hearth. I mind me now of a broad, old-fashioned fireplace, which was the delight of my childhood days, and though many years have passed over my head, I love it, and who would chide me for loving that old fireplace. Large sticks of wood were piled on the iron andirons, and the flames went leaping up the broad chimney, through which one could look and see the blue sky. Then when bedtime came a back log was placed in the heated ashes, and in the morning one mass of glowing coals greeted the early riser. Wasn't that a place for popping corn! How each tiny kernel would burst forth in its whiteness and soon fill the popper to overflowing. All around that home hearth were happy faces, reflecting the mother love that shone over all. Did the boys seek amusement away from home winter evenings, or the girls creep off early to bed, saying "it is so lonely?" No, to them there was no place like home. Never a winter evening too long to suit us. What did we do? First there was reading aloud, in which all took turns, then we would often commit verses to memory and recite them, preparing them with all the carefulness that we would were they for a public exercise, often interspersed with singing which if it lacked harmony did not force. After this came various games with which we are all acquainted-dominoes, authors, and often some more noisy game, as hunt the handkerchief, puss in the corner, and blind man's buff. Then there were the beechnuts and butternuts that we had gathered in the fall; and did ever any one make such molasses candy as mother? No matter how thickly the clouds may gather with the coming years, those childhood days will always glow with rosy light. Sunshine within and sunlight without. But now we have our own penates, the memory of the past reflects on the future and we strive to have home the loadstone that shall attract and keep each member of the family circle within its influence. The old-time habit of reading aloud, reciting pieces and singing is still retained, and the old-fashioned games are played. But often a new game has more attraction simply from its novelty.

Now we are all interested in bean bags, a game of home manufacture. The board is two feet by three, with a square hole in the center of five inches; the edge of the board is raised ten inches from the floor, so it forms an inclined plane towards the player. There are ten bags five inches square, each containing one-half pint of beans, and one bag five inches by eight with one pint of beans. We endeavor to throw them into the hole in the board; if they pass through it each bag counts ten, excepting the large bag which is twenty; if they lodge on the board five each, and ten for the larger one. But if they are off of the board it deducts five from the game for the small ones and ten for the larger bean bag. One hundred and twenty is the highest number one can make. We choose sides and find the game very interesting. The neighbors' children often come in and increase our numbers. We do not allow ourselves to grow old and are always ready to join in any of these home amusements. Though the years may slowly but surely creep over our heads, yet our hearts shall remain young. "Let's have an auction party," was the unanimous voice not long since. Yes, an auction party we will have, but the articles shall all be limited in value, not to exceed five cents. So invitations were immediately sent forth to all our friends to come and bring some small article well concealed in box or wrapping paper. Then we prepared the money for the evening, which consisted of one hundred beans carefully counted and put in a small fancy bag on which was printed $100, one for each guest. When they had all assembled, and little box, big box and bundle were placed on the table, an auctioneer was chosen, who announced that each individual could not bid above the amount of beans he had in his possession. Then in stereotype form he began "How much am I offered for this box, value unknown, no doubt a great prize, going, going, gone for fifty dollars." As each one received his package he opened it and displayed it to the company. I could not begin to enumerate the funny things that were unrolled. Big black Dinahs, small china dolls, dust pans, pictures, an immense doughnut, well, well, I'll write etc., etc., for the remainder. What a merry evening we all made of it, which ended with a game of dumb crambo. We all agreed that Cicero-kicka row-was the hardest work acted, though sley, a weaver's reed, puzzled many. How much these social evenings brighten our long cold winters. Mothers, what may seem an effort at first to you will soon become a pleasure, and your reward will be sufficient in keeping your children about you, when years shall have added the beard to the smooth-faced youth and womanhood's grace crowned your daughters. Last summer, in passing through a family burying ground this line on a marble stone attracted my attention. "She always made home pleasant." What 'nobler epitaph could one wish? I have often thought that the highest emolument a woman could receive. This one bit of advice I would give to every young woman as she leaves the parental roof for another, "Make home pleasant."—Good Housekeeping.

MUTUAL CONFIDENCE BETWEEN MOTHER AND CHILD.

THERE is a way in which parents, mothers especially, may do harm to their children from want of forethought; that is, by not patiently listening to their confidences, sharing their little joys and sorrows, and making them feel that there is no one in the wide world like mother for playmate and companion. One deeply impressed in reference to this says: "It is really pitiful to see a good conscientious mother resolutely shutting herself away from so much that is really best and sweetest in children's lives for the sake of tucking their dresses and ruffling their skirts. How surprised and grieved she will be to find her boys and girls at sixteen regard 'mother' chiefly as a most excellent person to keep shirts in order and make new dresses, and not as one to whom they care to go for social companionship!"

Yet before they are snubbed out of it by any repeated rebuffs, such as, "Run away; I'm too busy to listen to your nonsense!" "Do amuse yourselves with your doll and baby rags," etc., the children naturally go to their mother with all their little sorrows and pleasures; and if the mother can only enter into their plans how pleased and happy they are! Such a shout of delight I heard last summer from a lady's croquet ground where her little children were playing "Oh, goody, goody! mamma is coming to play with us."—Sel.

THE GROWTH OF BEAUTY.

Is there a woman in the world who does not desire personal beauty? No sensible woman would desire it at the sacrifice of mind; but deep down in every woman's heart is that desire for personal beauty, for it is a tremendous power. It is fest everywhere. Dickens knew it when the baby was make to cry for the "boofer lady." It is said that Charlotte Bronte protested against the invariable beauty of the heroines of the novels in her day, and declared that she would write a novel in which the heroine would not be beautiful, but would possess a power that would make men feel her influence-then wrote "Jane Eyre." But she was compelled to give her heroine wonderful eyes. There must be a visible cause for the power exercised, whether in life or the printed page that depicts it. That beauty unsupported by graces of heart and mind is but a passing power we know. A woman may catch admiration, but she can not hold it without the invisible spiritual power that, after all, is the secret of influence. Who is there that has not seen the plainest, most unattractive features light up to transcendent beauty when moved by the emotions that touched the soul? Who has not seen beauty made repulsive by passions that revealed the hidden things in the soul? Are there not faces that charm us out of ourselves into the company of the spirit that has made the clumsy work of nature a joy forever because of its beauty? No printed page as surely bears the record of the writer's thoughts as does the face, the record of the impulses, the mind, the passions, of the spirit that lies within. Gesture and voice can be trained to obey the will, but the uncontrollable hand of time is writing its invisible record each day, but they are indellible, and the record can not be contradicted.

Are there not faces that call out our hearts when we pass them, but have not the art standard of beauty? Are there not faces to which we turn as naturally as the flower to the sun for help and encouragement? yet no artist would wish to paint them. The very power that wins would be lost on canvas. The beauty that inspires, the beauty that lifts humanity into an aspiring condition, is not born of flesh and blood alone, but is the visible symbol of the spiritual power within.

"A compliment, true and genuine, was paid by a sailor who was sent by his captain to carry are lette to ther lady of his love. The sailor, having delivered his message, stood gazing in silent admiration upon the lady, for she was very beautiful.

"'Well, my good man,' she said, 'for what do you wait?' There is no answer to be returned.'

"'Lady,' replied the sailor, with humble deference, 'if you please I would like to know your name.'

"'Did you not see it on the letter?'

"'Pardon, lady, I never learned to read. Mine has been a hard, rough life.'

"And for what reason, my good man, would you know my name?"

"'Because,' answered the old tar, looking up honestly, 'in a storm at sea, with danger afore me, I would like to call the name of the brightest thing I'd ever seen in my life. There'd be sunshine in it even in the darkness."

It was not mere beauty of feature that the man wished to carry into the darkness. It was the spirit of grace that moved the possessor of beauty to smile winningly to the man so far beneath her. Time never wrote lines of beauty on a face that carried behind it a double impulse of action, one for the world and one for private life. The face tells the story of the double life, and the lines contradict each other. The wayfarer never is tempted to stop there for aid and comfort on his journey.

The foundation of beauty is grace of character. Beauty we can not evolve, but we can develop that which the world prizes far more, in spite of the poets, the artists, the novelists—the spirit whose witness draws the erring, the weak, the sorrowful to us, to find always what they seek.—Christian Union.

Home Column Missionary Fund.

Sr. R. Cleveland, Kansas City, Kan$ 2		'n
Mother and daughter, Mo	. 5
Sr. Elizabeth Allen, Pleasanton, Iowa
Sr. C. P. Patten, Atwood, Kan		Ю
Su E P Edgen and shildren District I.	- 5	O
Sr. E. B. Edson and children, Blaine, Iowa.	. 5	O
Sr. Belle Harding, Clinton, Mo	.5	O
Sr. Mamie Bradley, Clinton, Mo	- 5	0
Sr. Lucy A. Brown, Utah, Ill	5	O
Sr. J. Limb, Stewartsville, Mo	o	Ю
Sr. Jane Crane, Frazee City, Minn	5	O
Sr. Mary E. Gaylord, Miane, Minn	-	0
Sr. Ida R. Howard, Lake View, Minn	-	5
Sr. M. C. Despain, Galesburg, Ill		8
Sr. Mary A. McAllister, Columbus, Neb 2
A. Sister, Nev
Sn A Walmalow Dayton Man	0
Sr. V. A. Johnson, Banning, Cal		Ю
St. V. A. Johnson, Danning, Cal		5
Sr. Alice Bozarth, Cameron, Mo	I	6
Sr. Sarah J. Greene, Los Angeles, Cal 2	7	5
Sr. Kate McGee, Potter Valley, Cal 2	O	0
Sr. Ellen Cameron, Houghton Lake, Mich. 1	O	О
LAMONI, Iowa, June 12th.
Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iow	a.

PRAYER UNION.

The sisters of the St. Gideon branch, at Ubly, Michigan, met on the 11th of April and organized themselves into a Prayer Union; electing Sr. O'Brien, president, and Sr. Henrietta McKay, secretary, since which time they have held profitable sessions. This Union requests the prayer of the others in behalf of sister Jane Grogan who is suffering from lameness.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS.

Sr E. C. Dodson of Council Bluffs, Iowa requests your prayers in behalf of Sister Amelia Duell, who for some weeks has been sorely afflicted, that if it be God's will she may be restored to health.

Sr. Drown, of Cameron, Missouri, asks your prayers in behalf of her son that God will help him to overcome the habit of using strong drink.

Sr. Mary Whet, of Lima, requests your prayers in behalf of her husband, that his life may be spared and he be led to obey the gospel.

Bro. Thomas Blaylock, of Paris, Tenn., asks your prayers that God may restore him to health. He desires to live to raise his motherless children.

ERRATA.—In the Herald of May 18th we should have said that the sisters of the First Kansas City Branch pay five cents each week instead of each month.

CAMERON, May 20th.

Dear Sister Frances:- Having been requested by the sisters belonging to the Prayer Union of the Delano branch, and thinking it might be a a source of strength to others, as sketches from the pens of others have been to us, I will write a few lines concerning our Prayer Union here. Some time last summer after having our names enrolled, our aged sister Anna Buchanan requested a sister and myself to meet as her house on the day appointed, as she was lonely, for she lived alone and being eighty-seven years old she could not attend church as often as she desired to. We did so thinking it would be a comfort to her. Soon others joined with us, and although many live some distance away the attendance is good, and, dear sisters, we have had many times of rejoicing together and with one accord we feel to thank God for the Prayer Union.

We selected sister Buchanan as president, and she selects one of the number present each time to take charge of the meeting. A hymn is selected by the one presiding, which is sung, then the subject for prayer is read and also the memory texts. Afterwards the special requests for prayer, the one in charge offers a prayer, then we sing another hymn and after each one offers a prayer and bears a testimony, we close by prayer.

At three different times God has made known his will concerning us through the gift of prophecy. The last I will write as near as I can for the encouragement of others. The Spirit told us the Lord was well pleased with the efforts of his handmaidens in striving to serve him and also in striving to bear each others' burdens, and that if they continued faithful they should be greatly blessed and should both see and hear many things to strengthen and encourage them; many of the sick should be healed and to those who were not healed he would give strength and patience to endure their afflictions. Dear sisters let us not grow weary in well doing. God is at the helm and while I have not the talent to write which others have, yet my prayer is for you and my testimony is that I have received strength and encouragement while reading the Home Column many times and I pray that God will give each one strength to do their part and that we may attain to that perfection that is our privilege.

Your sister in Christ, Rosa Elvert.

Onslow, Iowa, June 4th.

Daar Sisters:-Having just returned from district conference I thought I would write some of my impressions while they remain fresh in my memory. I, in company with others, left home about three o'clock in the afternoon of May 31st and traveled about twenty miles arriving at Bro. Henry Rulies in time to refresh ourselves before going to evening service. We were instructed by Bro. John Heide, assisted by Bro. J. S. Roth, from the words contained in James 2: 10, in connection with 1 Samuel 15: 22. Quite a number were out to hear the word and good attention was paid by almost all. Saturday morning we met at Father Bradley's to transact business, and after the conclusion of such matters as came before the conference, Bishop's Agent, Bro. Warren Taylor, explained and urged upon the Saints the necessity of obeying the law of tithing in such a manner as must, it seems to me, carry conviction to every honest, earnest heart; and not only convince but arouse every one to realize that in order to obtain an inheritance in the celestial kingdom we must obey the whole law. In the evening Bro. J. S. Roth preached on the principles of the doctrine, an able, sound sermon, which must have touched a tender spot somewhere, because the next morning when the house was opened some person wrote on the blackboard, "Please read Ezekiel 36: 25-38," and the 25th verse was written in full. I do not think those advocates of sprinkling will try to provide a text very soon again for a Latter Day Saint to preach from after hearing the explanations given by brethren Turner, and Roth. But let us hope they were convinced of the error of their way and will seek to enter by the door.

Sunday afterneen we held a prayer and testimony service after partaking of sacrament, which I enjoyed and can say truly I never before felt so fully the peaceful influence of the Spirit and the necessity of the fulfilling of the command to "come up higher." In the evening Bro. W. T. Maitland preached from the text, "The screts of the Lord are with those that fear him." I do not remember where this text is found. The house was full and quite a number had to remain standing.

Monday morning came the good byes and parting from old and new friends, to return to our homes and take up our duties with renewed zeal, and resolve to sacrifice more for Christ and for the advancement of this great grand work being done in these latter days.

Thus ended a conference which I will always remember; the kindness of the Saints there, the meeting and mingling with others from distant homes will never be forgotten, and hoping and praying it may be God's will that I may meet with you all many times again, I am your sister,

ELLA J. GREEN.

John T. Davis, 42 Lakefield Road, Llanelly, Carmarthenshire, Wales, Great Britain.

Selected Poetry.

OUR LIVES.

Our lives are rivers, gliding free
To that unfathomed, boundless sea,
The silent grave!
Thither all earthly pomp and boast
Roll, to be gathered up and lost
In one dark wave.

Thither the mighty torrents stray,
Thither the brook pursueth its way,
And tinkling rill.
There all are equal. Side by side
The poor man and the son of pride Lie calm and still.

The world is but the rugged road
Which leads us to the bright abode
Of peace above;
So let us choose that narrow way
Which leads no traveler's foot astray
From realms of love.

Our cradle is the starting place, In life we run the onward race And reach the goal; When in the mansions of the blest, Death leaves to its eternal rest The weary soul.

Did we but use it as we ought,
This world would school each wanderingtho't
To its high state;
Faith wings the soul beyond the sky,
Unto that better land on high,
For which we wait."

-Selected by Nora Cato.

Correspondence.

BEETOWN, Wis., May 30th.

Dear Herald:—Recent heavy rains interspersed with frost leave the corn in a backward condition, while the air is still chilly. The outlook for small grain and garden products is flattering.

I landed in this state the 6th instant, and convened a week series at Glen Haven, situated on the Mississippi river. The beginning was feeble, prejudice intense, but we finally filled the schoolhouse with attentive auditors. From thence we came to North Andover where a fortnight was passed in sowing the seed with a liberal hand. My traveling companion and co-laborer, W. S. Pender, of south-eastern Kansas, joined in with me a week after calling and we delivered a few discourses at the Glen.

The only Saint in this, the south-west corner county of the state is Sr. Kate C. Ward, nee Creese, formerly from near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, where she embraced the faith.

On the eve of the 25th I held a discussion with a party who affirmed publicly that "Liberalism is superior to Christianity." He opened the ball with a thirty minutes' speech. I followed for three-fourths of an hour. He replied in the same length of time, and Willie closed with a halfhour speech. The affirmative was nothing, yea, worse than naught. I did the very best I could under the circumstances, while the last speaker, our young, talented, brave brother, swept down like an avalanche, and carried everything in a vehement, yet honorable, consistent manner. The crowd was immense, and all seemed pleased and satisfied. When the people became deeply interested, the infidel directors took covering from papal objections, and closed the schoolhouse.

Bro. Pender has gone to look after the interests of the work farther north, while I am here all single handed and alone. We use the village chapel, but lectures and the dance swing the majority. The good Lord has raised up many friends to me, and our opponent lodged us freely and cheerfully and in truth he is a unique admixture. I do not know of any of our elders ever preaching in this large county before.

I met with an accident last week that came near costing me my life. Six persons were in a double-seated rig, driving briskly on a down grade. The bolt that held the vehicle to the front axle-tree gave way, the horses cleared out, and we were all precipitated violently headlong to the earth. They were hurt a little while I was injured much. Being heavy, even two and a quarter hundred-weight, and in front, I got the full benefit of the crash. My right hand and wrist was sprained ever so much, but my left shoulder was the worse hurt. I felt like I was smashed to pieces, but fortunately no bones were broken. I was jammed, bruised, jarred and strained almost out of all measure. I was all unnerved, sick at heart, racked with intense agony and nearly wild with acute pain. I can not use my right hand freely yet, neither has the soreness left my shoulder. It is so weak and feeble that I can not raise my arm out level or up high, but I am on the up grade and think to entirely re-

I do wish I had something better to tell you, but alas! I have toiled long and hard of late and caught no fish. That God would say, Go forward or backward, or launch out into the deep or to the right or left! It is only half sunshine, and then cold clouds intervene, but perchance there will be a rift in the sky. I tremble beneath the burden, feel sad and lone in the desert; my brain reels, my heart is sad and sick, and I wonder why my God doth tarry so long. I weep and wail and dash the blinding tears away. Intense anxiety makes up the bitter cup of my missionary existence. Condemnation goes on without,

M. T. Short.

NEW STRAITSVILLE, Ohio, June 4th.

Dear Herald:—I call you dear, for your weekly visit is welcome to me and your pages are filled with plain and precious truth that is fully able to give life and vigor to a mind that is in search after truth. I have been a reader of your columns now for some time, although I am not as yet a member of the church you represent, but hope to be in the near future. I have long decided that if there was any people of God on earth in this age, they are found among the so-called "Mormons" and Latter Day Saints.

I have had some considerable talk with the Disciple people at this place. I lent them a Voice of Warning. Some could not say much against its teachings, but three or four found exceptions to the laying on of hands for the reception of the Holy Ghost, and we exchanged several letters on the subject. They tried to prove that the laying on of hands was for the reception of miraculous gifts and not for the Holy Spirit; but I found in all their twisting and turning of the word of God, in trying to support their argument, they had nothing better to offer than empty suppositions and vain conclusions. By request of their members I have gone to several of their meetings, and it seemed they had the preacher posted at most every meeting I attended to say something against "Joe" Smith, or the Mormons, together with a slur now and then in his discourse against some of my previous arguments in behalf of the faith of the Latter Day Saints, and I have heard and seen the truth trampled down more than once from their pulpit. I wish some good elder of your faith would come along and give them an eye-opener. This is my second letter to your columns and it will very likely find its way into the waste-basket where many a one has landed.

For the final triumph of truth and justice,
ISAAC VERNON.

DEER LODGE, Montana, June 4th.

Dear Herald:—While I can say truthfully, that I rejoice greatly in the latter day work and the hope of everlasting life, yet of late I have been sorely tried with sickness in my family. For the last three weeks I have been acting the part of nurse. My wife and babe took down first with measles, and in the care of my wife it was very severe,—she being threatened with pneumonia. She is not yet able to get up. Another of my little boys is now down sick, and I can see nothing for me only to continue the nursing business for a week or two longer. May the Lord be merciful, is my prayer, so I may devote my energies to the great soul-harvest that is now ripe and inviting the sickle.

Will the dear Saints remember us in our affliction?

J. C. CLAPP.

EUREKA, Kansas, June 9th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have wished many times to write to the Herald, but did not know what to write till of late. I am not a member of your chnrch, but hope to be, for I know it is the true church, for the Lord has told me so.

The Bible says in the book of James, If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it be given him." I prayed and asked God to show me a vision if the Latter Day Saints was the right church. I dated the time I asked him, October 3d. I saw an open vision. "Draw nigh to the Lord, and he will draw nigh to you." Pray for me that I may not be led astray by false doctrine. Yours,

NORA CATO.

BAYSON, Texas, May 31st.

Bro. D. Dancer:—I was traveling in December last and found an old sister Sophia Fennemon who was baptized in Wayne county, Illinois, by Elder I. A. Morris. She is a whole-souled Satter Day Saint. I was as glad to meet her as she seemed to be to meet me. Her post-office is Willow Point, Wise county, Texas. I think she is a power in her neighborhood; she is liked by all, I believe.

We have had no preaching in our part of the state since Brn. Smith and Cato left here. I have tried to get an elder here but have failed. I wrote to Bro. Nunley the other day and if he does not come or send some one, I think I will give it up. I know that I can't live long and I would like to hear preaching occasionally. I should not have written to brother Nunley, but was requested by outsiders to do so. A great many who formerly were bitterly opposed to us have asked me to write. They want to hear the doctrine. If some one of the elders who has no home would move here he could do well, and could do all the preaching he was able to do, and I believe he would be amply supported. We have a good country for farming when it rains, and a good stock country, and the healthiest country in the world—as healthy as any. We have made sylendid crops of wheat and have the finest prospect for corn I ever saw. I believe we will have fruit of all kinds in abundance in five or ten days. I will have any quantity of ripe peaches and blackberries. I have had plums ripe for the last two weeks.

Your brother,
W. A. BENNETT.

FULTON, Iowa, June 8th.

Dear Herald:-As a branch we are getting along fairly in this part of the Lord's vineyard. Last March some who were opposed to our doctrine were going to organize a vigilance committee, or in other words, a White Cap society to tar and feather every Mormon elder that preached the gospel, and I was to get the first coat. They reported lies and slander on some of the Saints, but we kept right on in duty, kept our prayer meetings, and preaching services as though nothing had happened, It only increased the attendance for some time.

Our district conference was held at Amber, Jones county, Iowa, and was well attended by Saints from far and near, and many outsiders were present so that standing room was at a premium, and the Saints felt to rejoice for we had a good time and love and unity prevailed throughout the whole session. But the time came too soon to go home again. May the time soon come that when the Saints meet there will be no more parting.

Bro. J. S. Roth came home with us to labor here or near here for a few weeks. We hope some of the honest in heart will soon obey, for there are some here that will obey if they are not hindered by others. We were glad Bro. Roth was returned to this district for there is a great work to be done yet, and he presents the gospel in such a way that it leaves the hearers no excuse for not obeying the same. The harvest truly is great and the laborers are few. May the Lord send more laborers into the harvest, and may all do their duty to maintain those who are out, with their means.

Your brother,

JOHN HEIDE.

MONTOUR, Iowa, June 8th.

Dear Herald: - I read in your pages of a sister who stated that the gospel and the latter day work were so much food for the soul and so satisfying. How it filled my soul with the Spirit as I read those words! Thank God for it, for I can truly say it feeds my soul from day to day as I am away from the Saints. Brother Shimel preached two sermons here and father Nirk one in our school-house this spring. We could have meetings every two weeks; the house is open if there was any one to preach. We were expecting Bro. George Shimel one week ago but for some reason we know not he did not come; the house was full. People seem to be interested whenever they preach.

Bro. J. S. Roth preached two sermons two years ago, and people are asking for him to come back. I hope brother Roth will see this and answer the call as soon as possible. We would be glad to have any elder that can come here and preach. There are several whom I think will obey if they could hear more of it. I try in my weak way to stand as a witness for Jesus, and I receive great blessings to my soul.

I close asking all your prayers and that you send elders to break the bread of life to this peo-

I live one-half mile from Montour, Tama county, and will give any elder a home who will Your sister, MARY J. KENNEL. come.

. MILAN, Missouri, June 7th.

Dear Herald:-I am classed among the scattered ones, but wish to bear my testimony to the great latter day work: I became a member of the latter day work, in 1832, in Ohio. A few years afterward I moved to Missouri, and since then I have been all alone except that Christ was with me. I could not hear anything of the Church only persecutions; but notwithstanding all of that I prayed to God for the work to prosper; and in April, 1888, Bro. Henry Grim came here from Texas, and informed me of the Reorganized Church and the Saints' Herald. It was like cold water to a thirsty soul to me, and I felt that God had answered my prayer.

I am old and feeble and as helpless as a child. I have been reading the Herald since last July, and it is like a companion to me in my afflictions. God has blessed Bro. Grim's labors here in the gospel of Christ, which strengthens me in the faith. He is trying to get to his labor in Texas; this climate does not agree with him. May God bless him and all who try to spread the love of truth, is my prayer in faith.

I feel that I can not stay here long, and I ask the Saints to pray God to give me strength to walk if it is His will. I am reconciled to His will. Dear Saints, let us all have our lamps trimmed and ready for the coming of the Bride-Your sister, groom.

MARY MONTGOMERY,

CORMORANT, Minn., June 4th.

Bro. W. W. Blair: I did not get away from home until the 27th ult., but on that date I left home for this place, coming through Illinois via Galesburg and Rock Island. Stopped over twelve hours at Rock Island; met Bro. Dungee and had a very pleasant visit. Together we went over to Davenport and visited the Saints there. At first I felt a little bad at having to lay over, but am now glad it was so. Arrived here all right, meeting Bro. McLeod at Pelican Rapids, with team waiting for me. His people are all well, but Bro. Martin's family, also Bro. Abbot's family, are having a serious time with scarlet fever, the latter losing one little girl.

Conference met on the 1st instant in good shape. The day after I arrived brethren Peak and Davis came, so we had o good force on hand. We had a good conference, allowing me to be the judge. I find the Saints alive in the work. Although some clouds darken the otherwise shining prospects, the Saints are happy.

Bro. T. J. Martin was unfortunate, having the scarlet fever in his own family, and ministering to his own and others not sparing himself, nor shirking duty or danger. Wherever he could help, and relieve suffering there was he to be found. As a consequence the doctors forbid his attending the conference, and he thus was denied that pleasure. It was a sacrifice and trial for him, as he loves to meet with the Saints.

It is all right that I came here, and I now feel it will be all right to leave Brn. Peak and Davis in charge of Minnesota, and I to attend the Northern Illinois conference. It will be hard for me to get away from these parts so soon, however. The Saints say I must not leave them so soon again. I am arranging that brethren Peak and Davis can run the tent this summer, and expect good results. There seems a favorable opening in Fergus Falls, and I would like them to improve it soon.

With hope and love combined, also joy, peace, and much assurance in the work, I remain,

Your co-laborer in Christ.

ALEX. HALE SMITH.

WESTON, Iowa, June 10th.

Bro. Blair: -- Sr. Piddington desires to say to the readers of the Herald that she finds comfort and consolation in the promises of the gospel during her old age, and though lonely since the death of her companion, she knows her stay here can not be long, and she is looking forward in hope of attaining to the rest that remains for God's people. H. N. HANSEN.

Dow CITY, Iowa, June 7th.

Editors Herald: I would like space to answer an article in the Herald of May 25th, signed "Wanderer." What I wish to reply to are his dislikes to the way he finds Sunday Schools con-

I heartily agree with the rest of his article. but there is one thing I do like to see,-a man who is not afraid to have his name affixed to any article he may write; then if any one wants to reply, they know who they are dealing with.

In the first place, the idea he has of a Sunday School is misleading and not correct. I do not know of any Sunday School that wants to assume more rights and privileges than they are entitled to, and a good many do not want as much. I don't believe there is a Sunday School officer in our district (and I have had a the privilege of knowing most of them) that wants to boost themselves or their school on the the top shelf. For I think they have a better understanding of their office and calling than that.

He likes to see a good Sunday School when there can not be anything else; but Sunday Schools must be kicked out when some of the poor adults are starving for the word, when perhaps the branch is full to overflowing with elders and every family has the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants lying on their Shelves.

It makes no difference what becomes of the rising generation, so poor "we" have the word preached to us. I don't think this is right. If we have some church difficulties and the church door is closed on account of the same, it is providential if we have a good Sunday School to open the door and bring us together. Again: If Sunday School has no right to the house except when there is nothing else to be done, we can can never accoplish the work that we should, and the work which we will do if our rights are given to us. The Sunday School has just as much right to the house when their time comes as any other meeting; for it is part of the church work and is always conducted by the branches, and almost always the Sunday School officers are branch officers. When Christ appeared to his apostles when they were fishing he said unto Peter "Do you love me more than these?" (meaning the fish). Peter said, "Yea, Lord." The answer was, "Feed my Lambs," and to my understanding, the Lambs were the children, not the sheep or the older ones. If it was necessary in Peter's day to feed the children spiritual food, it is surely necessary to-day.

Whether "Wanderer is in our district or not, I don't know, but I believe he is. I don't think there is a school in our district but what is perfectly willing to give way for other services when it is necessary if proper means are taken to have them do so. But I don't think that the officers of the different schools will stand back and see the rights of their school trampled under foot, and not say anything. I hope not at least.

There are so many who consider the Sunday School of minor importance and not amounting to very much, and it would not, I am sorry to say, if some had their own way. I hope and pray that this feeling will soon be removed and that we shall realize that there is some one else besides ourselves who need, looking after.

I have been as brief and plain as possible, but hope I have not said anything to hurt the feelings of any one. I felt it my duty to answer this article.

I would like to talk to, or correspond with "Wanderer" if he will let me know who he is.

> J. M. BAKER, A defender of Sunday School work.

> > PAWTUCKETT, R. I., June 7th.

Bro. Blair: -E. Robinson, Gurley, Briggs and Whitmer make a great sprawl and fuss and fury about high priests in the Church of Jesus Christ, and that there were not any provided for in the Book of Mormon. They should read Book of Mosiah, Chapter 11. Robinson sends me three copies of the Return each month. Some one has more money than judgment.

JOHN HOLT.

BROWNVILLE, Neb., June 11th.

Bro. Dancer: - Bro. Elvin and myself arrived safely yesterday afternoon after going through some of the varying experiences of traveling life. We got to St. Joseph that evening but had to wait our delayed train until four o'clock next morning, and did not make Nebraska City until 8:40, a. m., tired and sleepy. Preached to a fair sized congregation of Saints Sunday at eleven o'clock in their church and enjoyed fair liberty. Attended, by request, the Red Ribbon Society and delivered the opening address at three p. m. I had the best of liberty considering that it was in behalf of the temperance cause without any chance to prepare. Bro. Elvin followed in his usual able and forcible manner to the entire satisfaction of those present; he also preached to a full house at night at the church, making glad the hearts of those who heard.

Well, the prospect is good at this point. Bro. Forscutt's preaching was like "waving the red flag." The M. E. pastor is wanting "gore," so says the paper, and the people want to see the fun. My regards to all.

LLOYD W. WELLS.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Comminations.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for Contributions solicited.

THE "SEALED BOOK."-No. XI.

BY ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

A SHORT time ago I found the following account published in the Nebraska City, Nebraska, Watchman of December 6th, 1888:

"In close proximity to the Weeping Water river and not far from the village of Nehawka in Cass county, Nebraska, a number of diggings, evidently of somewhat remote origin, have been discovered by the inhabitants of that vicinity, and by them more or less explored. One of these (Mr. Isaac Pollard) has given them special attention and expended considerable money and labor in the attempt to ascertain their character, extent and origin.

"That they are real diggings effected by the hand of man, is evident from the character of the mounds made by the excavations. These are composed of a mass of stones with sharp edges which were evidently broken from the quarry rock which juts out of the bank in the vicinity. It also appears from trenches which have been dug through the mounds that the dark surface soil lies at the bottom and the lighter colored soil on the surface.

"The marks of the tools used are moreover to be seen v e stones, and coals and ashes are found in great abundance on the surface of the bed rock. It would even appear that the excavators, whoever they were, resorted to the use of fire to render the lime rock brittle, so that they might the more easily cleave it from the quarry. Many of the stones were discolored by the heat to which they were subjected. The interest in connection with these diggings arises from their evident antiquity. Who were the excavators, and what the object which they had in view, are the questions which naturally arise in the mind of the investigator, and ask for solution. That the diggings date far back is evident from the fact that large trees have grown up on the mounds and out of the pits. Indeed it is the united opinion of all who have made a study of them that at least a hundred years have elapsed since the excava-tions were made. They may even date much farther back than this. The work, then, can not have been that of our race. Was it the work of the early Spanish or French explorers, or of the mound builders of an earlier date?"

The Chicago Times for July 17th, 1876, in its special correspondence, contains the following:

"Since writing the above, a rare relic has been found near Dongolaby by a citizen of that place. This is a piece of flinty serpentine about five inches long and shaped like a small terrapin or land turtle.

What is peculiar about it is that from end to end is drilled a half inch hole, as true as if it had been bored by an auger-bit and polished with emery. Now the query arises, how was this performed? material itself is tougher than flint and harder than glass, and no steel can drill it. Can it be possible that the uses of the diamond and the sand blast were known to them? In either case, or if the work were done by another method unknown to us, the fact is no less astounding. Can it be that these relics are but the foreshadowing of others yet to be discovered still more wonderful?"

Priest says: "In Virginia, near Blacksburgh, eighty miles from Marietta, there was found the half of a steel bow, which, when entire, would measure five or six feet; the other part was corroded or broken. The father of the lad who found the bow was a blacksmith, and worked up this curious article with as little remorse as he would an old gun barrel."—An Inquiry into the Origin of American Antiquities, p. 176.

Atwater says: "In Ross county, near Chillicothe, a few years since, was found, in the hand of a skeleton which lay buried in a small mound, an ornament of pure gold; this curiosity it is said is now in the museum at Philadelphia."—Ibid, p. 177.

Priest says: "Gold ornaments are said to have been found in several tumuli. Silver, very well plated on copper, has been found in several mounds, besides those at Circleville and Marietta. An ornament of copper was found in a stone mound near Chillicothe; it was a bracelet for the ankle or wrist."—Ibid, p. 221.

Mr. Schoolcraft gives this account of a discovery made in West Virginia:

"Antique tube; telescopic device. the course of excavations made in 1842 in the easternmost of three mounds of the Elizabethtown group, several tubes of stone were disclosed, the precise object of which have been the subject of various opinions. The longest measured twelve inches, the shortest eight. Three of them were carved out of steatite, being skillfully cut and polished. The diameter of the tube externally was one inch and fourtenths. The bore eight-tenths of an inch. The caliber was continued until within three-eights of an inch of the sight end, when it diminishes to two-tenths of an inch. By placing the eye at the diminished end, the extraneous light is shut from the pupil and distant objects are more clearly discerned."—An. Am., p. 42.

"'The art of pottery among them,' says Squier, who is peculiarly qualified to give an opinion on the subject, had fattained to a considerable degree of perfection. Various though not abundant specimens of their skill have been recovered, which, in elegance of model, delicacy and finish, as also in fineness of material, come fully up to the best Peruvian specimens, to which they bear in many respects a close resemblance. They far exceed anything of which the existing Indian tribes are known to have been capable." -Bryant's His. of U. S., vol. 1, p. 29.
Baldwin says: "Some of the pottery and wrought ornaments of the Mound Builders is equal in finish and beauty to the finest manufactured by ancient Peruvians. They constructed artificial ponds like the aguadas in Central America. They used sun dried bricks, especially at the south, where walls of this material have been discovered supporting some of the mounds and embankments. manufactured cloth. But their intelligence, skill and civilized ways are shown not only by their constructions and manufactures, but also by their mining works."-

An. Am., pp. 60, 61.
Maclean says: "The Mound Builders, in part, used the skins of wild animals for their clothing, but for their principal raiment used cloth regularly spun with a uniform thread, and woven with a warp and woof. Fragments of clothing have been taken from a low mound near Charlestown, Jackson county, Ohio. In constructing the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton railroad, a mound was cut through near Middletown, Ohio, and in it, among other things, was found cloth connected with tassels and ornaments. The cloth was in thick folds, and very much charred. The fabric appeared to have been composed of some material allied to hemp, and the separation between the fiber and the wood was as thorough as at this day by the process of rotting and hackling. The thread is coarse, uniform in size, and regularly spun. The process of spinning and weaving as carried on by them, is not now known."-Mound Builders, p. 73.

Again he says: "In figure forty-three we certainly have a very rare implement. It was taken from a mound on the farm of Mr. William Brown, by Mr. Richard Brown, situated on section thirty-three in It is undoubtedly the Ross Township. work of a Mound Builder. It is doubtful if our skilled workmen could make one of these badges more perfect than this."- Ibid. p. 167.

Under the caption of Pottery, and in contrast with that found at Argyleshire, Scotland, we find same figure in an ancient fragment of pottery from the Little Colorado, as given in the United States Pacific Railroad Survey Report, vol. 3, p. 49. The same design is also found in ancient rock etchings of the Zunis of New Mexi-We also find this figure repeated upon a vase from a Mississippi Valley mound. It is likewise found upon many of the monuments of Central America.

Sir John Lubbock says: "A new civilization is indicated not only by the merepresence of bronze, but by the beauty and variety of the articles made from it. find not only, as before, during the Stone Age, axes, arrows, and knives; but, in addition, swords, lances, sickles, fish-hooks, ear-rings, bracelets, pins, rings, and a variety of other articles."—Prehistoric Times, pp. 14, 16.

MANUFACTURES.

"The American nations manufactured woolen and cotton goods; they made pottery as beautiful as the wares of Egypt; they manufactured glass; they engraved gems and precious stones. The Peruvians had such immense numbers of vessels and ornaments of gold that the Inca paid with them a ransom for himself to Pizarro of the value of fifteen million dollars."-Atlantis, p. 142.

The art of making silk from the delicate fiber of the egg-cocoon, was understood by the Egyptians and Hindoos, 3870 B. c. If the Hindoos and Egyptians understood at that remote period the manufacture of silk, there can be no great strain of faith, required to believe that with all the other attainments gained by the Nephites, or ancient people of America, they also possessed the art of manufacturing

"A. M. Quivey showed us, this week, some pieces of ancient pottery, which he recently found on the Stillwater, near the foot of the mountains. Their material consists of a fine sand and gravel on the inside, the outside being coated with a species of fire-clay, found, in connection with limestone, in that region of the country. They are evidently portions of vessels used to contain water or other liquid. They exhibit a fair degree of skill in their manufacture, and are evidently the handiwork of some pre-historic race, who inhabited this country before the advent of the present race of Indians. None of the Crows, or other tribes of Indians in this latitude, possess the art of making pottery, and Mr. Quivey informs us that the fragments in question are the first traces of ancient pottery that have been found in northern latitudes, on the eastern slope of the Rockies. The Crows have a vague tradition of a superior race that inhabited this country ages ago, and possessed many of the arts of the white man, and leading archæologists have arrived at a similar con-The place where this pottery was found was a rocky promontory, accessible from one side only, and had evidently been used as a stronghold by this remote race. A sample of the pottery has been added to the Post's cabinet, and is worthy of inspection by those interested in such matters."-Billings Post.

A writer from New Mexico, under date of May 2d, 1883, whose communication was published in the Blade, says: "I have examined the ruins of the Mound Builders from their most northern limits through Canada, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, and thence across to this country from the foot of the Rocky Mountains down to the Gulf of Mexico. It is a well known fact that the mounds of Nineveh and Babylon are yet in a state of perfect preservation, being covered with a luxuriant coat of While those erected of stone have, by the agency of rains, snows, frosts and the air and sun, crumbled away, while the same agencies have been strong protection to the shape of those that were covered, as first stated. On a mesa of a tributary to the Upper Gila river, in south-western part of Socorro county, are several mounds, their shape preserved by the grass, the location of which with reference to the river, goes to show that when built they were constructed with reference to accessibility to the water, which in centuries innumerable has cut away the banks to a depth of several hundred feet, and make the water inaccessable, except by traveling a considerable distance to reach a place where descent can be made to it. No settlement now is within many miles of those relics, and the oldest inhabitant I could find, an Indian, had no tradition as to the time when those mounds were occupied. In the vicinity of those mounds I thought I saw evidences of where a settlement had once been, and on excavating to the depth of five feet through an accumulation of alluvial, I found quite a quatity of fragments of pottery, artistically ornamented, unlike anything of the modern period. About two days' ride south-easterly, I came to the Mimbres river. All along the mesas on either side, are the evidences of settlements of pre-historic times. . . . Farther down the river, a settler, while sinking a well, at a depth of nine feet came upon a stone hammer, beautifully shaped, small oziers handsomely shaped and striped in silver and gold, showing that both of these metals had been used in solution and inburned by a process then unknown. In the same vicinity was dug up a terrapin shaped, mal-pais stone bowl or dish about eight inches long, five wide and four deep. It had the head cut in relief, the neck about an inch long; the feet were short. The rock from which this terrapin was cut is common in the Burro mountains, some thirty miles distant. When it is known that this mal-pais is harder to work than granite, it will afford an opportunity for speculation as to the process by which, and with what this bowl was made."

I have in my possession some fragments of pottery, found on the farm of David Wilson, thirteen miles south-west of Wilbur, Saline county, Nebraska.

CITIES.

Of the Mound Builders' earth works, Bryant says: "It is hardly conceivable that these imposing earthworks were meant for mere outdoor occupation. A people capable of erecting fortifications which could not be much improved upon by modern military science, as to position, and considering the material used, the method of construction; and who could combine for religious observances, enclosures in groups of elaborate design, extending for more than twenty miles, would probably crown such structures in harmony with their importance and the skilland toil bestowed upon their erection. Such wooden edifices, for wood they must have been, would long ago have crumbled into dust."

—Hist. of U.S., vol. 1, p. 31. Of the Mound Builders Bancroft says: "The Mississippi and its tributaries have during the centuries worn down their valleys in three or four successive terraces, which except the lowest or latest formed, the ancient peoples chose as the site of their structures, giving the preface for rearing their grandest cities, for cities there must have been, to the terrace plains near the junction of the larger streams."—Nat.

Rac. of Pac. States, p. 751.

Baldwin says: "The lower mounds, or most of them, must have been constructed as foundations of the more important edifices of the mound building people.

Many of the great buildings erected on such pyramidal foundations at Palenque, Uxmal, and elsewhere in that region, have not disappeared because they were built of hewen stone laid in mortar. For reasons not difficult to understand, the Mound Builders beginning their works on the lower Mississippi, constructed such edifices of wood or some perishable material; therefore not a trace of them remain."

Ancient America, p. 18.

Of the Mound Builders, Baldwin says again: "No trace of their ordinary dwellings is left. These must have been constructed of perishable materials, which went to dust long before the great forests had covered most of the regions through which they were scattered. Doubtless their dwellings and other edifices were made of wood, and they must have been numerous. It is abundantly evident that there were large towns at such places as Newark, Circleville, and Marietta, Ohio." —Ibid, p. 34.

See Prescott's Peru, as cited by Donnelly on Public Works: "The American nations built public works as great as or greater than any known in Europe. The Peruvians had public roads, one thousand five hundred to two thousand miles long, made so thoroughly as to elicit the aston-ishment of the Spaniards. At every few miles taverns or hotels were established for the accommodation of travelers. Humboldt pronounced these Peruvian roads 'among the most useful and stupendous works ever executed by man.' They built aqueducts for purposes of irrigation, some of which were five hundred miles They constructed magnificent bridges of stone, and had even invented suspension bridges thousands of years before they were introduced into Europe. They had, both in Peru and Mexico, a system of posts, by means or which news was transmitted hundreds of miles in a day, precisely like those known among the Persians in the time of Herodotus, and subsequently among the Romans. Stones similar to mile stones were placed along the roads in Peru."—Atlantis, p. 141-2.

Breckenridge says: "I have been sometimes induced to think, that at the period when these were constructed, there was a population as numerous as that which once animated the borders of the Nile, or of the Euphrates. The most numerous, as well as the most considerable of these remains, are found precisely in those parts of the country where the traces of a numerous population might be looked for, namely, from the mouth of the Ohio, on the east side of the river, to the Illinois, and on the west side, from the St. Francis to the Missouri. I am perfectly satisfied that cities similar to those of Ancient Mexico, of several hundred thousand souls, have existed in this western country."—American Antiquities, p. 184.

In summing up in regard to the works of the Mound Builders, Maclean says: "But for the present we must content ourselves to judge simply by such evidences as are afforded in the general features of these remains. We judge the Mound Builders not so much by the mounds as by the enclosures. The domestic implements also enter largely into forming a proper estimate of their makers. No one can look over the plans of the sacred enclosures without particularly noticing their great regularity of form. By comparing them together he will notice that in many instances the dimensions of some at different points are the same. They can not be merely striking coincidences, for they must have been made with the view that one should represent the area of the other. The 'Hopeton Work,' in Ross county, Ohio, has the square, circle, and parallel lines in combination. Both the square and the circle contain an area of twenty acres each, and the parallel lines twentyfour hundred feet in length. At Newark, the first circle mentioned in the description (page 32), has an area of twenty acres, as also has the square. The circle of the high bank works, see page 36, also contains an area of twenty acres. The octagon and circle of these works very much resemble the octagon and circle, in combination at Newark. It would appear that the 'Hopeton' and 'High Bank Works,' were each modeled after those at Newark, or else the last was a combination of the other two. There is certainly a wonderful similarity, however it may be regarded. Other combinations might be noticed, where different squares have the same dimensions accompanied by one or more circles. It is evident that these works could not have been made without some standard of measurement and the use of instruments."-Mound Builders, p. 84.

He says again: "A work in Butler county, which will be described in its proper place, also confirms the fact that the works were outlined before the work was begun. In that way we have four mounds of the circle at regular distances apart and connecting at their base, thus giving the workmen the line of the curve. This shows a high degree of proficiency, and one that approaches the modern idea of planning before constructing."—Ibid, p.

He still further states relative to the works of those ancients: "We read of buried macadamized roads having been discovered in West Virginia, cut by streams, which would indicate some particular mode of crossing a stream. It has already been stated that brick was used in the mound at Seltzertown. Some of the earthworks made of clay—with none of that material in that vicinity—would prove that this clay had been moulded into brick. A people who could erect such stupendous structures, and understood the art of moulding as well as they did, would not hesitate to perform any undertaking in their power. They had the perseverance and the will. It is more than probable that all their enclosures and many of their mounds were faced with brick."—Ibid, p.

87... The same author says: "From the foregoing enumeration, in which is imperfectly represented the great skill displayed, it is evident that the Mound Builders were somewhat advanced in the arts and sciences, and occupied no mean position in life. For | their time and surroundings they had made great strides towards a permanent civilization, and must be ranked as one of the great peoples of ancient times."-Ibid, p.

Of the works of the Mound builders, Baldwin says: "Combinations of the square and circle are common in these ancient works, and the figures are always perfect. This perfection of the figures proves, as Squier and Davis remark, that the builders possessed a standard of measurement, and had a means of determining angles."—Ancient America, p. 23.
Of the Mound Builders, the American

Encyclopedia, under the heading Archæology, says: "They lived in towns, and were not only hunters, but miners, potters, weavers, agricultural, artistic, and com-mercial."

Morton says: "A two-fold interest attaches to the mound, (fig. 197), of which we offer a sectional tracing. On the one hand it shows the pains bestowed by ancient American man upon the dead; thus evidencing considerable civilization."-Types of Mankind, p. 290.

(To be continued.)

Selections.

WHAT ARE THE FACTS.

IS REV. JOHN DOWIE A MODERN MIRACLE WORKER?

"And there came the halt, the lame and the blind" to the W. C. T. U. Hall to hear and be healed of faith. It is one of the remarkable movements of the day. Whether drawn by curiosity to see the face and hear the voice of a man who asserts to be the vicar, as it were, of the Divine Healer, or whether impelled by faith in the professions of the man himself, the Temperance Hall was packed to suffocation. Call it superstition, call it painful credulity, call it weakness, call it what you may, there were hundreds there and many turned away. Not the lowly class alone, not the man who follows in the wake of the Salvation Army alone, but scores of well known business and professional men, and staid old members of the orthodox churches. From the days of Hippocrates the human flesh has been heir to ills that have baffled the skill of the most accomplished men of medicine, and periodically there have arisen men who claimed the power, supposed to be the attribute of one man alone, of healing by the laying ongof hands.

Yesterday might be seen the curled lip of incredulity and contempt and the most solemn, earnest and devoted mien of the believer in faith healing. The Rev. John Dowie has created a greater sensation in religious circles than either Moody or Sam Jones, and whether it is deserving of sneers or praise the fact remains that hundreds upon hundreds of the most intelligent people in the city have attended the meetings and a very large number professed convic-

The services opened yesterday with responsive singing. The Rev. Dowie then offered the most remarkable prayer ever heard in this city. It was a formal petition for Divine clemency upon the weakness of human nature, but there were sandwiched into it a score or more testimonials from patients "before and after taking" the new antidote, faith healing. One cancerous person from West Seventh street testified to great faith in the method and requested prayers. One bedridden invalid at the County Hospital said she believed that if the Rev. Dowie would place hands upon her, she would be able to take up her bed and walk. One case of chronic anculosis, at Santa Barbara, made an epistolary profession of faith, which he stated was confirmed by his complete cure. San Diego, notwithstanding her bay and climate, has a man with a tumor in the brain, who said he hoped the Rev. Dowie would place his palm on his cranium and allay the inflamation. Every phase of disease and deformity, from the chicken pox to cholera morbus, and ingrowing toe nail to strabismus appeared by the testimonials to have been successfully treated. From Norwalk came a plaint of moral woe, in whose behalf was invoked the Divine panacea.

After the prayer the Rev. Dowie made a short address, a short summary of what has been accomplished during the past week. "We have formed a Los Angeles lodge of the Faith Healing Association," said Rev. Dowie, "and over 450 members have been enrolled. Before Tuesday night, when our work will close, we expect over 500 members. Friends, I came to you a stranger, and you would not hearken to me. You have come to know me better. It is not I who heal; I do not pretend to heal; but it is the Lord Jesus whose vicar I am, a tool in the hands of the Great Master. Tuesday night our work here will end, but we will have organized an association which will remain with you for the good of all."

When the services closed a Tribune reporter called upon several ministers to ascertain what their opinion is upon the Rev. Dowie and his meetings.

"Dr. Cantine, what do you think of the faith-healing movement?"

"I don't know anything about it," said the Fort-street pastor, quite sharply. "I have been out of the city, and only returned a day or so ago, and have not heard Rev. Dowie and don't know anything about the matter."

"But do you believe in healing by faith, Doctor?"

"I don't know anything about it. How can a man believe in anything when he don't know anything about it?"

The reporter wondered if this view would not be applicable to some of the converts, but refrained from speaking of it to the Doctor, who would not commit himself upon the subject of the modern

"Dr. Williams, the Tribune would like to lay before its readers an expression of your views upon Rev. Dowie and miracles of the day."

"Well, I have been appointed by the Ministerial Union to investigate the subject, and will deliver an address before the Union, which meets tomorrow, in which I will fully express my views and the result of the investigation."

The Doctor preferred not to make any formal statement of his views, inasmuch as he will give them complete to-day, but the drift of his conversation indicated plainly that he was very antagonistic to the Rev. Dowie and faith healers.

"At San Jose," said Rev. Williams, "where Mr. Dowie was holding meetings, he stepped out of his hotel one day on his way to the hall, and stepped on an orange peeling and fell very hard, dislocating his left arm at the shoulder. Some friends helped him up and asked him if he was much hurt. 'No, it won't amount to anything,' he said, and walked to the hall. He managed to get a finger of the left hand in a buttonhole of his vest and went through the services of the evening with his arm out of joint, suffering great pain, but as it would mean absolute ruin of his cause if he made known to his audience that he, the exponent and chief disciple of faith healing, could not heal his own hurt and did not stand in close enough with the powers that be to receive any help, he exerted his will power and endured the excruciating pain, and was especially effective in that evening's address. After it was over he told some friends, and a doctor was called, who put the modern miracle performer on his back, placed his foot on the reverend bosom and giving the arm a jerk and a twist drew it into place with a snap. Rev. Dowie does not deny the fact, but asserts that the Lord gave him especial strength on that occasion.'

Dr. Hutchins, have you any objection to stating your views on the faith healing meetings?" asked the reporter of the congregational minister.

"I greatly prefer to make no statement, if you please," replied the gentleman.

Dr. Reed of the Central Baptist Church, was next seen.

"I dont want to make any expression for if I do you'll get it wrong." The reporter assured the gentleman that he would endeavor to give a correct statement of his

"Well, in the first place, on the general principle of having diseases healed by the power of God in answer to prayer, I believe that the scriptures warrant that, and that it has often been done in all ages since the time of Christ; but I believe that in such instances the Holy Spirit teaches men how to pray and what to pray for, and gives special faith by which to secure the answer to prayer. Second, as to Mr. Dowie, while I have not been able to attend many of his meetings, the few that I have attended have given me the impression of his sincerity, and his desire to honor God and His Holy Word and the Holy Spirit as well as do good to the people, and I believe that many cases of genuiue healing have occured in connection with his meetings. I should, however, take exception to some of his teachings, but I hope that on the whole great good will be accomplished."

Rev. Will Knighten, the fighting parson, was more decided ane pronounced in his views than any of his brother ministers.

"Yes, sir, I am very willing to state where I stand on this question. I am decidedly opposed to it in every shape. It is a fraud and a sham through and through. Why ,you know, every sham religion of the last hundred years has made it a corner-stone, this healing by faith. It is not at all new. The Mormons avowed belief in in it and other sects that have captured the foolish and weak minded. No sensible man will believe any such stuff for a moment. I delivered an address on the topic some time ago, and expressed my contempt for it then."

"Dr. Russell, how do you stand on the sensation of the day," the pastor was asked as he descended from his pulpit last eve-

"What sensation? Oh, the faith healing! Well, I am hardly qualified to make any assertion concerning Rev. Dowie, as I have never heard him. But I believe that the day of miracles has passed. God has his own way of doing things, but I see no evidences in recent ages of the performing of miracles."

It is understood that one of the pastors in this city has received letters from several prominent divines in San Francisco, stating that beyond all question the faith healers left evil results behind them up there in many ways; that the credulity and superstitions of many rich men have been imposed upon, and that they have been persuaded to fork over a large amount of funds to the healers as the price of a cure.

The church organizations of the city are being affected by the movement. Several hundred church members have accepted the new doctrine, and it may result in many old reliable orthodox members leaving the fold. In fact it is church people who have more freely fallen in with the Rev. Dr. Dowie's teachings, and the pastors are restrained from freer speech on the matter because of the very fact that some of their most reliable and influential laymen are favorable to the performer of miracles.

FAIR PLAY.

WHEN a person is being abused, and the crowd of bystanders are too cowardly to interfere, does it not stir up your sense of justice to cry, Why does not some one intertere? But how does it happen that we have time to make such cool criticisms? Why are not we so intent upon rescuing the abused person as to have thoughts only of our duty in the matter?

I have heard the Mormons abused all my life and notice that few say a word in their favor; but as I have incidentally learned much in their praise, if I do not cry

"fair play" I am no gentleman.

In 1881. I was on the coast of Maine in the United States, as far from Utah as I could well be, when I heard that there were some Mormons in the neighborhood. As I had by that time learned that there was good to be found in everybody, and especially in those who were held in the least esteem among men, I resolved to find them out. They proved to be poor fishermen and farmers, whose daily struggle to feed and clothe their families made them appear far removed from fanaticism. So far from being polygamists, they were unusually alive on that question, and considered the reproach of having more than one wife a great evil. I then found that the Mormons, like so many religious sects, were divided into two camps. The branch of the church which I had so unexpectedly stumbled upon was an organization recognizing the son of Joseph Smith as their president, and who, although believing in the Book of Mormon, differed from their Utah co-religionists very materially on the points of polygamy and as to the recognized head of the sect. I was surprised indeed to find the hated Mormons the most devoutly religious and most truly honest and neighborly of any of the people whom I met. They read and studied the Bible a great deal, had family prayers twice a day, when others besides the head of the house would join in succession in the spirited season of prayer. On Sundays they met in private houses and worshipped much like other non-ritualistic sects. They had no paid ministers, but those who filled the office of pastor were laboring men like the members of the flock.

They have, however, a few men who travel about as a bishop or presiding elder does, whose expenses the people bear. They were brought into the Mormon faith through the preaching of some missionaries of that Church, and recognize themselves as the "Church of Latter-day Saints, reorganized in 1860." Their congregations extend for a long distance up and down the coast of Maine. They acknowledge Joseph Smith, whose home and address is Lamoni, Iowa, as the head or president of the Church re-organized in 1860. Their religious paper is published at Lamoni, Iowa, and has for its motto: "Thou shalt not have save but one wife"—a citation from the Book of Mormon. They use the Book of Mormon only as Protestants generally do the book of Chronicles, as true, and worth reading sometimes, but not as entertaining and profitable to them as the New Testament and some parts of the Old.

In regard to the Book of Mormon, which I read then for the first time, I saw at once that it was no story written by a Congregational minister named Spaulding, as the enemies of the Mormons are fond of claiming. The internal evidence of its distinctive religious rites such as immersion, the obligation of the clergy to work for a support, and such like ideas were no fancies of a Congregationalist. The account of the finding of the brass or gold plates of the original in a hill near Palmyra, New York, seems to me consistent with the structure and intent of the Book.

The account of a poor, ignorant young man spending much time in the woods alone in meditation and prayer, and at length, in vision, having the place of the concealed plates shown to him, was consistent enough.

His poor translation did not vitiate the fact of the Book being genuine. If it did, then the Chinese and literati of various nations were right in supposing that poor translations of the Bible proved it to be no book of Divine origin. The translator of the Book of Mormon was evidently just such a person as Joseph Smith, whose limited vocabulary was derived from the English Bible, the one book of his constant study.

I do not have the credulity to believe that a pious fraud got up by one or more persons in 1830 has given the world the Book of Mormon and the Church of that name, as people must, who fancy that an idle romance is the foundation of a movement as extended as the Mormon Church has come to be. If you will carefully read the book and explain it consistently with the facts of the present developments of the American antiquities with which it so well harmonizes, it will throw much light upon the subject. Within a couple of years the real Spaulding MS. has been found and published at Oberlin, Ohio, at the office of the Bibliotheca Sacra, a staid quarterly of the Congregationalists not at all inclined to favor Mormons. The subject here entered on is one for a volume, but let this be my brief cry of "fair play." J. CROSSETT.

Chinese Times.

THE WORLD'S FLOODS.

THE United States is a nation.

At no other time is the fact more strikingly shown than when a great calamity befalls any part of it. Then the 65,000,000 hearts beat with one throb of sympathy. If one member suffers all members suffer. But while we stand appalled by such dire disasters as the one which has turned the beautiful and fertile region of the Conemaugh into a valley of death, and are loath to believe it in all its dreadful and heartrending details, while we involuntary ask ourselves, "Can it be so?" histhory tells us that others have suffered in equal and greater measure.

Numerous are the traditions coming to us from pre-historic periods concerning great floods. Everywhere in the annals of the various nations we meet with similar accounts as that contained in the Bible. It is therefore most likely that at a certain time, several thousand years before the beginning of our era, extraordinary floods occurred in various portions of the earth simultaneously.

Strabo and Diodorus speak of gigantic spring floods having broken upon Egypt at an early date, and Plinius and Tacitus report such of the north of Europe about the time of Christ, which in terrible magnitude and destructiveness had not their equal. The oldest reports concern the floods in the region of the Red sea along the peninsula of Suez. Strabo chronicles the destruction of many armies of the ancients in this dangerous locality, and Diodorus relates the drowning of a part of the hosts of Artaxerxes at the same place. Here too the passage of the Jews through the Red sea and the destruction of the Pharaonic hosts find their explanation.

Reliable accounts of disasters by water begin a century or two before our era. They treat until comparatively recently almost exclusively of floods in Europe, owing to the imperfect connection between the nations up to our own times.

About the year 130 B. C. the powerful nation of the Celts, after having suffered for a long time great losses in possessions and lives, were forced by continued destructive floods to forsake their abodes along the shores of the western ocean and emigrate to Italy, the upper Rhine, and the Danube. Likewise about the year 113 B. C. several Teutonic tribes were driven further south from the northern settlements by like causes. Among the older towns of the world the Eternal city, Rome, suffered frequently and extremely from inundations of the Tiber, which to fill the cup of the sufferings of the people were generally accompanied by dearth and pestilence. Notable among these floods at Rome are those of the years 44, 27, 23, 22, and 13 B. C., and 5, 15, 36, 51, 69, and 70 A. D. I the year 5 the city was navigated by boats for over a week and a large number of buildings were destroyed by the flood, as were also hundreds of lives.

In the year 60 A. D. great floods inundated many miles of territory along the French and English coasts. Historically remarkable is the disastrous inundation caused by the Rhine in consequence of the destruction of the dam of Drusus at Nijmwegen, in the Netherlands, by the rebellious Batavians under Civilis to stop the advance of the much-feared Romans. This famous dam had been commenced by Drusus Germanicus in the year 5 B. C., but had only been finished twelve years at the time of this catastrophe.

A. D. 170 the fertile table-land of Mareb in Arabia was turned into a permanent desert by the breaking of a dam and the inhabitants were forced to emigrate. In 174 large tracts of Italy and adjoining countries were under water. The year 366 saw the greater portion of Germany inundated. In 444 the city of Is, on the bank of the bay of Douarney, France, formerly quite famous, was swallowed by the floods. In 587 and 590 Germany suffered immense losses by water. The Rhine, having always been a source of great and frequent disasters, again did enormous damage in 694. Ninety years after even Charlemagne was stopped on one of his victorious marches by the waters filling the lowlands everywhere. In 793 the sea flooded the whole of East Frisia. The year 800 witnessed the swallowing up of a very large part of Helgoland by the insatible element. In 815 the Rhine by another overflow did more damage than ever before, and in 886 its waters devastated all the adjoining regions along its entire course. During the ninth century the English coasts suffered terribly from floods, and in 986 all the rivers of central Europe overflowed their banks and caused great

The eleventh century had no less than forty-seven great floods. At one time fully 125 geographical square miles of the Netherlands were laid waste. At this time there also disappeared a number of the larger islands near the south-west coast of the Baltic, making the entire namber swallowed up by floods on the same coast from the time of the Roman occupation to the close of the eleventh century, fifteen—all large islands.

The loss in human lives through floods during that century alone was over 1,000,000. Some of the most disastrous floods during that period were that of 1015, putting a large part of Holland under water and taking more than three years until its last traces had finally disappeared; then the overflow of the Elbe and Weser, destroying entire towns along their banks; further the inundation of the Pomeranian coasts in 1044, reaching in places as much as twelve geographical miles into the country, and then the fearful floods in the Alpine regions and Germany in 1060.

In 1106 the old and important town of Malamocca, near Venice, was devoured by the Adriatic sea. Other great floods through overflows of the Rhine and Danube occurred in 1124, 1150, and 1152, when large tracts of fruitful lands were devastated and buildings and numerous lives were destroyed in the towns. The year 1162 was another sad one for the north of Europe through its disastrous floods, taking the lives of thousands of human beings and cattle. Again between the years 1212 and 1324 there were hundreds of towns and villages destroyed by floods in that part of the world, and 1218 a single castastrophe of this kind killed 10,000 human beings at Nordstrand alone. About Christmas, 1277, the city of Torum and fifty smaller towns around the mouth of the Ems sank into the sea.

On the 26th of November, 1282, a most enormous flood gave birth to the Zuider sea and put the Dollart into its present shape, by which mighty revolution of nature 80,000 to 100,000 human lives were lost and many towns were wiped out forever. The second so-called "Marcellus" flood in 1300 destroyed twenty-eight towns in Sleswick alone, and with them 7,600 human beings. It also swept away another half of Helgoland, so that only about one-fourth of the original island remained. The year 1317 was a most remarkable one in France, Germany, and Austria. All the rivers overflowed their banks and the water even spurted forth from the depths of the earth. In 1337 a large portion of the province of Zeeland, containing seven dioceses and fourteen villages, were buried beneath the waters. The year 1342 saw the most disastrous floods which ever visited Germany. On the 8th of December the German ocean leaped, as it were, upon North Frisia and swallowed up more than 100,000 men, women, and children, together with all their habitations scattered through thirty dioceses. Again from the 18th to the 20th of November, 1421, 100,000 people were destroyed by a flood near Dortrecht and Rotterdam, together with seventy-one villages, of which twenty-two have never since been seen.

Similar calamities happened in those regions in the years 1425, 1449, 1475 1497, 1500, 1511, 1530, 1541, 1613, 1625, 1634, 1717, 1784, 1803, 1809, 1825, and other years, destroying human lives by the hundreds, thousands, and tens of thousans. In August, 1566, there were general inundations in Switzerland, occasioning a loss of 200,000 florins. The year 1570 was the most disastrous for Holland. Large tracts of valuable land were flooded and 400,000 people drowned. In 1571 a part of the beautiful city of Lyons was torn away by the river Rhone. The year 1588 saw the destruction of the proud Armada, entailing the loss of 20,000 men. In 1595, June 4, an inundation in Switzerland, caused by the outbreak of a glacier, swept away 500 houses and 145 human beings.

On the 11th and 12th of October the Ganges suddenly overflowed all the adjoining country, taking the lives of 300,000 people in one single night. The flood rose to a height of forty feet. In 1824, Oct. 29 -Nov. 1, great floods along the entire range of the Alps did great damage. A remarkable flood occured in the valley of the Euphrates in 1831, in a single night 7,000 houses and more than 15,000 lives were destroyed. The great flood in China of the year 1856 is still remembered by many. It took place in the province Honan and cost 200,000 lives. Stanley reports gigantic floods to have taken place in 1871 and 1872 in the valley of Makata river, central Africa. Great damage was done in loss of life and property. A most violent flood visited Bengal, in East India, on October 31st, 1876. The water was driven up to a height of forty-five feet, covering 141 geographical square miles; 165,000 human lives were lost on that occasion. In 1878, during October, the Nile swallowed up forty-five villages and 800 people. The financial loss amounted to over 12,-000,000 frances. The dreadful inundation of Szegdin, Hungary, in 1879 is fresh in the memory of all. The loss was 8,200 buildings and 1,900 lives. In the fall of the same year Spain was flooded and 1,700 souls were drowned. In 1881 the Chinese cities Haifung and Tallee were inundated and 3,000 of their inhabitants found death in the waters. The year 1882 was an extraordinary year for floods. There were great and disastrous ones in Spain, Italy, France, the Tyrol, Germany, and Hungary, causing a fearful loss in lives and property; it amounted in one locality in Germany alone to fully 3,200,000 marks, nearly $1,000,000.

The floods in our country in 1883 are still well remembered. It was Pennsylvania at that time, too, which suffered most. The same year witnessed another great flood in India, demanding many thousand victims. In the following year it was again our own country which suffered most from the destructive element. Each of the years since then had one or more disastrous floods here or there, but the most dire calamity of this kind in late years was the inundation caused by an overflow of the Yellow river in China, by which over 1,000,000 of people were drowned and 1,800,000 lost their shelter. A smaller inundation took place there in 1888, which year has charged against it a number of floods in several parts of the world.

But while floods are a common occurence with all their frightful destructiveness and frequently much more fearful in magnitude than the one we bewail at present, there is something about the Johnstown catastrophe which makes it peculiar-peculiarly horrible. It is the fact that human carelessness, or rather human recklessness, seems to be responsible for it.

RUINED THEIR TRADE.

CINCINNATI MEDIUMS FURIOUS.

Cincinnati has long been noted as one of the strongholds of spiritualism. Mediums have flourished and several became rich here. Their followers were among the best people of the city and their religion spread so fast that the orthodox people became alarmed.

Last fall a medium, J. W. Fletcher, held forth on Carlisle avenue. His manifestations were on the wonderful order and his seances attracted great crowds. One night a party of investigating gentlemen flashed lights on Fletcher and caught both the medium and his materialized spirits. Fletcher acknowledged the fraud.

Soon after the Evangelical alliance, made up of the ministers of all the Protestant churches of the city, arranged with Fletcher to expose the tricks of the mediums. Last Sunday night at Heuck's Opera House, to a great audience, he explained many tricks and declared that a combination of the mediums of the city existed, and produced letters to prove it.

He also detailed a plan concocted to fleece a well-known young attorney who had become a partial believer. There was much excitement, and Fletcher was hissed and called ugly names.

To-night a great audience of intelligent people filled Heuck's to witness a further expose. There were early signs of hostility, and when Fletcher appeared he proceeded amid considerable confusion. He prefaced his exposures by declaring that he had no ill-will toward any one connected with spiritualist societies, saying they were probably honest, but the mediums he denounced as frauds.

There were a few hisses, but Fletcher secured a committee, some of whom were spiritualists, and succeeded. He thoroughly exposed all forms of slate-writing, even getting correct answers to questions on slates bolted together on four sides. Finally as a challenge, he allowed a spectator to write a question, seal it in an envelope, while a second person hid it in a slate. A third person held the slate, while the click of a pencil was clearly heard. When opened by a fourth party a correct answer appeared on the slate.

The noise grew and reached a climax

The noise grew and reached a climax when Fletcher gave a fac-simile of a trumpet seance. The house was filled with hisses, cat-calls, whistlings, and all sorts of noises. Many ladies left and trouble seemed imminent. Fletcher held his ground and finished his act.

At its conclusion a member of the circle announced that he had been a spiritualist and particularly partial to trumpet seances, but henceforth he wanted nothing to do with the fraud. This called out cheers and hisses.

Fletcher next materialized three spirits, and one lady declared she recognized the spirit of a child, who called her by name. Later, the fraud was exposed, and the lady announced her disgust with the whole business. There was a stir in the audience, and a man arose and announced that he would run Fletcher out of town.

Then Fletcher came down in the audience and declared his intention of staying right here, and challenged any medium in the world to do anything by spirit aid that he could not do by trickery.

It is admitted that spiritualism has received a heavy blow.

DON'T WORRY.

Worry wears you out. Thought, like a river, flows between fixed banks, flashing back the stars by night and thd sun by day, turning the mill wheels and machinery, feeding the life upon its banks; but worry eats out and overflows the banks, and carries with it devastation and death. Don't worry. Worry is the child of unbelief; it is the child of distrust; no man can trust God fully, and worry at the same time. You might as well try to mix oil and water in the same dish, as to mix belief and worry in the same life with Christianity. The minute you begin to worry, you step down from the throne of faith; you throw the sceptre of belief at your own feet; you stand on the ground of unbelief in the living God. I go to a hotel, and tell them I want to take an early train. I leave my name with the clerk. If I trust the clerk, I go to bed and sleep; if I am afraid he won't call me, I wake up every hour of the night and consult my watch. Every time I awake, I insult the clerk; and every time we are restless we insult our God.

It is because we can not trust our God that we worry. If I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have entrusted to him against that day, can not I trust him for my daily bread? If I can lie down in the sleep of death, believing in the power of God unto the resurrection and the life, can not I trust him with the burdens and toils of my daily life? Surely it is because we doubt God that we worry and fret: and so it comes oftentimes in life, that God, who is loving, tender and gentle, takes the thing that worries us out of our lives. Your child sits with you at the open car window; a piece of cinder flies into the child's eye; nature at once floods it with a sea of salt tears. You lift the lid and pluck out the cinder as soon as you can; it is worrying the child's whole nervous system. My brother if there be aught in your life that is wearing out your strength and dimming your vision, be still while God takes it out.—Selection.

ONE THEORY OF PNEUMONIA

A German-American physician of New York holds that pneumonia is a house disease. He says: In the warm air of the house the system is made sensitive to the cold, but the cold is only the producing cause. It prepares the coddled lungs for the pneumonia poison, which has its real origin in damp and dirty rooms or cellars. What is the cure? Well, the steps to cure have unhappily advanced but little. But the relief and the prevention are, no medicine and plenty of fresh air.

Conserence Minutes.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN AND NORTH-ERN INDIANA.

The above conference convened at Galien. Michigan, June 8th and 9th, H. Rathbun president, D. H. Proper clerk, pro. tem., assisted by W. J. Smith. L. Scott chorister, Sr. Flora L. Scott organist. Galien 106, Marcellus 15, Clear Lake 69, Hartford 16, Maumee 21, Knox 16, Coldwater 86, Dimondale 15, Lansing 16; total so far as has been reported, 360. Reports: G. so far as has been reported, 300. Reports: G. A. Blakeslee, H. Rathbun, (baptized 4), C. Scott, (baptized 4), W. J. Smith, (baptized 4), L. Scott, (baptized 9). Elders Alcott, Horton, Prettyman, Thurston and Most also reported; priests, J. Erter, G. McClintock, J. Keifer; teacher, Wm. Lockerby. The ordination to the office of priest of Bro Lewis M. Smith was deferred till next conference. Resolved, that this conference sustain all the spiritual authorities in righteousness, by our faith, prayers and means. Resolved that Bro. H. Rathbun be sustained as president and D. B. Teeters as secretary and Wm. Lockerby as Bishop's Agent of the district. Moved that when we adjourn we do so to meet at Coldwater, Michigan, subject to call of district president. Evening session, preaching by L. Scott. Sunday morning sermon by W. J. Smith. Met at 2: 30 p. m. for sacrament and social service in charge of Brn. Blakeslee, Prettyman and Alcott. Confirmation of one and blessing of three children. A season of refreshing was enjoyed by the large audience of Saints that attended. Some of what Paul calls "the best gifts" were manifested, peace, love and tranquility characterized the session. The evening discourse was by C. Scott. At the close of the service resolutions were offered as follows: That any branch desiring a twodays' meeting shall confer with the district president; he to make such arrangements as thought wise. Adjourned. An excellent conference!

MASSACHUSETTS.

Quarterly conference convened at 2319 Washington St., Boston, May 11th. M. H. Bond was chosen chairman, A. H. Parsons, assistant, G. H. Gates, clerk, T. M. Whiting, assistant, Sr. J. Glover, organist; Bro. R. Bullard, chorister; Brn. T. Boyd and G. Robley, ushers. Moved that the chair appoint a committee on branch reports. B. Pierce, J. Woodward and G. H. Gates were so appointed; R. Bullard, U. W. Greene and J. Woodward were chosen as an auditing committee; M. H. Bond and T. Whiting, committee for advertising. Minutes of last conference read and approved. Elders present reporting:—T. Whiting, N. Nickerson, J. Woodward, A. W. Hoxie, J. B. Pierce, C. E. Brown reported by proxy. By letter:—G. S. Yerrington, W. Bearse, R. Farnsworth. Brethren A. H. Parsons and H. H. Robinson, present, reported concerning their labors in Nova Scotia. U. W. Greene gave account of the work in Maine. Present and reporting teachers:—R. Bullard, S. Smith, gave account of the work in Maine. C. S. Monroe. Deacons: A. B. Pierce, M. Gon-dolf and T. Boyd. Pres. M. H. Bond reported, also offering some suggestions for furtherance of the work. Communications was read from the president of the mission. Wm. H. Kelley offering suggestions and directing the labors of the ministry. M. H. Bond reported action on matters of demanding licences left with him at last conference. Additional reports:—T. H. Moore, F. Steffe, A. W. Glover; teacher, G. Robley. District treasurer and Bishop's Agent's report read and by proxy received and referred to auditing committee. Branch reports:—Received from Brocton, Fall River, New Bedford, Providence, Boston, Little Compton, Dennisport, North Plymouth and Cranston. Committee on Sunday School Union reported no definite action in regard its appointment. Report received and committee discharged. Moved that the district clerk be authorized to notify each Sunday School in the district to appoint delegates to meet at Providence R. I., Saturday, July 27th, to form a Sunday School Union. Amended that each school arrange for defraying the expenses of its delegates. Carried as amended. Sunday morning was devoted to prayer, and the Saints present were visited by God's favor in an outpouring of his Spirt such as many present had never witnessed, while strangers were moved to avow the presence of God. In the afternoon A. H. Parsons addressed the conference, and in the evening H. H. Robinson, both being blessed to the edification of those attending. Elder E. N. Webster reported by proxy. Committee on branch reports finding such correct; and committe reported finding the accounts correct. Priest A. W. Glover requested the renewal of his license which was granted. Teacher Geo. Robley was also on request granted a renewal of his license. Voted to sustain the general church authorities; to sustain W. H. Kelley as president of Eastern Mission; M. H. Bond as president of district, G. H. Gates, clerk, John Smith as Bishop's Agent. Whereupon Bro. Smith exhorted the Saints to remember to support him, not in word only, but in deed, by keeping the law which unto us is a law of spiritual life. The Boston Saints and friends were tendered a vote of thanks for hospitality and kindness. Bro A. N. Glover requested to be allotted a mission in Plainville and Attleborough. Voted that he, together with all local officers labor under direction of the district president. Conference adjourned to meet at Providence, Rhode Island, the third Saturday [21st] in September. After adjournment of 21st] in September. business, the Saltns assembled for a parting season of prayer and praise, and upward of three hours was spent in that unwearying service which only Saints can fully understand or appreciate, many expressing their gratitude to God for the blessing of his Spirit. There was an unusually full attendance of Saints, and all were blessed and strengthened in faith. The business sessions were marked by unanimity of Spirit and singleness of purpose for the good of the work and the glory of God.

NAUVOO AND STRING PRAIRIE.

Conference met at Montrose, Iowa, June 1st, J. McKiernan president, G. P. Lambert clerk. Branch reports: Keokuk and Rock Creek showed no change, Montrose 3 baptized. Elders reports: J. McKiernan reported as delegate to general conference and president of the district; W. T. Lambert baptized 1; J. H. Lambert; D. D. Babcock; T. Revel; B. F. Durfee. Also Priest A. A. Hall. J. H. Lambert Bishop, a agent, reported: Balance last report $4.75; received since $60.17; balance due church June 1st, $4.92. Audited and found correct. G. P. Lambert was elected clerk of the district for three months. The election of district president was deferred for three months. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to president, clerk and Bishop's agent. Preaching by W. T. Lambert, J. H. Lambert and J. McKiernan. Social meeting Sunday in charge of the president. Sacramental meeting at 2: 30 p. m. in charge of T. Revel. Adjourned to meet at Rock Creek, Illinois, September 7th, at 10: 30 a. m.

EASTERN IOWA.

Conference of the Eastern Iowa district convened at Amber, Jones county, Iowa, June 1st, elder J. S. Roth in the chair, John Heide clerk pro tem. Branches reported: Jackson 15; Apostolic 46, one expelled, one dropped; Fulton 29; Butternut Grove 31; Davenport and Buffalo not reported. Elders reported: J. Ruby, by letter, baptized one, C. C. Revnolds, W. Turner, J. S. Roth. Priests James Bradley and James Johnson reported. John Heide, Bishop's agent's report: On hand last report $11.00, received since $28.50, total on hand $39.50. It was resolved to hold the next conference at Fulton, Iowa. Elder J. S. Roth was sustained as president of the district, J. W. Sutton was sustained as clerk and Elder Turner as Bishop's agent. Preaching on Friday evening by John Heide and J. S. Roth; on Saturday evening by J. S. Roth; Sunday morning by W. Turner; at 8 p. m. by W. T. Maitland. Saints meeting Sunday in charge of John Heide and J. R. Johnson. A vote of thanks was tendered to the resident Saints for their kindness during conference. Adjourned to meet at Fulton, Iowa, at call of president.

Miscellaneous.

BLESSED.

Anderson.—At Nebraska City, Nebraska, De-cember 7th, 1888, adopted by Mr. Neils and Mary C. Andersen. Blessed June 10th, 1880, by Elders Robt. M. Elvin, J. W. Waldsmith and Lloyd W. Wells, and named Susanna Christina.

HANSEN.—At his home, in Galland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, Elder Ingvert Hansen departed this life June 7th, 1889, aged 52 years, 11 months and 13 days. Bro. Hansen united with the church in Denmark, in his youth, at the sacrifice of parents and home, and became an active minister of the gospel, traveling and preaching the glad news without purse or scrip. He came to America and crossed the plains to Utah, ex-pecting to find there a pure and holy people, but he was disappointed and turned away from the evils he heard taught and saw practiced in the christ, nor the angel of God by which the gospel was restored in these latter days, ever taught such abominations. He united with the Reorganization in Utah, under the preaching and administration of her first missionaries to that place, E. C. Briggs and Alexander McCord. He soon left Utah and located his home with the Saints at Galland's Grove, Iowa, where he has since resided, and doing some local labor as a minister of the gospel. His last illness, which was of about two year's duration, he bore with patience and Christian fortitude, never seeming to doubt the goodness of God or his power and willingness to save. He fell asleep in Jesus with a bright hope of a glorius resurrection at the appearing of the Lord Jesus Christ. Bro. Hansen leaves a wife and five sons and five daughters, besides many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Funeral services were held in the Saints' chapel, at Galland's Grove, conducted by Elders C. E. Butterworth, A. Jackson and John Pett.

o, father, how we miss thee,
And the counsels that you gave,
Which kept our feet in childhood
In the straight and narrow way.
Thon art gone to dwell in heaven
With the loved ones gone before;
Yet we hope in Christ to meet thee,
When our earthly life is o'er.

MEFFORD.—Elizabeth Mefford was born September 27th, 1815, at Mullenburgh, Kentucky. She was baptized July 14th, 1862, in Boyer Township, Harrison county, Iowa, by Elder John A. McIntosh, confirmed by Elder W. W. Blair. She died February 24th, 1889, with confidence in her Redeemer unshaken, and full of hope in a glori-ous resurrection. Funeral sermon by C. Derry, at Twelve Mile Grove, Harrison county, Iowa.

A noble mother and a faithful wife,
A neighbor true to the end of her life.
Her hand was open to the child of need,
The color unheeded, unquestioned his creed.
The household of faith found a sister dear,
Ready to help them in sorrow and care.
Do you ask if she was a child of God?
Her life was the proof of her royal blood.

DUNGAN.-Near Six Mile Grove, Harrison county, Iowa, June 9th, 1889, with measles, Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel and Rhoda Dungan, aged 10 years, 3 months and 7 days. Funeral discourse by Elder Joseph Seddon, to a large concourse of friends, after which the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery in father Ellison's field, to await the resurrection.

RILEY.—At Breed's Station, near Canton, Fulton county, Illinois, June 7, 1889, sister Elizabeth Riley, wife of Bro. William Riley. She was born near Bolton, England, February 27th, 1841, and at death was aged 48 years, 3 months, and 4 days. She was the mother of nine children, five of whom survive her to mourn her loss-two sons and three daughters. She was a good wife and mother and a kind neighbor. She came to this country in 1867 and obeyed the truth the same year, and has been a good member ever since. A very large concourse attended funeral. Discourse by L. L. Jones.

Merick.—At the home of her parents, Paradise Township, Crawford county, Iowa, of whoop ing-cough, Mary Sophronia, infant daughter of Bro. and Sr. Lyman and Melissa S. Merick. Born September 6th, 1888; died May 28th, 1889. Funeral services by Elders John Pett and W. W. Whiting. Sympathizing neighbors and Saints were present.

were present.

HELSEL.—Near Six Mile Grove, Harrison county, Iowa, May 24th, 1889; Pearly V., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. and Armintha J. Helsel, aged 6 months and 25 days. Funeral discourse preached by Elder J. Seddon.

HAILEY. -At rest, near Avenue City, Andrew county, Missouri, June 4th, 1889, of spinal effec-tions and other complications incident to infancy, John Harvey, infant son of Bro. and Sr. Arthur Hailey, born March 22d, 1888. He was a lovable He suffered intensely until relieved by the prayer of faith and the laying on of handspleading with the Father to spare it unto us if it were possible; but if appointed unto death, that while it remained it might be free from pain and depart in peace. The Lord answered the latter part of our prayer and it passed away as gently as a summer zephyr. The funeral service was well attended by friends and neighbors, and was conducted by Elder John D. Bennett.

ted by Elder John D. Bennett.

He has gone, just before, to that rest
Prepared for the just and the pure,
And with pilgrims from earth richly blessed,
Grief and pain no more to endure.

In that home, oh! the comforting thought!
Our Harvey we'll meet bye and bye,
On that shore where the breezes are fraught,
With joys that can not ever die.

BURLINGTON ROUTE.

G. A. R. EXCURSION.—ONE FARE FOR THE ROUND TRIP.

From August 21st to August 28th, inclusive, the C. B. & Q. R. R. will sell at half rates, or one tare for the round trip, tickets to Milwaukee and return from all points on its lines, on account of the National G. A. R. Encampment at Milwaukee. These C. B. & Q. excursion tickets will be good to return August 27th to September 5th, inclusive; but by special arrangement, an extension to September 30th may be obtained by applying, prior to September 3d, to the agent at Milwaukee having the matter in charge. Be-tween Chicago and Milwaukee the tickets will be good for passage in either direction via the Goodrich Line of steamers, the C. M. & St. P. Ry, or the C. & N. W. Ry. Tickets and further information can be obtained of C. B. & Q. ticket agents, or by addressing P. S. Eustis, General-Pass. and Ticket Agent, Chicago.

VACCINATION

In Paris, where the law requiring vaccination is feebly enforced, the mortality from smallpox ranges from 136 to 10.1 to the 100,000 inhabitants, while in the principal German cities, where the vaccination laws are rigidly enforced, the death rate is but 1.44 to the 100,000 inhabitants. London, under compulsory vaccination, has a death rate from smallpox of but 0 6 to the 100,000 inhabitants. On the other hand, according to The Scientific American, which is authority for the above in the canton of Zurich, in Switzerland, since the compulsory vaccination law was repealed in 1883, the death rate from smallpox has risen steadily from 8 to 85 the 100,000 inhabitants.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 300 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the county seat of Barton county.

EBENEZER MILLER, Senior, SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

A FINE MOSAIC OF LAMONI.

5½ x 8½ inches.

Seventeen different residences grouped in one card with name under each picture.

By mail, post paid, 35c; per doz. $3; per 100, $20. Send 35c. for sample.

The traveling ministry please notice this. A. M. CHASE, Lamoni, Iowa.

---: A Family Newspaper.:---THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT

Provides its readers weekly with 56 COLUMNS

Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and alms to keep its readers thoroughly acquanted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.

LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHERS, 25aug Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't. D. F. Nicholson, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK OF LAMONI.

Ample Responsibility.

Loans money on aproved security. Six per cent interest paid on time deposits. Real Estate bought and sold.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPES.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

ESTATE AGENTS, REAL

West L'exington Street,

INDEPENDENCE. - MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

I hereby give notice that the

Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies

17 x 20, is now ready for sale.

I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2. All members of the Quorum represented in the medley can obtain a copy for $1.50. R. BURDGE, Photographer, Appleton City, Mo.

I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art, containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a medley, handsomely arranged, all numbered with index below of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Pieture E. C. BRAND.

[In the Press.]

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

PRICE $2.50 BY MAIL.

The Harmony will contain all the hymns in the Saints' Harp; also 542 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, 13 full sized pages of music, full instruction on choir and anthem music, the Editor's preface and introduction, and publisher's preface.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

Published monthly for the

Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - -M. Walker, Editor and Publisher,

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist, Ad-Reoleiddedig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE. AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."-Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 36.—Whole No. 841.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 29, 1889

No. 26.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express.
Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Perald.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR -

EDITOR. ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 20, 1880.

THE REVELATION OF APRIL итн, 1887.

WE have been questioned by letter and personally as to whether the revelation of April 11th, 1887, forbids defending or advocating keeping Sunday-the Lord's day -as the rest-day of the church; also as to whether the revelation implies that Sunday may yet be found not to be the proper rest-day for the Saints.

To this we reply that the revelation does not forbid either defending or advocating that day, for it expressly commands its faithful observance in paragraphs 5 and 7, calling "the first day of the week" . . . "the Lord's day." And this being a commandment to the Saints, it is to be both taught and defended when needful and seasonable. The idea that the church has commandments which are neither to be advocated or defended in due season is not to be endorsed, and especially those which relate to the observance of the Lord's appointed rest-day.

Paragraph 7 reaffirms the commandment of August 7th, 1831, saying,-"The Saints are to observe the first day of the week commonly called the Lord's day, as a day of rest, as a day of worship, as given in the covenants and commandments."

Furthermore, the revelation does not teach nor imply that at some future time it may be found that Sunday is not the proper rest day for the church, but it means that those who hold views opposed to first-day keeping should not resist or contend or strive over the matter, but await further revelation to explain, or refer the matter to "the quorums of the church" when they "are assmbled to decide concerning the law in the church articles and commandments," as is provided for in respect to all matters about which there may be doubts in the minds of the Saints.

The Lord has wisely and lovingly provided in his revealed system and its methods of church government, that those who honestly differ in their views from others as to the law and doctrine of the church, the interpretation and application of them, may have opportunity to hear and be heard in the provided councils and assemblies of the church, so that division and contention be avoided, that unity and edification be attained, that error and evil be exposed and shunned, that the evil of displaying or forcing "private interpreta-tion" and irregular and unauthorized opinions upon the people be prevented, and that Saints may have the full light of the entire church upon points in question, also that the revelations of God be had when and where there is found to be an insufficiency already written. Christ never sends his servants to preach their personal opinions nor display their "private interpretation" of the word of God.

Paul and Barnabas "had no small dissension with" . . . "certain men" who held that gospel converts should be circumcised and "keep the law of Moses," and they, no doubt, had very decided opinions in regard to this, yet they, with those who held differently, wisely referred the matter to an assembly of "apostles and elders," at Jerusalem, that the question might be fully and freely discussed, and be settled in an orderly, impartial, unprejudiced and regular way, by the church, through its duly appointed and chosen officers; after which "the apostles and elders, with the whole church," sent their united decision abroad, authoritatively, to the Saints everywhere for a rule of faith and practice. This usage is the same as that provided and adopted in the times of the "choice seer," and that to which those who oppose first day keeping are manifestly referred in the revelation of April 11th, 1887. The revelation commands Sunday observances and refers opposers to the assembled "quorums of the church" as the place for their question-

TESTIMONY OF BRO. WILLIAM JORDAN.

THE late Elder William Jordan, a man of superior mental powers and memory, also of excellent repute, whose residence for the last forty years and more was in western Iowa, mostly in Harrison and Crawford counties, has left on record the following testimony concerning the teachings of Joseph Smith the Seer, with whom he was well acquainted up to within a few days of his assassination at Carthage, Illinois, June 27th, 1844. He says:

"And now as to his teachings in regard to pulygamy. I was personally acquainted with him,—was really intimate with him. I was his interpreter to the Indians, and he was at my house on Sunday of the week he was killed. I never heard him teach anything of the kind; but his counsel was always to keep the commandments of the Lord. In April of that year, 1844, I heard Brother Hyrum Smith, at a special meeting of the Elders, after the close of the conference, and in the presence of several thousand people, say that 'Spiritual Wifery was gotten up by John C. Bennett,' and that 'it is a stench in the nostrils of society.' He pronounced a curse upon it in the name of Jesus Christ and the Holy Priesthood, and called on all 'the Elders of Israel' to say amen to the curse. There are a number of men living who can testify to this occurrence."

This, added to his testimony as found in Autumn Leaves for July, proves of value in making up a correct estimate of the Seer's teachings just prior to his death, and also as to the teachings of his brother Hyrum.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Silas J. Madden of Neel, Dundy county, Nebraska, wrote June 10th, as follows:

"The work is steadily gaining favor in the eves of the people. Although poor in this world's goods, we are rich in the knowledge of the work of God."

RECENTLY we made a ten days' trip to Wheeler's Grove and Henderson, aided in dedicating the Saints' new chapel at the former place, held seven services there in connection with elders E. C. Briggs, Henry Kemp and H. N. Hansen, having large and most attentive congregations. There will be a reunion at the Grove, commencing August 31st and holding over two Sundays. The grounds for it are good, and the surroundings excellent. A large and most interesting meeting is looked for. Due announcement for it will be made in the HERALD by the committee in charge. All should attend who can, and seek faithfully to aid it on to success.

On Friday, the 7th inst., Bro. Henry Kemp and the writer began a series of evening meetings near Henderson, Mills county, and had full congregations. On Saturday district conference convened and passed off pleasantly, though few from abroad attended owing to heavy and much needed rains. On Sunday we held four services; the Lord blessed the efforts made, and the packed, overflowing congregations paid the best of attention, many for the first time hearing the doctrine of Christ as taught by the Saints. Two heads of families were baptized, others expressed a determination to be at a future time; Brn. Amazon and Thomas W. Hougas were ordained priests, and altogether the season was a happy and prosperous one.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS. THE TEACHER.

In our issue for April 12th we republished an editorial from the pen of President Joseph Smith, written in 1871, on the duties of the "Deacon," and promised that others on the respective duties of Teachers, Priests and Elders would also appear. Other matter has crowded them out, but we again make the attempt. The duties of the "Teacher" are set forth in this issue; the others will follow as opportunity permits.

TEACHERS are numerous throughout the world. In the churches they specially abound. What may be taught, depends upon the peculiar province and calling of the teacher. There are teachere of philosophy, simple and profound; teachers of medicine—medicine for ills, mental, moral and physical; teachers of law, natural, human and divine; teachers of art, and teachers of science. Any man who teaches may be called a teacher; but it is not every man who teaches that holds the office of a teacher.

The teacher, as a church officer, being especially an outgrowth, or a necessary sequence of the introduction of the gospel in the last days, it will be very natural to expect that the church articles of organization should contain something by which the duties pertaining to that office are defined

"Now there were in the church certain prophets and teachers."—Acts 13:1.

"And God hath set some in the church, . . . thirdly teachers." "Are all teachers?"—I Cor. 12: 28, 29.

"And he gave some apostles; . . . and some pastors and teachers."—Eph. 4:11.

"And it came to pass that I, Nephi, did consecrate Jacob and Joseph that they should be priests and teachers over the land of my people."

—Book of Mormon, 2 Nephi, chapter 4, par. 5, third European Edition.

"And it came to pass that King Mosiah granted unto Alma, that he might establish churches throughout all the land of Zarahemla; and gave him power to ordain priests and teachers over every church." . . "Therefore they did assemble themselves together in different bodies, being called churches; every church having their priests and their teachers."—Book of Mormon, Book of Mosiah, chapter 11, par. 12.

"And, behold, you are they who are ordained of me to ordain priests and teachers to declare my gospel."—Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 16, par 5.

It is not proper to suppose that any office instituted of God for the establishment, or the government of his church, was intended to be a sinecure—an office existing in name only,—the man holding it an honorary appendage to the church body politic. If there be such an office, it certainly does not come within the province of an incumbent of the teacher's place.

His duties differing from the duties of a deacon, and still so closely allied to them that he may require the deacon as an assistant. The teacher is made the constable of the church, the arm of public service, to secure by personal supervision of the Saints the performance of their public duties.

We quote from sec. 17, par. 11; and as this quotation will be frequently referred to, both in this article and others that may follow in this series, and may possibly be used by those who take exception to the positions taken by us, we shall quote it entire.

"The teacher's duty is to watch over the church always, and be with and strengthen them, and see that there is no iniquity in the church, neither hardness with each other; neither lying, backbiting, nor evil speaking; and see that the church meet together often, and also see that all the members do their duty, and he is to take the lead of meetings in the absence of the elder or priest, and is to be assisted always, in all his duties in the church, by the deacons, if occasion requires; but neither teachers nor deacons have authority to baptize, administer the sacrament, or lay on hands; they are, however, to warn, expound, exhort and teach, and invite all to come to Christ."

It is not difficult to draw a conclusion as to what the general duty of a teacher is; but so much is left unwritten that there are not many who feel themselves fully or even fairly competent to define what are the duties, or give a list of those duties specifically the prerogative, or right, or privilege of that particular church officer.

It is the duty of a teacher "to watch over the church always."

This watching over the church is one of the special prerogatives of this officer; but the manner of his watching is not clearly indicated.

We are of the opinion that this clause, fairly construed, means this: He is to know personally every member of the church unto which he is made a standing minister. He is to become acquainted with their general walk and conversation; to know whether they are careless, indifferent, ignorant or wilful in not attending the meetings of the church, if they neglect to attend. He is to be a pacificator between brethren and sisters who have become estranged by offences, or otherwise, and who are unreconciled. He is to be the medium through whom wise counsels may prevail, when members grow angry and say harsh things of each other publicly. He is to allay fears, dispel doubts, encourage, cheer and comfort any whom he finds drooping and doubtful in spirit. He is to arrest the course of the liar by careful reproof, and a teaching of the excellencies of truth; to stop by instant rebuke the tongue of the backbiter and the slanderer; to refuse to listen, except as a mediator, to any scandalous charge against any one, and not then, except the person complaining has attempted reconciliation and been refused a hearing by the aggrieving member. He is to protect and defend the character of all who are absent when they are assailed in his presence.

The teacher is to see that "the church meet together often," and also, that "all the members do their duty."

By this clause the teacher is made the active, vigilant, assembling officer; the one through whom official notice of meetings is circulated; the one to whom especially belongs the outside duty of gathering the flock, and through whose instrumentality the warning voice of the council is heard by refractory members. He is made the officer to serve "citations to trial" and "summons to attend as witnesses." He should attend the sittings of the councils to serve as a messenger to execute the will of the council away from the assembly room. He should, if possible, attend the sitting of the elders' conferences to prepare himself for all his duties.

The teacher is to "take the lead of meetings in the absence of the elder or priest."

This clause has been one of those which has given occasion for misapprehension, and discussion.

The fact that the teacher is given authority by this declaration to take the lead of meetings; the fact that par. 22, sec. 83, Doc. & Cov., provides that teachers should be appointed to watch over the church, to be "standing ministers to the church;" the fact that King Mosiah granted Alma authority to "establish churches," and to "ordain" teachers over them; the fact that Nephi did "consecrate" "teachers over the land" of the people; the fact that God "gave teachers" to the church; the fact that God hath "set" teachers in the church, and the fact that there were "teachers" in the church, as before cited, are all evidences that teachers may preside over churches, watch over and teach them, care for them, counsel them, rebuke them, reprove them, cherish them, strengthen them, comfort them, and build them up.

By par. 25, sec. 17, the teacher's duty includes carrying the reports of names and other items from the churches to the Elder's Conferences.

By par. 9, sec. 39, teachers are to "labor" with their hands.

By par. 5, sec. 42, teachers are to "teach," "observe the covenants and church articles to do them," and are to be directed in their teachings by the "Spirit" given unto them by the "prayer of faith."

Par. 5, sec. 83, declares the necessity of teachers.

Par. 37, sec. 85, provides for the appointment of a "teacher" in what we believe to be a school of the prophets; but this teacher is not the official teacher of the church, for in par. 43 he is called "president or teacher."

In par. 31, sec. 105, there is provision made for a president, or presiding officer "over those who are of the office of teacher;" and par. 39, of same sec. specifies how many teachers may be presided over by a presiding teacher; this number is twenty-four. He may therefore preside over twenty-four of the same grade of office as himself, in council, in directing, controlling, guiding, and assisting them in their deliberations.

From what we have now written on this subject, after as careful research of the law as we have been able to make, we are prepared to assert the foregoing as the duties of the teacher. We are further prepared to say that we think the duties of the office of teacher have been much neglected; and that men have been ordained elders who had more capacity for, and would have made able and wise teachers. Men who have not been able to be actively engaged as field laborers, and who would have been very efficient as teachers in caring for the flock, have refused to act as teachers, under the mistaken notion that their priesthood would suffer indignity by so doing, that it was hardly commensurate with the calling of an elder to perform the necessary duties of a teacher.

We are still further of the opinion that there are good men who hold the office of teacher who have been hindered from performing the duties of their office, because of the unwise and uncalled for opposition of elders, who, over jealous of the dignity with which they were invested as holding the superior priesthood, have unduly repulsed them as teachers, and denied them the privilege of magnifying their call-

Whatever act may be necessary to be done, whatever duties wisdom and the Spirit point out as adapted to enhancing the good of the cause, not specially assigned to other officers, or not forbidden to the teacher, may be done by him, and are within the role of his duties.

"Let every man learn his duty," has long been and is a trite saying in the church. We now urge the adoption of one equally as excellent and as true, Let every man do his duty.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE elders living in and near Lamoni are busy Sundays preaching the word of life "in the regions round about," and they report having large and attentive congregations, with growing interest, at all points. A goodly number have been added to the church in this district during the past year, and prospects for future additions are excellent. Some of the hindrances and obstacles in the way of progress in the past few years are passing away, or steadily diminishing, and the outlook is most promising.

Bro. John Barnes writes us from Excelsior, Iowa, affirming his faith in and knowledge of the latter day work. He is confident the elders can find fair opportunities to preach the word in that place and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney and Josephine Gray of Farnsworth, Sanborn county, Dakota, wrote, June 11th, asking when an elder will preach in McCook or Minor counties, Dakota. They are are anxious to hear the gospel preached, and desire to obey it. They "live on the line of Sanborn and Beadle counties, twenty miles south-east from Huron and twelve miles due south of Cavour." They would also welcome an elder at their home. They have created an interest among their neighbors in behalf of the faith. They neighbors in behalf of the faith. wish to learn who the Saints are at Salem, McCook county, and when they will hold preaching services again. Will those in charge of Dakota please give them the desired information?

Bro. G. W. Payne of Manassa, Colorado, writes in a thankful spirit, expressing his satisfaction with the truth and light found in the Reorganization. They have a small branch, a Sunday School, and some are investigating.

The issue of The Saints' Harmony has been delayed on account of our failure to receive a shipment of paper from Chicago. Be patient and the book will appear just as soon as possible.

A member formerly from Stuart, Nebraska, writes from Ellensburg, Kittitass county, Washington Territory, and asks that an elder may call and preach there, as there are a few members in that place. It is believed a branch could be organized Sr. Susannah Burguoine of St. Joseph, Missouri, accompanied by Bro. L. Niedorp, brought the remains of her husband here Tuesday, the 18th inst., and buried them in Rose Hill Cemetery. Kind friends in St. Joseph and Lamoni aided generously in assisting Sr. Burguoine in the sadly affectionate duty of burying her dead. An obituary will appear in the HERALD ere long.

Bro. James Whitehead of Alton, Illinois, at one time the private secretary of the Seer Joseph Smith, called at this office the 19th instant, and is now staying with the Saints here for a season. He is hearty and happy spirited, full of faith and zeal in the Lord's marvelous work, and is never more joyful and animated than when recounting his experiences and associations with the "choice seer," whose memory seems most precious to him. His opportunities for knowing the personal conduct and private character of the seer during the last years of his life were equal, probably, to those of any others; and his confidence in his calling and ministerial work is without question.

The "Blue Grass League of Southwestern Iowa," by its secretary, has placed on our desk its pamphlet published at Creston, Iowa, the 1st instant. It contains about forty pages, including a neat map of Iowa and territory adjacent, and gives a detailed statement of the superior claims of "The Blue Grass Region of South-western Iowa," as a grass, stock, grain, fruit and dairying country, setting forth its natural advantages in respect to fuel, good water, stone, health, proximity to rapidly developing cities and good markets. those seeking homes in the west it is very valuable, and to all interested it is most encouraging.

ADDRESSES.

Mothers' Kome Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Shine, light of God! make broad thy scope To all who sin and suffer; more And better than we dare to hope With heaven's compassion make our longings poor!"

ETHICAL PRINCIPLES IN FAMILY GOVERNMENT.

BY REV. FRANK H. PALMER.

It is said that all successful inventions are copies of nature's processes, or imitations of what has been done on a larger scale by the Author of nature. The idea of the steam engine was in operation everywhere, and had been throughout the ages, at the time when Watt seized upon it for the particular service of man. Heating houses by the circulation of hot water is simply a reproduction of the plan whereby the continents are warmed by such ocean currents as the Gulf Stream. All the contrivances by which light is manipulated, and objects, near or remote, magnified or brought into focus, are but so many imitations of the processes which are unceasingly carried on in the wonderful mechanism of the human eye.

It is equally true that correct principles in the sphere of intellect, or of morals, will be discovered by observing God's methods. Would we know how to govern our children? God is our Father, and is all-wise. Study His ways of dealing with His children, Grasp the great principles of His government, and the best results will follow their application in the narrower sphere of family life. It will form character in the child, and teach him that life is arranged upon a plan, and has a purpose. It will relieve many a parent's requirements of his children from the charge or suspicion of arbitrariness.

From his earliest infancy the child should be dealt with as a rational and responsible being. There is that in him which will respond to such treatment, or on the other hand, which will respond to such treatment, or on the other hand, which will resent arbitrary dealings. Take, for illustration, the matter of punishment inflicted for wrong doing. It is a sad fact that a large number of parents punish their children in a way which destroys the whole moral effect of the proceeding, and often leaves indelibly injurious results. Now the ethical principle to be applied in punishment is that the penalty of the wrong doing should be the natural outcome of the deed itself, and the child should be made to understand that this is so. God has written certain laws upon nature. If they are violated, certain painful results follow. This is his method of punishing the transgressors. Thus He teaches men the nature of things, and illustrates the value and necessity of obedience. If we thrust our hand into the fire, it is burned. If we deprive ourselves of food, we are hungry. If we over-eat, our digestion is disturbed, and our comfort and health are interfered with. These are the natural results of our wrong acts. By observing them we are educated and trained to the perception of the order and moral significance of nature. Were it otherwise, we should be wofully confused and misled.

Now the principle may be almost always perceived and applied in the punishment of our chil-

John T. Davis. 42 Lakefield Road, Llanelly, Carmarthenshire, Wales, Great Britain.
E. C. Brand, No. 712, Q st., Atchison, Kansas.
E. C. Briggs, Shenandoah, Iowa.
C. R. Duncan, Box 70, Blue Rapids, Marshall Co., Kan.
J. H. Lake, Kirtland, Lake co., Ohio.
Willard J. Smith, Box 153, Buchanan, Mich.

dren. For example, my little boy, three years old, behaves himself very rudely in the parlor on a given occasion when we have company. He must be punished. What shall be his punishment? Practically many parents would answer the question by an application of the slipper; others would coax him to be good with a stick of candy: others would deprive him of his supper, or give him only bread and water in place of the good things anticipated on "company night." I "speak that I do know, and testify that I have seen." Such are the meaningless punishments inflicted to their hurt, in a majority of cases, on the rebellious and ill behaved little free agents in our homes. But what does our principle require? Why, it demands that I take my rude little threeyear-old, calmly but firmly, out of the room, and explain to him, in a few words, that the penalty of ungentlemanliness is simply separation from the society of ladies and gentleman. As he has shown himself rude and unmannerly, he must not expected to stay with papa and mamma and the rest, for they are gentleman and ladies. He will have to stay by himself now, until he has thoroughly learned to behave as he knows he should.

Does some one say that this is a very slight punishment? Oh, no! it is exactly the reverse. The sensitive mind and heart of the child feel it instantly as a real punishment, and the little boy has learned a lesson that will have its effect upon his character throughout his whole life. Does some one else say that the result will be a series of kicks and howls that will break up the party and disgrace the house? Well, better so than to mislead and confuse the forming mind of the little boy by dealing with him on arbitrary and false principles. But, after an experience or two, he will learn the fruitlessness of such demonstrations, if you are inexorable. And inexorableness is another ethical principle which must be embodied in family government, or moral confusion will reign supreme. A weak yielding to cries, or entreaties, or exhibitions of temper, merely to avoid "a scene" before company, has been the beginning of the complete moral ruin of many a child. Nature's penalties are first reasonable, and then inexorable. Ours must be the same.

Another illustration may be found in the common incident of a child's refusing to eat his good, wholesome oatmeal, or bread and butter, at a given meal, because he has been denied some other article of food which is on the table for the older people. Why should we box his ears, or send him into a dark room, or take away his playthings, for such an offense? Let the mother quietly remove the oatmeal or bread and butter, leaving him only milk for that meal, explaining to him that a refusal to eat what is set before him will always mean that he must go hungry until the next meal. It will not take a bright child long to learn the part of wisdom and of right under such reasonable training as that.

The same principle can be applied in relation to things dangerous, such as stairs, scissors needles, and fires. A wise mother of my acquaintance has never forcibly restrained her children from falling, by gates at the head of the stairway; or from cutting and pricking themselves, by keeping the work-basket, with its contents, out of reach; or from burning, by screens and fenders around the fire. Her little children play safely, and without concern on her part, in the hall and the sewing-room, or by the open fireplace in papa's study. Her confidence in them is never abused. How has it been accomplished? They have been carefully taught what would be the natural result of playing with dangerous things. Their first experience of needles and scissors was a gentle prick inflicted by the mother's hand, just hard enough to make them understand, and accompanied by an explanation given in vivid language easily comprehended by the infantile mind. The danger of falling down sairs was illustrated by an object lesson in tumbling from the lower step, accompanied by an explanation as before. A contact of the hand with the stove, when the fire had just been kindled and was not hot enough really to burn the fingers, furnished the experimental knowledge of the laws of heat. Again, a cheap ornament, broken in the handling, with a careful explanation that its beauty is gone forever, and that it must now be thrown away, affords an impressive illustration of the consequences of meddling with the pretty things on bracket or table. The result is a remarkably well-behaved and easily managed set of children, agreeable at home and a wonder to many relatives when they go away on a visit.

It is not always easy to see at once just what is the right punishment in a given case. Of course common sense must be employed in the applicatio of the principle. But ordinarily it is not hard to apply it; and that it is labor that pays, and effort directed along the right line, is proved by a number of shining examples known to the writer, where the entire family government has been conducted upon this plan.—Sel.

Would it not be well for fathers and mothers who may be in doubt as to the correctness of the principles upon which their family government is based, to try this methot? At least it is a very reasonable one, and if it should not prove to be all they hoped for, it yet has this one feature in its favor, which most strongly commends it. The model is perfect.—Ed.

PRAYER UNION.

MEMORY TEXTS FOR JULY.

1st Thursday: 1 Cor. 9: 13, 14.

2d Thursday: Eph. 6: 13-18.

3d Thursday: John 4: 37, 38.

4th Thursday: Zec. 2: 10-13.

Bear in mind that the Inspired Translation is used in our selections. I trust the Union will excuse delay for this month.

ELEANOR.

SPECIAL REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Sr. M. A. Christy requests your prayers, that her husband may be led to obey the gospel.

*. An aged sister in an eastern branch of the church desires your prayers, that God will soften the hearts of her own family, who now embitter her life by their opposition to the faith.

Note:—It has by some been deemed womanlike and shame-faced to withhold the names when asking for your prayers; but we beg that none of you will feel in this way. It is better to give the name, when possible, but when the giving of the name will only add to the persecution and perplexity of the one sending it, then in our opinion it is better that the name be withheld. Many circumstances may concur to render those who most need your prayers, unwilling to make their names public. Do not be weary in well doing, for God will hear and answer your prayers. You hold in your hands a mighty lever for good, and the angels are keeping watch and ward over you, and if you faint not by the way, the results will astonish the world; yes, even the church, by and by.

Bro. and Sr. Coop, of Downs, Kansas, request your prayers in behalf of their son David, who is very sick.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

and the second s
Sr. Ella C. Westland, Denver, Colo$		25
Sr. Margaret Hirst, Keokuk, Iowa	1	00
Sr. Mary White, Lima, Mo		50
Bro. J. S Lawton, Independence, Mo	1	50
Sr. Elma J. Fay, Quincy, Mich		4.5
A. Sister, M. R., Lamoni Iowa		25
Sr. Emily R. Daley Grizzly Fats, Cal	1	00
Sr. Nellie Niedorp, St. Joseph, Mo	1	25
Sr. Flora B. Ervin, Limerick, O		50
Sr. Carrie M. Shafer, Warren, O	I	00
Sr. Eleanor Snyder, Harlan, Iowa		59
Little Hopes, Woodford's, Cal		35
Sr. Grete Anderson, Weston, Iowa	I	00
Sr. H. Loveland, Belleville, Wis	I	00
Sr. J. S. Julian, San Francisco, Cal	_2	75
Sr. Ann Lewis, Stuart, Iowa	. 1	00
Sr. May Butterworth, Charter Oak, Iowa	I	00
Sr. Bettie Jett, Dillon, Colo		00
LAMONI, Town June 20th

Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa.

A SIMPLE and effectual way to get rid of mosquitoes is to put a teaspoonful of Dalmatian insect powder into some sort of receptacle, touch a match to it, and let it smolder. People who can not sit on their verandas in the evening on account of these little pests, will be glad to try the remedy, which is equally efficacious against flies and other insects.

TEMPLE, Mo., June 7th.

Dear Saints of the Home Column:-I esteem it a duty as well as a pleasure to say a few words in tavor of the cause I love so well. I have just been reading the signs of Christ's Second Coming, and can but exclaim: Will all who have taken upon us the name of Christ have oil in our lamps! Dear sisters, it is my hourly thought, will we live so as not to bring reproach on his cause? God grant we may! My heart is in this work, for I know it is the work of God; and as we enjoy each other's society now when we meet, will it not be grand when we are one unbroken family. You who have been discouraged and heart broken, as I have been, go to God in prayer and he will comfort you. I love to read your letters and how often my heart has been cheered by them. Pray for my companion that he may be one of the fold with us, for without him in the church my heart is sad. My family of children all belong to the church, and God grant they may walk in the light as they are in it. I would say to those wishing to locate in Missouri they could make their home with us while looking for a place. We came from Kingsley, Plymouth county, Iowa. We now live in Vernon county, Missouri. Temple post-office is our address. We had Bro. and Sr. E. Curtis with us a few days, and enjoyed their society very much. Bro. Curtes preached a few days and we trust did good. We think he will baptize some in the near future. He made many friends for the cause and they desire his return. There are three families of Saints in a radius of nine miles; but we try to meet every Sunday. Bro. Black from Rich Hill preaches every other Sunday, and sometimes Bro.

Burt from Independence preaches to us. We have our little Sunday School. Bro. H. E. Goff is our superintendent. We will try to keep the stone rolling. Your sister in Christ,

NANCY GOODMAN.

June 7th.

Dear Sisters:-I do not live where I can meet with the Saints without going about thirty miles. I have been in the church two years and can truly say I love this work; each day the way seems plainer. As I read the church papers I feel that I could not do enough for this work, for I am so thankful that I am permitted to be numbered with the Saints of God. I have many trials and temptations, but the dear Lord has shown me the way to conquer all sin. "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation," were the words of our Savior. Let us do all we can for our Master to day, for we know not but this may be our last. How my heart is pained for those who know not the comfort of religion. Pray for me, that I may be faithful and meet you all on that bright and happy shore. What grand rejoicing there will be when we shall meet there where partings come not. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion I remain your ELLA L. RANDALL. sister.

DELOIT, Iowa, June 10th.

Dear Sister Walker:—This is my first attempt to write to the Herald. My faith in the latter day work is strong and I have received many testimonies and know that it is true. Our district conference convenes next Friday and holds over Saturday and Sunday at Dow City. We have prayer and testimony meetings at eleven o'clock and Sunday School at half past two with preaching at early candle light and good attendence at church. Mother and I both belong to the church and we desire to press on in the good cause, and hope to remain faithful unto the end.

Your sister,

CLARA J. RICHARDSON.

Dow CITY, Iowa, June.

Dear Sisters:—I have often thought of writing before, but have never done so. I love to read all the church papers and I think there can not another paper be found as good as the Autumn Leaves for the young to read. They are both instructive and encouraging. I can truly say I have been strengthened and encouraged by reading them.

The sisters of this place have their regular Thursday afternoon prayer meetings, and they surely enjoy these meetings, and the Spirit of God has been in their midst and blessed them. There are those that have felt too weak to bear their testimonies at the other meetings, but have risen and borne their testimonies at these and have been greatly blessed, as I believe all will if they do their duty.

I often wonder what joy and peace those who do not try to serve God, and have not obeyed the truth, can have? They surely do not know the danger they are in, and that they are living in darkness. Oh, what comfort can they have if they are not trying to do what is right! How can they remain in darkness when the light is shining so bright and within reach of every one? I have many dear friends and relatives who have not a knowledge of the truth of the gospel or have not obeyed it yet, that I would like to see brought into the church. I ask you to join with me in praying for them, that they may turn from the evils of the world and obey the truth.

Dear sisters, I ask you to remember me in your prayers, that I may know what is best for me to do, and that I may do the will of my heavenly Father, for I desire to please Him. I feel my weakness in trying to do my duty, but I believe that God will hear and answer our prayers if we ask in faith and do not ask for things we should not. I desire to live in such a way and manner that I may not bring reproach upon the name I bear, but may be an example to those I am associated with.

Your sister in Christ,

B. E. B.

Correspondence.

QUEENSFERRY, Victoria, Aus.

Dear Herald: -Since Bro. Wight and I parted, which was about four months ago, I have been laboring alone, and no one excepting those who have had some experience in this direction can realize the hardships, trial and disappointments with which one comes in contact. My labors were principally in new fields, and the gospel seemed something quite new and strange to the people. Barraport was the first opening, where I remained thirty-eight days, speaking as often as I could get the people together. The country was not very thickly settled so I obtained a horse and made four new openings, speaking several times at each of them. The people became very excited and sent for the head minister to come and lecture against the Mormons, as they were pleased to call our people; and he came with the same lot of trash that is generally presented by those who are despisers of those that are good. But notwithstanding all the false stories and scandalous yarns the truth prevailed, and the honest were made to rejoice while the wicked raged.

This was my first opportunity of defending Joseph the prophet, and like Paul, with much trembling did I do my best, assisted by the Lord, to set forth the words of eternal truth before those who were desirous of gaining an entrance into the paradise of God. You can hardly imagine the feeling that overwhelmed me when I arrived at the school where I was to answer the Mormon-eater, and saw the people crowding around, with not a Saint to be seen. All was perfect silence while I was speaking, and when I had finished there was a clapping of hands and stamping of of feet, showing their approval of what I had said.

I rode about five hundred miles on horse-back, spoke twenty-one times, baptized two, and left a fine feeling among the people, with several investigating.

Coming to Hastings I found things moving slowly along, and leaving them I went to Boneo where I had spoken twice before with great opposition. This time all was quiet and I was treated with the greatest of kindness and respect. I had the use of the church for eight evenings and was cared for by the people without costing me a penny. I disposed of a number of tracts, four copies of the Voices of Warning, and three Book's of Mormon's showing that the people were very much interested, and they said that a place would be arranged whenever I could come that way. I left there and went to Geelong where I spoke several times in open air, and some few times in private houses. From there I came here to conference which convened May 4th and 5th. The truth seems to have quite an effect upon the people; but they seem somewhat afraid to accept it at once. Time will tell the tale, and the honest will be gathered home.

Praying for Zion's welfare, I am yours for truth, C. A. BUTTERWORTH.

Brownville, Neb., June 19th.

Bro. Blair:—Bro. Wells and I have been here for a week holding meetings, first two were in the Christian church. But some of their members objected and we had the key turned on us. Two other doors were opened to us, the Baptist church and the Opera House. We chose the latter. Meetings are very poorly attended, and from a human standpoint, everything works to discourage. And yet there is hope that some little good may be accomplished. More and more do the evidences prove that those who carry the message of life should not only be patient, but wise servants, feeding the people upon the sincere milk of the word.

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

PALOUSE, W. T., June 12th.

Dear Herald:-We are living (so far as we know) hundreds of miles from any branch of the church, and and are therefore shut out from the happy privilege of meeting with the brothers and sisters of like precious faith. But we hope in time to have a branch established near us so that we can meet together and have our spiritual sprength renewed. We are always ready to throw aside all other reading matter for the Herald, yet we appreciate all the church publications. We have two brothers, most dear to us, laboring for the cause, (Columbus and Leonard Scott), and we look forward with joy to the time when we again shall be permitted to meet them face to face and be strengthened by hearing words of salvation uttered by their once familiar

We attend the Christian Sunday School and meetings sometimes, and we are tired of seeing "a form of godliness." We are not satisfied with such a lack of the genuine Spirit.

My husband is a believer in the doctrine of A. Campbell, yet I believe he would look favorably upon the doctrine of the Latter Day Saints if he could hear our elders preach.

Your sister,

LIZZIE FISHER.

HETLAND, Dak., June 13th.

Dear Herald:—Bro. R. A. Oehring and myself came to this place yesterday. We intend to lift the gospel standard and hope to find at least a few who will "fall in" at the sound of the gospel trumpet. We intend to stay here about a week, then shall most likely go over into Sanborn county. Any who are interested in this latter day work in Dakota are requested to write to Bro. R. A. Oehring, Arlington, Dakota, reporting prospects. We desire to labor where the most good can be done. This work is rolling on. May God cause the honest in heart to come out of Babylon. In bonds,

E. DAY BENNETT.

LEE'S SUMMIT, Mo., June 9th.

Bro. Blair:-I am living just thirteen miles south-east of Independence, Missouri, in Jackson county, at Lee's Summit. I came here with my family two years ago and found that there were none of the Saints living here, and O, how lonely we have been! Yet at times we were comforted by the whispering of the Spirit to be careful and act wisely, and there would be in the Father's own time and in his own way a branch of his people here; and to this end are we laboring and living. Nor has the heeding of those injunctions been in vain, for we have had the pleasure of baptizing one into the kingdom of God here, and also have been instrumental in helping to locate Bro. and Sr. Layton of Nova Scotia here, and we think to their advantage.

This is a beautiful little city, located in the finest farming country we have ever seen, so we are now more content in the thought to be patient in the exercise of faith, having a confidence in the works of faith; and not from beholding the end from the beginning and during the intervening period. If we have not been cheered by the gifts, we have been made to rejoice in the fruits of the Spirit, which seem to the writer to be the greatest attainment of man in this life. For under the influence of the fruits of God's Spirit, O, how gladsome our hearts have been made and our minds enlightened and we made to love our family and our religion! And also such blessed liberty in presenting the terms of reconciliation to our fellow-men that we are led to thank God for the light of this latter day work which testifies that Jesus is the Christ. I have filled regular appointments at Holden, where there are about forty Saints, and we have learned to love them and love to labor with them in Zion's cause-for I love the work of God and have confidence in its final triumph.

WILL KELLEY.

GALIEN, Mich , June 11th.

Editors Saints' Herald:-I feel thankful to be able to say that since the General Conference my health has greatly improped in accordance with promises indited in the ministrations of the elders of the church at that time and previously, and as a consequence my hope of usefulness to the good cause is greatly revived and brightened. The outlook for the cause we so love is also more encouraging as time gives opportunity for renewed efforts in its interests. Some matters of a gloomy character that clouded the pathway of some in this part of the moral vineyard, have changed their complexion. A better spirit is manifested by those concerned, and we think an adjustment of the difficulties will be reached without the loss of any. All such results gladden the hearts of all true Saints, and inspire us with greater zeal and more fervent hope touching the progress of the work.

At the conclusion of the conference I visited briefly with relatives and friends at Lamoni and Davis City while so near those places, having the privilege of trying to preach twice at the former place; large audiences attending, and good attention given, all received us cordially, and our stay, a pleasant one, was appreciated.

Arriving at home April 19th I found a warm interest in the work at Galien and vicinity, largely due to the efforts of Brn. W. J. Smith and L. Scott, the latter having kept the campfire blazing while we were at the conference, resulting in the addition of eight to the branch by baptism, all heads of families, Bro. Leonard officiating.

I entered the field April 25th, laboring in vicinities adjacent to the Coldwater branch, where the interest is good and on the increase; and per force of circumstances visited the Clear Lake branch. I found a number of those not in the church desiring to hear, and a deep interest to investigate apparent. The Lord was with us while at Clear Lake, signally manifesting his goodness and wisdom in regard to several matters relating to the work there, all tending to improve the condition of the work.

On the afternoon of the 19th of May I had the pleasure of leading two precious souls into the waters of baptism at Clear Lake—Bro. and Sr. Story—both of excellent report. Many not of the church were present, and were melted to tears while witnessing the obedience of the humble two to the divine mandate.

The brief visit of Brn. Bond, Sheehy, Evans and Smith did us all good. Wish they could stay with us all the time. How the work might move if we had about three or four to one of the present number of laborers in this and other missions! But alas! the laborers are few.

As we hear the call for more laborers pealing forth from all directions, and we try to realize the worth of souls in their relation to eternal salvation, will we all unitedly pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth more laborers? Do you hear the sad mournings of the thousands who err in spirit, because of the prevalence of erroneous doctrines? and who would joyfully welcome in the gospel restored and declared as in former times? And just now while the hour is so propitious for the accomplishment of so much good, and the prospect so bright for the ingathering of precious sheaves, will more of the laborers now in the field be requested to retire from the field in order to labor for the bread that perishes for the using? Perchance this question will come to the souls of the church with more telling force in the near future than now. I wish all the Saints could see the fatherly tears of the Bishop of the church as they course down his face, as by the divine unction he pleads in behalf of the work. But if such a deep sense of duty rests in the hearts of some now, what of the day when it may be our robes will appear crimsoned with the blood of souls, and we, like Esau, will find regretful tears of no avail? Ah! now is the time to act, the time for the church to leave the laborers without excuse. Now the opportunity presents itself: Will it be improved? or will we wait for others who come after us to arise and do the work required of us? Will their oil then light our lamps? No! Let us work while the day lasts.

The work is committed to us during this "hour," and let us so improve the opportunity that our Lord will gladden our hearts by the "light of his countenance."

Pardon this digression in a letter of this character, but it is really astonishing to know how many are looking in favor toward the work, and we should not slacken our efforts, now that labor diligently bestowed will be crowned with such splendid results as seems apparent.

Our late conference held at Galien, June 8th and 9th, was quite largely attended, notwithstanding the weather was unpropitious, being rainy, and the fact that a large proportion of the Saints of the district are farmers. The various meetings were characterized by earnestness, unity and a healthy feeling known only among the Saints. Our officers, as before, were continued. The preaching, in the main, was good and cheering; reports encouraging. One was baptiztized, a lady seventy-one years of age, three children were blessed, forty-two testimonies borne during the sacrament service, and after a brief, spiritual exhortation by Bishop Blakeslee, forty persons responded to the call for temporal aid for the work, the various sums amounting to thirty-six dollars and five cents, and all present felt better than before the conference, and I believe all felt a renewed determination to do more than in the past for the success and progress of the kingdom of the Master in this district.

We feel encouraged to go on, and hope the determination to do more may abide with us all, and that the Lord's guidance will abide with us and all his people.

Truly,

C. Scott.

TAWAS CITY, Mich, June 17th.

Bro. Blair:—Our Conference is just over. We had a grand time All felt it was good to be there. Five elders, nine priests, and about one hundred and fifty members were present. The Saints of Tawas branch have commenced to erect a church; we had it inclosed so as to hold confereence in in it. Two boat-loads of Saints came across the bay from Bay Port to the conference. They came in sail boats, and they had fair wind coming, and the morning of the 17th when they wanted to go home, the wind turned and blew up briskly, and gave them fair wind to return.

Our meetings were grand. Business passed off without a jar—no contention—all was peace and harmony. We all feel to rejoice and press onward.

Your brother,

J. J. CORNISH.

HOLDEN, Missouri, June 15th.

Bro. Blair: - Since conference I have labored to the best of my ability, preaching in Cass, Bates, Vernon and Johnson counties. In Vernon county I baptized three, two promising little girls who belong to Bro. and Sr. Keck, the other one is Adam Keck, Bro. Keck's brother. He is a young man of promise who had just graduated in the Nevada school and has full faith in the work and desires to help roll it on. No doubt he will make his mark for good in the work. After preaching here at Oak Grove for a week I left many interested who seem anxious that I should return in the near future. From here I went in connection with several of the brethren and sisters north-west of Nevada, six miles, to Bro. H. E. Goff's neighborhood. Here I found some warmhearted Saints and friends who greeted us kindly and made us feel welcome. Bro. Goff's and Sr. Jordan's families are all the Saints that live in this neighborhood; the former from California, the latter from Iowa. Sr. Henning and her husband live some eight miles south-west of here. This is a new place where there has been but very little preaching done.

I preached here nearly a week, having good liberty and some of the time more people than the house would hold, to hear. Some very urgently requested us to come again. I think some will obey shortly; the brethren here have organized a Sunday School and hold regular meetings.

From here I filled appointments near home, thence came to Holden to day week, and commenced meetings, Bro. J. H. Wells assisting me over last Sunday, and preaching. On my arrival here I learned that one old man by the name of Cox had been here and preached for the Saints once and offered his services for the future, telling the Saints that he was an elder in the Reorganized Church. This is untrue. I personally know him and assisted in expelling him from the church some twelve years ago, while living in the Central Missouri district. I therefore warn all Saints to beware of him for he holds no fellowship with us whatever.

Since coming here I had the pleasure of baptiving two on last Monday, both heads of families; one S. E. White, a brother of A. and I. N. White. He is a school teacher by profession, and if faithful to his covenant I had the assurance by the Spirit while confirming him that his voice shall be heard in defence of the truth. The other was Josie B. Watson. This sister has ranked very prominently as a consistent member among her sectarian friends, and I felt assured that she will be of great assistance to the Branch here.

From here I shall go to Rich Hill. I feel well in the work and am determined by God's help to number my days in the gospel, for I have unmistakable evidence of the truthfulness of this work, therefore I have no hesitancy in recommending it to others, as I know it will do them good, whoever they may be. In bonds,

EMSLEY CURTIS.

BLENHEIM, Ont., June 16th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—We had an excellent conference—the best for some time. In fact, I never attended a better one. The Spirit of God was present, the Saints were admonished to live faithful, and we were also told that greater trials awaited them in the future.

Yours in the faith, RICHARD COBURN.

EUREKA, Kans., June 9th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:-I have wished many times to write to the Herald, but did not know what to write till of late. I am not a member of your church, but hope to be, for I know it is the true church, for the Lord has told me so. The Bible says, in the book of James: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him." I prayed and asked God to show me a vision if the Latter Day Saints' was the right church. I dated the time I asked him, October 3d, and three days before the next October 3d, I saw an open vision. "Draw nigh to the Lord and he will draw nigh to you." Pray for me, that I may not be led astray by false doc-Yours, trine.

Nora Cato.

Birdseye, Ind., June 9th.

Dear Herald:—The work in the Southern Indiana district is at present in better condition than it has been for some time. Our elders being five in number can not respond to the calls for preaching.

I attended the discussion between Bro. V. D. Baggerly and Mr. Terry of the Christian Church. Mr. Terry failed to establish anything for the Christian Church. He asserted that Bro. Bag-gerly tried to "move Christ from the head of the church and put Joe Smith on in his place," which he failed to prove. I attended church about two miles from here, Elders Mortison and Berry of the Brighamite Church conducting the services, Elder Mortison being the speaker. His remarks were upon the second chapter of Daniel. They were attacked by Rev. Reed Wright of the Disciples. Mr. Wright has had the opportunity to attack us upon the same subject, but failed to do so. Mr. Wright and Elder Mortison will have a discussion at some future date. They were asked by Mr. Wright the difference between them and the Reorganization. The reply was that it was principally upon the authority, but they knew they had it.

Yours in Christ,

Alma C. Barmore.

DURANGO, Texas, June 12th.

Brn Smith and Blair:-I was baptized October 25th, 1885, by Bro. I. N. Roberts and confirmed by Elders Heman C. Smith and H. L. Thompson. Though in my unworthiness, I can testify from what I saw before obedience, and all sectarian principles were removed. Since then I have been blessed with a portion of God's Spirit in vision. I know this is the work of God. We have had sickness in our family, but I can not dispute the saying of James, "Is any sick among you," &c. There seemed to be faith among us, and the sick were raised. I was much distressed before I was baptized, even while I was associated with the sects. But He has brought me out of them to see the truth in Christ, and sectarian tradition was swept away. I turned from uncertainty and doubt to the truth of the gospel and entered in at the door. Since that time I have been blessed, and also had much distress, and in my weakness try to contend for the faith once delivered to the Saints.

We are shut out of the church houses in this place. The doctrine has much opposition. My wife and daughter are members of the church. I have other children to be brought up and trained. Pray for us, for the wandering ones, and the smaller ones, that if it is in harmony with God's will we may overcome, and by the blessing of God's Spirit by obedience be saved in the kingdom. Pray for me. E. BATES.

BEAVER, Pennsylvania, June 16th.

Bro. Blair:-I have often been prompted by the Spirit to give my testimony of this latter day work and since I have been in this latter day work I have learned and experienced in the short space of three or four years more than in all my previous life. I would not at this time exchange what I now know for the diploma of the worldly wise. Ofttimes I have had my prayers answered and while suffering and uneasy have had the hands of an unseen personage laid on my head and have been relieved of pain in answer to prayer, and also under Bro. Brown's hands have been relieved of pain and have heard a voice up above me, speaking to me, saying, "The time has come that the wicked will be recompensed upon their own heads." I even have been thrown headlong by the enemy and the Lord filled me with His Spirit and said through me, "Get thee hence, Satan." Praise the Lord, O my soul, praise the Lord all his Saints! And more; the Spirit said through Bro. Brown, "Lord let him live that he maybe a joy to many people." Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all my posterity after me!

I ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints everywhere that I may prove faithful and be able by the help of the Lord to fulfill the end that I was created for. God bless all His people is my prayer.

W. W. Hodge.

NEODESHA, Kansas, June 16th.

To the Brn. and Sisters: - have been reading the Herald and I can feel that the testimony borne through it is true. I have not been a Saint very long. I was very badly prejudiced against the church for I thought they were all Brighamites, but I married a good but meek believer of the true gospel and he showed me by his own manner of living and by quiet reasoning and our united prayers for more light that he was right, and I could not but accept sound reason, for I was not satisfied with the hollow form of religion that I tried to think was right before I joined the Saints. And now, thank God, I do not have to doubt, but I am so anxious to show my friends the truth, and I have been working with the Baptists a good deal, as there are no other Saints here but my husband and myself.

There are a great many honest christians here that are trying to get a rest of faith and a surer knowledge of the work, but I fear lest not being started on the right track they will become discouraged and give up; and so I know that God must do a mighty work here if they come to a knowledge of the truth; for some are persecuting the truth with all the vim they can command. I want to ask the prayers of the Saints for the people that are really seeking truth in our town, and one in particular, who is searching very deeply.

IDA T. DAVIS.

COPLESTON, Ont., June.

Bro. D. Dancer:—We have made two new openings in our vicinity this spring. We have had all the School-houses closed against us, but the Orange men have given us their hall free of charge, and a Mr. Haywood has seated his orchard for us to hold meetings in, so the officers of our branch are kept busy on Sunday, and we believe we shall gather some fruit for our labor. Yours in gospel bonds,

GEORGE HAMPSHIRE.

WILBRA, Ore., June 8th.

Editors Herald:-Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make a few remarks, being a sheep bleating around the fold. I am in a land where I have not heard the gospel preached since I came. Have heard the Saints preach several times in Iowa and was convinced of the truth set forth by them, and still turned a deaf ear to all this, and never felt I could lay down my sins all in a bundle and ask the Almighty to forgive them until now. And what is a poor soul to do in this country where there is not a Latter Day Saint within three hundred miles, and there is not a church of Saints in eastern Oregon? I have been in this country for five years and never saw a member. God only knows how glad I would be to even see one of his people. I feel as if I would like to get a good look at some of those old gray bearded Saints I used to hear speak at Little Soux, Harrison county, Iowa. I would be ready to pass beyond that river from whence no traveler returns after having been baptized by them. I want it understood that there is one soul in eastern Oregon who will most gladly confess his sins before high heaven and return with outstretched arms to our Lord and Savior.

We have all kinds of sectarian isms: and oh. God, why can't we have a Latter Day Saints' Church! Is it because we are so wicked here or have so transgressed that the Lord has nothing for us? or is it neglect of the church to send some good brother out here to preach to us? There is not a Latter Day Saints' Church in Oregon that we can find. If there was some of the elders sent out here the work would be rewarded with at least twenty or thirty converts in this locality alone.

I was requested to send for the Voice of Warning, and did so; and can say that that little book has been the means of converting more souls than all the isms in this country.

Please send me one copy of the Saints' Herald to Erskineville, Sherman county, and oblige yours Dr. S. Walters. very respectfully, INDEPENDENCE, Mo., June 17th.

Bro. W. W. Blair: -- I leave for my field of labor the 30th, to reach Boston, Massachusetts, by the 4th of July, and reach Maine the following Saturday, if the Lord is willing. I am feeling quite well again, thank God. gain, thank ood.
Yours in the one faith,
J. C. Foss.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE PLAN OF SALVATION.

Dear Herald:-I have read in your last issue the article, "The Witness of the Spirit," of which I have to say that it is nearer to my idea of the plan of salvation than anything that has yet come under my notice. The only fault that I can find is, that Bro. Stafford does not go far enough in illustrating the answer of God, to the question put forth by Adam.

If I may be permitted for a moment to take up the line of argument put forth by the brother where God says, "For by the water ye keep the commandment [body baptized by the ordinance of being buried in the water, arising out of it a new being in the sight of God]; by the Spirit ye are justified [by being naturalized to God through the ordinance of laying on of hands]; and by the blood ye are sanctified [through the ordinance of the sacrament, which we partake of from time to time, to be kept sacred or holy]. And now, behold I say unto you, This is the plan of salvation unto all men."

Now according to Paul in Hebrews sixth he conveys the idea that in order for the Saints to go on to perfection they should not lay again the ordinances of baptisms. Therefore the two ordinances, viz., "water" and the "spirit," are no longer needed to perfect the new man of God. But John says to the "elect lady," "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth!

not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son." Is Paul then wrong? No, for he has not said we shall not abide in the ordinance of the sacrament, he in truth has not connected it with the first principles of the gospel of Christ; but he has left it free for a living principle to perfect the Saints; therefore it is the abiding doctrine in which we have "both the Father and the Son."

Brethren, would it be just to say that when we arise out of the watery grave we are now "justified." Again, would it be just to say when we are adopted by the Spirit, by the laying on of hands that we are now "sanctified?" The writer says no, impressively so. For God says, "by the blood ye are sanctified."

I pray that the Saints of God may investigate the ordinance of blood which has been so prominent and important in the gospel of Christ before and after "the meridian of time;" that they may not fall back to the line with their Gentile brethren whom they appear to be so desirous to teach. Let us, brethren, be not so desirous to teach others till we ourselves stand on the line of perfection. In order to do that we must be obedient to "the testimony of the Lord," for that "is sure, making wise the simple." Yours for the truth,

COURTLAND, Ill., June 3d, 1889.

Louis STRACK.

REASONINGS ON THE BIBLE.

IS THE BIBLE TRUE?

This is the age of learning and discovery, and the advancement of science is such, it is said, as never was known since men began to live upon the earth. It is assumed that all science must be true, for have not the wise and learned men so declared? And their knowledge of this world and how it has been formed is such that they have concluded that Moses was not wise, and that in writing the book of Genesis he knew but little of the book of nature as it is now known and as men now read it. It is also assumed that because they have been able to read that book they can tell of its origin; and although many of their theories and suppositions seem most reasonable and likely to be true, it has ofttimes been found, on investigation, that they had no foundation in facts.

A brick was found in the bed of the Nile so deep that on reasoning on the deposits the Nile makes each year, this brick if made where found must have been made some thirty thousand years ago; but just as this story was getting interesting it was discoverd that it had been made by the Romans. Some say that life apparently sprang out of the dust and developed to a worm which wiggled around for a while, died, and in time came forth in the form of a beautiful butterfly; and so started the theory of evolution, which is beautiful in story yet never has been proven in fact. For as far as men do know or have learned, like begets like; this is so true in nature, in all and every living thing, in man, beast or plant, that the least variation therefrom is looked upon as a great curiosity and betimes is shown around as a living wonder; and yet on just such silly stories and theories have men thrown aside the bible as an old book of fables.

One of the most formidable stories set up in opposition to the truth of the Bible is the geological story, and men-honesthearted believers in it and God-have found it so unanswerable that they have had to make an apology for that book and say that it does not mean what it says, or can not be taken as it reads, but must needs be explained to suit this wonderful story. It is assumed that this story has been found to be so true that he would be a bold fellow who would dare to upset its facts, more especially when it is known that these facts are sustained by men of much learning. And it must be admitted that if that theory is indeed true, the apology for the Bible will do us little good, but like the story of the brick found in the bed of the Nile, it will not stand investigation; and many of its best advocates have never been able to produce a single fact in its support. It is one thing to sit in a fine room and spin an imaginary story or travel at leisure over the hills and glens and pick up here and there this or that thing to support that imagination, and it is another to disprove facts as they are in nature where all, even a simple coal digger, can read without deception.

The geologists say that coal was formed from peat, and peat was formed from wood; that there grew great forests which decayed and fell and were submerged in a lake and this was changed to peat beds as we now find them. But what of the peat beds that have been formed on the hills. and those beds also higher than the surrounding lands? How were they sub-But let us take a few peats, especially of the black kind and build a fire with them and we will have a warm glowing heat-as warm as if it were lignite coal. Now go to the lake and fish out an old water logged tree, dry that and try how much heat it will give out and we will have a lesson of practical experience that few geologists will care to try.

Wood has been found in the earth and water in all shapes and conditions, but where is he who will say he has ever found wood that was changed into peat? And yet if it will so change in the mass in a forest, would it not also so change in a few trees under like conditions? Peat is found most abundantly in northern countries; so to accomodate the theory of peat from wood we are told that the earth has changed her position; that is, what is now the tropics was once the poles, and what is now the poles was once the trop-Others, thinking that would not do, say the earth was once all under a great tropical heat and all vegetation grew to a great size; even ferns were thirty feet in length, as we are told they are now found in coal.

Now there is a circulation of water in all coals more or less, as there is also in the rocks and soapstones; and those beautiful fern-like pictures are found alike in the coal rocks and soapstones, and are simply water tracings, like the pictures made on the windows on a frosty morning. It is said that the fire-clays under the coals were the soils the forest stood upon, but that heat and pressure changed it into fire-cly. Now if we take a lump of soil and press it through a brick machine we have pressed brick, and if we put it into the kiln and subjected it to great heat we have baked earth, yet much like unto what it was in the original. Fire-clay treated in the same way produces the same results. Geologists say that the clay seams in coal came there after the coal was formed, some say from the roof above. Yet, search as we would we have never been able to find the least proof of this theory. Others say that it was forced up from beneath, but here again there is no evidence; and so onward when we weigh it in the balance it is found wanting, as whoever may choose to investigate for the sake of truth may easily find.

It is good to read the book of nature for therein we learn many useful lessons; but to read a book is one thing and to tell of its origin is another. So it is with the book of nature; men may suppose and conjecture, but God alone can declare the beginning and the end.

Henry Ward Beecher, Robert Ingersoll, Tyndal, Darwin and others may each write a book; and although we may not agree with or believe all they write, yet we will give them all credit for meaning just what they did write, and to be thus understood. Then why not use the Bible in the same way and let men and their foolish so-called mysteries explain themselves? For it is them and not God who have made the Bible a great mystery. And yet what have all their explanations done to upset the truths of the Bible? For if we are to choose between their reasonings and the Bible, it is yet the best understood, as they have never yet been able to prove their claims to be true; and until they are able so to prove, the Bible will remain a book of truth; so far at least as we have it correctly translated.

THE STORY OF CREATION.

This story begins with the book of Genesis, first chapter and verse. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." What do we understand by the word "God?" The sectarian churches say that "God is the one living, true and everlasting; without body, parts or passions." What can that be? Can the mind conceive of a thing that has not body, parts or passions? Nay, this is a good description of nothing; and such a God would not be as good as the god of the heathen, for they can see theirs with their natural eyes; but the God of the Christians who here is described can not be seen with the eyes of the mind or otherwise. So that we need not wonder that believers in such a god deny revelation; for such a god never could give a revelation nor can any of the gifts or blessings of the gospel be expected. The god of the philosophers is much better for he is a being who out of himself finds no limits. His duration is unlimited; his power is unlimited; his every attribute and perfection unlimited. They think there is none greater and that he himself can not be greater by the addition of any quality or attribute which he does not already possess. They can think of him as a being for he is a being. Can distinguish him in thought from other beings and things; from the created worlds, from Gabriel, from Satan, for he is distinct. They can conceive of him, therefore, as a definite, personal existence; possessing intellect, sensi-bilities and will. This is the god of reason, and much agrees with the God of revelation, and from such a God much can be expected, so that we need not be afraid to believe his word nor investigate his works, and can let the unbelievers scoff and scorn or laugh in derision, for they simply laugh at their own foolishness, and can injure none but themselves.

Third verse, "And God said, Let there be light: and there was light." Then the first thing they wanted was light, and here we learn that even God needs light to work. But how came this light, and what is darkness? Simply the absence of light. When the sun has set in the west and darkness comes, the good wife of the house says, Let there be light, and there is light. How? Why, she takes a match, gives it a rub and lo, a beautiful light appears. She applies it to the lamp wick and she has light. What a wonder, what a mystery. Yet so easily obtained. Why? Because she had all the things needful to make light. So it must have been with God; all that was needed was a combination of that which makes light, and there was light.

"And God called the light Day, and the darkness Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day."

Much has been said about this day. Learned men say it never was a day of twenty-four hours as we now know it; nay, it was a period of time lasting away into millions of years. Bible believers have said it was a thousand years, reasoning that a thousand years with us is as a day with God. This idea has been in their minds because they believed that all things grew, and in no other way could they see them by the coal story. But we find the words plainly written that the light was called day and the darkness night; and that they were divided, and that all this was included in the evening and the morning, and called the first day of what? Why, of the earth's creation. Then we all know what a day is. We also know that birth is one thing and growth is another. The housewife had light in a moment. Why, because it did not grow. it was born. So then was the light of God's creation. Had the housewife to wait till any of the materials grew? No. Then neither did God. He simply gave command and light was there. Thus, then, it was with all of God's creations, as we now see. They were simply born into existence:—they grew afterwards.

"And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear; and it was so." Another birth; born of the waters.

The religious men have said that the world was made out of nothing in the space of six days, and all very good. Can we conceive how something can be made of nothing? Nay, out of nothing, nothing can come. This alike confounds the christian and the infidel, and has led men to believe there must have been a great First Cause, and that that is God. "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear."

Then peat was not made from forest trees and ferns, and don't we see this truth made manifest to all every day we live? The plants and trees stand firm, rooted in the soil; yet it is known that the greater part of their substance comes from the atmosphere; more especially is this so with the canes and plants of the sorgo family, which grow and remain green through long seasons of drouth. We eat food to sustain our bodies, yet the most essential part of our sustenance comes from the air. Men have been know to do without food for forty days and live. How long could we live by simply breathing? Who ever sees the air?

"And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so."

Much dispute has been had about this among the wise men; for here, to them, is the beginning of natural creation, when things began to grow upon the earth. And how could such things as grass, herbs and fruit trees grow without the sun? And yet the sun was not made! Is it not rather to be understood that the earth was fitted and prepared, and power was given unto it that it would give birth unto and bring those things forth when all was set in order as God had designed? Next we have the creation of the sun and moon and how they were to rule the day and night; then we find in verse twenty, "And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life, and the fowls that may fly above the earth in the open firmament of heaven." Then the waters were also prepared and received power to bring forth, but we may take note here that as yet there was nothing to live in them; for it is after power was given that the creation of the living creatures was begun. "So God made man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." Now there are a few things that men have understood as little as this form of the spiritual creation of man in the image of God. Their ideas have been so vague and indistinct that they have no conception of men except in a natural state. If we take a lump of earth and throw it into the water it is soon no longer a lump, but is dissolved into small atoms all through the water, as we find it in a muddy stream. This, then, is the idea men have of their spirits dissolved in small atoms; having life but no form. And such is the idea that many have of God. To conceive of an intelligence without a body is hard to be understood; but it is just as hard to conceive of life without a form. Nay, spirit hath form and doth the body make.

We may never have seen God, but we have seen man; and since man was made in the image of God, it is not a hard matter to tell what like that image will be; for is it not written, "We shall be like him" when he comes? Grass, herbs, fruit trees, whale, fish, fowl, cows, sheep, horses—all that is distinct from mother earth have form; and it is because of this and by shape that we are able to distinguish from other things and tell what a thing is.

Gen. 2:1: "Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them." What do we understand by host? A great multitude. Where were they? On the earth? Nay; take the book just as it reads, "and every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew; for the Lord God had not caused it to rain on the earth and there was not a man to till the ground." Now, if it had not yet rained on the earth since the dry land appeared, how could anything grow thereon? If we plant seed in the earth in a dry time we know that it will not grow till rain comes; and if there was not a man to till the ground, where was the host? Why, in heaven; in spirit form.—Inspired Translation. Gen. 2:6: "And I, the Lord God, had created all the the children of men, and not yet a man to till the ground, for in heaven created I them, and there was not yet flesh upon the earth, neither in the water, neither in the air."

Men have been so blinded by the philosophy of the materialists that they look at all things as they are seen in nature with the natural eye, and think there is no other way of seeing, and nothing else that can be seen. It is but a few years ago since three men made the attempt to ascend in a baloon just to see how high they could get away from the earth. They got up about six miles and a quarter when they lost all power to move with the cold. Two could do nothing and the third had only presence of mind to draw the valve with his teeth. Thus there is a limit to which mortals can go, and beyond, all is supposition and conjecture. Men have learned that there is no such thing in nature as a vacuum. They say it is over ninety-one millions of miles to the sun, and more or less to the other worlds of our universe; and to accomodate nature they have filled all the distance between with an imaginary something called ether. When a man dies his body is dissolved into atoms which float around in the air. So is his spirit supposed to be in this ether; but it is a fact worth notice that this dissolution is not a scattering of the atoms, for the searchers of the Indian mounds discovered that the bodies of the Indians, long since dead, so far preserved their identity that the searchers could easily find the bodies by the attractive power they possessed. Now, if dead matter can so long hold its own, why not the real life, the spirit, also possess its form? But where shall it dwell if there is nothing in space but ether, and where is heaven? But if we must have theory let us also theorize. Let us take an apple with a stem, and let us imagine, if we can, this apple to be the earth on which we live, the stem the upper part, as the earth in its proper position, spinning round like a boy's top, and that great light the sun is to light it as it turns around, which it is said to do once every twenty four hours. God's throne is the center of all creation: from the earth to there is up, or above the earth; away from God's throne is down or beneath; the earth is as yet a dark object throwing a great shadow beneath. Above all is lighted up with the light of God's presence, and here in this light are worlds in spirit form with all things spiritual; each and all in order as it has pleased God to set them. There are the grasses, plants, herbs, shrubs and trees in all their beauty; there dwell the spirits of those yet to come. there is paradise, the abode of those spirits who have dwelt in righteousness while on the earth. They lived yonder in the dwellings of angels and those who have been resurrected, and so onward and upwards all the way to God's throne everything is lovely, all is peace and joy and is in harmony with their surroundings. where we look or turn we see nothing but scenery of enchanting beauty so delightful that tongue can not tell or describe the wonders of those spirit worlds.

Underneath the earth we behold a far different scene, for there in the darkness of the shadow dwells the devil and his angels. Why there? Because it is the only place he can dwell and be hid from the presence of God and yet be in connection with the earth so that he can go to and fro thereon.

On the sides in the darkness of the gloom is the pit and prison of the disobedient, who can see the abodes of the blessed but can not go there, and who can also see and learn of the awful state of the devil and his angels. This is not given for a true picture, but if it is not much more in accord with the wisdom of God and what has been revealed than the theory of ether, reasoning beings may so judge for themselves. And if anyone should be curious to know what the devils do in hell for pastime, just go to one of those traveling circuses, see the antics of the play actors within the ring and taste of the influence that is in such places and they will know all about it.

To believers in the revelations of God through Joseph the Seer, we find the following in the D. & C., page 235: "All kingdoms have a law given: and there are many kingdoms; for there is no space in the which there is no kingdom; and there is no kingdom in which there is no space, either a greater or a lesser kingdom. And unto every kingdom is given a law; and unto every law there are certain bounds also and conditions."

This destroys the ether theory, for there is known among men the mineral, vegetable and animal kingdoms and they all have space and law and bounds. So then, reason tells as well as revelation, that it must be so through out all God's creations.

"These are the generations of the heavens and the earth when they were created, in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens."

The generations herein mentioned was the race of mankind, which were to come on the earth as begotten in their family and age. They were each and all to come to the earth and receive a body in the day and age of their time appointed as God willed. And it has pleased God to show them unto those of his servants who have had faith in him to see beyond the veil so that all who believe may know of their existence. Enoch saw and beheld them and all that would befall the families of the earth down to the last generation. We also learn from the Book of Ether, page 507, Book of Mormon, "And when the Lord had said these words he shewed unto the brother of Jared all the inhabitants of the earth which had been, and also that would be, and he withheld them not from his sight even unto the ends of the The first Nephi also saw and beearth." held and did prophecy many things, some of which have yet to come to pass. is also much testimony of men and women who have left their bodies and knew they were out of their bodies; for they so saw and understood that they did leave their bodies and go in spirit with a spirit guide to the spirit land, and there saw and knew the spirits of those of their friends and loved ones who had died. So that it is known without a doubt that the spirit of man had a pre-existence and has an existence after death, and also has life in a sphere of action as real as life is with us here.

"And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." The Inspired Translation adds, "the first flesh upon the earth and the first man also." It is admitted at once that the body of man is made of the dust of the earth; but that he was the first of all flesh upon the earth, who will so admit? Yet here it is on record, and who can prove it otherwise, for is not this the beginning of a new creation wherein there is a breathing into the nostrils the breath of life? Then the first body formed lived by the breath of life from God and so became a living soul. Now this is just in the order of natural things. This is so in all things, else why should like beget like, and how could we say, He looks so like his father, just like his mother or some other relative? The spirit from God comes at birth and inherits all transmitted propensities whether they are good or evil, so that this is a fact that all should earnestly consider. Pure thoughts can be transmitted. Thus, then, life began in flesh in the form of a man, in the image of God his Father. "And out of the ground made the Lord God every tree that was planted in the sight of man, and man could behold it and it became also a living soul; for it was spiritual in the day that I created it."

The origin of life is the grand mystery of the materialists, for search as they may how it begins, they have never been able to explain, though they have had many theories and conjectures, for they have found that the protoplasm or seed germs are all alike in man, beast or plant; and all their searching with their most powerful lenses reveals nothing more, and the wonder is how can each seed grow after its kind? Simply that because that in all seeds that will grow there is a miniature spirit form; that is, the acorn contains a miniature oak, rootlets, trunk and branches; and the mature tree is simply a full expansion of the same, and the reason why naturalists have been so mystified is because this miniature spirit form can not be seen by a natural eye, but God's revelations explain, and reason admits, that such a thing must be, else in what other way could tree or plant grow after their kind?

"And out of the ground the Lord God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air. And they were also living souls, for I, God, breathed into them the breath of life." Thus, then, all life originated with God as it is written, "all things were made by him and without him was not anything made that was made;" and power was given to all the things of life to beget their kind. Such is the simple story of Creation as Moses has recorded as the Lord revealed it unto him.

It is true there are few who give Moses this credit as they claim that he, being taught in the learning of the Egyptians, simply took and wrote his books as he had learned in accord with Egyptian mythology. Such is the stubborn mind of unbelief; anything rather than believe in a revelation from God; but to the simple seeker after truth the story of creation is indeed a revelation most wonderful, and those who do not so believe, their denials will never destroy God's truths, and a denial without proof can not be accepted. Last of all, most wonderfully mysterious, the woman was made of a rib from the man. The man said she was bone of his bone, flesh of his flesh. WILLIAM CAIRNS.

To be continued.

Selections.

NO MODERN MIRACLES.

REV. A. C. WILLIAMS CALLS DIVINE HEALING A DELUSION.

AT a meeting of the Ministerial Union last week, Rev. A. C. Williams was appointed to investigate the subject of faithhealing and the methods and results of the Rev. John Dowie who is attracting such large crowds at the Temperance Temple. The Ministerial Union met again yesterday afternoon in the Congregational Church, on Hill street, and Dr. Williams read the result of his investigations and reflections to the assembled pastors. Considerable discussion followed, and some opposition was made to the publication of the paper. The ministers of the city are divided on the question of faith-healing, but the majority are unbelievers in the doctrine as applied by the exponent at the Temperance hall.

The following is Dr. Williams' address in full:

DIVINE HEALING A DELUSION.

The question I am about to discuss is Divine Healing, technically so-called. The need of this discussion at this time is obvious. A company of persons have opened what they call a Mission, where the sick are healed by miracle. They claim to base the doctrine and practice upon the word of God, very adroitly advertising their theories by an appeal to the religious feelings, singing hymns, offering prayers, reading the word and administering the Holy Supper. I do not say that these particular individuals are intentional deceivers. I do affirm that no better means could be used to deceive. As we might expect, very many good people, some of whom are intelligent, but the majority afflicted and ignorant, have been led astray by this false and dangerous doctrine.

It behooves all ministers to speak boldly against this delusion, state the principles which it violates, and set forth in their true light the facts and assumption on which its claims are based.

The doctrine of faith healing is: First, all disease, physical sickness, is from the devil and not a necessary result of violating natural law; second, that God is ready and willing to miraculously heal and keep in perfect health, through the whole of our earthly life, all who trust him for healing; third, that all men may die as one falling asleep, without disease or pain.

The proof of this is not based on the cures effected (though they are wonderfully well advertised), but upon the promises of God.

What have we to say of these claims? Is Satan the author of disease? Disease has its cause when not supernaturally visited upon men in the violation of natural law, either by neglect, accident or intention. As man is not perfect, frequent violations of natural law are inevitable. In every case such violation must be followed by inconvenience, pain or sickness. In a life of trial, a probationary state, these evils have their uses, are diciplinary school masters, giving us a sense of the majesty and value of law, preparing us for moral struggles, quickening our sympathies, knowledge and growth. Character and moral fineness depend upon afflictions which begin with all in physical pain.

If man had perfect knowledge, perfect wisdom and perfect moral character and lived in a perfect world suited to such a character, he doubtless would escape disease. But if any of these are lacking, unless kept miraculously, he must suffer disease.

The assumption that Satan is the author of sickness finds no support in reason or Scripture. The consequences involved in such an assumption are absurd. Does Satan control the laws and forces of the physical world? Woe be to man if he does. Reason and Scripture declare that all of nature's laws are from God. They are the expressions of God's will. Doing his bidding. "In him we live, move and have our being." "The heavens declare His glory." "Day unto day uttereth speech." He sends the rain, snow, frost, bloom or decay in leaf or flower, life or death in the body of man belong to the same on-going process of plan and purpose in the physical realm. Satan is a limited finite being with no power not granted by the Lord of heaven and earth.

When Satan is called the prince of the power of the air he is not called the prince of the air, but of powers like himself, whose habitations are supposed to be in the upper regions of space. When we say the birds of the air, we do not mean the birds have control of the air. Satan lives by permission now in the realm of nature, and is finally to be cast down to a place prepared for him and his kind. A devil begged the poor privilege of entering the swine, and could do so only at the word of Christ. When Satan afflicted Job to test his fidelity he did it by permission.

Are we asked how about denomiacal possessions? This may be noted: The mind of man is not in the realm of physical law. It may yield to good or bad spirits. God may permit those who are subjects of Satan's kingdom to be oppressed of the devil-mentally oppressed-the evil breaking through in its effect on the nervous system, causing contortions and pain. Just as a human devil may so affect the mind and bring sickness. But this is a very different thing from the doctrine that even a man enjoying the peace of God may in his body be subject to all the power of a malignant devil or that Satan can at will oppress with all manner of disease. To do this he must be lord of physical forces. When man sinned against God in Eden God drove him out of his prepared and favored habitation to a condition of life suited to his moral repair; cursed the ground; doomed him to toil and sorrow. And the very instrument Satan used to deceive was cursed of God. Whatever evil comes from the natural world is the result of the Divine purpose, and the permission of Satan to remain in the domain of human trial is a part of the plan. Satan does not administer to saint and sinner the consequences of broken law. The evils are in God's hands. "Vengeance is Mine," whatsoever a man soweth. He sent pestilence miraculously on Pharaoh and the wicked Egyptians and threatened the Children of Israel that he would afflict them with some evils-sickness, if they disobeved. When David numbered the people he sinned against God, and God gave him his choice either to suffer from famine, war or pestilence. David acted wisely, the scene is very pathetic. chose pestilence; 70,000 men were slain, and the Lord said to the angel of the Lord (not the devil): "It is enough." Now mark the proof that the innocent were afflicted, as all nations suffer for their ruler's sins. David spake unto the Lord, when he saw the angel which smote the people, and said: "Lo I have sinned, and I have done wickedly, but these sheep (innocent people), what have they done? Let Thy hand, I pray Thee, be against my father's house." Here is God afflicting with sickness, and David choosing God's punishment rather than fall into the hands of his

Take the case of the man born blind. The disciples were troubled with this very doctrine, viz.: that Satan is the author of disease and all evil is from him. Hence they asked the question, "Who did sin, this man or his parents?" Christ answered, and his answer sets the whole matter at rest: "Neither bath this man sinned, nor his parents, but that the works of God should be manifest in him."

How absurd to believe that a holy man praying the Lord's prayer in all confidence, "Deliver me from evil or the evil one," will be spiritually delivered while his body is left to writhe in the hands of Satan. Does not an implicit faith in God for all good cover all our need? And to say that the body would be delivered from pain if God's will was done, but for the lack of a miracle working faith it is not, is to ignore the work of God. They that seek the Lord shall not want. In other words this doctrine teaches that 99 100ths of all holy men and women and all innocent children have been, so far as afflicted, the victims of the devil. If their sickness increased it was proof of the increasing power over them of Satan. If they were conscious of an increasing holiness and preparation for death in their souls, in their bodies Satan's power reigns. If they long for death in so doing they long for the full triumph of Satan, and Satan at last bears away his trophy, the body, to corruption. Is this true? It is, if the doctrine of faith healing is true which is taught in this city. Many who embrace this doctrine profess to be entirely sanctified, holy in body and soul. They do not expect to die but "fall asleep." Poison has no effect upon their bodies. No falling stone or assassin's bullet can harm them. Looking through the faggots of the martyrs-the blood-stained arena where heroes died and the flying stones which sent the spirit of Stephen to a crown -we are ready to say that such a doctrine is absurd, dangerous and false; and, further, we can not believe that a man of ordinary intelligence will teach this unless he is a deceiver.

It is further assumed that God does not desire His children to use the remedial agencies which He has provided in nature, but that he will set them all aside and supernaturally heal.

When a man feels the pain of hunger or thirst, our faith healer will relieve with food, like all common mortals; but when he feels the pain coming from exhausted nerves or impoverished blood, he commits a sin to feed the blood or nerves with socalled medicine.

If a tight string should impede the flow of the blood in the arm, our faith healer would-perhaps-say cut the string; but if the fluids of our body are clogged by a cold or congestion, you sin to let them loose by the usual remedies. Use a miracle. If an insect crept into your ear, you may kill it; but if a fever germ gets into your body, though millions have been killed by well known remedies, a believer in divine healing would sin a sin which would.

unrepented of, damn his soul if he uses less than a miracle.

If a faith healer himself, as in the case of Dr. Dowie (recorded by himself) slips on the pavement and knocks his arm out of its socket, tearing the ligaments and causing great "agony" (I use his words), It is perfectly legitimate to call a doctor, as he did, send his wife out of the room, lie down on the floor, have the doctor place his foot on his prostrate body and bull the arm back in true scientific manner, he testifying that it came back to its place with a "snap." But the same healer's doctrine is that it is a sin to use a remedy as arnica or bandage of hot cloth when you can have a miracle at your command, on the ground that Christ bore our sickness. These are some of the absurd things taught under the name of religion. One is inclined to ask, Do we live in the nineteenth century or in the dark ages? How do they succeed in blinding men with this nonsense?

By a monstrous perversion of the Scriptures, wresting them from their meaning, taking a passage like this, "I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." The assumption slipped in is that to preserve the body blameless is to preserve it without sickness. If sickness is from the devil and the body could consent to its power it would be to blame. The body of a martyr in the flames or fangs of a wild beast was blameless. Blame is a moral defection. The arm mortifying from a wound is as blameless as a leaf decaying at the root of your apple tree and from the same law. The passage is to be applied to the man as a unit.

Or this Scripture, "Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." Then we are asked gravely, "Is there any sickness in heaven?" Therefore there should be none on earth, for God's will is unchangeable, same on earth as it is in heaven. I prick that bubble thus: Is there marriage in heaven? No. The book says not. Is it God's will there should be on earth? Are there tears in heaven? No. The book says they are all wiped away. Is it God's will there should be on earth? Yes, for Jesus wept. Weep with those that weep. [This has been the one central argument of our good Doctor confounding the general good will with the special unchanged circumstances]. They pervert the meaning and purpose of the miracles of the New Testament. The Bible everywhere teaches the one specific object of miracles. They were to convince men of the authority of the messenger. They were not so much to reveal doctrine and only incidentally to restore health, but to give credence to the messenger as one sent from God. "Ye believe in God, believe in me." Believe me for the very work's sake. That ye may know that the son of man hath power to forgive sin, I say unto the sick, "Arise, take up thy bed and walk."

They were sign wonders, always the strange work of God. Their value consists in this: they were out of the usual order of God's methods, to show that there was a Being above nature having power over it. The moment they came under the divine order of nature they lose their power as evidence. What evidential value would there be in healing a sick man by a touch if there was no natural order-if done as naturally as to move the hand? When Paul wrought a miracle at Lystra they deified him, offering sactifices. He rebuked them and called them to note the regular laws of nature as proof of the Living God -a God superior to the gods they worshiped. Their gods professed to heal his God. The Living God gave rain and fruitful seasons. If it be said that men need the evidence now of God's power and love we point to the completed canonthe Word providentially preserved. The rich man in hell wanted to continue miracles on the earth. He was told that if his brethren would not believe even Moses and the prophets, a miracle would be use-

I hold that if God would authenticate or seal a messenger to-day with the power of working miracles, then his teaching and words are of God in the same sense and for the same purpose as John's or Paul's. Moreover, the miracles of the Bible are not confined to healing. The dead were raised, water turned into wine, bread and fish and money created. These miracles were done in open day, instantly, at a touch

They were not confined to a few classes of diseases—principally internal or nervous troubles-which every intelligent person knows are largly subject to the will of the patient, and are as successfully treated by the avowed enemies of Christ, according to the number applying, as the most successful faith healer.

Let the miracles of Christ be duplicated; let a dead man be raised; let a lost limb be restored, an empty socket filled with an eye. Blindness from the loss of an eye is just as great a misfortune, and as surely from the devil, as from a weak optic nerve.

Christ put on a servant's ear; restored the decomposing body; healed the maimed, broken bones or lost parts. If God is authenticating Christianity, let no one condemn them for trying to raise the dead, for this they do, as they did in Minneapolis, taking the frozen body of a girl I personally knew and spending nights in prayer over it. I heard Dr. Dowie recommend persons to go to those very dear sisters to get healed-those who lived in that city. All this is consistent with their theory, and nothing can go beyond the faith of such fanaticism.

I come now to some very important Many are helped, if you please, That I cheerfully concede. I here assert that these miracle workers do not surpass others who claim to heal. I name four classes of healers as the most successful without medicines: The regular family doctor with his assurances, bread pills and colored water. He heals a hundred to one healed by faith healers, and his cures are in many cases just as remarkable. Books are filled with them. He knows how he does it and for obvious reasons says little about it to his patients. A second class, as Dr. Murphy, are spiritualists clairvoyant. I despise the whole brood and their work as a whole is evil. But they have remarkable cures. The third is the so-called magnetic doctor. I have no doubt there is a real magnetism, in many cases doing wonders. Of this I do not take account. And fourth, in these latter days, the so-called Christian scientists.

All this will be stoutly denied by all except regular physicians. I am ready to give the proof. Now, a few things are to be noted. First, they all heal the same classes of diseases and fail on the same classes. This is quite suspicious. They all fail on the great majority of cases tried. I came from a city where a number of faith healers met once a week to pray and only two, they doubtful, were helped in my residence of three years. Another fact of special importance: they all work by one common rule, viz.: the powerful action of the patient's own will. This is the secret. When the supreme moment comes to claim the cure no attention must be paid to pain. God says it; arise and go. To doubt is to be damned. All these healers must have this one condition. Give up your will, or use it under the most tremendous strain of excitement.

If four physicians should cure the same class of disease with the same drug, and a fifth physician should always use that drug on the same disease with some additional drug, claiming that the additional drug was the sole remedy we should scorn his claim. This is precisely what faith healers are doing.

It is a common thing for patients and physicians to be mistaken about the causes of pain. Persons have died with consumption whose lungs were found to be perfectly sound. Nervous troubles assume almost every conceivable form of sickness, heart disease, spinal troubles and swelling of joints, and apparent tumors. Doctors sometimes threaten to put on severe blisters to get the effect of fear on the patient. Fear induces disease and confidence cures. I have a notable instance of a General being forced to innoculate the arms of his soldiers with a harmless drug, giving them the assurance of an eminent German physician that it was a preventive. Dr. Buckley, an eminent editor and minister of our church, has studied this subject for 30 years, and gives a multitude of cases of cure by the power of will. He himself has practiced with marked effect this will theory, healing some to prove the correctness of his view, and the absurd claims of faith healers. Many eminent physicians have testified to this. See Dr. Tuke's work, also Carpenter. The grave of Father Matthew was covered with crutches of pilgrims who visited it to be healed. Mormon elders and Catholic priests have practiced this artifice with marked effect, and one case is given where a man went to Brigham Young to get a new leg. Young was equal to the occasion. He told the poor man that his leg could be created and might be of advantage while he lived, but in the resurrection the leg he lost would come up and then he would have to go through eternity with three legs. This was entirely satisfactory.

After all, what will we do with the testimony of scores all about town, healed? Nothing, unfortunately, for most of them. Natures laws will assert their power and leave them with a sad experience. Facts are stubborn. I visited an institution in Iowa filled with the sick. Hundreds healed without medicine by a man unable to read or write, not a Christian.

I saw a wagon load of old crutches, canes, splints, etc., which he called his "trophies." From a poor basket maker he came to own a large property.

Read the June number of the Century for 1866 [1886?]. You will there find an article from one of the most painstaking and responsible writers of our age, exposing this delusion. Do evil effects come from this error or fraud? Yes. Some have died in the excitement of the healing. Hundreds have thought they were healed, and when they suffered again have concluded they were oppressed of the devil, and died in despair. One old man I visited in Minneapolis declared that under the direction of a faith healer he was recovering, and would not talk of death or preparation. He was dead in three days. Another healed of consumption a blessed minister of Christ, testifying in an open meeting, in four weeks he passed away with a shadow upon his soul, as his faith was not sufficient to claim God's promises and he must go to God with the shame if not the sin of yielding to a triumphant devil. A woman of my congregation would persist in saying, "Thy will be done;" for that she failed. How can a man die with peace when he is taught that sickness is sin; that he ought to present a sound body to God, and that he might, if he would trust Christ? If it were not so serious a matter, it might be asked why the devil would ever overreach himself so far as to let the spirit go when he is the author of sickness and death and could retain it in its torments. I have no hesitance in warning all Christian people against this dangerous doctrine. Tried by facts it fails, and, tested by the Word of God, without foundation. This method of cure is practiced in heathen lands with greater effect than here.

To say that God is governing the world by miracle and not by established law; that it is a sin for a Christian to use God's appointed remedial agencies, is to make ourselves ridiculous in the eyes of all intelligent men and injure the cause of God. If God did add fifteen years to the prophet's life, saying nothing of the figs used, he has done greater things than this in the addition of at least fifteen years of life to each generation. Two hundred millions of people in civilized countries and not a lone prophet are benefited in the scientific, the knowledge of how to handle and ward off disease. A faith healer is "kept by the power of God," and to vaccinate against smallpox is to be afflicted by the devil's instrument to save from a greater affliction. It is a cardinal doctrine no remedy must be used. Microbes are made harmless by the blood of Christ, fever germs and the virus of a mad dog can find no lodgment in a body sanctified and "preserved blameless."
This is the basal ground of the teaching.

—Los Angeles (Cal.) Tribune.

EVERLASTING.

A Jewish writer commenting upon Jer. 18, 4: "And I will cause thee to serve thine enemies in the land which thou knowest not; for ye have kindled a fire in mine anger, which shall burn for ever," says the Hebrew words ad olam occur in Scripture in three significations—First, in application to an existence unlimited by time. Thus we have in 2 Samuel 7: 26: "That thy name may be magnified for ever," by saying: "The Lord of Hosts is the God of Israel." The second meaning of ad olam for ever, relates to man's limited existence on earth, (see 1st Samuel 1:22), "That he may sit here for ever." And 2 Sam. 12: 10, David is thus forewarned: "The sword shall never depart from thy house." The word never merely relates to David's lifetime. In the third place, the Hebrew expression ad olam stands distinct from the forenamed two meanings, and relates to a period finite in the prescience of the Almighty, but unlimited according to the knowledge of man .- (See Isaiah 32: 14): "Because the places shall be forsaken, the multitude of the city shall be left; the forts and towers shall be dens for ever." The limitations of the words for ever is shown in the verse immediately following: "Until the Spirit be poured down upon us from on high, and the wilderness be a fruitful field," etc. The destruction decreed to last for ever will, nevertheless, give way to restoration as soon as the Spirit shall descend on us. The term, "It shall burn forever," refers to the third signification; but it can not mean the infinitude of eternity.

The above testimony is given because of its bearing upon the question of the interpretation of the passage in Matthew 25th chapter. These shall go away into eternal punishment. The word in the original means agelasting. It is a long per-iod unknown to man. It can not be absolute endlessness, an idea incomprehensible by man. The Savior professed to be ignorant of a day in the distant future, and who are we to be wiser than He? The idea of a long period like an age is comprehensible and so the Scriptures uses the term agelasting. It is objected that if the punishment is not literally endless, then the reward to the just can not be either, for the same term is used for both. To this it may be replied that the case of the two may agree in time in the sense of the speaker and writer, but not necessarily so. The same term to-morrow is applied to an event which takes but a little while and it can also mean an all day act. An "eternal hill" and the "Eternal God" manifestly do not have the same period of existence. I. CROSSETT.

Chinese Times.

AUTUMN LEAVES,

Published monthly for the Youth of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

Price per year - - - $1.50.
M. Walker, Editor and Publisher.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Conserence Minutes.

LITTLE SIOUX.

Quarterly conference of the Little Sioux district convened at Little Sioux, Iowa, June 7th, J. C. Crabb, president, A. M. Fyrando, secretary. Branch reports: Willow Valley 65, 1 marriage; Logan 56; Sioux City 17; Unionburg 34, 5 removed; Spring Creek 88; Union Center 100, 1 received by certificate of baptism, I marriage; Little Sioux 220, 1 received: Magnolia 164, 1 died; Woodbine not reported; Kingsley disordied; Woodbine not reported; Kingsley disorganized. Sabbath Schools reported: Unionburg, Persia, Magnolia, Logan and Woodbine. Ministerial reports: High Priests: C. Derry, J. C. Crabb; Seventy: G. Montague, H. O. Smith, J. F. McDowell, J. F. Mintun; Elders: J. Seddon, D. Chambers, J. H. Hunt, R. Farmer, J. T. Coffman, A. M. Tyrando, W. Chambers, J. M. Putney, A. Ballantyne, E. Lamphere, E. McEvers, H. Garner, D. Maule; Priests: J. L. Gunsolly. Report of D. Chambers, Bishon's agent: Moneys Report of D. Chambers, Bishop's agent: Moneys received from Dec. 24th, 1888, to Mar. 30th, 1889, $420.03, total cash paid out $425.47, Dr. to D. Chambers, agent, $544. Approved by auditing committee. Two days' meeting appointed: June 29th and 30th at Ammon Fry's grove in Bigler's Grove, J. C. Crabb in charge; July 27th and 28th at Moorhead, Monona county, Iowa, in charge at Moonhead, Monoha county, rowa, in charge of presidency of district; August 24th and 25th at Little Sioux. On motion Jos. Seddon was requested to labor in this district as much as convenient with his other labors. Preaching Friday evening by J. F, McDowell, Saturday evening by C. Derry. Met at 10 a.m. for prayer service; at 11 a. m. J. F. McDowell addressed a very large congregation, and at 2:30 preaching by C. Derry, and at 8 p. m. H. O. Smith address-The large reunion tent was used ed the people. for services, situated in a beautiful park. Meetings were largely attended and the best of feeling prevailed. Adjourned to meet at Persia, 1st Saturday and Sunday in September.

KENT AND ELGIN.

A conference of the above district was held in the Blenheim branch, June 8th and 9th, 1889, convening at 10 o'clock. J. H. Lake was chosen president, and R. Coburn and Samuel Brown clerks. The time till noon was spent in prayer and testimony, during which a hymn was sung in tongues by Bro. J. H. Lake and interpreted by R. C. Evans, and a good time enjoyed. At 2 p. m. the minutes of last session were read and approved. Branch reports:—Zone, 47, 2 received by certificate of baptism. Blenheim, 38, 2 died, 1 marriage. Tilbury, 30, 2 received by letter and I by certificate of baptism. Petrolia, 35, 3 baptized, 3 received by letter, 2 removed by letter, I died. Lindsley 39, 4 names taken off that did not belong to the branch, I expelled and I died. Puce River, 9, members mostly scattered. (This report was received too late to present to the conference.) Bishop's Agent, R. Coburn, reported as follows: Balance on hand last report $69.38; on hand June 7th, 1889, $2621; The above report was examined and found correct by Brn. Blakely, Evans and Strange. Reports: Elders; A. Leverton, (baptized 3, ordained 1 elder), R. C. Evans, E. Carlton, S. Brown, (baptized 5,) G. Green, R. Coburn, N. L. Blakely. Priests, S. W. Tomlinson, J. H. Tyrrell, S. H. Bacon, G. F. Green, J. Taylor; Teacher, G. Hampshire. Resolved that the Ridgetown breach by Academia solved that the Ridgetown branch be declared disorganized, also that the members who wish their letters of removal can get them from the district secretary. A committe was appointed to take into consideration the advisability of the Chatham Saints purchasing a church for sale there; and further, if the Chatham Saints buy it, that the above committe be authorized to solicit aid from the district for them. A committee was appointed to investigate the matter of Bro. Blackemore's silence and ordination, and report to the next conference. Resolved that we reconsider the motion made at last conference in regard to representing the branches at the district conference by delegation. After the matter was thoroughly discussed the motion on delegation was put and carried again. The president of the mission then read a portion of the Book of Rules, also the Saints' Herald for April 28th, 1888, showing the ruling of the church in regard to Elders' Courts, etc. The following motion was adopted: Resolved that we reconsider the motion appointing the district president. Resolved that Bro. Samuel Brown be the president of the district. Preaching by J. H. Lake, W. Strange, A. Leverton and R. C. Evans. A vote of thanks was tendered Bro. A. Leverton for his services as district president, also to the Blenheim Saints for their kindness. Bro. N. L. Blakely was sustained as vice-president. Adjourned to meet at at Chatham, October 15th.

INDEPENDENCE.

Conference met at Holden, Missouri, May 4th, Joseph Luff president pro tem., S. Crum secretary. Branch reports: Independence 658, 6 baptized, 12 received by letter, 3 marriages, 3 removed, 2 died; First Kansas City 38, 1 baptized, 7 received by letter, 4 dropped and reported scattered; Holden 41, 3 baptized; Armstrong 103, 4 baptized, 3 received by letter, 2 removed, 1 expelled, 1 marriage; Rich Hill 67, 48 baptized, 18 recieved by letter, I by vote, loss of 3 by letter, 2 by death, 3 ordained, 3 marriages, present number 62; Low-ery City 41, 1 baptized, 1 marriage; Clinton 24, 40 removed by letter, 3 received, 1 marriage. Elders reports: J. Luff baptized 4, E. Curtis baptized 8, C. StClair, S. Crum, J. C. Christensen, baptized 8, C. Stelair, S. Crum, J. C. Christensen, S. S. Black, I. N. White baptized some, A. White baptized 2, J. A. Robinson. Priests: H. Scareliff, R. May, D. F. Winn baptized 1, D. E. Tucker baptized 1, W. H. Kelley baptized 4. Committee on representation reported: "We, your committee appointed to consider the advisability of adoptions of the committee appointed to consider the advisability of adoptions." ting a system of delegate representation for the district, report as follows: 1st, That we are of the opinion that such a system of representation should be adopted. 2d, That the basis of such representation should be one vote for every six members in a branch or fraction thereof. 3d, That no branch shall be allowed more than ten delegates. 4th, That branches shall be required to select by vote at their last regular business meeting preceding the convening of conference or at the convening of conference or at a special meeting called regularly for the purpose, as many delegates as their members entitle them to, not exceeding the above limit; and the clerk or president of the branch shall certify to their appointment, which certificate shall, when handed to the district conference or the presiding officer thereot, entitle said delegate to voice and vote at said conference. 5th, That branches may instruct their delegates upon any subject which in their judgment will be presented for action. 6th, That the entire vote of any branch may be cast by the number of delegates present from that branch. 7th, In case of disagreement between the delegates from any branch upon any subject to be voted upon, the majority of those present shall cast the entire vote. 8th, That in case a tie shall occur in the vote of any branch delegation, half of the vote shall be cast on each side of the ques-9th, That in all routine business delegates shall vote only in their individual right. 10th, That in selecting branch delegates a majority vote of those present and voting at the meeting held for that purpose shall determine the appointment. 11th, That if a special or called meeting is held in any branch to select delegates to conference, the time and object of said meeting should first be duly announced, that the meeting of the branch may be informed as to the purpose 12th, That all ministers in the Melchisedec line of authority, also priests, teachers and deacons of the district shall be ex-officio members of conference. 13th, That members of the First Presidency or the Twelve shall be considered ex-officio members of conference when present; also general conference appointees, or those laboring in the district under the direction of the missionary in charge. 14th, These recommendations and this system shall go into effect at once and be in effect at our next district conference." Report received and adopted. On motion our next conference will be held at Independence, Mo., September 7th, at 10 a. m. Bishop's agent's report and books from February 28th, 1888, to March 1st, 1889, were audited and found correct as follows: Balance due church March 1st, 1888, $654.94, received since $1,404.93, expended $1,855.10, balance $204.77. Preaching by J. A. Robinson and J. Luff. Adjourned.

SOUTH-EAST ILLINOIS.

Conference convened at Brush Creek branch, June 8th, and was called to order by G. H. Hilliard, who presided until the arrival of J. W. Gillen. Branch Reports: Brush Creek 143, 3 baptized, I died. Tunnel Hill 75, I expelled. Springerton 56, I baptized, I died. North Fork II. Parrish 30, 2 removed. Dry Fork returned for correction. Elders Report:—T. P. Green, I. A. Morris, J. F. Thomas, H. Walker, I. M. Smith and G. H. Hilliard reported in person; and Jasper M. Tousley and T. C. Kelley by letter. The elders were appointed missions for the next quarter. Adjourned to meet Sept. 7th, at Pleasant Ride school house in Dry Fork branch. G. H. Hilliard, Pres. I. M. Smith, clerk.

Miscellaneous.

MISREPRESENTATION.

Editors Herald:—Will you give space for the ventilation of a misrepresentation I have not seen contradicted? In a book called "Tabernacle Lectures," published by the Adventists, at Battle Creek, Michigan, Elder H. M. Kenyon on page 26 says: "The Mormons claim that he [Jesus Christ] came in the person of Joseph Smith." If Mr. Kenyon is so ignorant of Mormonism, he had better let it alone till he knows more about it.

And again, on page 165, Elder Uriah Smith endorses the position taken by Dr. Adam Clark, that Moses, when he appeared in the transfiguration, was a resurrected being, and tells us this is a reasonable view of the matter, thus denying the word of God which teaches that Jesus was the "First Fruits" of the resurrection. The testrule of Isaiah 8th chapter, "To the law and the testimony," shows that "there is no light in them."

E. C. Brand.

NOTICES.

This is to certify, that on the 20th day of May, 1889, Elder James Wedlock was silenced for cause and from that date until his license is restored by proper authority he will have no right to preach the gospel or officiate as an elder of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christof Latter Day Saints.

W. Whiting,

Pres., of Galland's Grove Dist.
Dated at Dow City, Iowa, June 14th, 1889.

The Latter Day Saints will hold religious services in Volmore's Grove, one and a half miles south of Eden, and about two miles from Daniel Munn's house near Good Intent, Kansas, commencing July 4th at eleven a. m. Services will continue till Sunday night. All invited.

E. C. BRAND.

Whether the road is sixty-six or forty feet wide, the owner has the right to plant trees on his own half of the highway; and they are his own exclusive property as completely as though they were on his own enclosure. The public does not own the highway, but only the right of passage and the right to quarry stone and cut timber for its repair. So long as passage is free and unimpeded the owner may plant trees, and and mow or cultivate the road sides. If the road is vacated, the property including road way, reverts to him without any further conveyance. —Homestead.

MARRIED.

CLARK-McCLARTY.-At the house of the bride's parents, Holden, Missouri, Sunday, June 2nd, 1889,—Mr. Theodore Clark and Sr. Louisa A. McClarty. Priest William Kelley officiating.

HILL—LAING.—Married at the residence of D Chambers Persia, Harrison county, Iowa, June 10th, 1889, Bro. William S. Hill., and Miss Elizabeth Laing. David Chambers officiating.

ENNIS—HARRIS.—At the residence of the bride's uncle, J. L. Wright, No. 1001 South 10th street, Burlington, Iowa, June 12th, 1889, by Elder James McKiernan, Bro. Herbert D. Ennis and Sr. Ella C. Harris. The dining-room and parlor was a wilderness of blossom and evergreen. The bride and groom took their station to the music of the wedding march, beneath a beautiful bell of flowers suspended from a handsome arch of white flowers and arbor-vitæ, where they remained while the impressive words were said that united them for life. After the ceremony the host of friends present partook of a sumptuous collation, and viewed the numerous beautiful and useful presents given. The happy scene was one of transcendent peace; the Spirit of the Mas-ter was there to bless, and all expressed hearty wishes for the prosperity and happiness of this estimable couple.

DIED.

Howell.—At Jonesport, Washington county, Maine, March 27th, 1889, Sr. Lovinia Howell. She was born at Horton, Nova Scotia, May 7th, 1812, and was one of the first here to accept the gospel invitation proclaimed by T. W. Smith, followed by Elder Josiah Ells; by whom she was baptized November 13th, 1870. Funeral services by Elder U. W. Greene; text, Revelations 20: 6. She sincerely loved the latter day work, and while strength permitted was ever found at her post and ready on all occasions to give a reason post and ready on all occasions to give a reason of the hope she had, which was truly like an anchor to her soul. Death was sweet unto her, for she was anxiously awaiting the summons, "Come home;" and could say like one of old, "Yea, though I walk through the valley and shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." The sick and afflicted found in her a sympathizing friend. She was a wildow for several years. ing friend. She was a widow for several years. She leaves no children of her own, but an adopted daughter and her family who kindly administered to her wants, and who mourn their loss.

Bereaved ones, weep not for her Whose place is vacant here;
Your loss is great, but she has gained A brighter, happier sphere!
She's only gone to wait awhile,
Beyond this vale of tears;
To bask in her dear Savior's smiles,
Till Christ in clouds appears.

Then, like her; hold the "iron rod;"
Let that your footsteps gnide;
And then her God will be your God,—
Your feet shall never slide.
You'll then behold her face to face,
When no rude hand shall tear
You from each other's warm embrace,
Nor cause a sorrow there.

WILDERMUTH.—At his residence in the town of Willow, Richland county, Wisconsin, on the 6th day of April, 1889, of sickness incident to old age, Elder David Wildermuth. He was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, on the 17th day of January, 1803, and was aged 86 years, 2 months and 9 days at his death. He moved into Lafayette county, Wisconsin, in 1854, and later on into Richland county, same state. He married Miss Anna Newkirk in 1831, and raised a family of 7 sons and 3 daughters, of which 4 sons died, 2 in defense of the Union. Three daughters and three sons remain. Two of the sons are in the ministry—E. M. and E. C. Wildermuth. Bro. Wildermuth was baptized in an early day by Elder Zenos H. Gurly, sen., and took a prominent part in the starting of the Reorganization of which he ever remained a consistent and faithful member, passing away in the full hope and assurance of a glorious resurrection, leaving a large circle of friends, a true and devoted wife and family to mourn their, to them, irreparable loss. Funeral sermon by Elder C. W. Lange, assisted by Elder Frank Hackett.

With hoary age his life was blest; And with his Savior he found rest, SHUPE.—At Valverde, Colorado, on Saturday, June 8th, after a short but severe sickness, Edward Harrison Shupe; born November 21st, He was the son of Bro. E. F. and Sr. E. C. Shupe. Funeral services by Elder James Caffall.

Then sorrowing parents dry your tears,
For though gone, thy babe still lives
In a sphere that's grand and bright;
Where neither sin nor pain can reach;
For the glorious doctrine Christ did preach,
And that infants were as angels He did say,
Living in a realm brighter than day.

Bro. and Sr. Shupe solicit the prayers of the Saints, as themselves and two others of their children are suffering.

SHUPE.—Stella Ruth, daughter of E. F. and E. C. Shupe, at Valverde, Colorado, June 13th, 1889. She was born February 3d, 1884. If vice by Elder James Caffall.

To you, the Lord gave, From you has he taken,
But let not your faith in God be shaken, Funeral ser-

"Pis well you strove your darlings to save,
But God knows best,
And so has taken them home, to rest.
They are not dead; for those in Christ never die,
And if faithful, ere long, to them you'll fly.

SAWYER.—At Jonesport, Washington county, Maine, February 15th, 1889, Sr. Eliza N. Sawyer, aged 83 years, 8 months and 27 days. She was baptized by Elder F. M. Sheehy during the Reunion which convened here last August, and was permitted for a few months to rejoice in the gospel of Jesus Christ, which she loved; then passed quietly away in hope of a glorious resurrection. Funeral services by Elder U. W. Greene, from the text, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

GRIFFITHS.—At Lucas, Iowa, June 13th, 1889 Ella, child of Bro. Thomas R and Harriet Griffiths. She was born July 8th, 1889. Funeral services conducted by Elder John Watkins, Sen.

BEATRICE CHAUTAUQUA.

This assembly will meet at Beatrice, Nebraska, June 28th, and hold till July 8th. The exercises promise much that will both entertain and profit those who attend. Those desiring it can obtain program by sending to the secretary, S. L. Green, Beatrice, Nebraska.

TO KEEP STAMPS FROM STICKING.

I saw a woman buy 50 cents worth of stamps and after she got them she opened them out, and deliberately rubbed the backs of them over her I regarded with curiosity this ceremony, and when the woman with her also looked astounded, and said-

"What on earth are you doing?"

I listened for the reply.
"Oh, if you do that your stamps wont ever ick together. There is oil enough on your stick together. hair always to keep them from getting in the tight wad to which they incline in hot weather."
"And I suppose," said number two, sarcastically, "that it keeps them from sticking to your letters too, and they are shipped off on all sides to the dead-letter office because the stamps have dropped off."

"I havn't lost a letter in ten years, nor a stamp either; the stamps won't come off; there isn't oil enough to keep them from sticking when you wet them."

BRUNO.

"Giordano Bruno, the Italian philosopher, was born at Nola, near Naples, about the middle of the sixteenth century and was burned at the stake in Rome, Feb. 17, 1600. He entered the Dominican order at an early age, but becoming skeptical was forced to leave it, and fled to General Control of the control of va in 1580. His ideas were no more acceptable to the Calvinists than to the Catholics, and after two years he went to Paris, where he gained some celebrity by a satirical comedy. His attacks on the philosophy of Aristotle aroused much hostility among the scholars and clergy of Paris, and in 1583 he went to England, where he enjoyed the friendship of Sir Philip Sidney. wrote some of his most important philosphical works. In 1585 he returned to Paris and the next year went to Germany. After a brief stay at Marburg he settled at the University of Wittenberg as a lecturer on philosophy and mathematics. After visiting several German universities in succession he returned to Italy in 1592. There he remained for six years, living at Padua unmolested by the ecclesiastical authorities. At last in 1598, while on a visit to Venice, he was arrested by the Order of Inquisition, taken to Rome, and put to death after spending two years in prison."— $E^x$ .

The legal fraternity of Iowa is just now engaged in a commendable movement, the merits of which should crown it with full and speedy success. An effort is being made throughout Iowa to strip legal documents of their vast load of verbiage, which is less than downright nonsense. Lawyers declare that deeds, and nearly all other legal papers can be cut down nearly one-half in the amount of wherefores and whereases and and their legality be not impaired. The complicated labyrinths of language now used render it necessary to employ an expert to interpret it. There is no reason why a simplification of legal forms should not be gladly welcomed by all.—Leon Reporter

BOB BURDETTE is generally thought never to have spoken or written anything except fun, but this is a sad mistake. Bob sometimes gets down to solid facts and naked truths, as he did when he said "God wasted mud when he made the man who is so little as to have the postmaster return a newspaper marked 'refused' when he owes two or three years subscription."

FOR SALE OR TRADE,

acre FARM in Cherokee county, Kansas, 3 miles west and 1 mile north of Columbus (County seat). Good House of two rooms, good Well. Spring in Pasture, good shingled Stable and Granary, Cribs, and Cow Stable, young Orchard.

Farm all under fence; 55 acres in cultivation, 15 in Pasture, 10 Prairie Grass. This is as good land as there is in the county. Rented this year for two-fifths of all products. Price $2,200.

Farm for Sale.

A good farm for sale of 40 acres, good rich soil, all well fenced, 2 good wells, large pond for stock, old orchard bearing good, 800 young trees of choicest fruits, new lumber stable and cowshed all shingled, buggy shed, new granary all painted, good rock milk house, other out-houses. A good 6 roomed cottage, porched, papered, and painted outside and inside, close to 4 towns, also on 4 main roads, 2 good groves of maple trees each side of the cottage. Will be sold cheap, rather than rent. A big bargain for some one. Farm a few miles from Lamar, the county seat of Barton county. county seat of Barne one. Farm a rew lines from Lamar, in EBENEZER MILLER, Senior, SCAMMONVILLE, Cherokee county, Kansas.

[In the Press.]

THE SAINTS' HARMONY.

PRICE $2.50 BY MAIL.

The Harmony will contain all the hymns in the Saints' Harp; also 542 pages of music, comprising about 720 tunes, 13 full sized pages of music, full instruction on choir and anthem music, the Editor's preface and introduction, and publisher's preface.

ROBERT WINNING, Pres't. D. F. NICHOLSON, Cashier.

FARMERS' BANK OF LAMONI.

Ample Responsibility.

Loans money on aproved security. Six per cent interest paid on time deposits. Real Estate bought and sold.

A CHRONOLOGICAL CATECHISM:

Or, Key to the Chronology of the Bible.

BY A. J. MAPÉS.

Limp Cloth, 103 pages, price 35 cts. For sale by Bro. H. R. MILLS, Independence Mo.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE	N
Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in	N
LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,  And sent Free of Postage at prices named.	N
HOLY SCRIPTURES.	N
(Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith.) Sheep or Library binding	Ŋ
New Testament, inspired	N
Roan, sprinkled edges	N
DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.  Sprinkled sheep, or library	N
SAINTS' HARP-HYMN BOOK.	ľ
Imitation Morocco, sprinkled edges	ľ
Cloth Boards, 396 pages 1 75	1
Propositions:—(1) Is the Book of Mormon of divine origin, and are its teachings entitled to the respect and belief of all Christian people?	I
(2) Is the Church of which I, Clark Braden am a member, the Church of Christ, and identical	l
in faith, organization, ordinances, worship and practice, with the Church of Christ as it was left perfected by the Apostles of Christ? (3) Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter	1
Day Saints in fact, the Church of God, and accepted with Him?
FORSCUTT—SHINN DISCUSSION. Paper covers, 194 pages	]
Paper covers, 194 pages	]
Literal Resurrection of the body from the grave."
VISIONS OF JOSEPH SMITH, THE SEER.	]
Discoveries of Ancient American Records and Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew. Paper covers, 43 pages	]
CONCORDANCE TO DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.
An enlarged edition, 32 pages, paper covers. 10 BRANCH RECORDS.
Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages 200 DISTRICT RECORDS.  Printed and bound similar to Branc' Rec-ords3 00 LICENCES, NOTICES, &c.
Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licenses, each per dozen	-
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred 40
CERTIFICATES AND REPORTS.
Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen
per dozen
SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPPLIES. Sunday School Engineer and Record Book. 50
Prompt Attendance Tickets, 100 for 15 " " 1,000 for 100
Good Behavior TicketsSame price. MISCELLANEOUS.
Tract 42.—Rejection of the Church, a dozen 15 per hundred Tract 43.—One Wife, or Many, per dozen 25 per hundred 1 75 SABBATH SCHOOL BOOKS.  Compendium of Faith, for higher classes, bound in sprinkled Leather, each $1 00 The same bound in Cloth
per dozen	1

TRACTS.	1000
No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; per dozen 20 per hundred
No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; dozen 05
per hundred	!
Church and the Kirtland Temble Suit.	, Total
dozen 5c., 100 25c., 250 50c., 500 $1, 1,000.1 75
No. 5.—The Gospel price the same as No. 4. No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Sub-
1 1ects, Pre-requisites and Design—and Who	. 1
Shall Administer; 25c. per doz., per 100. 1 75 No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; per doz. 05
per hundred 40	. 1
No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; per dez. 25 per hundred
No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Script-	. !
ural Standpoint; per doz. 30c., per 1002 25 No. 10.—The Narrow Way: doz. 15c., 1001 10
No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; per doz 30	)
per hundred	,
per dozen 25c., per hundred 1 65	.
No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; per dozen. 25
per hundred
per hundred	. 1
No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; per doz. 20c., 1001 40	,
No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Of-	1
fice and Presidency of the Church; doz. 25
per hundred ner hundred
No. 20.—The "One Body: or the Church of Christ, under the Apostleship, and under the Apostasy; per dozen 20c., per 1001 44
No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; dozen of per hundred 1
No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; dozen 1
per hundred
No. 23.—Baptism; per dozen 20c., 100 1 25 No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; doz. 5c., 100 40 No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. 40
No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; doz. 5c., 100. 46	)
No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; per dozen 5c., per hundred 49	ò
No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; per doz 2	ŏ
per hundred	3
the Doctrine and Covenants; doz 5c., 100 40	0
No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon	n
No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Ortho-	(2)
doxy? and an Evangelical Church? Al-	, so, Kirtland Temple Suitsame price No. 4 No. 32.—Which is the Church? doz. 5c., 100
No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined	æ per dozen 20c., per hundred1 2 Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection	IJ
5c. each, per dozen 5
Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100 1	Ð
COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.
Bound in Limp Cloth turned in 7	5
COWDERY LETTERS.
Containing valuable matter in relation to the
Calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and Translation of the Book of Mormon, and th	u. O.
Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood.
In paper covers 8c. each, per dozen	5 0
MISCELLANEOUS.
The Problem of Human Life Here and Here-
1	0 0
Josephus, complete, library leather 3 5	0
Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 volumes	0
Mosheim's Church History, 2 vols 4 0	0
Baldwin's Ancient America (illustrated) 18 Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one 40	0
The Koran, library leather	0
Gieselar's Ecclesiastical History, from A.D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols10 0	n.
The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pam-philus, Bishop of Cæsarea and Palestine .2 0
Cruden's Complete Concordance of Bible 1 7 Bible Text Book	_
Apocryphal New Testament 6
	35
Elders' Diary, by Joseph Luff	30

1	"MANUSCRIPT FOUND,"
	In cloth 25cts., ten or more, each
AND PRODUCED THE RESIDENCE AND PROPERTY AND PERSONS.	so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon.
- Water	REPLY TO LITTLEFIELD,
	In paper 10 cts., per dozen
-	JOSEPH SMITH THE PROPHET, AND HIS PROGENITORS.
	Muslin boards, 312 pages
-	HESPERIS.
-	Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges
The second designation of	VOICE OF WARNING
	And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the latter day work.
Marchine Marchine Stringer	In paper covers; twelve for $1each 10 Limp cloth covers, each
-	JOSEPH THE SEER:
	His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained.  Paper covers, 200 pages
	-: A Family Newspaper :
	THE INDEPENDENT PATRIOT  Provides its readers weekly with 56 COLUMNS Of reading matter, including Domestic and Foreign News, Home, Around the World, Religious, Scientific and Personal departments, and aims to keep its readers thorough- ly acquanted with the striking features of the world's progress. Try it and know for yourself. Sample copy free. One dollar per year.  LAMBERT BROTHERS, PUBLISHEES,
3	25aug Lamoni, Decatur Co., lowa.
	I hereby give notice that the

Photograph of the Quorum of Seventies

17 x 20, is now ready for sale.

I will mail copies to any one on receipt of $2.

All members of the Quorum represented in the medley can obtain a copy for $1.50.

R. BURDGE, Photographer, Appleton City, Mo.

I have seen the Picture, and can recommend it as a work of art, containing 48 cabinet heads, grouped in a medley, handsomely arranged, all numbered with index below of numbers and names to correspond, making a very interesting Pieture E. C. BRAND.

A FINE MOSAIC OF LAMONI.

5½ x 8½ inches.

Seventeen different residences grouped in one card with name under each picture.

By mail, post paid, 35c; per doz. $3; per 100, $20. Send 35c. for sample.

The traveling ministry please notice this.

A. M. CHASE, Lamoni, Iowa.

LUFF & BRACKENBURY,

REAL ESTATE AGENTS,

West Lexington Street,

INDEPENDENCE, - MISSOURI.

Next to Warnky's Gallery.

THE SAINTS' HI

"Hearken to the Word of the Lord: for There Shall Not any Man Among you Have save it be One Wife, and Colve ines

HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."-Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol.~36.—Whole No. 842

Lamoni, Iowa, July 6, 1889

No. 27.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Latter Day Saints

PUBLISHED AT LAMONI, DECATUR COUNTY, IOWA,

Every Saturday. Price $2.25 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help build up the paper and the publication department.

Business I. 1.

Business Letters and Subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered Letter, or Express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

JOSEPH SMITH W. W. BLAIR

EDITOR: ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, July 6, 1889.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK.

IMPROVED AND SYSTEMATIC MERHCDS.

ALL interested in the improvement and advancement of the Sunday School work should read the minutes of the Sunday School Association of the Decatur district. published elsewhere in this issue of the Herald.

The main features reported therein are significant as indicating the earnest determination of the workers in this department not to be content to move on in antiquated ruts or pursue unprogressive methods of carrying on that work. They evidently intend in this age of improvement, of which the prophetic declaration is made "knowledge shall be increased in the earth," that the scholars and teachers of the Sunday schools shall be equipped and provided with the very best and most systematic methods of instruction which the inspiration of the work, experience, obserand education afford.

To the discerning and far-seeing all these advancements will be recognized as indications which point to the perfect drill, discipline, and armament of this portion of the army of Israel, whose hosts are falling into line and preparing for the great conflict of peace which shall subdue the world, and which "sanctified, fair as the sun and clear as the moon" shall yet become terrible" in the majesty of its power to resist ignorance rnd evil, and to save.

The proposed organization of training classes under the supervision and instruction of those educated and experienced in the most advanced systems of normal methods of teaching, or by those who may be aided by the suggestions of those so experienced, and others, will prove valuable auxiliaries to many who doubtless consider themselves lacking in ability as teachers. Those classes will afford such a valuable opportunity of becoming capable and efficient teachers; an opportunity which should be eagerly seized by all who are, as all should be, imbued with the spirit of their work.

The suggestions offered by the superintendent, and which appear in said minutes, should be studied by all officers and teachers in the Sunday schools. And it is hoped that the mutual suggestions offered by the different associations and workers will be considered that there may be a continued improvement in theory and practice, and a constant approach to the true standard, viz., "perfection"

"Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined," burst from the lips of the inspired David as he viewed the majesty and magnitude of the work to be done by her sons and daughters just previous to the second coming of the Messiah. The statement is a significant and broad one, for it indicates that in the accomplishment of the great work of preparing a people for the coming of the Lord the most perfect and systematic principles and means known to God and man will be brought into requisition. believe that the beautiful garments with which Zion is to be arrayed are the graces and wisdom of the Holy Spirit, and the thorough preparation which shall be made by those who receive of it, and that they will thus become a mighty power for good. Let us discern the signs of the times and be going on to perfection in every good word and work.

In another place in this paper will be found Elder J. R. Lambert's report of the characteristic doings of Clark Braden at Plum Hollow Iowa, of late; and the clipping below furnishes added information as to the methods and fruits of Mr. Bradens

"A RIOTOUS DISCUSSION.

"Mr. C. B. Reynolds (Liberal), and Rev. Clark Braden (Christian), held a discussion at Walla Walla, Washington Territory, on the evening of the 18th of May, and a Christian correspondent of the statesman of that city gives the following account of the discussion :-

"REYNOLDS VS. BRADEN.

"MR. EDITOR:-I am one of those who, although not believing in the teachings of Mr. C. B, Reynolds, yet admire him as a gentleman and endorse his withdrawal from the debate on Saturday night. I was ashamed of Mr. Braden's remarks, and blushed to think that the Christians of this community were guilty of the folly of placing him in the position of their champion. I am a church member, but am thankful in my heart this man Braden was not endorsed by me. I can now fully understand why Mr. Reynolds positively refused to enter into any discussion with this man, unless he was endorsed by the Christian ministers of this community. That this endorsement was given is truly a misfortune to Christianity. Braden's actions have brought strife in the city among friends. His action, instead of doing good has accomplished much harm that will take many, many years of urgent Christian endeavor to eradicate.

"In charity I say it, he is too much of a bully, too little of a gentleman; he wants to carry his point by vindictive high-handed personalities, rather than by reason or persuasion. His action is an insult upon the intelligence of the community, and although I was one of those who were anxious to have the debate commence, I must also fully admit that it was a great misfortune to have this man Braden champion the cause of the churches. We were very unfortunate in the matter, and to say that Mr. Reynolds, as a man, showed much more the spirit of a true Christian than the much professed champion of the cause of Christ and the welfare of the souls of the people, is but giving justice where justice is due. Mr. Braden's action has caused a bitterness, a vicious and revengeful feeling in the bosoms of church people hitherto unknown in Walla Walla, and only yesterday I heard a kind and gentle mother use such cruel and vindictive threats toward Mr. Reynolds, that shame and sorrow caused a deep sigh to come from my heart, and involuntarily I asked myself the question: " Can such be the teachings of the Bible?" I am one of the Chaistians of this city that does not indorse Mr. Braden in his act-I am yours, etc., HONESTY."

"Another account says that the discussion ended in a row, and that Mr. Reynolds, in making his closing speech-

"Stated that he considered himself villified heyond the bounds of endurance, and felt it his duty to respectfully withdraw. He considered the Christans of Walla Walla very unfortunate in having such a man to represent them. Mr. Braden then endeavored to continue his address, which was anything but becoming under the circumstances, and was met with hisses, shouts, and general uproar. Order being somewhat restored with difficulty, Mr. Braden again began a bitter tirade upon his gentlemanly opponent, but the audience left as fast as convenience would permit. The discussion is now ended. Many there are who think the case of Christianity in Walla Walla has not been benefitted by the conduct of Mr. Braden."

Below will be found a letter which needs no extended explanation. When we read Ebenezer Robinson's statement in the Return we thought it strange if the officers of the Davis City branch had not taken legal steps in his case as he charged. Robinson is now far advanced in years, and the infirmities of age, including feebleness of memory, may in a measure, unfit him for a clear and exact statement of facts; and it remains therefore for all to exercise that charity which "thinketh no evil" and conclude that his statement, which the letter below officially contradicts, was not designed to be untrue.

DAVIS CITY, Iowa, June 17th, 1889. Editors Herald: - I notice in the June number of the "Return" that E. Robinson says that he was not legally dealt with before he was expelled from the church. I wish to affirm that he was, even after the same manner that others were dealt with while he was branch president, which like proceedings aforetime he pronounced as being legal. In March, 1888, he was labored with by the branch officers, following which the charge of apostasy was preferred and an Elders Court was convened, he being duly notified of the same. I was one of said court. He was found guilty and was suspended from church privileges and fellowship, being given time to see his error. In March, 1889, the branch president, Bro. W. N. Abbott, made a final call upon him, and asked if he did not feel willing to return to the church. He replied, "No, never." Thereupon the branch took action and expelled him from membership. Your brother, OLIVER J. BAILEY.

Below will be found a clear cut statement by the Desert News, the official organ of the Utah Mormon Church, as to to what are and are to be known and accepted as the "Standards" on doctrine and discipline for that church, and we most cheerfully give it place in our columns that our readers may know of the claims set forth therein. The italics are ours.

The only objection we see in the position taken is in the fact (1), that the Utah Doctrine and Covenants, since 1876, is not the same as the editions they had aforetime, for in that year they introduced one containing a revelation in favor of plurality of wives-a principle and practice thoroughly condemned and prohibited by all former editions, as also by the Book of Mormon with which polygamy is sadly "out of harmony." Besides this, there was in all the editions of the Doctrine and Covenants published prior to 1876, a section on the subject of marriage, strictly monogamous in all its provisions, and which was regularly accepted and endorsed by the church, August 17th, 1835, in a General assembly, at Kirtland, Ohio, and reaffirmed by the church at many subse-This was left out of the quent times. Brighamite edition, and matter favoring polygamy put in its stead. And all these changes in that "standard" were made without the knowledge or consent of even the Utah Mormon church, to say nothing of the non-consent of thousands of Saints scattered abroad throughout the world.

Polygamy, and some other strange and heretical doctrines, all sadly "out or harmony" with the Bible, Book of Mormon and Nauvoo edition of the Doctrine and Covenants, were introduced as doctrine and discipline by leading men of the church irrespective, and apparently reckless of the will of its ministry or membership, and without the least attempt in a regular, lawful way, to have the church hear, consider, and authoritatively accept and adopt them.

But we are glad the leaders of the Utah Mormons are now asserting the authority of "the written standards" and deprecating all "theories" and "revelations" found to be "out of harmony" with what has been regularly, lawfully, "passed upon and endorsed by" the church. If they will now go to work and eliminate from their theories and practices whatever is "out of harmony" with the Book of Mormon, the Nauvoo edition of the Doctrine and Covenants and Joseph Smith's translation of the Bible, and repudiate as doctrine or discipline whatever has not been regularly "passed upon and endorsed by" the church and "accepted and recognized by the body" as was provided for in the law and order of the church in the days of Joseph the Seer, then their "standards" will be such as will secure the favor of God, the unity of the Saints, the favor and aid of right minded people, and free them largely from the irritation, friction, prosecution and persecution to which they have so long been subjected. God is at work sifting and cleansing and proving the people, inviting their return to "old paths."

Here is the article mentioned:

THE STANDARDS OF "MORMONISM."

When discussing "Mormonism" its opponents frequently invent peculiar notions and advance them as part of the "Mormon" creed, and occasionally quote disjointed and garbled extracts from the writings of men connected with the "Mormon" Church, which are foisted upon the public as authorized expositions of its articles of faith. This is very unfair and misleading. There is in it more or less of a desire to deceive and to prejudice the public mind.

The proper way to oppose any principle or tenet alleged to be false, is to state it fairly and fully as it is entertained by those who advance it, and it is wrong to attribute to a society or organized body of any kind, ideas entertained by some individual which are not endorsed by the association of which he may be a member.

In assailing "Mormonism," either from the pulpit or the press, it is seldom if ever that its authorized articles of faith or recognized standards are cited, or if they are, that they are given as they stand, without interpolation and without mutilation. What is pretended to be "Mormonism" is not "Mormonism," and that which is ridiculed, or controverted, or held up for destestation, is simply something manufactured for the occasion or so great a burlesque, or exaggeration, or distortion of the truth as to be closely akin to wilful falsehood,

The published standards of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints are the Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Doctrine and Covenants and the Articles of Faith, They are accepted and recognized by the body. Revelations received by the head of the church on earth and accepted as such by the body, may be classed in the same category. But the opinions, theories, arguments, illustrations and contentions of men connected with the church and not passed upon and endorsed by it, are not to be cited as authorized, particularly when out of harmony with its written standards.

There is no embargo placed upon the thoughts of men in this church, nor upon the expression thereof. Many things have been published by men connected with the church which the body would not approve if they were presented for its action. Wide circulation has been given to theories and opinions of men holding prominent places in the church, which have been publicly declared by its president to be "no guide for the Latter Day Saints." Yet these are frequently cited as "Mormon" doctrine and applied in a manner not intended even by their authors. When they are fairly quoted, however, while they are not to be held as expositions of the "Mormon" creed, blame can not be justly cast upon those who cite them as such, as it may when they are misquoted and garbled and misapplied.

There is nothing in the recognized creed of the Latter Day Saints which infringes upon human liberty or is incompatible with a republican form of government. It does not attempt to suppress freedom of thought or of action, providing the latter does not pass the line of the liberty of others. It does not seek to subvert the force of Constitutional law or the authority of any recognized human government. It teaches that man should be obedient in all things to his Maker. but does not put any persons in the place of Deity to be worshipped, adored or submitted to as God. When God reveals anything through the man appointed as His mouthpiece to the church, the numbers may determine whether they will receive it as "the word of the Lord," and they have free agency to obey or disobey it and take the consequence of their own acts. There is no compulsion attending it, and if they believe and bow to it, their faith and obedience are in and to God and not to man. If Moses, or Isaiah, or Peter or John wrote "the word of the Lord." those who are led by it are not worshippers of either of those men but of God who spake by them. So with any modern revelation.

The kingdom of God is to come, and the will of God is to be done on earth as it is done in heaven; so the Latter Day Saints believe in their hearts, as many other people profess to believe with their lips. When Christ appears he will be the recognized head of that kingdom on the earth. "Until he comes whose right it is to reign," the Saints are commanded by divine revelation to "be subject to the powers that be;" that is, to the governments established wherever they reside. That is "Mormonism." So is this, the Articles of Faith: "We believe in being subject to kings, presidents, rulers and magistrates, in honoring, obeying and sustaining the law." And so is this, in the Doctrine and Covenants: "It is not right that man should be in bondage one to another." Any theory, or hypothesis, or philosophical disquisition opposed to these is not "Mormonism," by whomsoever promulged, and is not to be cited as "the Mormon creed."

We believe that true religion will influence a true believer in all the affairs of life. Also that members of the Church of Christ should be mutually helpful in everything that pertains to their well being in time and eternity. Also that they have the right, under the constitution and laws of this country, to combine and unite for self-defense and self-preservation, for good government and the prevention of bad government, in all things spiritually and temporally, so long as they do not violate law nor infringe upon the rights of other people.

Our enemies may twist and distort and misstate these propositions as they please. They may quote sentences culled from the writings of individual theorists and tack them together for the purpose of misrepresenting "the Mormon creed," but the facts remain as we have stated them, and the recognized standards of "Mormon" doctrine stand as the authorized exponents of our faith and discipline. They are our guide so far as books can be, and the Spirit of the living God, which is the light and life of all things, is within the reach of those who seek for it in the appointed way. The revelations of heaven, and not the opinions and reasonings of men are the standard of faith of the Latter Day Saints.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. B. H. Case, of Coal Hill, Arkansas, writes as follows:

"There were no Saints here when we came, but there has been six baptized, and there are good reasons to believe that more would follow if an elder would come this way. I think this would be a grand field to labor in if converts will pay the bill. I have never regretted that I obeyed the gospel, in 1879, for I know it is God's eternal truth."

Bro. R. M. Elvin wrote from Brown-ville, Nebraska, June 22d as follows:

"I expect to trouble the water to-morrow; have troubled the people for over a week?"

Bro. Warren E. Peak recently wrote from Cormorant, Minnesota, of the labors of Bro. J. A. Davis and himself, who are holding tent meetings:

"We are doing very well in our field here, and some are talking of obeying."

Bro. Heman C. Smith wrote June 22d, from Covina, California, as follows:

"Have baptized three since I wrote you; one in Pomona and two at Valley Center. Bro. Wright is still with me, and we have commenced a series of meetings at this place."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

We thank Bro. J. D. Howell, of Wales, for late copies of "The War Cry" and "All the World," publications of the "Salvation Army." These add to the swelling volume of evidence that man prefers to serve God in a manner his own perverted tastes provide, and in a way dictated by worldly wisdom of a strange and cranky order, rather than according to the wisdom of God set forth in the Christian pattern found in the Scriptures, Why will not men, with the Bible in their hands, seek and worship the Lord in His own appointed way!

President Joseph Smith wrote us from San Francisco, California, the 17th ultimo that he intended to start for Salt Lake City the 24th or 25th. His health is improving and he reports that the work of the church in some parts of central California is quite prosperous, while in one place it is at a standstill, owing to personal striving and official misunderstanding.

He hoped for the best.

A brother, J. L. Pride, who has got into difficulties with the church in Dakota, visited this office of late and wished us to ask that his name be dropped from the church records, and that the same be mentioned in the HERALD. Those having charge of church affairs in Dakota will please take notice of the matter and proceed with it strictly according to the law of the Church and the regular order provided in such cases.

Bro. Bowen, of Fremont, Nebraska, in company with a Mr. Wood of the same city, are examining the facilities offered in and about Lamoni for making and selling brick, and they hope for success.

Bro. E. C. Brand was at Seneca, Nebraska, the 18th inst., and says: "I baptized a lady Monday morning. I preached here all this week in the Universalist church."

Sr. Lucy Goble, of Lewiston, Nez Perces county, Idaho, desires information in respect to Sr. Emily Llewellyn, and her residence. Will some of our readers please send it to her at once?

Bro. Duncan Campbell, while engaged in missionary labor in Union county, Iowa, stepped into a ditch and seriously injured his afflicted leg. He is now at home, but expects to soon again be in his field.

Bro. John Erter writes from Antwerp, Ohio, Renewing for the church publications. He states that the work moves slowly there, but only for lack of laborers. Rain has been abundant and crops look well there.

Bro. John Hawley writes that he is well pleased with his new home near Sheridan, Worth county, Missouri, and that he and his family are securing many excellent friends there.

Some of our Utah exchanges report the accidental death of Bro. Simeon Atwood, at Benjamin, near Spanish Fork, Utah. He was born September 12th, 1814, in Mendon, Monroe county, New York, and died June 2d, 1889, from the effects of a fall from a tree when seeking to hive a swarm of bees.

This office has now on sale Primary Question books, for Sunday Schools 15cts each, or $1.25 per dozen; also new Sunday School cards: No. 1, package of 50, 5 varieties, large, 75cts; No. 2, package of 100, 10 varieties, smaller, 5octs.

South-westerh Iowa may well and very properly be called the blue-grass region of the west. We learn that blades of blue grass five feet and four inches in length have been brought in from the field. A head of timothy measuring ten and one half inches has just been handed us.

"The New Era Exposition" which will hold a session in St. Joseph, Missouri, commencing September 3d and closing October 4th, promisises to be one of the most successful and interesting efforts of its kind ever made in the west.

St. Joseph is developing splendid energies and enterprise, and her business men seem determined to spare no effort in making their city among the very best in the Missouri Valley; and at their present rate of progress they will, ere long, realize their highest hopes.

Bro. R. M. Elvin, in a letter dated at Brownville, Nebaska, the 24th ult., says he, the day before, baptized "a most excellent man." He thinks a branch may be organized there soon. He intended to move on farther north in Nebraska, right

Bro. I. N. Delong, of Progress, Colorado, would be glad if faithful elders would labor some in his place and vicinity.

Elder D. M. Strachan wrote June 22d that he had preached at Washingtonville, Ohio; baptized two ladies, leaving other persons interested. Thinks a good work can be done there.

Bro. William Crick, formerly of Lamoni and for many years associated with the Herald Office work, has of late been visiting Plano, Illinois, and Lamoni. He looks well and is in good spirits. He reports progress and good outlook for the work at Independence, which place he likes as a home.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is there any valid objection to sisters, in good standing in the church, meeting together for the purpose of prayer; the objects and subjects of those prayers having been published to the entire church?

Ans.-No.

Q.—What is the meaning of this statement of Paul in I Cor. II: II: "Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man, in the Lord"?

A.—Paul explains it in an easy, natural way, in the very next verse, when he says, "For as the woman is of the man, [See verses 8, 9, also Genesis 2:21, 22], even so is the man also by the woman; but all things of God." He refers to the facts set forth in this last verse in order to show why man and woman are interdependent and complements of each other, and also that all this is according to the design and purposeand creative work of God. These verses are most valuable as showing the unity and equality of the sexes and the mutual interests existing between them.

Q.—Has not the influence of the powers of darkness (history being the standard of evidence) ever been as powerful in leading the priesthood astray as the people?

A.—While it is deplorably true that, at times, the leaders of God's people have been blindly or viciously led astray by the wiles of Satan, the corruptions of their own evil hearts, or the "cunning craftiness of men," yet it is not true that they have suffered to the extent that the people have. If the priesthood are faithful, they are impregnable to "the influences of the powers of darkness," for they possess qualifications, experiences, graces and gifts of authority and knowledge, which shields them largely, if not fully from delusion and error.

If the priesthood were less secure from evil influences than the people for whom they minister, then the people and not the priesthood, should be leaders and instructors. If the people were in less danger of being deceived and misled by such "powers" than are the priesthood, then it were better that that there be no priesthood.

History shows that the errors and the evil doing of the priesthood were and are given greater prominence than those of the people; and this may lead some to think that the priesthood are more susceptible, more liable, and more vulnerable to "the influence of the powers of darkness" than are and were the people.

The Lord has delegated authority to his ministry to teach, preach, expound, exhort, invite, counsel, instruct, watch over, reprove rebuke, lead, "feed the flock of God," and administer the ordinances of the house of the Lord, and there is far less danger of their being brought under "the influence of the powers of darkness" than there is of the people. The "influence" of such "powers" should be and are much more likely to be discovered, exposed and successfully resisted by a minister of Jesus Christ than by any other person. If not so, then the bestowment of divine authority and priestly calling would be a source and means of weakness instead of power; of danger instead of safety.

History attests that when a leading minister falls it becomes more notorious than the fall of thousands of people. And history attests that where one leading minister falls beneath "the influence of the powers of darkness," thousands of the people yield to the same "powers."

While it is true that the priesthood receive more frequent and more powerful assaults and trials from "the influence of the powers of darkness," it is equally true that they are better qualified to resist, and that they do more faithfully resist than do others.

The ministry are rightly supposed to be a source of light, of strength, of edification, and of safety to the flock of God, and to the world. God the Father, Christ the Son, and the Holy Spirit—all have ordained it thus. And though it may be true that "the influences of the powers of darkness" have misled some of the priesthood and overthown others, it is nevertheless true that the great body of the priesthood, agreeable to the designs and purposes of God, have been more successful in discovering and resisting "the influences of the powers of darkness" than have others.

We repeat it, that if the said "powers" are and were more successful "in leading the priesthood astray" than the people, safety would be found primarily and in greater fulness with the people than with those whom Christ has called and ordained to be "the light of the world," "a city set on a hill," whose "good works" He intends shall lead others to "glorify the Father."

THE SIZE OF HEAVEN.

The twenty-first chapter of Revelations gives the measurement [of the New Jerusalem]. The most interesting calculation on the subject is that of Capt. I. B. Sharkley, a measurer of vessels in the Boston custom-house. He takes the statement in Revelations xxi, and figures it out thus: "And he measured the city with the reed, 12,000 furlongs. The length and the breadth and the height are equal." Twelve thousand furlongs-7,920,000 feet cubed-497,763,088,000,000,000 feet. Reserving one-half of this space for the throne and court of heaven and one-half of the remainder for streets we have 124,198,272,000 000 000,000 feet cubic. Divide this by 4,096 cubic feet in a room sixteen feet square and there will be 30,321,843,750,000,000 rooms. We will now suppose the world always did and always will contain 990,000,000 inhabitants and that a generation lasts 331/3 years, making in all 2,970,000,000 every century, and that the world will stand 1,000,000 years, or 10,000 centuries, 29,700,000,000,000 inhabitants. Now, suppose there were 100 worlds like this, equal in number of inhabitants and duration of years, a total of 2,970,000 000,000,000 persons, there would be more than 100 rooms 16 feet square for each and every person—Chicago Times.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Life has a burden for every one's shoulder

None may escape from its trouble and care,
Miss it in youth and 'twill come when we're older,
And fit us as close as the garments we wear."

REST AS A CURE.

WE take too much medicine, employ too many doctors, seek too many outside helps. Half of our diseases are preventable or easily dissipated by attention to the common-sense rules of health; many of the other half will usually yield to absolute rest—rest of muscles, nerves, brain and stomach. We go through life on high pressure, and wonder our engine is ever out of order. Well, an engine does not require so much attention as our body; but no wise engineer will allow his engine to run till it bursts for want of occasional examination, nor even to choke for want of cleanliness.

Sickness is called a calamity; it is often Nature's necessary reminder of our inconsistencies. If sickness did not occasionally cry a halt, our mad rush would soon bring us to the brink of destruction. The trouble is, when Nature thus calls aside from the world's busy whirl, instead of patiently listening, and lying quietly a little time to obey her dictates, we begin to swallow all kinds of poisons. We are so anxious to be on our feet that we are unwilling to give a little comparative rest to his wonderful machinery. We have no time to hearken to the voice of common sense, nor inclination to heed the piteous entreaties of our tired, misused and abused body, though it has been cruelly lashed to unwonted pace by the whip of our ambition, or our lusts, or our greed.

Lie quiet, and talk with your conscience awhile, and with your reason, and with your spiritual nature: it will do you good. Think of the medicines within your reach before sending for the medicines in the doctor's saddle bags. Ask your own body to instruct you; feel your own self calmly, patiently, consistently, and take the medicine Nature suggests as from a physician you can trust, and should have obeyed long ago. Above all thing rest-rest the stomach, till it calls for food loudly and then supply it sparingly; rest the passions, till they are content with moral activities; and still, rest, till, through and through, the warring elements subside, and peace reigns; rest, rest, rest, till the whole man-body, soul and spirit—is ready to rise renewed, purified, enthused in character and purpose.

Ah, if this was the medicine when sick in body or mind, we should not "have to" be sick so often, and when sick, it would be a short if not sweet repose, and we should be much better by its lessons.—Sel.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Sr. Flora Evans, Havens, Neb$	35
Sr. M. E. Nosker, Phonix, Ore5	00
Sr. M. M. Patten, Olivet, Dak	IO
Sr. Sophia Jewks, Orangeville, Utah
Sr. Alice Minthorn, Mancetona, Mich	25
Bro. Charles Hayer, Eagle Grove, Iowa1	00
LAMONI, Iowa, June 27th.
Send all moneys to D. Dancer, Lamoni, Iowa	L

CAMERON, Mo., June 10th.

Dear Sisters:-- I have felt impressed to write to our Home Column for some time, but having so much of a temporal nature to think about and so much work waiting to be done by me that it seemed useless for me to try to draw in my thoughts from the cares of temporal things, and place them upon spiritual things for any length of time, and while under the impression that it was my duty to help I have been of late led to ask myself the question: "Are you neglecting this that you feel to be your duty, keeping the covenant you made with your heavenly Father when you came up out of the waters of baptism filled with that spirit of love and gratitude to him who had done so much for you? Then you said you would always strive to give Him and His work the first place in your heart; that everything else should be set aside for it; and that you would ever strive to do all you could for the comfort, strength and encouragement of others." I must admit that I feel condemned, and while meditating my thoughts wander back over the eleven years since that covenant was made; and the days, weeks and months of these years now seem to me perfect happiness, peace and joy. I feel satisfied the peace they brought was as near perfection as can be enjoyed by mortals in this life. My whole soul was in this work. I do not believe at that time there could have been any sacrifice too great for me to have made. I feel satisfied that I would have been willing to have given everything we had into the hands of the Bishop of the church to be used for the spread of the gospel, and would have gone without or have worked by days' work for more, if I had had any idea that the Lord required it, or even had the Bishop said so. I had perfect confidence in both the leaders of this church and in the members also. I did not see their weaknesses, neither did I wish to see them; in fact, I had no place in my heart for anything but love and gratitude to my heavenly Father for his loving kindness to me and mine. Even this land seemed sacred and my prayers would ascend daily to him in thankfulness for the blessed privilege of dwelling on this promised land, even the land of Zion; although I had left a good home and every relation I had except my husband and children. I did not for a moment regret it or wish to return, but I did earnestly pray even as I do to-day that they might be able to discern truth from error, repent and turn to the Lord with full purpose of heart, and be numbered with his children. And now, sisters, as I claim to be to-day anxious to see this work prosper, and often testify that this cause is dearer to me than anything else on earth. I feel as though a course of self-examination would help me to determine whether I am justified in making such a statement or not. In the first place, am I just as willing to make sacrifices for it as I used to be or am I not more inclined to make myself and the wants of my family first, and if there is anything left (which I fear is not often the case) give it to the Lord? Am I as willing to put myself out for the comfort and enjoyment of his servants as I once was? Could I, if my accommodations were no better than they were then, ask the elders who were traveling through here home with us and make them as welcome as I once did, knowing that they were used to having everything nice at home, never having been used to the inconvenience of having but the one room for kitchen, dining-room, pantry and sittingroom? Am I just as anxious to have others understand and obey the truth as I was then? If I am, I will be trying to help them to see as I do by buying and distributing tracts, letting no opportunity pass without giving them my reasons for believing this gospel to be true. If the cause is as dear to me as I claim it to be, I will not be found showing up the weaknesses and faults of my brothers and sisters to those out of the fold, neither to those that are in the fold, but will rather try to hide them, and exercise all the charity I can for them. I will not allow evil thoughts or surroundings to remain within my heart about any brother or sister; for if the work is dearer to me than anything else on earth those who have enlisted in the work must be dear to me also. How beautiful, and how truthful, are the lines we often sing in our social meetings:

"Charity and love are healing, These will give the clearer sight; When I saw my neighbor's failing, I was not exactly right. Now I'll take no further trouble. Jesus' love is all my theme: Little motes are but a bubble. When I think upon the beam."

I feel assured that if we could always "See ourselves as others see us," we would have no time to be looking for or canvassing the faults of others; but I feel we should have all we could do to overcome our own.

Since going through this course of self-examination I truly feel that I am not at all times justified in stating to my brothers and sisters that this cause is dearer to me than anything else and I desire to profit by it; and wherein I see I have failed in the past to watch and pray that I may not in the future fail in that same way, nor in any other; for I earnestly desire to be a child of God in spirit and in truth. When I have done all that I possibly can do, I can never half repay him for what he has done for me. May our kind Father help us all to be watchful and prayerful at all times, that we be not overcome, and that we may each and all be able to say that this work is dearer to us than anything else on earth, and our daily walk and actions justify us in making this assertion, is the prayer of your unworthy sister, G. F. S.

MARSHALTOWN, Iowa, June 14th.

Sr. Frances:-Not being permitted to enjoy church privileges, I feel to express my thoughts to you on paper. This lovely morning my heart is filled to overflowing with gratitude and praise to the giver of all good for His manifold blessings to us-first: temporally, for our very existence, life, health and strength, food and raiment and a shelter to cover us, and also our God-given faculties enabling us to enjoy his many blessings. Second: spiritually, not being situated so I could call the elders I have been healed instantly through faith and belief in his ability to heal. Have been warned, rebuked and admonished by dreams and the voice the Spirit. Oh what blessings we as Saints may enjoy, through obedience, faith and belief in His gospel plan of salvation as revealed through the three books. Restored in its purity by the ministering of an angel with its priesthood as in the beginning, its primative organization, its gifts and blessings. May all that have taken the name of Saint live worthy, obey the injunction of the Spirit to "Come up higher," live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God and attain to a higher plane in spiritual life is my prayer.

I can not forbear a word in commendation of the church publications; of the inestimable worth they are to me. The Herald in all its departments, the Home Column, the letter department, Bro. Blair's editorials of late, his answers to questions are all edifying to me.

In gospel bonds,
Lou BERRY.

CHARTER OAK, Iowa; June 16th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:-It is nearing the time for me to send in my offering. I feel it our duty to be prompt in sending and not wait until our birthday is passed three or four months, before we send in our mite; we do not know how much good it might be doing while we are holding it back waiting for a more convenient time to send it. I felt sad to-day on opening the Herald to see not one offering. What is the matter sisters? Are we getting tired of casting in our mites for the Master?

Do not grow weary in well doing for you will be rewarded, not in this world, perhaps, but in the world where all is peace and happiness for the children of God. It seems to me the Prayer Union is a grand organization, although I can not meet with my sisters, but I try to keep the hour or part of it every week. It has been over three years since I united with the true church, and I can truly say I have never regretted it. But I thank my Heavenly Father that he led me to see the light and helped me to decide for the Praying for the welfare of Zion, I remain your sister in the one faith,

MAY BUTTERWORTH.

JOHNSON CITY, Mo., June 12th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column :- I am made to rejoice when I read of the noble work achieved by our elders notwithstanding the many hardships they are called to pass through, and I rejoice with those that rejoice and weep with those that Husband and I are the only Saints at this place. How we do miss the company of the Saints! The people are kind and neighborly, but not like the Saints. I have loaned some copies of the Voice of Warning and shall send for some tracts to circulate among the neighborhood as soon as I can. The doctrine is new to the people here and I believe there are some of the sheep fold here. We will try to have preaching here as soon as the hurry of getting in crops is over. We go twelve miles to Taborville to hear the good word preached every fourth Sunday, and are always more than paid for the trip. I was the first to obey the gospel at Taborville over a year ago. Since then there have been thirteen more and many are almost persuaded to come; and this through the wise and judicous labors of Bro. I. N. White and his co-laborers. The work is being placed in its truth and purity before the people, and if we are only faithful many more will be gathered into the fold was the voice of the Spirit unto us.

I have never regretted the step I took when I made up my mind to accept the truth, and I thank the Lord that I have been called out from among the world, for I have received blessings and testimonies so that I have not the shadow of a doubt but what the work is of God. It is my greatest desire to live such a life that I may be worthy to be called a Saint in word, thought, and deed.

Sisters of the Prayer Union, I am alone but I have not missed observing some time of each Thursday (and all other days) with you in spirit if not privileged to be with you in the flesh; and can truly say I gain strength thereby.

I have a family of six dear children entrusted to my care, and it is my greatest desire to rear them up fit for the kingdom of God. I have many hard trials to pass through, but would I hove one sorrow less? We know that we must be tried as by fire, for God will have a tried people. Still it is hard to have those that are near and dearer now than ever, turn the cold shoulder and point the finger of scorn at us. I am commanded to pray for them, to love them and return good for evil. May God help me ever to do His will is my prayer, and for all the children of Gods I am Sister MARY LYON.

PLANO, Ill, June 21st.

Sister Frances:-I was requested to ask the prayers of the Union in behalf of brother Ameda Wilcox that he may be healed of the affliction that has been troubling him for years. I will just say that a few sisters in this place have organized themselves into a Prayer Union and that the Lord has blessed us with his Holy Spirit many times.

AMY DEMPSTER, Sec'y.

NEWARK, Dakota, May 16th.

Sr. Frances:- I write to inform you that seven of the sisters of the Marshall branch met at the house of sister Morris on Thursday, June 6th, at 2: 30, p m., and organized a Prayer Union. The following officers were chosen: Sr. Mary C. Ode, president; Sr Amanda M. Oehring, secretary.

AMANDA OEHRING.

Correspondence.

Lineville, Iowa, June 25th.

Dear Herald:-I have been waiting and hoping that I might be able to report something more favorable concerning my state of health before writing for your correspondence column.

After the St. Joseph conference my health kept failing till I was brought into a very critical condition. At this juncture, I concluded to come here and try drinking the mineral water again. It had always helped me more or less, before, but this time I had some misgivings. However, I did not come till I had given the matter due thought and prayer. My trip here, from Lamoni to Pleasanton, and from Pleasanton to the Springs, came near being too much for me. The distance is twenty five miles and we took two days for it.

I shall not attempt to describe my experiences for the first four days at the Springs. I am thankful that they are among the things of the past, although the Lord was good to me, and the gospel was never more precious to my soul.

After the lapse of a few days, I began to improve rapidly, and on Sunday (five days after my arrival at the Springs) I walked one and onefourth miles to the Hickory School-house, and spoke to a very attentive congregation at eleven a. m. I had to start early and take a good rest with a friend about midway. What a grand thing it is to have kind friends! Who can do without them? I mean those whose hearts are right, and there is no flattery or deceit found on their tongues. Give me just a few like these, and the Almighty with them, and the devil and the world and false brethren may oppose if they will.

After a ten days stop at the Springs it became necessary for me to return home. The measles had come in our midst. Sr. Lambert was nearly worn out with labor and care.

May 26th I preached twice in the Saints Chapel at Davis City. On the 30th and 31st, I returned to the Springs; was considerably better than when I went the first time, but not near so well as I was when I left. Through the kindness of friends at Lamoni and Pleasanton, I have been conveyed to the Springs, thus far.

June 6th I left suddenly for Plum Hollow, Iowa, to look after our old friend (?), Clark Braden. The results of this visit appear elsewhere, in the Braden article. On my return I stopped a few days at home, and on the 18th instant arrived here again. I feel better here than elsewhere, as a rule, and am able to do more work. Through the consent and advice of the Bishop, I have arranged to make this my headquarters, at least for the summer and fall. Last Sunday we had a basket meeting here, in the grove, which was quite well attended considering there were other meetings on two sides of us. We had a pleasant and, I trust, profitable time. The work of speaking in the open air and helping fix up the grounds a little, were almost too much for me; but to-day I am feeling better again. Have appointments out for next Sunday at the New Zion and Hickory School-houses and for July 21st in the grove, at the Springs. Plenty of opportunities for preaching in this region, and I shall try to do all that I am able. All is well so long as we do right.

Josehh R. Lambert.

TAWAS CITY, Mich., June 21st. 7. Blair:—Our conference here

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Our conference here is over and we had a peaceful and pleasant time. We were well represented from Bayport, Oscoda, Bay City and Juniata, Altogether we enjoyed a peaceful time. Last week I was called to administer to the sick in Bayport. I left Tawas at one o'clock in a sailboat, arriving at Bayport at eleven, a. m. Found Sr. Brackenbury very low but left her feeling better. Before leaving that place I baptized one, and yesterday I baptized one more here. Others seem very much interested. I am to meet with the Saints in Bayport Sunday next. Your brother,

E. DELONG.

BLENHEIM, Ont., June 18th.

Bro. Blair:—Our district is now in a prosperous condition, for which we are deeply indebted to Bro. J. H. Lake. God has truly blessed him in his missionary labors in Canada, and especially since his return from General Conference.
His movements have been directed by the Spirit

Our district conference convened June 8th at Blenheim. The Spirit of God was with us in abundance from the commencement. The weather was rather disagreeable on Saturday, but was pleasant on Sunday, a spirit of solemnity rested upon us at the first meeting after conference was in a marked degree.

organized, which was prayer and testimony. After several inspiring testimonies were given, causing our hearts to burn within us, Bro. J. H. Lake sang in tongues. Bro. R. C. Evans gave the interpretation as follows:

"Ye saints of God fresh courage take, I bless you for the truth's free sake; I've called you for to sing my praise, In these the great and latter days.

Be firm and fixed in me your Loid, I'll bless you if you keep my word; Your trials shall all dross remove, Temptations shall love for me prove.

Then rise my people, do my will, Soon you I'll bring to Zion's hill; My people there shall gathered be, My face and glory soon they'll see."

On the evening of the same day Bro. Lake preached a grand discourse. He took for his text, "Who shall abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth?" We had prayer meeting Sunday evening. Gifts of tongues and interpretation through Bro. A. Leverton, encouraging some, warning others of approaching trials. Preaching in the forenoon by Bro. Strange of St. Thomas; Bro. A. Leverton in the afternoon and Bro. R. C. Evans in the evening. In all I do not think I ever enjoyed a conference as well as this one in the seven years that I have been a member of the church.

Your brother,

S. H. BACON.

SPRINGFIELD, Neb., June 19th.

To the Editors:—How badly we need preaching here. I hope some of the elders will soon come this way. We have had no preaching but a few sermons by Bro Rumel of Fremont, for about three years. Bro. R. M. Elvin was with us a few days. We live so scattered that we do not see each other but very seldom, and I am fearful if we do not have preaching soon there will be no place to preach in. The M. P. Methodists have had somewhat of a revival here and are gathering out of all the churches. They are going to build a church near us, and I am afraid the School-houses will be closed against us or anybody else. Your sister, MRS. W. M. SATTERFIELD.

WEST BAY CITY, Mich., June 21st. Bro. Blair:—On the Monday after the conference in Tawas City I walked around the town with some of my brethren to see if our presence and our conference was causing any excitement there. When we came in front of the post-office we found a group talking on Mormonism, a Methodist minister and a lawyer, both strangers to me, says: M. M.—"Well, there is a big crowd of them here, anyway."

L.—"Yes, they are making quite a stir."

M.—"Do they believe in old Joe Smith and Brigham Young?"

L.-."No; I do not think they believe in Brigham Young."

M.—"Well, they believe in polygamy."

L.—"Oh, no; I guess not. This kind has nothing to do with Brigham Young or the people of Utah."

M.—"Well, what do they believe in?"

L.—"Oh, they are all right; they believe in the Bible."

M.—"Well, they believe in free loveism, do they not?"

L.-"Well, I-I-do not-

J. J. Cornish.—"No, sir; they do not believe in free loveism; please excuse me, gentlemen, for interrupting you."

M.—"Yes they do, and in old Joe Smith, and polygamy, and Salt Lake City in their head-quarters—their doctrine is false, and they are a mean, dirty, low lived people, and—

L.—"This," addressing me, "is Elder Weir.

Mr.—, are you one of the Latter Day Saints?"

C.—"Yes, sir."

L -- "Yes, I thought you were. Well, this is an elder you are talking to."

C.—"I was thinking he was by his talk. Did you ever hear one of our elders preach, Elder?"

M .- "No; nor do not want to!"

C.— Well, you would not be a very good judge as to whether their doctrine was true or false."

M.—"Well, I know all about them; Joe Smith was a polygamist and his doctrine was false. The three witnesses all went back on their testimony, etc. Your members are drunkards and the whole church is corrupt. You claim to work miracles, heal the sick, etc. If you can do such things let us see you at it. Get some of your oil and grease over some one and let us see your power. Lay hands on a sick horse and heal him. Take up a serpent; take poison—I will pay for the poison; perform some miracle and I will believe your doctrine."

All this of course gave a big opening for me to talk to him. And I talked to him, too.

In a few minutes there were about fifty people listening, and we were crowded on one side of the sidewalk into an alley, and the Rev. Elder could not get away.

I talked business right up for a time until I got him to agree to discuss the points of difference between us. Propositions are signed to discuss six evenings, three on the Latter Day Saints, and three on the Methodists, debate to take place the latter part of July.

That night and the next morning it was the whole talk of the place. It is being published through the papers for fear he may back out. I will try to teach such men a little lesson. No doubt the debate will do much good.

J. J. CORNISH.

Dow CITY, Iowa, June 21st.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Our conference, which closed on Sunday evening last, was an enjoyable one, and the attendence was large. A good feeling prevailed throughout; but, like it was at Salem last June, we had a soaking rain on Saturday. Everybody felt glad and thankful, for it was just what we needed. Vegetation has improved wonderfully; our wheat and oats, which we thought would be scarcely large enough to bind, have grown, it seems, almost a foot since the rain. The prospects are decidedly encouraging.

In gospel bonds,

JOHN PETT.

LOOKOUT, Cal., June 18th.

I preached in the county supervisor's house yesterday and also baptized a very promising young man about twenty four years of age. About twelve others have said they should join. I shall remain here all summer and labor, if my family can be sustained; but if not I will be obliged to return home. In bonds,

J. R. Cook.

STEELVILLE, Mo., June 15th.

Bro. Blair: In infancy I was rocked in a Baptist cradle, my father being a minister of that church, and I received a thorough training in that belief. I joined them at the age of seventeen; belonged to that sect about four years. Coming to the conclusion that they would not make a clumsy counterfeit toward being the true seed of Abraham by the rule of adoption in the kingdom of the meek and lowly Jesus, I left them. They failed to acknowledge the priesthood, and denied that there was any; that baptism was simply to answer a good conscience; that the baptism of the Holy Ghost was only continued through the apostolic age; the signs that were to follow the believer had ceased; that there was no more need of them, for said they, "The kingdom of God is the Baptist Church, and it is already established." I could not find any succession for them from the apostles down, and they objected to new revelation and would not have any. And as one would suppose, that was looking after the light of God's kingdom, I just left their church feeling well assured that it was not in possession of the gospel.

I then took up many of the sectarian churches and tried to place them between the sun of righteousness and myself to see if they would cast a ray of the Son and his kingdom on me. But alas! all was dark, oh how dark, and the more I strove to get light from them the darkness became the more dense. I had not at that time had an opportunity of hearing the gospel preached and I did not know there was an organization on earth called a church that saw the confusion of Babylon as I then saw it. So I come to the conclusion that I would let it all go.

Things went on thus for twelve years, until I became acquainted with Bro. Atwell who furnished me with books and papers published by the Reorganization, and I found it was the organization that I had been looking for. But prejudice kept me from uniting with it for about a year. I knew it was the church and I said within myself that I would put it off no longer. I then notified Bro. Atwell that I desired to unite with the people of God and requested baptism at his hands. My wife had told me previously that if I joined the Latter Day Saints she would leave me; but she told a story, for she did not do so; and she says that I am a better husband, father and man than I ever was before. One of the prominent features that made me lay aside prejudice against the Saints, was that the enemies of Joseph the Seer said he was ignorant and lazy, and that he was more than stupid. I had read his lectures on faith and the revelations received by him, which I pronounced as fine language as I had ever examined. I took into consideration the amount of time and labor it took to translate the Book of Mormon and to get up the Book of Covenants; also the New Translation of the Bible. I could not see that he was a very lazy man. And his prophecies were true, for many of them are already fulfilled, and some are being fulfilled at the present time.

I don't know of a single Saint in this county. If there is I want them to let themselves be known to the writer. I would be rejoiced if we could have some preaching done at this place, for the people think the Reorganization is but another name for Utah Mormonism or Brighamism. If an elder will come this way I will make his lot just as comfortable as possible. Would be glad to correspond with any of the Saints that feel an interest that way.

Yours in the one faith,

W. G. MAXEY.

HAVENS, Nebraska, June 16th.

Dear Brothers and Sisters: I am alone here except that there is a sister who lives about twenty-five miles away and is the only Saint I have met for almost five years. So you see it is quite lonesome for one that has been used to the church meetings, but I am trying to set a good example to my neighbors.

I do not think there has ever been one of our elders this way to preach; in fact there is not much preaching of any kind here. I would like it if an elder could come here, but I see so many calls and no means to send them that I feel sorry. Now, brethren and sisters, as many of us as there are, can't we do more than we are doing. Can't each of us set apart ten cents, or even five cents a month? It is not much for one and from so many it would soon swell the Home Column fund. Where there is a branch this could be all paid and sent at the same time without extra expense. I mean for this amount to be called and used for the Home Column fund. Let us do as these verses tell us:

> Do thy little; do it well; Do what right and reason tell; Do what wrong and sorrow claim, Conquer sin and cover shame.

Do thy little. God has made Million leaves for forest shade; Smallest stars their glory bring, God employeth everything.

Do thy little, though it be Dreariness and drudgery. They whom Christ apostles made Gathered fragments when he bade.

Do thy little, never mind Though the brethren be unkind, Though the men who ought to smile Mock and taunt thee for a while.

Do thy little, never fear While the Savior standeth near, Let the world its javelins throw, On thy way undaunted go .- Sel.

With best wishes for you all and for the spread of the gospel, FLORA ABBOTT.

GALENA, Indiana, June 18th.

Brn. Joseph and William: Our district conference at Olive was not largely attended, owing to the heavy rains. Brn. W. Marshall and wife and two children, and Ed. Ford and wife, while on their way to conference, in crossing a creek their team had to swim and their wagon float, and the water rushed into the wagon bed with such force as to rid it of valises and hats. They were not quite so unfortunate as Bro. W. H. Kelley who lost his hat while asleep. Bro. W. H., no time for sleeping when we are in the land of bald knobbers and white caps! They found their hats the next day and one valise. In company with other Saints I returned to Union on the 11th and held meeting there the same night. On the 12th Brn. J. G. and J. M. started for their homes. I remained; had meeting at the chapel on the 13th, and on the 14th had the pleasure of baptizing Edward Ford and William Jeffers, and blessed two children of the latter.

On the 16th I walked nine miles in the forenoon to Byrnville to fill an appointment; but the appointment had not reached there. I had heard there was to be an expose of our faith at Edwardsville, so in the afternoon I walked nine miles farther. The expose did not come off.

Yours in the conflict,

M. R. SCOTT.

CORMORANT, Minn., June 18th.

Dear Herald:-- I feel impressed this morning after a reviving and badly needed shower of rain to write a few lines for the benefit of those who are absent from us in being but ever present in mind for our good. Like the rain, Bro. A. H. Smith was needed and his coming was timely. He did us good at conference which convened June 1st and 2d, and was then as heretofore an enjoyable time. The tent has proved a success. It was used for the occasion in the grove between Lake Maud and Lake Eunice, called sometimes the isthmus, on Bro. C. L. Jones' land. It was moved June 3d six miles on the south banks of Pelican Lake, and has been occupied nearly every night since, and twice on Sunday. To-morrow the tent programme is to continue south from place to place, reaching Fergus Falls at harvest time, a city of about five thousand.

As the tent leaves us here, it also leaves many believing, but excusing themselves. They have bought a farm, or a yoke of oxen, or married a wife. But I think it is mainly that name or word "Utah"-make a man an offender for a word-Mormon. Pride is a terrible load to keep people from obeying the Master's plan of redemption. Brn. Peak and Davis are small in stature but mighty in word. May God bless them.

W. W. McLEOD.

Boston, Mass., June 19th.

Dear Herald:-I am very glad to inform the Saints that the Lord is remembering His work in this great city. The spirit of prayerful investigation is resting upon some, who are about entering into solemn compact with the Eternal One, that they will remember Jesus Christ His Son and keep His commandments. Among them are those who will, if faithful, be the means in God's hands of carrying the message of peace on earth and good will toward man, to those we otherwise perhaps could not reach.

There is a peculiar charm in the gospel of Jesus Christ for the honest in heart. When once they have heard it preached with the power of God attending the word, in spite of themselves they do not seem to possess the power of keeping away from our meetings, but like an hungry fish accept the tempting bait held out to it, after perhaps very cautious investigation as to its quality. How it gladdens the hearts of the Saints when those who perhaps for months and even years have been attending the meetings, carefully and prayerfully comparing our claims with their Bible teachings, are at least forced to admit that we have the truth of heaven, and with melting heart and tearful eyes rise in the congregation of the Saints to praise God that they ever came among this people! And after manifesting before the church and the world that they have truly repented of all their sins, desire to follow their Savior into the waters of baptism.

This is the kind, dear Saints, we are having in our midst; this is the kind we want; this is the kind the church wants everywhere; yea, this is the kind the Lord wants. With such there will not be much trouble for branch officers. One truly and legitimately born into the kingdom of God will do more for the advancement of truth than a dozen who come in on the strength of some marvelous manifestation or by a too hasty baptism. This is the writer's opinion. For such need something of the kind, (as a rule), about every week to keep them interested in the work. God bless the honest hearted ones from every nation, tongue and people; and let our example before them be of such sterling merit that they may be led to glorify our Father in heaven. Our privileges, dear Saints, are great indeed; more than we perhaps have began to conceive. The depth of this work has never yet been fathomed by man.

Oh, for the time when we shall have so brought ourselves into subjection to the will of God that we shall be so filled with the Holy Spirit that searcheth the deep things of God that the hidden treasures of wisdom and knowledge may be ours to enjoy, and with them the power and authority to impart them to others! Let us heed the Word of Wisdom; let us keep it in strictness. I can testify to its merit as far as I have proved it. Let it be printed in large type on good paper, fastened upon cardboard and hung in every Saint's kitchen, where the memory can be often refreshed by its sacred counsel. Let us "come up higher" that we may be better able to reach the blessings above our heads. God bless the Herald, Hope and Autumn Leaves, their editors, subscribers and all who pray for and contribute financially to their support and Yours in bonds of peace, advancement.

R. BULLARD.

ULTIMATHULE, Ark., June 17th.

Bro. Foseph:—Since my appointment I have labored in Sevier and Howard counties. I have them stirred up at this place and they are trying to get a man to debate with us. I expect to labor in this part until directed to go elsewhere. Bro. Gillen can write me here. I would like to hear from him and get advice where best to labor. I hope this may reach him.

J. D. ERWIN.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

CLARK BRADEN AT PLUM HOLLOW.

On June 9th, 1889, Clark Braden delivered three lectures against "Mormonism" at Plum Hollow, Iowa, (now called Thurman) two of which had been widely advertised by means of hand bills, etc. The third, we suppose, was the result of an afterthought, in order to fully occupy the time and give the Latter Day Saints no opportunity of defense on that day.

The following were the subjects treated upon: 1. "The origin of Mormonism and its pretended revelations." 2. "The falsehoods, fallacies, frauds and follies of Mormonism." 3. "The Mormon problem and its solution."

The first two were delivered in the grove near Thurman, and the last in the Town Hall. Mr. Braden had been on the grounds for some days, delivering a series of lectures against Infidelity and in defense of Christianity. All this was evidently deemed necessary before making his characteristic attack upon "Mormonism." He needed sympathy and prestige, you know.

Elder McClure (another Mormon eater), was appointed to preside, and some one else to act as secretary; and, as the sequel showed, Squire Smith had been appointed to keep order on the grounds. Every possible effort was made to impress the people with the idea that the Latter Day Saints are a disorderly, rebellious crowd. Before the first lecture was commenced, Elder McClure stated to the people that at the close of the lecture some preambles and resolutions would be submitted to them. All (including the Campbellites, as a matter of course) were urged to vote except the "Mormons and their immediate sympathizers." At the close of the lecture, they were told again by Mr. Braden and Mr. McClure that, "all those who believe that God has given to mankind revelations which are not found in the Bible will not be permitted to vote." The document was read. It bore the unmistakable ear marks of Clark Braden all the way through. We give, in our own language, the substance of this paper, as nearly as we can, from memory: The propositions contained on Mr. Braden's bills are the ones, and the only ones, that we, the citizens of Plum Hollow and vicinity, who are not Mormons, care to hear discussed. Clark Braden is our choice and a suitable man to hold such discussion with the Latter Day Saints. Resolved, that a committee of three be chosen, on our part, to confer with another such committee appointed by the "Mormons," if they wish, to draft rules for the government of the debate, etc., etc.

The document was read. We were again informed that the "Mormons and their immediate sympathizers" would not be allowed to vote. A rising vote was called, but the people were slow to act. Elder McClure urged them to vote, so they commenced, and perhaps one-fourth of the entire audience rose to their feet. The negative vote was passed by quickly—no urging done then—and the vote declared to be unanimous!

Elder McClure then informed the people that a collection would be taken up, in the afternoon, for the benefit of Mr. Braden, for he had paid out quite a large sum of money for advertizing, had purchased a great many books in order to be prepared to put down "Mormonism," had traveled a long distance in order to reach Plum Hollow, etc., etc. Mr. Braden also informed his audience that in the afternoon he would pay his special respects to J. R. Lambert.

At the close of the two p. m. lecture, Mr. Braden informed the people that he did not propose to engage in throwing dirt; that they had some more preambles and resolutions to submit to the people, etc. But as before, the "Mormons and their immediate sympathizers" were not permitted to vote. This document provided for another committee of three (the "Mormons" to choose a similar one if they wished), with whom all complaints against Clark Braden are to be lodged, in writing, for examination and decision, J. R. Lambert or any other person wishing to establish the bad character of Clark Braden to have the gracious privilege of going before these men and doing so, Clark Braden to go before them and make his defense. The decision to be published in the Saints' Herald and we don't know how many other papers.

When the paper was about to be submitted to the people, J. R. Lambert asked the privilege of making a few remarks but was promptly denied and told to "sit down"!

"After their meeting had been dismissed, Elder Lambert stood in a buggy and attempted to speak to the people when loud and repeated calls were made for Squire Smith, by Elder McClure. A little conversation ensued between Smith and Lambert, when an appeal was made to the owner of the grounds, who decided that if Mr. Braden was through Mr. Lambert might speak. Just at this juncture, Elder McClure called out, "We will guard the seats," and, Mr. Editor, the good people who had listened to Mr. Braden, both in the forenoon and afternoon, while in his characteristic style he attempted 'to put down 'Mormonism,' and had quietly submitted to the preamble and resolution scheme, were not permitted to occupy the seats for a short time while Mr. Lambert addressed them! But the friends of liberty and fairness were not asleep. buggy was wheeled across the road off the immediate grounds, where as many as would and could hear were spoken to by Elder Lambert. Braden & Co. left quite promptly, taking with them a crowd composed, as we suppose, of their strongest supporters and sympathizers. Braden and McClure were evidently very careful that 'the Disciples' should not hear the other side. At the close of Mr. Braden's third lecture he made a personal attack upon Elder J. R. Lambert, upon the strength of what some one told him Lambert had said; but when Elder Lambert again asked the privilege of a few moments for self defense, he was again promptly denied and told to sit down! However, we must not omit to give them due credit for allowing Elder Lambert to announce that he would address the people in the Hall on Monday and Tuesday evenings.

"Although the weather was threatening and somewhat rainy on Monday evening, yet the attendance was good, and the best of attention given to Elder Lambert on the subject of Prophets, treated from a Bible standpoint. On Tuesday evening the house was crowded, and many had to remain outside. The speaker thoroughly exposed the intolerance, injustice and partiality resorted to on Sunday. He also exposed Mr. Braden's methods and manner of interpretation, showing that they are just what he (Mr. B.) so stoutly condemns in infidel writers and speakers. A written reply to Mr. Braden's challenge for debate was read by Elder Lambert on Sunday afternoon and Tuesday evening, setting forth that the Latter Day Saints are willing, as they ever have been, to affirm their faith, in its entirety, and deny the faith of Mr. Braden's church; but that he, Mr. Braden, would not engage in fair and honorable combat on the full issues existing between the two churches. The reply also makes another offer to Mr. Braden which is 'more than fair,' and it was stated that if that offer was not accepted, he was willing to leave the differences between him and Mr. Braden to a committee of three, one to be chosen by him, one by Mr. Braden, and they two to chose a third, who shall not be a member of any church. The duty of this committee shall be to investigate Mr. Braden's challenge with Elder Lambert's reply and decide definitely what propositions shall be debated. Arrangements have been made to place this reply in the hands of Elders McClure and Braden. Mr. Braden stated that, at the close of his last lecture, he would leave. Did Elder McClure go too? He failed to put in an appearance Monday or Tuesday evenings.

"The following extract from 'Programme and Endorsements of Lectures, by Clark Braden, A. M.,' will serve to show to the Latter Day Saints in general, and to Elders Kelley, Lambert, Bronson and Luft in particular, how unreliable are the statements of Mr. Braden. The truth is that nearly four years ago Elder Lambert submitted to Mr. Braden, in writing, propositions which fairly and fully covered the issues between the two churches, even agreeing to affirm that Joseph Smith was a Prophet of God; but, up to the present time, Mr. Braden has neither accepted the offer in its entirety, nor any one of the tour propositions referred to above. And as to the other parties named, not one of them has either backed out from a fair and full defense of his faith, or what he had agreed to do. Here is the extract:

"'Mr. Braden has debated and lectured on Mormonism. In 1883 he debated with E. L. Kelley in Wilbur, Nebraska. In 1884 he debated with Mr. Kelley in Kirtland, Ohio, the cradle of Mormonism. In 1884 he debated with — Gillen at Stewartsville, Mo. In 1884 Kelley backed out of the debate at Stewartsville, Mo. In 1884 the Mormons of Independence, Mo., the Mormon Zion, backed out of debate. In 1885 - Lambert, one of the Twelve Apostles, backed out of debate. In 1887 Bronson backed out of debate at Kingston, Mo. In 1888 one Luff and other Mormon champions backed out of debate in Plum Hollow, Iowa. Mr. Braden has spent hundreds of dollars and months of time investigating the origin of Mormonism. He can trace out the origin of the 'Book of Mormon,' and other 'revelations,' as plainly as a chain of title to a farm. He can unearth the Mormon serpent, from head to tail. He will deliver three lectures on Mormonism when needed."

We call attention to a few points and then close. "But first, "Let facts be submitted to a candid world."

1. It will be seen from the above that every possible effort was made to keep the people from hearing anything from the Latter Day Saints till after Braden's lectures were all delivered, money gathered, and he gone.

2. The votes taken are called by Braden and company, the expressions of the citizens (?) of Plum Hollow and vicinity, who are not Mormons. About one-fourth of the audience, as nearly as we can tell, voted. Were all the remainder (the three-fourths) "Mormons and their immediate sympathizers?"

Again: Just think of propositions being chosen, formulated, and arranged for discussion upon one of the most unpopular parts of the belief of the Latter Day S ints, by the Disciples and their friends, while the Latter Day Saints are neither permitted to speak or vote!

3 Right here we raise the question, Are Clark Braden and his friends laboring to reclaim and save the Latter Day Saints from error, or have they some other object in view? In the light of the above facts, let the intelligent and thoughtful answer.

4. We have offered, all along, and do still offer, to affirm in public debate all that we believe if Mr. Braden will affirm all the doctrine of the Disciple Church. Why will he not do it?

We offer to affirm that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God, if he will affirm that Alexander Campbell was a true teacher, and sent of God; or if preferred, that the Disciple Church is teaching the gospel as it was taught by Christ and his apostles. Why will he not do that?

5. The ingenious, crafty and contemptible work of Sunday afternoon at Plum Hollow was but an effort to lead the minds of the people away from the true issues, and, if possible confine our efforts to establishing the bad character of Blark Braden. But when they thought they had about completed this part of their work, Elder McClure offered the papers to J. R. Lambert, but the latter would not receive them; so they failed to catch us in that trap. Try again, Mr. Braden.

Let the Latter Day Saints live their religion, preach the faith, and they have nothing to fear.

Joseph R. Lambert.

Lineville, Iowa, June 24th.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCATION.

DECATUR DISTRICT.

At the March (1889) conference of the Decatur district held at Lamoni, Iowa, delegates, appointed by the various Sunday Schools, assembled for the purpose of organizing a District Sunday School Association, or to take such preliminary action as should be found necessary thereto.

The results of their labors were the drafting of a "Constitution and By laws of the Latter Day Saints' Sunday School Association of the Decatur District, Iowa", (published in the Hope for April 6th, 1889), and the passage of a resolution requesting the various schools to take action upon said constitution and appoint delegates to the next session of the district conference to be held at Allendale, Missouri, June 8th and 9th, for the purpose of completing the organization of the association.

In harmony with the foregoing the schools at Lucas, Davis City, Lamoni and Allendale appointed delegates, eighteen of whom met at Allendale, Missouri, June 8th, at nine o'clock.

By request the superintendent of the Lamoni school called the assembly to order, after which Elder H. A. Stebbins, president of the Decatur district, was elected temporary chairman, and R. S. Salyards secretary pro tem. Prayer was then offered by the chairman, followed by some general remarks on the object of the meeting.

The following resolution was adopted: Resolved that the chair appoint a committee of five on permanent organization, and that all schools that have sent delegates be represented on said committee.

It was announced that the Lamoni, Lucas and Davis City schools had adopted the constitution.

The temporary chairman appointed the following as a committee on permanent organization: Bro. W. Hudson and Sr. E. Tilton of Lamoni, Bro. O. J. Bailey of Davis City, Sr. E. Birchell of Lucas, and Bro. J. Hammer of Allendale.

By request Sr. M. Walker gave an outline of the work already done, what course was deemed advisable for the schools to pursue, and the objects the association was designed to accomplish.

The committee on permanent organization then reported, recommending the following for permanent officers: J. L. Gunsolly superintendent, H. A. Stebbins assistant superintendent, R. S. Salyards secretary and treasurer. The nominations were concurred in and adopted, and the committee discharged.

The temporary chairman then called the superintendent to the chair, when the following was moved and adopted: Resolved that the chairman appoint a committee to correspond with all other Sunday School associations in the Church with a view to securing a representation at the General Conference of 1890. E. Birchell, M. Walker and R. S. Salyards were so appointed.

It was resolved that when we adjourn we do so to meet at the place of the holding of the next district conference, and that the delegates convene the day preceding the opening of the conference session.

Brief addresses on the subject of Sunday School work were called for by the superintendent, which were responded to by Srs. Walker, Blair, Birchell and Ackley; and Brn. Hudson, Carr, Hammer, Bailey, Gunsolly, Harder and Salyards. The Holy Spirit was present throughout the entire session in a notable degree, and its influence was felt by all present, and regarded as a significant indication of the Lord's cognizance and approval of the efforts being made, and the promise of His aid in the laudable work of the better development of and increased attention to Sunday School work.

Among other things brought out in the addresses were the general objects of the association, which may be briefly stated as follows: To organize and arrange for the proper conduct of Sunday Schools where it may be found practicable; to enlist the interest of the children, the youth, the adult members of the church, and others, as far as possible in the Sunday School work; to increase and develop to the greatest possible degree of efficiency every available facility that may be had; and the organization of training classes in the various schools by the superintendent of the association, in order that the teachers may be instructed in the most advanced and best methods of normal (or natural) teaching, and thus better prepare them for the very important work of instructing the young.

By request Bro. Gunsolly gave some hints to officers and teachers present. They are, however, but an outline of what will be presented to the proposed training classes. They are as follows:

"Perhaps the following suggestions may be found of use to some of the teachers of the Decatur and other districts. They are offered, not in a spirit of criticism, but with a view to better our Sunday school work, and to fulfill the injunction of our Savior:

'Feed my lambs.'

The first subject under discussion is that of order in the house of God. It is a notable fact that our church is very deficient in this regard; and not alone do the children show a lack of respect and reverence for God's house, but they are taught this by the example of a parent, an elder brother or sister, by their teachers, or even by the elders themselves. While it is true that we are a very sociable people yet ought we to do those things which would, in the popular churches, be called a lack of reverence for the house of worship? Teachers are to blame for whatever loud talking and laughing there is heard in the school. Of course the question arises in the mind of every teacher who reads these lines, How is the matter to be remedied? First let me answer, Be in your place at least ten minutes before the last bell rings, and then insist upon order and quietude. Exercise that influence which all teachers ought to have upon their classes. If you find you can not be heard and heeded, let the superintendent take the case in hand who should not hesitate to secure the proper obedience in the proper way. Remember always, "Order is heaven's first law."

Attention is the next thing to be secured. It is just as reasonable to suppose that you can change the course of the wind as that you can teach a pupil until you have secured his attention. In order to secure the attention various methods must be devised, the chief one of which is to do and say that which the pupil can comprehend. In order to do this the teacher must himself comprehend the subject which he is to present. The teacher should be able to relate or read a simple story in connection with the lesson, which should be adapted to the capacity of the minds of the pupils. Follow the lesson story with the questions prepared upon the lesson, and seek to draw from the pupils their understanding of the subject, and encourage them to tell their ideas. Children are very fond of variety and change and must not be kept too long upon one thing. In presenting the various subjects the teacher must use every familiar illustration possible, for in no way does a child so readily comprehend anything as when he can see it with his eyes, or handle it with his hands. Above all things try to impress only one thing at a time. Let them view this one thing from various sides. If there are two things to be taught in the lesson, they should be presented separately, and better leave the second unmentioned than to attempt both and fix neither.

Do not forget that children can not think and reason as the older ones do. be sure they think and if encouraged will ask many a perplexing question, but they have not the powers of reason, and hence most of the reasoning must be done by the teacher in adapting the thought to the capacity of the minds before him.

Another great objective point should be to secure regularity in attendance. Many ways may be devised to secure this. Simple and easy songs should be used which are adapted to children's comprehension and voices, and which are of an inspiring character. Another incentive to regularity in attendance is to have some system of grading. This should consist of recording contributions, attendance, preparation upon the lesson, and deportment. Some simple reward or prize might be offered to the one who secured the best record in each department. The prize might be awarded annually or at the option of the teacher.

With respect to text books, it seems that it would be wisdom to use the books published by the church as far as possible, since uniformity is the great object of our association. Also classes ought to be maintained so far as possible in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants. In the advanced classes the best method to be used is doubtless the topical one which consists in allowing each pupil to read a verse and then to offer comment upon the same, after which a general discussion may follow, the teacher directing by questions and otherwise.

Doubtless one of the most stubborn things we now have to contend against is the lack of interest upon the part of the parents. Some very pious and zealous Saints would be horrified to learn of their children committing any crime but how little attention do they give to the habits their children are forming and to the company and associations with which they are surrounded. Others say, "Very well, my boy has just the same chance I had." Stop! my brother; do you know what you are saying? Do you not know that your boy has ten things to draw him away from Christ where you had one? Every school should have a committee whose duty it shall be to try to encourage and induce the parents to attend Sunday School, and to look after those of their vicinity who do not attend Sunday School.

There has been a wonderful advance made in our Sunday School work within the past few years, and it is the firm conviction of the writer that there will be a far greater step in the direction of perfection within the next five years than there has been within the past twenty. Lord is working with his children and stirring up the minds of his Saints to an interest which grows and spreads continually and which will ultimately result in securing a Sunday School representation in general conference. The future success of the church depends largely upon the Sunday School work, for 'tis there that the first principles of the gospel of Christ can best be laid, and there the spirit of endeavoring to work in the cause can best be instilled into the minds of the young. Everything points to the fact that the time is near at hand when the church will be fully organized, and let us strive to have our district Sunday school associations as numerous as possible and as near perfection as we can make them. The sectarian world have a national organization and exhibit marked zeal and enthusiasm. If they can accomplish so much in their own wisdom and strength, what might we accomplish with the assistance of Him who gave utterance to the following: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Adjourned to meet at Lone Rock, Missouri, October , 1889.

REASONINGS ON THE BIBLE.

THE AGENCY OF MAN.

OF all the many mysteries none is more mysterious than man himself. Whence his origin? and when or how long has he been here? has been the question and problem that many have sought to solve. Some there be who, through much reasoning, have tried to prove that man has developed from some other kind, such as the ape or gorilla, and all this was before the dawn of human knowledge, and this fine theory may be all set aside as not true by the simple fact that like begets like. One species can not originate another.

Many attempts have been made to prove the existence of man on the earth long before the man Adam, but finding the bones of men even in bear's dens and caves where they appeared to have once lived in a low state of savageness does not prove how long ago they may have so lived, for we find that in some parts of the earth men are so living at this day. Some try to prove that man began life as a low savage and gradually developed to the wonderful freedom and intelligence of the present age, but all are in the dark as to what really was the reason of his ever appearing on the earth, and none can tell for what end, unless by the revelations of God the Father. For to him alone is known the beginning and the end, and those to whom it has pleased Him to reveal a knowledge of the same. With all the reasonings of men the story of God's word is the best and simplest to the understanding of the seeker after truth who would desire to be wise in a knowledge of the things of God, and when we look around us at the condition of life, even in this age of boasted intelligence, we see that the greater mass of mankind have to make a hard struggle for an existence, and the state of things to day is such that if there was no other side to human life but what we now see, the wicked have the best of it, and many have lived in vain. Hence the great need of revelation from God to man that man may know how to serve God aright, and the reason why he should so serve and obey his commands.

Genesis 2: 15, 16, 17: "And the Lord God took the man and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it, and to keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man. saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat; but of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat; for in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Thus, then, we learn from God's word, that man began life in a beautiful garden to live in obedience to a command to disobey which was death. Many men to-day conclude that this is all a myth and so reject it as such; others believe it and that Adam was a very wise man and had great knowledge and lived in the garden over a hundred years before Eve was formed or made. But this and many other suppositions are simply what men have thought, but the record sustains no such opinions. The Lord God said it was not good for man to be alone, so he made a help-meet for him, and she was made from one of his ribs; another supposed myth. But myth or not, much has been said both by infidels and Christians about this woman, the first accusing her of most wicked acts; the second as the means of bringing much woe and misery upon mankind, as she first disobeyed the command, and first ate of the forbidden fruit. And, strange as it is, there is no record that says she should not eat, then how could one be guilty of disobedience who was never commanded not to disobey? And after it is all told and admitted we learn but little of the why of such a command, or the reason why the eating of the fruit should have such a hard penalty as death, or what that has to do with the creation of this beautiful world or the advent of man thereon. And we would be sadly in the dark had not God in his goodness given us some additional revelations on this subject. D. & C., page 251: "The elements are eternal, and spirit and element, inseperably connected, receiveth a fullness of joy; and when separated, man can not receive a fullness of joy. The elements are the tabernacle of God; yea, man is the tabernacle of God, even temples."

Thus, then, we learn why it was that men had need to be clothed in a body of flesh and bones that they should receive of the Spirit of truth and the intelligence of God, and joy therein. Truly it has been no vain thing to be permitted to come to earth and receive a body and of a fullness of joy, which surely shall be the portion of all who shall keep their temples pure and undefiled.

Thus, then, it was why "the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy," when the foundations of the earth were laid; for now they could receive an agency in the flesh and so be fitted and prepared to share in the Father's glory.

Genesis 3:4, (I. T.): "Wherefore, because that Satan rebelled against me, and sought to destroy the agency of man which I, the Lord God, had given him; and also that I should give unto him mine own power; by the power of mine only begotten I caused that he should be cast down, and he became Satan; yea, even the devil, the father of all lies, to deceive, and to blind men, and to lead them captive at his will, even as many as would not hearken unto my voice." Now this knowledge is had among men, that before the hills in order stood, or earth received her frame, the Lord God saw that when man would receive his agency he would fall away and be lost from the Lord's presence, and as it was not the Lord's will that man should so remain in his lost and fallen state, the question was, What plan should be taken to restore him again unto that which he had lost? Then it was that Satan proposed to go and save all unconditionally. Now this would not have been wise, for it would surely have destroyed the agency which the Lord God gave to man; then would the unjust be equal with the just, the wicked with the good, the false with the true, the oppressor with the oppressed, each and all; not on their own merits or worthiness. Surely this would have been confusion. But the Only Begotten chose the way of wisdom, and it was so ordered that each and all should be agents, free to act and stand or fall thereby. Then there was war in heaven because God had so decreed.

D. & C., page 118: "And it came to pass that Adam, being tempted of the devil, for behold the devil was before Adam, for he rebelled against me, saying, Give me thine honor, which is my power; and also a third part of the hosts of heaven turned he away from me because of their agency; and they were thrust down, and thus became the devil and his angels; and behold, there is a place prepared for them from the beginning, which place is hell; and it must needs be that the devil should tempt the children of men, or they could not be agents unto themselves, for if they never should have bitter, they could not know the sweet."

Thus evil originated by rebelling against God, and so it will continue even with them who say there is no devil and deny his power, for truly the devil always has had and now has great power over the hearts of men. What a cunning whisper, "There is no devil;" but no devil, no agency. Thus we begin to know the origin of all things of and in connection with man,-how he began to live in a beautiful garden to dress and to keep it. But how could he tell it was a beautiful garden, or that he had such an alwise bountiful Father if the earth to-day was all in beauty blooming? If there was to be continual plenty, how could we tell it without a famine? In short, if life had no bitter where would be the sweet? No evil, where the good? It was needful that man must come to a knowledge of good and evil in order that he should learn by contrast or opposite.

"And Satan put it into the heart of the serpent, for he had drawn away many after him, and he sought also to beguile Eve, for he knew not the mind of God: wherefore he sought to destroy the world." This is the beginning of the temptation. It is an old familiar story, how the devil spake by the mouth of the serpent; how Eve was enticed and did eat; how she gave unto her husband with her and he did eat; the discovery that they were naked; the Lord finding them; the man excusing himself because of the woman; the woman because of the serpent; and then the curse upon the serpent,—he loses his legs and is doomed to crawl on his belly. Now to this the naturalists bear witness for they say that the serpent has rudimentary legs, but why they are never developed they can not tell. Simply God's curse is still upon the serpent. There was to be enmity between the seed of the woman and that of the serpent, and so it is to this day. The woman was to bring forth children in sorrow and her desires should be to her husband. The ground was cursed for the man's sake; he was to eat bread by the sweat of his face, in sorrow, all the days of his life, and to die and return to the dust from whence he was taken; and yet this curse was like many of God's curses on the children of men-a blessing in disguise. For this doom to labor is the only way that man can retain health and vigor, and such it has ever been that where men have lived in the temperate regions of the earth and been forced to labor for that which sustains life, they are more robust and manly in all that becomes true manhood; more brave and fearless than those that live in a tropical clime where nature supplies all their wants without the least effort.

It is said there is an error in the fact that Adam did not die on the day he did eat of the forbidden fruit, for he lived many years. We have long known of death and yet can we tell what it is? We see the little innocent babe laughing in joyous happiness, the youth growing into manhood, the maiden in her blooming beauty, the mature man bright in wisdom, knowledge and intelligence, and mother with her children grown round her happy as the days are long if she is but able to care for all. And yet, who can tell how soon that grim monster, Death, will step in and take some loved one from the fold and leave them to mourn in sorrow. How still, how cold and lifeless! What is death? Just as mysterious as life, for all we can tell of it is that death is the absence of life -a separation, and this was the death that Adam died on the day he was sent out of Eden when he was separated from God and so died spiritually. See the beautiful rose bush with its roses in all their beauty. How beautiful they look! how their sweet fragrance fills the summer air! Take one from the stem and it will look just as beautiful and smell just as sweet, yet how soon it will wither and decay. Why? Because it is separated from the parent stem that gave it life. So with Adam: he lost the gift of life eternal when he was separated from God. The days of probation was given and he became as the things of nature, subject unto death. Thus, then, it is that they grow, bloom, fruit, wither, decay and die; so does man. But why this death or separation from God? Because man having disobeyed and become subject to do evil, God would suffer no evil to dwell in his presence; hence it was that the promise of the Redeemer was made, and a new command to worship the Lord God and obey the teachings of Christ. Now all things in nature abide the conditions in which God has placed them. The rose bush brings forth its sweet scented roses, the apple tree, fruit after its kind, also all plants, and thorns and thistles. We say that all are true to their nature, and so should man be. And he would be, did he chose to be taught of God, but he has the will to chose and so becomes an agent unto himself, as he may garner the good or evil as he will; and it is truly written "by their fruits ye shall know them." This is a most important and serious matter for all mankind to earnestly consider, for as we are, so we will be; as it is written, "He that is unjust let him be unjust still; he that is filthy let him be filthy still; he that is righteous let him be righteous still; and he that is holy let him be holy still." All that is expedient has been given. To-day is the day of probation, and the way is so plain, so easy to be understood that none need err, for God in his goodness has made it so all may receive of his mercy and live in accord with his truth, justice, mercy and charity; the only things of real worth to human kind, and the greatest of all gifts, the gift of life eternal in a life of never ending happiness. Who would not be wise in the day of probation and obey and receive such great and lasting blessings!

THE STORY OF THE FLOOD.

That there was a flood the traditions of men tell. It is true there may be some conflict in the different stories, but no more so than many traditions that are believed among men to-day. But that flood, the wise men say, could never be over all the earth for it is not possible for water to run up hill. Yet it is admitted that all the rain that waters the earth comes from the sea, and those rains ofttimes cause great floods in their onward march to the sea. Could not that power that now causes the rains to fall have caused the earth to be flooded? Ah, no! there is not water enough, they say.

Much objection is made about the ark and the size of it as far too small; and you know it had only one window. And so much do the wise objectors have to say about the ark and its living freight that they would almost seek to persuade us that what they don't know about the ark is not worth knowing. But the record tells us there was a flood and there was an ark, and God knew and understood all about it, so that we may feel assured that the objections of the wiseheads are too much of supposition and conjecture to be of much serious consideration; and yet we are all curious to know how such a thing as a flood could be over all the earth. How can we so understand it? Men have supposed that our old mother, earth, as we know it to-day, has forever been the same. Are we to believe that the conditions of things to-day are the same as the day when it was said to be finished and all very good? Surely not. Is it not now three-fourths under water, and parts of it nothing but barren, sandy deserts? Great huge mountains, swamps, and a great part covered with ice, or seasons so short, the climes so cold, and land so barren that it does not produce enough for men to live thereon; and when we take it as a whole we discover that there are only spots here and there that men can indeed find the wherewith to sustain life. Yes, there must have been great changes since the morn of creation. We learn that the duration of the lives of men was hundreds of years, and that even Noah was six hundred years old the day he entered the ark. The thought of a man six hundred years old! Look at our men of fifty and sixty, how old, toilworn and careworn and gray haired do they look; and the average life of mortals is now said to be thirty-three years, and few reach the age of seventy-five, and scarcely any a hundred years of age; and then what aches, pains and ills their flesh These things indicate truly is heir to. that the condition of things to-day are such that men can not enjoy the sweets of life but a few short years, even under the most favorable circumstances.

Now let us read Genesis 1:9: "And I God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and it was even as I spake. And I said, Let it divide the waters from the waters; and it was done. And I God made the firmament and divided the waters, yea the great waters under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament, and it was so, even as I spake. And I God called the firmament heaven. And the gathering together of the waters called I the sea."

Now we discover in this reading that there was a firmament in the midst of the waters and that this firmament was called heaven. We also learn that the waters under the heaven were gathered together unto one place and called the sea, the heaven and the dividing of the waters was the work of the second day, and there was waters above the firmament and water under. Now how can we conceive such a thing in such a way so as to understand it in the simplicity of its plainness? The waters under were gathered unto one place, that would be at the poles; and the waters above were high up above where we now see those white fleecy clouds surrounding all the earth like a great arch This may which rested on the poles. seem strange at first thought, yet the truth of it can readily be established, as we learn that in those days a mist arose and watered the ground and the first rain we read of was when the fountains of the great deep

